Ontario Liquor Licenses.

When the Provincial Alliance meets at Toronto in March a big deputation will wait on the Whitney government and ask that the three-fifths disability clause in the Liquor License Act be removed at once. The temperance people expect the act will also be amended so that the sale of liquor will be made illegal on Good Friday, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

Kitley Township Farmer Found Dead.

A fatality occurred on Monday in the Township of Kitley near Jasper. The victim was Michael O'Connell, aged 61, a prosperous farmer of that township.

He spent the evening in Jasper, leaving for home about 10 o'clock in the company of Henry Rathwell. They were driving a single horse attached to a cutter and it is thought the horse shied, upsetting the cutter. Both men were thrown out, O'Connell being pushed face downwards into the snow, which at that point is quite deep, and the other man was lying on top of him. This is the supposition, for when Wm. Ferguson, a young man returning home from a party, discovered the mishap, such were the positions of the bodies. The horse was found lying in the ditch uninjured.

It was found that Rathwell was asleep and O'Connell was dead. An examination of the body by Dr. Anderson, coroner of the district, showed that O'Connell had died of snffocation. There was no evidence of foul play and an inquest was deemed unnecessary. In the pockets of the deceased was found $41 in cash, a gold watch and a revolver. He lived alone and owned one of the best farms in Kitley.

Love Kept Its Faith;

Or, The Girl With the Nut Brown Hair and Dreamy Eyes.

Amazed anew by the revelation of feeling as much as by the outburst, David could only stand and stare in dumb surprise. Then he did something which startled Miss Manesty in turn. He stooped and kissed, and ere she had regained her self-possession he had passed from the house. Before Blackie had broken into her trot, Miss Manesty appeared in the doorway and imperiously demanded his return.

"There's one thing more I wanted to tell you," she said as he mounted the step. "I don't believe a word of all this rubbish about the Habakkuk, and as for the rest—well, Sleddlemere's still open to you."

"There'd be no winning him back if I shut the door upon him," she mused as Blackie's hoofs beat hard upon the gravelled drive. "An open door's a comforting thing for a man that's down, and encouraging, too. There's a heap of wrong-doing going on in the world, but it's nothing to what would be if Heaven's door was banged to in the face of the sinners. It's just the gate being ajar that saves men from hopelessness and keeps them striving. No, no, David, I'll not lock you out; if anything keeps you away it'll be your own want of grace."

Somewhere about the time that David was dropping down the hill towards the clustered lights of Gammersby, Miss Manesty shook herself out of another reverie, and ... hesitant pause at the door, ...ther at the foot of the ..., as one who mentally be... "Shall I?" she slowly made ...way to Margery's room. The ...rose to meet her, and the two ...l each other keenly, for the dis...r of the day had operated with ...tanic violence, and neither was quite certain as to where the other stood. For declaration no speech was needed, eyes are ever more eloquent than tongues. One long, penetrating look, and Age and Youth understood, and once more the fragile arms of Age were slipped around Youth's quivering form, once more Youth sobbed its grief upon the pitying breast...

"Do I believe that Lodore's on fire? Do I believe——?"

But Margery was quite satisfied, and with a hug she strangled whatever further asseveration of her faith that Miss Manesty was prepared to make. And thereafter the pair fell a-talking, quietly, seriously, but withal hopefully of the crisis that had so suddenly burst upon them, and Margery visibly brightened.

"Well, auntie," she said at last, "I'm so glad you believe in David still—it helps me such a lot. Not that it would have made any difference; if all the world was against him that would be only a stronger reason why I should stand by him, what proof it may bring, I'll not let go my faith."

"Ay, that's all right, faith's a grand thing, but"—applying to the girl the argument with which she had previously assailed her lover—"but what about your works?"

"Works?"

"Yes—works. Is faith going to stand as the only mark of your love for the poor lad? Aren't you going to help him to restore his name and to get a clearer view of right and wrong?"

"Help him! Oh, if only I could, but—I'm afraid I don't know how."

"Well, then, find out." Miss Manesty was herself again now. "Love isn't a thing to lap up in your heart. Lassie, if your love's got the guinea stamp on it, if it's a thing worth having, it'll set your brain a-moving in the morning, and keep it going till you close your eyes at night; it'll set your fingers itching to be at work for the man your heart's given to; it'll put your feet upon the rocky road he's travelling over, and keep you following until you see that he's safe. Faith's all right; it's a bonny thing to have by you to rub your love upon, so that it may be always glittering, but I reckon nothing of faith without works, and if you don't make the saving of David Graham and his name the sole object of all your thoughts and deeds, you'll not deserve to have him come back to you."

