The Chevrolet

Valve in The Head $690 DELIVERED

Regarding horse power if you want to know N. A.C. C. rating on the average view of eminent engines as to a fair conservative rating for a four cycle motor at one thousand feet per minute, piston speed, which is the real H. P. Purchaser—protect yourself and ask him to show you the National Automobile chambers of commerce of N. Y. which will tell the truth: all about the specifications of all makes of cars and Dealers who come to you without that hand book can't prove any statement without one, regarding the real horse power. However I always carry one in my grip in order to save arguments and prove specifications any time, when the man has the proposition he carries all statements to prove; but when a man has'nt he forgets the book at home and comes afterwards with another statement. The Chevrolet at $690 has more power than any car between $800 or $900 and is away lighter and easier on tires and will go close to 30 miles on 1 gallon of gasolene and you pay less for it and you also buy it from one who is able to look after it with all kinds of service guaranteed, all equipped with a large garage with lots of room and help; our trouble is to get the cars.

USE CP PARIS GREEN

CP PARIS GREEN owing to its strong poisoning qualities, its purity, and the absence of free arsenic, is a most efficient poison for the use of the farmer. Owing to its extreme fineness it is very light in gravity and stays well in suspension and so covers a great area per pound and is most economical to use.

DUNDAS BOYS ABROAD

Former Dundas Boys Doing Their Bit in The Canadian Club of New York

The hearts of Canadians wherever found were stirred by Canada's ready declaration to do her part when this mighty struggle began of "Arms against Arbitration." Nowhere was this more evidenced than in the Canadian Club of New York, where the desire for participation at once put the question "What can we do to help?"

At the first meeting voluntary offerings enabled them to send $1,000.00 to Ottawa as a contribution to the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Since, another $1,000.00 cheque has been contributed to this fund; and again in response to the inquiry, "What can we do to help? Where is there a real need we can care for here?" Ottawa responded, "Provide against the suffering and want among the dependent ones on your side of the line left behind by those enlisting in the Canadian Regiments, as these are outside of our jurisdiction." This work throughout the entire State of New York is now being done.

"What more can we do to help" was again asked when Surgeon-General G. Sterling Ryerson, founder of the Canadian Red Cross Society, addressed the Canadian Club of New York last February. He replied, "Motor ambulances are needed." As a result, seven ambulances marked "Gift of the Canadian Club of New York to the Canadian Red Cross Society" are now at the front.

We have just received the Canadian Club of New York, 1915-16 Year Book which makes special mention of members Dr. Herman Carman and Dr. Geo. J. Helmer, former prominent residents of Morrisburg, and Dr. R. W. Merkley, a former resident of Williamsburg, who still boast of being Dundas Boys.

Their many friends here are glad thus to hear from these sons of Dundas County and their efforts at doing their bit through the Canadian Club of New York. We shall watch for further evidences of activities gratifying to their friends.

A Correction

In our hurried report of the Good Roads Meeting which took place just prior to our going to press on Thursday last, we stated that a certain road six miles east of Morrisburg had been designated. It should have read "the Church Road, east of Morrisburg." Also that the Government paid 60 p.c. of construction and County 40. This should have read 40 p.c. by the Government and 60 by the County.

Episcopal Visitation

During the week St. Mary's Church was honored by the official visit of Most Rev. M. J. Spratt, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston Diocese. The Archbishop arrived on Monday evening, and administered Confirmation at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The Altar was beautifully decorated for the occasion; special music was rendered by the choir and a large congregation attended. Thirty children and nine adults received Confirmation. His Grace delivered a very instructive sermon in the course of which he emphasized the necessity of home training for the children, and condemned in scathing terms the immodest styles of dress now so much in vogue, which, he said, are a great cause of scandal especially to the young. Father Meehan was assisted during the ceremonies by Rev. D. Cahill, Waddington, N.Y., Rev. M. Crawley, Chesterville, and Rev. J. J. Keeley, South Mountain.

FAIR LARGELY ATTENDED

More Than 2500 Pay Admission Second Day

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the Big Dundas Fair days this year proved not only the biggest days of the year but the biggest that Morrisburg has witnessed for many years. The weather was all that could be desired, and on Wednesday, the second day of the Fair, more than 2500 admissions were taken in at the grounds, and it taxed the capacity of our local taxies to handle the large crowd.

The Fair Grounds, with its large array of tents, booths and merry-go-round, presented a veritable fairyland, and the midway was "out of sight."

The race horse was king of the track, and the horse races were an outstanding feature of the Fair. The auto races were also the centre of much attraction. The 207th Battalion Brass Band which arrived on Wednesday noon furnished the music, and rendered many popular airs. This aggregation is composed of about twenty first-class musicians, every section of the band being well balanced, and their presence added much to the pleasures of the day.

The results must be most gratifying to the officers of the Dundas Agricultural Society who for the last month had spared no efforts in making arrangements to make 1916 the best ever.

The names of the prize winners will be published next week.

HYMENEAL

Steer – Cameron

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's mother, Winchester, on Monday evening, July 31st., when Miss Helen, elder daughter of the late Alex. Cameron, Esq., was united in marriage to L. H. Steer, Esq., M.A., barrister of Edmonton, Alta. In the absence of the bride's pastor, Mr. MacLeod, the ceremony was performed by Revd. H. Cameron of Knox Church, Morrisburg, an old friend of the bride's family. Mrs. Steer is well known in Morrisburg as she attended the collegiate here and afterwards went to McGill from which university she graduated in Arts. Mr. Steer was for some years principal at the school in Chesterville, and is an honor graduate and double gold medalist of Queens. He is one of the rising barristers of the West.

The marriage was solemnized at eight o'clock in the drawing room of the bride's home which was most beautifully adorned with flowers for the occasion. After the ceremony at which only a few of the immediate friends of the bride and groom were present a reception was held at which a large number of guests from Winchester and vicinity were present to pay their respects to the newly wedded pair and extend their best wishes. Dainty refreshments were served in the dining room.

The happy couple left on the midnight train for their home in the West, followed by the best wishes of their many friends.

GRAY-DORT

$850.00 Delivered

Most light cars built within the last few years have proved lamentably weak in the rear axle. It is advisable to impress the fact on the prospect that there is little sense or value in putting an extremely large motor under the hood and connecting it with a rear system which is so weak as to give constant trouble through inability to care for the power developed by the motor.

The GRAY—DORT front springs are 37" long, 2" wide and have seven leaves, two of them being of Tungsten steel. They are of the semi-elliptic type and directly under the frame so that they carry their load perpendiculary, and the front axle is virtually pulled along the road instead of being pushed as is the case with some of the more recent and cheaper forms of front spring suspension.

The rear spring is 50" long, 2" wide and has seven leaves, with the two main leaves of Tungsten steel. The Cantilever type of this rear spring has a number of highly desirable features which makes it the only logical spring to use in light car construction. The movement of the body mounted on this spring is only one-half that of the spring. Small shocks are taken up by the long cantilever of the rear half of the spring, so that they do not get into the body at all.

FIRE WIPES OUT TOWNS IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Matheson Completely Wiped Out, Two-Thirds of Cochrane Gone, and Numerous Small Places Obliterated.

Cobalt, Ont., July 30.—The bush fires which have been raging throughout Northern Ontario in the vicinity of Matheson and Cochrane have claimed 149 known victims up to 10 o'clock to-night, as follows:

MATHESON	60
RAMORE	14
NUSHKA	57
SCATTERED	18

Nushka is a little village ten miles north of Matheson. The town of Matheson is completely destroyed, and 50 bodies have already been found. Cochrane also suffered severely from the fires, and practically two-thirds of the town has been destroyed. Kelso and Homer villages have also been destroyed.

Practically all day to-day there has been no wire communication between Cobalt and the gold camp, but late this afternoon it was learned that 17 houses have been burned at Timmins. At Iroquois Falls all stores but one have been burned, and practically all camps in the vicinity have fallen victim to the flames. It was reported that 15 people at Iroquois Falls were injured and several are dead. Two are dead at Nahma.

When news was received in Cobalt of the catastrophe a meeting of the town council was held, and several prominent citizens organized a relief campaign in the town. The town voted $500 for provisions, and the townspeople and stores were thoroughly canvassed this morning for food and clothing. The town was practically depleted of the bread supply, and butter, biscuits and various provisions were accumulated and shipped by special train leaving here at 3.30 o'clock for the north. Four doctors and four nurses boarded the special, and were accompanied by a relief committee of 20 Cobalt citizens. At Haileybury and New Liskeard the Cobalt contingent was joined by other relief committees, together with supplies collected in these towns. Local undertakers were asked to supply as many caskets as they had on hand, and two baggage trains attached to the special train conveyed a large number of coffins and boxes north.

At Englehart 62 children have arrived with scarcely a stitch of clothing, having been taken out of their beds at Matheson and Nushka at night. A large number of refugees are being brought down to Cobalt, Haileybury and New Liskeard, where they will be cared for.

To-day's National train was held at Englehart, returning later to New Liskeard, where she left passengers. The train then proceeded north to act as a relief train to bring down refugees. One hundred and sixteen, mostly women and children, were brought down to Englehart last night. Rescue train made up of boxcars caught fire several times coming through.

