Provide for the Future

You have no guarantee that you will always be able to do your present work, or make your present income. It is wise, therefore,—necessary in fact—to lay aside a certain amount regularly, and build up a reserve fund.

The best way to do this is to open a Savings Account in the Union Bank, on which Interest will be paid regularly, at highest current rates.

It will lessen your worries, and increase your self-respect.

Girl Locked Up the Chief.

A trick was played on Chief of Police Edwards of Smith's Falls a few days ago. A young Syrian girl, who was a prisoner in a cell at the police station on the charge of vagrancy, asked him if he would kindly step inside and open the window to let some air in. He acceded to her wishes, and as he was in the act of raising the window, the girl stepped nimbly outside with the remark: "Just see how you like being locked up there yourself," at the same moment snapping the lock. The chief sprang to the door, only to find that he was himself a prisoner. He called out and some one who happened to be in the corridors heard him and released him. The girl did not succeed in making her escape and was soon in the toils again.

Pure and Elevating.

Any family who misses securing a copy of the beautifuf picture, "The Soul's Awakening," will surely be sorry after they are all gone and it is seen in some friend's house. The best people in the Dominion are publicly recommending it to every home. Every lover of that which is pure and inspiring cannot fail to appreciate such a beautiful work. The picture is given absolutely free to all who subscribe to that great weekly paper, "The Family Herald and Weekly Star" of Montreal, the price of which is only one dollar a year. It is not the usual cheap chromo but is in sepia tones ready for framing and fit for a place in any home in the Dominion. It is 19 x 24 inches. Send a dollar at once for a year's subscription to that gaeat paper and the picture will be sent at once safely packed in a strong cardboard tube. Do not wait until the crowd ahead of you is too big.

Looks Like Work of an Incendiary

The Central Hotel at Jasper had a narrow escape from destruction by fire Friday morning. The proprietor Mr. Elmer Davis was awakened about one o'clock by the smoke which was so dense that it was with great difficulty he made his way out to give an alarm. The villagers quickly responded and by efforts that were almost superhuman they got it under control aud kept it from spreading to Wm. Connerty's store adjoining. The fire looks like the work of an incendiary as it started outside in a coal shed. It had burned up to the roof of the hotel before being detected and the inmates had a close call as in a few moments more their escape from the building would have been cut off. A great deal of damage was done.

Kemptville Farmer Hurt

Ernest Smith, a well known young farmer of Kemptville district, and son of John P. Smith, of Mountain, was the victim of a serious accident Tuesday of last week. He was at work with neighbors on rural telephone line construction and at the time of the accident was digging a hole for a phone pole in front of Jas. Madden's place near Kemptville. A sledge in use by some neighboring workmen, broke, and hitting Mr. Smith on the head, inflicting an ugly scalp wound. Dr. Truesdale was summoned and the wound stitched up but Mr. Smith is still in a critical condition.

Burglary at Manotick

The general store of Mr. R. Fee, Manotick was the scene of a daring burglary early Saturday morning. The front entrance to the store was forced and two fur coats, racoon with square collars, and three pairs of boots were taken. No trace was found of the robbers except three odd boots which they had dropped in their flight on the roadway in front of the store. The store was broken into some time after one o'clock. Mr. Fee having been up and around until that time.

Chief Hamilton has been notified of the occurrence and is working on the case. He is of the opinion that the entry was effected by someone acquainted with the premises.

Freight Trains Collide at Morrisburg

A collison between two Grand Trunk freight trains four miles east of Morrisburg Sunday morning caused a bad smash up, and was nearly attended by fatal results. Two freight trains were going east in charge of Conductors Casselman and Grierson of Montreal. The first one broke down and the rear brakesman was sent back to flag the one approaching from the rear, which was running twenty miles an hour at the time. Owing, however, to the dense fog, the signals could not be noticed and a rear-end collison resulted. The conductor and brakesman, who were in the van, narrowly escaped, while the engineer and fireman, jumped and eacaped with slight injuries. Fifteen cars were derailed and more or less smashed.

The auxiliary from Brockville was immediately summoned and after some tedious work the debris was sufficiently cleared to allow passenger trains to proceed.

An investigation as to the cause of the wreck will be held in Montreal this week.

Mrs. Wm. Rae Dead

Although not unexpected, the death occurred on Tuesday of another old resident, in the person of Elizabeth Agnes Rae, widow of the late Wm. Rae, at the age of 74 years.

The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2 o'clock, services being conducted at the residence by her pastor, Rev. S. A. Woods, after which interment will be made in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Looking For Heir

A visitor to Kemptville last week was Mr. Harry Payne of Springfield, Ill., who is looking for his cousin, Mr. Alvin E. Payne, some time of Kemptville, but now of parts unknown. The gentleman of unknown address is a son of the late W. Payne, formerly real estate dealer in Springfield, who died suddenly over eight months ago and left an estate worth over twenty thousand dollars. The missing son is heir to one third of this estate and has also been appointed an administrator.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and C. M. Hays state that they know nothing of the plans of the Toronto Terminal Company that is now applying for a charter at Ottawa.

Plans for the merger of the Dominion Coal and Dominion Steel Companies were practically concluded at Montreal.

Bigamist Shot.

