Finch Twp. taxes jump 16.5 per cent

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CRYSLER — Finch Township residents can blame the county boards of education for the hefty double digit tax increases that go with this year's budget, Township Reeve Don Shane said.

Finch residents will be paying 16.5 per cent more in taxes this year.

A public school supporter whose property is assessed at $4,000, will be paying $113.86 more than last year and a separate school supporter will be paying $135.95 more, township clerk treasurer Arnott F..ey said.

Shane said tax bills will be sent out showing how the money is to be spent, how much the school boards are getting "because there's not too much spending in the township."

Shane stressed that increases in municipal levies were minimal.

The municipal levy is being increased to $244,000 up $16,000 (7 per cent) from $228,000 last year.

The overall budget set for the township, including what is going to the school boards and county, is $2.3 million, up about $300,000 from last year.

The combined school board's levy increase is at 23 per cent more than last year or $115,000. "That's where all the problem is," Shane said.

Shane said the township was able to keep the municipal levy increase low because the township isn't planning any bridge building this year.

However, road paving will be cutback this year, he said. The provincial government has frozen unconditional grants to municipalities, restricting projects such as road paving.

"What we asked for was for paving, instead they gave us money to buy another new truck which we weren't intending to buy this year, But I guess we have to go ahead and buy it" Shane said.

Apart from $730,000 the township will have to pass to the school boards and county, the township's biggest expenditures will be, $511,000, including grants, to do road work, $398,000 for tile drainage work and $275,000 (85 per cent funded by grant) to the Crysler sewer and water project.

Shane doesn't think there will be a negative reaction to the tax increases once township residents see where the money is going. "I think we're going to do wonderful" compared to other municipalities, he said.

Shane acknowledged that some critics felt the township should increase its spending. "I don't think we need it. I don't know if it will create a problem another year...wait until next year," he said.

He argued that lower taxes would attract more homebuilders and industry to Finch Township. "People look for a township with low taxes. That's what they all like," Shane said.

Village sued for sewer back-up

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — A Queen Street resident is suing the Village of Chesterville for damage caused to his home when sanitary sewers overflowed and flooded his basement in March.

Murray Droppo, of 209 Queen St. West, said he is tired of waiting for the village to compensate him for the damage to his furnished basement.

His basement was covered with up to 30 inches in sewer mud which caused thousands of dollars in damage to the basement when heavy rainfall caused the sanitary sewers at the fairground to overflow March 15. He says village council is to blame for the flood.

But he said council served notice to him a week after the flood stating that the village wasn't liable for the mess caused.

"Someone is responsible, but the town council is not taking any responsibility," he said.

"That's the problem. There is no doubt in my mind that the town council is holding this thing up and have from day one," Droppo said...

Village Reeve Jim Cook places the responsibility for the flood on the Chesterville Agriculture Society. He said the sewers which serve the annual Chesterville Fair were not capped properly to prevent rain water from entering the sanitary sewer last August.

"The adjuster for our insurance, the Ministry of Environment and our solictor, all have advised us that the village is not liable or that the fair board is liable to these people," Cook said.

Five homes on Queen Street near the fairgrounds had varying amounts of mud spill into their basements on the morning of March 15.

Paul Monast of 217 Queen St. said he is still cleaning up the mess in his basement. He's assessed the damage in his basement at $600 so far.

He too felt the village has a responsibility to the victims of the mudflow and it is the village's responsibility to go after the fair board for compensation.

"We pay our water and sewer to the town. It's up to the town's insurance to pay us for them to collect from the other (fairboard's) insurance."

Droppo agreed with Monast. He said the village was insured against such a flood and could have compensated the victims and then gone after the group that caused the flood.

He also said the village should pressure the fairboard to respond to the sutuation.

"They think the fairboard's responsible, but they've never put any pressure on them. They're not going to come up with anything as long as nobody pressures them. And village council hasn't done it," he said.

Droppo, Monast and another Queen Street resident affected by the flood, Lorne Jordan, took their grievance to council May 10.

"The only thing they could come up with there, was that they were going to put a little pressure on the fairboard insurance company," Droppo said.

Cook, though, said the village has been trying to help the flood victims."

"We have been trying to get information out of the fairboard's insurance adjuster. I mean we're shocked at the delay that the fairboard's adjuster and insurers have taken.

"It should have been settled a long time ago. It's gone on too long as far as I'm concerned," he said.

The fairboard's insurance adjuster, Tom O'Brien of Nordik adjusters, Ottawa, wouldn't comment on the delay.

Fairboard president Scott Errat denied the agricultural society has received written notification about the flood damage.

"We have received no official word as we are the cause of any problem, so we are doing nothing as of yet," he said. Erratt defended the board's inaction saying, "we feel if we jump the gun too fast, we're putting ourselves as being guilty."

But he said he was aware of the damage caused to some of the homes by the sewer flood.

Droppo was also angry that village officials failed to notify residents of the flood when it occurred.

He said work crews were cleaning up the street but didn't warn residents. "They never notified anybody. They didn't do anything."

Droppo said his basement was still dry when he left for work at 7:30 a.m. and was notified by a neighbor at 10:30 a.m. of the problem.

Village officials offered help in the early evening, but by that time, he said most of the sludge pumped out of his home, he said.

Another Queen Street resident had a similar complaint. Sue McMillan of 213 Queen St. West said, "nobody seemed to be doing anything at the time. That's what made us mad."

Newsbriefs

Break and enter

LONG SAULT — The Long Sault detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is investigating a break and enter at a private residence on Concession 4 in Finch Township in which $3,100 in goods were taken. Police said the residents of the home returned at 6 p.m. Saturday, after a week-long vacation to find a number of articles stolen. Taken were a stereo component, speakers and cassette system, a video cassette recorder, a computer and a printing machine. Police said entry was gained to the house through an attached garage. Thieves then crawled into the home's attic and knocked a hole through the ceiling to get into the living area. Police have no suspects. Const. Tim Millar of the Long Sault detachment is investigating the incident.

Impaired charges

LONG SAULT — Long Sault and district RIDE teams laid six impaired driving charges over the Victoria weekend in various spot checks through Stormont County. Police also issued three 12-hour licence suspensions and laid nine other liquor related charges. Const. Bernie Gadbois of the Long Sault detachment said the weekend blitz was a warning to drivers police are still cracking down on drinking and driving. "It was a warning. It was the RIDE program, the RIDE team," he said.

Yard sale

MORRISBURG — The Upper Canada Playhouse is having a yard sale Saturday, May 27, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the playhouse tent theatre on Upper Canada Road. The sale is being held to raise money for the playhouse. The yard sale will feature an auction of tube cars used in the "401 Show", a play the theatre group staged, and a Chevy truck prop from the Lobby. The sale is a one day event only. Refreshments will be served.

Winchester OPP said two cars were northbound on St. Lawrence when the lead car, driven by Christopher Barkley, RR1 Williamsburg, slowed down and was rear-ended by a car driven by Bradley Johnstone, RR1 Winchester. Johnstone was charged with following too closely to another vehicle.

Winchester Twp. residents get 12 per cent tax hike

Greg Kielec

MAPLE RIDGE — Winchester Township residents will be paying an average of $231 more per household in their municipal taxes this year.

Township council recently passed its budget with a 12 per cent increase in municipal taxes. The amount taken from ratepayers is up to $321,500 from the $290,000 taken in taxes last year.

Low tax increases passed by previous councils and increases in levies from the United Counties and the two school boards are the reasons for the tax hike, said township Reeve Claude Cousineau.

The school boards took the largest portion of the budget with a levy of $1.3 million, up from $1 million last year. The counties levy also went up from $181,500 to $198,900.

Cousineau said getting the budget down to just a 12 per cent increase was no easy task for council. "We've been working on it for three or four weeks," he said.

An accountant was hired by the township to find areas to cut down in the budget, but it was the school and counties levies that accounted for the major part of the increase, he said.

"We can't do nothing about them," he said. "They request what they need and we have to pay."

And increases won't be lower next year unless the province provides more funding to Ontario municipalities, he said.

"This is not catching up. This is just basically providing the services we have been providing," he said.

And next year doesn't look any more promising if the funding situation remains the same, he said. "I can't envisage a whole lot of changes down the road either."

Cousineau said last year's township budget should have had a higher tax increase to lessen some of the blow for taxpayers this year. There should have been a 7.2 per cent tax increase last year instead of the 4.8 per cent increase passed by council, he said.

The 12 per cent increase this year is the largest he has seen since he has been on council, he said.

Wyman Barton, Winchester Township deputy reeve, said he hopes the increase will help avert high tax hikes in the future. But if unconditonal grants from the province stay frozen at the same level, the high tax increases will continue, he said.

"I'm very concerned about the increase at all levels," he said. "I keep wondering where the money is being spent at the provincial level."

The township's tax hike is in line with increases in other municipalities across Eastern Ontario, he said. Increases in the municipalities range from nine per cent to 25 per cent, he said.

Council didn't have to make any major cuts to the budget, but it is considering using lot levies to raise more money for the township, Barton said.

But he said he was against the use of lot levies as a fund raising method. Lot levies would be a regressive tax, making it more difficult for young people to buy their first home, he said.

Osnabruck gives residents a 17 per cent 1989 tax bite

OSNABRUCK CENTRE — Everyone knew it was coming, the only question was just how bad would it be.

Most Osnabruck Township residents will say this year's tax bite is especially painful when they get their municipal tax bills featuring a double digit increase of about 17 per cent this year.

Township council was expected to pass its budget Tuesday night with an average tax increase of $261 on a township home assessed at $5,000 with water and sewer listed as a public school supporter.

Separate school supporters will get off only slightly better, facing a $232 increase if they are on a township water and sewer system.

Township Reeve Stewart Hart said council had no other avenue to take but to pass a budget with a 17 per cent increase. "We worked on it for about three days," said Hart, who labelled it as one of the toughest budgets he's seen while on council.

Repairs to the 10 year old township office were put on hold, and large cuts were made in expenditures for the township water front development and the development lands north of Ingleside.

A plan to put aside money for a joint use recreation project at Rothwell-Osnabruck School, to be undertaken by the township and the county school board, was also nixed.

Hart said a $40,000 deficit in the township road budget as well as a large deficit in the township landfill site operation were two reasons for the large tax increase.

He also blamed a large increase in the levies from the United Counties and the two SD&G school boards for the budget increase.

The levy increases, coupled with a freeze in unconditional grants from the province, took a major bite out of the township budget, he said.

"It's a shame. You can't do anything," he said. "You've got to bite the bullet. You can't continue on like that."

The township hopes to cut down on one of its major expenditures this year, the township landfill site. Council wants to reduce the amount of soil it uses to cover the dump. The large amount of soil being used is one reason for the dump deficit, he said.