The entire North Country from Matheson to Timmins is ablaze tonight, and a pall of smoke has hung over the district down as far south as Cobalt all afternoon. All telegraph and telephone communication beyond Swastika has been cut off since early Saturday afternoon. The operator at Matheson was obliged to leave his post in the middle of a message, according to a report brought down here, and since then the north has been cut off. The last accounts were to the effect that the town of Timmins was surrounded by fire, and that the entire town was threatened, despite the fact that there is considerable clearing to the south and west of the town. The village of Pearson's Landing is reported to be burning, and that place, too, is cut off from outside communication.

Great fear is expressed for a number of prospectors in th bush at various places throughout the district, as well as for a number of settlers. Everything in the woods now is as dry as tinder. Small fires confined to narrow areas have been smouldering for weeks, and with the stiff breeze Saturday these were fanned into a fury of flame. At many points south of Timmins settlers moved their families out to the railway over a week ago.

No Lives Lost at Cochrane.

Ottawa, July 30.—The Department of Railways is making every effort to ascertain the extent of the disaster at Cochrane and Matheson reported to have been set by forest fires and to relieve the sufferers along the line of the National Transcontinental Railway. Superintendent Brady has left Winnipeg in charge of a fully-equipped relief train and will reach the fire area as fast as the distance can be covered. The T. Eaton Company, of Winnipeg, have donated three thousand dollars worth of food supplies and they are on their way east.

The Mayor of Cochrane telegraphed the department this afternoon that although the business section of Cochrane has been destroyed, the residential section has escaped and there has been no loss of life. The buildings of the National Transcontinental and of the T. and N. O. have not been burned. A railway trestle just outside Cochrane has been destroyed.

BRITAIN IS MAKING HER OWN MUNITIONS.

Factories to Make One Class of Explosives in Vast Quantities.

A despatch from London says: During a discursive debate on the questions of the war in the House of Commons on Wednesday night, Dr. Christopher Addison, Parliamentary Secretary of Munitions, in replying to a question said that the Department of Munitions was endeavoring to reduce the contracts for munitions in the United States by increasing the output here. In one particular class of explosives, he said the department had undertaken the construction and equipment of factories to provide these explosives on an unheard of scale.

GERMAN WORKMEN URGED NOT TO STRIKE

A despatch from Berlin says:—The Socialist Executive Committee and the General Commission of Labor Unions in Germany have united in a joint appeal to the working classes not to participate in strikes ad demonstrations which the Radical leaders of the Liebknecht group of Socialists are endeavoring to organize. The people are warned against giving ear to what is termed the shady propaganda of "the apostles of protest and the general strike," it being declared that such efforts are roomed in advance to failure and can only injure the participants and discourage their brothers fighting at the front.

KEY TO IMPORTANT PASSES CAPTURED BY THE ITALIANS

Nearly Entire Austrian Garrison Surrendered, It Having Been Demoralized by the Suddenness of the Attack.

A despatch from Milan, Italy, says: Since July 20 operations have been conducted by the Italians in the upper San Pellegrino valley with considerable success. One detachment captured the strong position of Cavallazze, a key to the two passes of Rollo and Col Bricon. The Austrians, though they held well defended positions, were completely demoralized by the sudden attack, and after a short resistance nearly the entire garrison surrendered. Four hundred prisoners, two guns, several machine guns and considerable material were captured.

The Italians have since pushed their advantage still further, and have occupied Cima Stradone, thus forming a serious menace to the Austrian position on the Dolomites road. The points of advantage gained by the Italians give them command of the San Pellegrino and Travignolo valleys.

ROUMANIA'S ENTRY ADMITTED BOTH IN BERLIN AND VIENNA

Deepest Anxiety Prevails in German Capital, According to Despatches From That City.

A despatch from Rotterdam says: Both Berlin and Vienna seem to have made up their minds that a new enemy—Roumania—is about to enter the field. According to information from Berlin, the deepest anxiety prevails there. While the Roumanian journals are speaking of Bulgaria and Austria as probable enemies, German newspapers threaten Roumania. Germany will support her allies by probable military measures against Roumania, which already are in hand.

Dr. Lederer, of the Berliner Tageblatt, writing from Bucharest, says: "You cannot trust the Roumanian policy. The only thing we can trust is our arms."

BRITISH STEAMERS SAIL FROM THE BALTIC.

Leave Russian Ports and Are Navigated Around Sweden.

A despatch from Stockholm says: Almost every day British steamers lying at Russian ports manage to get out of the Baltic and escape the German cruisers. The ships generally cross the Gulf of Bothnia and are piloted around Sweden inside the territorial limit. This traffic during the last few weeks has been considerably developed. The ships as a rule take on board an entire Swedish crew and Swedish officers. The pro-German papers here are urging that this traffic be stopped, contending that it is not in accord with absolute neutrality. But the Government has taken no action so far against it.

GOVERNMENT TO SINK ARTESIAN WELLS

A despatch from Ottawa says:—The Government is going into the artesian-well business in Southern Alberta. The ordinary water supply there in many localities is poor, but the geological survey, in boring for oil deposits, discovered abundance of splendid water at low depths. An order-in-Council has been passed making an appropriation for an extensive artesian-well system in these districts It will supply the ordinary deficiency.

Heed not a blusterer, but beware of a silent man.

WILL BE NO REST FOR THE GERMANS

Spirit of Men at Front is Perfect, Says Under-Secretary of War.

A despatch from London says: Lord Derby, Under-Secretary of War, who recently visited the British front, on Wednesday gave the International News Service his impression of the work being done there by the British army:

"I never saw such absolute confidence, not only among the officers, but all the grades from the generals down. The spirit is absolutely magnificent. Men who, fifteen months ago, were in counting houses, are today the finest soldiers imaginable.

"After all, you cannot beat a volunteer army, where such spirit and confidence exists, for remember, I should say at least 93 per cent. of the army are volunteers, while the remainder really only wanted their minds made up for them."

Lord Derby was asked whether the ground gained in the recent British advance was worth the losses of men.

Lord Derby said: "There is no question about it."

He paid tribute to the Prussians, who, he said, were fighting like "tigers," but their confident spirit was incomparable with the British.

Regarding the length of the war, Lord Derby said that any one who named a specific time could only be described as a fool, but that the next two weeks ought to see great things achieved.

"What will you do with the Kaiser if you get him?" Lord Derby was asked.

"I cannot say, but I promise he won't be able to do any more harm," replied the Under-Secretary, adding: "But we've got to get him first."

"When you get to Bapaume will you rest there before beginning a new offensive?" he was asked.

"We won't rest until we get to Berlin," came the reply.

Lord Derby made an earnest plea for America's help in ending what he termed "German kultur."

"We want America in with us," he added. "Not necessarily in the war itself, but after it is over to help to put an end to this thing called German kultur. I realize, and always have done so, that the United States is overwhelmingly pro-ally. I can also understand that there must be a certain amount of friction between the two countries during a war such as this, but our aims are the same."

Lord Derby looked towards America joining England and her allies at all events after the war in order to prevent a repetition of wars like the present.

BRITISH CAPTAIN MURDERED.

Germans Take Commander's Life Without Giving a Fair Trial.

A despatch from London says: News of the execution of Captain Fryatt of the British steamer Brussels caused a painful impression at the Foreign Office. Under the instructions of Viscount Grey, the Foreign Secretary, a note was despatched immediately to the American Embassy requesting that James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador at Berlin, procure complete details of the affair. The first intimation of the trial of Captain Fryatt was called to the attention of the Foreign Office by press reports on July 18 to the effect that he was to be tried as the result of finding on him a watch containing an inscription reciting his efforts to ram a German submarine.

DUTCH FISHING BOATS SEIZED BY BRITISH

Ship Owners of Holland Enter Protest Against English Action.

A despatch from Berlin says:—The Dutch Christian Seamen's Union, says the Overseas News Agency, has endorsed the protest of the Dutch ship owners and sailors' union against the action of the British authorities in seizing Dutch fishing boats, virtually all of which have been taken possession of, according to news agency.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT SEIZES FIELD CROPS

A despatch from Amsterdam says:—The Handelsbald says the Minister of Agriculture has informed the Burgomasters that in the interest of the feeding of man and beast the seizure of all wheat, oats and barley is necessary. The Minister, according to the newspaper, has directed the officials to buy up all corn in the fields at fixed prices.

GERMAN SUBMARINE RAIDS FISHING FLEET.

A despatch from London says:—A German submarine has raided a British fleet of fishing boats. Eight of the vessels was sunk. The crews were landed on Friday at the North Sea port of Tynemouth.

Previous to 1885 ales and beers were sold on the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. The sale was abolished at an annual loss in booth rentals of $2,000, quite a sum in the early days of the big Fair to pay for a principle.

THE GERMAN FRONT WEST OF LUTSK BROKEN

Czar's Victorious Armies Within 58 Miles of Lemberg, With Railroad Connection.

A despatch from Petrograd says: The Russians have occupied the important railroad junction of Brody, 58 miles north-east of Lemberg, in Galicia. They have also by another drive 60 miles away broken through the entire first line of the Teutonic allies west of Lutsk and driven the Austro-German forces from the line of the River Slonevka and Bolduvka, Southern Volhynia, according to the official communication issued on Friday night by the War Office. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Austro-Germans; over 9,000 men were made prisoner, two generals, and a large number of guns were captured.

Brody is a great railway junction, and it had been expected the Austrians would retain it at all cost. The swiftness of this new Russian stroke was unexpected. The occupation of the town may have the effect of causing the entire Austrian line southward toward Tarnopol and Buczacz, which has been held tenaciously in face of Russian attacks, to fall back.

