J. A. Bogart New Reeve Winchester Township Decisively Defeating Summers and Annable On Question of Larger High School Areas

John A. Bogart, of Chesterville, was elected Reeve of Winchester Township at Monday's elections, defeating the present Reeve, Ernest R. Summers, and Roy E. Annable, Deputy-Reeve. Interest in this year's election was keyed up over the question of Larger High School Areas—proposed by the United Counties, and which Mr. Bogart definitely opposed in his campaign. Those who study the campaigns say also that Mr. Bogart's election was assisted by the fact he represented the eastern end of the Township while the other contestants split the vote in the west end. This is Mr. Bogart's first excursion into municipal politics since he sat as Reeve of the Township 20 years ago.

Tobacco Production Displayed in Film Before Rotary Club

The tobacco industry in Canada, an essentially Canadian industry, has grown to the magnitude where it represented 14 and a quarter billion dollars in the Dominion's business of 1945, G. E. Miquelon, of the Tuckett Tobacco Company, told the Rotary Club of Chesterville at Monday night's meeting, introducing a movie in Technicolor illustrating the process of preparing tobacco from planting of the seed until the finished product is packaged for the consumer.

A number of surprises were given in the movie, including the fact that tobacco must age at least three years before it is ready for manufacture into cigarettes. As with wine, said the speaker, age alone can prepare the tobacco leaf. After the leaf is delivered by the farmers following its period of drying in the kilns, the tobacco is packed into hogsheads holding about 1,000 pounds and left for nature to sweat the leaf and then absorb the tar and other substances into the stems which are discarded in the process of manufacture.

Illustrating the magnitude of the industry, Mr. Miquelon stated that the cigarettes smoked by Canadians in 1946 would, if placed end to end, circle the earth at the equator 22 times. Tobacco is the highest taxed commodity in the country, and during 1946 revenue from excise tax on this product brought in $450,000 every day, including Sundays.

The speaker, who was accompanied by W. H. Edwards and Mr. LeBlanc of Ottawa, was introduced by President Leon Marcellus and thanked by P. S. Boyd.

During the business meeting, plans were announced for erection of the Christmas tree on the Post Office Square in co-operation with the Municipal Council.

Dominion Bank Head Says Communism in Many Centres

C. H. Carlisle, president of the Dominion Bank, told the annual meeting of shareholders today that the "poisonous plague of Communism has fallen on many localities in Canada and to a greater extent than many people are aware."

Comparing conditions in democratic countries with those in Russia, Mr. Carlisle said it was difficult to understand why anyone would prefer Communism and Russia standard of living in place of the privileges enjoyed by Canadians.

Funeral of Mrs. Wm. Irving Held at Dunbar, Sunday

Mrs. William Irving, well-known resident of the Orchardside district, died Thursday last in her 83rd year. the funeral being held Sunday afternoon from the home to Dunbar Presbyterian church where the service was conducted by Rev. W. H. Heustin. Interment followed in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Mrs. Irving was the former Margaret Jane Anderson, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Anderson of Winchester. Of a family of six, only one brother survives, Wm. Anderson.

Her husband died on July 22nd, 1943. and left to mourn a loving and kid mother are two sons, W. James Irving of Mountain and John Pliny Irving at home; and one daughter, Mrs. Bertha I. Ouderkirk, of Chesterville, as well as nine grandchildren.

At the funeral service, the choir was under the direction of Mrs. Chas. F. Marselis. Three hymns, favourites of the deceased, were sung.

Floral tributes consisted of a wreath from the family, double sprays from the grandchildren, spray from Winchester Friends and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Boyd of Winchester.

AN APOLOGY

The Record wishes to apologize to Roy E. Annable, contestant for the Reeveship in Winchester Township, for failing to print his Election Card in the issue of December 5th. This omission is explained by the fact we had incorrectly marked the card and it was lifted out of the previous week's forms along with other matter.

LEGION MOVING TO NEW CLUB ROOMS

Chesterville Branch 434 of the Canadian Legion is moving to new club rooms over the Record Office which will be ready for the next meeting on Wednesday, December 18th, as decided at the meeting last week.

FLIES OVER TOWN

A few days ago Mr. Bert Fulton of Maple Ridge, was the guest of Rae Merkley of Dunbar, in a flying trip from the Ottawa Flying Club's field. They were in the air about an hour and a half. After taking a look at the Capital from the air, they came out and compared it with Winchester, Chesterville and on to Dunbar. Rae has been taking a flying course from his neighbor, Dick Fawcett at Dunbar, and at the Ottawa Flying Club's school in the city.

Committees to be Appointed By Chamber of Commerce

Committees on Industrial Development and National Affairs will probably be set up by The Chesterville Chamber of Commerce following Thursday night's meeting which appointed a Fact Finding Committee to consider the details of the two groups, their findings to be reported at the January session. The temporary committee was given powers to act if an urgent problem should be presented. Notice of motion was also given for changing the meeting night of the Chamber from the first to the second Thursday evening of the month. This will be voted on at the January session.

