Damage is Heavy as Transports Crash, 401

Two men narrowly escaped death or serious injury, and damage estimated at over $30,000 was caused in a 2-transport collision Wednesday on Highway 401, half a mile east of its intersection with highway 31.

At 12.10 p.m. in the eastbound lane, an oil tanker driven by Dwain Froats of 497 Fennell Cres., Cornwall, was struck from behind by tractor-trailer unit transporting 4 large hydraulic lifts, weighing approximately 8,000 pounds and valued at $10,000 each. This unit was driven by Terrence Leroy Ball, 38, o fR. R. 2, St. Thomas, Ont.

Police report the tanker unit had fuelled at Morrisburg, driven from 31 highway, entered 401, and was struck in the rear by the oncoming transport carrying the heavy lifts.

When Mr. Ball slowed down his outfit, the first lift shifted forward, crushing the cab. The driver sustained minor injuries to his leg and hand, but the 1969 tractor-trailer unit, owned by Clark Equipment Co. of Canada Ltd., at St. Thomas, sustained an estimated $18.000 damage. Following the crash ,the hydraulic lifts were strewn about and extensively damaged.

From the tanker, about 800 gallons of oil were lost, and with dam age to the tanker, accounted for an estimate of $3,000. The tanker unit is owned by Universal Terminals Ltd., of Water St., Cornwall. Its driver was not injured.

Police and workmen were busy clearing the highway until 5 p.m.

The accident was investigated by O.P.P. Constable Leo Heldinga, of the Morrisburg detachment.

I.O.O.F. Lodge Marks 75th Anniversary Here

Dalton C. Merrill and Colburn Hess received 25-year veteran jewels at the 75th anniversary of Zeta I.O.O.F. Lodge held Saturday, November 1st at the Odd Fellows Hall Morrisburg. Frank Smith and John Thompson, honor recipients were unable to attend the function. Presentation was made by District Deputy Grand Master Graham Caldwell assisted by Past District Grand Master Lee Dawson of Ottawa.

Hal Wagner, Noble Grand for Zeta Lodge was master of ceremonies at the banquet meeting when visiting District and Deputy Grand Masters attended. Brother Dawson told of his attendance at the 150th anniversary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge at Baltimore this year where it was announced that lodges may again up-date their 25-year veteran jewels to 50 years etc. where formerly it had been necessary to obtain separate jewels. He conveyed the congratulations of the district to Zeta Lodge for a successful anniversary.

District Deputy Graham Caldwell spoke briefly noting changes that have taken place in "Oddfellowship" over the past 75 years and stressing the importance of the teaching of "Friendship, love and truth" as exemplified by the IOOF

Other personalities who spoke briefly were: Mrs. Merna Johnston, District Deputy President from Brockville, District No. 1 and District Deputy Grand Master Harold Hollister, East District No. 52 who said, "Oddfellowship is what we make it". Past District Deputy Grand Master Gordon Cooper of Brinston and Past Noble Grand District No. 52, Thomas Tullock of Ingleside, also expressed greetings and congratulations on behalf of fellow lodges .

Charles Hummell, the oldest past Noble Grand of Zeta Lodge, Morrisburg told of joining the order in 1923 in the former IOOF Hall up two flights of stairs on the old main street. On the occasion of Zeta's 50th anniversary a banquet was held at a local church hall with 250 members . . . and no ladies . . . present. At that meeting the First Degree was conferred by Amity Lodge Prescott. Somewhat sadly, Mr. Hummell noted changes that had taken place in the order during his 24 years as recording secretary.

Brother Nelson Scharfe, Past District Deputy Grand Master from South Mountain congratulated Zeta on its good fortune in having acquired the services and membership of Brother Gordon Mulholland formerly of South Mountain. Mr. Holland who moved to Morrisburg not long ago is recording secretary of the local order.

Wilfrid Foss, Morrisburg, Past Deputy Grand Master eloquently thanked the ladies of the local Rebekah Order for the banquet supper.