An... anybody might bring — and — and——"

"And you got your comfort, auntie?"

"He never answered my letter. But still, I didn't believe it of him—sure there was a mistake—never got my letter. So I wrote again—and at last I followed him over the seas—to help him to clear his name. Folks said it was an unmaidenly thing to do, and behind my back they jeered at me for casting myself at a man; but I didn't care—his honor was more to me than everything else in the world. What's the talk of gossip-mongers when your man's good name's at stake?

"So I tell you I went to look for him. I followed him to India and he wasn't there, I traced him on to China and still he was in front of me, and then I went along to the gold diggings in Australia—and—there—"

"There you found him, auntie."

"I found his grave."

Margery slipped her arm around her aunt and kissed her; the two were united now in the bond of a common sorrow. Just for a moment it seemed as though the elder was about to break down utterly under the weight of her revived woe, but the strong will that had carried her over the seas was still one of the prime elements in her character, and by-and-by she was speaking again.

"Yes, I found his grave," and then straightening herself with a prideful gesture. There were some papers that put everything right, showed him to be suffering for another's sin—and somehow, though I'd lost him, I was content."

"You dear, brave old thing. And to think that through all these years you've kept this story to yourself, and let people think you harsh and critical and unsympathetic, and all the time your heart's been over-running with love."

"Nay, and I wouldn't have let you see my secret now if I hadn't thought it might help you. There's just been him and me all the time, and the less I said about it the more I seemed to keep him to myself. But this is what I want you to remember, lassie. If I hadn't done the thing folks cast their scorn at me for, my David might never have been righted; and to my old eyes, that can see a bit further than yours sometimes, it's plain that if Margery Manesty is satisfied with an idle faith, her David may never have his pride restored, may never be brou... back to the way of right-think... and right-doing, may never ... her his wife. Now, I've said... than I ever thought I... done, and I'm t... dearie."

TO DESTROY EXPLOSIVES.

What to do With Gunpowder and Nitroglycerine.

The best way to destroy ordinary black gunpowder is to throw it into a stream under conditions that prevent any harm coming to human beings or animals through the dissolving of the saltpetre. If no suitable stream is available the gunpowder may be poured out on the ground in a long thin line and ignited with a fuse at one end, says the Scientific American.

To destroy dynamite cartridges the paper wrappings should be carefully removed, the bare cartridges laid in a row with their ends in contact and the first cartridge ignited with a fuse without a cap. Even with these precautions a simultaneous explosion of the entire mass may occur, so that it is wise to retire to a safe distance. The row of cartridges should be laid parallel with the wind and ignited at the leeward end so that the flame will be driven away from the mass.

Frozen dynamite should be handled with special care, as its combustion is peculiarly liable to assume an explosive character. A small quantity of dynamite may be destroyed by throwing it in very small bits into an open fire, or the cartridges may be exploded one by one in the open air with fuses and caps.

Dynamite should never be thrown into water, as the nitroglycerine which it contains remains undissolved and capable of doing mischief. Other explosives which contain nitroglycerine should be treated in the same way as dynamite.

Ammonium nitrate explosives may be thrown in small fragments into an open fire, or if they do not contain nitroglycerine may be destroyed by means of water. Explosive caps should be exploded singly with pieces of fuse.

How to Speculate

Money is made by getting in on the ground floor in all mining propositions. An investor putting up his money to develop a new claim is the person who is entitled to the first profits. The first profits on all good mining deals are enormous.

The Crown Reserve Mining Company was composed of thirty shares of $1,000 each. When the property had been sufficiently developed to warrant its being turned into a Company, each syndicate shareholder received 30,000 shares of stock in the Company, for each $1,000 he had paid in. Each share of these 30,000 shares is to-day selling at $2.80.

The Temiskaming & Hudson Bay Mining Company's shares were sold at 25c. each. To-day they are selling at $3.00 per share and have paid over 12,500% in dividends.

The Right of Way Mining Company's shares were sold at 15c. and are to-day selling at $4 per share.

These results are obtained by taking the first chance. If the property in which you are interested turns out good, you make a fortune, if not, you have a limited loss.

We are organizing a syndicate to operate four claims in Gow Ganda, the richest silver section ever discovered. These claims, we think, will turn out well and should show enormous profits to the syndicate members. The syndicate will be for $50,000, divided into 100 shares of $500 each. These shares are payable $100 cash and four further payments of $100 per month. Of this $40,000 will be paid for the properties and $10,000 provided for working capital. If development work warrants the formation of a Company, a Company will be formed with $2,000,000 capitalization, and each share in the syndicate will be entitled to 15,000 shares of stock in the Company, and the remaining 500,000 shares will be left in the Treasury for future developments.

