The Estate of the late E. J. Frenette will sell at Public Auction at the Frenette Farm, three miles from Morrisburg, on Tuesday, January 23rd, a number of Pure Bred Ayrshire Cattle, Six Horses, all farm machinery and the farm itself. The farm of 110 acres has a solid brick house, good buildings, silo, windmill, orchard, and makes a very desirable homestead.

Attend the Patriotic Concert

A recruiting meeting in the interests of the 253nd Highland Battalion, is announced for the Town Hall on Monday night next. The Highland Pipe Band will be present and a good programme will be provided. Major J. A. Cameron and Lieut O'Brien will speak of the needs for more men. It is desirable that the hall be filled with men of military age. They need not be afraid of anymore bull dozing tactics. These men know the situation at the present time and they will present it to you for your consideration, afterwards it is up to you whither you stay at home or get in khaki. If you have a good reason for not signing up that is all that is necessary and if you have not it is lift with your conscience. You cannot be forced to fight, but the least you can do is to hear, from those who know, why you should do your bit as well as those who are doing it for you.

Mr. Bogart Disclaims the Reeveship

Chesterville is without a reeve. Saturday Reeve-elect G. W. Bogart disclaimed the seat and a new nomination and perhaps an election will have to take place. All the forms necessary for the electors to go through in selecting the head of the council were observed. The nomination was duly held and G. W. Bogart and W. Hamilton appealed to the electors to give either one of them the honor of being reeve for the present year. The majority of the electors chose Mr. Bogart, but as stated above he has disclaimed the seat.

The whole trouble has arisen through the fact that Mr. Bogart held the position of high school trustee, and the law requires that one holding that position must, if he wishes to accept nomination to a municipal council, place his resignation from the school board in the hands of the secretary of that board at least ten clear days before nomination day for the other office. This Mr. Bogart did not do and Mr. Hamilton threatened action if the former did not disclaim the seat.

A peculiarity of the whole thing is, that had Mr. Bogart been able to take his seat without objection being made on this point, he would have been justified, in the eyes of the law, in doing so and his official acts as far as this point is concerned, until objection was made, could not have been questioned. The fact that he had not given the required ten clear days' notice of his resignation from the school board, was not a bar to his making the declaration of his qualifications to complete his nomination.

If Mr. Hamilton had taken exception to the point at the nomination meeting and no others had been nominated, or before the time for declarations had expired, he would have had the reeveship by acclamation.

The ratepayers can perhaps blame themselves for the situation which has now developed, as at nomination there were not fifty people interested enough in who was going to spend their money in 1917 to be present. This is not as it should be and does not reflect credit on the business sagacity of the community. Take an interest in your home town. Pull for it and let the several hatchets be buried, once and for all, while both hands are used to pull all together. The sensation and results of a united effort will be so apparent that the folly of bygone years will be recognized and not repeated.

The mercury touched 28 below again this morning.

Feed the furnace and starve the coal cellar is the treatment for this weather.

If you require fine cattle, horses, farm implements or a farm attend the big sale to be held by the Estate of the late E. J. Frenette at the Frenette Farm near Morrisburg on Tuesday, January 23rd.

Prospects Didn't Look Bright.

Six or eight Chesterville men felt that they had been made dupes of the first of the week. Last week a commercial traveller, said to be a resident of Kemptville, it is alleged made very rosy promises to a number of men here to go to Parry Sound and take up munition work, where they would be paid three dollars and fifty cents a day for ten hours work with extras for overtime, with transportation and board supplied. The trip to Parry Sound, however, ended abruptly in Ottawa, where the men reported for munition work. Twenty-five cents per hour was offered, which is not considered poor pay for unskilled labor, but the fact that they would have to pay their own fares and with the information that it was not probable they could secure accommodation, put an end to the trip and all have landed home again.

To Our Correspondents.

To our correspondents we wish to say a word and to thank them for their loyalty to The Record during the past year. We are now making arrangements for increasing their number and will be pleased, in a week or two, to tell them of the inducements we give to those who will send us weekly the news of their communities. We aim to cover the whole territory with an ever-increasing corps of correspondents, as the circulation of The Record grows and the influence increases. As the number of correspondents increase it requires more type to be set in this office and we would ask all to have their news letters reach us by Tuesday evening's mail or the first mails Wednesday mornings. If other happenings occur which you would like to include, send another letter and we can add an item or two at the last moment, much easier than putting in type several pages.

Where we have no regular correspondents we want them. To anyone who will take this matter up we have a proposition better than most papers for them. In return a news letter is expected on an average of three times monthly if it cannot be here every issue. To any who will act and will advise us we will make known the advantages of being a Record correspondent. The first to apply will have first call.