John Kinward, alias John W. Weir, an Iroquois man was shot and probably fatally injured at Detroit a few nights ago while attempting to escape from detectives who had him placed under arrest on the charge of bigamy, Kinward, it is stated, married his first wife at Iroquois who still lives in a small place in Dundas county. He went to Detroit two years ago when he changed his name to Weir. In February of last year he married a Detroit woman. Recently she became suspicious of him and found a letter to his first wife. She notified the police and Kinward was placed under arrest but in attempting to make his escape he was shot by an officer who only intended to wing him, in the shoulder and passed through his lung.

Motor Boat Took Fire

Friday afternoon a motor boat owned by Irving Gilbert of Brockville, caught fire, and had it notbeen for the fact that it was running close to shore would in all probability have been totally destroyed. In the boat were three boys Stanley Price, Fred Grundy and Ernest Higgins. Higgins jumped out and swam ashore, but the other two stayed in the craft until the boatshop was reached, where the flames were extinguished.

McCloskey—Leland

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Dickson's Landing, Nov. 15, 1909, when John P. McCloskey, son of the late James McCloskey of Chesterville, and Nora E. Leland, daughter of Levis J. Leland of Wales, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father A. McRae. The bridesmaid was Miss Grace Leland, a sister of the bride, while Mr. John McMahon, a cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The bride, was gowned in a navy blue cloth suit with brussels net waist and hat to match.

After the ceremony the happy young couple returned to the home of the bride's father, where a persumptuous dinner awaited them, after which they left for their home in Chesterville.

Many Petitions For Local Option

List of Municipalities That Expect to Vote.

Monday, Nov. 1st. was the last day for the filing of mandatory local option petitions. If on or before that date there was filed with the clerk ofany municipality a petition of 25 per cent of the municipl electors praying for the submission of local option bylaw the Council of that municipality must give such a bylaw a first and seond reading and take a vote on the same at the next regular municipal election. A Council may submit a local option by law without being petitioned to do so, and this has been done in a number of cases. The municipalities in which, either in response to a petition or by the initiative of the Councils, local option contests are on now number 164. There are about a dozen other municipal. ities in which there will be by-laws submitted to repeal existing local option by-laws. There will therefore, be local option voting in more than a hundred and seventy municipalities on Jan 3rd next.

A feature of these contests is the large proportion of cities, towns and villages which are making efforts to rid themselves of bar-rooms. The places that will vote on new by laws include two cities, 35 towns, 42 incorporated villages making a total of 79 urban municipalities. Contests will also take place in 85 township.

The following is a complete list of the places expecting to vote upon local option by-laws, not including those which repeal contests may take place, and the present number of licenses in each place.

Great Victory in North Essex

Conservatives Won the Seat by 132 Majority

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 11—The by-election in North Essex rendered necessary by the appointment of Hon. R. F. Sutherland, ex-speaker of the Dominion house, to the exchequer division of the Ontario high court, took place today, and resulted in the election of Oliver J. Wilcox, the Conservative candidate, by a majority of probably 132 over the Libal candidate, W. J. McKee, of Windsor. With four polling places yet to hear from, the majority now is 99, but final returns cannot materially alter the result.

The victory is a signal one inasmuch as Hon. R. F. Sutherland carried the riding a year ago by a majority of 581. The result is a surprise to the Liberals, who were inclined to think W. J. McKee, their standard bearer, have an easy victory. The city of Windsor, where Mr. McKee's strength was supposed to be, gave Wilcox a majority of 156. Walkerville, also looked upon as a Liberal center, gave a Conservative majority of 149. Liberal voters on the whole in the two towns failed to go to the polls. It is estimated that in Windsor and Walkerville less than 90 per cent. of the available vote was cast. Country districts, with the exception of the townships of East and West Sandwich, supported the Conservative candidate loyally. He is a drover, and exceedingly popular with farmers, whereas Mr. McKee's connection with the exportation of natural gas to Detroit some years ago was remembered against him.

The result in 1908, was as follows:

Sutherland, Liberal.....3277
Fleming, Conservative.....2726

Majority..... 551

Some prior results were: 1882—Conservative majority, 682; 1887—Conservative majority, 136; 1891—Liberal majority, 849; 1896—Liberal majority, 473; 1900—Liberal majority, 660; 1904—Liberal majority, 368.

Avonmore

Uriah Shaver died at his home here on Nov. 9. Mr. Shaver was a good citizen, a kind neighbor and a man who will be be greatly missed in the Presbyterian church and in the community. He was a man of strong christian character and helped both by labor and money to build the grand church which now stands in the centre of this village. He was always an earnest worker in the cause of the church. His illness was borne with admirable patience and fortitude. The funeral took place from his late residence to the Presbyterian church and cemetery here on Nov. 11. A large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

The remains of the late Milton McCleverty, formerly of Avonmore, who died on Nov. 1 at Edmonton, Alta., arrived here on Sunday and were interred in the local cemetery. Mr. McCleverty was in his 34th year. He was employed as a telegraph operator by the G. T. R. at Cornwall for eight years, and was well known and highly esteemed there. Something over two years ago he was transferred to a more lucrative position in Ottawa, and thence went to Edmonton, where he has since been in the employ of the Grand Trunk Pacific. He was taken ill very suddenly on Oct. 24 and on the 30th he was removed to the hospital, where despite the best medical skill and nursing death claimed him on Nov. 1. Mr. McCleverty was born in the Second Concession of Roxborough, and was a son af Paul McCleverty, who is well and favorably known throughout Stormont. He leaves to mourn his loss his father, Paul McCleverty, Avonmore, and two sisters, Mrs. Elias McDermid of Avonmore, and Miss Lydia McCleverty, who is nurse-in-training in the Western Hospital, Montreal, and who was present at the funeral. The pall-bearers were Harry McLaughlin, William McIntyre, John Grant, Arthur Feek and Will McDermid- Rev. D. Stewart, sr., Finch, officiated at the solemn services in the Presbyterian church. A large cortege of friends followed the remains to the cemetery.

