Oscar Beckstead Chosen United Counties Warden

Reeve of Williamsburg township for the past ten years, Oscar Beckstead was Monday afternoon elected warden of the council of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. He succeeds Gladstone McLean, reeve of Finch village.

A life-long resident of Dundas county, Warden Beckstead has had a lengthy municipal career which started in 1921 when he first attended counties council as deputy-reeve. His election to the wardenship was sponsored by Mahlon Zeron, reeve of Matilda township, and James McArthur, reeve of Lancaster village. Dr. J. Howard Munro, reeve of Maxville village and a former warden, installed the warden-elect.

The new warden of the United Counties is a farmer by occupation, is married and has four children. During the past year he was chairman of the counties' finance committee, and in his 12 years as member of the council has served on all committees.

Trinity United Church Shows Handsome Balance For Year

The Annual Congregational Meeting of the Trinity United Church was held on Monday night with a large number of members and adherents in attendance.

The chairman the Rev. Wm. E. Wright opened the meeting with devotional exercises after which all departmets and organizations of the church presented their reports.

The superintendent of the Sunday School, Mr. Allison Graham, reported an average attendance for the year of 100. New hymn books had been procured for the school and after fifty dollars had been donated to Missions and all expenses had been paid there was a balance on hand of $96.52.

Mrs. Wright with Mrs. D. Docksteader as her assistant reported that the CGIT was organized in October, had a membership of 20, and that the girls had raised sufficient funds to meet all their local needs and had sent five dollars to the National Girl's Work Board.

Mrs. G. Cass reporting for the Philathea Bible Class, stated the class had made 232 social calls and had finished 19 quilts for the Red Cross. Receipts for the year were $60.18, expenses $38.64. Balance on hand $21.54.

Rev. Wm. E. Wright assisted by Mr. Harry Allison reported having organized a Trail Rangers Group. There were 22 members with an average attendance of 18. The regular Boy's Work program was being used.

The Cradle Roll under the leadership of Mrs. Myles Merkley and Mrs. C. Cunningham reported an enrolment of 23 members.

Mrs. Lyle Marcellus on behalf of the Woman's Asssociation reported on enrolment of 51 members. Flowers and gifts were sent to 45 during their illness, and 294 calls were made in the homes of our congregation. The treasurer had paid $109 for parsonage and church purposes. The members had canvassed and collected $209 for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. Balance on hand $142.60.

The Woman's Missionary Society with Mrs. W. E. Wright as president showed a membership of 80. Twelve meetings had been held during the year with special features at Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas. 125 calls had been made upon the sick and shut-in folk. By means of special offerings, fees and a donation by the Merrill Mission Band of $46.00, the sum of $418 was raised for missions.

The report of the Treasurer, Mr. H. Brown was very gratifying. The sum of $710, being $35.00 in excess of our objective, was paid to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. After all current expenses, including repairs on the property of $278.00 had been paid there is a substantial balance on hand of $2168.76.

On behalf of the session the Rev. W. E. Wright stated that there were 240 families under our care. There were 380 on the Communicant Roll. Sixteen baptisms, four marriages and eleven deaths had taken place. 510 pastoral calls had been made by the minister. Twelve boys and girls of the Young Worshippers League had attended church on forty or more Sundays.

The following were elected to the Board of Stewards for a period of three years, Messrs. P. J. Gilroy, W. N. Fulton, Myles Merkley, Hugh Smith and Kenneth Merkley.

For Board of Managers the congregation elected Messrs. C. T. Fulton, O. L. King and John Helmer.

On motion it was unanimously agreed that the Managers be authorized to obtain plans and prices for the installation of a new heating system and report their findings to the congregation for further action.

A very hearty vote of appreciation was extended to the Rev. W. E. and Mrs. Wright for their faithful and consecrated leadership in all departments of the church's work.

A short program of musical selections presented by Messrs. P. G. Hewitt, G. Wragg, Gerald Brown, Miss B. Hewitt and Mrs. Brown and dainty refreshments served by the Woman's Association, with Mrs. Myles Merkley in charge, brought the meeting to a close.

AN EGG WITH AN OVERCOAT

Mrs. Hugh McMillan of RR2, Chesterville, has sent an egg to this office which is somewhat of an oddity. Probably a model being developed by her laying flock of white leghorns. The weather has been exceedingly cold in this district since before Christmas and no doubt the hens have been hampered in their effort to supply the quota of "A Large" for the British market. The egg sent in by Mrs. McMillan is a fully developed hard shelled egg in a sack or soft shell surrounded by fluid, evidently an overcoat for protection against 30 and 40 below temperatures.

Stormont Chooses Chevrier Continue Liberal Candidate

Lionel Chevrier, K.C., parliamentary secretary to Munitions Minister Howe, was unanimously chosen as Liberal candidate for Stormont in the forthcoming federal elections by Stormont Liberal Association meeting at Finch Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Chevrier, who has been federal member for Stormont since 1935, was nominated by F. W. Brownridge, former M.L.A. for Stormont.

Rehabilitation of returned men, full employment for all, maintenance of better balance between rural and urban life, and achievement of social security are in the forefront of the government's post-war designed to win the peace for Canada, Mr. Chevrier told the meeting.

He predicted a greater and expanding Canada in post-war years but maintained the government is first committed to the winning of the war.

Geo. L. McIntosh, former reeve of Roxborough township, was elected president of Stormonit Liberal Association. Vice-Presidents are Mrs. Nelson Begg, Newington, and Albert Lavigne, Cornwall; treasurer, W.A. Dingwall, Cornwall; Secretary, C.J. McDougall, Cornwall.

NO APPLE SURPLUS IN ONTARIO

Ceiling price is not selling price in the case of apples. At the annual meeting of the Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Asosciation R. L. Wheeler, of the Dominion Fruit and Vegetable department, Ottawa, pointed out that a poor grade of apples could not expect to sell for the ceiling price. Apple marketing is no problem in Canada, the speaker claimed. On January 1st, last year, one-half of the Eastern Ontario crop was in common storage. It is evident from the fact that British Columbia apples were selling in Ontario this January that there is no surplus of apples in this province, or, if there is, it is due to the failure of some growers to get out and sell them. It was brought out at the meeting that 51 percent of all the trees from one to 15 years old were MacIntosh and in Durham County this percentage is 33 percent, both figures being far higher than the next choice of apples.

JOB ON PAPER TO BE AVAILABLE

One hundred thousand jobs, created through the spending of $100,000,000 per year through the ten years immediately following the peace, are foreseen by Dr. George Langford, director of the Department of Planning and Development. One billion dollars worth of construction will be needed in Ontario to carry out essential projects, Dr. Langford claimed. Those communities in Ontario planning now are finding that they need one or more projects such as better housing, hospitals, improved water supply, garbage incinerators, sewage disposal plants, slum clearance, more modern schools, better recreational facilities for children and adults, training centres, street widening and improved transportation, new municipal building, art centres, libraries, community halls and theatres. In the rural areas there are such problems as the prevention of floods, the checking of soil erosion, better rural schools and hospital facilities, more and better rural electrification, better roads and scores of other projects. These are the things that today are missing in Ontario, whether it be in rural or urban communities," Dr. Langford declared. "The Ontario of tomorrow must include all these things for all the people. It is our belief that if we have the plans ready so that construction can be started immediately after the cessation of war, we will go a long way towards preventing the depression which has been forecast. The program which we envisage must be so geared up that it can step into the breach the moment that any labor problem becomes apparent for the carrying out of these plans is the only formula which the Governments of this country see to prevent widespread unemployment following the war."