Never Put Off Till To-morrow What Should be Done TO-DAY

One of the things you may perhaps have been putting off for several "To-morrows" is that trial you were going to give the Condensery.

You know that your neighbor told you the Condensery pleased him, and you were going to give it a trial then. But somehow you didn't just then, you put it off till tomorrow.

Now is the time to start that trial. Make it a good trial too. Start it now and try it one solid year. We wager then you will try it again.

Doing Our Bit

All of us cannot fight. All of us—men, women and children—can do something towards winning the war. Are we seeking that "something," or are we evading it? Are we looking for the "bit" we should do, or trying to forget it?

Take the Canadian Patriotic Fund. It has been created to care for the families of our soldiers in those cases—and those only—where need exists. Experience has shown that this means in two families out of three. Up to December 1, 1916, the people of Canada have given $16,500,000 to the Fund.

That is generous giving, isn't it? But the country is still at war; our armies are still growing; the soldiers' families are still in need; the Fund still must be maintained. And what do we find: in every part of the country men crying that they have given enough to the Fund—that Government should now take the burden.

Given enough! When the Canadian lad in the trenches is dead-tired, ready to drop in his tracks, does he chuck his job, declare he has given enough, and call on Government to get another man? Given enough! Is there a man in Canada has given enough if women and children are in need while he, the stay-at-home, has a dollar to spare?

No! This Fund, above all funds, has a claim on every citizen who is not himself a pauper. The fact that Government has not assumed responsibility for it is the fact that makes every man responsible for it—even if he thinks the Fund should be maintained by Government moneys.

Are YOU helping to insure this home against need?

GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT CONTROL, BECAUSE—

1. Government would have to treat all alike. The Fund helps only those in need. If Government paid the families of each soldier the average sum paid by the Fund the extra burden on the country would be between eight and nine million dollars yearly.

2. By paying the average sum those families in districts where cost of living is low would receive more than they need; those in high-cost areas would be paid too little.

3. Costs of administration would be enormously increased. This work is now done, for the most part, by willing workers without cost. Of every hundred dollars subscribed, Ninety-nine Dollars and Forty-six Cents go to the families! Never was a voluntary fund so economically administered.

4. The work would suffer. There would be no more of the friendly, almost paternal, relation now existing between the administrators of the Fund and the families. Government works automatically. The Fund's visitors are friends in need, therefore friends indeed.

5. Taxation would be unequal, for some counties and some provinces are already taxing their people for this Fund. Are they to be taxed again by the Federal authority?

6. The richer classes would be relieved of work they are cheerfully doing. They are now bearing, and bearing because they have the financial power and the patriotic willingness, the larger share of the burden. Why take from them this task, and give it to all, rich and poor?

7. The Fund blesses him that gives. It is a vehicle for public spirit—a channel for patriotic endeavor. The work of administering it has uncovered unknown reservoirs of unselfishness and sacrifice. Men and women have thrown themselves into this work because they found in it the "bit" for which they looked—their contribution to winning the war. Why stay their hand and stifle their enthusiasm?

8. Last, but not least: Government control means raising the money by selling Government bonds. Government bonds mean future taxation. And that means that the returning soldiers will pay, through long years, a large share of the cost of caring for their families—a cost we, the stay-at-homes, pledged ourselves to bear.

MEN AND WOMEN OF ONTARIO:

Bend your backs once again to this burden. If you live in the rural districts see to it that your county councils make grants worthy of the counties and of the cause. If in the towns, start campaigns for individual subscriptions. And personally, taxed or not taxed, give as you can afford, give as your conscience tells you is your duty, your war-time part, in this day of national sacrifice.

The Fund requires $12,500,000 for 1917. Of this Ontario is asked to raise $6,000,000, being the estimated requirements of Ontario's families. If there is no local Fund to which you can subscribe, send your gift direct to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, Vittoria Street, Ottawa.

Fined for Selling Short Measure Wood

The chief of police at New Liskeard last week prosectued a farmer for selling short measure stove wood to a resident of the town. The man claimed in defence that he had sold by the load, but the evidence was that he had quoted by the cord, and that what he had charged for as about two cords measured only 1¼ cord. He was fined $10 for this, and then settled with several others who had complained.

