Accounts to the amount of $923.-25 were passed.

The council then adjourned.

MRS. J. ARMSTRONG

A brilliant, yet unassuming life, well spent in the discharge of the duties of a loving and devoted mother and grandmother, passed to its eternal reward on Monday Jan. 9th, in the person of Mrs. Catherine Ann Armstrong.

Deceased, one of Morrisburg's oldest and most highly esteemed residents, was born in Russell on Feb. 19th, 1852, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mattice. For sixty years she has resided in Morrisburg, being united in marriage in 1875 to Capt. John Armstrong, who predeceased her seven years ago. To them were born one daughter, who died in infancy, and one son, Harry A. Armstrong, who died in 1927. She is survived by three granddaughters, Miss Edith Armstrong, with whom she resided, Mrs. C.F. Luke and Mrs. G.C. Steen of Toronto; three sisters, Mrs. Robert Simpson, Ottawa, Mrs. B. Foster, Montreal and Mrs. J. Crisp, Niagara Falls, Ont.; two brothers, Wm.and Langford Mattice, both of Iroquois.

The funeral service was conducted at her late residence on Wednesday at 2 p.m., by Rev. Dr. MacRae. Interment was made in the family plot in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Capt. L. Mallan; Messrs J.H. Meikle, J.P. Gormley, Walter Becksted, Thos. Coligan and J.W. Weston.

Among those from out-of-town attending the funeral were: Mrs. Piercy, Ogdensburg, N.Y.; Mrs. McLeod, Finch; Mr Harold McDonald, Cardinal; Mr. Dan McDougall and Miss Kate McDougall, Inkerman; Messrs Wm. and Langford Mattice, Iroquois.

Beautiful floral tributes received included the following:— Sprays: Miss Edith Armstrong; Mrs. Purvis and daughters; Mrs. Simpson, Ottawa; Mr. H. MacDonald, Cardinal; Mrs. Sherman, Bill and John; Mrs. Hepburn, Toronto; Mrs. Sol Casselman and Pauline, Mrs. Geo. Carter and Miss MacKenzie; Geo. McIntyre and Family; Marion and Ray Coligan.

Messages of condolence were received as follows: From the Lutheran Church Choir, Mrs. Willis Salmon, Miss Grace Merkley, Mrs. J.C. Fetterly, town; Mr. and Mrs. Crisp, Niagara, Ont., Miss Elda Randalls, Ogdensburg.

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL EVENT

Mr. and Mrs. B.L. Carr opened their popular and attractive tourist home, "The Ship's Mate," to the members of the Women's Missionary Society of Morrisburg United Church who served a delicious "New Years' Tea" on Thursday Jan. 5th. The Christmas decorations added to the beauty of this well known home, and the W.M.S. had free access not only to the home, but to the spacious dining room with all its furnishings. The weather being ideal, the event was pronounced a decided success.

Misses E. Mellan and F. Park attended the door, and the guests were received at the entrance to the reception room by Mrs. Reddick, Mrs. MacRae and Miss Farlinger, while Mrs. Carr was an ideal hostess in her own inimitable way. After a social chat, the guests were invited to the dining room by Misses J. Smith and E. Broder. The dining room hostess, Mrs. Merrill, graciously received them and escorted them to the attractive tables, while Mesdames Martin, McIntosh, Broder, Timmins and Robertson served.

There were several other committees "behind the screens" who by their efforts made the afternoon a decided success and to them the credit belongs.

Several active members of the Society were prevented from attending, through illness, but sent in liberal contributions, among them being: Mrs. J.G. Challies, Mrs. F. Woodlands, Mrs. J.H. Wiggins, Mrs. F.H. Meikle and Mrs. E. MacLean. An old friend and worker, Mrs. I. Hilliard, remembered the event by a liberal donation.

Guests were present from the various churches in town, also from Williamsburg and Winchester, among them being Mrs. Carr's mother, Mrs. A. Sweet, also the Presbyterial President, Mrs. Geo. Earl, Winchester.

About 6 p.m. the guests formed a circle around Mr. and Mrs. Carr, while Miss Farlinger expressed the thanks of the Society, and the president, Mrs. Reddick, presented Mrs. Carr with a life membership certificate, from the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church. Mr. and Mrs. Carr graciously replied and the audience sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The proceeds were very gratifying and the members feel greatly encouraged.

ARTHUR FLYNN Morrisburg, Ont.

And so one again, Lonies, we enter upon a New Year with our hopes high and our resolutions made and every determination that this shall be a real successful year of progress.

The result will, of course, depend entirely on ourselves and on our actions during the next twelve months, and when next December comes around if we stick by our ideals and plans through thick and thin, good progress will assuredly be shown.

And so "Lone E.", together with the staff of the Lone Sout Department, sends Best Wishes for a Happy and Successful New Year to every Lone Scout and we hope that each one of you will at this time renew your Scout Promise and resolve to follow the Scout Law more closely than ever before.

What Have We Done in 1932?

Each one of you can well spend a few minutes to look back over the old year and review your experiences during that time.

What have you done? Did you make all the progress at school that you intended? If you are working, did you get that better job, or save all the money that you had hoped to?

How about your Scouting? Are you still a Tenderfoot or Second Class Scout as you were a year ago, or have you advanced a step? Did you earn any Proficiency Badges? Did you enter any competitions or write any letters to your Scoutmaster? Did you do anything in the Toy Shop Scheme last Xmas?

In other words, are you just a Lone Scout by name and nothing else, or are you a really live and keen Scout who is an asset and of some use to his Troop? Ask yourself—Just what good are you to yourself, to the community that you live in, and to your Lone Scout Troop?

We hope that the review of the past year will show that you have really been of use and that you have been living up to your Scout obligations.

Has the Lone Scout Department Progressed?

On looking back over 1932 we find that we have passed through a very difficult time. Lone Scouting is primarily for the country boy and therefore, with money so scarce in the rural districts, recruiting has fallen off somewhat.

For the same reason quite a number of boys have been unable to renew their registration when it came due, but as far as we have been able, when they have confided the difficulty to us, we have permitted them to retain their membership in the Lone Scout Department.

Our actual numbers are just a little greater now than at the same time in 1932, but we have actually transferred 68 Lonies to Regular Scout Troops during 1932, so that we have shown good progress numerically.

In July, 1932, we again successfully held a Lone Scout Camp at Ebor Park, near Brantford, when Lonies from all over the province attended and had a good time. This camp was not held in 1931, so we made a step forward in being able to renew it.

"On Lone Scout Trails" has been overhauled and brought up to date with several new and popular features which have provoked much greater interest, and this paper is now a very successful feature of our work, eagerly looked forward to by Lone Scouts all over Ontario.

We are fortunate in having a large number of keen and hard working Patrol Leaders in the lead of the many Lone Patrols throughout the province, and we certainly appreciate the good work they are doing in their communities. It is Scouts such as these that make our efforts worth while.

Thus we find that, on the whole, Lone Scouting in Ontario has progressed during the past year, and we are glad that it is so.

And What of 1933?

Well, there is always room for improvement, and it will not harm any of us to make a New Year Resolution to show keener interest in our Scouting, irrespective of what anyone else may do.

So once again, Brother Scouts — A Happy and Progressive New Year to you and we hope you will co-operate with us as we want and will co-operate with you.—"Lone E."

Hard Work is a Sweet Bride, Says Sir James Barrie

One can always depend upon Sir James Barrie for the fresh and refreshing point of view. He has a happy genius for taking old subjects and dressing them up in attractive clothes. Advice coming from most people is an unwanted commodity, but the author of "Thrums" can make his readers cry for it. "The Ladies and Literature" was the subject of an address which he recently delivered at the Authors' Club in London.

In his opening sentences he declared that he was not going to talk about ladies or literature, or love, as his audience had no doubt expected. Instead of that, he was going to make a will, and those present were to be his sole beneficiary legatees. He left to the Author's Club the most precious possession that was ever his—his joy in hard work.

He continued: "I was an idler at school, and read all the wrong books at college, but I fell in love with hard work one fine May morning, and I continued to woo her through a big chunk of a half a century. She is not at all heavy-jowled and weary. She is young and gay and lively I found her waiting for me at a London station. She marched with me all the way to Bloomsbury, and on the way we bought a penny bottle of ink to sling at the metropolis, and a silk hat with which to impress editors. Hard work, more than any woman in the world, is the one who stands up best for her man. I have lost her now, but younger people who want to look for her will find that she is willing to be theirs. She is the prettiest thing in literature, and when you and she think that you have been working pretty well, and you spend an evening having a blow out, you will think how splendid she looks in her crepe de chine. But she looked even prettier in her rags."

In conclusion the speaker bequeathed to the company "everything connected with science and machinery." Referring to the United States he said: "May our two countries, as so often in the past, go on giving to each other, they to us and we to them, the three best things either of us has—our love, and our ladies, and our literature."—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Scientist Describes New Vital Life Rays

Tlantic City, N.J.—Claim that he has discovered vital "life" rays in radiations beyond the shortest visible rays of light was made by Diminitry Borodin, of New York, before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

These invisible rays, he says, are responsible for the "mutations" of heredity, the changes which cause every person to be different in some details of appearance and character from every other person on earth.

These "mutations" are caused by alternations in "genes" the determiners of hereditary characters for all men, animals, and plants. The rays he said are generated by all living bodies and hence reach and change the genes. The rays range from 2800 Angstrom units down to 1800, which means that they are very short wave forms of ultra violet "light."

The existence of such rays has been studied by scientists for some time. What Dr. Borodin claims to have discovered is how they affect life at its beginnings. He detected these activities by use of spectroscope.

Sunday School Lesson

January 15. Lesson III—Jesus at Work—Mark 1. 21-35. Golden Text My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.—John 5: 17.

