Grenville-Dundas re-elected the Hon. Geo. Challies who won in a straight two-party sontest over Hume Grisdale, Liberal, by a vote of 5,410 to 2,920. These figures are the total of 90 polls of out 100. Challies led Grisdale all the way, the totals in the larger centres being as follows: Chesterville, 221 and 128; Prescott, 539 and 376; Kemptville 332 and 123; Morrisburg, 431 and 246; Winchester 226 and 80.

Mr. Challies who was a member of the last Legislature, has represented Dundas County in the Legislature since 1929 and the riding of Grenville-Dundas since 1934. He was a member of the Cabinet of Hon. Geo. Henry, holding the position of Provincial Secretary and being in charge of Games and Fisheries.

Mr. Challies' majority was increased by more than 1,000 over the last provincial election. He had a majority in almost every poll which had reported last nigth and it continued to rise as further reports came in.

At 10.30 p.m. his opponent, Mr. Grisdale, phoned to concede Mr. Challies' election and to offer congratulations. Proxy voting in the riding was exceptionally light and the general vote as well was lighter than usual.

It is the fourth consecutive time that Mr. Challies had been elected to the Legislature and he is expected to be a member of the Cabinet when Col. Drew forms his new Government.

In the two counties Mr. Challies got 3,172 votes in Grenville and 2,915 in Dundas against Mr. Grisdale's 1,626 in Grenville and 1,768 in Dundas. It was a straight two-party fight in this riding, no CCF or other candidates having been nominated.

At dissolution of the Ontario Legislature the Liberal party held a wide working majority with 59 members. The CCF, second-highest group in today's balloting, had no members and the Conservatives had only 19. There were two Liberal-Progressives and 10 seats were vacant.

All three party leaders were elected yesterday—Mr. Nixon in Brant riding which he has represented continuously since 1919; Col. Drew in Toronto High Park and Mr. Jolliffe in York South.

Seven of the 11 retiring Cabinet ministers were defeated. Ministers who lost out at the polls were:

Hon. Wm. L. Houck, Minister without Portfolio, defeated by Cyril Overall, CCF, in Niagara Falls.

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, defeated by Fred W. Warren, CCF, in Hamilton-Wentworth.

Hon. Harold J. Kirby, Minister of Health, defeated by Leslie Blackwell, Progressive Conservative, in Toronto Eglington.

Hon. P.M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture, defeated by T.R. Dent, Progressive Conservative in Oxford.

Hon. Norman Hipel, Minister of Lands and Forests, defeated by Grieve Robinson, CCF, in Waterloo South.

Hon. Eric Cross, Attorney General, defeated by Wallace W. Walsh, Progressive Conservative in Haldimand-Norfolk.

Hon. Peter Heenan, Labor Minister, defeated by William Docker, CCF in the Northwest constituency of Kenora.

Besides Mr. Nixon, cabinet ministers re-elected were Works Minister Farquhar Oliver, at 39, the youngest member of the retiring cabinet, who ran in Grey South; Mines Minister Robert Laurier, who ran in Ottawa East; and Provincial Treasurer A. St. Clair Gordon in Kent West.

First seat to be conceded after the vite counting started was Elgin, in Western Ontario, won by former Premier Mitchell Hepburn, running as an independent Liberal and not opposed by an official Liberal candidate.

McMillan--Wilson

The marriage of Miss Mildred Mary Wilson, daughter of Mrs. A. G. Moore and the late Mr. J. E. Wilson of Ottawa, to Private William Blaine McMillan, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McMillan of Avonmore, took place quietly at high noon on Saturday at Erskine Presbyterian church. Rev. John McKay officiated.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. E. Brunel.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Gordon Moore and was attended by her sister, Mrs. W.B. Baird, as matron-of-honor. Mr. Ellery McMillan, brother of the bridegroom was best man.

SAVES BUTTER ORDER OR NO ORDER

Victims of regimentation are getting their backs up. The Mayor of Orangeville is the latest man to kick over the traces. He has refused to withdraw permits to two creameries allowing them to operate their trucks outside the 35-mile limit. The Price Board has ordered the cancellation of the permits on the grounds that they are invalid. Mayor McCulloch as chairman of the local ration board stands to his guns and asserts he is not going to allow butter and cream to go to waste, Price Board or no Price Board. He maintains the railroads and motor transportation companies are unable to handle butter shipments from Orangeville and Grand Valley satisfactorily and that thousands of pounds of butter from two creameries were in danger of going to waste, because of the unavailability of transportation. The Board says the order will be enforced impartially and that action will be taken against any person contravening it. In this connection the Prices Board has announced further restricted areas for the collection of cream commencing August 16th. The new order will affect a total of 1,200 trucks and will reduce the number on the road by 300. A recent order made it illegal to make more than three collections of churning cream each two weeks. Farmers will still be allowed to deliver their own cream to whatever creamery they wish but only the truck allotted to their district may pick up their own cream at the farm. It has been estimated that a 50 per cent reduction in mileage could be made if the farmers would carry their cream cans to the gates of the farm.