We strongly recommend the above as a good speculation. Make all cheques payable to

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a bottle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription forces the clogged up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes Rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious Kidney disorders or Rheumatism

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly.

THE LIBEL ACT.

Publishers Suggest Several Amendments.

Toronto, Feb. 12.—A representative deputation of newspapermen waited on the premier and Hon. Mr. Foy this morning and suggested the following among other amendments to the Libel act:—

"That the act be amended, so as to recognize the distinction between matter which appears as news matter and that which appears as editorial.

That where full retraction is made, the said retraction shall be taken as a full defence, unless plaintiff can show actual damages or real malice.

That the jury be empowerd to bring in a verdict awarding damages. if such be proved, which need not carry costs.

Simplification of proceedure, so that the expenses of trial may be kept down, and a speedy issue obtainable. That official court documents and accurately reported statements made by officers of the crown should be privileged.

A wider definiton of a public meeting and also a court of justice.

That where several papers are being sued for the same alleged offence, the conditions for securing consolidation should be made wider.

That for alleged libel in news matter from parts of the province other than that in which the paper is published and mainly circulates the prompt explanation and apology shall be a sufficient reparation for alleged injury.

Mi-o-na Tablets Cure Dyspepsia by Promptly Removing the Cause, or Money Back.

There is just one way to cure dyspepsia and stomach disorders, trivial or serious, and that is to tone up or put energy into the stomach walls, so that they will be able to properly mix or churn the food.

Mi-o-na tablets quickly arouse the stomach from its inaction and in a short time it is able to do its work properly.

Harry Dodd of Bridge Street, Hastings, Ont., says: "For seven years I had suffered and spent much money doctoring, but all to no avail. I could eat but very little, as the food would ferment and sour, making gas, which caused serious heart oppression. I was in constant misery, sour gas would belch from my stomach, I was languid and weak and had no ambition. I did not feel like going anywhere or seeing anyone. There was a constant dull pain in the pit of the stomach. I was unable to sleep, was nervous, restless, and would awake more tired than on going to bed I tried Mi-o-na and soon found relief, and in less than six weeks Mi-o-na had completely cured me."

W. G. Bolster, the druggist, sells Mi-o-na tablets at 50 cents a large box, under a rigid guarantee to do all that is claimed for them or money back.

WORK AND WORRY WEAKENS WOMEN

New Health and Strength Can be Had Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

It is useless to tell a hard working woman to take life easily and not to worry. But it is the duty of every woman to save her strength as much as possible; to take her cares as lightly as may be and to build up her system to meet any unusual demands. It is her duty to herself and to her family, for her future health depends upon it.

To guard against a complete breakdown in health the blood must be kept rich and red and pure. No other medicine does this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. This medicine actually makes new, red blood, strengthens the nerves, restores the appetite and keeps every organ healthily toned up. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep their strength and keep disease away by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have done more to lighten the cares of weak women than any other medicine.

Mrs. James H. Ward, Lord's Cove, N. B., says:—"About two years ago I suffered so much from nervous prostration that I was little better than a helpless wreck. I suffered from headaches and a constant feeling of dizziness. The least unusual move would startle me and set my heart palpitating violently. I had little or no appetite and grew so weak that I was hardly able to drag myself about, and could not do my housework. In every way I was in a deplorable condition. As the medicine I had been taking seemed to do me no good, my husband got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had only been taking the Pills for a couple of weeks when I seemed to feel somewhat better and this encouraged me to continue the treat- From that on my strength lly but surely returned, and ourse of a few more weeks ré a well woman, own housework, and than I had done for nce remained well my good

CHILDREN OF ROYALTY

FAMILY OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

They Are Just Like Ordinary Children, Not Like Princes of Tradition.

No children are loved by more persons than the royal children of England. This is not only because they stand for the future of England's throne but also because they are good examples of normal English childhood.

The Prince and Princes of Wales have arranged most carefully the training both mental and physicial of the six youngsters and have impressed upon all who are near the children in any capacity the need for simplicity of manner, dress and life. The consequence has been that they are far from being the delicate spoiled royal children of history.

Princess Mary is the only girl in the family, and is the leader in all sports, games, mischief and fun. Princess Mary, who is 11, is not pretty, her features being irregular, but she has the charm of healthy childhood added to an expression of animation which would make her noticeable even if she were not a Princess.

Now that she is nearing her twelfth birthday it has been ordained that she is to lead more of an indoor life and give up some of the romping games of the happy previous years. Lesson hours are doubled, and no little girl at grammer school anxious to stand first in class studies harder than Princess Mary. TREE RENDS A TOMB.