ANALYSIS

I. THE MASTER OF MIND, Mark 1:21-28.

II. THE MASTER OF BODY, Mark 1: 29-34.

III. THE SECRET OF POWER, Mark 1:35.

INTRODUCTION — Today's passage does two things: (a) It gives a picture of a typical day in Jesus' life at this time. A Sabbath day is chosen The rapid succession of incidents emphasizes the ceaseless activity and the strain under which the Master was laboring all the time. (b) It stresses that consciousness of power and the authority which characterized Jesus ever since his baptism at Jordan and his conflict in the wilderness. In every case he is the masterful personality who is more than equal for every situation.

I. THE MASTER OF MIND, Mark 1:21-28.

On the Sabbath Jesus, as His custom was, went to church. The service, as usual, was in charge of the local elder. Seeing Jesus in the congregation, and evidently knowing him as one likely to have something worthwhile to say, , he asked Him to speak. Rather short notice! The effect of Jesus' address was electric. The people had never heard anything like it. It was so different from the preaching of the scribes, the professional interpreters of the Law of Moses. When a scribe made a statement he supported it by referring to some great teacher of the past. Jesus deliberately cast aside all this reference to tradition. "Ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time . . . but I say unto you." Jesus' authority was "I." No wonder the people were astonished!

One man there that day was particularly affected, v. 24. He was demon-possessed. A modern diagnosis would probably ascribe the symptoms to hysteria, epilepsy, or some form of mental derangement. Evidently this man was usually normal, or he would not have been allowed in to the service. The excitement, however, aroused him to an outburst. With uncanny insight he recognized a greatness in the preacher which the others failed to see, v. 24. Jesus addressed Himself to the supposed evil spirit—the natural procedure, whether one agreed with the man's obsession or not. With one final convulsion the man was himself again. It was the Master Mind, itself the free channel for the outlaw of the divine Spirit bringing peace and order out of trouble and chaos.

Verse 27 expresses the astonishment of the people because Jesus did not invoke the name of some other spirit which the man's demon would obey. This was the usual method. Jesus looked for no other name. He had within Himself the power to heal and to soothe.

II. THE MASTER OF BODY, Mark 1: 29-34.

After the synagogue service, Jesus, with some of His disciples, went to the home of Simon and Andrew. He was not yet recognized as a healer of bodily disease, but since the senior woman was the real head of the house, her illness was mentioned by way of explaining her absence. Mark vividly records Jesus' response, "He came, took her by the hand, raised her up." At once the fever left her, and she busied herself with those duties which her illness had made for the time impossible. Convalescence from fever is usually very slow. But so great was the strength that Jesus was able to arouse that this woman went immediately to her work. Once more the God-filled spirit of Jesus proved to be the master.

The news about the healed demoniac and Simon's mother-in-law spread like wildfire throughout the city. To this new healer the sick were hurried in crowds—at sunset, when the Sabbath was past. It was considered a sin to carry a dead body through the streets on the Sabbath, but permissible to carry a living person on a litter. Nevertheless it is probable that the people assumed that Jesus would be reluctant to heal on the Sabbath, or they themselves would consider it wrong. Therefore after sunset (v. 32) they brought their sick folk. With them came also the "demon-possessed." Mark's theory is that the demons, being supernatural, knew who and what Jesus really was.

Jesus always insisted on silence regarding the cures, v. 34. We can well believe that He shrank from the publicity which His healing ministry brought Him. He must have been always torn between the claims of His pity on the one hand, and His desire to avoid the reputation of a wizard on the other.

III. THE SECRET OF POWER, Mark 1:35.

It does not help us any, either in our understanding of Jesus, or in our own efforts to live like Him, to be told that He was able to do all that He did simply because of His divinity. If he could tap resources which are closed to us, then His oft-repeated appeal to follow Him becomes meaningless and mocking words. Conventional Christianity is always tempted to place Jesus where it is easy to adore Him, but impossible to emulate Him.

Verse 35 indicates the secret of Jesus' power. It was prayer, a secret discoverable by us, too. When Jesus was alone, He was always praying. Worn out by the exhausting events of the day, He was conscious of the need of spiritual recovery. Hence, when His tired disciples were asleep, He stole away to some solitary place to be alone with His Father. For example, see Luke 6: 12. Intimate and frequent communion with His Father Jesus regarded as the secret of spiritual effectiveness. "Why could not we cast Him out?" asked the perplexed and unsuccessful disciples, Matt. 17: 19. They had "followed the directions," but nothing had happened. This was Jesus' explanation: "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting."

Jesus, with no organization or material equipment such as we possess today, brought healing to mind and body, and gave men a new spirit. To His disciples he said, "Greater works than these shall he do . . . John 14: 12. He would never have said so if He had not meant it. When we, with His spirit, begin really to draw on our spiritual resources, our results will be "amazing," too.

P. R.—I am interested in growing a crop of flue tobaco on land that is regarded to be good tobacco land. It has been used for general mixed farming with alfalfa and sweet clover in the rotation. How long will it take to get the nitrogen out of the soil that has been accumulated by these crops so as not to give too heavy a growth to the tobacco plants? What analysis of fertilizers would you recommend and at what rate per acre? Would it be of much benefit to have my soil analysed?

Answer.—It would be impossible to give a definite answer regarding the period required for nitrogen exhaustion in the soil that you mention. This might be judged by the growth of the legumes and other crops that followed in rotation if you an get any record of this.

It would be of distinct advantage for you to send samples of this surface 8 in. soil and the next 12 in. to our laboratory. We will find the amount of nitrogen in the soil, the organic matter, the easily soluble phosphorus and the soil reaction. This will enable us to render you much more definite advice. Take about one pound sample of the soil at a depth of about 3 to 6 inches, and another sample at a depth of about 8 to 10 inches. If your field is fairly uniform get a number of top soil samples and mix them, sending us a quart of the mixture. Do likewise with the subsoils.

The standing committee of tobacco fertilizers last spring recommended 600 to 700 lbs. per acre of 4-12-8, or 900 to 1000 lbs. per acre of 3-8-6. This fertilizer is best applied with a drill on either side of the row.

G. W.—Just how does sulphate of potash act on the tobacco plant and what is the relationship between sulphate and muriate? How much sulphate of potash would there be in a 3-10-5 fertilizer for flue tobacco?

Answer.—Actual experiments and measurements show that sulphate of potash as a source of potash in a flue tobacco fertilizer produes a leaf which will burn with a clear whitish ash. When muriate of potash is used the ash is a darker colour and the burn of the tobacco is not nearly so good. In other words the tobaco will continue to go out when ignited. Save the Lambs

This disease is caused by a germ entering the circulation of the lamb at the time of birth or soon after, by way of the raw navel cord. The lamb born in an unclean pen lies down, bringing the raw stump of the cord into contact with the germ-laden floor. The navel cord enlarges and if squeezed exudes a purulent fluid, it does not dry as quickly as normal, but remains large, soft and raw. The lamb lies around, does not suck, becomes dull, gets stiff and the joints swell. Prevent this joint ill disease by giving the ewe a clean, well disinfected, freshly bedded pen in which to lamb. Wash her teats and udder and remove any wool tags likely to be in the way. When the lamb is born saturate the stump of the navel cord with a ten per cent. carbolic solution or other equally strong disinfectant. Repeat this daily until the cord dries up. Pregnant ewes should be getting iodine in salt.

A Winter Sunset

There seems no wind in all the land,
Austere against the foding light
I see a lonely cypress stand,
As carved from steel and malachite.

Beyond, a single sea-bird flies
To gain its far and craggy home
Below the lemon-colored skies—
An ocean-islet ringed with foam.

In all the land there sems no stir
Save that of pinions westward flown.
Glad weather, fellow-traveler!
Tonight I also fare alone.

—George Sterling, in "The Breakers and Other Poems."

Buenos Ayres Omits Lights

Buenos Ayres, Argentina.—The traditional New Year's carnival lights here, which usually shine along the two miles of the Avenida de Mayo on New Year's Eve, were omitted this year so the city could save $20,000. The police also frowned upon the customary fireworks, but Buenos Ayres welcomed the New Year with crowds in the streets. The night was sweltering, the temperature 99 degrees.

Silver Eyelashes a Paris Fad

Silver eyelashes and "marble" finger nails are the prevailing fad in Paris. Velvet is the material of the moment for party gowns. Turquoise velvet is the new hoice for blondes; ruby, with an ermine wrap, for brunettes. White crepe dresses have colored sleeves or sashes.

The world's great men have not commonly been great scholars, nor its great scholars great men. — Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Victoria Put Ban on Skyscrapers

While it has always been understood among building experts that the London's bed clay would not stand the building of skyscrapers in American fashion, Maurice E. Webb, the architect, addressing the Royal Society of Arts recently, pointed out another and little known reason. It was that Queen Victoria herself was responsible for the fact that no London building can at present be built higher than eighty feet to the top of the parapet, with two storeys in the roof in addition. One day the Queen was looking out of her window at Buckingham Palace when she saw that white-glazed brick structure, Queen Anne's Mansions. This building, still one of London's highest, towered above Westminster's smaller dwellings. The Queen there and then insisted on a height limit being included in the building act.

Stream Flow in the West

Ottawa, Canada.—In southern Alberta, following average to above average run-off in May and June, stream flow has been continuously below normal, averaging only from 60 to 70 per cent. of the average monthly flows from July to October, inclusive, according to records of the Dominion Water Power and Hydrometric Bureau of the Department of the Interior. In southern Saskatchewan the run-off has been even less and the summer flow, from May to October, inclusive, has had a monthly average only 35 to 55 per cent. of normal.

[illegible]ressmaking Lesson Furnished With Every Pattern

Here's a cute model for tiny maids of 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. It has all the car marks of French chic. Yet is as simple and smart and is practical as any tiny girl would wish for.

A French blue linen made the original.

It is as simple as falling off a log to make it!

Then again in navy blue wool challis with white pin dots and vivid red contrasting, it's adorable.