"It's back on the site itself that's costing us money," he said. It's not the picking up or delivering of the garbage to the dump that is costing the township.

Township Deputy Reeve Carson Elliott said council will stress to ratepayers that they are not at fault for the increase.

"I think we're going to definitely explain to the ratepayers we're not responsible for the entire increase," he said, adding, "dollar for dollar" the municipality can account for every expenditure it will make this year.

He said the high tax increase may bring about one positive thing. With the increased expenditures on the township landfill site, council will likely seriously look at a recycling program within the next six months.

Land fill site costs 'a real drain'

be resolved, he said.

The cost of operating the landfill site "is totally out of the realm of the average ratepayer," he said. "And that is a real drain for the ratepayers."

But he added, the township's tax increase is not that out of the ordinary when compared to increases in other area municipalities. "Basically, it's like practically any other budget in the area," he said.

The cutbacks made in order to keep the increase at 17 per cent struck a major blow to township recreation, he said, cutting funding for the waterfront development park from $10,000 to $3,500. And $25,000 to be set aside for the joint recreation project at R-O School with the school board was done away with altogether.

Elliott blamed the municipal tax dilemma on the province for freezing unconditional grants while at the same time increasing costs for municipalities.

One major burden for municipalities in the hiring of consultants, he said. "You have to have a consultant for everything," he said. "They (the provincial Liberals) are a government of consultants, not a government of action."

Hart agreed that the use of consultants, coupled with increased inflation, is placing an increased burden on municipalities. Inflation is "getting out of hand" and "every time you turn around, a consulting firm has to be hired," he said.

And with the province wanting municipalities to raise more tax dollars, ratepayers could be hit with the same type of increase next year, he said. "I guess that is what they're going to have to expect."

Since he began as reeve, the township has went from having a $180,000 surplus to having a deficit, Hart said. He hopes the deficit will be eliminated by budget time next year.

Variety packs punch in reunion

Tagwi celebrates 15th birthday with a smorgasbord of events

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

TAGWI — Students both old and new joined together to celebrate Tagwi Secondary School's 15 year reunion over the weekend.

The reunion featured a wine and cheese party and dance Friday night, a "oldtimers" basketball game between former students and teachers Saturday morning followed by a barbeque and variety show in the afternoon.

Saturday night was capped off with a banquet and dance at the Angus Grey Hall in Maxville and Sunday morning was started off with a pancake breakfast, followed by an ecumenical church service.

Larry Poirier, Tagwi school teacher and one of the organizers for the event, said he was pleased with the way the weekend turned out. "It was an interesting, interesting kind of weekend," he said.

The highlight of the weekend was the Saturday night banquet and dance, which drew about 250 people. "We had a large crowd at the supper Saturday night," and an even better crowd at the dance, he said.

"I think everybody had a good time," said Tagwi principal Jane Wright. "They (the events) all went very well."

She agreed that the Saturday night banquet and dance was probably the high point of the weekend reunion. "I think the banquet and dance was the highlight," she said.

She said the people at the dance spent most of the time reminiscing about days at the school and catching up with the past, spending little time actually dancing.

The crowd enjoyed itself so much, organizers had a difficult time getting people to pull themselves away to leave after the dance was over, she said.

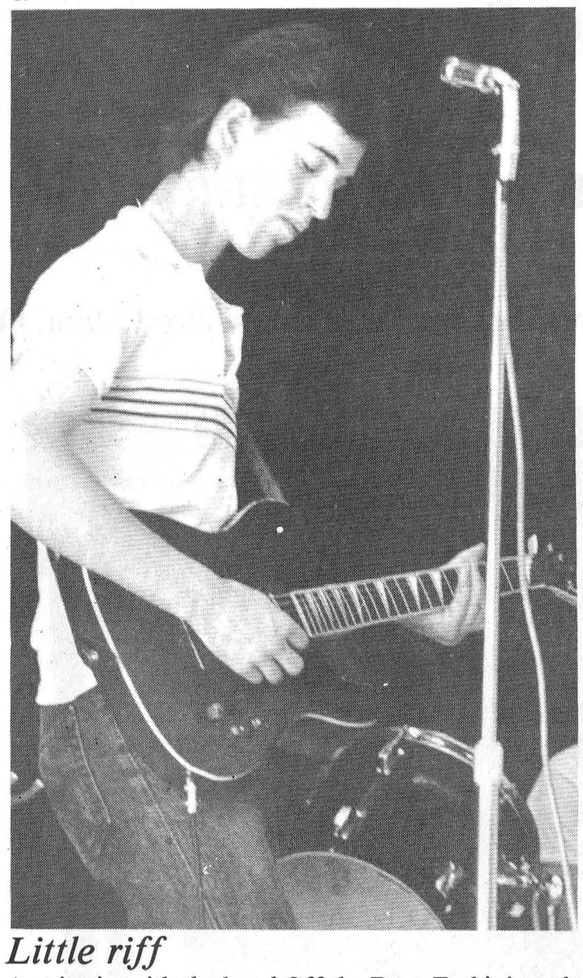
One of the high points of Saturday afternoon was a fashion show highlighting styles from both the past and the present, including Tagwi school team uniforms, both old and new.

But she said she had hoped more people would have turned out for the event. The school gymnasium contained only a smattering of teachers and former students attending the variety show.

The wine and cheese party on Friday night managed to attract 100 people. Wright said the low turnout was because many people from outside the area used Friday night to travel to the reunion.

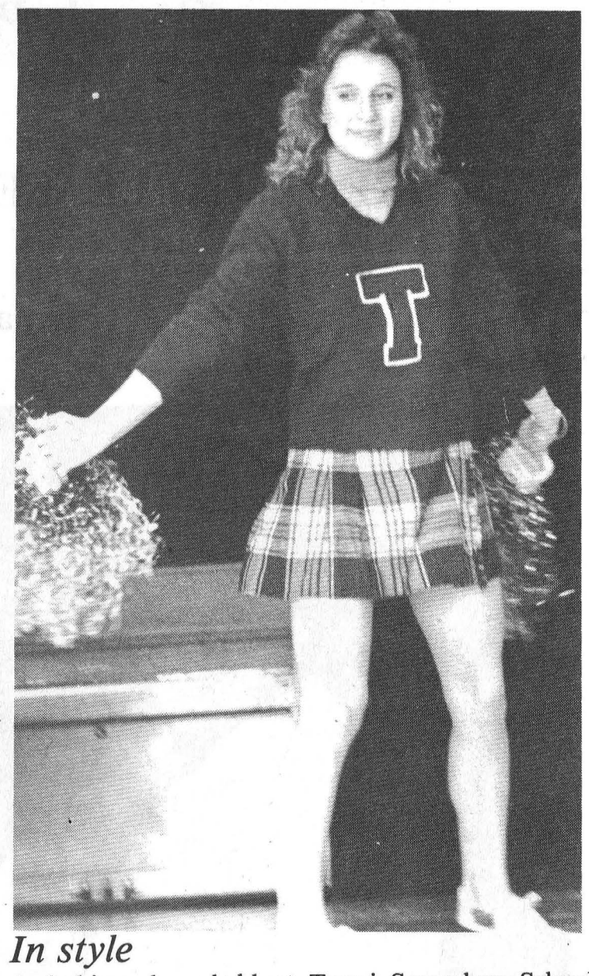
She said in most instances, people that attended the events enjoyed what they saw. "From what I have heard, everyone had a good time."

She said the school will likely wait another 10 years before holding another reunion.



Little riff

A guitarist with the band Off the Deep End injected a little rock and roll atmosphere into the Tagwi Secondary School 15-year reunion celebrations held at the school over the weekend. The band, comprised of students presently attending the school, kept the crowd's toes tapping with a few older and a few newer selections.



In style

A fashion show held at Tagwi Secondary School Saturday in conjunction with its 15 year reunion showed a little bit of the old and the new in terms of school clothing. Above, a former student shows off one of the uniforms worn by cheerleaders in the earlier days of the school.

Finch steam show set for June 24, 25

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

FINCH — Predicting how many people will come to the Finch Antique and Steam Show June 24 and 25 is no easy task because of an unknown variable in the prediction equation -- the weather.

Last year a rain storm with high winds discouraged a lot of potential visitors from attending the show.

"Weather is a big, big factor," organizer Donald MacLean said. But the unpredictable weather hasn't discouraged organizers from putting to gether a show which should feature more exhibits than last year, MacLean said.

There will be two new feature exhibits this year. On Saturday, June 24 the show will feature garden tractor-pulls and on Sunday antique tractor pulls will be showcased, he said.

"With the tractor pull this year, I expect to go well over 200 (exhibits) -- weather permitting," MacLean said. Last year's show had 175 to 200 exhibits.

MacLean was weary of predicting the crowd turnout, but hoped a few thousand visitors would attend.

Exhibits will be judged, he said. "It's all for fun. We're not getting into a real big competition like Metcalfe where they have great big tractor pulls."

The antique tractor pull exhibition is open to any tractor built before 1960. "Some of the people are still using these tractors as a third or fourth tractor," MacLean said.

The show will also have exhibits of cars, woodcutting machinery, threshing machines, and antique cars and trucks.

There will also be a bar and dance, and auction on Saturday night. Admission to the show will be $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Seniors welcome member

INGLESIDE — President Rita Partridge welcomed a new member to Senior Citizens Club No. 283, Ingleside, May 15.

The members were reminded of the many coming events to be held in May and June. The annual Tea and Sale will take place June 3 at 2 p.m. at St. Matthew's Presbyterian Hall, with a nearly-new table added to the usual number.

Ingleside Seniors will hold a walkathon May 26 and all seniors in the area will be welcome.

The Zone Rally at Matilda will be on June 21. Invitations to join the Long Sault Seniors at two picnics this summer, and to participate in Participation Day at Rothwell-Osnabruck School May 31 were also extended. The members agreed to sponsor an area child at Kamp Kagama.

Door prizes drawn during lunch were won by Enid Wasson and Doreen Winters.

Calf club holds meeting

WINCHESTER — The third meeting for the East Dundas Dairy Calf Club was held at Brian Enright's farm near Winchester.

The members started the night off by reading the 4-H pledge, led by Mr. Ian Porteous.

After, we moved into the barn and were separated by juniors and seniors to judge cows.

The juniors learned the basics of judging. The seniors, after, read their reasons to the leaders and junior members. Maria Enright was the best at giving her reasons.

After judging members moved the meeting to the house to work on their book work. Maria read the minutes, and then changed our next meeting to June 15 at 8 p.m. at Herman VanWylicks.