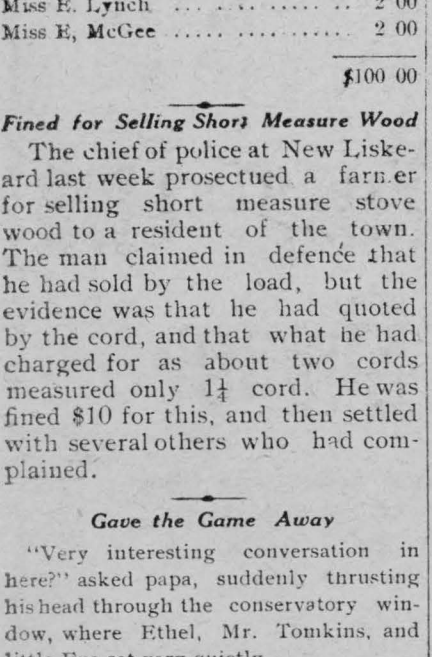
"Yes, indeed," said Ethel, ready on the instant with a reply. "Mr. Tomkins and I were discussing our kith and kin, weren't we Eva?"

"Yeth, you wath," replied little Eva. "Mr. Tomkins said, "May I have a kith? and Ethel said, you kin "



DECLINE SUBSTITUTES

Winchester Township Council.

Pursuant to statute the first meeting of Winchester Township Council for the year 1917 was held in Town Hall, Winchester, on Monday, the 8th day of January.

The members after subscribing to the necessary declarations of qualification and of office, took their seats at the Council Board, viz: Reeve, George Earle; Deputy-Reeve, Frank Fraser; Councillors, S. R. Fulton, Wm. Hamilton, M. J. Hess.

On motion by F. Fraser, seconded by S. R. Fulton, Geo. Elliot was re-appointed clerk and treas. at a salary of $450.00 for the year, he to furnish the necessary bonds.

Moved by F. Fraser seconded by Wm. Hamilton, that the regular meetings of Council be held as in previous year, on the first Monday of each month.

The following officers were appointed:—J. W. Smith, assessor, re-appointed; J. P. Elliott and Donald Rae, auditors; Thos. Faulkner, member of Board of Health.

The remaining officers to be appointed at another setting.

Moved by Fraser, seconded by S. R. Fulton, that the members of Winchester Tp. Council in session assembled, desire to express to Mrs. M. F. Beach and family, their sympathy with her and them in the death of Mr. M. F. Beach, a former member of this council, both as Deputy-Reeve and Councillor, for a number of years. Although none of the present members had the pleasure of setting with him, he was known to all, if not personally, then as a whole-souled successful business man, one whose business activities had made his name known and respected throughout the community.

Resolved that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of Council, and that this council adjourn in time to allow the members to accompany the funeral cortege to the Maple Ridge cemetery.

Carried by a unanimous standing vote.

Next meeting at Chesterville, Feb. 5th, at 10.30 a.m.

As The Days Grow Longer

It means a little longer working hours every day for the man who has outside work to do.
It means a little more wear and tear on boots, socks, rubbers, overalls, caps and mitts.
You will find that quality which resists that extra wear in the boots, socks, rubbers, overalls, caps and mitts that we have stocked with this time in view will be the cheapest in the long run that you can buy.
This year its cheaper to wear out rubbers to save leather than it is to go without rubbers.
The school children can kick out rubbers about as fast as any one and even if they kicked out three or four pairs of rubbers and saved one pair of shoes you would be in pocket.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of The Record:
Dear Sir:—

I would like through the columns of The Record, to give the electors of Chesterville, some explanation of why on being elected to the position of Reeve I had thought it best to disclaim the seat. Unfortunately I had miscalculated by one day in my resignation from the school board. Had I resigned on the 11th of December instead of the 12th and had 10 clear days between the date of my resignation and nomination, excluding both dates, I would have certainly contested my right to hold the seat. As it was I had included nomination day, and was short one day. The point is a very narrow one, but unfortunately for me narrowness does not count in this case. To avoid trouble I did what I considered the best under the circumstances. I am publishing below a carefully registered letter which I received from my opponent also my reply which will give you some idea of how matters stand.

Yours sincerely,
G. W. BOGART.

Chesterville, Jan. 3, 1917.

G. W. Bogart Esq.
Chesterville, Ont.
Dear Sir:—

As a ratepayer and candidate for the office of Reeve in and for the village of Chesterville for the year 1917 I beg to call your attention in writing to the fact that you were not eligible to be elected a member of the Council of the village of Chesterville for 1917 on the ground that as a member of the Chesterville High School Board for 1916 you did not file your resignation with the Secretary of the said Board at least ten days before the day of nomination as required by the provisions of the Municipal Act. I therefore object to the validity of your election, as I have repeatedly objected to your eligibility for election to our village council.