The Chamber decided to enter into the distribution of maps to the tourist trade by the Eastern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and voted payment of the assessment of $15. While it was felt the maps might not bring a great deal of tourist traffic to this centre, the fact that Chesterville appears distinctly marked on the 50,000-issue as a community sponsoring a Chamber of Commerce would prove good advertising in a business way.

Mrs. Bertha I. Ouderkirk has received word of the death of her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Doran, which occurred in Syracuse, N.Y., on Monday, December 9th.

Nominations Tonight Create Unusual Interest Filling 2 Vacant Seats

More than usual interest is being taken in the nomination meeting to be held in the Community Theatre tonight to fill the offices of Reeve and one Councillor for the village, the positions still vacant following nominations on December 2, when only three councillors qualified.

With Reeve George H. Barkley out of town until next spring and thus not being available for the running this year, and three inexperienced councillors qualified for seats, the question of selecting the fourth councillor and Reeve is causing considerable interest among the ratepayers. P. S. Boyd and Chas. McMillan were nominated for Reeve, but neither qualified when the deadline was reached at 9.00 p.m., December 3. Mr. McMillan stated he did not intend contesting the Reeveship, declined his nomination when it became apparent his council would be composed of new men inexperienced in municipal government.

What can be done about the unusual situation must await tonight's proceedings.

Reports of Convention To Women's Institute

Reports of the convention held in Ottawa during October were given to the Chesterville Branch, Women's Institute by Mrs. Harry Allison and Mrs. A. B. Clayton at the December meeting held in the Public Library last evening.

Mrs. L. G. Allan reported on the Marathon Bridge just completed, the high scorers being Mrs. Francis Moriarty and Hosea Droppo. Miss Joan Crawford sang very sweetly a Christmas carol, "Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly".

Mrs. Eric Casselman read another fine paper, "The Tree of Life", prepared by Mrs. B. W. Campbell. The text of this paper will be printed in next week's issue of The Record.

Mrs. Allison Graham gave a demonstration of Christmas table decorations which, being timely, was helpful to the ladies. Tea was served by the committee, with Mrs. Haldane Durant as convenor, assisted by Mrs. O. L. King, Mrs. S. H. Hutt and Mrs. P. S. Boyd. There were 26 members and guests present.

Summerlike Temperatures Replace First Real Taste of Winter

Following a taste of winter weather, which saw snow plows clearing drifted highways and skating on the Nation River, a spell of weather bringing back memories of the past summer has been experienced here this week, luring honey bees from their hives and bringing pansies into bloom in the gardens.

Last week's cold, blustery weather drifted many roads full of snow and froze an excellent sheet of ice on the Nation River, providing several large rinks for skating and hockey which were enjoyed to capacity by the young folk. However, the mild spell over the week-end, with its accompanying torrent of rain, changed all this. The snow completely disappeared and the ice went out of the Nation Monday night. Today the water level of the river is at spring heights, and many fields are flooded, giving promise of excellent skating sheets when cold weather comes again.

It had been expected flooding at the Legion Memorial Rink would commence last week when temperatures were registering below zero, but all this was changed.

While a few degrees of frost were recorded the last couple of nights, the weatherman promises mild weather again this afternoon with more rain.

IS DEMOCRACY SLIPPING

"If we don't take enough interest in our own affairs to attend a nomiation meeting it will only be a short time until the Department of Municipal Affairs, will be compelled to run our village for us." Such was the remark of a ratepayer within our hearing this week.

It has been gradually coming to that state of affairs, not only in Chesterville but throughout the whole province. More and more of our local affairs are being grasped by the province as the years go rolling along. All we are permitted to do is pay the shot.

How much do you know what your money was spent for during the year. Who was it paid to and what were the services rendered? The annual financial statement used to give all the details of such matters. It provided very interesting reading for the ratepayers and the lack of it, perhaps, has lessened the interest of the electors.

The centralization of municipal affairs in city offices is just a sign of the times which shows how far we are drifting from our boasted democratic life.

Did it ever strike you when you have attended an annual meeting of some kind or other that you have had very little opportunity to express your wishes who shall be the officers for the on-coming year? Someone rises and moves that the officers of the year ending be again elected. Someone seconds the motion and it is carried before you realize what has happened. That is not too bad, you could have had your say if you had been alert.

When a committee is appointed to bring in a slate of officers and does so you might just as well get up and go home as far as having any say in the election of any particular person whom you think would add to its usefulness. If you cannot take part in the business for which a meeting has been called you begin to think you might just as well stayed at home, and eventually do. It is an undemocratic way of doing these things and is playing into the hands of those who will some day dictate what you shall do and that not to your liking.

YOU CALL TOO SOON, MR. SUN, YOU DO

It would be fine if winter would go on strike and let this mild weather last for a couple of months. Perhaps it has started something. Last Friday afternoon William McPhail, a maintenance of way man for the CPR reports having seen a groundhog run across the tracks near the railway bridge east of town. The wood chuck usually retires for his winter nap quite early in the fall, quite often in September. Occasionally a young fellow who has been staying out late may be seen at this time of year.