Derek Dickinson, Morrisburg who entertained prior to the banquet with a series of piano selections, later presented slides and commentary on his stay in Pakistan where he was employed by Hydro in locating cables for installation of a huge power project simlar to those seen n Canada.

His talk was interesting and informative. He first presented a map of Pakistan, with particular emphasis on East Pakistan where the work was conducted. There is an area of 1500 miles of Indian territory between West and East Pakistan and the eastern portion is practically surrounded by India. There are 90 million people in the small area. Main transportation of the cables was over two rivers where fortunate Pakistanians live in River Boats. Many, the speaker said, never get any farther away than their boat.

To build a house, a large excavation is dug, the house is built on the mound of earth and the excavation becomes a private pond, which overflows with water when the monsoons come and is the family's sole supply until the monsoons come the following year. The result is that disease is prevalent.

All activity is conducted much as it was generations ago and poverty is widespread.

Combines Set to Open Here Tonight

On Friday, November 7th at 8:30 in Morrisburg Arena, the O.D.H.A. Intermediate "A" League with the new look, begins. The league was formed on Tuesday, November 4th in Ottawa, and consists of the following teams: Morrisburg, Shawville, Ottawa, Syracuse, Renfrew, Embrun and Kemptville. The Morrisburg Combines first home game Friday will be against the Kemptville Royals.

Again we would like to mention that the admission fee for public school children will be 25c a game until the play-offs.

The new Ottawa team will be known as the Ottawa "Bytowners" and has been formed by a group of sportsmen wishing to keep Senior hockey alive in the nation's Capital. We understand that some of their players w... be from the former Canadian , "Eastern" Nationals.

Ralph Hurley is, as usual, complaining about the lack of talent for his Syracuse All-Stars, and is on the phone continually; but he assures us he will have a couple of super-stars in the lineup.

Meanwhile, there is good news for the Combines fans. Pat Brophy the popular defenceman, signed a card to play for the local team on Wednesday afternoon.

Kemptville Royals have proved very strong so far this year in two exhibition games, winning by 9—1 and 3—2 scores against Embrun.

See you all at the game here on Friday night.

Her chapel length train was caught at back waist with three satin bows, and her bouffant veil of tulle was held in place by a white satin bow trimmed with pearls and rhinestones. She carried a cresent bouquet of miniature red roses, gardenias, small white orchids and ivy.

Attending the bride as maid of honour was Miss Ardith Dunbar of Iroquois gowned in pink crepe dress white hat and shoes. She carried a cascade of pink carnations.

The bridesmaid, Miss Laura Butcher was gowned in blue lace over taffetta with matching hat. She carried a cascade of pink carnations.

Mrs. Oran Brown, grandmother of the bride was wearing a biege wool suit with matching accessories and a corsage of gold-tinted mums.

Following a dinner and a reception in the Legion Hall, Iroquois, the bride and groom left for their wedding trip to the United States. For travelling the bride wore a green and white floral double-knit dress and a corsage of red carnations.

On their return they will reside at Morrisburg.

APPLE DAY THIS WEEK-END

On Friday evening, November 7th, the Boy Scouts will be offering apples for sale on the Shopping Plaza, and on Saturday, November 8th, a Scout or Cub will call at your home. The boys are not "Sales men". They will be simply asking for support and offering apples in exchange, and it should be remembered that the boys have very limited resources for fund raising, so please be generous.

CORRECTION

In the report of the first meeting of the Dundas County Heart Chapter which was published in this newspaper last week, the following should have appeared. Second vice-chairman, Mrs. Bonnie E. Adair, Iroquois; Secretary, Mrs. Mavis Graham, South Mountain. As the office of secretary is most important in such an association it should be especially noted that Mrs. Graham is the secretary and not the vice chairman as unintentionally reported last week.