HOW TO ORDER PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 15c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Wilson Pattern Service, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto.

The Holly

(Green groweth the holly; so doth the ivy. Though winter blasts blow never so high. Green groweth the holly.)

As the holly groweth green,
And never changeth hue,
So I am, ever hath been
Unto my lady true;

As the holly groweth green
With ivy all alone
When flowers cannot be seen
And green wood leaves be gone.

Now unto my lady
Promise to her I make
From all other only
To her I me betake.

Arieu, mine own lady,
Arieu, my special,
Who hath my heart truly,
Be sure, and ever shall!

—King Henry VIII., From The Oxford Book of Sixteenth Century Verse, chosen by E. K. Chambers (Oxford University Press).

French Court Upholds Noisy Critic of Film

Paris.—Spectators at public entertainments and at theatres have a legal right to demonstrate their disapproval by whistling and shouting, according to judgment just rendered by the Civil Tribunal of St. Etienne, near Lyons.

The case as one of a spectator who, having loudly protested against the quality of a motion picture performance, was refused admission to another show by the proprietor of the cinema on the grounds that his behavior interfered with the performances.

The judgment of the French tribunal states that "the act of criticizing the poor organization of an entertainment, even when done noisily, can be construed as the legal exercise of right to criticize, and the manifestation of dissatisfaction cannot serve as a pretext by the director of a theatre for refusing to admit a spectator." The cinema proprietor was sentenced to pay 100 francs damages.

RUNS UPSTAIRS AT 92

Daughter's Pride in Active Father

"I feel in duty bound," writes Mrs. A. J. W., "to express my gratitude for the marvellous results my father has obtained from Kruschen Salts. They should really be called 'Miracles." He is ninety-two years old, and is as fit as a fiddle. He can nip about, and run up and down stairs. His friends marvel why it is he is always alert, and never feels slack. He always tells them the reason, 'my regular daily dose of Kruschen Salts every morning.' We always recommend Kruschen Salts to all our friends. To my idea no family should be without it." —(Mrs.) A. J. W.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need for internal cleanliness. Eventually they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then they start getting rid every day of all waste matter from the system. New, healthy blood goes coursing through the veins. And almost immediately they feel their youth has returned; they feel young, energetic and happy. In a word, they've got that famous "Kruschen Feeling."

Gt. Britain's Royal Family

Children of King George Form Loyal Group Amid Artificiality

By P. W. WILSON, in the N.Y. Times Magazine.

For the House of Windsor, as for the rest of the world, time asses quickly. It is ten years since Princess Mary was married to Viscount Lascelles, now Earl of Harewood. Nine years have elapsed since the chimes of Westminster Abbey were rung for the Duke of York and his bride, Mary Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon. The matchmakers are much excited, therefore, over the pretty young Princess Irgrid of Sweden, who has visited London.

His Majesty King George V. has to face a fact unusual in royal families. He has five surviving children. All but one have passed the age of 30. Yet only two are married, and one of these is the Princess Mary. Of the four sons, three are bachelors.

It was hoped against hope that the Prince of Wales, now approaching the forties, might find his second cousin a long-sought Queen to share his prospects of the throne. The Prince, however, continues to be satisfied with the privilege of attending weddings as best man

Mary knew her business and would allow nothing and nobody to interfere with the normal life of her home. She insisted that her sons, though Princes, must be boys like other boys; that her daughter, though a Princess, must be a girl among girls.

There, in York Cottage at Sandringham, the family lived as a family, in a modest house and without ostentation. For years the future Queen was never seen at all by the crowds of London. She was otherwise occupied.

The children dug in their gardens, they played cricket, they were taken by their mother to visit places like the Tower of London; they were taught by their tutors, they said their prayers, they attended church, they learned the catechism, and they were familiarized with the Bible.

Above all, they were made to realize their relation to the community. From time to time toys were shared with the poor, and at birthdays and Christmas all cakes, after due enjoyment, were cut up and distributed. In the minds of those children the dynasty was established on a firm foundation of duty to the nation.

* * *

Billions of words have been written of the humor, the gayety, the tact, the persistence, the courage, the patriotism and the obstinacy of the Prince of Wales, who to this day has never failed to be prolific in paragraphs. What if they did assign two huge detectives to dog the infant footsteps of the Prince? He had himself photographed between them and entitled the picture, "My Nurses." What if the cadets at Dartmouth called him "Sardine"? He replied to them on the banjo.

"I do not mind being killed in France," said he to Lord Kitchener; "I have plenty of brothers to carry on." To which the Field Marshal retorted grimly: "I do not mind you being killed, but I cannot allow you to be taken prisoner." And to Lord Haig the whereabouts of "the boy" day by day became an obsession.

Not for an instant does the Prince seem to be at a loss. The Mayor of a loyal borough forgot his part and stammered, "We welcome your Royal Highness not only—not only—" There was an unearthly silence. "Not only," continued the Prince calmly, "for the sake of the ancient throne which you represent, but also for your own sake" —and the Mayor was saved from suicide.

The illness of the King and the economic crisis, taken together, have changed the Prince of Wales, both in mind and in appearance. He talks no longer of throwing up the whole business unless he is allowed to live his own life, but appears on the platform, serious and determined, as he urges the nation to "buy British."

Educated like the Prince of Wales at the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth, the Duke of York—nervous on the platform—has had to overcome a shy temperament and indifferent health. People forget that, as a sub-Lieutenant, he was on active service during the Battle of Jutland, and, later, was promoted to be wing commander in France; nor is it remembered that he is a student of economics and a frequent visitor to industrial plants, where his particular interest is what has come to be called welfare.

The Duke of York was the first prince of the blood to examine in person the headquarters of a trade union, and every year he attends a camp where boys of humble birth are brought into personal contact with the aristocrats of Eton and the other great schools.

Twice he proposed to his future Duchess and twice he was refused. It was Queen Mary who told him that faint heart never won fair lady and urged him to try his luck for a third and—as she insisted—a last time. Faced by this ultimatum, the little Scottish lady accepted him. In the Abbey, so pleased were they with each other after the benediction, that they almost forgot a detail. Just in time, the Duke swept his Duchess to the right turn and, facing the King and Queen, she dropped the most important curtsey of her dazzling career.

Prince Henry, Duke of Gloucester, was educated at Eton and the Military Academy at Sandhurst. In debonair manner, he is the official alter ego of the Prince of Wales, whose travels, including a fall from a horse, he has shared. For the Prince, he frequently acts as deputy. But his schedule of engagements is less crowded.

Prince George, in whom, at the moment, mankind takes an especial interest, was trained at Dartmouth for the navy and, like his father, he spent many years with the fleet. As a lieutenant, stationed in the Far East, he has chased Chinese up the Yangtse River, and if today he is drafted into the Foreign Service, in Whitehall, it is for reasons of health.

The suggested wedding can hardly be said to affect the succession. The throne today would pass thus: (1) Prince of Wales; (2) Duke of York; (3) Princess Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the Duke of York; (4) Princess Margaret Rose, second daughter of the Duke of York; (5) Duke of Gloucester, and (6) Prince George. Also, if there were further children born to the Duke of York, or if the Duke of Gloucester married and had children, all of these heirs would precede Prince George and his children. On the other hand, Prince George and his family would precede Princess Mary and her two boys, the Lascelles, now at Eton.

With every year that passes, the Princess Elizabeth of York—known as Lilibet—who has celebrated her sixth birthday, draws the greater crowd. The people are as eager to see her as they are to see the King and Queen themselves. And for a simple reason. Daily she becomes more important. She can only be deprived of the succession by a younger brother if, in due course, he should arrive. Her sister, Margaret Rose, born amid a tempest in the historic stronghold of Glamis Castle, is only second to Elizabeth in her nearness to the throne.

This royal family, founded afresh on a human basis, depending for the first time on purely human values, and regarding pageantry and privilege and pedigree as factors subordinate to the normalcies which are common to all families, is thus considering one more event in its age-long annals. Ten years — twenty years — thirty years hence, how will the new method of sovereignty have stood the test of time?

Binks: "You told Jones you lent me five pounds. Why didn't you keep it to yourself?"

Jinks: "I wish I had—I need it."

Modesty is becoming to every one; but we must know how to overcome it without ever losing it.—H. Attwell.

France to Mint Silver Money

The French Government has decided to ask Parliament to authorize the minting of more silver money, particularly five-franc silver pieces, before the stabilization law of 1928 can be safely put into operation and the millions of dirty paper notes drawn from circulation and boiled down.

A project for the minting of the small denomination will be placed before Parliament soon. The Government has declared, however, that in the minting of these coins it will not be necessary to buy more silver.

SILVER ON HAND.

The mint has on hand a quantity of silver obtained from the melting of pieces withdrawn from circulation, particularly the Napoleon pieces of the Third Empire. There also is a quantity of silver left over from the Poincare purchases in 1926, so that it may be five or more years before France will buy any silver.

Under the 1928 law, the Bank of France notes of five, 10 and 20 francs must be retired by the end of 1932. They must be replaced by silver coins of 10 and 20 franc denomination, for the 1928 law overlooked entirely the five-franc pieces.

LOW VALUE OF FRANC.

Chamber of Commerce have protested for the five-franc piece corresponds to 20 cents and is the most needed single piece of French money. That is behind the Government's decision to start stamping out the coins which, in view of the low value of the franc, must be small in size. The 20-franc notes have entirely disappeared from circulation, but there still are three million francs worth of five and ten-franc notes in French pocketbooks.

"Keep Your Eyes Cool" Advice of Doctor

Long, continued use of the eyes should be avoided by a rest at intervals, if only for a few minutes, bathing them then with ordinary cold water from the faucet.