HOW TO BALANCE THE BUDGET

There are people mean enough to note that government offices are scandalously overstaffed. A visitor to Ottawa reports that he had occasion to be in a large room where not a soul was working, not a soul was at a desk. All fifteen women were seated socially in the deep windows with which many Ottawa buildings are equipped.

One honest young woman, who used to work, says that her boss's war work faded some months ago but neither he nor she was taken off the taxpayers' back. Her sole duty now is to attend to his personal correspondence.

The morning exit for coffee has become an all-day habit. They say that many of the girls carry their lunches because restaurants are so crowded in the noon hour. For this reason they must return to their desks in time for lunch.

One amateur detective (female) reports that on three recent mornings, seven, nine and six girls have been observed in the washroom of a large office building enjoying cigarettes at leisure. A check at 2.40 p.m. on the third day drew a blank; perhaps there was shopping to be done.

They shouldn't thus use the washrooms in buildings of this type, for the accommodation is shared by women who are employed by sourfaced male bosses who expect them to be at their desks most of the day. However, at the rate of growth of the civil service, the private tenants will soon be evicted. No one has yet heard of wartime government office space being abandoned.

"That's how my money is being spent," said the detective.

SOME TAXES HIGHER NEXT YEAR

Finance Minister Ilsley in a recent speech said that, beginning January 1st, the personal income tax would be reduced 25 per cent. by virtue of his 1946 budget. About 500,000 persons would henceforth pay no taxes, the exemptions having been raised; and people in the higher brackets would have a reduction of about 10 per cent.

So he said. But he did not mention that some (perhaps many) families would actually pay more in 1947 than in 1946; that is; if working wives keep working, which they are not likely to do.

Ottawa reports that the reason the Government is removing the clause whereby, during the war, a wife's income from employment did not remove the husband's right to claim a married man's status, is that it constituted an injustice to farmer taxpayers, most of whom are helped by wives in earning the taxable income, but who are never allowed to deduct a reasonable amount for the wives' work. It never would occur to an Ilsley adviser that a simple way out of this difficulty would be to raise the married exemption of the bona fide, or dirt, farmer to $2250. There are so few small farmers who pay income taxes anyway that the loss to the treasury would be trifling. It would, of course be creating a precedent in that a first step would be taken in dealing fairly with the vexed problem of farmers' income tax. Precedents must be avoided at all costs.

BE CAREFUL OF FIRE AT CHRISTMAS PARTY

Every year, some Christmas festivities are marred by fire accidents to the Christmas tree, or to the decorations, or to the flimsy fancy dresses of little children. At times, the results are tragic. Without care, the kindliest people may only be setting a danger trap for their children. Christmas decorations generally are made of inflammable material, and it is courting trouble to have a naked light anywhere in the vicinity.

For example, lighted candles in paper lanterns suspended from the ceiling or hung on a Christmas tree, or an improperly insulated string of electric lights may prove beacons of danger. With children romping about in their flimsy finery, the greatest care must be exercised that under no circumstances would it be possible for the children or the decorations to come into contact with a naked light, whether it be from gas, candle, or a flickering flame from a stove. Also a gust of wind may blow curtains or decorations across a naked light, and the damage is done.

Great danger lurks in using strings of electric lights that have done service the year before unless they have been thoroughly examined and tested before being put up. Each inch of every set of lights should be carefully inspected for worn places in the insulation or outer cover. If a worn place is on the outer cover, a strip of friction tape wrapped around it will help to prevent accidents. If the inside insulation is worn, the job is one for a practical electrician. The rough edges of insulation will have to be trimmed off and the wire wrapped spirally with friction tape above the break, overlapping each turn by about a quarter of an inch and ensuring that the damaged area is completely covered.

Often cords become worn where they enter the plug. The wire must be removed, wrapped separately with tape, and re-connected. Broken or damaged plugs should be discarded. Bulbs also should be tested before being fixed.

Ring Your Own Bell

A man returning home in the early hours saw a notice on a factory door. It read: "Please ring the bell for the caretaker."

He gave the bell a terrific pull, nearly dragging it from its socket. Shortly a sleepy face appeared.

"Are you the caretaker?" asked the man.

"Yes," came the reply. "What do you want?"

"I just want to know why the dickens you can't ring the bell yourself."

SPARE THE KNIFE AND SAVE HEALTH

"Spare the knife and save time and health," advises the nurition division of the Department of National Health and Welfare, in a note to homemakers on the preparation of vegetables. If skins are left on, the vitamins and minerals are retained, and don't escape into cooking water. The health authorities also suggest the eating of vegetable skins in order to get the best of their food value. They remind cooks that thorough scrubbing of the skins is essential to health.

How Economist Helps the Farmer

In a recent address on "The Economist and the Farmer," Joseph Coke, Principal Economist, Dominion Department of Agriculture, gave an insight into the work of the economist, particularly in respect to agriculture. Both the farmer and the business man, he said, are interested in securing from production the highest possible net return. Farmers have to consider such problems as the kind of land they farm, the crops to be grown, the live stock enterprises to be developed, and the amount of labour and equipment to make a successful farm business. Economists try to provide some of the answers.