PLAN TO SAVE OUR FORESTS

In Scandinavian countries the forest resources are regarded as the Peoples' asset and therefore to be cherished. In Ontario carelessness in the forests results in an annual loss of millions of dollars. The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests has undertaken an educational program in an endeavor to implant in the public mind the danger or disregard of the forests. Control of fire hazards is the biggest single problem confronting the district foresters and their men. A prime necessity is swift communication when an emergency develops and the telephone system operated by the Government, together with the medium way and ultra high frequency radio setup is doing excellent work. More telephone lines, more radios and more lookout towers will be needed in the future and the department is planning now for the time when the expanding needs of the forests and of industry will require increased communications. Their goal is virtual elimination of major forest fires and to this end a survey of the communication system how in use has already been completed for the greater the efficiency in communications over the trackless miles of forest, the greater the degree of control that results. Postwar expansion will take the system far beyond the 5,000 miles of telephone lines and 200 radio sets it now possesses. The Provincial Air Service will be developed after the war and new and more effective flying machines will be purchased. Fire-fighting equipment will be radically improved when the war developments are incorporated in pumps and other machinery.

COUNTY COMMITTEES UNDERTAKING MANY TYPES OF PROJECTS

With county committees now organized in twelve counties and districts of Ontario, and several others in the process of organization, the extent to which these committees can be effective in promoting the betterment of agriculture in their own areas is becoming apparent. Under the guidance and direction of C. D. Graham, Director of the Agricultural Representative Branch, committees have been established in the counties of Essex, Waterloo, Perth, Peel, Wellington, Halton, Lanark, Lambton and Durham and the districts of Kenora, Rainy River and Algoma. A number of other counties have their organization meetings planned, and by the end of January between 20 and 25 committees should be in operation.

As the work of these committees is developing, Mr. Graham reports, it is apparent that the main idea in their minds is to study the needs of their own counties and decide what are the most essential projects. In this way duplication of effort is avoided, and all the farm groups in the country can co-ordinate their energies towards the objectives set. In many counties, soil conservation and land use projects have been launched with surveys planned to establish the definite needs of the district in that regard. In Peel, in addition to soil conservation work, a campaign against Bang's disease is being undertaken, to give every farmer the opportunity of having his calves vaccinated at a flat rate charge. In Rainy River, the committee is making a concentrated drive on drainage and land clearing problems. Other counties are taking an active part in pasture improvement projects, while others have undertaken a plan of assistance in the rehabilitation of war veterans wishing to settle on the land. In still others, the county committee has taken the initiative in the promotion of short courses within the county.

This brief recital gives some idea of the wide scope which exists for the operations of county agricultural committees, and it is confidently anticipated that before they have been operating very long they will have made a great contribution to the solution of Ontario's major agricultural problems.

TO COMMANDEER HAY SUPPLIES IF NECESSARY

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced that in view of the reported shortage of hay supplies in some districts, it may become necessary for the Board to commandeer supplies.

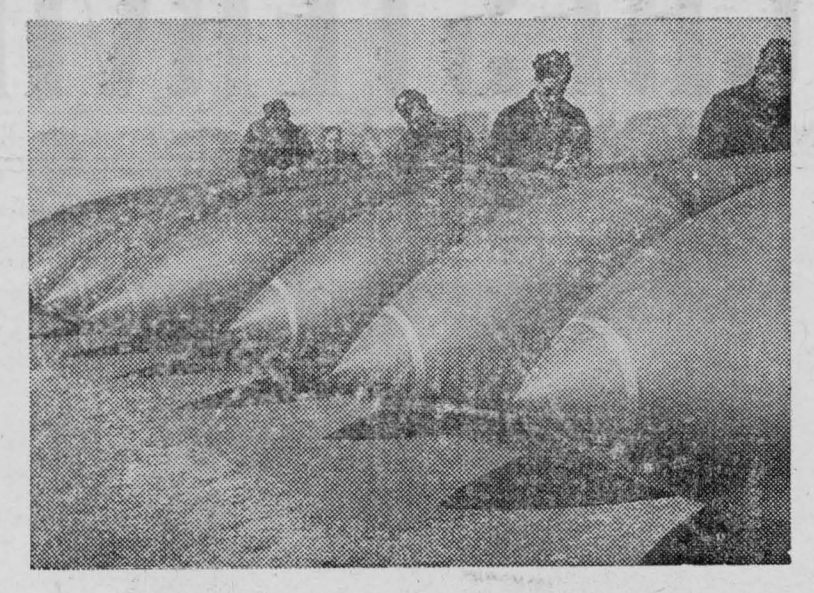

In some areas of Ontario and Quebec, there is a serious hay shortage, while other districts report a surplus.

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, emphasized the importance of getting more feed into the districts where it is most needed, and said there had recently been some applications for hay export permits, but that the Board felt that the first obligation on domestic supply was to meet domestic requirements.

In order to protect the price ceiling and the wartime food production policies of Canada, a ceiling price was placed on hay and the granting of permits to export hay to the United States was discontinued October 20 last. The ceiling price of baled hay is $18 per ton f.o.b. the railway shipping point in or nearest to the area of production. This is the maximum price to the country shipper whether he is a farmer or a dealer who purchased the hay from a farmer.

Dear Mrs. Merkley: I wish to thank you and the Women's Institute for the lovely parcel and Christmas card that I received this afternoon. It is appreciated very dearly. It is a very great treat, as it was my first parcel since I arrived overseas.

Thanking everyone again and wishing all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I'll say goodbye for now.

Yours truly,
Ken Giles.

Holland, December 11.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

I want to thank you ladies for the very nice parcel I just received and thank Mrs. Gordon Senn for the packing, for I must say we boys sure appreciate getting parcels from our home town folk. I will again thank you ladies. Still doing fine and hope to be home shortly.

Pte. A. R. Harper.

Scotland, November 30.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

I would like to thank you all personally for the lovely and most highly appreciated parcel received from your organization yesterday morning. As this is impossible to do I am writing a few lines to thank you all for your kindness to us during our time served overseas.

It is very hard and difficult to express our appreciations to you all for your kindness in a letter. We all hope that in the near future the war will come to an end in a decisive victory for the Allied Armies under the Supreme Commander, Gen. Eisenhower. When this great day has been accomplished we will be looking forward very soon afterwards returning to Canada once more to be with our many friends who have been so swell to us all during our long absence from home.

In closing I wish you one and all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Good luck to you all,
Yours sincerely,
L. E. Alford.