Striking Instance of the Great Power of Vegetation.

A correspondent of the Edinburgh Scotsman calls attention to a curious instance of the mechanical power of vegetation in the out of the way churchyard of Tewin, in Hertfordshire.

A tree, which has been divided into two or three main stems, grows straight out of the tomb of a noble dame who departed this life two centuries ago, and has rent her gloomy home into pieces. Strangest sight of all, it has wrapped itself round the iron railing which used to guard the grave, and which is thus now almost entirely concealed inside the tree.

People come from far and near to see the wonderful sight, and to them is told a story that the quiet inhabitant of this disrupted sepulchre was in her day a lady of very free thinking opinions, and had said she would have placed above her remains a tomb that no person could read.

CHAPPED FROM FINGERS TO ELBOWS.

Boy's Agony Relieved by Zam-Buk.

If you are suffering from badly-chapped hands you will be able to comprehend a little of the agony which Henry Walker, of 14 Manufacturerers Street, Montreal, endured before Zam-Buk gave him relief. His mother, telling of the case to a Press representative, said:—

"Henry works with his shirt sleeves rolled up above his elbows, and passing from a warm room to the biting cold, as he was obliged to do, he got the worst case of chapped hands and arms I have ever seen. From his fingers to his elbows was one mass of raw flesh, with bad cracks here and there. Whenever he washed, it brought tears to his eyes, the pain was so acute. He tried several kinds of salves, but nothing relieved him really until he tried Zam-Buk. This balm semed to take away the burning and smarting almost at once. The cracks began to heal, and a few applications of the balm cured him. His hands and arms are now smooth and soft.

"We have also used Zam-Buk for other emergencies. I sustained a on one of my fingers. Zam- the fire out and healed ally sems a wonation.

WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR THOMAS MOON.

Doctors Could Not Cure His Dropsy but Dodd's Kidney Pills Cleared it out Completely.

Maidstone, Sask., February 15 (Special).—"Cured me completely. That's what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me." Such is the statement made by Thomas Moon, a well-known resident of this place who for two years suffered with Dropsical Swellings brought on by diseased Kidneys.

"I had pains in the small of my back," Mr. Moon continues, "and across the loins. The swelling commenced first in my legs and gradually got to my body. I tried different doctors but kept getting worse every day until I was swollen up to an awful size.

"One doctor sent me to the hospital where I got a little benefit, but the swelling soon all came back.

"Then I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and, as I said before, they cured me completely."

Dropsical Swellings are caused by diseased Kidneys failing to take the surplus water out of the blood. Cure the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and the Dropsy naturally cures itself.

THE BLIND SWIM STRAIGHT.

Keep Course With Great Directness, Guided by Sound.

Just as some professional singers with magnificent voices never learn to sing in perfect tune, so do the trainers of really fine swimmers often find it impossible that men with every quality for racing otherwise can be made or taught to swim even in an approximately straight line, says London Tit-Bits.

Many a splendid swimmer is beaten on this account, for his inveterate habit of getting off his course naturally gives him a roundabout journey. But the remarkable fact remains that blind swimmers—of whom there are in this country a considerable number in connection with various institutions for persons so afflicted—universally and without exception swim with marvellous directness; indeed, in as perfectly straight a line as is humanly possible, even when the distance covered is very considerable.

So much is this the case that Dr. Campbell, of the College for the Blind at Upper Norwood, who particularly interests himself in the physical education of the blind and has noticed this curious fact, recommends that swimmers who persistently foul each other on any course should practise experimentally when blindfolded.

Blind swimmers can, it appears, on hearing a noise in any given direction not only swim absolutely straight to the point whence the noise proceeds, but when left to themselves their steering is just as accurate.

BREAKDOWN OF ENGINES

QUEER REASONS FOR STOPPING OF TRAINS.

A Little Rough-haired Terrier Brought a Passenger Train to a Stop.

In the early days of locomotion, when the fastest trains would wait five minutes for a belated traveller or put back to the nearest station to recover some forgotten luggage, varied and curious were the reasons for the breakdown of an engine, but even in these times of smooth travelling remarkable incidents are sometimes recorded relative to the sudden stoppage of trains.

When Jumbo, the famous elephant, sought to dispute the right of way with a Canadian locomotive one was not surprised to learn that she succeeded in putting the engine temporarily out of business, though one cannot help feeling a certain amount of astonishment when one is told that the same remakable feat has been performed by a small dog weighing less than four pounds. Yet this strange accident happened as lately as last August, when a passenger train on the Wallkill Valley Railroad was brought to a sudden stop by a little rough-haired terrier.