HER DEATH WAS HOURLY EXPECTED

Enterprise, Ont., Oct. 1st, 1908. "For seven years I suffered with what physicians called a "Water Tumor." I could neither sit, stand, nor lie down. Hypodermics of morphia had to be given me to ease the pain.

MRS. JAMES FENWICK

My cure seemed hopeless, and my friends hourly expected my death. I was so bad that I wanted to die, and it was during one of these very bad spells that a family friend brought a box of "Fruit-a-tives" to the house. After much persuation I commenced to take them, but I was so bad that it was only when I had taken nearly two boxes that I commenced to experience relief. I kept up the treatment, however, and after taking five boxes I was cured, and when I appeared on the street my friends said. 'The dead has come to life,' and this seemed literally true, because I certainly was at death's door."

(Signed) MRS. JAMES FENWICK.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box—6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c, or sent post-paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Year For Dynamiters

Ottawa, Nov. 12—For blowing up the home of Mr. M. Leporte with dynamite in June last, Victor Lacasse and George Deltour were sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment each by Sir William Mulock in the Assize Court today. The two men pleaded guilty to the charge of exploding explosives of a nature likely to endanger life in an attempt to do injury to property. They denied, however, that they had attempted tc commit murder. The prisoners agreed to pay $500 compensation for damage done to the Mr. Laporte's house and furniture by the explosion.

Balsamic Essences.

Make Wonderful Cure for Catarrh, Colds, Bronchitis' Throat Weakness.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

Catarrhozone has entirely displaced the old-fashioned remedies, such as cough syrups, sprays, tablets, and sedatives powders. It contains none of the opium, chloral, and drowsy narcotics, so commonly found in liquid cough and catarrh remedies.

The extraordinary curatives power of Catarrhozone is well explained in a letter from A. B. Cowan, the well known restaurater of Carleton, who writes: "Some time ago I suffered severely from a frightful cold in the head and chest. It was nothing but one continual cough, hawk, headache from morning till night. My nose and throat were so completely stuffed up that I could scarcely breathe. Catarrhozone eased the cough instantly that would not yield even to the doctor's medicines. Hour by honr Catarrhozone releived and by pursuing its treatment I have been permanently cured of all Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchial Irritation."

Once you try Catarrhozone you'll realize how indispensable it is—the large dollar size contains an indestructible hard rubber inhaler and sufficient medication to last two months. Smaller trial sizes 25c. and 50c. Beware of the substitutor and imitators of Catarrhozone—use the genuine and you'll get cured. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company Kingston, Ont.

MOORISH SOLDIERS.

Their Methods In Battle and Their System of Signals.

At fighting on horseback the Moors are adepts and extremely mobile. But they are incorrigibly lazy and seldom indulge in night attack. When they attack in force the horsemen usually give a lift to the foot soldiers who accompany them or allow them to run alongside and hold on to a stirrup iron. The mounted men then make a charge, wheel round and retire and make way for the footmen, who crawl along the ground, almost invisible, and who rise to the attack if they come within striking distance of the enemy. As a rule, the Riffians prefer to lure detached parties into an ambush or defile and thus inflict heavy loss upon them. The mounted men seldom dismount to fire, and their firing, being from the saddle, is very inaccurate. Should the advance of the white troops be slow or hesitating the Moors effect a bold combination between horsemen and footmen and generally succeed in inflicting heavy losses on their enemy.

The prime tactics of the Moors are to delay the advance of an enemy as much as possible by mounted rifle fire until they can discern its extent and direction and subsequently to try enveloping the advancing force. The tribes also indulge in sniping, but not to a very great extent, and they also fight individually. They do not neglect opportunities for stratagem and can effect some very clever ruses. They are also guilty of abusing the services of the white flag in action.

The Moorish intelligence system is an excellent one, and the tribes are seldom without information regarding the movements of an enemy. They have also an excellent system of signaling at night by means of small fires dotted about the hills and ravines, which are obscured and revealed in accordance with an ingenious code of signals known to themselves.—Chicago News.

DREAM INSPIRATION.

Intellectual Achievements Born of Visions In Sleep.

It is well known, says H. Addington Bruce in Success Magazine, that dreams have stimulated men to remarkable intellectual achievements and have even supplied the material for these achievements. Thus Coleridge composed "Kublai Khan" in a dream. Tartini got his "Devil's Sonata" from a dream in which the devil appeared and challenged him to a musical competition. It was a dream that gave Voltaire the first canto of his "Henriade," and Dante's "Divina Commedia" is likewise said to have been inspired by a dream.