England, November 27.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

Dear Ladies: I was very pleasantly surprised to receive a parcel packed with goodies from you today. I appreciate it very much and wish to thank you from the bottom of my heart for your thoughtfulness.

I ran into a bit of tough luck over here and I expect to be leaving for Canada very shortly. However my stay in hospital should not be longer than a year so next year I expect to see you once again.

Thanking you once again and wishing you the compliments of the season, I remain

Sincerely yours,
Arthur Hewitt.

Holland, December 4.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

Dear Friends: Just a few lines to let you know I received your most welcome Christmas box and that lovely Christmas card. The card said that Mrs. R. C. Dillabough had packed it. Well she sure did a swell job so I want to thank her and all the rest of you ladies for your kind remembrance as your parcels are sure appreciated to the boys over here. Things are going pretty good over here so I hope and pray we will all be home for next Christmas.

I was quite surprised the other day when I ran into Percy Plantz and Jack Morris from home. I spent the whole day with Percy and we sure had some good old talks. Well as there is not much more I can say for now, I will say good-bye. Hoping to see you all soon again. A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

As Ever,
Rae McLean.

Holland, December.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Merkley:

Thanks so much for the Women's Institute parcel you packed and please convey my appreciation and best wishes to the Institute.

I presume you have read all about our "wonderful" weather in Holland. so I won't enlarge on that—only to say we had our first snow today—the first decent snowfall I've seen since before I left home.

The mail situation is perfect to date—letters making the trip in 7-9 days, and parcels and cigs coming along in grand style. To date I've lost one parcel and no letters since arriving over this side of the Atlantic. So that's not too bad.

I had a pleasant surprise the other day when Rae McLean dropped into my office—first I had seen him over here.

With sincere greetings to the family and the new grandson.

Yours truly,
Jack Morris.

England, December 16.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

Many thanks for your kind remembrance on this occasion. It sure makes us over here feel good to be remembered by those we have left behind.

Let us all hope that we will all be reunited by this time next year.

Everything is going as well as can be expected over here and we are kept busy most of the time.

Again thanking you, and wishing you all a Merry Christmas and r prosperous new year. I remain,

Cpl. C. D. Labre.

Italy, December 19.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

Dear Ladies: Many sincere thanks for the grand Christmas parcel, packed by Mrs. Myles Merkley, which arrived in splendid condition yesterday.

At the moment we are in the midst of a lovely (?) Italian winter which means plenty of rain, snow, mud and more mud, and to say that myself and some of the other boys in the Unit will appreciate it, is to put it entirely too mildly.

It is very thoughtful and considerate of all you members of the Institute and I am certainly more than grateful.

With a hope that each one of you has enjoyed a happy Yuletide,

I remain,
T. S. Carpenter.

December 31, 1944.

Dear Mrs. Gilroy: Just a few lines to thank you and the other women for the lovely Christmas box.

I received it today. It had gone to my ship which was in England, then came back here.

Since you were the one who packed my box I want to thank you.

Well, I am getting my discharge in January. I was married on December 11 so I'm going to settle down or rather try to. Be able to tell you more about that later. Well, Mrs. Gilroy, I hope you have had a very happy Christmas and New Years. As this is New Year's eve I am going out to a party myself.

Thanks again to you and the other ladies. I have enjoyed the parcel very much.

Here's wishing you all the very best in the New Year.

Doug. Casselman.

Dec. 12th, 1944.

Dear Mrs. Dillabough: Just a few lines, as I wish to thank you for the lovely parcel I received a few days ago. Please convey my thanks to the other ladies. It was greatly appreciated by myself and the other boys in the tank crew as we share everything with one another.

It is very thoughtful and kind of you ladies to do this for us fellows over here. Hoping you will not have to go to all this trouble next year as we all would like and hope to be home.

I will close now thanking you all once again and wishing you all the best of luck throughout the New Year.

Gnr. T. J Allen.

Dec. 17, 1944.

Dear ladies: I'm writing to you in answer to your very welcome and delicious parcel I have received.

It was real nice, like the cigarettes and the other comforts. You ladies sure are trying to keep the boys over here smiling and making a grand job of it. I know of course some of you mothers have your sons over there, which gives you much comfort in helping the club and making tre boys smile. I was born in Chesterville and sure miss the old town very much.

I had two brothers in the services, one was killed in Italy. Maybe you will remember the remembrance service in Chesterville of my brother.

Yours very truly,
Ray Smith.

December 13th, 1944.

To Chesterville Women's Institute:

Dear Mrs. Barnes: Received the parcel packed by your organization and needless to say it was greatly enjoyed by myself and staff.

The troops always look forward to Christmas, which generally brings Christmas cheer from their friends at home. I know it must be a real problem to pack so many parcels and no doubt commodities for purchase must be more difficult to get than when we left years ago. I wish to thank you one and all on your worthy work and further wish the Institute every success for the future. I appreciate greatly your work, perhaps I see this from a different point of view than the average, as our work here with the Auxiliary Services is that of entertaining and assisting keeping up the high moral of our troops and I must say we have a full-time job.

Trusting this finds you one and all in good health.

Gordon A. Cumming

Dear ladies: It is with more than words that I can thank you for your kind thoughts and good cheer, when I received your parcel today.

The only wish I can bestow to all is that shortly as your hard work ceases, will see the return of all loved ones.

May God bless you and bring you much happiness in your untiring tasks to bring us much cheer this Christmas.

Best wishes,
Cheerio,
Francis McLean.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

An American sergeant serving in Italy recently sent the following amusing letter to the BBC:

"Sir: In the course of a news broadcast on November 1 last, the situation on this front was reported this: "In Italy, sodden ground is still limiting activity on the Fifth Army Front."

He admits the truth of the statement but seems to feel that it is understatement that requires amplifying. "For instance," he writes, "because of the sodden ground, we are encouraging our troops to carry with them an old steel arch support, or a button hook or similar bit of metal so that when they become mired we can easily locate them with mine detectors. All suspicious bubbles are being investigated. We search with crystal balls and divining rods.

"It has become the custom of our kitchen personnel," he goes on, "to serve the food according to the phases of the moon, because our stomachs are rising and falling with the tides. We are equipping our jeeps with periscopes and our heavy vehicles with pontoons. The habit of digging foxholes is becoming obsolete. One merely falls flat on the face and in no time is sunk as snug as a bug in a rug. Heavy men are advised to leave marker buoys. One lad failed to mark his location and is now posted as missing. He weighed well over 300 pounds, so quite likely has hit bedrock by now.

"Among a small group listening to the News broadcast in question was a gay young liaison officer from a neighboring British Unit. Afterwards, as he took his leave and stepped through the door, a startled expression came over his face. With characteristic British conservatism, he remarked, as he disappeared from view: I say! This is all very sodden!

"We are considering changing our Division battle cry to: 'O Tempore! O Morass!' "

Happy Voyage.