The fall of Brody is a serious threat to Lemberg, and the rapid and successful advance of Gen. Sakharoffs forces menace the whole Austro-German line of communications from the north to the south. For the present Kovel yields in importance to Lemberg. The position of this portion of the Russian front seems to be that General Kaledines, having driven Gen. von Linsingen's left wing behind the Stokhod River, has suspended his advance towards Kovel and is holding up the great Teutonic forces there while Gen. Sakharoff is pressing on toward Lemberg, which is defended by the forces of Gen. Boehm-Ermolli.

LIVES OF TENS OF THOUSANDS ARE BEING SWALLOWED DAILY

Real Significance of the Battle of the Somme as Viewed by German Correspondents.

A despatch from Berlin says: The Vossische Zeitung prints the following despatch from its correspondent, Max Osborne, from Cambrai, France:

"The fearful battle which has now raged three weeks signifies more than the fact that it is the greatest attempt yet undertaken by the western enemies, with unprecedented force, to push back the German army from the occupied provinces of Northern France.

"In a historical sense it embodies the measuring by the army leaders of the countries of all their forces in a decisive land battle.

"For the first time at the end of two years of the war appears the real significance of the great world struggle—namely, England and Germany engaged in a tremendous duel. Everything that has taken place hitherto between the two peoples appear now a mere prologue. The duel has begun, and day by day it swallows the lives of tens of thousands.

"I saw here a number of English prisoners, and these men understand what it means for our regiments to hold out against a storm of attacks by such. They are strong, tough, wildly courageous, and stern fellows, certainly able to stand up to their opponents."

BRITISH WIN ALL LONGUEVAL

Delville Wood Is Also Firmly in the Possession of Haig's Forces.

A despatch from London says: One of the most furious battles of the war is being waged on the five-mile Pozieres-Longueval front, where the British and Germans have been gripped in a bloody struggle for more than a week. The British troops are continuing to gain important ground against the most desperate resistance yet faced in any theatre. With their full weight of guns and with thousands of trained reinforcements the Germans are contesting every inch of the blood-soaked territory.

The Germans have been completely driven from the Delville wood, a forest fortress behind the German third line of defence. The British won the last inch of ground in this vital position by a night attack. The wood was held by the famous Brandenburg corps, which has distinguished itself on every field from Warsaw to Verdun, and it was against these trained veterans that "Kitchener's army of clerks" scored its victory.

Under cover of an artillery fire so terrible that the German general staff make special comment upon it in their official report, the British on Friday continued their onward swing, attacking the Teutons at Longueval, the fortified village which has seen some of the heaviest fighting of the war.

With the Germans already driven in from most of their outlying positions the British troops attacked the main defence works of the village, carrying several of the strongest, and obtaining complete control of the entire place. At the same time, on the opposite tip of the day's battle-front, the British engaged the Germans in hand-to-hand fighting in the neighborhood of Pozieres.

The final capture of Delville wood is very gratifying to the British people. It was first taken July 17, but was afterwards abandoned. For many days the wood and the village of Longueval have been the scene of some of the heaviest fighting of the whole campaign. The possession of this wood and of Longueval is expected to facilitate greatly the further progress of the Franco-British forces.

KING PLANS VISIT TO CANADA.

Expects to Make Trip With Queen as Soon as War Permits.

The appointment of the Duke of Devonshire as Governor-General of Canada may be regarded as a forerunner of the King's determination to make a tour of Canada with the Queen as soon after the war as possible, according to the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian.

Reference is made to plans by the King to visit Canada during the Duke of Connaught's tenure of office, the assertion being made that they were cut short by the outbreak of the war.

The Duchess of Devonshire is not only Mistress of the Robes of the Queen but is one of her closest friends. She was, before her marriage, Lady Evelyn Mary Fitzmaurice, daughter of Lord Lansdowne. She is a great social favorite aand one of London's most popular hostesses. Both she and the Duke have visited more than once.

TURKISH SUEZ STORY A PURE FABRICATION

A despatch from London says:—Claims of a Turkish victory east of the Suez Canal over the British Egyptian forces were denied in the following official statement given out by the War Office on Thursday: "It was stated in a German wireless message that our cavalry was driven back from Romani (El Ruman) and Katia (El Katie), on Sinai Peninsula. Our cavalry has completed the occupation of Katia and nowhere has been driven back. Complete superiority over the enemy has been established."

Butter-making competitions were introduced at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1899 for the first tim in America. They are similar to those given at the Dairy Shows in Great Britain.

BRITISH ADVANCES CONTINUE IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA

Enemy Driven From Strongly-Organized Positions Astride Railroad—German Governor Killed.

A despatch from London says: The following official statement on the progress of the British campaign in German East Africa was given out on Thursday night:

"Brig.-Gen. Northey reports that on July 24 he drove the main German southern detachment of the enemy from strongly organized positions astride the Neu Langenburg-Irangi road at Malangali. After counter-attacks the enemy retired hurriedly in the direction of Irangi, abandoning a 4.1-inch howitzer and two machine guns.

"Among a number of German Europeans captured previously was Dr. Styr, late governor of the Neu Langenburg district. Dr. Styr has died of wounds. A majority of the surviving members of the crew of the German cruiser Koenigsburg form part of the German forces in this district."

The Joy of a Vacation may be turned to the sorrow that comes from indigestion. The battle with hotel menus is a losing one for the man with a weak stomach. Happy is the man who listens to the call of the wild—who goes fishing, hunting and canoeing—who takes with him Triscuit, the Shredded Whole Wheat wafer. Triscuit is made of the whole wheat, steam-cooked, shredded and baked. A tasty Summer snack, supplying the greatest amount of nutriment in smallest bulk. GETTING USED TO IT.

How Some Martyrs to Nervousness Have Cured Themselves.

Very many persons who have all the skill necessary for great success at games, and in some cases professions, are prevented from doing themselves justice by an uncontrollable nervousness which comes over them when their talents are put to an important trial.

Young soldiers at the Front who expose themselves recklessly are often prompted to do so by a desire to battle against their natural fears, just as many persons who are nervous about particular things, animals, or places, often court association with these things as a cure.

A certain large farmer was once very badly injured through a kick from a horse, and for years afterwards could not bear to go near the heels of one. He was found one day by one of the farm-hands standing in the stable right behind the hind-quarters of the biggest and most vicious animal on the farm, white with anxiety, and his face wet with perspiration.

"Get out of this, lad!" said the farmer, on seeing the carter. "I'm stopping here quietly for a bit!"

In about an hour out he came, cured for ever of his nervousness!

A young and clever barrister, now serving in France, is said to have been so nervous when first called upon to address a jury in court that he determined to adopt strenuous methods in order to cure himself of this failing. Dressing himself in his shabbiest clothes, and taking only a small gladstone-bag with him, he set out on a tour, making "tub-thumping" speeches in parks and market-places in country districts, and making it a rule not even to decide on a subject for his speech until he had collected an audience.

Cases of strong men who faint at the sight of a drop of blood are fairly common. An extraordinary case is recorded by a doctor who was called in to attend a man who had a fainting attack as a result of slightly cutting his finger. On inquiring the business of his patient, it transpired that the man was a butcher! Though used to animal bloodshed, he could not bear the sight of human blood, and always worked in strong leather gloves to prevent accidents.

Legislation was once threatened to prevent Toronto holding an Exhibition except in years specified by the Ontario Government. Fortunately, the matter never reached the House.

PAINTS GERMANY AS STILL HOPEFUL

THE EXPERIENCE OF A BRITISH OBSERVER.

Peace Is Desired, But It Must Be On Terms Dictated by the Teutons.

The London Times publishes the following account of the true condition of Germany "from an unimpeachable source." The article is based on the experience of an observer who recently reached Switzerland, after having lived in Germany and enjoyed special facilities for observation from the beginning of the war. He says:

"The press of German Switzerland, from which my first impressions of the outer world were derived, certainly tells the impartial truth in sufficient degree to save its readers from sharing German illusions. What more can be asked of a neutral press?

"Scarcely less astonishing than the discovery that the position of the Allies is not what Germans fondly believe it to be is the mistaken conception prevalent in some allied countries of the real condition of Germany and of the state of mind of the German people. I propose to describe as simply as possible what that condition and that state of mind really are.

"Unless I am entirely mistaken — and my experience of life in Germany has been continuous—no essential change has taken place among the German masses since the beginning of the war; or, if there has been a change it has not been in the direction of discouragement. The utmost which ordinary Germans can be got to say is that 'it is high time that peace were made,' but they mean, of course, a German peace, one which shall consolidate and correspond to German victories. They not only feel that they are victorious, but they are firmly persuaded that they cannot be beaten.

Conscience Is Easy.

"It must not be supposed that the German people have an uneasy conscience. The Imperial Chancellor's declaration to the Reichstag at the beginning of the war that Germany was 'doing wrong' in invading Belgium was never taken as a confession of guilt. His phrase that 'necessity knows no law' meant and still means to Germans that Germany found herself in a condition of what is called Notwehr—that is to say, of legitimate self-defence.

"'Surrounded by a ring of jealous enemies who had conspired to assail and crush her, they claimed that her only chance was in breaking through the ring by all possible means and of 'vindicating by the sword her right to free existence.'

"Statements by people like Harden that Germany wanted war, and made it deliberately, are regarded as heresy. Harden has been badly received by audiences in provincial towns when he has attempted to propound this view.