If you disclaim all right to the office of Reeve in and for the said village of Chesterville forthwith proceedings to have your election to the office of Reeve for 1917 will be unnecessary. If you refuse or fail to disclaim all right to the office of Reeve then I hereby give you notice of my intention to contest your right to hold the said office and I shall use this letter as further grounds for asking that all costs of proceedings occasioned by your failure to disclaim be payable by you.

Will you kindly write me within Twenty Four hours as to what your intention are in this matter in order that I may govern myself accordingly.

Yours truly
(sgd.) Wesley Hamilton

Chesterville, Jan. 6, 1917.

Mr. Wesley Hamilton,
Chesterville, Ont.
Dear Mr. Hamilton.

I have your letter dated Jan. 3rd, before me, in reply will say that I think it is to be regretted that after a fair-stand-up fight, which we have had, that you should be looking for technicalities and quibbles to frustrate the will of the people. I would like to point out to you that while the Municipal Act to which you refer, uses the words "at least 10 days" and this would ordinarily mean that my resignation should have been made on the 11th., I am informed that there is another law which provides that where the last day for doing an act falls on Sunday, I have the next legal day in which to do that act, which would be the 12th. I also believe that my placing of my resignation with the chairman of the Board would be held sufficient in as much as the Courts hold that filing is a direction or the act of filing is directory and not obligatory. I therefore hold that my chances to fight this matter out and win are as good as yours, and I also believe the electors of Chesterville are perfectly satisfied to have the matter remain as it is. However if it is your wish that I shall relinquish my mandate of the people obtained by a square and fair victory and you take the responsibility of another election, because of the above technicalities in regard to my resignation from the school board, I feel inclined to do as you request,

I have always tried to avoid lawsuits and have made greater sacrifices than this to avoid them.

Now with your letter before me and fully believing that there is no reason why your threat to protest should be carried out, as you still insist I am disposed to disclaim the seat, and give you the chance to proclaim that divine right, which you seem to think you hold, to be Reeve of Chesterville. But the attitude taken by you is solely responsible for another election in war time.

Chesterville, Ont.
Dear Mr. Casselman;—

I just received a report on the purity of the water which you sent me sometime ago. Dr. Connell reports that the water is perfectly pure and that he can find no injurious germs of any description. Evidently the party in Ottawa made some blunder or got the two samples mixed. Our chemist Prof. Walker, has not had time yet to examine the water chemically, but I hope to have this done before long. I am very glad I am able to report so favorably on this water.

Your very truly,

Dearest Mother and All—

Just a few lines for Xmas day. It takes so long for a letter to get to you but you will take it the same as if I were with you and coming downstairs first thing in the morning said to you all "Merry Xmas."

Yesterday we had a lovely day but this morning it is raining and miserably cold and so little like Christmas it is hard for me to realize that it is. We are giving our men a real good dinner, turkey and plum pudding, and all the frills and it will make the day a little more cheery for them. We are also having a very good spread at our mess but then there are no faces of loved ones and that is what counts for Xmas, it is not what we eat. My, I would give anything to be home with Eva today, poor kid she will be quite lonesome, but we can only look forward to spending next Xmas together, for I fully believe that before that time this dreadful war will be over and peace once more shall hold sway, and I know we all pray this may be so.

It reminds me of what the chaplain said at the services yesterday—"It is Christmas tide again, not the same Christmas to any of us, or to the world, a Christmas in which separation and a sense of world wide sorrow cast their shadows into our hearts and we miss the home circle and the home joy and the dear days of peace."

I want to write a number of short letters today but I will write you a good long one soon. I just wanted today to send you my heartiest good wishes and I trust 1917 will dawn a better and a happier year that you all may be blest with good health and prosperity.

Lovingly,
EARLE.

Anticipation.

"'Allo, Bill, I 'aven't seen you for weeks—"

Bill's pal stopped suddenly. "But what's wrong, man?" he asked. "You look mighty seedy. Been ill, eh?"

Bill passed a horny hand across his brow. "No," he replied. "I ain't been ill. It's this 'ere munition work wot's doin' for me—work from seven in the mornin' till six at night, and only one hour off. Think of it, mate."

"Lumme," replied the other, "and 'ow long 'ave you been there?"

"I ain't been there yet," retorted Bill. "Begin tomorrow," he added gloomily, as he slowly marched off.

A Day That is Coming

In the life of every Canadian woman whose husband is "Somewhere in France" there is yet to be one of two outstanding days:

The day the telegram arrives telling of the bread-winner's death or wounding.

Or, the day the bread-winner comes home, safe and sound, to again take up the duty of winning the family bread.