Many novelists on their own admission have obtained the plots for some of their best works from materials provided in dreams. A particularly impressive instance is that of Robert Louis Stevenson, whose "Chapter on Dreams" in his book "Across the Plains" should be read by all who would learn what dreams can do for a man intellectually. The solution of baffling mathematical problems, the ideas necessary to complete some invention, have been supplied by dreams. Occasionally the dreamer has been known to rise in his sleep and jot down the information thus acquired.

In such cases he usually forgets all about the helpful dream and on awaking is greatly surprised at finding the record he has made of it, which shows that—as with the visions so potently influencing health—it is possible for dreams to aid a man in an intellectual way without his being consciously aware of them.

Bird's Milk.

"I fed him with bird's milk." This curious expression was used by the old sultan of Turkey, while a prisoner on his way to Saloniki, with reference to his brother Mohammed, his predecessor on the throne. Abdul Hamid was lamenting his own fate and telling his captors how little he deserved it and how kind he had been to his brother. "I fed him with bird's milk," he said, as if that were the greatest kindness he could show. What is bird's milk? Not the Turkish equivalent of the milk of human kindness, but a European brand of condensed milk bearing on the can a picture of a bird on a nest.

Fur and Cloth

In trying to build up a successful and prosperous trade, the ladies' tailor and furrier finds himself faced by endless problems, difficult, intricate and numerous.

We never for a minute lose sight of this quality standard. Our gain is dependent upon the work we can turn out; for when a woman comes to us for her garment she expects something more from us than she could secnre elsewhere.

As we have always endeavored to satisfy our patrons in every detail we feel that by so doing we have started right which will turn the chances of success in our favor.

The Biter Bit

Swindler Tries to Do Up a Toronto Brokerage Firm

Toronto, Nov. 12—A swindler, who claimed that he was a big investor from Chicago, and gave his address as Morris street, tried to do Messrs. Fleming and Marvin, stock brokers, out of $1,700 yesterday. He was not successful, however, and it was another case of the 'biter being bit,' as he had previously deposited $200 with the firm, and is not liable to turn up again and claim it.

Some days ago a man sent in an order to the firm to buy 1,000 Temiskaming, 500 Crown Reserve and 100 La Rose. With the order was sent a deposit of $200. He said he was anxious to get the stock by noon on Wednesday. Just about noon of that day he called up by 'phone and asked what his bill was. He was told that it would be $1,790, and he said that he would send a cheque by a boy, to whom the certificates should be given. The boy came around a few minutes afterwrds, but before Mr. Marvin handed over the certificates he called up the Bank of Nova Scotia, on which the cheque had been drawn, and found the man had no account there. The police were then notified, but could find no lrace of the man. The cheque was a certified one, but the certified mark was a forgery.

Escape From Whitby Jail.

Whitby, Nov. 13.—Yesterday evening a prisoner in the country jail made a sensational and successful break for liberty Russel Franklin of Oshawa, with but a month of his term for vagrancy to serve, was the cause of a heated chase by the jail officials. Governor Schiller had Franklin in the orchard picking apples. Mr. Schiller went a few rods away for a pail, and the prisoner took advantage of his absence to jump the fence and make a dash for liberty. By the time a pursuit was organized the prisoner had a good start. He was followed for two miles by Turnkey Bryan and then vanished from sight. He has not yet been recaptured. Franklin is a young man of 22 stout of build, about 5 feet 7 inches, dark complexion. When he left he threw off his coat.

Beware of Cocaine Medicines.

Thousands of Drug Fiends have started on their downward course through Catarr snuffs containing this habitforming drug. If you suffer from a cold, sneezing or Catarrh—don't use a snuff—use a sensible treatment like Catarrhozone. It heals and soothes, brings relief at once, cures thoroughly. In Bronchitis and throat trouble no doctor can do better than perscribe Catarrhozone. Try it—see what wonders it works—what power it possess es. Different from the old way, —you inhale Catarrhozone. Sold in 25c. and $1.00 sizes by all dealers.

Aged Pastor Dead.

Brockville, Nov. 15.—After an illness of several years, Rev. Wm Chetham passed away yesterday aged 69. While he had been in very feeble health his death was not immediately looked for until last Friday, when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy. For five years he was pastor of the First Babtist church, Montreal.

Auto Dairymen.

There was a dairymen's convention recently that brought to Chicago milk producers from the five states immediately tributary to the great Elgin and Wisconsin creamery districts. Of those attending 112 were asked as to the use and value of the automobile to them.

Thirty-eight of them own automobiles and use them constantly in business. Eleven own more than one. They are used in marketing butter fats mainly, but seven used the power to operate separators, one to flush his dairy barn, another to operate his bottle washer.

The roads in the creamery district are better than the average country roads, and the automobile most used is a late type, with a tonneau that can be removed, leaving a flat platform for freight.

Contagious and Fatal.

Anthrax is a contagious and fatal disease. An animal so afflicted may, without having shown any sign of disease, drop down in the pasture and die in convulsions in a very short time, or an animal may be apparently well at night and be found dead in the morning. It stops feeding or ruminating a few hours before death. It is then taken with chills and fever, and if its temperature be taken it will be found to be exceedingly high. The treatment for anthrax is useless. The only thing to do is to prevent the balance of the herd from becoming affected. This is done by vaccinating them and injecting vaccine under the skin with a hypodermic syringe, the results of which are very good.—Dr. David Roberts.