The economist uses different tools than his colleagues, the chemist and the biologist. He has no laboratory. He uses no test tubes. He does use statistical methods, accounting, and logic to assure proper analysis. He gets his first-hand information from farmers and business men. The first thing an economist has to do is to assure all who work with him that no one's business will be talked about in the presence of neighbors or competitors. The economist is not an enforcement officer. He does not investigate the farmer. He only endeavours to find out where an inefficiency, if such there be, may lie and suggest a remedy. The economist searches for truth in the interest of all.

While there are many instances where accounts and records are available to economists, sometimes they have to compile the record. In such cases, they make what they call a survey which is based on a sample of farms. These surveys are carefully planned. In the first place, the economist will look up the census, the number of farms, the types of farms, the sizes, acreages of crops, number of live stock, and so on. He will then decide how many farmers he will have to interview to get a good cross section.

Be Afraid in the Daytime

During the worst of the blitz there was a sandwichman who used to make the rounds of Piccadilly Circus, his boards bearing the legend:

"Let us be courteous to one another. We are all having a dreadful time."

It seems strange to think that a war that could call out such sharing of danger and such general kindliness in people who were nearest to it, should have failed, in a measure at least, on us who were sheltered from its cruelest impact. It is not that we didn't have our great moments. We did. But with them we had the small moments when greatness ran off into pettiness, into a callous disregard of the feelings of others, into scamped service because it was possible to scamp without penalty, into the loss of the small gentilities that are the lubricants of everyday intercourse.

It was during the war that the writer drove into a service station and, after buying what gasoline his coupons permitted, asked the attendant to put some air in a front tire. "Not today, bud," said the attendant in his best Don't-you-know-there's-a-war-on? manner. Today, when every service-station attendant is feverishly scurrying about doing the forgotten tasks, that chance phrase still sticks in the memory, discounting the genuineness of apparent interest. Strained nerves, tired bodies and the cumulative effects of constant frustration made small failures in service and courtesy understandable. But the pertinent fact remained that we were all having a dreadful time and the failure to recognize so simple a fact permitted small failures to be burned into the memory in a manner out of all proportion to their significance.

The war is more than a year past. The dreadfulness of those days has simmered down into commonplace irritations. They are small things: the clerk who turns his back at your approach; the apparent eagerness of salespeople to emphasize what you can't get, not what you can. "Why, we haven't had that for five years," is a conclusive but not an ingratiating argument. In a somewhat indefinite way we know that all commodities are scarce. We know that it must be irritating to have to have to restate that fact day after day. But that is one of the reasons why people behind counters continue to draw salaries in days when commodities are few. Unfortunately the courtesy of other days has been submerged in the knowledge that if one customer doesn't buy, another will, and the salesman's necessary tally is assured. If one can judge from individual experience, that has become almost a philosophy of salesmanship, as it might appear to be the pattern of our general thinking. But in the long look, this philosophy is as questionable as was the theology of the small boy who explained that they had family prayers in the evening rather than the morning, because "We ain't afraid in the daytime."

Nobody is afraid in these days, so true characters are showing up not in salespeople alone but in all of us. Nobody's having a dreadful time, so why waste effort on small courtesies? These are the days when there are more people than there are commodities to buy or services to render. These are the days when the customer doesn't have to be right; when it's rather a pleasure to deride him or neglect him.

But dark follows day. Prosperity, in its present scale, cannot remain forever. Then what happens in the daylight, when people are not afraid, will be protection or undoing in the nighttime, when memories become acute.

All through the holiday season telephone operators will be on duty and all Long Distance lines in service to handle the thousands of extra calls we know will be made.

Most of these calls will be completed promptly. Occasionally, however, there will be some delays.

If your Christmas call is one of those which cannot be put through immediately, you may be sure we'll do everything possible to keep delays to a minimum.

Finch-Berwick Team Makes Fourth Entry In C.O.V. Hockey

Wednesday evening a large number of sports fans gathered at Finch Legion Hall for the purpose of forming a hockey team to represent Berwick and Finch. After a considerable amount of discussion it was decided to have one team enter the Central Ottawa Valley League and a new club was formed, as follows:

President, Harry P. Chales, Berwick; Vice President, M. J. Doyle, Finch; Secretary-Treasurer, Melvin Ouderkirk, Berwick; Assistant Sec.-Treasurer, Ray Presley, Finch; Manager, Father O'Brien, Finch; Assistant Manager, John Coleman, Finch; Press Agent, Ray Presley, Finch; Board of Directors, Joe Helmer, Les Young, Newington; Dr. Stevenson, Avonmore; Dr. McLeod, Harry McGillvary. W. J. Brownlee, Finch; Wilfred Fortin, Bruce McIntosh, John McQueen, Aden C. Casselman, Bernard Grady, Berwick.