BUSY MEETING OF VILLAGE COUNCIL

At the November meeting of Morrisburg Council held Monday in the Council Chambers of the Civic Centre, following discussion with Robert Gillard, Chairman of Morrisburg Recreation Committee, it was decided that public skating would be available week day afternoons at the Community Centre from 3 to 5 with children under six years of age attending free Wednesday afternoons. Queen's Park Comment . .

DONALD C. MacDONALD, MPP,

Ontario Leader,
New Democratic Party

Debate during the conclusion of the Estimates of the Department of the Attorney General once again highlights the arrogance and lack of concern for public opinion with which various police commissions of Ontario operate. Here we have the phenomenon of the Attorney General having written two letters to the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission, supposedly responsible to the Minister, concerning the Shirley Hunter affair, and as yet not havin greceived a reply. And Mr. Wishart Wrote his initial letter in late August.

When Metro Police Commissioner Hugh Bruce was asked about Mr. Wishart's dissatisfaction over the Commission's handling of the Hunter case, Mr. Bruce replied that "he (Wishart) doesn't run us"

This type of remark is fairly typical of the attitude police commissions hold toward the public, as well as toward the public's elected representatives. The time has come to set the matter straight.

Commissioners must be brought down from their lofty pedestals and made to realize that they are responsible to someone beyond themselves, particularly in the investigation of matters relating to the police.

Every member of society has a concern in the study of such matters. In this light, the recommendation that a number of the members on a commission be elected, rather than appointed, seems long overdue. Introduction of the democratic process into the selection of commission members should be the pin that pricks the balloon of official defiance.

The Attorney General, however, seems to be unduly reluctant in this area. He informed the Legislature that he would like to hear the Metro Council's views on how to reform the commission. Consultation, granted, is desirable, but should not be used as an excuse for delaying effective action.

It is time for the Attorney General to reassert his authority. By making commission members legally responsible to the general public, Mr. Wishart will eliminate the abuses so often associated with enquiries into police affairs.

Making Good Things Happen . . .

Whether you know it or not your purchase of Canada Savings Bonds helped fight a forest fire in Labrador, came to the rescue of a ship caught in an ice-jam on the St. Lawrence and aided in the annual re-supply of Canada's arctic communities. These are how your dollars were put to work by the Helicopter Section of the Department of Transport when called upon to make good things happen.

With a fleet of 24 aircraft and a staff o f28 pilots, this 24-hour 365-day aperation is carried on f r o m bases or pads in Ottawa, St. John's Dartmouth, Saint John, Charlotte town, Quebec City, Sorel, Prince Rupert and Victoria.

Largest base of the operations is Ottaka. Here, 16 pilots and 12 aircraft are on the alert to provide helicopters, crews and sup-Section of D.O.T., usPbbetaoinnn port equipment for the Marine Section of D.O.T. usually aboard one of the fleet of Canadian Coast Guard Ships.

While helicopter crews are members of the Flight Service Division of D.O.T., when serving aboard Coast Guard Ships they are considered as ship's officers. Their basic job aboard is for ship-to-shore communications; ice reconnaissance; search and rescue; personnel transportation; logis t i c transportation and hydrographic duties.

The time saved by using a helicopter for such operations as navigational aid servicing, mail transfer, and medical missions is of such magnitude when compared with the use of ship's boats or ship's rendezvous, that is now unthinkable for an operation to be planned without carrying at least one helicopter. Several of the larger ships are designed to carry two aircraft for Arctic cruises.

The helicopter section is just winding up its busiest season. Each summer the Coast Guard fleet heads to the Arctic to take part in the annual re-supply operations of our Arctic communities.

The next busy season will be when the helicopters take part in the ice-breaking operations undertaken by the Coast Guard. Here the helicopters will be used to carry out ice survey for escorting skin thin vessels through the ice-fields in the north and winter coastal areas.