DON'T CONFUSE THE SIGNALS

War came. The manufacture of most civilian goods had to be cut down or stopped to make way for war production. That caused shortages of civilian goods—that was the RED LIGHT

don't jump the YELLOW light

Some restrictions are now being lifted, but it does not mean lots of goods right away. War's demands are still huge and must come first. We can't neglect them just so that some of us here at home can get a little more.

Don't confuse the signals—(This is the YELLOW LIGHT ONLY).

It means a little more of some things and it helps business men get ready for the time when there will be more materials and workers available.

It does not mean the end of shortages!

Getting back to peacetime production will necessarily be piecemeal and gradual.

"Patience" is the word.

it's NOT the green light yet

Only after Victory over both enemies can the Green Light be switched on, and the road cleared for enough production to meet all our civilian needs.

THE WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD

THIS SEASON START earlier!

MORE and more, as we study egg and poultry markets, we are convinced that the poultry raiser who starts his "main crop" of chicks in January or February is the one who clears the most money.

January and February-hatched pullets come into production just as egg prices begin to go up. They are in full lay right through the highest prices of the year. They reach full production of A-Large size just when the premium for A-Large spreads into real money.

A-Large brought 10c. to 14c. a dozen above A-Pullets for weeks on end last fall, and for a limited period up to 17c. There's an item that in itself alone makes a big difference in your whole year's net returns—and whether you are selling A-Large or A-Pullet through the fall depends very largely on whether you start your chicks early enough to reach the A-Large stage at the right time. If you have the equipment to do the job, you can give winter chicks just as good a start as spring chicks — probably better, for you can spare more time for them in January or February than you can when the spring work is pressing.

WANTED—Fall Eggs for Export

The 1945 egg market looks "solid", too. Consumption here in Canada continues very heavy. Already, the British egg order for 1945 calls for the same volume of eggs as in 1944. That ought to help make 1945 a good profitable poultry year—without spectacular high prices, perhaps, but without serious slumps, either.

The Dominion Special Products Board plans to buy 15 million dozen (500,000 cases) for export shipment during the fall . . and wants A-Large and A-Medium only. To provide that many eggs IN TIME in A-Large and A-Medium sizes, means starting a lot of chicks EARLIER . . not necessarily more chicks, but earlier chicks.

It's good business to start good chicks early, in any year. This year it looks like EXTRA good business!

Drop us a postcard with your name and address, and we'll promptly send you full information on Bray Chicks.

DOGS IN WARFARE

Two instances of how dogs are used to save manpower and casualties were given in BBC programmes recently. "Radio Newsreel" included a visit to Audrey Russell, BBC reporter, to a light rescue depot to find out how dogs are taught at the Ministry of Aircraft Production Dog Training School to locate casualties after bomb raids. She interviewed one of the trainers, Mr. Malcolm Russell, who explained that the training, which requires patience and understanding, is done on old bomb sites, where Civil Defence workers volunteer to be "buried." The method used as an actual incident is to set two dogs to work on different areas of the debris. If one of them thinks he has found someone the other dog is brought over to check up. An instance of the dogs' good work which Mr. Russell gave was that of his own pet trainees, two Alsatians called Jett and Thorne. They brought an old lady of 65 out alive after 11½ hours.

The other field in which dogs are used was described by A. E. Powley of the CBC, in a "War Report" despatch from Brussels. Dogs, which are lent by their owners for the duration of the war, are trained by the British Army in mine detection. They have been at work on the European battlefronts for some months and have found mines of all kinds—metal, plastic, glass and wood—even when the most highly developed detecting equipment could not. Nearly all the men in this platoon were gamekeepers in civil life and each man has two or three dogs under his care. He always works with the same dogs and is responsible for their welfare. The dog's job is to smell out where a mine is hidden, and the man marks the spot. Disposal of the mine is left to the sappers. Powley assured any listeners who may worry about the dogs on humane grounds that the animals are not asked to be heroes. Their job is to be useful, clearing up the minefields behind the lines, and the sergeant in charge of the platoon had never heard of any dog casualties. Other breeds besides Alsatians are used: spaniels, airedales, terriers and even mongrels.

Haddo was the leading school, closely followed by the Hainsville Public School.

While December sales were much better than for December 1944 the schools are still behind in their objective by several hundred dollars. However, January is usually a good month and it is hoped that some of the lost ground will be made up by the end of that month. Teachers are reminded to notify the inspector with respect to the name of any pupil who is a contestant for the $5.00 War Savings Certificate donated by Mr. Turner for the pupil selling the largest number of Stamps during the Autumn term. Only one application for this has been received to date.

Average purchases of Stamps by townships and urban schools were: Matilda, 45c; Mountain 61c; Williamsburg 18c; Winchester 35c; village schools 34c.

AN EXCITING HOUR IN AN AIRMAN'S LIFE

When he volunteered, Navy Lt. Thomas Ladwig knew that flying a night fighter from a carrier was a hazardous job. But not even 25-year-old Airman Ladwig had bargained for the miraculous series of near-misses death flung at him last week. He remembered this much:

The carrier's catapult had gone haywire, had shoved him and his eight-ton aircraft overside—a 40-foot plunge. The 'plane's belly tank had been rammed into the cockpit, flooding him with searing gasoline. He had been slammed tight against the cockpit hood, his only means of escape.

Somehow, deep under water, he and his aircraft parted company. He pulled the strings to inflate his Mae West, found himself buoyed upwards. Then he bumped into the slimy underside of the carrier, some 30 feet under water. In a moment more he was being churned in the Niagara of the carrier's wake; somehow he had hurtled past the propellers' blades.

Then, as he vomited gasoline and sea water, the monstrous form of a battleship bore down on him. He had managed to get his waterproof flashlight in hand. He pressed the button, waved the light overhead. The battlewagon swept past.

Forty-five minutes after he had plunged from the carrier, Lt. Ladwig was pulled aboard a destroyer—after three of its crew had slipped from its net and had been fished out. The destroyer's skipper, noticing that Ladwig's breath was fumy with gasoline, ordered the ship's smoking lamp doused (i.e. "no smoking"). Only then did Ladwig feel it was safe to utter a long "Whew!"

The afternoon's activities were completed with a few brief addresses by Mr. G. Smith, Mr. W. Fawcett, and Mr. H. W. Graham. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. W. O. Dixon, by Mr. Harold McMenomy.

The following afternoon the breeders of Matilda held a similar meeting at the homes of Mr. Chas. and Douglas Hanson of Dixon's Corners. Mr. H. W. Graham acted as chairman. The demonstration and judging competition were under the supervision of Mr. Grant Smith.

Results of the judging competition found four competitors namely Messrs. A. Stacey, Ray Johnston, Orval Seeley and Pat McGinn all of Dixon's Corners, tied for first place. Food for Thought

"Not a bad epigram," observed a philosophical Weary Willie, when the judge said, "Ten days in jail".

"Epigram?" muttered his buddy. "What's an epigram, bo?"

"Oh," airily explained the other tramp, "it's a short sentence that sounds light, but gives you plenty to think about."