"At first it was thought that the war would be short and triumphanant. Confidence in the army and its chiefs was boundless. Illustrated papers represented the spirit of Bismarck as brooding over Paris and pointing to a repetition of the mighty deeds of 1870 and 1871. The Battle of the Marne was taken as a proof that the task might be longer and harder than had at first been supposed, but all talk of a German reverse was checked by the explanation that, on the Marne, the German armies had merely stayed their advance for a time, in order to take up positions carefully selected fifteen years earlier by the foresight of the General Staff.

Fighting for Existence.

"As time went on the conviction grew and deepened that Germany was fighting for her very existence. Though obliged by the necessities of the situation to attack, the view constantly inculcated upon the people was that Germany was and is on the defensive. There are no means of getting this notion out of the public mind.

"Gradually the bitterness of feeling toward England increased. It is now intense. The Germans had been hopeful that, in the event of a European war, England would at least be neutral. Some even dreamed that England might be on their side. They never imagined that she would declare war upon them. The declaration of war was consequently a great blow, though the phrase of the King of Bavaria—'So much the mbetter; the more varia—'So much the better; the more passed from mouth to mouth. At the time I felt, and I still believe, that had the attitude of England been plainer, Germany would have shrunk from making war until she was quite sure that England would stand aloof.

Only Thorough Defeat Will Do.

"Now nothing short of thorough military defeat will convince the German people that they can be beaten. Otherwise there will be no peace except on Germany's own terms. The people are prepared to suffer, much as they may dislike the inconvenience to which the war has put them. This is particularly true of States, like Bavaria, where I spent some time before leaving the country.

"If the Bavarians could be given a smashing blow there might be a rapid end of the war, but they are now as persuaded as they were at the beginning that their Generals and their soldiers cannot be defeated. Even a Prussian defeat would not make much impression in Bavaria unless the Bavarian armies were defeated at the same time.

"The Allies may not have noticed how carefully the Berlin Government plays upon the feelings of the various German 'tribes.' To-day it is the Pomeranians, to-morrow the Brandenburgers, next day the Saxons, and then the Bavarians who are singled out for special praise in the official bulletins. Everything is so organized in every detail by the Government in order to carry out its policy that the public has no opportunity of acquiring views of its own. Popular confidence in official management and in the official accounts of things is still absolute."

ROLL OF HONOR.

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire.

As particulars of Army Reservists are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country or been wounded in action are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.

Addison, Herbert, carpenter, Winnipeg, wounded; Anderson, John M., clerk, Calgary, wounded; Arlke, Harry, tariff compiler, Winnipeg, wounded; Atkinson, Arthur, cook, Montreal, wounded; Boushear, Henry, engineer, Fort William, wounded; Burritt, Edgar M., clerk, North Bay, killed in action; Chapman, Edward, machinist, Angus, killed in action; Diver, John W. car repairer, Toronto, killed in action; Ellis, Thomas G. The man had been haled before the magistrate on some trivial charge.

"Let me see," said the judge. "I know you. Are you not the man who was married in a cage ofman-eating lions?"

"Yes, your honor," replied the culprit, "I am the man."

"Exciting, wasn't it?" continued the justice.

"Well," said the man, judicially, "it was then; it wouldn't be now."

GERMAN MUSIC FOR TURKS.

Only a Few Ladies Smoked During the Programme.

More than a column is devoted by the Berliner Tageblatt to a description of German concerts in Constantinople. The leading Liberal journal is strongly of the opinion that the performance of German music, instrumental and vocal, in the Turkish capital has not only "important kultural significance," but is also fraught with a deep political meaning.

For more than a week, we are told, German instrumentalists and singers, male and female, have been delighting the Turks with the works of Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Schubert, and Schumann, as well as with the liveliest strains of Johann Strauss. Everywhere the audiences were delighted, and applauded vigorously. We hear that the Sultan and Imperial household were frequently regaled, and that in these august circles music is cultivated with a passion and success of which few have any notion. Nearly every member of the Sultan's family is musically gifted. All the princes and princesses play some instrument or other, and several of them have developed such talent as to be almost artists.

The Tageblatt correspondent was quite charmed to notice the respectful behavior of the Turkish audiences. Nearly everybody sat quietly, and it was interesting to note that few ladies, except the very ancient ones, indulged in cigarettes during the performance. A number of very lofty pieces did not meet with the recognition which was expected, but on the whole "the concerts were a marvelous gift of the Germans to their Turkish friends and allies which they will long remember, and which touched their hearts deeply."

The Altered Sign.

He was running a summer hotel, and to keep departing guests from forgetting their belongings he put up a helpful sign.

"Stop—Look! Have you left anything?'

Of course the drummer had to get gay with it, thus:

"Stop—Look! Have you anything left?"

Joffre's Ambition.

When you think of the great commander directing the operations and shaping the fortunes of the armies of France, think also of the best and the truest story that is ever to be told of him. The battle of the Marne had been fought and won. Gen. Joffre was apparently unmoved.

"Do you know, general," said one of his staff, who thought it strange that at such a time a victorious commander should not almost sing and dance: "do you know that you have won what is perhaps the greatest battle in history?"

Joffre looked calmly and reflectively upon him for a few moments, and then he answered: "What I have won, I hope, is a right to rest the sooner in my little house in the eastern Pyrenees."

Why, Thomas.

'Why is it that the telephone operators are all women?" Mrs. Thomas asked her husband.

"Well," answered Mr. Thomas, "the managers of the telephone exchanges are aware that no class of people work so faithfully as those who are in love with their job; and they know that women would love their work at the switchboard."

"What is the work of a telephone operator?" Mrs. Thomas further inquired.

"Talking," answered. Mr. Thomas.

,Perhaps a little exaggeration mixed with your talk would make it more interesting.

Two hundred and twenty-four millions of people are engaged in agriculture in India.

Britain the Enemy.

Our firm opinion is that there is in this war no room for a compromise with England, says the Vossische Zeitung. England is the enemy who has raised up and is still keeping against us a world of enemies. We can expect from England's good-will nothing . . . for our national future. We must for the sake of a reconciliation with England abandon none of the war-aims which we have achieved by conquest and which we deem it necessary to retain in the interests of our country. The only important thing is to weaken England's power and to strengthen our own to an extent that would allow us to impose peace upon England, willy-nilly, and to make her recognize our right to existence, our right to the future, our right to access to the world and to the world's oceans.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER.

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. Red Cross Work

The greatest burdens of this war are borne by women who wait and watch in the quietude and loneliness of home. They who have loved ones in that dreary, blood-stained waste called The Front understand, and for their consolation, that freedom is the child of suffering.

But the other women who are care-free and to whom the casualty lists give no poignant agony should realize that they are concerned in the war and hence should be not only willing but grateful for any opportunity to join the army that is fighting for them. There are some women, we hear, who, troubled with an attack of super-zeal, art unduly anxious about the economic habits of soldiers' dependents. We might call them meddlesome busy-bodies, but we refrain because they are trained social workers who can talk to you about balanced diets and efficiency with an assurance that bewilders the average mortal. They will continue to talk in this manner until some other scientific scheme is elaborated by other women as to the best method of making social poultices.

We do not refer to them—they have no time—but to the women who have leisure moments and to women also who can manage to have leisure moments. To these women we commend the Red Cross work. It is a personal and necessary work. It means that they are represented at the Front. It means that they go, in the guise of the things they fashion, to some stricken soldier, who has given his all that they may live. It means that they realize that our pleasures must be curtailed and sacrifices made—and how petty these are—in order not to be recreant to duty.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

ORGANIZE for Victory!

ONTARIO

THE THIRD YEAR OF THE WAR calls for the organized co-operation of every citizen of the Province of Ontario. ALL must help to hasten the day of final triumph. For the sake of those who have made the Great Sacrifice, and of those now overseas or in training, every citizen must give the best service possible. No one need feel "out of it" when the great day of Victory comes, but everyone must qualify now by sharing in the sacrifices which the War demands.

Suggestions for Organization

In many Municipalities there are already active patriotic organizations, such as Recruiting, Red Cross, Soldiers' Aid and Patriotic Fund Committees. In such cases, one of these, or, better still, a joint committee of these and the citizens generally, might undertake to co-operate with the Central Committee at Toronto.

Where there is no active representative organization, it is suggested that one be formed at the earliest moment. It should be non-partisan (in the broadest sense), and represent every interest affected by war conditions.

What Organizations Should Do

1. Find more men for Overseas service.
2. Help in keeping our munitions plants working to full capacity.
3. Induce every possible worker, men and women, to serve on the farm and in other essential industries.
4. Find money for the coming WAR LOAN and war funds.
5. In short, assist in the organization of Ontario's resources to meet war conditions and after-war conditions.

THRIFT and ECONOMY, and a careful consideration and preparation for our problems are essential if we would meet the present and future needs. For further suggestions and information you are cordially requested to write at once to ALBERT H. ABBOTT, Ph.D., Secretary, Organization of Resources Committee, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Sad Drowning At Norfolk, N. Y.

The following report of the sad drowning of the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Flanders, (the latter will be remembered by residents in this community, as Miss Clara Barkley of Williamsburg) was taken from a Norfolk publication of recent date:—

"This community was saddened on Tuesday, July 18, by the tragic death of Erwin Flanders, who was drowned in the Racquette river at East Norfolk shortly after noon.

"Erwin, with a few other playmates started to cross the river to the pulp mill on the rocks when he suddenly slipped and plunged in fifteen feet of water. The body was recovered about two hours afterwards.