The book work was completed and members were all ready to go home after enjoying the refreshments and accommodations offered to the club by Mr. and Mrs. Brian Enright.

Canada Post Corporation

"WE ARE VERY PLEASED WITH THE SERVICE HERE."

Margaret Rickert, Area Councillor, Alma, Ontario

Alma Area Councillor, Margaret Rickert, is one of a growing number of municipal leaders to endorse Retail Postal Outlets. Over ninety percent of our customers say service at Retail Postal Outlets is as good as or better than the former post office.

COMMUNITY BENEFITS

In many rural communities across Canada, where postal services have been converted to a local business, community leaders appreciate the benefits the town receives from increased access to postal products and services.

Overall the change from a corporately-operated post office to a Retail Postal Outlet run by local business means:

Longer hours of service, often including weekends and evenings.
More outlets. Over the next few years the number of outlets will grow from 5,000 to 7,000 across rural Canada.
More business. Retail outlets, operated as part of a local business, help strengthen the business base of the community.

Canada Post Corporation is delivering on its promise. We're in rural Canada to stay.

Water to be tested for chemicals

WINCHESTER SPRINGS — The Ministry of Environment has agreed to test the drinking water of all residents in this hamlet following chemical contamination in area wells.

The ministry agreed to this testing during a public meeting held in Winchester Springs Thursday night.

The meeting, which was attended by more than 25 people, was held to allow the residents to voice their opinion on a control order being issued by the MoE to Lloyd Allison, the owner of Allison's Gas Bar, which is located in the hamlet along Hwy. 31.

Four wells in Winchester Springs have been contaminated with benzene and several other chemicals and MoE hydrogeologists have traced the contamination to Allison's business.

Rheal Delaquis of the MoE in Cornwall told the group that the ministry has been informed of past gas spills in 1979 and 1982 in which either tanks or lines leaked. However, since this time petroleum products have moved to surrounding residents' wells, contaminating the water.

MoE hydrogeologists verified that the contamination originated from Allison's gas bar and since Allison has ignored recommendations to clean up, he was issued a control order, said Delaquis.

Allison interjected at this point: "Rheal, I can't believe what I just heard," said a visibly angered Allison. "I put a $1,100 water system into McIntyre's place, and then got a phone call from you saying, I'm off the hook."

Delaquis agreed that the filter system on the property across the road from Allison's business worked for about a month before the water became contaminated again.

He added that in just the last six months, another well belonging to Flossie Summers, who lives just south of the McIntyre property, has been contaminated.

Allison said he had experts clean up the spill in 1982. Since then he has monitored his pumps and lines and has had no other leaks.

Last month Allison said he had his pumps monitored by Triangle Pump of Ottawa for 12 straight hours and they were considered fine.

Allison said it would have been a relief to know that his pumps were leaking so he could have fixed them. He added he didn't know how he could fix the problem if it was gas from the 1982 spill which had been contaminating the wells.

Delaquis admitted that the hydrogeologists with MoE could not tell if the contamination was from a fresh or old spill, but rather that it did originate from Allison's business and it would have to be cleaned up.

Local residents questioned the MoE's accuracy in determining the actual source of the contamination. "I remember at least three or four other gas tanks, and even a coal oil tank being around by the old store, and I don't ever remember them being taken out," said Ken Kirkwood, a long-time resident of Winchester Springs.

Delaquis said that the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations had informed the hydrogeologists there were no records of any old tanks left in the vicinity.

However, Kirkwood and other residents said they were quite certain there were other tanks around that might not have been removed. Another resident said he hated to see Allison tarred and feathered, especially if the ministry is not sure the contamination is coming from his business.

Al Symmonds, assistant director for MoE's southeast region, said he was interested in Kirkwood's comments and that the ministry would investigate the matter further.

Delaquis agreed: "People are saying there are old gas tanks all over, so we will commit ourselves to verifying this information."

However, spokesmen for the ministry said the MoE believes the hydrogeologist report is sound and they would continue with the control order process.

The control order requires Allison to provide a potable water supply, or install an adequate water treatment system capable of removing petroleum contamination from the water, to all affected households; engage a competent hydrogeological consultant to report on the effects of the contamination and engage a competent consulting engineer to study the problem and carry out the engineer's recommendations.

Allison said the ministry's control order will be a great expense for him. "I am sure it will cost me millions," said Allison. "Especially if they come along and dig up the road."

"I am a practical man and I want to solve the problem," he claimed. "What I am proposing is to dig 100 feet into the bed rock on my property which is behind the problem wells and connect the three properties to this good well."

"I'll do this at my expense, I just want the problem solved," said Allison, who added it was also in his best interest to have the problem resolved.

Allison himself has two wells which are contaminated.

Residents at the meeting were angry with the ministry taking so long to deal with the situation and many are concerned about their health and the contamination spreading to their wells.

Fear was also fueled by an article in Thursday's Ottawa Citizen which outlined the contamination problem in Winchester Springs. The headline for the article blared out: "Clean up ordered in cancer-causing spill."

Many residents were previously aware of the contamination problem, and that the cancer-causing chemicals such as benzene were in the water. However, they did not like the way the Citizen sensationalized the issue.

"It is obvious that this is causing mental stress," said Symmonds. The MoE will set up a program to sample quickly all the wells in the village of Winchester Springs to help calm any fears.

Residents appeared satisfied after the meeting. "I was pleased that the ministry is going to do something, and I was also glad that discussion was open both ways," one resident said. "It was good to see that people were supportive of Lloyd (Allison)."

Allison was also relieved people believe he is doing his best to remedy the situation. "I feel better," he said. "I've lived here all my life, these are my neighbors. I want them to have good water." Allison is still supplying Summers with water until he gets his new well dug and the problem solved.

One women, who did not wish to be named, saw a rather humorous side to the matter: "No one in the Springs drinks the water anyway. It is just like Mr. Kirkwood said, much of the water here is spring water, it's black, it stinks and tastes no good."

The next step in the process is a 30-day waiting period in which the MoE will wait for public comments, test the hamlet's well water and further investigate the area for other leaking tanks.

Marion Helder, 20, of Boyne Road, and her horse, an eight-year-old gelding named Prince, show off their chompers while stopped for a brief break in Chesterville last Thursday. Helder was out with a friend for an afternoon ride into town.

Education on workers' nutrition

CORNWALL — Eastern Ontario workers will be finding out how to eat their way to good health, thanks to a grant of $70,000 from the Ontario Ministry of Health.

The money is for an Eastern Ontario Health Unit project called "Nutri-Site," which will be organizing seminars on healthy eating in the workplace.

The project is one of 18 across the province chosen from 170 proposals to share more than $750,000 in new health promotion grants.

"The successful project organizers have two things in common," said Health Minister Elinor Caplan; "a firm belief in the ability of people to help themselves to a healthy life, and a finger on the pulse of their communities. Some of them are health professionals; some are not. Their contributions to preventive health care are invaluable."

IN MEMORIAM

RAINEY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Ross Rainey and a dear husband and father Leonard Rainey who departed this life May 13, 1979 and May 26, 1981 respectively.

There will always be a heartache
And often a silent tear.
But always precious memories
Of the days when you were here.
We hold you close within our hearts
And there you will remain
To walk with us throughout the years
Until we meet again.

Serious business

Students from North Dundas District High School were among the best SD&G students at the Ontario Business Education Association Competition at St. Lawrence College, Cornwall, last Wednesday. 10 SD&G schools took part in the competition. NDDHS students took the first two places in junior accounting and word processing. The first place finishers will have their tests sent to Toronto to be classed with students from the rest of Ontario. Left, Melanie Budarick, first in Junior Accounting; sitting, Caroline Mulder, first in word processing; behind, Jennifer Bloom, second in word processing and right, Pam Giles, third in Senior accounting.

NDDHS means business at competition

CHESTERVILLE — They've knocked off the competition again. Students from North Dundas District High School have continued their streak of academic excellence against other SD&G schools.

This time it was the business students that brought home the trophies. NDDHS students captured first and second place in the Junior Accounting and word processing categories of the Ontario Business Association Competition May 10.

Earlier this spring, students from NDDHS topped the United Counties in the Canadian Math Competition and a NDDHS team won the Intermediate division of the Canada Quiz competition.

Melanie Budraick, a Grade 11 student, came in first in the junior accounting categorie of the competition. She wrote an hour long multiple choice test at St. Lawrence College, Cornwall, last Wednesday.

"I was stunned because it was so hard and because we haven't done half the stuff that was on it (the test)", she said.

Grade 12 student Caroline Mulder placed first in the word processing category of the business competition. She said she didn't find her test very difficult.

"There were only four people in my competition, but I didn't think I'd place first, Mulder said.

Jennifer Bloom, also from NDDHS, placed second in the word processing. Both Mulder and Bloom wrote their tests in the computer room at NDDHS.

Mulder said she had to write some multiple choice questions and then write a letter using the computer. The letter then had to be printed out, corrected and reprinted.

Budarick said the competition supervisor, apologized to the Grade 11 students because of the difficulty of the test.

Budarick said she had to answer questions on balance sheets and income statements.

Budarick and another NDDHS student, Colin Matthew, who placed second in junior accounting, were the only two NDDHS students to compete at the junior level.

Budarick said she qualified for the competition by coming out on top at a school playoff. Then she used old contest sheets to prepare for her competition.

Lois Smith, the business study co-ordinator and teacher at NDDHS accompanied the students who went to Cornwall for the competition.

"The accounting people did very well," she said.

Smith also said the accounting test was difficult. The tests were all made up in Toronto and are part of a province-wide competition.

"The people who came first have their tests sent to Toronto and have the tests classed with the rest of Ontario, she said.

Smith expectes those results to be in sometime in June.

Two other NDDHS students came home with awards from the competition. Barbi Dowell placed first in novice keyboarding and Pam Giles placed third in senior accounting.

New liquor and beer stores will allow Finch Twp. people to beat the heat

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

FINCH — Residents here and in Crysler won't have far to go for some cold refreshment to beat the heat this summer.

Both Finch and Crysler are getting private beer and liquor outlets to be housed in existing private businesses which could be open by the end of June.

The outlets provided by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario will be located at the Finch Red and White store and the Crysler Home Centre.

The outlets are the first in a pilot project aimed at rural areas in Southern Ontario. The outlets, called agency stores by the LCBO, have been used in Northern Ontario on a trail basis, but are a new concept to this area of the province.

Both Claude Quesnel of Crysler Home Centre and Kees van Engen of Finch Red and White, are hailing the move by the LCBO as a needed step forward to make LCBO products more accessible to residents in rural areas.

Van Engen said he hopes to have the new service available within about a month. But he couldn't predict exactly when the outlet will be open because the awarding of the outlet to the store still could be appealed.