It was moved that Harry Chales and Father O'Brien representatives of the club at the league meeting ask the league representative from Chesterville to choose a name for the club. All players interested in hockey in the surrounding district are asked to get in touch with Harry Chales, Melvin Ouderkirk, Berwick, or Father O'Brien, Finch.

Teams from Chesterville, Winchester, Finch-Berwick and Maxville will play a double schedule in the re-organized Central Ottawa Valley Hockey League, it was announced following a meeting of representatives in the Community Theatre here.

A ten-dollar entrance fee will be paid by each team, and another meeting will be held in Chesterville on December 19th, when it is planned to draw up the schedule for the present season.

Wm. McCloskey, Chesterville, was named president of the league, to replace Chas. McMillan who turned down the office.

BOUCK-DOUGLAS

The manse of the Lutheran church at Williamsburg, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday morning at 10 o'clock when Thelma May, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Douglas of Winchester, was united in marriage with Harold Basil, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bouck of Bouck's Hill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Innis, pastor of the church.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Carl Garlough and Carl Garlough of Winchester acted as best man.

The bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white satin, fashioned with a shirred bodice, long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony a reception for the bridal party was held at the home of the bride's parents. After the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Bouck left on a honeymoon trip to New York State, the bride travelling in a brown wool dress under a brown fur coat. Her accesrories were also brown.

On their return they will reside at Boucks Hill.

We do not vouch for this story—we only tell it to you as it was told to us.

Joe Purdy, an ex-soldier living out South Dakota way, adopted a former army pal, a dog that served with him in the signal corps.

The observant animal had watched Joe for many hours while he wigwagged messages with flags.

One day Joe took his dog out to look for birds. They were in a broken hilly portion of the state, in a section sparsely covered with patches of underbrush and small pine trees.

The dog was about 800 feet in front of his master, up on the brow of a small hillock, when suddenly he stopped and stuck his tail straight up in the air. Then his tail began to jerk first one way and then the other.

It was transmitting a message! Joe watched breathlessly, while the sagacious animal wigwagged:

"Joe have you got any heavy ammunition? Unless you have — get the heck out of here. Big brown bear up here coming your way. Vamoose!"

Insulin From Vankleek Hill Assists Belgian College Youth

Because of the interest of a small Red Cross Branch in Ontario, today a boy over in Belgium is able to continue his studies leading to a Ph.D. degree. A serviceman who returned to Vankleek Hill from overseas duty told a moving story of a Belgian student suffering from diabetes. Lack of insulin was making his studies most difficult and it seemed that he would have to discontinue them. However the Red Cross Branch at Vankleek Hill decided to help this Belgian lad. They immediately contacted Red Cross Headquarters in Toronto who turned them over to the Banting Institute and the International Red Cross with whom they made final arrangements. Today this diabetic patient is receiving regularly his required amount of insulin, all of which is paid for by the Vankleek Hill branch. Once more Red Cross has paved the way to health, learning and understanding.

HONOUR THY FATHER

A plea for respect and care for the elders among us is issued by the Department of National Health and Welfare. The Department points out that, as Science masters disease and the average span of life is lengthened, the proportion of older people in the population grows rapidly. Calling for "old-fashioned" respect and care for the oldsters, to make the twilight of their lives more liveable, the health and welfare authorities remind the younger members of society that they, too, may be old some day.

IN MEMORIAM

In fond and loving memory of our beloved Mother, Mrs. Alice Beckstead who departed this life, December 22, 1945.

A beautiful memory dearer than gold
Of a Mother whose worth can never be told,
Alone unseen she stands by our side,
And whispers "Don't grieve death cannot divide,"
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept,
And though the years be many or few,
We'll always be thinking, dear Mother, of you.

Sadly missed by daughters, Pearl and Estella (Mrs. Rees).

Quebec Farmer Speaks At Annual Meeting Dundas Holstein Men

The Dundas Holstein Breeders' Club Annual Meeting which was held at Williamsburg on December 5th was a decided success. There were in the neighbourhood of 150 present.

The President, Mr. Harold McMenomy of Inkerman, occupied the chair. The main speaker of the evening was Mr. Clarence Goodhue of Raymondale Farm, Vaudreuil, Quebec. Mr. Goodhue spoke on world conditions and of the important place farmers and live stock breeders occupy. In his address he also emphasized the necessity of breeders maintaining and improving their herds to a high state of efficiency both as to type and milk production. He was quite emphatic in stating that milk records should be made in a practical way. He stressed also the importance of clubs taking a keen interest in Calf Club activities as he was certain that the seeds of good animal husbandry were often laid when a lot of our progressive breeders were boys.

Other speakers included Mr. W. J. Fawcett, Director of the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada and Mr. Ray Wilson.

A very fine door prize of artificial service of Montvic Rag Apple Supreme which was donated by W. R. McMenomy & Son and Mr. W. J. Fawcett. This door prize was won by Mr. Morris Hyndman of Mountain.