"Little Irwin was nine years old, the second son of Mrs. and Mr. Herbert Flanders, who have the sympathy of the community. He was a sweet disposition child with a far away look in his eyes that always made one think that he was gazing into the beyond.

"The funeral services were held from his home at East Norfolk on Thursday at 2.30, services conducted by Rev. Werfelman, pastor of the Congregational Church where Erwin attended Sabbath School; Rev. Dunning, pastor of the M. E. church, assisting. Interment was made in Bibxy cemetery

"Relatives from out of town present at the funeral were: Mr. R. S. Barkley and daughter, Hulda, of Williamsburg, Mrs. F. W. Herbick of Morrisburg, Mrs. Andrew Droppo of Chesterville, Mr. Asenith Shephard and Mr. Homer Shephard of Massena; Mrs. Adela Shaw and son, Truman, of Madrid; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Murray of Potsdam, Mr. George Murray of Norwood, Mr. David Henderson of Paul Smith, N.Y., Mrs. M. Coombs, Mrs. Beesley and daughter, Iva, of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Louisville and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Barkley.

STUDEBAKER

SERIES 17 FOUR, 40 Horse Power 7 PASSENGER $1225

This grizzled Studebaker veteran has done 97,980 miles (90 per cent of it at 30 miles an hour and over) under the scorching sun and over the roughest roads of central California

Without a single exception this new Series 17 Studebaker motor is the most wonderful motor that the industry has ever seen—and it is wonderful not because it is a novelty or offers a new and hopeful experiment in engine designing---but because it represents the highest development of a long established type of motor and because in the hands of more than 50,000 Studebaker owners, this motor has proved itself supreme in POWER, flexibility and most important, ECONOMY.

Fact is simply that Studebaker has never looked on the motor as a device by which to sell a car--has never sought to follow styles or to inject untried novelties into its design Instead Service and performance have been Studebaker's chief ideals. And for four years Studebaker engineers have worked over this one design.

For example, they spent two years on the gas passages getting them to taper off just so without angles or any other impediments to the freest flow of the gases. That alone gave increased POWER.

THE LAPSE OF ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS,

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

Dorcas glanced at the handful of men cowering in a shadowed corner. A sudden fear seized her, the feminine terror of midnight streets.

"You don't imagine," she whispered, "that I shall have any trouble? It is possible I am making a mistake in the man. Are they dangerous characters among them?"

"Not exactly dangerous," said the officer slowly. "If they're dangerous it's from hunger. It ain't once a year you find a crook in the bread line. It's too easy to spot them, waiting as they do for an hour or two in that light."

"Thank you," said the girl. She crouched behind a half-drawn curtain in the shadow of the carriage, watching eagerly the gathering of homeless, hungry men. They began to creep toward the bakery from every direction, most of them with a shambling step that told of ill-shod feet or shamed reluctance to beg for food. The skies had been lowering for hours, and just before midnight the first storm of the winter came down. It began with keen, tiny needles of ice, but they stung and froze, for the wind drove them in merciless, piercing flurries. The loitering men crowded together and turned their faces sullenly from each furious cloud of sleet. Hunger was bitter enough without the storm. Dorcas watched through misty eyes. She wondered at the still patience of the throng. Below her in a basement a warm red light burned, and through an open door the wind blew the fragrance of boiling coffee across the street. She saw a man thrust a slim white-faced boy into a shelter between the wall and himself.

"If I were starving I couldn't be patient and courteous,' she thought. "The smell of food would madden me, I would batter a door down."

She started suddenly, then for a moment she scarcely breathed. Down Tenth street slouched a tall, stooping figure. The man wore a shabby overcoat which covered his body almost to the feet; its collar was turned high about his neck and an old slouch hat shadowed his face. Dorcas could see little between but a bristling beard. The keenest detective searching for Andrew Merry would not nave glanced twice at the figure; Dorcas' eyes followed it with grave perplexity. She had been startled into recognition the night before when the man pulled the shabby hat down over his face. She caught a glimpse of Merry's long, white, slender fingers and noted an impatient, peculiarly graceful gesture which was characteristic of him. Dorcas had seen it frequently, sometimes when he was on the stage, sometimes while he had talked with her.

He paused before facing the glare of Braodway and pulled the hat brim carefully about his face; it might have been for shelter from the stinging blasts of sleet or for better concealment. Then he seemed to gather himself together with energy born of despair. He stepped quickly forward and took his place at the end of the bread line. A hundred men stood between him and the beneficence of food. Others were closing in behind him. Here and there one man turned to speak to another; the man Dorcas was watching stood immovable. He thrust his hands deep in his overcoat pockets his eyes were fixed on the whitening sidewalk beside him. Dorcas turned to the opposite window and nodded with an eager gesture to the officer. His hand went up. He spoke to the cabman in a low voice.

"Drive round through University place to Tenth—then up toward Broadway. Pull up half-way down the block."

The man turned his horse and moved down the street.

CHAPTER IX.

Dorcas breathed a sigh of relief when her cab drew up beside the bread line. She had thought during her brief drive around the block of the possibility that the man might leave his place; but there he stood against the stinging eddies of sleet. She stepped from the carriage and passed swiftly along the sidewalk beside the line of a city's poor. She hesitated for a few seconds when she reached the corner, then she stretched out her hand and laid it on the wet sleeve of the man before her. He turned and stared at her for one dazed moment. He did not speak. Instinctive courtesy reminded him that this was no place for a woman in a midnight storm, and his desire to protect her caused the hunger to be forgotten. He stepped quietly from the sidewalk and without a word moved beside her down the street. The movement caused a score of men to turn with quick curiousity, but suddenly a cry ran down the line; "The door's open!" Everything else yielded to the march toward food.

Dorcas swiftly led the way to the carriage. When she opened the door and beckoned Merry to enter he hesitated, the blood flushing into his wan face.

"What do you want, Miss Dorcas?" he asked quietly.

"I want to talk with you," answered the girl. "Do get in, please—out of the storm."

Merry handed her in, then followed and shut the door. "I cannot go home with you," he announced stubbornly.

"Enoch is away. He's in Montreal and there is nobody at home except Jason and me. I have so much to say to you," she cried appealingly. "We can't talk driving through the streets on such a night as this."

Merry stared at her for a minute with dogged obstinacy in his gaze.

"Won't you come?" urged the girl impetuously. Her color deepened and an eager light shone in her eyes. "There is so much I want to say. We shall be quite alone. You can trust Jason. Afterwards you may go away—if you wish—and I will promise never to attempt to find you. I will try to forget you."

Merry stretched out his hand and touched her arm, leaning forward until his face wa sclose to hers. "Miss Dorcas, don't say that. Since I left you that night on Juniper Point I have lived a lifetime of happiness and horror and remorse. One think alone has saved me from going over the brink of the precipice, simply one thing." He lifter his eyes to hers. "The one thing," he repeated, "that I could not fling away was the memory that you trusted me, that you believed in me. and were waiting for me to make good."

"I trust you now," cried the girl, her voice breaking into a sob. "I am still waiting for you to make good. Won't you come hom with me?"

The cab stopped in front of the Waverly Place home. Merry followed her reluctantly up the steps. She paused for a moment while she adjusted the key in the lock.

"Would you mind seeing Jason?" she asked hesitatingly. "He can help you with dry clothes. He will be as glad to see you as I am."

"Ring for him," answered Merry quietly. "Jason and I are old pals."

Half and hour later Merry walked into the library where Dorcas was waiting for him. It seemed as if the mere resumption of clean, comfortable clothing, even though hunger still marked him, had given the man fresh valor ,new dignity.

He laughed nervously. "It is a rejuvenation, isn't it?" he asked as he glanced at himself in the mirror. "Jason unearthed some duds I once left here."

Jason was an excellent valet, and a hot bath, a shave, and fresh raiment had made a man of Merry. The lock of fair hair which habitually fell over his forehead made him look almost boyish, although his face was pallid and careworn.

"I have eaten nothing since morning," Dorcas said. "I told Jason to serve supper here, on a little table beside the fire, where it is cozy and cheerful."

Merry dropped into a chair. He wondered if the intense enjoyment of the good things of life was pure sensuousness. The oddor of hot coffee, the sight of a daintily set table, the radiance of a coal fire, the glow of red-shaded lights, and the storm shut outdoors brought a tingling pleasure which seemed like mere animal gratification. He shivered for a moment as he listened to the storm. He wondered what had made it possible for him to brave homelessness and hunger and squalor. Looking back on it he realized he had borne it as a man lives through pain under the power of an anesthetic. The misery of his mind had dulled the cordid wretchedness of mere existence.

To Merry that supper was a festival, not wholly because it was the satisfying of ravenous appetite, but because it was the crisis of his life. Dorcas sensed that if her own hunger was real, Merry would not feel that she was feeding a famished outcast. Jason beamed upon them in sheer enjoyment when he brought in full dishes and carried away empty ones. Dorcas was light-hearted and gay, as happy as they had been during their first acquaintance at the shore. For a moment. while Merry drank his coffee, the memory of a few horrible weeks intruded on the present.

"Miss Dorcas," he began abruptly, "Why did you—"

She stretched out her hand appealingly.

"Don't bring in whys—now. We are so comfortable. I don't ask for an explanation—I don't want to give any. Can't you see I'm in Happy Valley for a little while? I am so glad to have you here again."