Businesses which applied for the outlet have two weeks to appeal the LCBO decision. Van Engen said he believes the decision likely will be appealed. Three Finch businesses had applied for the outlet.

He said the agency store concept is a big step forward in improving LCBO service. There is a need for an LCBO outlet in the area, he said, and he thinks where will be enough demand to support the venture.

The outlet will likely draw on communities of Avonmore, Berwick and Newington, whose residents usually go to Cornwall or Long Sault to purchase liquor and beer.

The LCBO "is slowly moving toward a more Liberal approach towards the purchase of liquor and beer" in Ontario, he said. The board's policy is moving more toward the policy used in Quebec for sale of liquor.

It isn't feasible for the LCBO to build its own outlet in the village. So having an outlet in the existing business will make liquor products more accessible without the cost of constructing a full-fledged outlet, he said.

But he doesn't think the increased accessibility of LCBO products will mean increased drinking in the area. "People that want to drink, they're going to drink anyhow. They will find it," he said.

He will mainly benefit from customers who purchase products at his while shopping at the liquor outlet, he said.

The outlet itself won't be a big money-maker for the store, he said. "We don't really make a whole lot on it."

Quesnel, said so far he has received all good comments from residents about the new liquor outlet to be located in his Crysler store. "I'm happy about it. So far, all I have is good comments."

He said the move by the LCBO to private businesses was bound to happen. "I think it had to come sooner or later," he said.

In order to purchase liquor, Crysler residents have to drive to Casselman, Embrun or Chesterville, he said. "It's not as convenient as to have it in town."

He will do renovations to his store to accommodate the new outlet, and he may even provide something full-fledged LCBO outlets don't provide, coolers to keep wine and beer cool for customers.

Providing space for the new business shouldn't pose any problem, he said. "We'll make room," he said.

He didn't think the increased accessibility of liquor will mean increased drinking. "There won't be any problem," he said. People now are more knowledgeable about the negative effects of excessive drinking and its consequences than generations in the past.

Brian James, program officer for the LCBO, said if the new stores are well received, the pilot program may be expanded to provide more stores in Eastern Ontario.

Five more agency stores will be started in Eastern Ontario within the next few months and in September, 1990, the LCBO will decide whether to go province wide with the program. So far, it looks like the program will be successful, he said. "It seems very positive so far."

He said he was pleased with the response the agency store idea received in the Finch-Crysler area. Three businesses from Finch and four from Crysler applied to have an agency store.

"We knew the community had been interested for some time because we had them on file. But it was nice to see there was that kind of participation involved in the community," James said.

The creation of the new agency stores was made possible through new selection criteria adopted by the liquor board. For southern Ontario, the board has reduced the mileage criteria, and set the minimum population at 500 people, for communities that want an agency store.

The changes mean that small towns and villages that were previously too close to an existing LCBO store or were just too small, may be able to have an outlet.

The process for selecting candidate agency stores was also changed "to make it a fair and open system." Appointments awarded to a store owner are judged by the person's past success, success of the existing business, the premises the store will be located in and the likelihood of the business achieving LCBO's customer service objectives, he said.

The stores will operate the same as regular LCBO outlets, but will carry "a far smaller selection" of products, he said. The stores will carry a "representative" selection of LCBO products, but the type of products will be tailored toward the demand in the area, he said.

He didn't think the agency stores will cause any increased liquor related infractions or increased drinking in the area.

The agency store owners will be sent to a LCBO training seminar where they will learn to deal with such situations as under-aged people trying to purchase liquor, or drunk customers.

If the LCBO receives a complaint related to the sale of liquor at the outlet, it will be investigated by the board in conjunction with the Ontario Provincial Police, he said.

THE CHESTERVILLE Record Editorial / Opinion

Under the gun

It would seem The Record has been vindicated this week in its publishing of a story about the Village of Chesterville storing a gun from a former town police constable in the town hall over the past number of years.

The Record was initially asked by Village Reeve Jim Cook not to publish the story about the gun which was kept at the municipal hall since the police position was abolished over a week ago.

The Village of Morrisburg wasn't as fortunate as Chesterville. It didn't get rid of its two guns, and they were stolen from the village office Feb. 3. The incident could have easily happened in Chesterville and while the "worst" may not have happened, the potential for danger definitely was there.

The Record was right in publishing the initial story and subsequent stories about what was being done with the gun. The gun was something paid for by the public that was potentially dangerous to the public and was housed in a public building paid for with taxpayers dollars.

Had things gone awry and the gun was stolen before council decided how to dispose of it, the whole municipality would wonder how could a lethal weapon sit in a public building for such a long time without anyone doing anything about it.

"I assume it was a hand gun, not a shotgun, not a field gun, not a mortar," said former reeve Carl Ward, who coyly refused to reveal in March, when the issue came to head, whether he was aware of the gun in the municipal hall.

Whether the gun was capable of killing one person, ten people or twenty people is not the issue. Just the fact that even one person could be harmed or that the weapon could be used in a criminal activity should have been enough to get rid of the revolver long ago.

It may not be a mortar, but the majority of people given the opportunity of standing in front of a handgun or a mortar would probably rather not pick neither. A gun can be just as lethal pointed at one person as can a mortar. All that is needed is one pull of the trigger.

The Village of Chesterville made the right decision in getting rid of the gun as quick as it could. It is one piece of history that could very well have come back to haunt it. Just ask Morrisburg village officials. It happened to them.

Greg Kielec

For the Record

Believe it or not, The Record has been criticized for getting the local angle of a local story instead of going national.

It seems strange that a newspaper be told not to research the local angle of the news story, seeing that that is where the paper's majority of readers would be -- in the local area.

Usually if there is a particular criticism of a community newspaper, it is that there isn't enough local news in its pages. That is why it is so strange that Canada Post should criticize our paper for getting the local angle on a Finch mail delivery story placed on the front page of The Record last week.

The criticism of The Record's coverage came from a Canada Post public relation's person, a former journalist, who said the corporation's public relations office in Ottawa, which handles PR for the whole country, should have had its official comments included in the story.

Never mind that Canada Post's policy on rural routes was quoted in our paper from a previous story, and the official corporation line hadn't changed since; this PR person wanted his official comments, from the corporation's official policy, that day, put in print.

This person went on to say how the article should have been written, what comments should have been included, whose comments should have been excluded and accused The Record of conjuring up a quote from Finch postmaster Mary Anne Doyle at the end of the story.

The quote said that Frank Foster, who came to the Record with the story of finally getting home mail delivery 646 days after applying to Canada Post for it, "may be sorry" for going to the media a second time with the story.

But this public relations person in Ottawa told us we shouldn't have quoted the local source in the story and told us not to bother trying to do so in the future for Canada Post stories.

If we have that little control over what we can print, the writers here at The Record might as well pack away their pens and note pads, call it a career, and let Canada Post write the newspaper. It would cost the corporation much less than the full-page advertisements they have been placing in newspapers promoting their great changes for rural mail service. And with their own writing team, they can gloss over their mail service as much as they want.

But The Record would like Canada Post to know it is not that easily intimidated and our writers won't give in and pack it up that easily. Maybe other newspapers have been bullied by the autocratic, pro-censorship tactics used by the crown corporation to further its cause in the past, but such is not the case here.

Canada Post should concentrate less on what is written in newspapers and more on what is right within the corporation. Surely the corporation should clean out its own closet before it even thinks of taking others to task.

And The Record would like Canada Post to know it stands behind the story on Foster's postal battle and the quote from Mary Anne Doyle 100 per cent.

Our paper may not be as big as the national dailies, but it is by no means a pushover. We can play hardball just as well as the Canada Post PR staff.

In this case, the assumptions by the Canada Post PR person, and his methods in addressing what he saw as a problem, are definitely out -- out to lunch.

The Women's Institute will hold a meeting on Wednesday, May 26, at 8 p.m., in the Town Hall. It will be a regular meeting open to the ladies and gentlemen of the community. Musical selections are to be furnished by home talent.

A regular meeting of the Chesterville Village Council was held in the Town Hall on the 10th. Moved by W.A. Brown, seconded by Geo. Ellis, that Emma Street from King to Main Street be opened. Moved by W.A. Brown, seconded by Chas. Hambers, that the Women's Institute be granted the sum of $10.

One evening last week, the passenger train known as the Moccasin, ran into rear of a way freight which was standing near Prescott. The wreckage caught fire, but was extinguished by the Prescott fire department before much damage could be done. The engine of the passenger train was disabled and the caboose and two freight cars were practically destroyed.

Charles Louvier, a carpenter of Paris, found it child's play to roll a tin basin between his fingers into a cylinder. On one occasion he carried off a soldier on guard who had gone to sleep in the sentry box and deposited both the box and the soldier on a low churchyard wall near by.

The domestic science course which commenced in the library last week and is continuing to the end of this week under the direction of Miss Cameron, sponsored by the Women's Institute is attracting a large number at each session. The demonstrations are particularily interesting to those responsible for the maintenance of the health of their households through the purchasing and preparation of food in the most approved and economical manner.

Yesterday morning considerable mild excitement was occasioned in town when it became known that Provincial Officer Jakeman was in town believed to be on the verge of a big clean up in the chicken stealing racket.

Three convicted chicken thieves, Harvey and Ralph Markell and Lee Lizert, Matilda Township, were arraigned before Acting County Court Judge, E.J. Reynolds in county Criminal Court, Cornwall, and were sentenced to one year definite and one year less one day's imprisonment at the Ontario Reformatory. The prisoners were severely lectured by Judge Reynolds.

After raining for the better part of a week, the lowering skies show little signs of clearing. While the downfall is not heavy, it is enough to keep the farmers off the land for the wind-up of seeding operations. Today is Ascension Thursday, too, and it is raining. The Farmer's Wife

by Wyn Thompson

Summertime.... and the living is easy, although it wasn't quite summer. It was a few days prior to the May 24th weekend. It was hot, hot as a July day.

And I was in a city parking lot - Lady and I - waiting while the Farmer had his medical check-up.

Why Lady? She had looked so forlorn when we were leaving home that I weakened and allowed her to climb aboard, as she dearly loves the car.

But I have just informed her, to the amusement of a man I had not noticed sitting in a Cherokee Chief van beside me, that it was her last trip until the cold autumn weather.

He would have been more amused had he known that she was totally deaf, even though she did wag her tail and grin as I spoke to her.

So we sat and muttered about how hot it was although we had been longing for warm weather for weeks.

All of Ottawa had taken to the out-of-doors. Lunch and sun-bathing in the parks was the order of the day. Galleries and porches were bedecked with hanging baskets of brightly coloured flowers while the streets and avenues were awash with humans in brightly coloured costumes. The outdoor cafes sprouted overnight and were packed with customers.