WILL WELCOME HOME RETURNING SOLDIERS AT LANSDOWNE PARK

Abandonment of the Ottawa Union Station for the reception of Army personnel returning from overseas and the utilization of more adequate facilities at No. 3 District Depot, Lansdowne Park, has been announced by Colonel F. J. G. Garneau, E. D., Commandant, Ottawa Area Command. The change, which will end what are described as "unsatisfactory and sometimes chaotic conditions," is to take effect immediately.

In a prepared statement, Colonel Garneau said the decision was made "only after the most thorough investigations, after consultations with the Department of National Defence and railway authorities, and after taking into consideration the best interests not only of the men themselves, but of their mothers, fathers, wives and children, as well." He added that the need of providing more suitable facilities had become increasingly urgent in recent months but that action to transfer reception activities to Lansdowne Park had been withheld in order to give the station a fair trial.

"It is now sufficiently evident," he said, "that the facilities at the Union Station are already taxed to capacity by normal rail traffic and that sufficient space is not available to avoid the over-crowding that almost always prevails when hospital or troops trains arrive. Conditions at times have been tantamount to chaotic, not through lack of organization or careful planning, but simply because existing facilities at the station make more satisfactory arrangements impossible. By switching reception activities to Lansdowne Park now we shall avoid the even worse confusion that would prevail when larger groups of men begin returning to Ottawa."

The new arrangements which were outlined during a joint meeting held last week with representatives of the Canadian Legion and the Ottawa newspapers, will also permit detraining of certain returning personnel at the Isabella Street siding, Col. Garneau added. He said the Isabella Street siding would be used when two or more railway cars arrive with 50 or more men, but that under that number the cars and soldiers will be taken into Union Station as in the past. There will be no change in handling of army personnel going to Rideau Military hospital since the present method has proved highly satisfactory to all concerned. Hospital cases will continue to be detrained at the Union Station and will be taken direct to the hospital where they will be received by their next-of-kin.

Col. Garneau said that a hearty invitation has been etxended to Mayor Lewis, the Canadian Legion and members of the civilian reception committee to continue their reception activities. "The Mayor, the Legion and members of the committee have done an outstanding job," he stated. "Despite unfavourable weather conditions and inconvenient hours, they have always been on hand. Their efforts are considered of the greatest importance and in the interests of the returning men must be continued." He emphasized that the new arrangements involved only a change of location and would not in any way interfere with reception activities. There will be no restrictions, either, on the number of people permitted to join in the welcome home ceremonies and that special arrangements are being made to permit civilians to enter the Lansdowne Park grounds.

Col. Garneau said that Lt. Col. Richard Taylor, Officer commanding Depot No. 3 has everything in readiness for the arrival of the next group of men.

On the Safe Side

An English parson still on the underside of forty was driving home from an outlying town when he overtook a young woman. He recognized her as the maid of all work at a farm which he would pass, so he pulled up and offered her a lift. Mary gladly accepted his offer and they chatted pleasantly all the way to the farm gate.

"Thank you, sir," she said, as she got down.

"Don't mention it, Mary. Don't mention it," he told her politely.

"No, I won't," Mary obligingly asssured him.

Berwick Women's Institute

The regular meeting of the Berwick W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. L. J. Hutt on January 11th. The president, Mrs. J. Bogart, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode, creed and Lord's prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The roll call was answered by a New Years resolution, Two letters were read from boys overseas thanking the W. I. for Christmas boxes. Mrs. A. Smith donated a quilt top. It was moved to send the Ruddy family a card of sympathy. A paper on "Publicity" was given by Mrs. C. Swerdfeger. A riddle contest by Mrs. Swerdfeger was won by Mrs. A. Smith. Two minutes of silent prayer was held in honor of Victory. Following silent prayer Mrs. Lanigan read a paper on "Power Supreme". The meeting was then brought to a close by singing of the National Anthem. Mrs. Bogart gave a vote of thanks to the hostess for the use of her home. Next meeting to be held at Mrs. L. J. Hutt's.

THE PESSIMISTS
By
R. J. DEACHMAN

I like the pessimists. Strange to tell their maunderings brighten up the scene. Record them for the amusement of your children and your children's children. If all their prophecies took shape and form, earth would be a hell. all things worth while would pass away. It would, indeed, be a dreary life.

I read, recently, this item in "The Forum" a waggish leftish organ, with a fixed conviction that unless we change our minds and become socialists few, if any, will be employed in nineteen hundred and something or other. Here is the story:

"During the past decade or more, however, it has become increasingly evident that the expansive forces underlying the growth of capitalism have disappeared. Birth rates have been falling and populations have tended to become stable in size. New frontiers available for settlement and exploitation have almost disappeared. Farm populations have been falling in many leading countries, while cities and towns have ceased growing at their previously high rates."

Now the curious thing about that item, and the article which supported it, is that it hasn't a single suggestion for changing things—just one sibilant whisper or croak to the effect that some program, other than private enterprise, will have to be adopted. Our pessimists always want to throw the engine away when the car stops—it's the only thing they can think about.

Of course, the pessimist has been with us since the dawn of time. I recall a saying of the late lamented Mr. Jeremiah: "The partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not." Now that is a sad note, but when you come down to consider the facts we have far more partridges in the world today, than in the time of Jeremiah. How could he know whether this was a local or general condition. Some must have been getting live birds out of their eggs. We shouldn't be discouraged. Jeremiah sounds like a socialist out of office.

It was always thus, the croakers keen on telling their stories. I quote from a little book "The New Philosophy of the Public Debt", published some time ago by the Brooking Institution of Washington. It gives two outstanding illustrations. One is from the Hon. Carl D. Wright who in his first annual report as U. S. Commissioner of Labor in 1886, nearly 60 years ago, pulled off the following:

"On all sides one sees the accomplished results of the labor of half a century. This full supply of economic tools is the most important factor in the present industrial depression. The discovery of new processes of manufacture will undoubtedly continue, and this will act as an ameliorating influence, but it will not leave room for a marked extension, such as has been witnessed during the last fifty years, or afford a remunerative employment of the vast amount of capital which has been created during that period. The day of large profits is probably past."

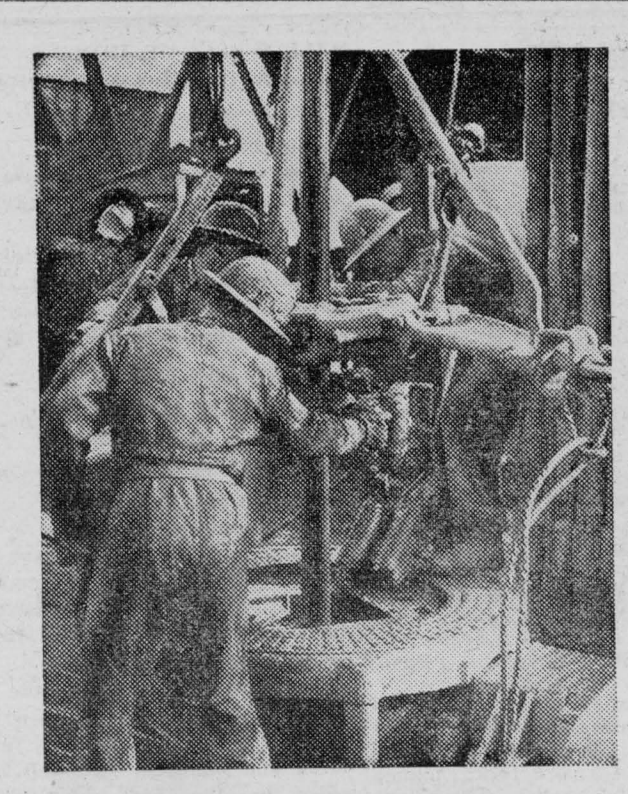

What would have been our position today if the concluding sentence of that prophecy had told the truth? I regret to say it, but we would never have been just where we were in 1886. We are not there and while we may not be any happier, for wealth does not necessarily bring human happiness, we have made tremendous material progress, which is one of the goals we seek in the world of today.