Merry smiled into her eyes. "I'll obey you, bless your gentle heart!"

The girl rose and reached to a shelf behind her for a box of cigars. Merry lit one, lounged back in a cushioned chair, and puffed rings of smoke towards the red fire. They sat in silence after Jason had carried away the dishes. Their quiet was broken when the clock struck one. The man started.

"Miss Dorcas, you wanted me here to talk, I cannot rob you of a night's sleep."

"I am as wide awake as a cricket. I slept all the afternoon."

"First of all," Merry asked gravely, "how did you find me? Scores of men and women passed me day after day, people I have known for years. Not one of them recognized me."

"They were not searching for you."

"You were?"

Dorcas nodded.

"How did you find me?" he persisted.

"Last night on my way home from the theatre with Mr. Oswald our cab stopped in a block, and it was opposite where—that line of men stood. I was looking at them when I saw you pull down your hat. When Mr. Oswald left me here I drove back to Tenth street, but the line had dispersed. I went again to-night—just hoping."

"Who is Mr. Oswald?" asked Merry abruptly.

"Don't you know? Haven't you been reading the papers? Mr. Oswald is the man who is putting on your play."

"My play?" Andrew dropped his half-smoked cigar on the table.

"Your play," repeated Dorcas in a quiet tone. "They have been searching everywhere for you to play 'John Esterbrook.' Enoch is in Montreal now, looking for you."

Merry laughed harshly.

The girl clasped her hands together. "Mr. Merry, tell me, are you and Enoch no longer friends?"

Andrew picked up his cigar and puffed it until the red spark revived. Then he laughed again. "We are not exactly friends. Has he told you anything?"

NATURE GUARDS SECRETS.

Centuries of Study Yield Little to Moon.

Greenwich, England, observatory was founded by Charles II. mainly for the purpose of investigating the movements of the moon in the interests of navigation, but though generations of astronomers have in the intervening two and a half centuries been working at the problem, the moon has not yet been amenable to their mathematics. The astronomer royal, in his report of the work at Greenwich during the last year, calls attention to the increasingly big deviation between the calculated position of the moon in the sky and its real position as shown by the Greenwich observations.

This deviation has lately been increasing in a serious manner, the error last year being more than 12 times as large as it was 20 years ago, the average annual increase amounting in the two decades to half a second of arc in longitude. The cause of the failure of astronomers to make the moon amenable to their exact mathematics, based on the dynamical laws of gravitation, is believed to be some attractive force of which we are at present ignorant, though in all probability one factor is the true shape of the earth, which still awaits accurate determination. Fortunately the chronometer and wireless telegraph have made seamen virtually independent of lunar observations in ascertaining their position in the trackless oceans.

The Cream Separator.

It is wonderful to reflect upon the progress that the cream separator has made during the last few years. There are now very few farms where dairying is carried on that have not their separator, even though the people running them may be antiquated in regard to their methods in other respects.

It requires very little demonstrating to convince anyone that a cream separator is a great saving over the old pan method of securing cream. A separator takes up much less room in the dairy than the setting pans, and it obtains a greater yield of butter from the milk used. Moreover, the cream from the separator is quite sweet, and therefore the ripening of it is more easily controlled than where pans are employed, which develop a certain amount of acidity or other ferments due to bacterial activity while the cream is rising.

When the cream separator is carefully managed the skim milk should not contain more than 0.1 per cent. of butter fat, and thus the butter yield is increased by 10 to 12 per cent. as compared with the old pan setting system. This makes a considerable difference in the course of a year where good dairy cows are employed, and would soon pay for the separator.

With care a separator will last for many years and it is generally through carelessness or ignoranee that it breaks down. It is important that the separator bearings be well oiled in order to avoid friction and wearing out of parts. Before starting to separate all the sight feed lubricators should be full, and tested to see that the yare in working order. The separatod should always be started very slowly, and the speed worked up gradually, and no milk let into the bowl until it is running at full speed.

The milk should be separated as soon as it leaves the cow, as fat is lost in the skim milk when the milk is skimmed below a temperature of 85 deg. F. If cold milk has to be dealt with it should be warmed up to from 100 to 120 deg. F. just before being separated. The separator should be washed immediately after using. If left for some time, as is often done, it gives the slime a chance to dry on the interior of the bowl, and then more time and trouble are required to remove it than if the cleaning were effected as soon as the milk has passed through the machine.

Immediately after use all the parts with which the milk comes into contact should be taken apart and washed with lukewarm water. Hot water should not be used, as it causes part of the milk to cake on, and form a refuge for germs which taint milk. After this the parts should be washed in fairly hot water contaniing a little soda, and then be dipped in scalding water.

The creamy matter left in the bowl may be put in the pig tub, and care must be taken to thoroughly clean the bowl of all the slime present after separating. The amount of slime in the bowl is a good indication as to whether the milk has been obtained in a cleanly manner or not. The dirtier the milk the more slime there will be present in the bowl.

In order to secure the best results the separator must be worked at the correct speed, which must be maintained at a uniform speed until all the milk is separated.

Cows Need Mineral Matter.

That pigs require a considerable amount of mineral matter in their food is pretty well known but that cows will sometimes suffer from want of it is not so well known. Salt, of course, is always fed to the stock by careful feeders all the year round.

The late Herr Kellner estimated that a cow giving twenty pounds of milk per day should receive about three and a half ounces of lime per day. Many cases have been observed where cows had abnormal appetities and developed the habit of eating wood, etc., that when a sufficient amount of lime was fed the desire to gnaw wood and eat filth stopped.

In sections where the water is soft many good dairymen put lime in the water trough so as to make sure that the animals will get enough of this very important food constituent. The old saying that "a limestone country is a rich country" emphasizes the value of the lime, and it is a well known fact that the bigest boned and thriftiest cattle are raised where the soil has an abundance of lime.

Writing in Wallace's Farmer some time ago, Mr. C. H. Eckles, of the University of Missouri, wrote: "The use of clover, alfalfa, or cowpea hay, in the ration will make certain that this trouble (lack of lime in the feed) will not occur. These foods are the highest in lime content of any which we ordinarily feed. Corn, on the other hand, is the most deficient in lime of all grains ordinarily fed. A pound of alfalfa hay contains practically the same amount of lime as 100 pounds of corn.

"We found a herd of dairy cattle in this state suffering from a lack of lime—and on investigation it was discovered that the cows, which were producing 35 pounds of milk a day, were actually giving off more lime in their feed. Probably no trouble would have resulted except for the fact that the preceding summer had been dry and the grass short, making it impossible for the cows to accumulate a reserve supply of lime."

Which of These is the Better?

Two men were leaning over the pasture bars.

"Yes, sir, that colt is for sale, but he belongs to my son in the field yonder. You'll have to bargain with him," said the farmer, motioning to the boy. "He'll be here presently and you can talk to him."

"That boy!" ejaculated the stranger.

"Yes, George is seventeen and a smarter boy never was raised on any farm—if I do say it. You ought to hear him in debate. He can hold his end with the best of 'em. He raised that colt and the sale money saving for a course in an agricultural college, then I'll step down and out he'll run the old farm. Here George, this man is looking at your two-year-old."

The bargain was soon concluded, but not before the buyer had learned that the seventeen-year-old boy was a keen judge of horse flesh and knew the worth of his colt.

Two men were leaning over the pasture bars.

"Yes, sir, them steers are as good as ever was raised in this town. That boy over there calls 'em his, and has fussed with 'em ever since they were calves. Hey? Oh, that makes no difference when it comes to selling. They were fed from my mow, and I reckon the cash goes into my pocket. Boys are ungrateful nowadays. He keeps talking of quitting and I can't keep him longer than he is twenty-one. He might take the old farm and let me have a rest, but he will not listen to that. Well—it can't be helped as I see. You don't offer quite what I consider the steers worth, but there's no use in feeding 'em any longer. They're yours." Which boy made a successful, contented farmer, and why?—Western Farmer.

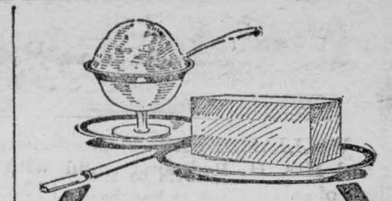

HUNS ARE GLUTTONS.

Eat Far More Than Other People, When Possible.

Though the Huns are beginning to complain that they are being starved, yet what is starvation to them is plenty to most nations, says London Answers.

Before the war the Germans, both men and women, were the biggest eaters of any one the Continent. The average German begins with coffee and milk between seven and eight in the morning. About ten there is a meat breakfast, at one o'clock a really heavy meal, as a rule about twice as much as an English lunch, with beer or wine, or both. At tea, cakes, chocolates and marzipans are invariably eaten.

At 8 p.m. comes supper, almost as heavy as the midday dinner, and consisting of cold ham, mutton, beef or veal with wine.

PUT IN LAYER OF MAGGOTS.

German Baker Also Mixed Ants and Bugs in His Cakes.

The Berlin Vorwaerts says:—The unscrupulous manner in which the preparation of various articles of food is being carried on has again been strikingly exemplified in Leipzig.

A master baker, C. A. Rabitz, the owner of one of the foremost fashionable establishments in Leipzig, has been found guilty of the most shameless transgression of all existing laws and regulations. His worst practice of all was to bake live maggots in his cakes.

On an assistant showing him that the dough was full of these vermin, Rabitz contented himself with covering them up beneath a layer of dough. "No need to remove the maggots," he observed, "people will eat the cakes all the same." The maggot paste was thereupon duly baked into cakes.