Appointment over, we drove along Riverside Drive and admired the profusion of tulip colour. So did hundreds of others....of all ages. There were bus tours of citizens ranging from kindergarten age to senior age.

We continued on home to Hill House through a countryside bathed in green colouring, of varied hues. These hot days would surely unfurl the reluctant leaves.

As we turned in our driveway, I remarked that our lawn was bathed in the yellow colouring, of dandelions, that is, although it had been mowed the evening before.

Winter was hard on the lawn and shrubs so a great deal of out-of-door work awaits us, as do the mosquitoes. The countryside is swarming with them but no black flies to date.

I became a bit grumpy as I opened the windows to cool the house and was met with the incessant hum of mosquitoes outside the screens while hearing from the television screen, "He shoots, he scores."

"I'm not even going to watch the game," I informed the Farmer, "in fact, I will put plugs in my ears!"

"How come? You enjoy hockey," he replied.

"In the proper season, yes, but in summer, no! It's a winter sport and I go with the seasons!"

"Well, spring's a bit late this year," he laughed, "just look out the window at the leaves."

I picked up a gardening book and wished that I, like a genie, could wriggle my nose and have a back and front lawn as pictured in its pages!

However, with the second budget so recently tucked under our belts we may be thankful we still have a home, as our governments tackle the so-called excesses of our past. Hopefully, they will tackle more of their own in the next budgetary go-round.

Now, with the budgets and hockey being dealt with, I will settle myself to enjoy the summer doldrums.

Soon the strawberries will be ripe for the picking, I think, as I drift off to sleep, stealing one last peak at Don Cherry adorned in high white collar and black and white striped tie, expounding his theories on what had just happened on the ice below.

Morning dawned clear and hot and still. A farmer was spreading manure.

"Farmer's gold," the Farmer stated, as I wriggled my nose and sipped my coffee.

"At least it's not the red tide we experienced in Florida for a few days," I replied.

We have never heard of the red tide until it dealt us a ghastly blow at Clearwater in early April. Eyes watering, sniffling, coughing, sneezing, we learned fast.

Predicting how long a red tide will remain in any area is impossible, we were told by Vi Stewart of the Florida Marine Research Institute in St. Petersburg.

The Clearwater assistant city manager said there wasn't much the city could do about private property but they picked up about 20 tons of fish and debris on one Saturday, Sunday and Monday alone.

Seafood lovers were advised not to eat oysters and shellfish from waters where the red tide was found because they could be toxic to humans. The organisms that cause the red tide are also toxic to fin fish, so we layed off fish.

The red ride gets its name from the millions of toxic organisms called Ptychodiscus brevis that bloom from time to time in Florida waters and turn the water a reddish brown.

The blooms usually spread over hundreds of miles and extend from the surface to the gulf floor. Researchers have devised a method of stopping the red tide in experimental tanks but the cost to apply such a method over a wide area would be prohibitive.

There is also the possibility that killing the plankton that cause the red tide would interfere with the entire ocean food chain.

So we coughed and sneezed along with the best of them. But, I'll take Farmer's Gold any day!

Defensive driving applies to cyclists too: bicycle rodeo

CRYSLER — While it was too hot Friday afternoon for students at Notre-Dame de St. Rosaire primary school in Crysler to really concentrate on work indoors, it was just right for them to learn about bicycle safety.

Virtually all 135 students from Notre-Dame du St. Rosaire took advantage of the 30 degree celsius weather and brought their bicycles to a bicycle rodeo conducted by the Crysler Optimist Club.

All the cyclists had their bikes safety-checked and then took a series of skills tests to determine their cycling abilities.

Although this is the fourth year the Crysler Optimists have held a bicycle rodeo, it's the first one done on a week day.

"During the school week, it's better, because you get more kids out here," Cecile Desormeaux, an Optimist Club member, said.

It was also the first time the rodeo in Crysler was done with the help of the Ontario Provincial Police. Constable Bernie Gadbois inspected the children's bicycles and marked off any defects that needed attention.

The Crysler rodeo was one of two held in the area at the end of last week organized by area Optimist Clubs.

A rodeo was also held in Finch on Saturday, attracting about 40 young cyclists.

In the rodeos each cyclist had an inspection card provided by the Ministry of Transportaion and Communications and a list of areas to be inspected including brakes, tires, pedals, reflectors and bells.

The children are required to take the inspection cards home so their parents know what has to be repaired or adjusted, Rodeo organizer, Guy Saumure, said.

"It's to prevent them from having accidents," he said.

A number of Optimists were on hand at each rodeo conducting various skills tests and providing refreshments.

After the safety inspection, the children were required to do figure-eights within the white lines marked on the pavement. The next stage tested their ability to drive in a straight line. That was followed by an obstacle course that weaved around tires that were layed out. Finally the cyclists were required to stop at a stop sign.

The tests are designed by Optimists International and are outlined in a guide book, Saumure said.

For Gadbois, helping service clubs conduct bicycle safety rodeos isn't something new.

"We do assist as much as we can because bike safety is very important and we have to get that message to the young people," he said.

Gadbois said cyclists have to follow the same rules as cars under the Ontario Highway Traffic Act.

He also emphasized defensive driving for cyclists because the cyclist has less protection than the driver of a car. "So if there is a collision (between a car and bicycle) a bicycle rider will certainly lose," Gadbois said.

Gadbois attributed many accidents involving bicycles to cyclists who don't abide by safety rules.

"That's a pet project of the Optimist club to promote bicycle safety," Gadbois said.

Saumure is convinced the safety course is beneficial to the children. "They know the rules," he said.

Before the outdoor safety rodeo, the children wrote in-class tests on bicycle safety.

Saumure said it cost the Optimist Club only $300 to stage this year's rodeo, because of the volunteer input by the Optimist members and the OPP.

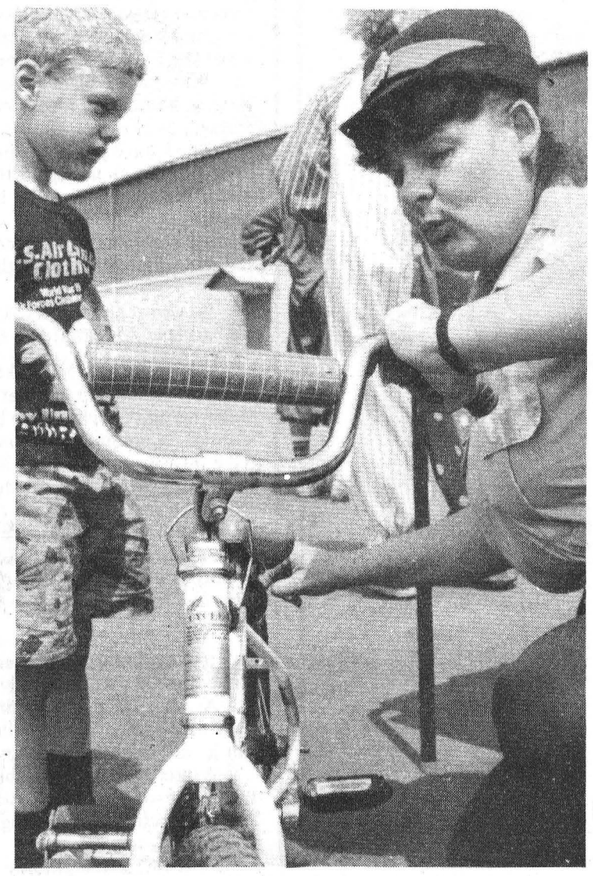
He said the $300 were used to purchase two bikes which were raffled off in a draw following the safety and skills tests.

Sheldon Ouderkirk, president of the Finch and District Optimist Club, said he was satisfied with the result of the Finch rodeo Saturday. "I'm very pleased," he said. "Hopefully we're going to do her next year too."

Like the Crysler bike rodeo, the Finch event included races for the cyclists, and tests to check their steering, braking and other skills.

Prizes were given out for the best decorated bike, two bikes were given away in a draw -- a boy's 12-speed racer and a girls 16 inch bike. A $25 gift certificate and a kid's pool were given away as well, Ouderkirk said.

The event was put on the Finch Optimists with the help of Finch Fire Department members. Ouderkirk said he was pleased with being able to attract 40 cyclists to the rodeo. "It was a really good turnout."



Spot check

Tony Belmonte, 7, of Newington, gets his set of "wheels" checked out by Const. Faye McAvoy of the Long Sault OPP detachment during a bicycle rodeo held in the village Saturday. The young cyclist's bike was given a clean bill of health. About 40 youngsters turned out for the event put on by Finch and District Optimist Club.

Bicycle rodeo

The Crysler Optimist Club held a Bicycle Rodeo Friday afternoon for students from Notre-Dame du St. Rosaire Primary School. The students brought their bicycles, had them safety checked by an OPP officer and then had to complete a series of bicycle skills tests. This student is seen negotiating a curve in an obstacle course laid out by the organizers. The rodeo was held to raise bicycle safety awareness among children.

Chesterville Fairboard gets grant for grandstand

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — A new grandstand capable of seating 900 people should be up at the fair ground in time for the Chesterville Fair in late August.

The Ontario Ministry of Tourism and Recreation approved a $67,085 grant last week for the construction of the grandstand to replace the existing one at the fair grounds next to the Chesterville and District Arena.

"I'm glad we got it. It came just in time. The old grandstand was in sad need of repair before. "Now it's to the point where we've got to tear it down," said Gord Johnson, Chesterville Agricultural Society board director.

He said the old grandstand, which seated about 400 people less than the new one will, was a safety hazard, and needed to be replaced.

The grant covers about 50 per cent of the cost of a new grandstand. The agricultural society will have to come up with about $35,000 to balance the cost of the approximately $140,000 structure.

Johnson said he hoped the new grandstand would be up in time for the Chesterville fair late August.

"If we're going to have it up for fair time, we might be looking at some more hired labor to get it built," he said.

The new grandstand will also serve as a covered storage area for the agricultural society in the winter. "The facility is going to be somewhat more versatile," Johnson said.

The board had submitted an application for the grant last September. Now the society board must raise the remaining $30,000 that is needed to build the grandstand.

In the past, the agricultural society has been able to get its members together and to rally support for fundraisers. Johnson expects the fairboard will hold a series of fundraising events to get the remaining cash that is needed together for the project.

The grant given to the fairboard was one of 49 grants announced last week for Eastern Ontario recreation projects.

The announcement was part of the second phase of a $28 million provice wide grant program aimed at making recreation a key to a healthier lifestyle.