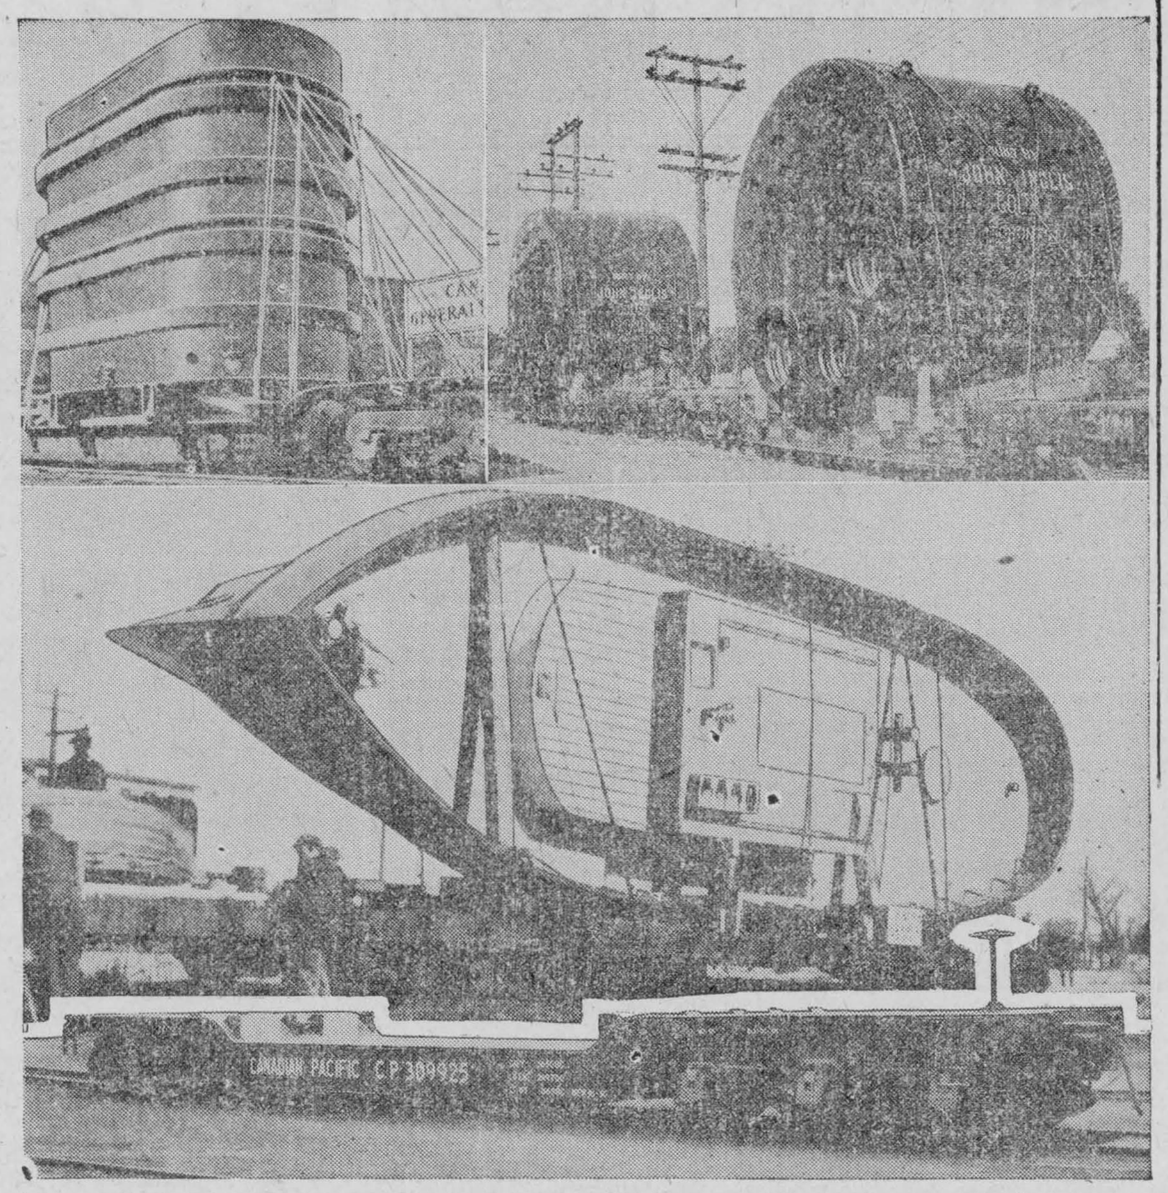

QUIET ELECTION CAMPAIGN

All things considered the provincial election campaign was fairly free from personalities although as was inevitable the "sly dig" was resorted to on many occasions. On the whole promises were of a nature that it will be difficult in many instances for performances to overtake. There was an absense of the old time brawls as partisanship was not so much in evidence as in former years. Personalities and abuse of opponents sometimes have a boomerang effect and candidates now realize that it is the height of wisdow to keep their appeals on a decent level. Apropos of this an incident is recalled of the days of the Mowat Government. A Tory orator was declaiming against the extravagance of the Grit Administration and to make good his point was reading from the Public accounts. "What do I find here?" he declared, "one dollar and 25 cents for chocolates—sweeties." An indignant old Scotsman leaped to his feet and cried. "It's a lie—Mowat never ate candy."

PRICES WILL BE SET FOR FRUIT

The Prices Board has decided to make the plunge and will place a ceiling on peaches, plums and pears. Just how this will work out is problematical as it is announced steps will be taken to ensure some portion of the crop is canned. The Board is also considering controlling the price of apples and is planning during the periods of shorter supply in winter and spring to put a ceiling on storeable root crops such as carrots, beets, turnips, parsnips and cabbage. The difficulty of the situation in regard to fruits is the shortage of the crops and the heavy consumer demand and the task of transporting perishable fruit, so that placing a ceiling on these products does not mean they will be available everywhere. The Board will see that prices do not get completely out of hand. The problem is one, particularly in respect to the berry crop, that may not admit of a ceiling solution.

C.P.R. Beats Obstacles to Move Wartime Shipments

PARTICULARLY adapted for handling outsize and odd-shaped war shipments, Canadian Pacific Railway flat cars shown above — empty and with loads of boilers for corvettes, a huge transformer and a welded-steel boat — have been of great aid to the war effort of Canada and the United States. Recently the company's largest depressed-centre flat cars, one of which is pictured at the bottom of this layout, were the only ones which could handle a 150-ton tank — 165 feet long and 12½ feet in diameter — from Lachine, Que., to a synthetic rubber plant in southwestern Ontario.

Two of these huge cars now are on loan in the United States hauling marine engines for the Kaiser shipyards, a type of shipment in which the Canadian Pacific pioneered, as illustrated upper right, where two smaller depressed-centre flat cars are shown, each loaded with a corvette boiler. These important shipments towered 21 feet, five inches above top of rail when blocked up to get them by certain half-deck girder spans on many bridges and at some bridges this blocking had to be removed, while the boilers were held up by jacks, and the shipment lowered to clear the bridge.

The company's engineering department laid down the special moves necessary to get the corvette boilers from Toronto to Quebec, listing all permanent installations which had to be removed temporarily. The technique initiated by the Canadian Pacific for this movement has since been copied by other roads to the great profit of the war effort.

In the matter of the transformer (upper left) the main consideration was to get equipment heavy enough to carry it from Toronto to Milton, Ont., with its weight of 134 tons being only one ton less than the maximum load capacity of the biggest depressed-centre flat car the company has in its freight rolling stock of 77,710 pieces, all in war service. The boat (centre) was an awkward load with a maximum width of 12 feet, 10 inches. It was 61 feet, six inches long and was transported from Owen Sound, Ont., to Saint John, N.B., on two machinery flat cars.