Dr. Sol Rosenblatt explains in "Eye Hygiene and Heat," an article contributed by him to "Hygeia" (Chicago), that it is the heat generated over a long period by excessive use of the eyes that causes them to become tired. He says:

Heat affects the eyes in numerous ways. The heat generated by excessive use of the eyes over long hours, added to the ordinary body heat; of fever repeated over a period of years; the heat of brilliant sunlight or too intense artificial light, and the heat of furnaces over a period of time are detrimental to the function of the eyes.

Nature provides a safeguard in a manner somewhat similar to that of the water-cooled motor. Transparent fluids are circulated within the eye, and the anterior surface of the eye is bathed with fluid coming down from the tear-gland above the eye. The peculiar special function of the eye requires transparency, and excessive heat destroys that quality; the loss of transparency is fatal to the function of that special organ, even though its form and strength are fully regained.

Cock O' The North

The new choice is appropriate, for "Cock o' the North" is a Gordon air. For centuries the Gordon family, from which the regiment derives its name, were more powerful than the Crown in their own part of Scotland, and when a head of the house of Gordon said he was "cock o' the North" it was no idle boast.

Then the air is associated with one of the big moments in the history of the regiment, when Piper Findlater, wounded and unable to walk, sat calmly down amid a hail of bullets and played the Gordons up the slopes of Dargai. According to the almost universally accepted story, it was "Cock o' the North" he played. He was awarded the V.C.

Bagpipes, by the way, are now in demand on the Continent. They are not exclusively Scottish, and some authorities claim that they were originally imported from England. It is certainly true that the accounts of James IV. of Scotland included a payment for "Inglis pypers."—London Answers.

We never know through what divine mysteries of compensation the great Father of the universe may be carrying out His sublime plan; and those three words "God is love," ought to contain to every doubting soul the solution of all things.—D. M. Mulock.

It was her first day on the farm, and the farmer told her to go out and collect as many eggs as she could find.

After some time she returned empty-handed.

"Haven't you got any eggs?" inquired the farmer.

"No," she replied, calmly, "but I saw dozens of hens loafing about."

Mrs. Frazzle (gushingly): "D'you know, Mr. Grimleigh, I'm often mistaken for my daughter."

Mr. Grimleigh (gallantly): "By jove! Fancy you having a daughter as old-looking as you are."

Diversified Farming In the Okanagan

Great development of mixed farming in the Okanagan Valley, British Columbia, has resulted from the growth of several minor agricultural industries. In a series of articles by Margaret A. Ormsby, appearing in the Vancouver Sunday Province, the writer states that these minor forms of agricultural production are of increasing importance year by year, and that they are the facts which will determine whether mixed farming will supersede fruit-farming in the next phase of the development of the Okanagan Valley.

One of the most important of the smaller industries is tobacco-growing, which has long been carried on in the valley, but has been developed to a greater extent during the last six years. When fur-traders first visited the Valley early in the nineteenth century, they found Indians smoking tobacco, certain species of which were indigenous to the countr. The early settlers also gathered the native plants and thus obtained a supply of tobbaco for their own use.

It was not, however, until 1894 that experiments were made in growing it on a large scale. Attention is now concentrated on growing the tobacco, and no attempt tis made to manufacture it. It is sold in its natural state to David Spencer Limited, Vancouver. This company is doing onsiderable blending, and has undertaken to specialize in British Columbia tobacco, selling it under its own brand. The success of this undertaking should act as a guage to the production of the commodity.

Cantalope, Tomatoes, Vine-Fruits.

Another form of intensive cultivation is being carried on at Oliver, where cantaloupes were first grown in 1923. The experiment revealed the fact that the Oliver cantaloupe is a very superior product, with a particularly fine flavor. The early ripening season is also of advantage from a marketing point of view.

In 1927, tomato growing was also started, and of late years cucumbers and grapes have been introduced. The tomato industry has been strengthened by the erection of a cannery.

The production of of vine-fruits is growing in importance every year. The area around Oliver has a natural advantage for this purpose, and there is a marked demand for these ommodities in Canada. It is therefore likely that the industry will reach larger proportions in the next few years, and that tree-fruit production will be forced further north.

While sub-tropical fruits are being produced in the southern end of the valley, large amounts of vegetables are being raised on truck-gardens in the northern end. Vegetables have been grown for many years very successfully in the Vernon district.

At the present time, 800 acres of land at Vernon are used for truck-farming. The vegetables include tomatoes, cucumbers, onions, cabbage, potatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, squash and pumpkins. At Armstrong, the truck-gardens produce principally lettuce and celery, and during 1929 nearly 800 tons of the latter commodity were exported.

"Mr. Murphy," said the chairman of the committee meeting, "it has been suggested that, as treasurer of the sports fund, ye've been mixing the club's money with your own. Have ye anything to say to the allegation?"

"Allegation, is it?" stormed Murphy. "Sure, and I deny the allegation entoirely. And what's more, I defy the alligator!"

Mankind yield to the modest but succumb to the bold; for modesty conciliates and subdues opposition.—Acton.

WALSH FORECASTS SENATE ACTION ON WATERWAY TREATY

Hyde Park, N.Y., Jan. 8—Senate action on the World Court and the new St. Lawrence waterways pact between Canada and the United States at the special session to be called on March 4 was predicted today by Senator Walsh of Montana, after a conference with President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Senate is always called into immediate session by an incoming administration for consideration of the new presidential nominations. Senator Walsh, a ranking member on the foreign relations committee, told newspapermen he believed the two treaties could be taken up and disposed of at that time.

Disposition of the World Court and St. Lawrence proposals in the special session of the new Senate next spring would go a long way in clearing the calendar of unfinished business to be picked up by the President-elect when he takes over office March 4.

Washington, Jan. 10—Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, ardent champion of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, today said, in amplification of his remarks after his conference with President-elect Roosevelt in New York last week, that he expects the treaty to be reported favorably from the Foreign Relations Committee to the floor of the Senate in time for action at the present session.

He would not prophesy action, however, stating that the only opposition to the treaty within the committee is limited to the two Illinois Senators, and that their objections are restricted to the diversion provisions regarding Lake Michigan. Walsh left the inference that the Democrats, excepting Senator Lewis, Illinois, will vote solidly for the treaty.

Meanwhile, information was obtained in sources close to the Canadian legation and the State Department indicating that, with the return of Major W.D. Herridge, Canadian Minister, to Washington yesterday, the exchange of notes between Canada and the United States will go forward immediately to settle the doubts of the New York Power Authority over the diversion of water by the Aluminum Comany of America from the St. Lawrence River at Massena, N.Y. These doubts have been holding up the treaty.

SUBMIT DOCUMENT TO COUNCILS IN STORMONT

A document is being submitted by the Stormont Independent Political Association to each of the four township councils in the County of Stormont with a view of having them endorse a memorial to be presented to the federal government based on the following: depreciation of Canadian currency in terms of gold; expansion of credit; cutting the cost of government and an amendment of the Dominion insurance act to allow internal bonds and debts of governments to be paid with new Dominion notes when they become due independent of and separate from the banks

In the event of failure to comply with the stated requests, the government is asked to complete the present session, pass the necessary supply bill, a redistribution bill and appeal to the electorate at once to have its course of action approved or rejected by the people.

A preamble to the recommendations refers to the difficulties facing primary producers as a result of the low price level and the exchange handicap borne by producers of export goods.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

"That's great, Bill—we'll sure be there"

"I'd give an eye-tooth to go into the city and see that hockey game tomorrow night," Fred said, "but we'd never get seats."

"Why not get Bill on Long Distance?" Hilda suggested. "Perhaps he could get you a seat today."

"By George, I'll try it," Fred agreed. Two minutes later he had Bill on the line. Bill not only could but would and, what's more, he had a seat for Hilda too.

"I did enjoy that game," Hilda said afterwards. "I'm certainly obliged to Bill—and glad we have a telephone."

For 30 cents you can telephone about 100 miles by making an "anyone" call (station-to-station) after 8.30 p.m. See list of rates in front of directory.

LATE LORNE PITT

A large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to one of the highly respected young residents of Shanly, in the person of Lorne Pitt, at his funeral held in the United Church there on Friday afternoon. Rev A.W. Seaton conducted the service, after which the lengthy cortege proceeded to Shanly cemetery, where interment took place.

The deceased was 28 years of age, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pitt. He was a popular young man in his community, and his sudden demise, following an illness of a few hours, has caused widespread regret among a large circle of frineds.

A wealth of floral tributes were received by the bereaved family, manifesting in a material way their deepest sympathy.

Those left to mourn his passing are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pitt; one sister, Mrs. Frederick Levere and two brothers, Ernest and William, all of Shanly.

Ice Box Cookies--new idea

Make the dough in a roll and keep it overnight in the ice box or a cool place . . . next day you can slice it quickly for baking, without extra flour to keep it from sticking.

Try This Purity Cookie Recipe
1 cup butter, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, 3¼ cups Purity Flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, flavoring, 1 cup nuts and raisins, chopped (optional).

A Hint from a Baking Expert
"Purity is a strong, rich flour with great expanding qualities . . . if your cake recipe calls for ordinary pastry flour use 1 tablespoon less per cup of Purity. If milk is called for use half milk and half water (lukewarm), when using Purity Flour, as milk alone tends to make the cake dry."

Of all the Ingredients
in a recipe, Flour is the most important. Buy Purity and be safe. It is unexcelled in quality because it is milled with particular care from selected Western hard wheat . . . a perfect flour for pastry, cakes, buns and bread.

Maintaining
A Long-Established Position
in Canadian Banking

When the Dominion of Canada was established in 1867, the Bank of Montreal, then already half a century old, had nearly a fourth of the total paid-up banking capital of Quebec and Ontario, and more than a fourth of the banking assets of those two provinces.

Today it has the same proportion of the capital and assets of the banking structure of the entire Dominion.

Today, as yesterday, it employs its resources and facilities for the upbuilding of the soundest elements of Canadian business.