The program under which the grants were distributed was directed by the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation's Capital Conservation and Capital Grants for the New Recreation Facilities Program.

The first phase, started last January, distributed $21 million while the second phase has been allocated $7 million.

Fundraiser exceeds expectations

TORONTO — Totals have been tallied in the Ontario March of Dimes January fundraising efforts and the results show the organization as coming out a winner.

The non-profit organization, which donates money to help disabled adults, overshot its goal by $9,000 with a total of $515,721 in its January door-to-door canvass across Ontario.

The money was raised with the help of many volunteers from across the province and more than 300 communities took part in the 1989 campaign.

Each year the March of Dimes raises money to support three major services: mobility aids, employment training, and independent living assistance for disabled adults.

The services ensure adults with a physical disability receive equipment needed in day-to-day life, receive training necessary to re-enter the work force, or attendant care that allows them to remain in their own home.

Last year, 1,514 disabled adults were provided with mobility aids such as wheelchairs, canes, walkers and other help that assisted them in leading independent lives.

Other services offered by the March of Dimes range from camping and recreation opportunities to a Post-Polio network. The March of Dimes stresses its goal as working with disabled adults across the province to ensure that they are given every opportunity to lead a meaningful and independent life.

Funding sought for wife-beater counselling

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

WINCHESTER — Naomi's Family Resource Centre is hoping to get a piece of the provincial funding pie to start a new program in the area to aid men who batter women.

Although the centre has counselling for female battering victims and their children, it doesn't have program aimed at stopping the men who do the battering.

Judith Running, administrator for the centre, said she hopes the announcement of an extra $5.4 million in provincial funding for wife assault prevention will mean funding for such a program.

The province announced May 2 it would provide $5.4 million in new funding for wife assault prevention programs to enhance services for women and children living in shelters for battered women.

The new allocation, plus a $500,000 cost of living increase brings the province's 1989-90 financial commitment for wife assault prevention to a total of $40 million, a 17 per cent increase in funds over the 1988-89 year, said Gregory Sorbara, minister Responsible for Women's Issues, in a government issued press release.

The new funding will go to the Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services where it will be used to enhance existing shelter services, increase the number of child support workers, and provide counselling programs in community agencies for female victims of wife assault, children who have witnessed the violence and male batterers.

A total of $2.7 million will go to enhancing existing shelter services, such as improved staffing ratios, mainly for shelters in rural communities.

An allocation of $200,000 will be used to ensure every shelter in the province will have at least one full time child support worker to address children's needs. And the community agency counselling programs will receive $2.1 million.

The remaining $400,000 will be allocated to one new initiative and four ongoing programs provided by the government.

"Hopefully some of the money will be used for prevention and some of the money will be used for ongoing counselling and support for the women who are victims," Running said.

But what is needed is a program to help men who batter their wives, she said.

At present, men who need counselling for battering women have to go either to Ottawa or Cornwall. And in Cornwall, there's a six-month waiting list for counselling, she said.

"It's one thing to deal with the women who have been abused, but if there's no support there or work being done with the men who batter, we're going to see their next partner. It just doesn't stop."

The closest centre with a program dealing specifically with wife battering is in Ottawa. The Family Counselling Centre in Cornwall has counsellors who will take on wife batterers as clients, Running said.

"But they would have budgetary constraints too, I assume, like everybody else," she said. They wouldn't have any specific money "earmarked" for wife batterers, she said.

Money could also be used at the Winchester centre for more staff, he said. The home currently operates with only one staff person on each shift.

It's at peak times, when a large number of people come to the centre over the span of a few days, that the extra staff is needed, she said.

"If we get a whole bunch of people within a couple days, they're all at the peak point of crisis...and those times we can use one extra staff person on the evening shift."

As well, the extra staff member could be used for the centre's support group for women which it runs on a weekly basis for about two hours. The group is led by an off-duty staff member so the centre can keep the same person leading the group, she said.

"We just have the bare bones of staff here." It's "really not fair" to expect a staff member who just finished working a day shift to that night lead a support group session, she said.

But Naomi's isn't the only centre for battered women in Ontario in need of funding. "The money is needed in just about every shelter," Running said.

There are many other centres in the province which already have programs like the counselling program for wife batterers - which Naomi's hopes to start - that will likely have priority for provincial funding first, Running said.

There are 79 homes for battered women in Ontario and "we're not one of the newer ones," she said. Some of them have been established for as long as a decade and already have such programs in place.

And although the new money will help, more funding is still needed in the province's homes, she said. "When you take a look province wide, that money is not going to go far."

Last year, the province increased funding to homes for battered women by $1.4 million. But if the funds were split evenly among all the homes, it would only amount to about $20,000 each, she said.

Even $5.4 million split evenly among the homes isn't very much money if major renovations have to be done to any of the homes, she said.

But she added, the increase is a "very positive" step by the government to help centres for battered women.

Betty Notar, provincial coordinator for family violence initiatives, said "there's a tremendous need across the province" for increased funding for centres for battered women.

"I'm really pleased. Especially this year when we're sort of living in an era of physical constraint."

While the funding "can always be better, it certainly goes a good part of the distance," she said.

This year marks the fourth year of a five year commitment made by the government address the problem of family violence in Ontario, especially wife battering, she said.

"There's one more year left in this five year commitment," she said. But she hopes the government will continue to fight what she called, "a deep-rooted problem."

"I doubt very much whether anything will be disbanded. There's a tremendous need across the province, she said.

Donors will have direct route to CHEO

CHESTERVILLE — Due to the efforts of a concerned Chesterville woman, area residents will be able to make direct contributions to the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario June 1 to 3.

Heather Bourque has arranged to have tables set up in Winchester, Chesterville and Williamsburg where people may make their pledge to CHEO.

Winchester's fundraiser will be set up in the park across from the Bank of Montreal, Chesterville's pledges will be taken at a table in front of the grocery store and in Williamsburg, donations will be accepted in front of the Canadian Tire Store.

The tables will be set up Thursday at 1pm and stay open until the stores close or donations cease. Friday, volunteers will be there from 9am to 9pm and Saturday from 9am to 4pm. By keeping in contact over the phone, each table will keep the amounts raised in the other communities posted.

Volunteers will have pledge forms there and a temporary receipt will be given for payments made with cash, cheque, or major credit card. An official receipt will be sent from CHEO to those who donated later in the month.

On Sunday, Bourque will take the pledges in to CJOH on behalf of the communities. Even though Bourque only began pursuing the idea of local donations on May 8, she already has volunteers lined up to accept the pledges for the three days in Winchester and Chesterville but needs some more recruits from Williamsburg.

After asking a director at CHEO about the possibility of fundraising from this area, on Mon., May 8 Bourque began to phone around to see what kind of support she'd have from the community. When she phoned back to CHEO director Cathy Cavenaugh 24 hours later, Bourque said the director was amazed at the volunteers that had been rounded up in one day.

The idea of having a local endeavor to raise funds for CHEO came to Bourque while she watched the CJOH fundraiser last year. Although her two children are grown up now, Bourque said she used the hospital's facilities many times over the years.

"I really believe it's a good cause," said Bourque. "Anyone with children will use the hospital a lot. Whatever money we raise in the area goes straight to the Ottawa hospital and when children are small they are in there for all kinds of reasons."

She said she does not really expect big results this year, but if there's a substantial show of interest, Bourque said the communities could do a bigger, better one next year.

"It's good publicity for the area," she added.

Northfield Seniers meet

NORTHFIELD — The Northfield Seniors met in the community hall for the May meeting with 25 people in attendance for the noon meal, with ham and scalloped potatoes on the menu.

Among those in attendance was a group of ladies from Avonmore who was invited to present a skit as part of the program, they were accompanied by Garnet Fickes on the violin.

Roll call was answered with a selection from an old school book either in poem or song, which proved to be entertaining and memorable.

Plans are being made for a Strawberry Tea and Bake Sale July 9 and a Dance Sept. 29 with Mrs. Cross and orchestra supplying the music.

A reminder was given of the invitation to participate in the Senior Games to be held in Cornwall in June. It was decided some members would enter in the euchre and the walk.

A social time was spent with several readings from newspaper clippings and the playing of bingo and euchre.

Grey Ghosts shimmer into first past Blues

CHESTERVILLE — With the third week of games complete in the Chesterville-Winchester Men's Ball Hockey League, Guy's Gray Ghosts have edged into sole possession of first place, with a 3-2 victory over Paul's Pacers.

The Blue Rowdies slipped into second position, still undefeated, in a 2-2 tie with the Red Wings.

In the evening's other game, Kelly's Whites rolled to a 5-1 victory over the now thrice-defeated Green Machine.

Ghosts vs. Pacers

Two third period goals by Jerrold Boulanger saved the Ghosts' winning streak, as his team performed a comeback victory from a 2-0 deficit.

The Pacers had taken a quick 2-0 advantage in the first period. Kevin Moore was set up by Dave VanBruinessen and Richard McMillan, then Dwayne Bazinet converted a set-up by VanBruinessen and Gary Beisheim.

The Ghosts lurched to a start in the second period, when Chris VanBridger capitalized on passes by Dalton Henry and John Guy.

Boulanger's first came with 7:15 to play in the game, off of a set-up by Guy and Pete VanKessel.

Rowdies vs. Red Wings

Mike McManus scored a dramatic goal with one second left to play, to lift the Red Wings to a 2-2 tie with the Blue Rowdies.

Willy O'Connor scored both goals for the Rowdies, his first coming early in the first, with 11:55 to play. Both of his goals would be assisted by Dick Geertsma and Steve Thompson.

Scott Bell tied it for the Wings with 11:06 to play in the second, on a set-up by Shawn Beckstead and Jeff Jarvis, before O'Connor's second goal put the Rowdies ahead again, with 8:33 to play in the second.

The teams then continued scoreless for a period and a half, setting the stage for McManus' dramatics.

Whites vs. Green Machine

The Green Machine managed to take the lead against Kelly's Whites, on a goal by Chris Holmes, but it was the last light that the team would see in the 5-1 White victory.

With 1:59 to go in the opening stanza, Baxter Roberts tied the game for White, on a pass from Darren Nurse.

Before the second period was over, Rob Steele and Pat Kelly scored to establish a White lead of two goals.

In the third period, Dan Moriarty and Rudy Whitteveen put two more nails in the Green Machine's coffin, making the final 5-1.

Moriarty and Kelly had single assists to add to their goals. John Mackler and Bill Trillo had assists.

With three straight victories to their credit, Guy's Gray Ghosts lead the league with six points. The Blue Rowdies are one point back, with two wins and a tie. In third are Kelly's White Lightning, with four points from two wins.