TURNS IN PERMIT AND LICENSE

In these days of traffic congestion there are two classes who should refrain from driving automobiles—elderly persons and habitual drinkers. Handling a car requires quick action in emergencies usually beyond the competence of an old man. He should sit back and let the son or the daughter do the driving. The man who drives a car while under the influence of liquor is little short of a potential murderer and not deserving of sympathy. In Lindsay last week a 76-year-old farmer surrendered his driver's permit and his car license to the Crown for keeps, declaring, "I'll never drive a car again." He did not reach this decision, however, until he had been convicted on a charge of reckless driving, after becoming involved in a serious collision. He was a man of exemplary character. The only thing wrong—he was too old to drive a car.

BE THE BEST OF WHAT EVER YOU ARE
By Douglas Malloch

If you can't be a pine on top of the hill
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass
And some highway much happier make;
If you can't be a muskie, then just be a bass—
But the liveliest bass in the lake!

We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew;
There's something for all of us here.
There's big work to do and there's lesser to do,
And the task we must do is the near.

If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail;
If you can't be the sun, be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or you fail—
Be the best of whatever you are!

Tenderfoot—A man told me that he saw three pine trees, that on each pine were there dead limbs, and on each dead limb there were three acorns. How many acorns were there altogether?

First Class—Twenty-seven.

Tenderfoot—Next time you see an acorn on a pine tree let me know.

THE SMITH A MIGHTY MAN

News items in the country press reveal that the smithy is busy this season. Shipments of horses from the Midwest to the East have been nearly as large as usual. With many mechanics serving Uncle Sam, owners of trucks and tractors are turning to the smithy for vital repairs. And with his Yankee ingenuity, the smith is keeping the horses shod and the mechanical farm equipment rolling.

The blacksmith shop in those halcyon days a generation gone, was one of the centres of rural life. The sooty window panes were covered with spider webs; the rough splintery floor was black and grimy; shoes of all sizes hung on the rafters overhead. One end of the shop was a monstrous cultivator, discarded horseshoes, pieces of wood, sections of machinery. Pervading all was that delightful, mysterious, pungent odor compounded of hoof parings, coal, dust, and the brackish water in which the red hot shoes were plunged to be cooled.

There are men, yes, and women, too, sitting in city offices today who remember taking Buttercup and Daisy to the blacksmith for a set of shoes. They will be glad to know that the brawny smith in his blackened, well-worn leather apron is still sending showers of sparks through the air.

DRESSED POULTRY

Squab broilers, broilers, fryers, roasters, poulards, capons, ducklings, goslings, young turkeys, Guinea chickens and stags, according to dressed poultry marketing regulations, are young birds with soft flexible cartilage at the end of the breast-bone or keel, and are prepared for market and killed before they are used for breeding purposes. Stags are male chickens approaching maturity, and squab pigeons are young pigeons that have never flown.

A lecturer had been describing some of the sights abroad. "There are some spectacles," he said, "that one never forgets."

"I wish you would tell me where I can get a pair," exclaimed an old lady in the audience. "I'm always forgetting mine."

SUBSIDY FOR FARMEDS WHO BUY GRAIN NOW

As an incentive to farmers in Eastern Canada to buy Western feed grains as soon as possible and store them on their own farms so that next winter's live-stock feeding requirements will be met, the Dominion Government will pay a per bushel subsidy based upon a sliding scale, the Agriculture Department stated on July 16.

Farmers in the Eastern provinces who buy Western feed grains under this plan, to be known as Plan B, will receive a 3 cent per bushel subsidy for grain bought in July; 2½ cents per bushel for August; 2 cents for September; 1½ cents for October; 1 cent for November and ½ cent for December.

Orders placed since July 1, 1943, will be eligible for the subsidy.

F.W. Presant, Feeds Administrator, under whom the plan is being administered, stated that it is anticipated it will increase the immediate demand for Western feed grains at a time when transportation facilities are more favourable than during the winter months.

A small grain crop is in prospect in Eastern Canada, he said, and with the substantial increases in live stock and poultry on Eastern Canadian farms, which are being raised so as to meet the abnormal food demands from every direction, it is necessary that steps be taken at once to assure that sufficient feed be available for next winter.

Farmers who buy Western grain under Plan B will receive the subsidy in the same way as under the Freight Assistance Policy in connection with Western feed grains.

Concentrated Milk and Tke Testing Problem

Farmers of the local Concentrated Milk Producer's Association are gradually becoming more and more conscious of the importance of herd testing as a means of attempting to improve the butter fat production of their herds. Unfortunately it is a slow process and it must be remembered that each year's crop of heifers must also be tested and the low testers weeded out. At the present price of milk ($2.00 for 3.5 p.c.) the importance of a high testing herd is emphasized when it is realized that milk testing 2.9 (and there are plenty of them) only brings around $1.65 to the farmer. At the recent visit of the Association check tester, Grant Smith, to Nestle's several farmers had their herds tested for the first time, and were amazed at the test of some of their cows. One farmer took a step farther than the rest. He attempted to check test the check tester. Having a fairly low test for years he was induced by Smith to have his herd tested. When the samples, about 20, were brought in, they all tested the same 3.1. As it has never been known that a herd has every cow test the same it only proves that the farmer spent some of his time as well as that of the check-tester to prove that the same sample of milk which he must have placed so carefully in each bottle had the same test even though tested twenty times.

At a recent meeting Alec McKinley, President of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture gave out the following information.

The crop of coarse grains, as surveyed by the most competent judges, in Eastern Canada would be between 40 and 50 percent of last year's crop. If rust attacked the many acres of late grain this estimate might be a little high. Taking into account this decrease and the amount brought in from Western Canada last season it is calculated that it will require 200 cars of Western grain each day from the 1st of August to the first of January to meet the demands of Eastern farmers. At present there are about 300 cars a week coming East. The United States trade is offering more for this grain than we, under the ceiling prices can pay. That and the shortage of grain cars and labor mean that some farmers will not have grain this winter. The wise farmer will at once lay in his supply. In a few days the Federation will be starting a campaign emphasizing this and explaining the government's plan of assistance.

The fact that the farmers in Eastern Ontario have to buy a bag of feed flour with every three or four bags of bran or shorts was brought to the attention of the Federation. This condition is unheard of in Western Ontario and the Federation will take steps to see why this condition exists in this part of Ontario.