The financial standing as presented by the Treasurer, Mr. Mahlon Zeron, showed the Club to be in a healthy condition.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. Cyphus Smith and extended to the speakers.

Officers and Directors for 1947 are as follows:

Officers

Hon. Pres., Allison Graham; Pres., Harold McMenomy; Vice-Pres., J. Frank Casselman; Treasurer, Mahlon Zeron; Secretary, H. W. Graham.

It was proposed that a meeting be held at Brinston on the afternoon of January 3rd, 1947, on Artificial Semination, the speaker to be Mr. Wm. Watson of the Ontario Live Stock Branch.

The meeting closed by singing "God Save The King".

EMERGENCY!

— SAVE ELECTRICITY!

A critical power shortage now exists in Southern Ontario. Savings in the use of electricity will be needed on the part of all citizens in order to avoid serious difficulties during the present winter period, and Hydro is asking all consumers to conserve electricity wherever possible in order to relieve this situation.

THE DAILY PERIOD DURING WHICH SAVINGS SHOULD BE EFFECTED IS BETWEEN 8 A.M. AND 8 P.M., AND CONDITIONS ARE PARTICULARLY ACUTE BETWEEN 4 P.M. AND 7 P.M.

Factories and industry are asked to switch from day to night operation, in whole or in part, wherever possible, and also to effect all power savings practicable. Street lighting should be reduced to the lowest level consistent with public safety.

THIS IS HOW YOU CAN HELP

- Eliminate the use of electricity for signs, billboards and store windows from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
- Eliminate all Christmas decorative lighting until Saturday, December 21st, and again after January 1st.
- Turn off lights when not required.
- Use the minimum number of lights in the living-room, consistent with good vision.
- Do not use electric air heaters and grates.
- Use electrically heated water sparingly and check leaking hot water taps.
- Do not use range elements on "high" when a lower heat will serve, and turn off all elements as soon as possible.
- Cook oven meals as often as possible and avoid the unnecessary use of surface elements.
- Turn the radio on only for programs desired; if not listening, turn it off.
- Operate electric toasters and other small appliances only as needed.

The electric power shortage is a general condition following six years of war and arising from the fact that it was impossible to proceed with the development of sufficient new power sites during the war because of the requirements for war production. Since the war, the critical shortage of men and materials has seriously delayed the development of new sources of power.

The Commission has been reducing loads within its direct control, wherever possible. These reductions are not enough, and it is now necessary to appeal for assistance on the part of all consumers.

Hydro appreciated the splendid voluntary assistance on the part of its consumers during the war, and believes that similar co-operation will be forthcoming at this time.

Turkeys Never Set Foot on Ground In P.E.I. Farmer's Scientific Plant

To hear Herbert Matthews tell it, raising turkeys is about the easiest thing in the world. Any business man can make a small fortune, he claims, if he has a little patience, a good-sized back yard and tolerant neighbours.

Mr. Matthews ought to know. He spends most of his waking hours doing nothing else but preparing the main dish for Canada's most popular meal—Christmas Dinner. And although his farm spreads over 75 acres of rich red loam at Alberton, Prince Edward Island, his entire turkey plant, the largest in the Maritimes, occupies less than four acres of the area.

But just in case someone is looking for a soft touch and suddenly decides to throw his life's savings into a modern turkey plant, Herbert Matthews would hasten to add that "Of course, it hasn't always been so easy. It took many years of patient experimentation to bring us to the point where the turkeys practically raise themselves. But now, by following certain rules, we have the business down to a system that pays off."

And the "system" he speaks of is that which the Department says is the one most likely to succeed in the industry of turkey raising. Although not as large as some turkey ranches in Canada, the Alberton plant is an example of the greatest efficiency in modern turkey production. Poultry diseases are virtually non-existent, production output reaches the highest levels, mortality rates are low, about three per cent. the loss confined almost entirely to poults less than six weeks old.

In short "system" is just another word for "good management", and at the Matthews plant, once the poults are hatched, management consists of three carefully-observed principles—complete confinement of all stock, scientific feeding, and the copious use of DDT.

Complete confinement, to poultry breeders, means that the flocks are confined to elevated huts and wire cages. But to Herbert Matthews it means more than that. His turkeys never once touch the ground from the time they hatch until they reach the market. They spend their whole lives walking on wooden slats or wire mesh. Furthermore, the birds are completely isolated from all other forms of livestock: the only animals permitted to live on the farm are two cats and a dog. The cats keep the mice from the feed bins, and the dog scares away foxes, skunks, and other such connoisseurs of tender young turkey. Other types of poultry may carry disease, he says, so Mrs. Matthews buys all her eggs for kitchen use from the neighbouring farms.

The high acidity of the soil offers several problems for the P.E.I. turkey farmer. However, Matthews believes in letting other people worry about these problems, namely, the manufacturers of commercial feed. Nothing produced on the farm is fed to the turkeys. To be sure, the commercial feed costs more, but experience has taught him that production is greater and sickness minimized by adhering to a scientific program of dietetics.

Finally, he has an answer for the formers who claim that turkeys are delicate, that they are susceptible to every farmyard disease and that they require more attention than they are worth.