Apart from visual aids, the department has undertaken experiments using lightweight radar trans ponders aboard the aircraft. This instrument responds to the ship's radar and shows a "blip" on the radar screen. This way not only the aircraft is kept under surveillance but the ship's officers are able to plot reported leads with considerable accuracy from their present position even before the helicopter returns with its prepared ice-map to the ship and the aircraft is free to continue its survey.

In conjunction with the re-supply and escort duties of the ice-breaker fleet, the ships are also actively engaged in hydrographic studies and surveys within the areas they visit.

The D.O.T. heli t and Coast Guard co-o the RCAF to carry out s res-cue operations. These in and and sea areas searches a as rescue missions from shi medical assistance miss general distress missions.

The advantages of he transportation in the fie readily seen. Prior to the a of the helicopter section, it necessary for ship's boats to very close to shore to transf even small quantities of supplies and personnel ashore. Now, within reasonable flying range of the shore establishments, the ship is able to proceed while the aircraft is carrying out its mission.

Time and staff are saved. This is especially true of the maintenance and inspection of navigational aids. It allows crews to increase the supervision of these aids without an increase in staff.

The shore based aircraft of the Coast Guard are established at most of the Marine Agencies throughout Canada to operate in support of the Marine Agency Staff.

The utility of the shore based helicopter is only limited by the ability of the aircraft on hand and the imagination of the operations staff.

Above and beyond those duties outlined, the Coast Guard and heli copter fleet are called upon to provide help in any emergency situation which could arise in Canada. The department stresses that in all such assistance it is never its intention to enter into competition with the commercial operators.

As Canadians we are benefiting from the efforts being put forward by such government agencies as the helicopter section of the Department of Transport. the effort to make good things happen. To make good things happen to you invest now in the current series of Canada Savings Bonds . . . certainly, they're better than ever!

Max Ward, the hustler

Max Ward, who fought Government red tape and long odds to make overseas travel relatively cheap for Canadians on a Canadian-operated plane, may become a victim of his own zeal.

Before the former bush pilot moved into the charter business in a big way two years ago, foreign based airlines handled the majority or overseas charters originating in Canada.

Air Canada and Canadian Pacific handled some charters in the peak summer travel months, but neither had sufficient equipment to fight off the large U.S. carriers or those from Europe.

In the early '60s, when anyone approached Air Canada about a charter to Europe, the response was far from encouraging. The result was that Pan American, KLM, Air France or Alitalia walked off with most of the Canadian business.

Ward, sitting in his small Edmonton office, thought the time had come for a small carrier to compete with the "big boys" on the European market.

The hustling Max, who was then flying a milk run to the Arctic with his small planes, took off for Seattle. He talked Boeing into setting aside one of their 727 jets for his Wardair airline, then talked a division of Greyhound Bus into handling the financing.

This two-engine jet ferried thousands of Canadians from Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Vancouver to Europe, with a refuelling stop in Greenland or Iceland. And Ward showed the big airlines that he could log a fantastic 16-plus hours per day flying average during the summer. With such a tight schedule, Wardair had to be on time — a feat other charters couldn't match.

The business poured in and on the next trip to Seattle, this time for a 707 jet, the Boeing people were more receptive — so were the bankers.

By now, Ward operated out of a luxurious office in Edmonton's tallest building, and he soon opened equally plush offices in the Toronto Dominion Centre.

The other airlines, perhaps fearing Ward would soon have too big a fleet, started complaining about his charter tactics. A series of "club" flights originating in Vancouver and Calgary turned out to be like most charters — comprised of people who became club members solely for the overseas flight. After all, a charter trip cut the cost of travel in half. But the Government closed down Wardair for a short stretch.

Not for long, though, and this last summer, the Wardair 707 and 727 were in the air day and night logging thousands of miles, and carrying thousands of happy Canadians.

The booming charter business finally forced the regular airlines to act. Alitalia announced new low cut fares on the Italian flights originating in North America.

Air Canada lowered the boom on the charter lines with their plan to charge only $181 for a return flight between London and Toronto.