Teresa Moriarity Honoured With Prenuptial Shower

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moriarity, when their neighbours gathered to honor their daughter prior to her marriage. The address was read by Mrs. Jas. McCadden, to which Teresa made a reply and all sang, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Dear Teresa—We your friends and neighbours have pathered here on this occasion to spend a social evening preceding your approaching marriage. We wish to extend to you our best wishes and to express in some small measure the esteem in which you are held.

Although you have been in Syracuse a number of years you are still one of ours and have endeared yourself to all by many acts of kindness.

We hope that you will frequently visit us all in future years.

We ask you to accept these gifts which convey with them our sincerest wishes for health, happiness and prosperity during a long wedded life.

"May those wedding gifts
Play their happy part,
In bringing still more happiness
Unto your happy heart."

On behalf of your friends and neighbours signed, Mrs. Joseph Manley, Mrs. Peter Manley and Mrs. Jas. McCadden.

Izzy and his wife dined at a restaurant for the first time. After being handed the bill, Izzy scrutinized it closely and said to the manager: I say, you've charged us for dessert. Ve never touched it."

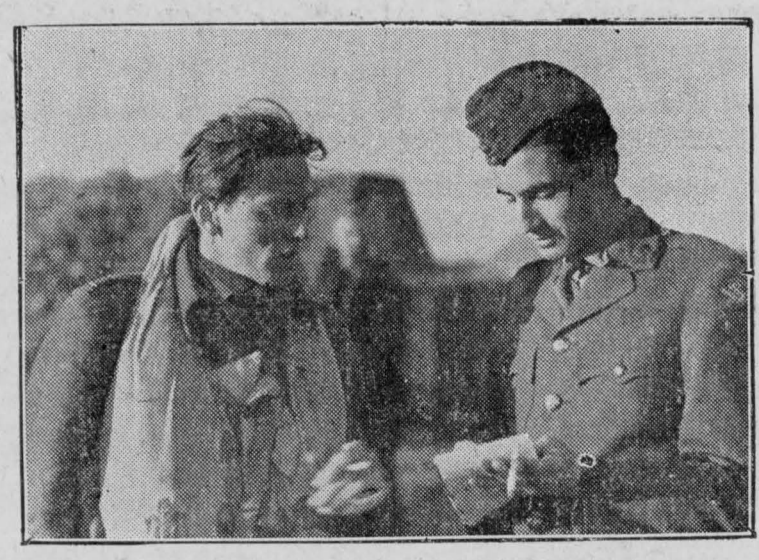

"But," exclaimed the manager, "regardless of whether you ate it or not, it was there for you."

Izzy handed over the money in payment of the bill and the manager found it was five shillings short. He pointed this out to the client.

"But that was for kissing my wife," explained Izzy.

"I certainly didn't kiss your wife!" protested the manager indignantly.

"But she vos there, vosn't she?"

AT A FIGHTER STATION IN BRITAIN

Shortly before he landed with the Canadian assault troops on the beaches of Sicily, CBC war correspondent Peter Stursburg interviewed a famous Canadian ace in Britain. It was a Vancouver reunion. Squadron Leader Edward Francis John (Jack) Charles, D.F.C. (left) is the son of Mrs. Anne Charles of Vancouver. Charles, it will be remembered, split a three hundred pound purse with a Fighting French pilot for the thousandth plane brought down by their respective squadrons; Charles bagged eleven of the enemy planes in his squadron's tally. Stursberg (right) was a member of the CBC Vancouver newsroom staff before going overseas.

We're Going to Get Married

Collapsing into an armchair, the bridegroom's mother laughed like a happy, over-tired schoolgirl and said to me, "My dear, if anyone had told me five years ago that my only son's wedding would be like this I'd never have believed it."

We had just given the plucky young bride and bridegroom a confettiless send-off. We had bundled into the wedidng car, the bride, the bridegroom, the bride's mother, sister, aunt and school-boy brother. The chauffeur was short of gasoline.

The whole family party was catching the same train to town, and in fact staying at the same West End hotel—the only one with roms available at such short notice.

For the first time in forty-eight hectic hours the bridegroom's mother could afford to pause for a deep breath.

It was the oddest wedding either she or I had ever attended; yet it was typical of weddings now taking place all over London and its suburbs.

In fairness to the bridegroom's mother—let us call her Mrs. Wells—I should begin at the beginning.

Her treasured only son, a twenty-one-year-old pilot phoned her on Sunday afternoon to say, "Mother, I've got embarkation leave. I want to get married."

Mrs. Wells knew, vaguely, that her son was interested in one particular girl but had never met or even heard her name.

"The point is Joan's people can't arrange the reception, so we wondered if you would," he told her.

"We want it as soon as the license can be arranged—that is on Tuesday."

Being a practical woman Mrs. Wells thought first of milk. There was half a pint in the larder and half a pint due next day. The powdered milk was all used, and the jellies had gone. But there was some tea saved for emergencies: some sugar being kept for summer bottling; one tin of Spam, and (bless Lord Woolton for his timely distribution) one large tin of American-canned apricots.

How many guests would there be? She would not know until the morning. But there were Uncle Jim, Aunt Mary, the Hubbards, Carol and Robert; and if she invited them she must invite Pauline and her husband.

She could not keep her list below twenty-two. "Double that and add six for bad luck and you have fifty hungry people to provide for, my girl," she told herself.

She phoned to cancel her Monday evening bridge.

"My dear, how too awful," the least-skilful player consoled her. "What are you going to do for food? Tell you what: I have some jellies in my store cupboard. I'll make some and bring them over first thing on Tuesday. Oh no, it doesn't matter about my boys. They don't know I have got any more."

Another player offered to make some sausage rolls. "I've been hoarding margarine to make cakes for the children in the holidays, but there's plenty of time to build up a new store," she said. "My grocer always has sausage meat on Mondays and it really doesn't taste at all bad if you add things to it and roll it up in puff pastry. You leave it to me."

Mrs. Wells helps at the local baby clinic on Monday afternoons. Word son went round about her son getting married the next day and "her having to arrange the reception on twenty-four hours' notice, and all."

"My! Whatever's she going to do for food?" the women asked each other. But they didn't leave it at that. Most of them could spare a cup of milk, "just for once."

Early on Tuesday morning two of the mothers called and left seven pints of milk on Mrs. Wells' doorstep, with a card saying, "Wishing you a happy wedding reception. Form the mothers at the clinic."

Soon after Mrs. Wells had discovered the milk bottle and rubbed a persistent tear from her eye, the bride, her mother, her aunt, and the bridegroom — presented themselves at the front door.

John called her a "darling" and a "sport", and said he'd like her to meet Joan, Joan's mother, and her aunt.