"Before we decided to go scientific", Herbert Matthews says, "our turkeys died of disease which they contracted from other poultry, or picked up by drinking stale water lying in pools around the barnyard. Now, by keeping them off the ground," he says, "the only way disease can reach them is through the air, by insects. But by spraying the cages regularly with a 50% aqueous suspension of DDT, even that problem has ceased to exist."

A year in the life of a turkey farmer is marked with certain specific phases — hatching, feed changes, breeder selection, and killing. Early in the spring, at the Matthews plant, 6000 young poults peck their way into the light of day after a four-week incubation period in the electrically-controlled incubators. From then on they can look forward to three changes of diet before most of them will be sent to market, 24 to 26 weeks later.

The newly hatched poults are carried in trays to the brooder house where they live for eight weeks on a specially prepared turkey starter. And because during this period they are most susceptible to death from suffocation or temperature changes, Matthews and two hired men maintain a vigilant watch over them, day and night in three eight-hour shifts.

The next stage in the development is a move to the growing pens. These are nothing more than huge wire cages built on stilts about three feet off the ground. Droppings fall through the slats on the floors of the cages to be cleared away once a week and used for fertilizer.

In the growing pens the young birds gorge themselves with a special growing mixture consisting, among other things, of carbohydrates, proteins, minerals, including iodized salt as well as a full range of vitamin supplements. About four weeks before killing time a special fattening ration adds the few extra pounds that mean extra dollars for the producer.

Just before killing time, a careful inspection of each turkey marks one of the most important aspects of turkey ranching. Each year approximately 800 of the plant's purebred Broad-breasted Bronze specimens are carefully selected and shipped to turkey breeders throughout Canada and to some parts of the United States. Another 200 of the most select birds are culled for breeding purposes on the plant itself.

Turkeys are judged for conformation, type and market qualities. The birds, mated at a ratio of 12 hens to every tom, are removed to breeding pens and therafter during the winter they are expected to produce fertile eggs which will provide the starting point for next season's harvest.

The less fortunate members of the flock are killed scientifically, dry plucked, washed and packed. And from Alberton, the Matthew's turkeys are shipped by express to all the provinces of Canada, some even as far west as Vancouver.

In 1945 Canada produced roughly 35,529,000 pound of turkey—the most popular breeds being the White Holland and the Broad-breasted Bronze. Alberta and Saskatchewan produce the largest flocks, but Ontario is not far behind with some complete confinement plants rearing more than 10,000 turkeys a season. Even at that this country is not able to produce enough turkey meat for home consumption; and Canada exports no turkeys even though she has the natural potentialities for making this country one of the foremost producers in the world.

Herbert Matthews, one Canadian farmer, has turned Christmas dinner into a profitable business. By applying his practical methods to other sections of agricultural Canada, turkey production could quite easily become one of our leading rural industries.

Nature's Breakdown Gang

What is the difference between a mushroom and a toadstool? You have heard somewhere that a mushroom peels easily, doesn't blacken a silver spoon, won't kill slugs. But I, says an English expert, know a toadstool which peels like a banana, won't stain silver, slugs thrive on it. You wouldn't. In three or four days after eating it you'd be dead and no doctor could help you. So much for these so-called tests. This toadstool is Amanita phalloides, the Death Cap. Ninety percent of the people who die from fungus poisoning are killed by this particular one. There are half-a-dozen other sorts that are poisonous but much less deadly. But the general run of toadstools—and there are some 2,000 different kinds in this country—are not poisonous. About a score are really wholesome and appetizing and, of these, we in England pick out one and call it the mushroom.

Apart from the few eatable ones, you may ask what is the good of all these toadstools; what are they in aid of? Think of a wood growing on year after year, the leaves falling every autumn, an occasional tree blowing down, branches snapped off in gales. Now why doesn't the whole wood get simply snowed under with the rubbish piling up in a score of years? It is the toadstools that do the scavenging. Ordinary plants live on a very plain diet—soil and air. Toadstools have got a bit beyond this. Like us, they prefer their food pre-fabricated. So they suck their nourishment out of dead leaves and branches, slowly reduce them to mush, rot them down until they go back into the soil as food for more green plants. Toadstools clear up the mess.

But a fungus that can rot dead stumps doesn't always stop at that. I am often called in to Bristol gardens where some treasured tree has suddenly died. Running through the rotted tissues are chalf-white welfts of a fungus. I ask if there were ever any old stumps in the garden. No, they can't remember any. Perhaps I see a bit of a pit in the lawn . . . what is that due to? Then someone remembers. Oh, yes, there was an old stump there before the war: we dug it out, more or less. Don't you remember, George, what a crop of toadstools came up there the next autumn? Well, there's the clue. A fungus spread to the living roots, went a bit further each year, came at last to the butt of the tree, slowly bored in, turned the bark to pulp, and that was the end of a good tree. The moral is, don't plant trees near rotting stumps, and if one of your trees dies of root rot, don't plant another in the same place.