Paul's Pacers and the Green Machine continue their sojourn in the basement with no wins and three losses.

On May 24, the Whites will face the Red Wings at 7 p.m. At 8 p.m. it will be Paul's Pacers against the Green Machine. The Blue Rowdies will meet the Gray Ghosts at 9 p.m. in a battle for first place.

Tagwi bows out

AVONMORE — The Tagwi High School Lady Warriors junior and senior soccer teams have been eliminated from further competition.

Both teams met their demises against La Citadelle in semi-final competition Tuesday, May 16. The seniors lost in a 2-0 shut-out, while the juniors survived a second period of overtime before succumbing to La Citadelle in a shoot-out.

While he offered no definite excuses for his team's loss, Tagwi senior coach Keith Daniels cited that a crucial injury may have hampered his team's performance.

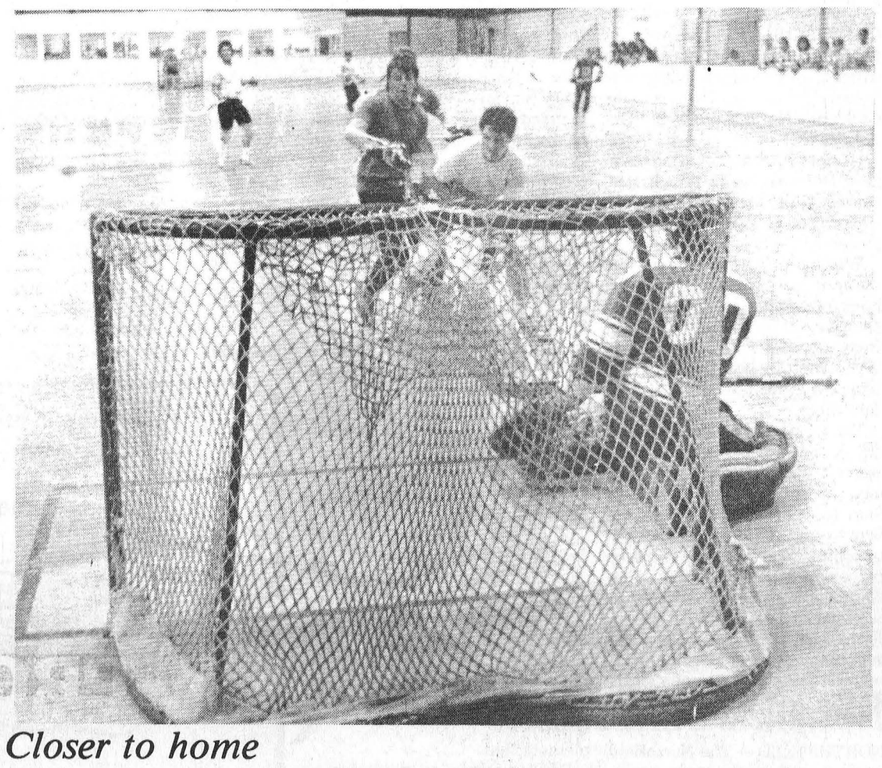
"Our goalie was hurt, and the girl who replaced her had no experience at the position," he said. "It is difficult to win a game when you are weakened at a position like goaltending. Maybe if we were short a forward we could have overcome it."

The Tagwi seniors had shown great promise in the early season, playing undefeated through their first seven games before losing to La Citadelle on the last day of regular season competition.

After eliminating the Tagwi squads, the La Citadelle junior and senior squads were both eliminated last Friday in the SD&G finals by the junior and senior Glengarry Gaels teams, which will be participating in the EOSSA finals this week.

Daniels, who witnessed his team lose the momentum of a strong start and wane as the play-offs approached, is confident that Tagwi will be able to regain its initiative in next year's season.

"We're going to come back," he said.



Closer to home

Reid watches while a shot from the continued Blue Rowdies onslaught in stick of a Rowdies' player deflects high past the long side of the net, in the the late second period of the 2-2 match.

Six Devils make cut

ARNPRIOR — The North Dundas District High School Devils track team came here to Arnprior District High School for the EOSSA meet with a record thirty-two participants, and finished the day with six team members qualifying for the regional finals at Peterborough this Thursday.

Senior girls runner Kerry Lynn Thompson qualified to represent North Dundas in two events at the regionals. She finished second in the 400 m event with a time of 1:03.1. She also finished third in the 200 m with a time of 27 seconds.

Laura Zyrmiak will also be representing the Devils in two events at Peterborough, on the strength of a second in the 100m (13.1 and 12.09 finishes), and a third in the 200 m (28 seconds).

For the boys on the track, midget runner Matt Clark overcame an injury suffered at the SD&G meet to register a second place finish in the 200 m event. He ran it in 24.4 seconds.

Jamie Kennedy, also a midget, ran the 400 m in 55.7 seconds, which was good enough for a fourth.

On the field, Devils' midget javelin thrower Sean Salter managed a third place throw.

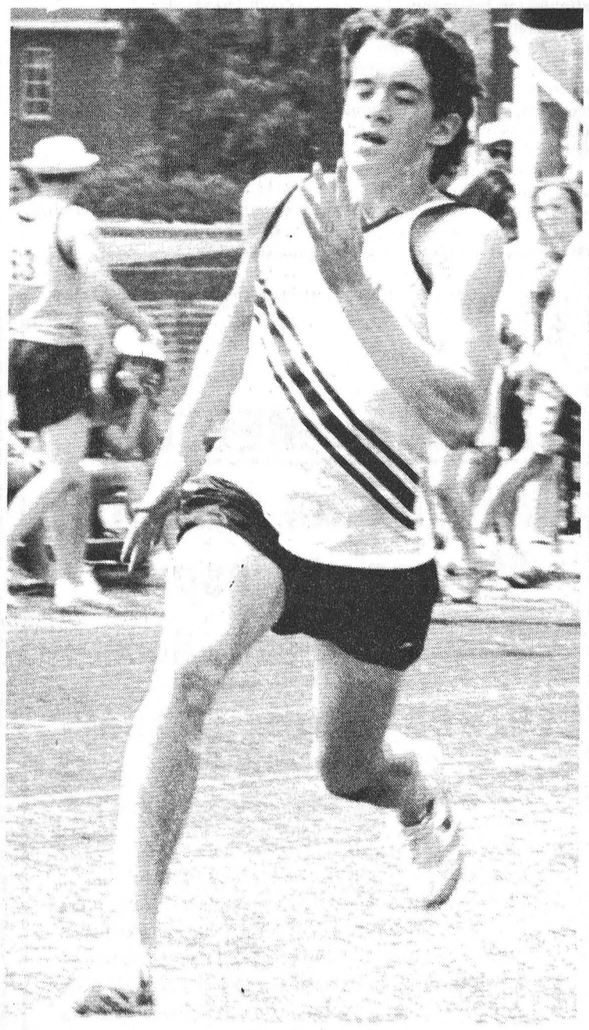
Junior long jumper Karim Oliver will represent the Devils at the regionals on the strength of a fourth-place finish in the long jump. He covered a distance of 5.85 metres in his effort.

North Dundas track coach Hugh Conlin was pleased with his team's effort at the EOSSA meet, which he said has become a much tougher competition in recent years.

"Ottawa Valley schools that used to be in the Ottawa meet have become a part of the EOSSA structure," he said. "It has made the level of competition much higher. It is difficult to compare our performance this year with the EOSSAs of more than three years ago."

Conlin said that the performance of Kennedy, Oliver, Clarke and Salter were nice surprises on top of the good showings by Zyrmiak and Thompson who had been expected to do well. But he feels that all six competitors have a good chance of qualifying for the All-Ontarios.

"If they all do a little bit of improving, I think that they can qualify for the All-Ontarios," he said.



Headed for the regionals

North Dundas District High School midget runner Jamie Kennedy accelerates towards a fourth place finish at the EOSSA finals at Arnprior District High School last Thursday. That was good enough to advance him to a berth in the regional finals in Peterborough this week. Six members of the North Dundas contingent qualified at Arnprior to go to the regionals.

In the other contest, Tracey McVey posted the shutout in Team Three's 2-0 victory over Team Four.

In the season opener, it was all Team one as it broke up a scoreless contest, taking a 2-0 lead in period two and expanding it to a 5-1 victory over Team Two.

Val Shaver scored from Patti Milne and Pam Kirkwood at 9:46 of period two to give Team One a 1-0 lead. Diane Vanderveen then slapped in the first of her three goals at the 7:40 mark to make it a 2-0 contest.

Sonic tourney

MORRISBURG — The Winchester Sonics Soccer Club participated in its first competitive action of the season here last weekend, in a pre-season tournament. With a large number of new members, the team played .500 soccer over three games, coming out with a 1-1-1 record.

The tournament format was a double round-robin, with four teams in each division. The Sonics needed a second-place finish in their division to advance to the tourney play-offs.

Its first game gave the team hopes of accomplishing that, as the Sonics rolled to a 5-1 victory over Avonmore. Willie O'Connor had two goals for the Sonics. Doug Winter, Derek Brannen and Bob Goodman had singles in the victory, in front of winning goaltender Dan Gibson.

The Sonics' second game, against Fiorentina of Ottawa, was a 2-0 loss. Goodman described the Fiorentina squad as "a very well organized unit."

The Sonics entered their third, and final, game in the preliminary round needing a win against Char-Lan. They managed only a 1-1 tie in a game which featured good goaltending by Sonics' goaltender Jason Lavier.

Char-Lan advanced on the strength of that tie, and defeated St. Andrews 1-0 to advance to the finals against Kingston Sporting.

Kingston Sporting won that game 3-0, to take the tournament championship.

Goodman said that Kingston's victory was not surprising, they were "the class of the tournament."

THE VITAMIN RUSH

Vitamins are important and recognized medical tools routinely used by physicians for the treatment of a wide range of disorders including many varieties of anemia, eye diseases, circulatory problems, and digestive difficultires to name but a few. But vitamins can enhance everyone's daily life...if used knowledgeably and intelligently.

If our diet is typically calorie rich and vitamin poor, we are probably providing our metabolic machinery with more than enough of the energy fuels it needs but insufficient or inappropriate quantities of the vitamins it requires to properly process those fuels and release the energy locked into their chemical bonds. Such imbalance may be making us quite energy-inefficient, metabolically sluggish, and overweight. By correcting the calorie-vitamin imbalance, our metabolism will potentially release food energy more rapidly and effectively with the result that we feel more of that desired oomph and vitality.

Although we humans got into the twentieth century without the assistance of vitamin supplements, we did so before our food had been drained of essential nutrients and prior to any threat of ecological Armageddon. At this time of sharply reduced dietary supply and dramatically increased bodily demand, it makes sense to maximize the chances for good health by adding vitamins to our diets with reason, Moderation, and a clear understanding of what supple-mentation can be expected to accomplish.