Against these two days—one of pain, one of joy—it is equally the duty of the wife to save. If the husband is lost, the task of supporting the family falls on the wife; if he is saved, the burden of supporting the family until he is again earning money will fall on the wife's savings.

It is the duty—the proud duty—of the Canadian Patriotic Fund to help the woman make provision for either of these inevitable days. Are you doing your part to make it possible for the Fund to do its duty?

Money From Waste

A move has been made among the women of the city to eliminate waste and to inculcate habits of thrift and economy. To this end a Thrift Committee has been formed and plans outlined for work which will no doubt soon become active. As an illustration of what can be done a glance at the results obtained by the National Association of Waste Material Dealers in the United States is of interest. The value of waste materials sold to junkmen in the United States in the course of the last twelve months amounts to $3,000,000,000. The war, of course, has created a demand for goods of this character and has established a new high level of prices paid for them. But if the trade, under these abnormal conditions, amounts to $1,000,000,000 in a single year, even in times of peace, when conditions are normal, a vast amount of money must change hands in the process of disposing of the annual accumulation of the nation's waste.

In the past, if we are to accept the statement made by the president of the National Association of Waste Material Dealers, the American public has been extremely wasteful of its waste. It has not sought to convert it into money. Indeed, it could scarcely be induced to heed the junkman's cry. Some persons realized a few cents from regular sales to the collectors, but they generally had least to sell because less with them went to waste. "from the houses, of rich people," as one junkman put it, "where one would naturally expect to obtain the greatest amount of waste, no waste was offered for sale. Dealing with the junkman was "too much trouble." It was easier to burn the waste than to sell it.

But this "burning up of money," says the president of the dealers, has ceased to a great extent. "The war," he continues, "has stimulated the saving of waste materials to an extent never before known. The American people are learning not to be as careless about odds and ends of materials as formerly. The result has been that the junkmen have picked up more second-hand products than ever before. A nation wide cleanup in all sections of the country of waste materials has distributed millions of dollars among the people.

The prices paid for waste rags and metals will decrease, no doubt, when the demand created by the war comes to an end. But it is not likely, we are assured, that they will ever be as low as they were before the war, for the great conflict has not only taught the housewife that waste has value, but it has shown the business man new ways for turning waste into new products. "It is interesting to note," the president of the organization adds, "that the war has made new ways for utilizing waste material products. These new avenues are being developed quietly and not much has been made public concerning them, but they will become known later." It would seem that the "most wasteful nation in the world" has learned a valuable lesson. Perhaps, hereafter, the junk collector will not cry his business into ears as heedless as they usnd to be.

Make a Patriotic Answer.

A small thing is now being asked of every man in Canada between the ages of 16 and 65. It is only to give, conscientiously and carefully, certain simple information required by the National Service Board in order that the resources of the country may be so organized as to be used most effectively in the prosecution of the war. The service is so simple that some may be tempted, through carelessness or thoughtlessness, to neglect it. But, though the service be small, its proper performance is not only important but essential, if we are going to give our most effective aid in helping to win the war. If we are to win the war, the efforts of the whole British people must be concentrated, and this cannot be done unless this information is accurately given. It is not given to all of us to perform inspiring deeds, but all of us can take care that we leave no duty undone, however small and however humble that duty may be. The duty in question is a duty which we should cheerfully perform. Ontario, on the whole, has responded well in every patriotic appeal. This appeal, like the others, is supported by the leading men of the Province of both political parties. Let us see to it that once more Ontario makes a patriotic answer to a patriotic appeal.

Less Illness in Trenches Than In Big Cities

London, Jan. 8—The announcement to day of Lord Northcliffe's return from his ninth visit to the front contains an interesting statement by him concerning the health of the armies. The annual death rate, is placed at exactly three per thousand: the average illness, including colds and influenza, much less than in London, with all the discomfort and inconveniences of the trenches. The conditions appear fundamentally favorable to men in the vigor of life and physically capable of standing exposure and hardships.

Lord Northcliff's observations confirm what has often been remarked as to the wonderful improvement in the sanitation of the armies. In the past disease has been as destructive as battles. Biology and pathology, to say nothing of surgery and therapeutics have made such strides that disease has been practically eliminated as a factor in warfare. War takes medical science into the field where the control of large masses enables it to develop the highest efficiency.

The organized and intensive applications and development of the science of preventive medicine constitute the strictly neutral work in this war by which all humanity will profit for all time to come.

The progress in another field of science was touched on at a meeting of the Association of Science Teachers on Saturday. Professor Kilburn Scott lent authority to the report that Germany is now making out of the air her whole supply of nitrates.