Profit From Sows.

If there is a more profitable breeding animal on a farm than a good sow I have not found it, says a writer in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago. She has not the habits or makeup to interest all stockmen. So long as the world cannot be fed without pork the sow and her product will be objects of interest to the farming world.

It is a sad commentary on the methods of swine growers that 50 per cent or more of pigs farrowed perish in infancy. It is not reasonable to suppose such a cutting down of the legitimate profits of the business is necessary. Like too many other losses in stock growing, it is largely preventable.

Alfalfa For Sheep.

Alfalfa and sheep go together just as naturally as ducks and water. Alfalfa as a feed has proved beyond doubt that it is far ahead of any other roughage for sheep. All over the west alfalfa is an indispensable factor in winter feeding, and so well do sheep thrive on it that eastern farmers are taking it up after waiting fifty years for the west to set the pace.

Montreal Harbor Improvements.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—A report recommending the expenditure of approximately fifteen million dollars on the Montreal harbor works will be made by the board of seven engineers who have been preparing plans. It is proposed to spend it on the basis of $1,500,000 yearly. The scheme is to extend the harbor eastward, enlarge present docks and build new ones, double the elevator capacity, deepen the channel and effect minor improvements.

Cariboo Stage Held Up.

Vancouver, Nov. 2.—For the first time in fifteen years a hold-up has occurred on the Cariboo stage line, 137 miles north of Ashcroft, by two masked men. The express packages were removed and each ransacked. The total amount secured was $5,000.

The Cariboo stage line from Ashcroft on the C.P.R. north to Barkerville is the longest in the world. The road was built in the time of the great rush to the Cariboo gold diggings.

THE RIDDLE OF SLEEP

A Mystery That the Mind of Man Is Unable to Penetrate.

THE CAVERN OF MORPHEUS.

It Is Pitch Black as Far as Human Understanding Goes, For We Know No More About It Than We Do About Its Twin Mystery, Death.

When all is written, how little we know of sleep! It is a closing of the eyes, a disappearance, a wondering return. In uneasy slumber, in dreamless dead rest, in horrid nightmare or in ecstasies of somnolent fancies the eyes are blinded, the body is abandoned, while the inner essence is we know not where. We have no other knowledge of sleep than we have of death. In delirium or coma or trance, no less than in normal sleep and in dissolution, the soul is gone. In these it returns, in that it does not come again, or so we ignorantly think.

Yet when I reflect on my death I forget that I have encountered it many times already and find myself none the worse. I forget that I sleep. The fly has no shorter existence than man's. We bustle about for a few years with ludicrous importance, as bottleflies buzz at the window panes. They, too, may imagine themselves of infinite moment in this universe we share with them. But this is to take no account of the prognostics of sleep. There is something hidden, something secret, some unfathomed mystery whose presence we feel, but cannot verify; some permeative thought insistently moving in our hearts, some phosphorescence that glows we know not whence through our shadowy atoms.

Neither sleep itself nor half its promises nor mysteries have been plumbed. It is the mother of superstitions and of miracles. In dreams we may search the surface powers of the freed soul. Visions in the night are not all hallucinations; voices in the night are not all mocking. There is a prophet dwells within the mind—not of the mind, but deeper throned in obscurity.

The brain cannot know of this holy presence nor of its life in sleep. The brain is mortal and untrustworthy, a phonograph and a camera for audible and palpable existence. Strike it a blow in childhood so that it ceases its labors and awake it by surgery after forty years and it will repeat the infantile action or word it last recorded and will take up its task on the instant, making no account of the intermediate years. They are nonexistent to it. Yet to that hidden memory those diseased years are not blank. It knows, it has recorded, though the brain has slept. And in hypnotic or psychic trance, when that wonderful ruler is released from the prison of the body, it can speak through the atom blent machinery of the flesh and tell of things man himself could not know because of his paralyzed brain. This ruler is not asleep in sleep, nor in delirium is it delirious, and in death is it dead? Through all the ages it has been our sphinx, which we have interrogated in vain. It joins not in our laughter nor our tears. We have fancied it with immobile, brooding features of utmost knowledge and wisdom and sorrow. It has asked us but one question, nor from the day of Oedipus unto today have we answered rightly, so that we die of our ignorance. It is Osiris living in us. It is the unknown God to whom we erect our altars, the fire in the tabernacle, the presence behind the veil. Not in normal wakefulness at least will it answer our queries, but in sleep sometimes it will speak. And it may possibly be that at last, after all these centuries, we are learning how to question it and in hypnotic trance and in the fearful law of suggestion are discovering somewhat of its mystery and how to employ it for our worldly good. Yet to its essential secret we are no closer than our forefathers were.

We may define dreams and nightmare, coma and swoon and trance with what terms we will, search their physical reasons and learn to guide and guard, yet we know no more of them than of electricity. We may begin to suspect that telepathy and clairvoyance and occult forces of the soul are not superstitious fancies, and we may even empirically classify and study and direct them. Yet the soul itself is no nearer our inquisition.