Reminiscences

The realm of Laughter is the poorer by the passing on of Wilton Lackaye, noted actor and wit, and one of the shining lights of that famous Temple of Humor—The Lambs' Club, New York. Lackaye was once invited to address an amateur dramatic society. After listening to a two-hours' introduction by the chairman, who would up with: "The guest of honor will now give us his address," Lackaye arose.

"My address is the Lamb's Club," he said.

And that was all.

It was Lackaye who, having lost one of a valuable pair of cuff links, hung up the remaining link on the club bulletin board over this notice: "LOST—The mate to this cuff link. Will buy or sell."

* * *

During the "all star" tour of "Trelawney of the Wells," in which John Drew made his last appearance, Lackaye, a member of the company—which also included Mrs. Whiffen, the "Grand Old Lady of the Stage," then 82 years of age—was button-holed by two young lady reporters at Springfield, Illinois, who asked him to what he attributed the extraordinary success of the company.

* * *

Somewhat floored by the question—chuckles Peggy Wood, the actress, in her little book, "A Splendid Gypsy: John Drew"—Lackaye suggested that they ask Drew.

"We did," they explained. "But he seemed to be in a hurry. Do tell us."

Reluctantly, and after due pause, Lackaye said:

"Well, I'll tell you; it's Mrs. Whiffen's sex appeal."

* * *

A human little story about Queen Victoria, as the young mother of eight children, is told in Hector Bolitho's fascinating biography of the Prince Consort—"Albert the Good." One day, when the royal family was in Scotland, little Prince Leopold was naughty, and the Queen threatened to whip him. The Duchess of Kent—Victoria's mother, who was present, pleaded for her small grandson (as grandmothers will) and said that it made her very sad to hear a child cry.

"Not when you have eight, Mama—that wears off," said the Queen. "You could not go through that each time one of the eight cried!"

* * *

Which recalls the reply given by a mother to a question put to her by a stranger who came across her and her brood of nine children, romping in a field.

"Is it a picnic, or are they your children, ma'am?" he inquired, affably.

They're my children, and it is NO picnic," she replied.

* *

Soon after Tennyson's "Idylls of the King" was published, the Prince Consort wrote to the poet, "apologizing for intruding upon his leisure"—I love that—and asked him to write his name in a copy of the book. Tennyson paid his patron a graceful compliment. He supposed that Prince Albert's appreciation of the poems arose from his seeing in them "unconsciously," an image of himself.

* * *

Mention of Queen Victoria reminds me that Lady Duff Gordon, noted dressmaker, says in her lively and charming reminiscences "Discretions and Indiscretions," that the old Queen loved to have the leaves in her teacup read, and had learnt to read them herself from an old woman who lived near Balmoral. Occasionally the Queen would be persuaded to read the teacups for some members of the royal family, and this was considered a great treat.

* * *

And here's a stolen peep at King Alfonso of Spain and his Queen: Alfonso would often accompany the Queen to a fitting at Lady Duff Gordon's establishment and "took nearly as much interest in it (the fitting) as she did."

"One thing that I always found very charming about that royal couple was their great affection for each other," chats Lady Duff Gordon, "and after many years of marriage King Alfonso was still in love with his wife.

* * *

"He would often slip his arm through hers in the showroom, and one of the saleswomen told me that on one occasion, when the Queen was trying on a dress, King Alfonso impulsively kissed her.

"'You looked so sweet in it I could not help it,' was his answer, when the Queen reproached him for taking all the powder off her nose."

"'I never thought kings were as romantic as that,' was the saleswoman's comment to me afterwards. 'The Queen of Spain is lucky.'"

* * *

Once, when visiting in Washington, Lady Duff Gordon was received by President Roosevelt.

"I'm so pleased to meet you, Lady Duff Gordon," said "Teddy," shaking hands warmly, "I've just been reading your "Memories."

"He talked quickly," she recalls, "asking me questions and never waiting to hear my replies, and did not listen when I tried to explain that the 'Memories' he was talking about were those of my husband's aunt, Lucy, Lary Gordon, who had died in the early 'eighties!"

* * *

Lady Duff Gordon tells an amusing story of how she was unexpectedly called on to speak at an "Economy Dinner" in Pittsburg, during the World War, at which President Hoover, then United States Food Administrator, was the principle speaker. Mr. Hoover's subject was "Economy in Food" and all the other speakers—and there were many—had stressed "Economy" in something or other. She followed Mr. Hoover.

* * *

"I fear I rather scandalized the audience, for instead of the speech they expected ("Economy in Dress in War-Time") I began: 'Ladies and Gentlemen, the first thing I am going to tell you is that I don't believe in economy in dress at any time, and, above all, not in war-time. * * * After all, the men don't want to come back to frumps, do they? And just think how fascinating the French women are. You simply can't afford to neglect your appearance."

As she went back to her seat, she apologized to Mr. Hoover for her unorthodox speech. "He burst out laughing and patted me on the back," she chuckles.

"'Never mind, my dear, you have done very well,' he said.

* * *

By the way, Lady Duff Gordon is a sister of Elinor Glyn, the novelist. Both spent most of their early childhood in Canada, on a big ranch—just outside Guelph, Ontario—owned by their maternal grandparents, although both were born in London, England. And you may not know that Lady Duff Gordon made dressmaking history by staging the first mannequin parade. The first male visitor to a dress parade, she recalls, was Mr. Asquith (later Lord Oxford), who accompanied his wife, Margot Asquith, and "sat calmly through the show, though I do not think he gave much attention to the models."

Newspaper Rivalry In The Eighties

In the 1830's (says William Dodgson Bowman, in "The Story of the Times"), William Makepeace Thackeray, then a struggling and almost unknown journalist, was on the staff of the London "Times," whilst young Charles Dickens was "racing about the country" reporting for "The Morning Chronicle"—chief rival of "The Times." There was a deadly feud between the two papers. For instance, on June 13, 1835, "The Times" described the "Chronicle" as "a disgraceful morning print," etc., whilst in its issue of the same date, the "Chronicle" lamented that "the poor old 'Times' in its imbecile ravings," etc.

And, say, didn't Dickens "cash in" on that row when, later, he immortalized the feud between the two local Eatanswill papers!

* * *

Most of the work Thackeray undertook for "The Times" at that period was book reviewing—always poorly paid. When his novels had brought him renown, and his price had gone up, he sometimes looked back half regretfully at those early days.

"I turned off far better work then than I do now," he said, "and I wanter money sadly; but how little I got for my work! It makes me laugh at what 'The Times' pays me now when I think of the old days, and how much better I wrote for them then, and got a shilling where I now get ten."

Father had decided that he must administer a stern lecture to his six-year-old son. The boy had been naughty, but did not seem to appreciate the fact, and it was with some reluctance that the parent undertook a scolding.

He spoke judiciously but severely; he recounted the lad's misdeeds, and explained the whys and wherefores of his solemn rebuke, while his wife sat by, duly impressed.

Finally, when the father paused for breath and, incidentally, to hear the culprit's acknowledgement of error, the lad, his face beaming with admiration, turned to his mother and said: "Mother, isn't father interesting?"

The Green Murder Case

BY S. S. VAN DINE.

SYNOPSIS.

Philo Vance, with a hobby for solving mysteries, becomes interested in the Green murders when District Attorney Markham and Sgt. Heath are called in after the fatal shooting of Julia Greene and the wounding of her younger sister Ada. Old Tobias Greene's widow, together with five children, Julia, Chester, Sibella, Rex and Ada (adopted) live in the old Greene mansion. Police investigations reveal nothing; then Chester is found shot dead in his room. Again footsteps are found to and from the entrance of the mansion. Ada goes to Markham's office and informs him that Rex has not told all he knows. Five minutes later word comes that Rex has been shot. Vance becomes convinced that the criminal is one of the family. The next near victim is Ada, poisoned by morphine. The following night Mrs. Greene died of strychnine poisonin

Ada was sitting by the window when we came in, her elbows on the sill, chin in hands, gazing out into the snow-covered yard. She was startled by our entry, and the pupils of her eyes dilated, as if with sudden fright. It was plain that the experiences she had been through had created in her a state of nervous fear.

After a brief exchange of amenities, during which both Vance and Markham strove to allay her nervousness, Markham broached the subject of the bouillon.

"We'd give a great deal," he said, "not to have to recall so painful an episode, but much depends on what you can tell us regarding yesterday morning. You were in the drawing room, weren't you, when the nurse called down to you?"

The girl's lips and tongue were dry, and she spoke with some difficulty.

"Yes. Mother had asked me to bring her a copy of a magazine, and I had just gone downstairs to look for it when the nurse called."

"You saw the nurse when you came upstairs?"

"Yes; she was just going toward the servants' stairway."

"There was no one in your room here when you entered?"

She shook her head. "Who could have been here?"

She shuddered, but made no reply.

"Did any one come in to see you later?" Markham continued.

"Not a soul."

Heath impatiently projected himself into the interrogation.

"And say, did you drink your soup right away?"

"No—not right away. I felt a little chilly, and I went across the hall to Julia's room to get an old Spanish shawl to put round me."

Heath made a disgusted face, and sighed noisily.

"Every time we get going on this case," he complained, "something comes along and sinks us. If Miss Ada left the soup in here, Mr. Markham, while she went to get a shawl then almost anybody coulda sneaked in and poisoned the stuff."

"I'm so sorry," Ada apologized, almost as though she had taken Heath's words as a criticism of her actions.

"It's not your fault, Ada," Vance assured her. "The Sergeant is unduly depressed. But tell me this: when you went into the hall did you see Miss Sibella's dog anywhere?"

She shook her head wonderingly.

"Why, no. What has Sibella's dog to do with it?"

"He probably saved your life." And Vance explained to her how Sproot had happened to find her.

She gave a half-breathless murmur of amazement and incredulity and fell into abstracted revery.

"When you returned from your sister's room, did you drink your bouillon at once?" Vance asked her next.