This is considerably below the best charter price available in the non-summer months. The summer Air Canada rate is expected to be $219 but this, too, is better than most charter prices.

And where does this leave Max Ward, the man who really provided the impetus in this country to provide low fares for Canadians on Canadian-owned airlines?

Max realizes that given a choice, the average passenger prefers the regularly-scheduled airline. He also knows that with the coming of jumbo jets, more and more Canadians will be able to fly to Europe on regularly-scheduled lines.

His drive and similar pushes by charter airlines in the United States, Bahamas, Barbados and England forced the regular airlines to act.

The drastic reductions in fares recently announced, of course, lead to the obvious questions: Why were the rates so high in the first place?

Any other business which has a Government monopoly, is expected to provide service at a fair price.

Until Max Ward and others forced their hand, the airlines are admitting now that charges were exhorbitant. It would be a tragedy if Wardair is forced out of business because of its lead in this fight.

The average Canadian certainly has benefited, and overseas travel is now within reach of most of us.

A warning to all hunters! Now that the days are getting colder, be extra careful when hunting near water or using boats. With the temperature of the water colder and the heavier clothes being worn, extra caution should be used to prevent a sudden plunge into the water. Your chances of surviving in the water this time of year go down with the decrease in temperature. One other warning. Make sure of your target before you shoot. Too many lives are taken every year as a result of buck fever!

Report from the Ontario Legislature

by:
Fred M. Cass, Q.C., M.P.P.

As all my readers will have learned from daily Press articles and other sources, the Ontario Legislature last week inaugurated new rules and procedures on a trial basis .In total the new system appears to be working well except that the Party Whips seem to find it impossible to keep a quorum of 20 Members in the House and one of 7 Members in the Standing Committee which now sits concurrently. It would seem more than passing strange if out of 117 Members a total of 27 could not be present in their seats at any given time.

The new oral question period was inaugurated wherein for a stated time each day Private Members of all parties have the opportunity of directing questions without notice to any Minister who then is to answer orally. So far the procedure has effectively given more Members the opportunity of posing questions and the Ministers have shown themselves quite capable of fielding them. While some minor adjustments may be required, it would appear the new system is an improvement.

The other change in procedures has effectively placed a time limit for consideration of departmental estimates, both in the House sitting as a Committee of Supply and in the Standing Committee now set up to consider supply (that is departmental estimates). The present time table agreed to by all parties will enable the current Session of the Legislature to close before Christmas.

In a change of proceedings in the House this past month, a whole sitting was devoted to legislation with new laws on real estate brokers ;gas companies, used car dealers and many other similar areas being processed. Indeed 17 bills received Royal Assent on the Friday. The estimates of the Department of Justice were completed and those of Lands and Forests begun in the main Committee of Supply. Concurrently, the Standing Committee has been considering the estimates of the Department of Agriculture and Food and has completed them ahead of schedule. The main thrust of discussion here has been aimed at the obvious confrontation in matters of cost and price of food stuffs between the farmer — producer and the consumer. And of course, under our present economic system, the play between supply and demand is the sole arbiter o fthe price tag both on production costs and on retail sale price .

Hull can do it all

Tuesday, October 21, 1969, is a date to remember. For it was on this date that radios, television sets and newspapers across Canada and the United States were relaying the news to the public that Bobby Hull had announced his resignation from the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Bobby Hull? Charisma . . . Shine . . . super-star . . . Number One . . . that's Bobby Hull!

He's to hockey what mint sauce is to lamb. Bobby Hull is that added extra that makes all things bright and beautiful. There isn't any player in the NHL who can continually bring a crowd to its feet screaming "stop him," or "score a goal;" depending which side you're on, of course.

Bobby Hull is the most feared shooter in the NHL. His laser-type shots have been the scourge of goalkeepers during the past 12 years he has patrolled left wing for the Hawks. Opposing teams have paid him the greatest tribute: Employing an individual to do nothing but go where Hull goes, even if it means sharing his shower.