Prof. Scott mentioned three things as marking the outposts of science in this war. First there was the manufacture of nitrate from the atmosphere as before mentioned; second the Zeppelin, which nullified the insular position of England, and third, there was the success of the gyro compass, which solved accurate steering by battleships and submarines, It was declared by Mr. Joynson-Hicks, M. P., that within three months an English firm could build a hundred air machines that could fly for ten hours continuously and would be capable of successfully raiding the Krupp works at Essen. Mr. Joyson-Hicks was the choice of many expert judges for the air board to which Lord Cowdray was appointed. He has been agitating the question of recovering the allied supremacy in the air and it is hoped that his fine criticism will be utilized by the new board.

The Difference

"Well, George," said the president of the company to old George, "how goes it?"

"Fair to middlin' sir," George answered. And he continued to currycomb a bay horse.

"Me an' this here hoss," George said, suddenly, "has worked for your firm sixteen years."

"Well, well," said the president, thinking a little guiltily of George's salary. "And I suppose you are both pretty highly valued, George, eh?"

"H'm" said George, "the both of us was took sick last week, and they got a doctor for the hoss, but they just docked my pay.

Why not More McIntosh Apples

Ever since the first orchard was planted at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in 1888, the McIntosh apple has been under test by the Experimental Farms System and during that time much useful information has been obtained in regard to this fine variety. In very severe winters when the Fameuse apple was injured, the McIntosh remained unharmed thus proving that it is hardier than that old variety from which it is supposed to have sprung. For a long time the McIntosh apple had the reputation of being a shy bearer, but in nearly thirty years' experience with it at Ottawa it has been found to be one of the most productive varieties under test. The tree does not often bear very heavily, or overbear in any one year and then fail to bear the following year, but it is an annual bearer, as a rule, giving a good and medium crop alternately, the number of small crops being few. Following are the yields of one McIntosh tree planted at Ottawa in 1890, the first yield being recorded in 1898, the 8th year after planting. Some trees of this variety will begin to bear in the 6th or even in the 5th after planting. The yields are recorded in gallons, but if it is desired to reduce them to barrels there are 24 gallons in a standard barrel. Yield of one McIntosh apple tree from the 8th year after planting, in gallons,—17½, 26, 37, 6½, 71½, 94, 12, 109, 41½, 184, 50, 166, 55, 145, 112, 44. 149½, a total of 1432½ gallons from 19 seasons or an average of a little over 3 barrels per year, from one tree,

It has been found by experiment that in Ontario, at least, the McIntosh is self-sterile or, at least, partically so and to ensure a good set of fruit there should be another variety or varieties, blooming at the same time, growing near it.

The McIntosh apple is subject to the Apple Scab Fungus, and in some seasons if the trees are not sprayed the proportion of No. 1 fruit will be very small. Thus at Ottawa, it was found necessary to spray the trees six times with lime-sulphur wash to ensure clean fruit, but the reward was a large proportion of No. 1 fruit in a year when there was, in many quarters, a very small proportion of No. 1 grade on unsprayed or poorly sprayed tree. As a rule, three or four sprayings are sufficient,

Owing to its very high quality and the great beauty of the fruit, it is believed that the demand for McIntosh apples will be an ever-increasing one. There are many relatively poor apples of the same season still being grown which will have to, in time, give place to McIntosh. Today there is no other apple which commands as high a price in Canada No. 1 fruit being worth between seven and eight dollars a barrel, and in years of plenty the price of McIntosh apples is relatively high. Although it is in good enough condition to be eaten in October, it is not in its prime until November. Unlike the Fameuse which has a relatively short season when it is at its best, the McIntosh remains in fine condition until February, and in good cellars keeps even until March. In parts of Canada where the autumn is warmer than it is at Ottawa it ripens earlier and does not keep so late.

Following is a detailed description of this apple.

Originated with John McIntosh, Dundela, Dundas Co., Ont. in 1796, the first tree remaining alive until 1908. Fruit above medium, roundish, slightly ribbed skin pale yellow, almost entirely covered with crimson, dark on sunny side and brighter on rest of fruit: dots few, small, yellow, distinct but not conspicuous, cavity of medium depth and width; stem short, stout, sometimes medium length and moderately stout, basin narrow, almost smooth, medium depth: calyx partly open, flesh white and yellow, crisp very tender, melting, juicy, sub-acid sprightly with a pleasant aromatic flavour, core of medium size, open: quality very good to best, has a strong aroma season November to February, or later, and earlier in the season in the warmest parts of Canada, tree hardy, and a strong moderately upright grower.