With difficulty she brought her mind back to the question.

"Yes."

"And didn't you notice a peculiar taste?"

"Not particularly. Mother always likes a lot of salt in her bouillon."

"And then what happened?"

"Nothing happened. Only I began to feel funny. The back of my neck tightened up, and I got very warm and drowsy. My skin tingled all over, and my arms and legs seemed to get numb. I was terribly sleepy, and I lay back on the bed. That's all I remember."

"Another washout," grumbled Heath.

There was a short silence, and Vance drew his chair nearer.

"Now, Ada," he said, "you must brace yourself for more bad news. . . Your mother died during the night."

The girl sat motionless for a moment, and then turned to him eyes of a despairing clearness.

"Died?" she repeated. "How did she die?"

"She was poisoned—she took an overdose of strychnine."

"You mean . . . she committed suicide?"

This query startled us all. It expressed a possibility that had not occurred to us. After a momentary hesitation, however, Vance slowly shook his head.

"No, I hardly think so. I'm afraid the person who poisoned you also poisoned your mother."

Vance's reply seemed to stun her. Her face grew pale and her eyes were set in a glassy stare of terror. Then presently she sighed deeply, as if from a kind of mental depletion.

"Oh, what's going to happen next? . . . I'm afraid!"

"Nothing more is going to happen," said Vance with emphasis. "Nothing more can happen. You are going to be guarded every minute. And Sibella is going this afternoon to Atlantic City for a long visit."

"I wish I could go away," she breathed pathetically.

"There will be no need of that," put in Markham. "You'll be safer in New York. We are going to keep the nurse here to look after you, and also put a man in the house day and night until everything is straightened out."

As we descended into the lower hall Sproot was just admitting Dr. Von Blon.

"Sibella just phoned me about Mrs. Greene." He looked truculently at Markham, his suavity for the moment forgotten. "Why wasn't I informed, sir?"

"I saw no necessity of bothering you, Doctor," Markham returned equably. Mrs. Greene had been dead several hours when she was found. And we had our own doctor at hand."

A quick flame leaped into Von Blon's eyes.

"And am I to be forcibly kept from seeing Sibella?" he asked coldly.

Markham stepped aside.

"You are free, doctor, to do whatever you desire," he said, a perceptible chill in his voice.

Shortly after noon that day Hemming departed forever from the Greene mansion; and Sibella took the 3.15 o'clock train for Atlantic City. Of the original household, only Ada and Sproot and Mrs. Mannheim were left. However, Heath gave orders for Miss O'Brien to remain on duty indefinitely and keep an eye on everything that happened; and, in addition to this protection, a detective was stationed in the house to augment the nurse's watch.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

(Friday, Dec. 3, 6 p.m.)

At six o'clock that evening Markham called another informal conference at the Stuyvesant Club. Not only were Inspector Moran and Heath present, but Chief Inspector O'Brien dropped in on his way home from the office.

The afternoon papers had been merciless in their criticism of the police for its unsuccessful handling of the investigation. Markham, after consulting with Heath and Doremus, had explained the death of Mrs. Greene to the reporters as "the result of an overdose of strychnine—a stimulant she had been taking regularly under her physician's orders."

Swacker had typed copies of the item so there would be no mistake as to its exact wording; and the announcement ended by saying: "There is no evidence to show that the drug was not self-administered as the result of an error." But although the reporters composed their news stories in strict accord with Markham's report, they interpolated subtle intimations of deliberate murder, so that the reader was left with little doubt as to the true state of affairs.

The unsuccessful attempt to poison Ada had been kept a strict official secret. But this suppressed item had not been needed to inflame the public's morbid imagination to an almost unprecedented degree.

Both Markham and Heath had begun to show the strain of their futile efforts to solve the affair; and one glance at Inspector Moran, as he sank heavily into a chair beside the District Attorney was enough to make one realize that a corroding worry had undermined his habitual equanimity. Even Vance revealed signs of tensity and uneasiness; but with him it was an eager alertness, rather than worry, that marked any deviation from normality in his attitude.

As soon as we were assembled that evening Heath briefly epitomized the case. He went over the various lines of investigation, and enumerated the precautions that had been taken. When he had finished, and before any one could make a comment, he turned to Chief Inspector O'Brien and said:

"There's plenty of things, sir, we might've done in any ordinary case. We could've searched the house for the gun and the poison like the narcotic squad goes through a single room or small apartment—punching the mattresses, tearing up the carpets, and sounding the woodwork—but in the Greene house it would've taken a coupla months. And even if we'd found the stuff, what good would it have done us? The guy that's tearing things wide open in that dump isn't going to stop just because we take his dinky thirty-two away from him, or grab his poison.

"After Chester or Rex was shot we could've arrested all the rest of the family and put 'em through a third degree.

"But there's too much noise in the papers now every time we give anybody the works; and it ain't exactly healthy for us to grill a family like the Greenes. They've got too much money and pull; they'd have had a whole battalion of high-class lawyers smearing us with suits and injunctions and what not. And if we'd just held 'em as material witnesses, they'd have got out in forty-eight hours on habeas-corpus actions.

"Then, again, we might've planted a bunch of huskies in the house; but we couldn't keep a garrison there indefinitely, and the minute they'd have been called off, the dirty work would've begun. Believe me, Inspector, we've been up against it good and plenty."

Both Britain and Can a have enormous bills to meet, but they have strained a point to help the little Dominion. Canada may be younger than Newfoundland, but has grown to be the big brother, and recognizes a big brother's obligations.

Altogether, it is a very human action, this lending of a hand; and it is fully appreciated by the people of Newfoundland. News from St. John's indicates that the loan of $1,250,000 has been received with touching evidence of thankfulness. Following the Premier's announcement that help was assured, members of the Government joined involuntarily in singing "Land of Hope and Glory," "The Maple Leaf" and "God Save the King." And t all there has been no hint as to ility of confederation with hus the altogether satisfac- ess is marked by two admir- ures: generosity and good t there is no telling to what ead.—Toronto Globe.

Censorship

Members of the British board of movie censors have recently rejected nearly three hundred films because they included blasphemy, ridicule of religious beliefs, death treated with flippancy and the portrayal of vicious lives. Some more pruning of the same kind would be an excellent thing everywhere.—Brantford Expositor.

Canada's New Cattle Market

The end of the embargo means, however, that Canadian cattle have a much wider market in Britain, that many irritating restrictions have been removed, that their movement once landed is not restricted, that inland markets are opened, that expensive veterinary charges are largely eliminated, and that certain grades of Cattle formerly prohibited, will now be admitted. Only when the exchange situation rights itself will the full force of this measure be appreciated by Canadian livestock men.—Ottawa Journal.

Pace That Kills

People of to-day think that the pace of life is fast—much too fast to be conductive to old age; but they are not the only ones who have had that feeling; and still the pace grows faster, and people continue to live to a good old age. This thought is emphasized by an American writer who recalls that as far back as 1832 there were people who saw in the "mad hurry" of that age an omen of ill for the future.—Chatham News.

Clean Hands

It is affirmed that paper money is a carrier of disease germs. If it were the only source of infection a lot of people would be almost immune these days.—Edmonton Journal.

Trade With West Africa

(Palm oil in bulk is being shipped from Nigeria direct to Halifax). This new movement through all-Canadian channels is a direct result of the Imperial Economic Conference agreements, under which palm oil is given a preference, and to secure the preference it must come in through Canadian ports. The use of this produce in Canada, of course, is not new, and what this Dominion has consumed has been coming in largely through United States ports. Now, Canadian ports will get the business, and also the bulk of the export of soap as well.—Halifax Herald.

Barley Smothers Mustard

Experimental work carried out at the Central Experimental Farm Ottawa, shows conclusively that barley can be used most effectively in smothering out mustard. It has been found that barley sown at the rate of 3 bushels per acre is most effective for the purpose. Incidentally, it is also shown that heavier seeding produces a heavier yield of grain per acre.—Department of Agriculture.

THE EMPIRE

Five-Day Week

A shorter working day and a shorter working week, without diminution of wages, are increasingly looked upon as one of the most effective ways of reducing unemployment. This is opposed by employers in various countries on the ground that it would place them at a disadvantage in competing for foreign trade. But if there is international agreement for concerted action this objection fails. Such an agreement may be legitimately looked for from the World Economic Conference.—London Daily Herald.

Canada's Turn

An important Canadian firm is to establish a branch in Blackburn for the manufacture of electric cookers, refrigerators etc. After a preliminary survey of various Lancashire towns, representatives of the firm who were searching for suitable premises decided on the India Mill, Blackburn, brought to their notice by the Lancashire Industrial Development Council. This building contains an area of over 40,000 square feet, and it is expected that employment will be found for several hundreds of work people. The firm celebrated their jubilee this year. They were the pioneers in Canada of their particular type of manufacture and will be the first Canadian firm to establish a works in Lancashire.—Industrial Britain.

Discrimination Against Shipping

British shipping is excluded by many foreign countries from their coastal trade. Thus British ships may not carry cargo or passengers from New York to Charleston or San Francisco. American shipping is not treated by us in this manner. It can ply from port to port in the British Isles and engage in inter-Empire trade. The day has come to end this one-sided and unfair position. If a nation discriminates against our shipping, similar discriminaton should be applied to that nation's vessels in our ports.—London Daily Mail.

India Accepts Ottawa

India should now enjoy a large expansion of trade in the Colonies and Dependenies, while she yields nothing that should act as a bar to her industrial progress. That for the first time she is to give preferences to certain British industries is of immense importance, especially in view of the new Constitution to which India is now looking forward. We hope that by the time it is actually established the mutual gains arising out of the Ottawa agreement will be such that it will be accepted by all parties as the basic economic principle of Anglo-Indian trade relations.—London Daily Telegraph.