Mrs. Wells protested that John had no right to see Joan on the wedding morning before the ceremony. "You'll be suggesting you drive together to the church next," she said.

"As a matter of fact, we shall have to," John told her. "We can get only one car for the whole show".

Even in church the only thing that was normal was the vicar. There were no flowers and no choirboys. The bride wore her "going-away outfit—a utility two-piece, bought the day before, with no time for alterations. The bride's mother, having given all her coupons for her daughter's trousseau, was "making do" with last year's spring ensemble.

I did not see a single hat in the church that you could have said was new. Only two women wore silk stockings—the bridegroom's mother (bless her!) and the bride's aunt. They created more stir than the bride's frock.

Back in the house we found the "daily woman" (borrowed) had broken a glass. Glass being as elusive and as slippery as fish these days, poor Mrs. Wells had collected together fifty glasses.

That was how, at three o'clock, she came to be drinking the wedding toast other only son and his bride in cooking-sherry out of a china tea cup.

The prospective son-in-law had just given little Willie, brother of his sweetheart, a sack of candy.

"Don't you think my beau is a good fellow?" asked big sister.

"Huh—he's better than that!" said Willie.

"How do you mean?"

"Well, I heard Mama tell Papa that he was better than nobody!"

Hyndman

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conley, Mr. and Mrs. McCarley had dinner on Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Conley, Prescott.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Sears and daughter Barbara, Spencerville, visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sommerville, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Jack Epps and children, Mrs. Clarence Blakely and children, all of Montrea, visited Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Francis one day recently.

Miss Winnie Francis, South Mountain, visited Mrs. Bert Lattimore, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dillabough of Osgoode Station, Miss Muriel Larker, Ottawa, Mrs. Janet Linen, Heckston, called on Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lattimore, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Grant, Cardinal, visited Mr. and Mrs. Ray Grant, Mr. Sam Grant, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Burt Lattimore visited Miss Lizzie Smith, Silver City, Saturday.

Miss Phyllis Conley left for her home in Hawarden, Sask., on Friday after spending the past three weeks visiting friends here. She is staying in Toronto a week with friends before going home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McLaughlin and family, Cardinal, were Saturday afternoon visitors of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grant.

Mr. Walter Conley is spending this week with his daughter Mrs. Raymond Dillabough and Mr. Dillabough, Osgoode Station.

She looked pretty and harassed and her words came very distinctly from the next table.

"The plural of man is menace," she said.

First Presbyterian Camp Highly Successful Outing

"We'll be back again," were the farewell greetings of the boys, girls and Young People who attended Point Iroquois Presbyterian camp. This is indeed gratifying as it was a new venture for Presbyterians in Eastern Ontario. Congratulations go to the Brockville Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society for this new undertaking. It is worthy of note that all help, except the services of Mrs. H. Kaine were gratuitous. But special mention must be made for those who instigated and saw the work completed. Hearty praise goes to Mrs. W. Fitzsimons, Cardinal Presbyterial President, who acted as business manager for the three camps, and also, to Mrs. R. Ledgerwood, Mountain, Presbyterial corresponding Secretary, who was registrar and treasurer. Of special note also is the fact that these two ladies, ably assisted by Mrs. George Forrester, Cardinal, also took charge of the cooking during the Boy's Camp. For the Girl's and Young People's Camp, Mrs. Hilliard Kaine, Cardinal, managed the cooking with Mrs. Ledgerwood acting as dietitian. To look after the health and welfare of the boys and girls special praise goes to Miss E. Carlyle, R. N., Kemptville, Presbyterial Home Helper's Secretary, who was camp nurse.

Such a project in times like these may seem foolhardy to some. At Point Iroquois Camp, our one aim was the furtherance of God's Kingdom. We seek no praise, but ask only that God may prosper us in our efforts. From June 26th—July 9th efforts. From June 26th—July 9th and pines were taught the meaning of God and the claims of Christ for each of their lives. For the religious instruction of the boys, Rev. W. Mac Kinnon, Winchester, led the smaller ones in the Study of The Life of Jesus. The other 2 groups were led by Rev. W. Fitzsimons, Cardinal, and Maurice McNabb, student Minister at Iroquois. During the afternoons, hikes, softball, swimming provided the main entertainment. Mr. Maurice McNabb, Knox church, Iroquois, was faithful in his duties as Director of the Boy's Camp.

The weather was more camp-like for the girls and from July 9th to July 19th, 38 girls were ably directed in all activities by Mrs. K. Stewart, Brockville, Instruction again included Bible Study led by Maurice McNabb, who dealt with the Life of Jesus in the Gospel of St. Mark. Another part of the morning program was a course in handicraft by Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Fitzsimons. During the afternoons rest periods, hikes and swimming were the order of the day.

On July 16th the campers were visited by Rev. Dr. A. S. Reid, Synodical Missionary for Montreal and Ottawa. He was our guest for dinner and his luncheon talk was much enjoyed. The same day in the evening, Rev. Dr. N. A. McLeod, Brockville, past moderator of the Presbyterian church in Canada gave an interesting talk on Palestine entitled—Travelogue through Palestine on Horseback. His vivid descriptions of Palestinia life pleased us all.

Registration for Young People was somewhat lower, but due to present war demands on our youth, this was expected. Though there were only 17 of us, the Christian Fellowship was marked. The Young People were under the direction of Rev. E. H. Johnson, returned missionary from Manchuria. His messages were a challenge to all. "Eastern Faiths," said the speaker, "are breaking down, if the world is to be one in Christ," Christ's Command. Go ye into all the world, must be carried out. Christ is the one and only hope of the individual and even in war-torn Europe and Nazi Germany, Christ is still a haven of rest. With modern means of travel the world is one, as never before, we are side by side, but not in true neighboriness. Surely in these times, and in keeping with Christ's teachings, the prayers of all the Christians should be, "O God help us to love our friends, who are now our enemies."

In keeping with the theme for Young People—Today's Youth is a World Church—Miss Laura K. Pelton, General Secretary of the WMS in Toronto, gave instructive lectures on The Ecuminical Movement of the church in Missions which started in 1910. We were made to realize as never before that, "the work to be done is so vast, so urgent and so important that it calls for all resources of all Christians in all parts of the world. As we listened to the hardships some of the churches in Europe and Asia were enduring, we saw what an important part we in Canada can play. Sunday afternoon after a Consecration Service led by Rev. Johnson we left camp with the desire as expressed by Rev. Jheng-Cheng-Yi, First Moderator of the church in China, "Revive Thy church begining with me".