Then in the Contemporary Review of the following year, 1887, there appeared a story from the eminent David A. Wells, the business analyst of his time. His guess on economic conditions, as expressed in August 1887, was as follows:

"There is very much that contributes to the support of the idea . . that the industrial activity of the greater part of this century has been devoted to fully equipping civilized countries of the world with economic tools, and that the work of the future, in this same sphere, must be necessarily that of repair and replacements, rather than of new construction."

What was wrong with all these people. They failed to see the cumulative results of business expansion. A young man said to me the other day, "Even, if we were to add three hundred thousand more workers to our industrial army it wouldn't begin to solve the problem of unemployment." That young man is looking at it from the standpoint of the number of men employed within the factory—that is all he sees.

Stand back a little from the stage so that you may take in the whole scene—you see only a distorted picture from a front seat in the movies. Three hundred thousand more man employed in industry would require seven hundred million dollars worth of raw material to keep them busy. That means employment doesn't it. Then what about the transportation involved in moving the raw material to the factory, sending out the finished product? What about the distribution of the goods imported in exchange for the exports sent out? Think of all the collateral employment, the advertising and sale of those products. Take into account the repairing and servicing of many of the products sold, and you get a picture of events, in a period of expansion, when a nation wakes up and its people go to work.

BRITAIN'S SECRET OIL FIELD.

A British oilfield, whose location must still be kept a secret, is yielding oil at the rate of 100,000 tons a year. Experts who have drilled for oil in Persia are among the 1,000 workers in this once quiet village. The oil is pumped to the surface by small noiseless electrical pumps which only take a few square yards of space, and are camouflaged to fit in with the surrounding countryside. GRAFT APPLE TREES FOR QUICK FRUITING

The established method of grafting young and mature apple trees is known as "topworking". It consists of cutting back the scaffold branches severely, often to within a few inches of the tree trunk, and inserting scions of the desired top-variety in the cut ends of these branches or "hubs". In recent years a new idea of grafting utilizes almost all of the top of the tree, only small laterals, spurs and undesirable branches being removed. This is known as "frameworking", for practically the entire framework of the tree is used to hold the scions. In contrast to "topworking" methods, "frameworking" takes more time per tree, but allows the converted tree to return to profitable bearing within two or three years, and the tree itself has been found to suffer far less shock than when the top has been cut back severely.

Framework grafting experiments have been underway at the Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville, N. S., since 1942, says Dr. R. J. Hilton and these trials have already demonstrated the value of "frameworking" for bringing the grafted tree back to profitable fruiting in the third season after grafting.

In one of the experiments, approximately 500 Crimson Gravenstein scions per tree were inserted at 16 inches apart in several 30 year old Stark trees, in May, 1942. From these trees, a crop of slightly more than four barrels per tree of fine quality fruit was havested in September, 1944. Stark trees of the same age that were "topworked" in 1942, have borne no fruit, nor will they have sufficient bearing surface for a profitable crop for some time to come. Each of the "frameworked" trees took about 12 man-hours to graft, whereas a "topworked" tree could be done in little less than 1½ hours.

Several framework-grafting methods have been used in comparative trials at Kentville, but any method that assures a close, firm contact between the cambial tissue of stock and scion will prove satisfactory. Scions may readily be placed in the stock of a cut-off spur or lateral, or they may be wedged into a clean cut into the side of any lateral or scaffold branch. When the bark is "slipping-" in late spring, scions may be forced in between bark and wood of the stock and tacked into place. At Kentville, the average scion-take was over 95 percent, a hot or "brush" wax having been carefully used to seal each graft union and all major wounds.

After-care consists chiefly of pulling out all sucker growths from the stock tree two or thee times during the first season's growth of scions. Some thinning and heading back of scion shoots may be done at pruning time, but heavy cutting should be avoided.

LED BY A YELLOW DUCK

My ship's company are busy making toys for Greek children. We happen to know a wretchedly poor Greek convent, where 80 small children, all orphans, are cared for. The very best that can be done for them is done—but it amounts to practically nothing—they are more than half starved. Many of the babies are red raw—because they have to be washed in sea water, fresh water being so precious that it can only be spared for drinking.

None of them has even known a sweet or seen any sort of 'oy. The proud possession of the children was a small ring of steel which could be rolled along the floor—not even a tin to beat with a stick—for every tin is required as a cooking utensil, and all sticks are fuel.

A naval officer I know happened to have a wooden yellow duck on wheels on board—it was an intended Christmas present for a niece in England. He presented it to the convent. It caused stupefaction! It was received with wide-eyed silence and gaping mouths—and then solemnly led by a daring four-year-old out into the street.

In absolute silence all the children followed it, and soon a regular procession was started, with old men and women, soldiers, priests, everyone—and they all followed the yellow duck through the main street of the town. Someone found a Union Jack and hoisted it on a pole. A tatterred, dirty drummer appeared from somewhere, and a fiddler with a squeaky fiddle. They played, almost unrecognizably, "God Save the King" And the yellow duck, a hideosity, was finally led, like the Trojan horse, back into the convent.

SEA LIONS---Show-Offs of Animal World

Sea lions are the best animal actors in the world—because they are the biggest show-offs. A sea lion that can't show off is miserable. The only thing that makes him more miserable is having to watch another sea lion show off.

I remember one old trouper named Neptune that we educated at Seal College in Kingston, N.Y. One of the projects was pipe smoking. When Neptune learned to inhale he became unbearable—strutting around blowing smoke into the faces of the other sea lions, and occasionally emitting a rumbling, fuliginous belch. To correct his conduct, we taught Pal, one of the freshmen sea lions, how to smoke, thinking that the sight would make Neptune so crestfallen he wouldn't enjoy showing off any more. Pal picked up smoking quickly, and once accidentally blew a smoke ring. Immediately Neptune sulked and stopped showing off. "He's cured," we gloated.

But one night I let Pal do the smoking act on the stage for the first time. It was too much for Neptune. He came barking madly down to the footlights. I took the pipe from Pal and gave it to Neptune, who flopped around importantly, puffing out clouds of smoke. Suddenly something grabbed me in the rear. It was Pal. He ripped through the seat of my tuxedo and tore out my shirt-tails. And the only thing that would pacify him was another chance to show off with the pipe.