One last conundrum—do toads sit on toadstools? In my laboratory at Long Ashton I have a photograph of a toad doing a "King of the Castle act—squatting fair and square on the top of a toadstool. The print first appeared in The Times and that is all I know about it. So at least one toad has sat on a toadstool, though, as far as I know, he is the only one. And whenever I look at that picture I can't help wondering . . . Was it, or was it not, a put-up job?

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello, Grandmother! We often think of you, so this week we are addressing the column to you. It is our sincere wish that you are well and that you keep well this winter. Make yourself a cup of hot cocoa or hot soup in the mid-morning and again before you retire. If you will persist in getting up early, the long winter days can be shortened by snacks, which provide not only extra energy, but a rest period.

As to your regular meals, you have many more years of cooking experience than we have so you really know how to cook, but do not take too much trouble. Take your work less seriously.

Plain foods cooked in many ways that make them easily digested are best. This means that fried foods, hot barbecue sauces, planked steaks are no longer on your menu. All meats should be ground twice to make them tender—except, of course, fish and poultry. Fatty meats and greasy food should be used with discretion.

You are a champion soup maker. One of your old-fashioned soups can be the main supper dish. If you plan a fish dinner—steam it and serve with cream sauce to which you have added chopped hard-cooked eggs. Your vegetables should be baked two or three times a week. Gelatine and cottage cheese help to make finely chopped vegetables more appetizing. Desserts take a lot of fussing sometimes and the packaged ones will save you many steps, so use them and forget your pride.

We always welcome your suggestions and appreciate your interest in our column.

HOT STEAMED SALMON

Place rack in bottom of pan; fill pan with 1½ to 2 inches water; cover; bring water to boil. Use 3 lbs. fresh salmon; tie in piece of cheesecloth; place on rack; cover tightly and steam 30 to 35 mins. Serve 2 lbs. of the salmon hot with a suace, and save the remainder for a salad.

COLD CHICKEN BANANA ASPIC

2 envelopes (2 tbsps.) gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 2 cups chicken stock, 2 tbsps. lemon juice, 2 cups diced, cooked or canned chicken, 1 cup cubed banana, 2 tbsps. chopped tomato, 2 tsps. salt, ¾ cup diced celery.

Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot chicken stock. Add lemon juice and salt; chill until syrupy. Add remaining ingredients; pour into rinsed mould; chill in electric refrigerator until firm. Unmould. Serves 4 to 6. Serve with hot muffins.

CHILLED BUTTERSCOTCH PUDDING

Prepare package of Butterscotch Pudding, using 1 1|3 cups milk. Cool, fold in ½ cup cream, whipped. Line mould with waxed paper and arrange triangles of cake around edge. Pour in butterscotch mixture. Chill overnight. Serves 4 to 6.

THE SUGGESTION BOX

My grandmother's cook book is seventy-eight years old. I wish you could see it, and the clippings pasted on the back pages. An advertisement taken from her home town paper reads: "Cut out this ad., won't appear again—25 assorted choice gladioli, 25 cents. Currant bushes, 2 for 5 cents."

The weights and measures will be interesting to brides from overseas: "One pound 2 ounces of flour is equal to 1 quart. Four large tablespoons are equal to one-half pint. Ten pullet eggs are equal to 1 pound."

"To wash carpets: Use 1 peck of potatoes for a large carpet; scrape them into a pail and let stand overnight in a pailfull of water. Use a brush and scrub carpet with liquid. If brown in colour use juice of raw beef, too. When dry, brush with clean broom."

"To restore frost-bitten plants: Pour cold water over plant, wetting every leaf thoroughly. In this state place it in the dark, carefully covered with newspaper."

"To preserve autumn leaves: Place sprigs between two newspapers and leave them until moisture has been absorbed. Then dip into wax which you have melted over water. Take off stove. Add a few drops of turpentine carefully. Dr[illegible] leaves into pan to coat with [illegible]mediately on both sides. If [illegible]f will shrivel; if too coo[illegible]len too thick."

"Win[illegible]e peck chopped green to[illegible]o dozen large onions peele[illegible] chopped, one dozen green or red peppers, chopped fine; salt, pepper, and spice to suit taste; one cup brown sugar, vinegar to cover; pour the vinegar over all boiling hot and bottle for winter use."

"Egg Balls for Soup: Rub yolks of 4 boiled eggs to a smooth paste, with salt, pepper and tsp. of oil, to these add two raw ones, beat light, add enough flour to hold together, make into balls with floured hands. Set in cool place until soup is ready to serve. Put egg balls in soup for 1 minute. Then ladle out with soup."

Another old clipping reads: "Whether well-to-do, or in narrow cirucmstances you will hold that waste is sin, against yourself and the world. Stint nowhere in cleanliness, light and warmth and let what you have be the best and prettiest for the cost."

In an old, old letter from Grandma's friend: "More disease comes into the world in the shape of tainted milk than anyone dreams of but doctors. We bring our milk to a roll-boil quickly three times and then cool it in running water."