Rabitz had also prepared another kind of confection, styled "dessert cake," from ground wood and potato flour, in which quantities of ants and even bugs were present.

This infamous specimen of the baker tribe received five months' imprisonment besides being condemned to pay a fine of £31.

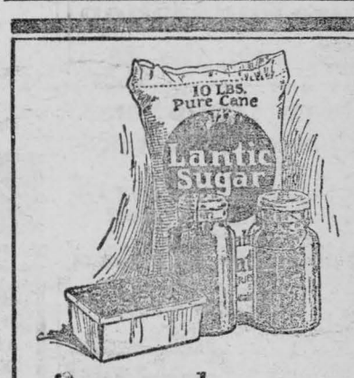

Kitchener Predicted Death.

When Lord Kitchener was in France some three months ago, visiting the British front, he met his friend the naval Capt. Testu de Balincourt, then on service at Dunkirk, whom Lord Kitchener asked to be his special aid if he should need one later during the war. Lord Kitchener told his friend how a heavy shell had burst close to him while on this visit, but added, "that did not disturb me, for I know that I shall die at sea."

Chickens Now $4 Apiece.

The London Times Berne correspondent quotes an American from Brussels as saying that the conclusion of that city is outwardly little changed; that the chief privation is the absence of news. Food commands extravagant prices, bread being thirteen cents and meat of all kinds a dollar a pound. Chickens are from $2 to $4 apiece. Butter is a dollar a pound. There is much distress and even starvation in the surrounding country.

Useful Hints and General Information for the Busy Housewife

Appetizing Cucumber Dishes.

The cucumber appeals to the most jaded of palates, but it has been maligned as the cause of indigestion. By following a few simple rules it loses its gastric-disturbing qualities.

Cucumbers gathered early in the morning are sweeter and less liable to cause indigestion. Never eat a cucumber gathered during the heat of the day.

Lay the cucumber for the table on ice, not in the refrigerator simply, till ready to use; then remove a thick paring, for the bitter principle lies next to the skin, so do not leave a particle of green; slice thin and serve on a dish with crushed ice, soaking in cold water before they go to the table. Many persons partake of them cooked who cannot enjoy them raw.

Cucumber Sticks.—Pare some chilled cucumbers and cut them their full length into sticks about as thick as a pencil; serve them on a dish of chopped ice; to be eaten with salt as celery.

Cucumber Sauce.—Turn into a colander a cupful of peeled and chopped cucumbers and drain, then put in a bowl that has been rubbed on the inside with a clove or garlic. To a pint of whipped cream add a pinch of soda and beat in the cucumber; add half a teaspoonful of onion juice, salt, a pinch of red pepper and teaspoonful of vinegar. Keep on ice till needed.

Stewed Cucumbers.—Peel a large cucumber, cut it up in slices and soak in two teaspoonfuls of vinegar, with salt, and an onion stuck with two or three cloves. Stir these every now and then, and in an hour's time dry each piece of cucumber carefully on a cloth, flour slightly and fry in good drippings with a sliced onion until quite brown. Then moisten with a cupful of stock and let simmer gently for 30 minutes; afterward add pepper and salt, a little coloring or thickening if necessary, and two spoonfuls of tomato catsup. Put in some slices of cold beef, shake thoroughly for 15 minutes and serve.

Cucumber Salad.—Peel two medium-sized cucumbers, cut in thin slices one carrot, add one slice of onion, a teaspoonful of salt and a little cayenne. Cover with a pint of boiling water, simmer till soft. In the meantime, soften a tablespoonful of granulated gelatine in cold water, dissolve with three tablespoonfuls of boiling water, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice to these vegetables, stir in the gelatine, strain all while hot through cheese-cloth. Line a mold with slices of fresh cucumbers and fill in with the jelly; set away on ice for several hours. When ready to serve turn on to a salad bowl, garnish with slices of fresh tomatoes and serve with French dressing.

Cucumber Sandwiches.—Pare as many cucumbers as will be required, split open, remove the seeds and, with a very sharp knife, cut into thin slices; soak for 20 minutes in ice water, drain and dry on a towel; then dip each slice into a rich mayonnaise dressing, sprinkle with salt and arrange on thinly sliced bread; cover with a lettuce leaf and a second slice of bread, and serve at once.

Cucumber Soup With Toast Sticks.—Simmer in a quart of water nine sliced cucumbers and four small onions until very soft, then press through a sieve; to this add a pint and a half of scalded milk, a thickening of two tablespoonfuls of butter with three of flour, some salt and pepper and simmer slowly. Serve hot with buttered toast sticks.

Creamed Cucumbers on Toast.—Stew the cucumbers as described above, drain off the water in which they are cooked, then pour over them a rich cream sauce thickened with butter and flour and serve hot on toast or in pastries.

Cucumber Fritters.—Carefully peel and grate ripe cucumbers; press the juice from the pulp, and to each teacupful of it add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of thick, rich cream, half a tablespoonful of butter, a fourth of a cupful of sifted flour, teaspoonful of salt, dash of cayenne pepper and one beaten egg; drop by spoonfuls into hot fat, and when a delicate brown turn, drain on blotting paper and serve.

Cucumbers for Lunch.—Select a large, long cucumber, wash but do not peel, cut into half lengthwise, scoop out the contents, chill and fill with a dressing made with whipped cream; have this piled up on top of it, and place in the centre of a shallow, round bowl. Arrange around this first a border of thinly sliced new onions, next to this one of sliced tomatoes and on the outside a border of sliced cucumbers. This makes a pretty dish, and can be served at the table with dressing in the centre boat.

Miscellaneous Recipes.

Coffee Ice Cream.—A pint of milk, two eggs, a cupful of cream, two-thirds cupful of sugar, two heaping tablespoonfuls of ground coffee. Bring the milk and coffee slowly to the scalding point, placing them in a double boiler. Beat the eggs, pour the scalded milk over them through a strainer, so as to keep out the coffee grounds. Return to the saucepan, add the sugar and cook until like custard. Cool, add the cream, freeze and pack.

Salmon Box.—One pound can salmon, one egg, one-half cup cracker crumbs, one-eighth sugar, one teaspoon lemon juice, two-thirds cup milk or cream, three cups cooked rice. Butter oval mold thickly and line with inch-thick layer of rice which has been boiled in salted water until tender but firm and then drained dry. Fill center with salmon free from skin and bones and mixed with other ingredients. Pack closely, cover top with layer of rice, set on lid and steam forty-five minutes.

Apple Water.—This will be found a refreshing drink for both invalids and healthy people. It can be made with either baked or raw apples, the former to be preferred when time is short, especially if the apples are baked and in readiness. They should be sour, and when cold should be immersed in boiling water to cover. Let stand until ready to cook, then strain and sweeten to taste. If raw apples are used, three or four juicy sour apples of fine flavor should be pared and sliced, and, if desired, a few slices of lemon rind added to them. Pour over them two cupfuls of boiling water, and let them stand for three hours. Strain, sweeten, and add a small piece of ice.

Beets Aspic Salad.—Two bunches beets, one cup water, three-fourths cup vinegar, one-half cup sugar, one and one-half tablespoons gelatin or jelly powder, four whole cloves, two whole allspice, two crushed bay leaves one teaspoon salt. Cook beets until tender and rub off skins under cold water. Slice very thin and round and put them in mold—angel food tin will do. Put water, vinegar, spices, salt and jelly powder in saucepan and boil gently for five minutes. Strain and pour over beets. Set in cool place to harden. Unmold one dish and surround with lettuce leaves, placing heart of lettuce in center to look like rose. Cut in thin slices or wedge shaped piece at table and serve on lettuce leaves. Cover with spoonful of boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Things Worth Remembering.

Oatmeal is an effectual softener of hard water.

Salt added to mustard is said to prevent its drying up.

A lump of sugar saturated with vinegar will stop hiccoughs.

After the rust is wiped off a mirror a little camphor will brighten it.

Never use water from a stone reservoir for cooking purposes.

Wash silk handkerchiefs in tepid water with a little borax. Iron while damp.

If fruits are canned as soon as they are picked there will be less loss by fermentation.

If silver is to be stored away for some time, pack it with dry flour; it will remain untarnished.

When the color has been taken out of black goods it may be restored by the application of liquid ammonia.

Naphtha soap, shredded and scattered among blankets when they are stored away will prevent the ravages of moths.

A piece of alum kept in the silver will aid in warding off tarnish, and gum arabic is said to have the same virtue.

Never try to clean yokes, collars or cuffs while sewed on the gown. Such things should always be made detachable.

To destroy flies boil some quassia chips in a little water, sweeten with molasses and place in saucers; destructive to flies, but not to children.

To revive and help potted plants that are drooping place a teaspoonful of ammonia in three quarts of water and water the plants thoroughly with this mixture.

To save knife polish, if the knives and forks are first washed with cold water immediately after dinner, they will not be stained, and so require little cleaning and much less labor.

To wash soiled dress shields lay them on a board or table, soiled side up, and give a thorough scrubbing with a stiff brush and any good laundry soap, with plenty of lukewarm water. Hold under a faucet until completely rinsed. Do not squeeze, but hang each dripping piece on the line until dry.

A Five Spot for One.