Once a baby seal was born at Seal College. He weighed about 12 pounds and was helpless as a kitten. On the third day his mother started to teach him to swim. She picked him up by the nape of the neck and dropped him in the water. He sank like a rock. Mom buoyed him up for a gulp and then let him sink again. This went on about 15 minutes daily for two weeks until one day the pup suddenly let out a series of loud yips. He was yelling to everybody: "Look at me! I can swim!" He had already started to show off.

Most career seals come from Captain George McGuire in Santa Barbara, Calif., who nets four-year-old sea lions and sells them to trainers (there are only five of us in this country). The day my smartest seal, Sharkey, arrived. I almost sent him back, he was such a runt. But when I let him out he shot past all the other sea lions, deliberately trying to draw my attention. He barked incessantly. Finally I taught him a trick—and he learned it in record time. Today he is the world's highest salaried animal show-off. Some weeks he makes $1200 to $1500.

Seal lions will eat nothing but fresh fish and their table manners are something I dislike to talk about. They all bolt their food. Feeding them is a little like dropping letters into a mail slot. They must be kept well underfed, for if a trained seal is allowed to eat all he wants he blubbers up and begins to look like a blimp.

Biting is another problem of sea-lion rearing. Before their first lesson I put on a pair of all-metal pants and heavy metal-covered shoes. When I open the door of the cage the new sea lions surge on me and slash at my ankles and shins. Finally they back away, snorting and completely mystified. Soon they have learned not to bite.

Of course, if another performer spoils a sea lion's act, that's different. A circus troupe was once performing on a hospital lawn and the trained seal was balancing a ball on his nose. The elephant lumbered over and whacked the ball off. That sea lion sank his teeth in the elephant's trunk and sent him squealing.

A properly educated sea lion won't molest a man in the water with him. In New York's Central Park Zoo early one morning, four youths, returning from a party, found themselves at the seal pool. Three of them bet the fourth that he couldn't swim across the sea-lion-infested waters. He dove in and churned up the pool. The sea lions looked with disdain on his clumsy efforts—then just ignored him.

For the sea lion is the world's best watershow performer and the fastest thing that swims. The dolphin makes 50 miles an hour, but the California sea lion can swim circles around a dolphin. If a fish leaps the sea lion can grab him in the air: if he's in a playfull mood, he'll toss the fish to some other sea lions, who catch it and flip it around, like an infield warming up. A sea lion will climb a cliff, dive down 40 feet, play submarine for a quarter of an hour, and never give it a thought.

Under water a sea lion's hearing is acute. One time at the Chicago Sportsman's Show, Sharkey was on the bottom and refused to surface. Hundreds of people were milling around the tank, feet pounding the wooden floors. When I came along Sharkey immediately shot to the surface and barked at me. He had recognized my footsteps.

A sea lion is a hypersensitive soul. If you speak crossly to him he practically wilts at your feet. Jumbo, a star circus performer we once had, was slapped by a clown. It was done in fun, but Jumbo refused to do any work from that moment on, and for two weeks I had to cancel his act.

So no matter how badly they misbehave I never strike a sea lion. It would be indiscreet, anyway. If he ever struck back the instructor wouldn't know what hit him. The strength in those flippers is unbelievable, as our 250-pound Buddy once illustrated almost fatally. He had been taught to lie on his back, level his flippers, and let one of my keepers do a handstand. Fortunately this was always done at the edge of the pool, because one afternoon Buddy got a ltle bored and with one flipper knocked the 170-pound man with a terrific blow into the pool.

At Seal College our sea lions learn by doing. To learn the ball-balancing act, which is their hardest trick, a sea lion works three 20-minute periods a day, six days a week, for six months. I begin by holding a small wooden paddle in my hand and getting the animal to follow it around with his nose. The instant he does this correctly, I toss him a smelt so he will connect the reward with the act. Then in the place of the paddle I substitute an inflated ball with lacings I can slip my fingers through. The sea lion's nose follows the motion of the ball around. Some days later I am steady the ball on his nose with only one finger. One day I lift my finger, and he keeps the ball in the air unaided. A few weeks later he is throwing the ball, while in the water, to another seal who throws it back.

Once a sea lion learns a few tricks he doesn't want to stop. He will jump a bar six feet out of water, bring up weights form the bottom, pull an aquaplane in harness, play musical bells, balance a glass of water on a stick while rolling over, and ride horseback while catching and balancing knives, dumbbells and a lighted candelabra on his nose. That is he'll do it as long as somebody is looking.

At the dedication of a zoo in one city, the mayor and other officials were seated near the seal pool. Suddenly a gust of wind whisked off the mayor's top hat and landed it right side up in the pool. In an instant, one of the sea lions came up under the hat and then, wearing it rakishly he flopped to an overhanging ledge and sat there smugly acknowledging the laughter of the multitude.

Sharkey can learn new tricks in one demonstration. He brings up an iron ring from the pool; I put the ring around his neck. He catches on, and the next time he brings it up around his neck.

However, a sea lion rarely learns from observation and imitation of his fellows. Three or four together work best—but that is beacause each one is so eager to show what he can do.

A trained sea lion will not run away. In one theater the sea lions did get out of their cages one night, but they just roamed around inquisitively. One, who had a going-to-bed act on the stage, got into the janitor's bed. When the janitor returned (a little high) from a nearby tavern and retired in the dark, he found himself in bed with a strange companion.

Sea lions live to be about 70 years old and are inveterate show-offs to the end. If you put an old seal back into the ocean, he is always hankering to return to the footlights. There is a story of one troupe of old timers who were freed by a shipwreck and joined a wild herd in the sea. Long afterward their trainer happened to be walking on the rocks above the seal beaches and called out to a friend. Suddenly five seals left the herd below and began flippity-flopping toward the rocks. They were the trainer's old troupe.

POTATO SURPLUS IS MUCH HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR

The value of the 1944 potato crop in Ontario is estimated at $15,082,000, according to the Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. This figure is based on a crop yielding 8,508,000 cwt. from 120,000 acres, a total yield which is more than one and one-half million bushels more than the 1943 crop produced from 116,000 acres.

This increased yield was obtained by favourable weather conditions late in the growing season in many potato producing areas, together with specialized attention to the crop by commercial growers, says R. E. Goodin, potato fieldman for the Department.

According to the latest report of the marketing service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, potato storage holdings in Ontario amount to 64,584 tons as compared with 19,081 tons at the same date last year. The estimated storage stocks for the province of Quebec and the Maritimes amount to 58,361 tons more than last year. The estimated potato production of the 1944 crop in Canada is up by more than six and one-half million bushels above 1943.

Although active export demands exist to the United States due to a short crop in some areas, Ontario potato growers with supplies on hand might well consider that liberal quantities of potatoes are in storage according to the available figures as quoted above, says Mr. Goodin. Mostly due to transportation difficulties, potato prices have now reached the ceiling on most markets, and no further advance can be expected at present. Under these circumstances, and in the interests of orderly marketing, growers would be well advised to keep available supplies rolling to market if at all possible.