AMERICAN

Understatement

As for the long-necked subject of under-statement, three new items have recently been added to the collection. There was, for instance, that bit of the plaintiff's testimony in Lilienfeld v. Lilienfeld, a suit for separate maintenance brought by a Brooklyn bride. It seems that, on one occasion, the husband had beaten her, blacked her eyes, scratched her, torn her nightdress and otherwise maltreated her. Her counsel asked what her comment at the time had been. "Well," said Mrs. Lilienfeld, "I was quite surprised. Not to be outdone, Justice Schmuck awarded her the relief she sought on the ground that Mr. Lilienfeld had, as a husband, been neither loving nor lovable.—The New Yorker.

Britan's Record

There are no blots on the British war debt record. But there will be a very large-sized blot on the record of American Government if it does not alter the British debt agreement before the next semi-annual payment is due.—Providence Journal.

Average Family in U.S. Worth $12,000

Cincinnati. — Believe it or not, the average family in the United States is worth $12,000. That, at least, is the estimate of M. R. Neifeld, New York statistician, presented before the American Statistical Association here.

Neifeld said the average of 30,000,000 families will find current assets more than double current liabilities, despite the last three years, and he displayed a balance sheet to prove it.

Total assets of the American family at the end of 1929, he figured, were $421,679,000,000, while total liabilities were only $46,360,000,000. "In other words," he said, "for every dollar the American family owed, they had nine in their possession."

Australian - U.S. Film War Starts

Sydney, Australia. — A film war is in progress between Australian theatre-owners and American film agencies over the supply of motion picture films for 1933.

The theatre men are making a determined stand against the American terms, particularly against block booking, and assert that they will close their theatres rather than surrender. In reply the Americans have threatened to cut off the film supply.

Trade Balance Will Be Over $50,000,000

Ottawa. — Canada's export balance of trade for the calendar year 1932, will be slightly over $50,000,000. This figure is arrived at by returns made to Government departments with the last few days of the year estimated by trade experts.

Canada's total exports of domestic goods are estimated at $498,301,000. It also exported foreign goods estimated at $8,018,000. The imports during the year are estimated at $455,877,000. Since this includes the goods afterwards re-exported, the export balance is the difference between the total exports (domestic and foreign) and the total imports.

This is a considerable change from 1931. The totals for both exports and imports were greater last year, but the imports exceeded the exports by $10,855,000. The exports of domestic goods totalled $605,336,000, foreign goods $11,907,000, and the imports totalled $628,098,000.

Carnarvon to Celebrate Lloyd George's Birthday

London — Special arrangements have been made at Carnarvon for the celebration of David Lloyd George's 70th birthday on Jan. 17. Mr. Lloyd George has represented this area in Parliament uninterruptedly for 42 years. He first entered the House of Commons as member for the division, then known as Carnarvon Boroughs in 1890. On the day of his birthday he is to address a mass meeting of his constituents.

Four Generations Live on Same Street

Vermon, B.C. — Four generations, all living on the same street in the same city, is extraordinary, but Vernon and its Seventh street have this distinction.

Mrs. David Alexander, great-grandmother, Mrs. J. F. Gray, grandmothers, Mrs. Charles Woods, mother, and George Woods, 10-year-old son, make up the four generations.

European Cities Are Glimpsed in Lecture

Montreal.—Glimpses of a number of cities of Europe were afforded to members of the Montreal West Women's Club recently when David A. Keys, Ph.D., professor of physics at McGill University, gave an illustrated talk on a recent tour in Europe, including capital cities and places less frequently visited. Starting at Paris, the lecturer proceeded to Munich, which, he remarked, has the best town-planning system of any city in Europe, no building being allowed to be of such a height as to shut out the sun from the opposite side. A musical centre, Munich has a new theatre for summer visitors, with prices much in advance of those charged the residents the rest of the year. Vienna, which in 1910 had been a gay and flourishing city, was, since the war, Dr. Keys found, badly off, with "no visible means of support," and with many of the buildings showing the effects of lack of money for their upkeep. Prague, Dresden, Heidelberg, famous for its university; Danzig, vere other cities visited. The island of Gothland in the Baltic Sea, once a powerful member of the Hanseatic League, was also visited. Its chief town, which some six or seven centuries ago was as large as London at that time, has now a population of only a few thousand people. Stockholm was pointed out as unlike most cities, having an attractive appearance from the harbor.

Famous Petrified Forest Carted Away as 'Lumber'

Ada Okla. — Ada's celebrated petrified forest, long a subject of study by scientists, is no more. The petrified wood has been sold by its Indian owner for use in the construction of a commercial garage.

The "forest," with remains of giant trees of long ago scattered where they fell, was described by geologists as the largest of its kind in the Southwest.

Ada civic leaders had hoped to include the forest in a two-acre park, but the petrified wood was sold and hauled away before they could obtain the land.

B.C. to Increase Lumber Exports

Shipments to U. K. May Reach 150,000,000 Feet In 1933

Vancouver.—British Columbia will inrease her lumber exports to the United iKngdom during the coming year to 150,000,000 feet, it is forecast in well-informed circles. This compares with 87,000,000 feet shipped during the past 12 months, a gain of more than 70 per cent., or treble that shipped in 1931, when 50,000,000 feet created a record.

Sentiment in the United Kingdom in favor of Empire trade, including the general friendly attitude of lumber importers and Governmental bodies, is expected to produce this result.

Three men are employed for each 1,000 feet exported, one in the woods, one in the mill, one in transportation services, so that the coming year's expected export to the United Kingdom will provide employment amounting to 450,000 work days, or steady employment for one year for 1,500 men.

British Columbia is fast ousting Washington and Oregon from the United Kingdom market. In the first three months of this year, with the Import Duties Act in effect for one month, the province shipped 51.9 per cent. of the Pacific coast export to the United Kingdom; Washington shiped 37.5 per cent., with Oregon 10.6 per cent. In the first nine months of the year, with the Import Duties Act in effect for seven of them, British Columbia steadily increased her percentage to 70.5 per cent., with Washington getting 23.5 per cent. and Oregon 6 per cent. The import duties preferences are now embodied in the Imperial Conference agreement.

British Columbia has also practically ousted the two states to the south from the Australian market as a result of the trade treaty with that Dominion. She is shipping about 108,000,000 feet yearly to Australia, or about 90 per cent. of the Pacific coast export to that market, exactly reversing the percentage figure of a few years ago.

Australian Munitions Plant Puts 2,000 Back at Work

Steyr, Austria.—A wave of new hope has spread through this town with news that the famous Steyr Werke, where much of Austria's wartime munitions were produced, is putting 2,000 men back to work this month. Two big orders, one said to be from Brazil, are mentioned as the reason for resumption of operations.

Of particular interest in connection with this development was the almost simultaneous announcement from Pilsen that the Skoda company is reopening steel mills which have been idle for months, taking back several thousand men, in the middle of January.

Resumption of work at the Steyr Werke was announced after an agreement had been reached with the metal workers' union establishing a 40-hour week with a 5 per cent. wage cut. The second of the orders placed with the works came from Portugal, which is changing the style of its infantry weapons.

Intelligence Level In N.Y. City Hops

Atlantic City, NJ. — The average level of intelligence in New York City is declining because people of low intelligence are having many children, while those of high intelligence are having few, the American Association for the Advancement of Science was told last week.

This conclusion, drawn from a study of intelligence records of 100,000 children in New York City schools, was reported by Dr. J. B. Maller, of Columbia University.

Children of native-born parents scored higher than those of foreign-born parents in level of intelligence and school progress, the study showed. Jewish children scored higher than other "national groups."

Getting Down to Business

President Hoover promulates the most sweeping reorganization of federal departments in history. These become effective in 60 days, subject to congressional approval. The proposed consolidations and discontinuances affect 58 executive agencies. Four new divisions and 10 major regroupings are scheduled, bureaus are transferred from one department to another, commissions are merged. The message to Congress drops like a bombshell among officeholders, who had expected nothing so drastic. Yet the president says it is only a disagreeable task long deferred—government methods must get down to a business basis.—Orillia News-Letter.

"Old Lady of London" To Be Renovated

London.—A further section of the old buildings at the Bank of England is to be pulled down this year. The buildings nearing completion represent about half of the complete scheme, and tenders are being sought for demolishing a substantial part of the old buildings on the remaining half of the site. The complete renovation of "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street" was originally estimated to take twelve years and cost some £5,000,000.

Indian Education

Report Shows Remarkable Advances Made by Canadian Indians

Ottawa.—Honourable Thomas G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior and Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, points out in the recently issued annual report of the Dept. of Indian Affairs the gratifying increase in school enrolment and attendance by Indian children throughout the Dominion. During the past few years the increase in attendance at the schools maintained by the Department has been very gratifying and in the year 1931-32 there was an enrolment of over 17,000 and an average attendance of over 13,000, which is a record for the work. The remarkable results obtained through the efforts of the Department to advance the Indians to a state of independence and self support is showing in the growing interest of the Indians in education. In the ten years from 1921-22 to 1931-32 the total enrolment increased from 13,021 to 17,163, while the average attendance advanced from 8,668 to 13,107.

During the year, 80 residential schools and 270 day schools were in operation, a total of 350 centres of Indian educational activity throughout the Dominion. The day schools are conducted wholly by the Department, but in the management of the residential schools the co-operation of the churches was as follows: Roman Catholic, in 44 schools; Church of England, in 21 schools; United Church, in 13 schools; and Presbyterian, in 2 schools. At the day schools the work is made more attractive to the pupils by the correlation of classroom exercises with reserve and Indian home activities, and in the residential schools vocational training is emphasized.

The health of the Indian boys and girls while they are attending school is a special concern of the Department and in addition to careful inspection, physical education, proper diet, and sanitation is stressed. The welfare of the graduates is also looked after when they have left school and approximately 250 young Indian men and women were assisted in the continuation of their studies and in the establishment of homes during the past year.