Cornwall Man Objected to Search

On Thursday last the proprietor of a store in the North End of the town appeared before Police Magistrate Danies on a charge of refusing admission to Mr. Angus McDonald, the license inspector for this district, when that gentlemen desired to search his premises to ascertian if any liquor was in storage. The visit was made on Dec. 15th, and because the inspector did not present a search warrant his request was denied. He reported the matter to the Department in Toronto and was informed that he would be justified in taking action, as a search warrant was not necessary in case of a public place. He afterwards procured a warrant but found no liquor, and entered action for being refused admission to the place. The owner pleaded guilty and was fined $50.00 and costs or $60.35 in all.

Why he Supported the Fund

The task of raising the Canadian Patriotic Fund is not all serious work. It is illumined here and there by flashes of humor, and everywhere there crop out touches of human nature that add zest to the work.

Take the case of a Quebec county councillor. His council had been asked to contribute a certain sum yearly, and an officer of the Fund called on him to secure his endorsation of the proposal. He listened to an explanation of the details, and then started to estimate what the new taxation would imply to him. Then he said;

"All right. I'll vote for the grant. I find that it will cost me eight dollars,—but I'd rather pay even twenty dollars than go to the war."

GERMANS NOT AT HOME BUT LEFT DOOR OPEN.

With the British Armies in the Field Sunday, Jan. 7—There were several unusual and rather perplexing things about the raid made by English and Scottish troops yesterday afternoon on the east side of Arras. It is unusual, for instance, to carry a raid into a third line of a complete system of German trenches involving a front of About 2,000 yards, with only a score or two of casualties on the British side. It is not often in the war that the British soldiers have entered the German lines so easily. It was unusual, also that there was next to nothing of machine gun fire—only one machine gun, which fired the best of twenty shots, and then was silenced. Finally, it was strange that during the attack the German barrage was erratic and feeble.

The attack stopped without retaliation. Are the Germans short of ammunition for a time, or nursing it for future use? Are they holding some parts of the line so thinly and so weakly (there are boys of the 1917 class in some of their front lines) that the British troops can walk throughout without a fight and search around for the Germans without finding them? One would be tempted to build hopes on yesterday's experience if one had not been taught time and time again that behind the local weakness is ferocious strength. Still even local weakness is noteworthy. The Germans cannot afford to be weak against the British anywhere.

Certainly the Germans were frightened yesterday when the British bombardment began in the morning and later, when over more than a mile long front a smoke barrage, very dense and slow moving, rolled over the British lines toward them mixing with the mist, It was a thick, white mist, and the day was without much light. There were red flashes of the British batteries at work and over the German lines red flashes of bursting shells. Then all along the German front, stretching east of Arras, other lights glowing red through the mist and smoke, burned away like embers tinting into white and ash and rose, again scarlet as danger signals. The German infantry were sending up rockets of distress, a "S. O. S." call to the guns.

"They had the wind-up properly," said an officer conducting one part of the British operation. "They did not know at what point of the line they would be raided. For more than a mile British shells, screaming overhead, were bursting over their trenches in one greet flash and roar. It was a few minutes after three o'clock in the afternoon when the Scottish and English troops went forward over No Man's Land. Overhe d British aeroplanes were droning and signalling to the guns. One stopped like an eagle, then flew low, no higher than 550 yards above the German lines, searching the position. There was an uncanny lack of opposi ion in that position against the advancing troops. They were listening as they walked for the chatter of machine gun somewhere. It began with a quick patter of bullets. Then there was nothing more of that."

They started forward over the slime of No Man's Land for any standing wire, but the German entanglements had all been cut down by the British heavies and field guns—from ten to fifteen yards in breadth and strands had been levelled and destroyed. The men had open gates before them. The trenches had gone, too. They were smashed utterly into rubbish heaps and shell craters. Some German heads were seen, but uot much sign of human life having dwelt there. The English troops on the short front of attack found themselves under a bombing fire on the flank. The German soldiers who had fled from the front line were lobbing over grenades across traverses.

When this happened one English detachment, which had gone on to the second line, thought it prudent to get back to the first, but the officer commanding the third detachment went on with his sergeant and a party to the third line. He pushed on, bombing two dugouts on the way, and then got up on the parapet of the third German trench to observe the surrounding country. As he could not observe any Germans, finding nothing else to do, he came back again—the German guns wers barraging their own front line—and passed his men through, lying out in shell craters till dusk before going home to tea.