Dr. X. was a man who took his profession seriously, and he had an immense practice. What annoyed him was to be sent for by fussy women to treat, the most trifling ailments. One woman was particularly aggravating in this respect, and he resolved to cure her. One day she observed a red spot on her hand, and at once telephoned for him. He came, looked at the spot, and said: "You did well to send for me early."

"It is dangerous, then?" she asked.

"Certainly not," said the doctor, "but to-morrow it would have disappeared and I should have lost my fee for this visit."

A SCOTCHMAN GOVERNED BERLIN

AN ABERDONIAN WHO RULED THE KAISER'S CAPITAL.

Frederick the Great Erected a Marble Monument to His Memory.

Reposing in a handsome tomb within the Garrison Church at Berlin, Germany, lie the remains of a Scot who once ruled over the capital of the Kaisers.

An Aberdonian; abundantly blessed with the grit and canniness proverbially associated with Scotland, Fate made him, instead of a lawyer, the close friend of two Empresses renowned in European history, and of an Emperor whose name will for ever stand out on the worlds roll of monarchs. The former were the Empresses Anna and Elizabeth of Russia; the latter, Frederick the Great, of the once reputable kingdom of Prussia.

Born within the Castle of Inverugie, Peterhead, towards the close of the seventeenth century, the Scot in question was James Francis Keith, second son of William Keith, ninth Earl Marischal, scion of a house which for centuries had divided its talents 'twixt military and administrative affairs, something of the latter was intended for young Keith by his long-headed, as well as long-descended, parents. Consequently, after concluding a careful education, he was sent to Edinburgh to study law.

Jacobite Soldiering.

For such a career, however, the young man had scant relish. Something more exciting—soldiering, for preference—was more to his taste. Circumstances soon fulfilled his wishes. Abandoning his studies, he set out for London in quest of a military commission, and at York he met his elder brother, George, hurrying back to Scotland. The reason for the haste was news that Mar had raised the standard of rebellion, and the "'15" had been definitely launched. The result of the meeting was an overjoyed recruit in James, who a little later assisted his brother to proclaim James VIII. at the Cross in Aberdeen.

The sequel was the common experience of nearly all who took part in the adventure; brave fighting, honorable defeat, and then flight. Both brothers escaped to Brittany, George to again wield the sword, James, for a time, to return to law and literature.

But once more love of cause and country claimed him. During a three years' sojourn in Paris he had kept in constant touch with brother Jacobites and sympathizers, and was in consequence acquainted with Alberoni's projected descent on the Western Highlands. This rash enterprise he joined, shared in the encounter at Glenshiel, and after the surrender of the Spanish auxiliaries fled into hiding. Later he escaped to Holland, and, pending employment nearer home, he then took service under the King of Spain. For nine years he remained in the Spanish army, taking part, among other notable engagements, in the siege of Gibraltar in 1726-7.

Rising Russia.

About this period the rising and ambitious Russia showed considerable enterprise in the attracting to her service of likely free lances, British for choice. Among those who responded to the invitation was James Keith. Given the rank of major-general, he seems to have grasped with both hands the opportunities now offered him. Within two years of entering Russia he was appointed colonel in the bodyguard of the Empress Anna, and by another couple of years, in 1732, was made Army Inspector of the Volga and Don territories.

His real chance, however, came with the war of the Polish Succession in 1733-5. Second in command of the Russian forces during this period, Keith pushed the French back to the Rhine, when a truce stayed the victorious advance of the Muscovites.

In the year following came the war with Turkey, and once more Keith was placed in a prominent command. At the storming of Otchakoff he was dangerously wounded, and it looked as if his military career would be brought to a close by the amputation of a leg. "I would sooner lose ten thousand of my best soldiers than Keith," declared the Empress when informed of her favorite's misfortune; and immediately she summoned to his aid the best surgical skill obtainable within her dominions.

Another person, however, was even more interested in the wounded General's welfare. This was his brother George, who hastened over half Europe when he learned that James was in danger. Unwilling to trust him to Muscovite surgery, George insisted on conveying his brother to Paris, and there more skillful treatment happily saved the injured limb.

Following his convalescence, both, brothers crossed to England, and, though still Jacobites, spent some months in London unmolested. Returning to Russia, James was made Governor of the Ukraine, an appointment from which he was recalled to do battle against the then formidable Swedes. On the conclusion of peace he was sent as a special ambassador to Stockholm, where he appears to have distinguished himself in diplomacy no less than he had previously done in war.

Becomes Governor of Berlin.

Returning once more to Russia he was loaded with gifts and honors by the new Empress, Elizabeth, and thus effectively ensured his downfall so far as concerned that country. Intrigue and jealousy quickly undermined the favoritism of even the astute Keith, and one by one he was stripped of his offices. Eventually, left with only the command of some militia regiments, and given a hint that he might become a candidate for a dungeon or worse, he fled the country, disgusted as well as dispossessed.

Neither had he far to go nor long to wait before finding fresh employment. Possibly he had prepared the way before cutting adrift from Russia, but in any case within less than a month of severing his service there he found himself a Field Marshal under Frederick the Great. Further, appreciating the kind of man he had got hold of, Frederick made Keith Governor of Berlin at the then considerable salary of £1,600 per annum.

From the first Keith succeeded to the complete confidence of his new master, who always consulted him on questions bearing alike on military and diplomatic affairs. During the critical period of the Seven Years' War he was so closely associated with the King that a record of his movements would amount to a detailed account of the entire campaigns. Following varied fortunes and disasters to the Prussian arms came the crushing blow at Hochkirch. There, at break of day on the morning of October 14th, 1758, the weak Prussian wing under Keith was overwhelmed by vastly superior numbers of Austrians, and, valiantly attempting to rally his men, the marshal received two wounds, the second of which proved mortal.

After the battle his naked body was found upon the field, and, out of respect to a brave foe, was given honorable burial by the Austrian commander in the village church at Hochkirch. Soon afterwards Frederick caused the remains to be exhumed and reburied at Berlin, the King further ordering a splendid marble monument to be erected in memory of his late faithful friend. For nearly 100 years this statue stood in the Wilhelmsplatz and then in 1857 it was replaced by a bronze reproduction, the original being removed to the Cadets' Academy.

Kaiser's Gift to Peterhead.

Forty-eight years ago a replica was presented to Peterhead by William I., grandfather of the present Kaiser. The latter likewise, it is not uninteresting to note, paid tribute to the man who so many years previously served his ancestor. In 1889, a year after coming to the throne, Wilhelm sanctioned the re-naming of the 1st Upper Silesian Regiment the "Keith Regiment," not forgetting, probably, that the territory from which the corps is recruited was added to his empire in the same way which resulted in Keith's death.—The Weekly Scotsman.

THE FASHIONS

Fashion has at last managed to combine comfort with grace and charm. The sports costume predominates; various styles of middy and Russian blouses are worn with trim fitting skirts; chic suits of striped and plain mohair, pongee or linen, with Norfolk coats and pleated skirts, are favored; and sweater coats, with self or contrasting skirts, also popular. The middy blouse costumes are developed in the regulation white linen, duck or galatea, with collar and cuffs of blue and skirts of the new striped cotton novelties, mohair or plain white linen. The modified Russian and "slip-on" blouses favored the white and colored Japanese silks, pongee, plain or figured, Shantung, or, Georgette, and are usually combined with skirts of thin, light or dark silks. One especially pretty costume developed in plain natural colored pongee, trimmed and combined with a skirt of dark blue foulard dotted with bright green, is illustrated here. It is a slip-on model with cool, becoming sleeves, and an effective collar. The skirt is a simple gathered design, short and full, but unusually graceful.

The plain white Russian blouse costume of Georgette crepe is particularly effective and cool for these hot summer days, and perfectly appropriate for summer evening wear. The simple voiles, too, are being developed in charming models with a touch of black, or a bright color at girdle or throat. The new voiles are washable in most mixtures, and generally satisfactory.

Cool Frocks for Street Wear

Dark blue in taffeta, Georgette, serge and satin is the leading color for street wear, in spite of its apparent warmth. As most of these frocks, however, are made with white or self-colored transparent sleeves, they are in reality quite as cool as a light colored frock. Dark blue Georgette is often used for the entire dress, collared and cuffed with taffeta, and trimmed with a band or two of the taffeta on the skirt. A dark blue serge and Georgette frock has an odd, applique design in blue velvet trimming the jumper, which is of the serge; the design, which is a small leaf, is repeated on the collar and cuffs. Sashes, which are a feature of both linen and serge frocks this summer, often a pleasing opportunity for introducing a bit of colored embroidery. The sash on the serge frock is generally of black satin and the embroidery is worked out in colored wools, soutache braid, or beads. These motifs may be as bizarre as desired and are often repeated in the trimming of the hat.

7263

Slip-On Blouse and Foulard Skirt

Variety in Tailored Hats.

It is no longer the price of the hat which counts, for there are some very inexpensive hats being worn just now by the best dressed women, but the chic of its coloring and trimming which is important. For instance the soft, light weight Bankok, the Wen-Chow, and the chair-cane hats are all favored, finished with just a touch of colored wool, beads, or a bright bit of applique embroidery which harmonizes with suit or frock. One of the smartest hats is a dark tan tan Wen-Chow with one of the new quartered crowns in dark purple satin, trimmed with a motif in delft blue and white Chinese embroidery. A purple satin hand-bag with another blue and white motif completes the effect, which is charming. This hat and bag are worn with a dainty little corded frock of tan crepe de Chine, made with a petticoat of cream batiste embroidery which shows just a bit below the silken skirt.