No other player in the NHL has been subjected to holding, hooking, slashing, and illegal defensive tactics in general, as has Hull.

Perhaps no other player could have withstood this pressure for so long. Strong men have been known to weep, but no tear has glistened in Bobby Hull's eyes.

He has scored 414 during regular season play and added another 44 during the playoffs. And, Chicago has not been a consistent competitor come playoff time.

During the 1961-62 season he scored 50 goals, tying the season record of Rocket Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, the two great scorers of the Montreal Canadiens. Then, in 1965-66, the Golden Jet put 54 pucks behind enemy goaltenders, followed by 52 three years ago.

Last year was his most magnificent scoring year. He tallied 58 times. This scoring feat has to be compared to all of the outstanding achievements in sports history.

Bobby Hull was more than 20 percent of Chicago's attack in scoring goals, as far as statistics are concerned. That is tangible evidence. But the intangible part is that he meant even more to the attack with his play-making and forcing the opposition to concentrate on "stopping Hull." When the foe double-covered Hull, another member of the Hawks was free to shoot.

He was the key to Chicago's power-play. He killed penalties with such aplomb that the opposition couldn't charge to the attack for fear that Hull would grab a stray puck and suddenly reverse the complexion of the situation.

Whenever double shifts were required, Bobby Hull filled the request.

He was an all-star left wing eight times, the last six years in succession. He won the Art Ross Trophy three times as the NHL's leading scorer and the Hart Trophy once as the most valuable chattel in the game. The Lady Byng Trophy was awarded to him once as the player best combining playing skill with exemplary conduct.

Now hockey's greatest scoring machine and crowd pleaser wants to retire.

What makes Hull want to escape?

It can't be money, although this is what the reports say, in an indirect fashion. Hull's reason is that the Chicago team did not meet certain commitments beyond and above his $100,000 a year contract which was good for four years.

Undeniably this has something to do with his retirement.

But, perhaps, the simple fact of the matter is that Bobby Hull no longer enjoys professional hockey wearing the colors of the Chicago Black Hawks.

DEPARTMENT OF LANDS AND FORESTS

Weekly Report

SOUTH WEST ZONE WORK CYCLE

Winter is fast approaching and as we look back over the past months we see a large portion of the annual work cycle completed on forested lands.

Leeds and Grenville County Forest, the South Nation River Conservation Authority Forest and Private land under the Woodland Improvement Act reflect upon a busy season of work progress. The cycle started last April as another tree planting program got under way. This year over one and one-third million trees were planted on Agreement Forests, Crown Land and Private Land under the W.I.A. in Leeds ,Grenville and Dundas Counties. This operation employed over 80 local people who contributed to make this a very successful program.

Immediately after planting, our Industrial tractors, brush cutters and single furrow ploughs took to the fields to prepare the sites for next years planting. Over 500 acres of land has been prepared this year by furrowing or brush cutting and furrowing.

At the same time, men were sent out to protect the trees that have been planted in past years. These trees must be protected from fire, insects, disease, cattle and flooding. A crew of Department of Lands and Forests staff carried out fire patrols at extreme hazard periods, produced over 8 miles of fireguards along well travelled Forest roads and constructed six fire ponds for fire use. An Insect and Disease contro lprogram was carried out this summer. The largest portion of this work consisted of the patrolling and spraying of Laconte sawfly and the Yellow Headed Spruce sawfly in plantation conifer species. Other pest control activities included control of nuisance beaver and about 580 rods of fence erection and maintenance to control livestock in young plantations. Road Construction and road maintenance projects on forest roads have also been completed to improve access to forested properties for hunting and recreation.

Yes, as we look back, we see a busy season in the ebb; ahead we still have a large program to complete before spring.

Work to be completed includes thinning and pruning in older plantations, improvement cuttings in natural hardwood stands, cutting cedar posts, pulpwood and diseased elm this winter and having equipment in readiness for another work cycle ahead when the winter subsides.