Soldiers Helping on Farms To Get $3 50 Daily

Labor Minister Mitchell announced that plans now are complete for the assignment of soldiers to "farm duty" to assist in harvesting, with the governments of the provinces all agreeing to co-operate with the Federal Government in the plan.

Mr. Mitchell's announcement followed one earlier today by the Defence Department which listed these minimum wages to be paid for the services of the soldiers; Western Canada, $4 daily; most parts of Ontario, $3.50; Quebec and the Maritime Provinces $3. In addition, farmers will provide board and lodging.

The Labor Minister said it was expected "substantial" numbers of army personnel would be available for farm work.

Farmers seeking assistance should apply to representatives of Provincial Agriculture Departments including any special farm placement officers, or to the special farm labor committees set up under the Dominion-Provincial farm labor agreements. Special application forms will be available at those sources. Farmers also may make inquiry at their nearest Employment and Selective Service office.

Under the plan, a soldier detailed will continue to receive his normal pay and allowances while working, apart from subsistence allowance. At the end of his farm work he will receive the difference if the amount payable by the farmer to the Labor Department for his services exceeds the man's regular pay and allowances.

Today's Defence Department announcement also revealed that men granted compassionate leave to help in harvesting on their own farms or those of their parents or relatives will be provided with free return transportation to destinations of not more than 500 miles, meal tickets and free overalls. Those going to points more than 500 miles distant will pay for their transportation beyond that point.

it was very late at night. Not a soul seemed to be about, and the poor woman was very seasick. She thought if she could only get up to the deck for a few minutes, the fresh air would do her good. So in her night attire she was crawling up the stairs when she met an equally sick man coming down.

She gave a very feeble scream.

"Don't worry, madam," the man groaned. "I'll never live to speak of it."

Germany Lost Says Hun Captured By Americans

It is a rare thing to see a German cry.

But there was no doubt about it—the young Nazi soldier was blubbering like a spanked child. He stood weeping under an olive tree, and the hands he held out were red and blistered.

He got the blisters digging graves for slain German soldiers under the supervision of a group of American soldiers who captured this ridge yesterday, killing some 150 Nazis on a rocky summit in a bloody battle that gave the hill its sanguinity nickname.

"Germany is lost," moaned the German youth, who, although 18 years old, had been in the army two years. "What have people there to live for? They work hard, and all of them have no pleasure left in life. And we lose battle after battle. It is hopeless. Mussolini and Hitler—they are to blame. They are to blame for all our troubles."

Tears of weariness, rage and despair trickled down his cheeks. Although he himself cursed Hitler, his attitude could not be taken as an indication of any general feeling of revolt.

In the pockets of a number of dead German soldiers were postcard portraits of Der Fuehrer. Despite his youth, the Nazi gravedigger had seen extensive action and, like other prisoners taken on "Bloody Ridge", spoke with horror of the intensity of the two-day bombardment by American artillery.

"He told us it was three times worse than Stalingrad," said Cpl. Vernie Collins of Wagoner, Alta. "Several prisoners said the same thing. They took an awful pasting from the artillery before we polished them off with rifles, grenades and machine guns."

Besides all his other woes, the young prisoner expressed anger towards his Italian allies.

"Some of their troops began turning their guns on us just before giving up themselves, and they tried to hinder our governments," he said.

"Yes," replied Bill, from behind his towel.

"Well, see if you remember your own when you shave it. I've just broken your mirror."

HOUSE FLY AGENT OF DISEASE GERMS

Because it is one of the most active agents in the spread of disease and one of the greatest enemies of public health, the common house fly should not be tolerated in the home or its surroundings or in shops offering human food and fruit for sale. It breeds in filth, and passes directly from this filth to human food, carrying bacteria and particles of decomposing organic matter on its hairy body and legs and on its sticky feet and mouth. It may light on the face of a sleeping child, and this common fly is notorious for the part it plays in spreading tuberculosis, cholera, diarrhoea, typhoid, tuberculosis, dysentery and other diseases.

It is strongly suspected of being a carrier of the virus causing infantile paralysis and already the case has been almost proved by the finding of the virus in a mixed collection of flies taken in districts where infantile paralysis had occurred.

The common house fly is one of the most serious corrupters of food. In the home, control of flies is comparatively easy. They can be destroyed and effective covering of the temporary garbage will prevent the flies from findiny a breeding place.

The most effective method of control consists in eliminating or reducing their breeding places outside by the proper treatment and disposal of such materials as garbage. One neglected garbage dump is often sufficient to infect the whole neighborhood, and therefore in the control of flies it is necessary to enlist the active co-operation of the whole community.

The Confectioner's Shop

The confectioner's shop in Pie Lane is not what it used to be, as a glance at the window will show. The tiers descended from the rear are of green-painted wood, and the sight to the native is comparable to a demolished wall unexpectedly revealing a view; previously we did not know there were tiers.

The only thing observable before the war was a phalanx of glassware supporting a variety of cakes, buns, tarts and pies. Crevices between the glass were cunningly filled with colored shavings embedding fat chocolates or sweets. The back of the winow was a solid wall of loaves except for a central mirror fixed to the door through which Mrs. Huckling leaned to withdraw things from the window.

Except for the proprietary commodities Mrs. Huckling baked everving herself. Irradiating her features as she leaned through the door with a paper bag in one hand was the pride of achievement.

She did not grab the buns and toss them into the bag anyhow. Her free hand fluttered momentarily over a given pyramid as she decided on the exact bun to suit the exact customer, and this she snuggled into the bag as though she were transferring a song-bird's egg from one nest to another.

And paramount in her whole creative performance was the veil and ham pie, Each pie was of a beatific savouriness, golden-crusted, and as large as a kettle-drum. Mrs. Huckling knew that the pie was her ultimate feat, and probably for that reason she kept it strictly within the shop enthroned on a small dais occupying the side counter. And it deserved to be enthroned. tIs crust and melting interior touched with French mustard were the epicure's dream. It had a reputation outside the locality: in the good old days motorists and lorry drivers deviated to buy a wedge.

Mrs. Huckling was the apotheosis of fiction's village dame; spectacled, in the late forties, amiable, soft-featured, and always attired in a clean apron and cap. In a sense the appearance was a mask. Mrs. Huckling did not spend her spare time in the parlor behind the shop over cups of tea or engaged with oranmental stitchery or stereotyped novelettes. In her off-duty hours she was captain of St. Bartholomew's Girl Guides.