A Scottish officer, leading a party to the furtherest of the sector at his part of the German trench system, had a similar experience. From first to last he saw no living German. He led his party forward through the first and second lines, which were both blown to bits, with all their entanglements He found two dugouts, undamaged, blew them up, then advanced with four men to the third line, where there were two more dugouts still existing. These he destroyed also, and then says this Scottish officer:

"I sat down on the parapet for some considerable time and smoked a cigarette."

The Germans were firing from Tilloy, but not heavily. Somewhere out in the shell craters German snipers lay, firing a shot or two now and then, The officer saw no use in staying longer, as the raid was not for the capture of ground. The cigarette finished, he strolled back to the second line. His men were prowling about shell craters, searching for Germans, and finding some dead ones, but not many living. The Scottish officer had brought a French hunting horn with him a queer thing to take into a fight, but quite useful. He blew on it "Tantara, Tantara," and called off the chase.

So the raid ended and there was no retaliation yesterday or today.

Large Entry for Winter Fair.

The Ottawa Winter Fair which will be held in Ottawa from January 16th to 19th will be one of the best in the history of the Show. The entries in all departments are up to the mark of previous years and in some cases exceed all previous records. Horses will be exceptionally strong, with a much larger entry than in 1916. There is a record entry in dairy cattle for the Three Day Dairy Test, with almost 100 animals competing. The dairy test will be a special feature this year, and the exhibit will form the finest display of high producing animals brought together in Canada for some time. Farmers interested in dairying cannot afford to miss seeing this record exhibit of dairy cattle.

Entries are also exceptionally good in sheep and swine departments and the poultry show will be equal to the record set last year when over 4000 birds were exhibited.

An excellent lecture programme has also been arranged for.

Died in Brother's Arms.

Cornwall, January 5.—Mrs. Robert Roberts has received a letter from her son, Pte. Edgar Roberts, dated somewhere in France, in which he refers to the death of his brother, Pte. Fred Roberts, who was killed in action. He says his brother was killed instantly, and died in his arms, apparently suffering no pain. He writes: "I tried to get him to speak, but he was gone. I was right next to him in the trench, when he was hit. I was the lucky one. It will be a hard blow to you mother, but you must bear up."

Capable John Bull

John Bull is a versatile old fellow. He can carry on war; he can finance his allies: he can mobilize his whole nation, and midst it all he can discuss the proper housing of farm laborers and artizans as calmly as if he had nothing else in the world to think about. No matter what happens the old gentleman has always time to attend to something else.

Germany Must Explain

But Germany was the assailant, she still is, and has never stated her object in making the assault. She must now tell the reason and the purpose of it. It would be absurd for the president or any one else, seeing one man assault another, to call on the assailed man to state the purpose for which he was defending himself, and the terms on which he was willing to stop. The purpose for which the Allies are fighting is to defeat the purpose whatever it may be, for which Germany has assailed them. That purpose the president now demands; and he demands it because the war menaces us because its continuance is likely to draw us in.

A Dollar an Inch.

Seth Woodbury was a tight-fisted hard hearted old farmer. His brother William dying, the neighbors said from lack of proper treatment, Seth hitched up and drove into town to have a notice about his death inserted in the weekly newspapers.

"There ain't no charges, be there? he asked, anxiously.

"Oh, yes, indeed," answered the advertising manager; "our price is a dollar an inch."

"Cracky!" muttered the old man, "an' Bill six foot two!"

WHY I should select a Mutual Policy!

FIRST -Because in a mutual company the assets are the sole property of the Policy-holders.

2—Because in a mutual company ALL of the profits go to the policy-holders.

3—Because in a mutual company the executive is directly responsible to the policy-holders: ALL the directors are policy-holders' directors.

4—Because mutual companies hold the record for stability.

5—Because mutual companies have all the "safety-first" features of stock companies with mutuality thrown in.

6—Because the largest American companies are already mutual or seriously considering mutualization, and already more than one-half of legal reserve insurance is mutual.

7—Because mutual companies are not built up in the interest of the FEW, but of the MANY.

Whyte, of Scott, Sask., and Miss Edith Newton, at home, Mr. Newton's many friends extend their deepest sympathy in his bereavement.

Be Faithful in Small Things

The men in the trenches, and the wives and mothers of these men, are the real heroes of the war, and it is foolish to pretend that any other work, however arduous, can rank with theirs. But those of us who are not privileged to serve in great things must not suppose that we are relieved from doing our share. There is a temptation to such as cannot make the great sacrifices to sink into apathy and make no sacrific at all. Such an attitude should be strictly guarded against. When great things are required of us, we must be faithful in great things, and when small things are required of us, we must be faithful in small things.