Buying Expensive Models Is Economy Says Actress

Economize by buying expensive things! This advice comes from Ann Harding, stage and screen star.

"Nothing is gained by buying things just because they are cheap," she declares. "One good dress can actually serve as three if you plan proper accessories to go with it—the hats and jackets and scarfs, the bags and slippers and jewelery.

Get two sets of accessories for each dress, have them very different in color and have them in quite different degrees of formality. This widens the uses of the costumes as well as adding variety.

"Another effective economy is acquired by buying interchangeable costumes," she advised. "For instance, for evening wear, buy an expensive plain gown, beautiful in line. This can be worn unadorned as one costume. With other accessories it becomes another gown, and by means of a lei of flowers it becomes a third dress.

Canada's Fish Stocks Are Well Maintained

Ottawa.—From coast to coast Canada's fish hatcheries are stocked with fry, or fish eggs, which will be developed during the winter. Distribution will take place during the spring and summer of 1933 for the restocking of the various lakes and streams throughout the Dominion.

Rivers and lakes are in abundance in every province and with sea fishing on both coasts Canada is a paradise for the angler. The department of fisheries, however, supplements the natural production by the distribution of eggs and fry, and in the past year more than 138,000,000 fry and older fish were placed in suitable streams throughout the Dominion. The British Columbia Sockeye headed the list with more than 97,000,000 fry and fingerlings being distributed. Next in order was the Atlantic salmon with 21,000,000. The remainder of the distribution was made up of other varieties of salmon and trout. The above figures do not include hatcheries taken over by the provincial governments, and it is estimated that in the past year more than 600,000,000 eggs, fry and fingerlings have been distributed when the hatcheries operated by the Dominion and Provincial Governments are taken into consideration.

English Phone Service To Be Investigated

The executive of the National Guild of Telephonists, London, Eng., decided to appeal to the Prime Minister through Parliament for an investigation of night staffing conditions in the telephone service. It has been decided to act on a recommendation of the Bridgeman Committee on the Post Office that girls must share duty with the men until 11 p.m. instead of until 8 p.m. The executive received a report indicating the unanimous opposition of the women to the change.

"The Leader" was pleased to welcome these distinguished little visitors, and appreciates the teacher's advanced methods of teaching.

ANNUAL VESTRY MEETING, ST. JAMES' CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Vestry of St. James' Church was held on Monday at 8 p.m. with the Rector, Rev. S.B. Holmes, in the chair, and the largest attendance in some years. A flourishing and progressive condition in all branches of the church work was shown in reports presented to the Vestry by the various societies during the past year, and the Rector expressed much satisfaction at the results of the year's work.

Rector's Warden—W.S. Connolly.
People's Warden—H.E. Paull.
Vestry Clerk—C.A. Burriss, re-elected.
Treasurer—H.E. Paull.
Auditors—H.H. Bradfield, W.J. Fisher, re-elected.

Delegates to Synod—W.S. Connolly, A.F. Merkley.

A vote of thanks was moved to all church workers for their services.

The ladies of the congregation furnished refreshments after the meeting.

HOCKEY

MORRISBURG BLANKS PRESCOTT

Morrisburg Maroons defeated the Prescott seniors at Prescott, Monday night, by the score of 3-0, in a St. Lawrence Hockey League fixture, which was everything that could be desired in the way of a hockey game Although Bill O'Hara, Ottawa, meted out twelve minor penalties, the game was one of the best tilts that Prescott has seen in some years.

The first period ended without a score, but Morrisburg scored in the first minute of the second period, when Smith, on left wing, scored on a well-timed pass from Miller. James playing right wing for Maroons, scored in four minutes of the last period, and two minutes later, Smith again beat goaler Edwards, of Prescott, for the last score of the game. A large crowd of spectators were on hand.

The teams were as follows:

Morrisburg—Goal, Patterson; defence, Cross and O'Malley; wings, Smith and James; center, Miller; alternates, McIlroy, Lapierre, Prudhomme.

Referee, Bill O'Hara, Ottawa.

W.H.S. DEFEATS M.C.I., 3-2

In a thrilling exhibition of hockey played at the Winchester arena, the Winchester High School team defeated Morrisburg Collgiate Institute, 3 to 2. The ice surface was excellent, and the large crowd of fans were kept in an exciting mood during the whole game.

Winchester opened the scoring, after 13 minutes of play, when Gordon Lannin took Russell Kinkaid's pass and beat the Morrisburg goalie. Two minutes later Arnold Barclay, on a fine solo effort, put Winchester two up. One minute after the second period started, "Punch" Gemeroy made it 3 for Winchester, on an assist from Lloyd Dixon.

Morrisburg's first goal came shortly after, when Harry Smith dented the twine for the visitors. About midway through the final period Snyder gave Morrisburg their second goal.

The line-ups:

Morrisburg—Goal, Robertson; defence, Rohrig and Roy; centre, Snyder; wings, Colligan and Smith; alternates, Dixon, Jenkinson, Reid.

Winchester—Goal, Fawcett; defence, Gemeroy and Barclay; centre, Lannin; wings, Summers and Kinkaid; subs, Dixon, Vail, Weir and Robinson.

Referee—Melvin Scott.

A four-goal lead taken in the first period gave Cornwall Canadiens a 4-0 victory over Iroquois, in a St. Lawrence League fixture at Cornwall Monday night. The visitors put up a stubborn fight in an attempt to avoid the whitewash, but the defensive tactics of the Canadiens proved very effective. On a fine sheet of ice both teams played well.

In the first St. Lawrence League game to be played in the local arena this season, Cornwall Canadiens defeated Morrisburg Maroons by a score of 7-1. The game was played on very soft ice. Bill O'Hara, of Ottawa, refereed.

FULFORD HARDY, 21, AND BETTY HILL, 16, MARRIED IN INDIANA

Fulford Hardy of Toronto, 21-yearold son of Hon. Arthur Hardy of Brockville, a member of the Canadian Senate, and Miss Betty Hill, aged 16, of Toronto, traversed three States to get married last week-end, only to end their honeymoon as guests of the Detroit police.

The young couple set out from Toronto in Hardy's automobile Friday for Detroit, to get married. Their parents sought to have them stopped at the border, but they had already crossed into Detroit, where they found Michigan law prescribed a five-day waiting period for those wishing to marry. The couple then went to Toledo, O., where the same situation confronted them. Finally they were married at Crown Point, Ind., at 4 a.m. Saturday and returned to Detroit.

Detroit police recognized the license number on Hardy's automobile, and arrested him. The couple were turned over to Canadian authorities. They returned with relatives to Toronto Saturday night.

ZETA LODGE I.O.O.F.

Two weeks ago the officers and members of Zeta Lodge No. 311, I.O.O.F. extended an invitation to Brock Lodge of Brockville to come to Morrisburg and put on the First Degree, and this invitation was immediately accepted.

A special evening, Wednesday Jan. 11th, was set for this event and upwards of one hundred and fifty Odd Fellows from Brockville, Cardinal, Iroquois, Brinston, Williamsburg, Aultsville, Westport, Lansdowne, Lachute Que., and Morrisburg assembled at Zeta's lodge rooms to see the degree conferred, and Brock Lodge certainly deserved all the congratulations they received for the excellent way in which they conferred this degree. This degree was conferred on twelve candidates.

After the degree was finished Dr. Davy acted as chairman for the evening and speeches were given by Bro. Col. Gray, deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario; Bro. Winferd, grand marshall of the Grand Encampment; Bro. W.T. Kingston, D.D.G.M.; Bro. Garratt. who wears a 50 year veterans jewel; Bro. Reynolds, a veteran of 49 years and Bro. Carswell.

Three members of Zeta Lodge, Bros. C.J. Seymour, J.M. Whitteker and F.D. Stata were then presented with 25 year veterans jewels, and Bro. Seymour replied for the three veterans.

The meeting ended with God Save the King, after which a banquet was served to all by the brothers of Zeta Lodge.

CONTRIBUTED

Gentlemen:

I wish to inform you that the present shattered condition of my bank account makes it impossible for me to send you my check in response to your request. My present financial condition is due to the effect of the federal laws, county laws, incorporation laws, by-laws, brother-in-laws, and outlaws that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Through these various laws I have been held down, held up, sat on, walked on, flattended, squeezed and broken until I do not know what I am, where I am or why I am.

These laws compel me to pay a merchant tax, capital tax, excess tax, incorporation tax, real estate tax, property tax, auto tax, gas tax, light tax, water tax, cigar tax, school tax, syntax, liquor tax and carpet tax.

In addition to those taxes I am required to contribute to every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can invent and organize: to the Society of St. John the Baptist, the Women's Relief, Navy League, the Children's Home, the Policemen's Benefit, the hospital and charitable institutions in town, the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the White Cross, the Purple Cross, the Flaming Cross and the Double Cross.

The Government has so governed my business that I do not know who owns it.. I am suspected, expected, inspected and disrespected, examined re-examined, informed, required, commanded and compelled until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known and unknown deed, desire or hope of the human race, and because I refuse to donate to all and then go out and beg, borrow or steal money to give away, I am ousted, cussed, discussed, boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am just about ruined.

The only reason that I am clinging to life at all is to see what the hell is coming next.

Very respectfully.

DOUBT IF REPORT IS TO BE MADE PUBLIC

The report of Brig. Gen D.M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, into the October riots at Portsmouth penitentiary is still under official consideration. As the report is a departmental one to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, there is some doubt as to whether or not it will be made public. This question will be decided after the report and evidence of prisoners and prison officials, covering more than 1000 pages, have been fully reviewed.

Rumors are that the leaders in the revolt number about eight or ten of the inmates, but no official statement has been made. On the first of the year, new prison regulations were put into effect, allowing penitentiary inmates more freedom in the way of receiving visitors, writing and smoking. These will apply only while prisoners behave themselves.