On formal occasions, such as the Whitsuntide processions, she short-stepped in front of her company in a long blue coat and Lord Nelson hat. And she worked even better backstage. Hanging from one of the beams in the Guides' room was a thick rope reaching to the floor. The girls swung on it. Whether this was purely for exercise or in case the Guides one day might have to storm a bastion an outsider does not know but Mrs. Huckling, in gymnasium garb and with spectacles flashing, led the way. The only apparatus that precluded her was the parallel bar, so for this she introduced a young woman who could revolve like a flywheel.

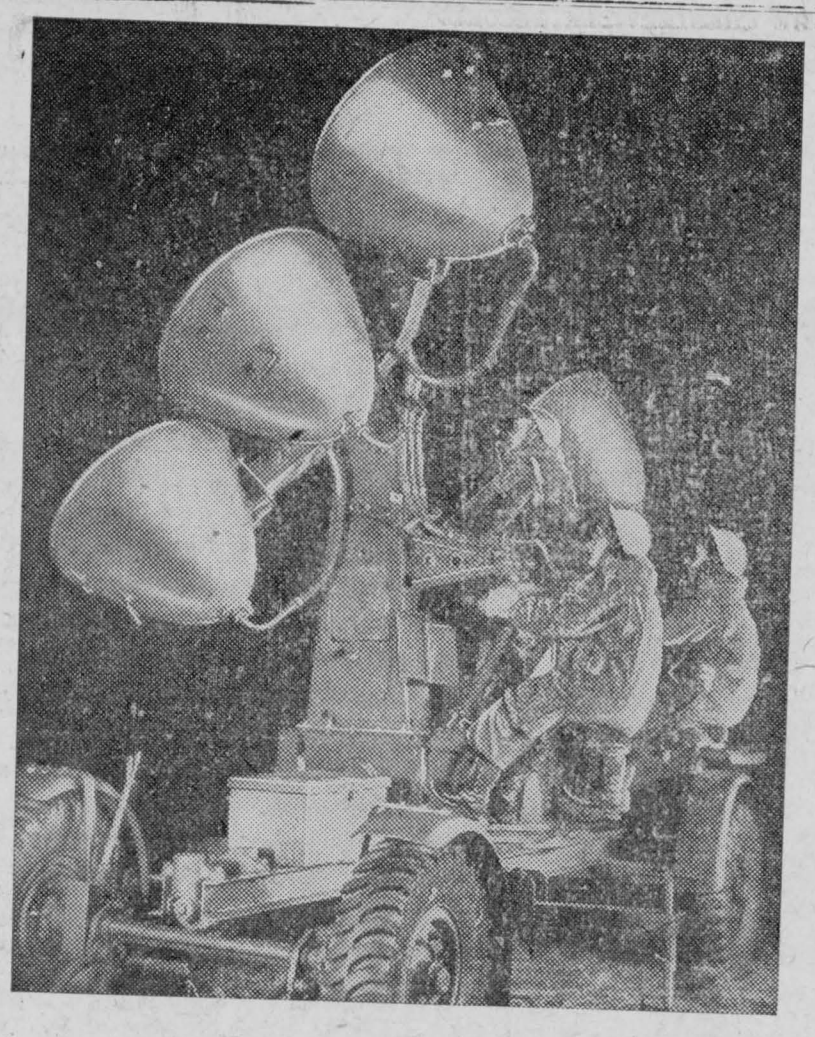

Periodically she took her charges to the baths, and on summer evenings she instilled the rudiments of tracking and woodcraft in Cockthrostle Clough. She knew most of the wild flowers and she pointed out the difference between the oak, sycamore and beech. She painstakingly went in advance and tied up grasses to form a trail.

When the war came no party was more ready than Mrs. Huckling and her Guides. Mostly the girls acted as messengers for the ARP, the Citizens' Bureau, and at the municapal buildings. Mrs. Huckling contented herself with supervising them until the bombing started; then she became a pillar of the street-fighting scheme. This undoubtedly offered her satisfaction, for she was a woman of vitality aching for action. She qualified as a member of the stirrup-pump party by visiting the fire station where she put on overalls and handsomely assisted to douse an improvised conflagration. During the blitz she dashed at incendiaries like hen at corn.

Since then there has been a gap, but if the bombing starts again Mrs. Huckling is ready. More than ready, some of her fellow watchers think. It seems that the incendiaries Pie Lane experienced are anonymous compared with the new explosive type. Instructions say that the bombs must be tackled from behind a certain thickness of material and the fire fighter msut take great care that no part of the body is exposed. At first sight it would appear that if the instruction be not explicitly obeyed the hand operating is the likeliest member to be injured, but deeper thought will show that a greater probability is the head.

Goebbels must have had something to do with the Machiavellism of the bomb. He is certainly aware that the Briton who can resist having a peep to see how he is doing must be well in the minority. And they say that women are more curious than men.

Accordingly the male section of Mrs. Huckling's fire-fighting party are determined to keep her to the rear if ever one of the explosive bombs has to be tackled. Chivalry is no doubt the real reason, but they are a bashfil lot and they advance all sorts of alternatixes, especially the fat man of the party. His reason is uppant. That head must be the last to be injured, he declares. Happy days will be here again, and it is the only one containing the recipe for the veal-and-ham pie.

WOMEN OF THE A.T.S. HELP TO MAINTAIN THE "ROOF OVER BRITAIN"

Men and women of Britain's Anti-Aircraft Defences maintaining a protective "roof" over London and all the strategic points of the British home front, stood solidly with the R.A.F. in the Battle of Britain, 1940. Doing their unspectacular jobs with quiet efficiency—often on isolated sites remote from the pleasures and comforts of urban life—they still see to it that enemy raiders over Britain have a "hot" reception.

"Forever and A Day"

Showing at Community Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

Nearly two years in the making and with a cast of seventy-eight top stars and featured players in its colorful scenes, "Forever and a Day" comes to the screen as one of the most remarkable films ever to emerge from Hollywood.

Originally planned as a solely British picture for the benefit of British war charities, production plans were revised when the United States entered the war, and it now includes many distinguished Yankees in its cast, and a large share of the profits will go to American war relief.

The proceeds from the distribution in each country will accrue to the benefit of some charity to be officially named by the government of that country. In the United States the proceeds from our national distribution will be given to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The plot gives a vivid panorama of English history over the past century and a third, and centers about a stately old house and the men and women who have lived in it.