Everyone is eagle-eyed to see another's faults and deformity.—Dryden.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! City paths and country lanes have been knee-deep in snow, the appearance of homes is quite different. It looks as if cotton batting had been tenderly tucked around each house to protect the human souls from suffering—suffering from loneliness sometimes.

At this time the folks within your house or the next door neighbor may be cheered by a cup of stimulating tea and tasty doughnuts.

By the way, have you tried making fresh doughnuts or fritters recently. They do save the butter inasmuch as this rationed product is not an ingredient of the batter, nor is it necessary for serving with these cake or scone substitutes. Those who are shy of butter will want to try these tested recipes.

Sweet Milk Doughnuts

2 tbsps. shortening, 1 cup of sugar, 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, 3 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, ½ tsp. nutmeg, ½ tsp. lemon extract, flour.

Beat the eggs till very light, add the sugar and when foamy add the melted shortening. Sift the baking powder, salt and nutmeg with one cup of flour and stir into first mixture, alternating with the milk. Add the lemon flavoring and just enough flour to make a soft dough which can be handled. Roll out three-fourths inch thick on a lightly-floured board. A soft dough makes light and tender doughnuts when cooked. Fry in deep fat (360 deg.-370 deg.) and drain on unglazed paper.

Apple Fritters

1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. sugar, salt, 2 cups flour, 1 tbsp. baking powder, apples.

To the milk add the well-beaten egg-yolks, and the sugar, then the flour mixed and sifted with the baking powder and the salt. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Add sliced sour apples, being careful to get the batter all over them. Drop by spoonfuls into deep fat (360 deg.-370 deg.) and fry two to three minutes. Serve with powdered sugar or foamy sauce.

Banana Fritters

6 bananas, 2 tbsps. sugar, 3 tbsps. orange juice, fritter batter.

Peel bananas, cut each in two and split each half. Place the pieces in a bowl with sugar and orange juice and let them stand for one hour. Drain the fruit, dip in batter and fry in deep fat (360 deg.-370 deg.) from two to three minutes. Serve with powdered sugar or foamy sauce.

Cruillers

¼ cup shortening, 1 cup of sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 3½ tsps. baking powder, ¼ tsp. grated nutmeg, ½ tsp. salt, flour.

Cream the shortening. Add the sugar; then the well-beaten eggs. Sift the baking power, nutmeg and salt with one cup of flour and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Add additional flour to make a dough stiff enough to handle. Toss on floured board, roll one-half inch thick and cut into strips. Twist and fry in deep fat (360 deg.-370 deg.). Drain on unglazed paper and when cold roll in powdered sugar. This recipe makes about three dozen crullers.

TAKE A TIP

To Shape and Fry Doughnuts—Put one-third mixture on floured board, knead slightly, pat and roll out ¼ inch thick. Shape with a doughnut cutter, fry in deep fat, take up on skewer, and drain on brown paper. Add trimmings to half remaining mixture, roll, shape, and fry as before; repeat. Doughnuts should come quickly to top of fat, brown on one side, then be turned to brown on other. Avoid turning more than once (except sour milk doughnuts). The fat must be kept at a uniform temperature (370 deg.). If too cold, doughnuts will absorb fat. If too hot, doughnuts will brown before sufficiently risen.

To Sugar—Cool doughnuts and roll in powdered sugar or put sugar in paper bag, add doughnuts, 2 or 3 at a time, and shake until well coated.

S. S. No. 10 met at the home of Eric Casselman last Monday night with Mrs. Erwin Merkley, convenor. 19 members were present.

The present series of broadcasts is on "Rural Education". By the trend of the discussion the point is rather clearly demonstrated that the average member of a school section knows very little about the school and in some cases cares less. Yet it is in these schools that the children spend approximately 7 hours a day (including the noon hour) during the teaching days for, on the average 8 years. Ideals, habits and friendships are formed during this period, which, detrimental or otherwise is difficult to change in after years. It is therefore the duty of each parent in the section to strive to have their school as well equipped both for learning and sports, as efficiently managed and the surroundings as cheerful and bright as is humanly possible.

One important change, which is gradually spreading over rural sections, is the larger unit of administration. Very unfortunately, many trustees and section members are under the illusion that this larger unit of administration is the first step to consolidation. This is absolutely wrong. The larger unit of administration, which should include 5 or 6 school sections, tends to equalize and raise the standard of the schools in the unit. Nothing is more unfair than the condition which now exists. A child may have the misfortune to be born in a poor school section—or in a section whose trustees are far from being progressive in their educational duties. As a result the school is often run down and drab, poorly equipped and on account of the low salary paid is usually staffed by a teacher of uncertain qualifications. A larger unit of administration is bound to do away with this discrimination and tends to provide each Canadian rural child a more equal chance for a decent primary education in pleasant surroundings. The recent action of the Provincial government in absorbing more of the cost of education is another advanced step toward an equal standard of education and the children of today should receive untold benefits, that is if the numerous trustees throughout the province make use of the possibilities of the government's action.

Next week is collection week. As reported over the radio some forums don't pay up very well—20 members sent in 80 cents. S.S. No. 10 pay up well. Collection usually amounts to around $5.00 and the members don't stay away on collection night. The meeting is at the home of Oscar Foster and "Big Barney" Masterson will be the convenor.

Junior Federation Agriculture

At the short course on Rural Co-operation and Leadership held at Queen's, Dundas was the best represented county in Ontario. Out of eighty-three students, eighteen were from Dundas. These young people were sent by grants from the following organizations: Holstein Breeders' Club, Williamsburg; Township Council, Chesterville Concentrated Milk, District Farm Forums and Brockville Concentrated milk.

The course which lasted five days consisted of lectures given by farm organization leaders and university professors. Principal Wallace who spoke on Leadership summed his speech up with this sentence: "It is better to fail in something which will ultimately succeed than to succeed in something which will ultimately fail."

Mr. A. B. MacDonald, National Organizer of Co-operative Unions of Canada spoke three times. Other speakers were Mr. A. C. Savage, Director of Ontario Credit Unions; M. Leonard Harman, United Farmers' Co-operative Company; Mr. S. L. Joss, Ontario Cheese Producers' Association; and Mr. Joseph Galway United Farmers' Co-operative.

In charge of the course was Mr. Wesley Neelands who is well known to Ontario Rural Farm Forum listeners. He spoke briefly on the rapid growth of the Farm Forum. Speakers from Eastern Ontario were Mr. F. L. Barrett, Inspector of Public Schools in Stormont; and Mr. Erwin Anderson, Manager of Oxford-on-the-Rideau Co-operative at Kemptville.

The large representation at this course was partially the result of the recent organization of a Junior Federation of Agriculture in this county. Let us hope that our other Eastern Ontario Counties can be as well represented at next years' course. It is only through trained leadership that farm organizations and commodity groups can in the post war period do for this Canada of ours service that can be matched by no other group of people.