Though we should know of its reality, though our finite minds should fathom the infinitude, of what benefit would it be? Would it modify our beliefs or our hopes or our faiths? Would it dictate one action to our passionate lives? There would be no change in human nature and no reforms of the world. We are the children of our fathers, and our children will tread the prehistoric paths. Dreams are our life, whether we wake or sleep. We drowse through existence, awaking and dying and being reborn daily, ever torpescent and unamazed, and our thousand slumberous deaths we call restorative sleep—sleep that restores our physical being, building up where we have torn down, recreating what we destroy.

Black—pitch black, indeed—is the cavern of Morpheus. Faith peoples it with varied legions and builds its chaos into myriad forms. Nightly we enter it and drain the Lethean air and forget, and daily we return with rejoicings, babbling of dreams that were not dreamed, and finally we enter for the last time and drain somewhat more deeply the essence of ecstasy and awake no more and no more return to the autumn dyed skies of the dawn. And yet we shall dream.—Atlantic Monthly.

IN A PYTHON'S COIL.

An Adventure That Nearly Cost a Zoo Official His Life.

The attendants in zoological gardens are exposed to dangers of various sorts. The superintendent of the Cincinnati animal park once had an adventure with a python which came near costing him his life.

It became necessary to make some changes in the snake house, and the superintendent, Mr. Stephens, was in the cage of pythons, anticipating no danger, when to his dismay he saw the largest snake coming toward him, hissing and darting its tongue angrily. Instantly he realized his danger.

The superintendent quickly grasped the huge reptile just back of the neck with his right hand and with the left clutched the creature two feet lower down, where the greatest muscular power of the python is located.

He tried to thrust the writhing mass into a waiting box, but the python coiled its twelve feet of length round the man's leg and began to constrict, carrying its tightening coils higher and higher.

Struggle as he might, Mr. Stephens seemed helpless in the serpent's grasp. His hands were so moist that the scaly body twisted in them. Perspiration streamed down his face. The python had worked its head free and was darting its horrid tongue almost in its victim's eyes.

The man threw up his hand instinctively to shield his face, and at the same moment the snake seized and began swallowing it.

By this time the attendants had rushed into the cage, and they began beating the python. Not liking this treatment, the big snake relaxed its coils. Mr. Stephens jerked his hand free and broke off one of the python's fangs in his thumb in so doing.

"If I had not held on to its heaviest muscle," said the superintendent, "I have no doubt it might have strangled me. As long as I kept my grip there I felt confident, but I was pretty weak after the adventure."

AGREED WITH THE ASP.

The Frenchman Got Around the Law Against Hissing.

A gentleman who had been unceremoniously hustled out of a Paris playhouse because he hissed when the curtain fell on the second act brought an action for damages against the manager of the said house.

The court decided in favor of the hissing gentleman, adding that if a spectator is allowed to show his delight by indulging in applause his neighbor has also the right to show disapprobation in an audible fashion.

But the law in France was not always so tolerant. In the middle of the seventeenth century it was strictly forbidden to hiss in a playhouse, and in every theater there were a number of "gardes Francaises" with strict orders to arrest any person infringing the law.

But the French are not easily put down by silly regulations, and whenever they see an opportunity they attack the authorities with that fearful weapon ridicule. In this case such an opportunity came at the Comedie Francaise during the performance of "Cleopatra," a play by Marmontel.

It was a badly written, dull work, and the people were waiting for a chance to give vent to their opinion. At last the chance came. The management had ordered a mechanical asp for the great scene in the final act, when Cleopatra puts an end to her life.

The actress raised the asp, which started hissing, whereupon a spectator rose to his feet and cried: "The asp is quite right. We all share his opinion!" Roars of laughter greeted this joke and as it was foreseen that a similar scene would take place every night the piece was withdrawn from the repertory.

Aristhiou.

In a small village in Switzerland is a comfortable old inn much frequented by English, and the menu generally includes one dish supposed to be specially British. Though the orthography is peculiar, the meaning is generally obvious—as, for example, "rost bif roti," "rumesteck," but "aristhious de mouton a l'Anglais" was puzzling. The first word has a distinctly classical appearance, which suggested a Greek origin. But when the dish appeared the meaning flashed into the guests' minds. "Aristhiou" was the Swiss chef's attempt to render phonetically the words "Irish stew."—Manchester Guardian.

WHAT every cook should know is, which wheat makes the best flour, and why.

Winter wheat is put into the ground in the fall, but does not ripen until the following July. It matures slowly, is soft and very starchy.

Spring wheat is sown in April or May, and ripens in August. It's a flinty, translucent wheat, rich in gluten and contains nearly twice as much nutriment as winter wheat.

Royal Household Flour

is made entirely from the hard, nutritious spring wheat, carefully selected from all the wheat of this kind grown in Canada.

Royal Household is fine, light and pure—milled by the most improved methods—in a mill as clean as your own kitchen.

Ask your grocer for Ogilvie's Royal Household — just enough to try. You won't mind the slight advance in cost when you see the results in your bread and pastry. 21

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves — re-establish them as needed, with

THE FARAWAY STARS

WHAT MAKES THEM TWINKLE?

Two Theories That Deal With This Astronomical Enigma—The Intervention of Fragments of Disrupted Worlds or the Effect of Air Currents.