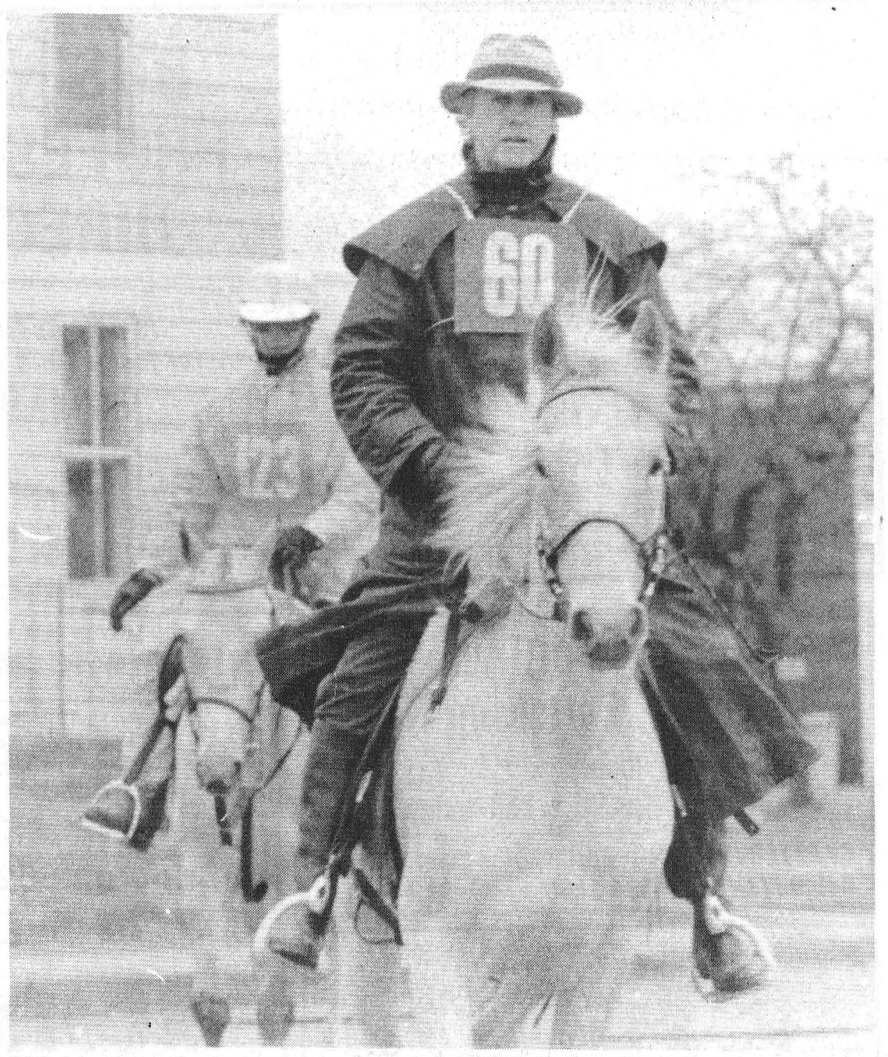
By enriching our daily diets with essential vitamins we assist the body in its lifelong struggle for survival and help protect the flesh against the inevitable onslaught of the aging process. We may expect that the Intelligent use of vitamins will: - help improve our general level of health... - help lessen, defer, or prevent the injury of infectious and degenerative disease, the debilitation of aging, and the occurrence of premature mortality... - help correct past abuses of the body due to poor nutrition; excessive fatigue; tension; the consumption of alcohol, nicotine, drugs, or other personal poisons; the metabolic stresses of acute illness, childbearing, or chronic disease; and the string of life in our contemporary and polluted environment. However...

Attempting to treat any personal symptoms of illness (other than those of the common cold) with vitamins is folly. Many prominent nutritional extremists and "experts" have died disconcertingly young because they did not seek medical help when they needed it. Get your physicians' advice if you suspect ill health. Use vitamins to prevent it.

Nothing could be more foolhardy for the layman than to undertake self-diagnosis of single or multiple vitamin deficiences. To exaggerate your intake of one or more vitamins fliés in the face of sound reason and good judgement. Do not begin a program of supplementation without consulting your physician if you are taking medication he has prescribed or suffer from any chronic or acute disorder. For example, because of their effect on cholesterol metabolism, the ingestion of niacin, pantothenic acid, or E may interfere with or exaggerate the action of anticoagulant or antihypertensive medications used by cardiac patients. Since vitamins naturally affect the chemistry of tissue fluids, they often alter the results of routine laboratory tests. Technicians and physicians should be informed of your supplementation before analyzing blood or urine samples.

We should never put all of our nutritional eggs in one basket. Relying on vitamins alone for good health is absurd. Our chances for physical well-being depend on many factors. Ample rest, appropriate exercise, and an intelligent diet are a few of the imperatives. Supplementation can only support and reinforce sound health practices. It cannot bestow immunity on a body that continues to be metabolically maltreated and physically abused.

My Silent Achiever this week is a very handsome and extremely popular French teacher at N.D.D.H.S. He has been combining aerobics with running several times a week, and being very careful with his diet. He has recently lost 15 pounds, on his way to losing 30! His flexibility is positively awesome of late. Well Done!



This horseman looks in puzzlement at a poorly marked branch in the road near the start of a recent 25 mile competitive trail ride held at Newington. Competitive trail-rides use the horses' ability to handle and recover from the stress of the journey as criteria for choosing winners. Luckily for the horse, the rider made a proper choice of roads.

Chesterville on top

WINCHESTER — As a result of a 7-4 victory over Hansma Paylee here on May 22, Chesterville is tied with Shoneroy on top of Winchester Lob-Ball League standings. Both teams have a record of three wins in three games.

Chesterville was led by home runs from Greg Beckstead in the third inning, and John Milne in the second.

Beckstead's homer drove in Al Beckstead, and was followed by runs from Pat Imrie and Garry Beckstead before the end of the Chesterville third. Imrie and Garry Beckstead were singled in by Shawn Chambers.

Most of Hansma's scoring took place in the fifth, when three runs were scored.

Shoneroy won its most recent match against J.R. Vice on May 22, demolishing them 24-5.

There is a four-way tie for third place between the Blue Knights, Country Boy, Inkerman Vice, and the Blue Jays.

MNR fishing tips

WINCHESTER — The good ole summer time. Time for baseball, barbecues, suntanning and most of all, fishing.

Fishing is one of North America's favorite sports, and as stress in our lives increase, fishing is becoming even more important as a form of relaxation.

Heading down to the river to catch a few mudpouts is not as simple as it once was and any would-be fisherman should be sure to equip himself with fishing licences and regulations.

LICENCES

The Ministry of Natural Resources has required Ontario residents to purchase a fishing licence since 1987. The monies from the licences go back into sport fisheries through lake-stocking programs.

A season licence costs $10 or a four-day licence is $5. Children under the age of 18, seniors over 65, and disabled persons are not required to purchase a licence.

A sport fisherman must always carry his licence when fishing. As well, remember that a licence is not transferable so it cannot be borrowed by a fishing buddy.

Licences can be picked up at sports stores such as Sports Unlimited in Winchester, some hardware stores and ministry of natural resources' offices.

FISHING REGULATIONS

MNR protects our fisheries by setting size and catch limits as well as specific fishing seasons. The limits and seasons are outlined in the ministry's "Ontario Sport Fishing Regulations, Summary 1989," which can be picked up anywhere that licences are sold.

Before heading out, remember to double check the regulations for any fish sanctuaries or exceptions to the open seasons.

CATCH AND RELEASE

As our fisheries become depleted from overfishing, acid rain, and pollution, many fishing clubs, along with MNR, are now advocating live catch and release. Here are some pointers from the ministry on how to safely release fish.

- Time is essential. Quickly play and release the fish. A fish played too long will be too exhausted to recover.

- Keep the fish in the water as much as possible. Out of water it will suffocate. Don't allow it to flop around in the boat or on the rocks. Even a few inches of water under a thrashing fish acts as a protective cushion.

- Gentle handling is essential. Do not put fingers in the gills or eyes. Hands should be kept wet when handling fish.

- Remove hooks quickly with long-nose pliers. If deeply hooked, cut the line and leave the hook in. Do not tear out hooks, they will not harm the fish.

- To revive an unconscious fish, hold it upright in the water. Apply artificial respiration by moving the fish forward and backward so that water runs through the gills. Repeat in a rhythm similar to breathing. When the fish begins to struggle, release it.

FISHING SPOTS

According to John Downey, conservation officer with the Cornwall District MNR, the major rivers people from SD&G fish in are the Nation River, the Rideau River and the St. Lawrence.

Downey said that currently people are catching mudpouts on the Nation River and they will be out for pickerel (walleye) when it opens this weekend.

"The catches are consistent, and around Cass Bridge you still have a good chance of catching a pickerel," he said.

Fishermen often travel down to the St. Lawrence River for good pike, pickerel and bass, said Downey.

However, he warned when fishing in the St. Lawrence, it is best to stay with the smaller fish (under 22 inches) as some of the older, larger fish may have higher contaminant levels. "PCBs build up in fatty tissues," said Downey. "The younger and smaller the fish the less chance of contaminants."

The Ministry of the Environment puts out a "Guide to Eating Sport Fish" which lists safety of fish consumption according to species and lake. These guides can be picked up at MOE, MNR and some liquor stores during the summer.

Other fishing spots are the two abandoned quarries in the region which MNR stocks with rainbow trout. One is at George Challies on County Road 18, located near Gallingertown. The other pond is at the Cornwall Recreation Centre.

When fishing at this time of year, Downey cautions that fishermen must be careful to avoid catching spawning bass.

The spawning bass are defending their nests and will hit anything, including lures, that enter their territory, said Downey.

This poses a problem as soon as the adult bass are removed from their nests, the fry are open to predation from perch or sunfish, he continued.

Many people feel they are doing no harm if they catch and release the bass even if the season is closed. However, not only is this illegal, but many of the fry will die, as the adult fish is usually not released in the exact spot it was caught, said Downey.

Aside from releasing the bass as soon as you catch it, Downey's solution is to move somewhere else if you are catching too many bass.

IMPROVING THE FISHERIES

Along with stocking the lakes, and encouraging catch and release, MNR also has another program to help improve our fisheries. The Community Fisheries Involvement Program encourages and aids groups in improving fisheries through activities such as habitat enhancement or sanctuary creation.

Downey said that if any groups have ideas to improve fishing in the area, they are encouraged to call the office in Cornwall at 933-1774.