Back in 1804 the bluff old Admiral Trimble (C. Aubrey Smith) built the structure in defiance against the threatened invasion of Napoleon, hoped it would always remain as a home for his descendants.

His son (Ray Milland) falls by Nelson's side at the Battle of Trafalgar, but he leaves a son to carry on, and the lives and loves and vicissitudes of those who come after him comprise the picturesque highlights of the story, as one generation after another grows up in the sturdy old edifice.

Some of the descendants come to America in search of wider horizons and some of their descendants return at crucial times, such as in 1917 and in 1940 to lend a hand when needed. The two modern protagonists (Ruth Warrick and Kent Smith) narrate part of the story and serve to tie together the various separate episodes; and it is this pair who, after a Luftwaffe bomb has finally demolished the old house, decide to rebuild it together—but, they hope in a safer and happier world than this has been.

Among the other noted players who appear in the different episodes are Claude Rains, Herbert Marshall, Charles Laughton, Ida Lupino, Brian Aherne, Victor McLaglen, Anna Lee, Cederic Hardwicke, Merle Oberon, Jessie Matthews, Edward Everett Horton, Roand Young, Robert Cummings, Elsa Lanchester, Donald Crisp and Una O'Connor, to name but a few of the stars in the Anglo-American production.

As a result, "Forever and a Day" carries a sincereity and a naturalness that makes it unique, along with its inspiring message of courage to a war torn world. The spirit of its players, many of whom begged to play a "bit" if no bigger role was available, so that they could do their part, is evident in the brilliant portrayals throughout the picture. In addition to acting in the film, Cederic Hardwicke shouldered many of the production chores, and Lloyd Richards served as production coordinator on the unique offering which is distributed by RKO Radio.

CANADIAN ACTRESS

Bryda-Rae King is one of the prominent actresses playing in CBC's Summer Theatre. The program is from Winnipeg under the direction of producer Esse Ljungh: Miss King was a member of Orson Welles' "Native Son" cast. She has also played with Monty Wooley in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." The next Summer Theatre production is "That Old Affair," by the Canadian author, Della Foss, to be heard over CBC's National Network, Tuesday, August 10, at 8.30 p.m. EDT.

Meals for Two Active People

Hello Homemakers! It's been grand hearing from so many brides. To-day's brides, many of them busy war workers, have not had time to assist in meal planning or to learn the deft art of speedily concocting a meal—which means a "quick turn" for good directions. Whether "he" knows you are a wonderful little cook or has always thought you could master the art easily, he expects (or hopes for) marvellous meals once you are in your own home.

A word of advice on the matter of breakfasts—keep them simple so you can carry them off with speed and finesse. The most delectable muffin is not worth keeping friend husband late. Plan them in the light of the other meals of the day and equipment and time available. You'll both need a good breakfast—there's no quicker and surer way to pull down vitality and rouse the wrath of your mother-in-law than to neglect the first meal of the day.

Suggested Breakfast.

Fruit or fruit juice — orange juice, tomato juice, sectioned half-grapefruit, chilled applesauce or fruits in season; cereal —hot or prepared; eggs or fish —eggs are more easily digested if poached, scrambled or soft-cooked (reserve fried eggs chiefly for those who do heavier work), fish may be cut in pieces and poached in milk; toast—crisp with soft butter; coffee—make a mark on percolator or glass coffee-maker to show amount of water to be used and always measure coffee.

We'll suppose that you both lunch at an industrial cafeteria and give you cheap, quick dinner suggestions.

Hamburg Roast

Chop fine 1 pound of steak, cut from the top of the round, and 2 or 3 ounces of suet. A small slice of green or red pepper and ½ slice onion may be added after the meat is chopped. Add a scant half-teaspoon of salt, the beaten yolk of an egg and ¼ cup of soft, sifted bread crumbs that have been soaked in cold water and wrung dry in a bit of cheesecloth. With the hand, mix all the ingredients together very slowly. Care must be taken to mix the fat and bread evenly through the meat. Press the whole into a compact roll of equal thickness throughout. Roast in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) about 50-60 minutes. Serve with brown gravy.

To make Gravy: Pour off fat, leaving tbs. in pan. Add 2 tbs. flour and stir and cook until frothy; then add 1 cup of tomato puree, beef broth or cold water, or a mixture of these, and stir and cook until boiling.

Harvard Beets.

6 beets, ½ tsp. salt, ½ cup sugar, ½ tb. cornstarch, ½ cup vinegar, 2 tbs. meat dripping.

Peel and slice beets; cook 20 minutes in small amount of water. Mix salt, sugar and cornstarch, add to vinegar and boil for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 2 tbs. meat dripping. Pour over beets.

Crumb Pastry

1½ cups graham - cracker crumbs (about 16 crackers), rolled very fine; 1 tb. sugar, ¼ cup butter, browned but not burned, or use softened butter.

Mix crumbs and sugar, add browned butter and mix well. Press firmly over bottom and sides of pie plate. Bake in electric over 325 degrees about 10 minutes. Use with cooked fillings. Makes 1 pastry shell.

Crumbled ginger snaps, vanilla cookies, chocolate cookies or zwieback may be substituted for graham crackers if desired.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. B.T. says: Have noticed the hot watter bottle is hardening.

Answer: Wash in water to which a litle baking soda is added. Dip in and dry off about every month.

Mrs. C.M. asks—How to remove dark scorch on good linen?

Answer: Boil the following together: 2 onions, minced, 1 tb. chopped soap, 2 oz. Fuller's earth (drug store) and 1 cup vinegar. Apply paste and let dry for 3 hours.

J.C. says: Soda crackers always soften in bread box.

Answer: Soda biscuits should be left in paper package in a dry place, not in airtight container or with moist foods. Crisp by putting in warm oven.

UNITED CHRISTIAN MISSION

The United Christian Mission is an evangelistic mission. It is independent of any church relation and has no connection with any denomination. It is not supported or sponsored by any denomination whatsoever. One year ago this mission began, when it became evident that we could no longer continue the revival work at the Emmanuel Mission on Queen St.

Believing that God has called us to help people to get acquainted with Jesus Christ, we have started a camp meeting in our new tent near the Arena in Chesterville. God has blessed the work of the mission during the past year; two new appointments have been started. And this camp in Chesterville is a success. A large Daily Vocation Bible School is going strong. The services each night are growing in interest under the pointed preaching of Rev. Mr. Harris, we invite you to the services. Bring someone else with you.