This is a question that has exercised more than one gentleman of science. Of course it is known that only the stars twinkle, the planets giving out a steady light. That is the way we tell a star from a planet with the naked eye.

But why does the star twinkle at all? The answer to this seems to be on account of the greater distances of the stars, the nearest fixed star being several thousand times farther from us than the farthest planet. So around this as a starting point have been built two theories. One is that as the visual angle, or angle subtended by the star from the eye, is so very small that very small bodies in space coming between the star and the eye would give the effect of twinkling.

Now, as regards those small bodies actually being in space as hypothecated there is no doubt, for there are millions of fragments of disrupted worlds flying around in orbits about our sun. The only question is whether there are enough to cause the eternal twinkling that is observed. Science cannot say that enough do not exist, for she cannot perceive the existence of the smallest fragments that actually could cause this effect, even with her finest instruments.

To illustrate, then, my meaning as regards this covering of the visual angle, suppose you take a dime between your thumb and finger and hold it between your eye and the moon until it just covers the moon. It will be found to be quite close to the eye. Now take a quarter and hold it so that it just covers the moon. Its distance is at once seen to be about four times the dime's from the eye. Thus it is seen that the farther outward the object is placed the larger the object necessary. This is in accord with what is known as the law of inverse squares.

But now take a dime or even a pin head, and no matter how far you hold it from the eye it will easily cover the largest star in the heavens. This is on account of the enormous distance of the star, the lines drawn from its sides to the eye inclosing an angle so minute that almost anything will fill it. So thus we see that this theory is not impossible, though perhaps somewhat improbable.

The other theory bases its argument on the air currents. Air currents are caused by light and heated air rising and cold and heavy air taking its place. Now, when light goes from a heavy to a light gas, or vice versa, it is bent one way or the other. So this would certainly happen to the light from all the heavenly bodies. The reason it is not noticed in the case of the planets or the sun is that they send us many more rays as compared to the stars.

Many reasons are put forward to show the truth of this theory. A star twinkles more on the horizon than it does in the zenith, for its light has to come through a greater thickness of atmosphere; also greater twinkling is observed in winter than in summer, and when rapid and brilliant twinkling is seen it is a very good prophecy of rain or snow, as it shows the upper regions of the air to be in a state of rapid motion of varying air currents, hot and cold currents meeting, commingling and rotating probably.

This also accounts for the changes in the brightness of a star, for at times a part and not all of its light is bent away from the eye. It has been noticed also that a star's color has something to do with its twinkling on account of the different refractivities of the different colors. A white or blue star, such as the Dog star, twinkles most; next comes the yellow and last the red. If one cares to look for a red star, Betelgeux is one and can be found in one corner of the constellation Orion.

A rather interesting thing has been ascertained in astronomy as regards the relation between the color of a star and its age. The white or blue stars are considered young or in the prime of life, with many more million years to their career, while a red star, as Betelgeux, is on the wane and will gradually go out in the next few million years. See if it doesn't! The yellow stars of course come between the blue and the red in point of age. It is encouraging to find that our own sun is classified as a white star.—A. L. Hodges in Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Weighing Diamonds and Gold.

The weight of diamonds and other precious stones is expressed in carats, grains and quarter grains. They are pearl grains, one of which is equal to four-fifths of a troy grain. Four quarter grains make one grain and four grains one carat. The fineness of gold is also expressed in carats. Pure gold is twenty-four carats fine. The carats, therefore, indicate the proportions of alloy. Most of the gold used by jewelrs is about fourteen carats fine, having ten parts of alloy.

The Pessimist.

He is often the wisest man who is not wise at all.—Wordsworth.

This Was In Denmark.

An Englishman having business in a certain Danish town arrived at the railway station. He inquired of a group of men standing near the way to the house he wanted, whereupon one of them offered to go with him and show him. With recollections of what such a service meant in England he said, "I don't want a guide." "But surely you asked us to show you the way," said one of them. "Yes, but I don't want a guide." "My dear sir, I am not a guide; I am the bishop."

TAMING A BIRD.

Teaching a Feathered Pet to Trust You Is Not Difficult.

No creature is more jealous or sensitive than a bird. It is easy, however, to win the heart of almost any bird, and that without starving him or making him think he has mastered you. Simply talk to him a good deal.

Place his cage near you on your desk or work table, and retain his choicest dainty to give to him with your own fingers. Let him know that he can never have that particular thing unless he takes it from you, and he will soon learn, if you are patient and do not disconcert him by fixing your eyes upon him.

After this he will more readily take it from your lips, and then when you let him out of his cage, after the first excitement is over, he will come to you, especially if you have a call to which you have accustomed him, and accept the dainty from you while free.

As soon as he becomes really convinced that you will not hurt him or try to catch him or interfere in any way with his liberty he will give way to his boundless curiosity about you. He will pull your hair, pick at your eyes and give you as much of his company as you desire.—New York Press.

A Lost Opportunity.

The father of the late Benoit Constant Coquelin, the great French actor, was a baker, and young Coquelin was brought up to the trade. At thirteen, a writer in Le Figaro says, he manifested an irresistible inclination toward the stage, an inclination which his father steadfastly strove to repress.

"Don't devote so much time to those dramas," his father used to say. "You have learned a good trade, the business is running well, and you shall be my successor."

A number of years after Constant had made his way into general favor his father, who took pride in his boy's success, but could never quite get over the feeling that Constant should have been a baker, was congratulated upon his son's eminence.

"I remember," said the old man, "that Constant was a good baker. He would have gone far in the trade."

Blowing Up the Locks.

Would it be easy to blow up and destroy a lock canal by the malicious use of dynamite or other high explosive? The question has been debated much in connection with the Panama canal. The Engineering News calls attention to the fact that an attempt made in 1900 to wreck the Welland canal in this way produced surprisingly small results. After two weeks' examination the two men concerned selected lock 24, and each lowered a satchel containing dynamite and a fuss to the water behind the gate at each end of the lock. Both charges were exploded, but the dynamite failed to carry away the gates. Although the explosives blew a hole about a foot in diameter through each gate and loosened the hinges, the gates remained in position, holding back the water.

In the Regular Establishment.

"Yes," said the fresh young lieutenant, "the army has fallen on evil days."

The sophisticated captain merely gasped.

"Why," the F. Y. L. went on, "look at the names on this roll—Private Entrance, Corporal Punishment, Major Domo, General Housework. What kind of a"—

Explained.

"You say the defendant pulled the plaintiff's hair. Now, how could the defendant, who is an unusually short man, reach the plaintiff's hair, the plaintiff being fully six feet tall?"

"Why, you see, your honor, the plaintiff was butting him at the time."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PLAYING THE STOCKS

He Who Has Knowledge and He Who Gambles on Gossip.

Of the many popular delusions touching Wall street and its people none is more persistent or more dangerous to the outsider than the belief that from nothing great permanent fortunes have been made by shrewd and lucky speculation in prices. It isn't true. We differentiate here between speculation in prices only and the kind of legitimate speculation which seeks to anticipate great economic changes. Legitimate speculation has its translation into prices, too, but it takes, first, original capital in some reasonable proportion to the profits expected and, secondly, the treatment of exceptional opportunity with correct imagination. Its risks at best are very large. Among our Wall street acquaintances are several hard headed men who succeed in making $25,000 a year by speculation. Not one of them has a capital of less than $250,000. They make it earn about 10 per cent.

Take Blank, one of the ablest speculators we know. He has made half a million dollars during the past five years. Very handsome return, you say. Let us look at Blank. He was the chief accountant of one of the big railway systems when an uncle, dying, left him $20,000. Mind you, he was an expert railway statistician and an exceptionally able young man to boot. He knew his own road like a book, as well as some other things that only the directors were aware of. The stock of the system looked cheap to him, and he used his $20,000 to margin 4,000 shares. A bull market was beginning, and within a month or two Blank's capital had increased to $60,000. He was content with a ten point rise, though the stock advanced ten points more. That was the first of Blank's deals. Twelve months later he won again. He thought that the stock of a certain western system was selling below its value and set about an investigation to find the facts. He hired a first class engineer and a retired traffic manager to travel from one end of that railroad to the other, and he himself analyzed the accounts. When all the reports were in it seemed to him that the system was earning enough money to justify an increase of its dividend, and he plunged once more. He waited six months for his point this time, and his investigation had cost him $5,000. He made $50,000. Good interest, you say, but think of Blank's special equipment for the game and the trouble he took to be right. You, Mr. Thinmarginist, after reading the Wall street gossip in your daily paper, adventure your thousand or two thousand dollars and expect to double your money. Mark the difference.—John Parr in Everybody's Magazine.

Tennyson's First Poems.

The wind came sweeping through the garden of an old Lincolnshire rectory one morning in the beginning of last century and blew upon a child of five years old, who opened his arms to the blast and let it carry him along, crying as he traveled, "I hear a voice that's calling in the wind." That was Tennyson's first line of poetry. The first poem he ever composed was written upon a slate one Sunday morning at Louth. The subject, set him by his brother Charles, was "Flowers," and little Alfred covered his slate with blank verse after the model of Thomson's "Seasons.' His next attempt was an elegy upon his grandmother, who had just died, written at the request of his grandfather. When it was written the old man put 10 shillings into the boy's hand and said, "There, that is the first money you have ever earned by your poetry, and, take my word for it, it will be the last."—Westminster Gazette.

Opening an Oyster.

"The Cook's Oracle," a book which was never far from the kitchens of our great-grandmothers, is very precise in its directions as to the proper manner of preserving and eating oysters, says an English journal. "The true lover of an oyster," writes the author, "will have some regard for the feelings of his little favorite and will never abandon it to the mercies of a bungling operator, but will open it himself and contrive to detach the fish from the shell so dexterously that the oyster is hardly conscious he has been ejected from his lodging till he feels the teeth of the piscivorous gourmand tickling him to death."

A Short Lived Club.

One of the most short lived clubs ever formed was the Club des Laideurs—club for ugly women—organized by the Princess Pauline Metternich, who was an elegant woman, but so ugly that she used to call herself "a white monkey." Perhaps she felt lonesome. Anyhow, she tried to gather some of the other women she knew who were not blessed with good looks into a club. But the club proved unpopular and died a natural death. The princess got back at her women acquaintances by remarking that if there were any candor in them her club would be overcrowded.