It seems that while the train was running at a very high speed the air-brakes were suddenly applied with such force as to cause the passengers to think that a collision was imminent. The engineer was dumfounded at the application of the brakes, and at once made an investigation. He found that his engine had struck the dog and hurled it against a valve in such a manner as to turn on the air and

SET THE BRAKES.

This accident, though remarkable, is not, however, without a precedent, for some three months before a Grand Central express was brough[illegible] standstill in an platform lights, and as he did so the furrule end of the umbrella, which up to tnat time had been unnoticed, fell into the box and, coming in contact with the fuses, caused a short circuit. Immediately there was a roar as the fuses simultaneously blew out, and a burst from the box. The inspector and the conductor, who, unfortunately, happened to be just behind, were hurled on to their backs, all the lights went out, and the train, of course, came to a standstill.

The employes from 157th Street, seeing by the sudden darkness that something was amiss, made their way to the train, and there found the passengers wildly excited and the two officials lying unconscious. Having pacified the passengers and rung up an ambulance the mechanics proceeded to find out the cause of the accident. After a considerable search they found the ferrule of the umbrella jammed into the fuses of the box, which had also destroyed all the other fuses, and so put the train entirely out of order. Ultimately it was dragged to the yards and the damage remedied. The two victims of an old man's carelessness, though shocked and painfully burned, were not seriously injured.

A few months ago the St. Louis accommodation train was held up by bees at Edwardsville, and delayed for more han an hour. At the station several hives were waiting shipment, but they had not been on the platform more than ten minutes when the boxes were covered with thousands of strange bees that gathered from all directions, attracted by the scent of the honey and the other bees inside.

The train men put on thick gloves and covered their faces with handkerchiefs, and heaved the boxes on to the farther tracks, but the bees then left the boxes and swarmed over the entire length of the 200-foot platform, while the passengers who had been seated in the train fled in dismay. Then a telephone message was sent to the shipper of the bees, and when he arrived he simply carried the hives to the freight houses, locked them [illegible] then dislodged the stranger [illegible] of a lighted torch. PRIVATE MANSIONS WORTHY TO RANK AS MUSEUMS.

Dozens Upon Dozens of Old London Houses Hold Priceless Treasures

The men who built the great mansions of London which endure to this day prepared them for the reception year after year of the most beautiful objects, so that now hardly anything remains to add to them. There are a hundred great houses in London of which the least important could be taken to any other great town and proclaimed as a wonderful museum.

Dorchester House, the present home of the American Ambassador, Bridgewater House, Chesterfield House, built by the great author of polite letter writing; Apsley House, the home of the Duke of Wellington; Devonshire House, Grosvenor House, the custodian of a vast treasure in pictures, manuscripts and sculpture, Lansdowne House, with its great gallery of busts and statues; Stafford House, whose great staircase alone is worth a king's ransom; Wimborne House—these are only

A FEW OF THE NUMBER.

There are many other houses of minor importance, writes the London correspondent of Town and Country, which would be starred in the first line if they were anywhere else.

There, for instance, in Arlington street, a small, narrow thoroughfare close behind the Ritz Hotel, where Wimborne House casts its great shadow, are a dozen mansions which contain treasures almost beyond belief. The Marquis of Salisbury lives there in a magnificent palace—magnificent as to interior, insignificant as to exterior.

Sir Alexander Henderson, a great railway magnate, hides the nobility of his possessions behind a modest street frontage. At No. 17, a house built 150 years ago by Lord Carteret and now owned by Lord Yarborough, lives H. Gordon Selfridge, late of Chicago. THE ARMY DRUM-HORSE.

How He Is Trained to Do The Work Required of Him.

The horse selected for the honor of carrying the big drum in the Army has to go through a special training before it is allowed to fill the office. In the first place the drum-horse is usually piebald, but the particular coloring is not essential to the position; the animal may be pure white. At any rate, its appearance must be consistent with the showpiece it is in the band and must carry the handsome trappings in a dignified and graceful manner. Its nerves are severely tried by the booming of the enormous guns he is destined to hear, until in time he becomes as indifferent to the noise as do his brothers to the singing of bullets.

He is then taught to parade. In the parade his rider has his hands full in the use of the sticks. He controls the steed by means of the reins, which are fastened to the stirrup strap near the foot.

The fame of the drum-horse is often won on the field of battle. His duty classes him with the war-horse, and on similar lines lies his path to glory and renown. The horse that wins laurels on the battlefields, and carries himself with becoming dignity in the parades of peace, will sometimes find himself in the line of promotion to the proud position of drum-horse in the regimental band.

The best-known drum-horse in the British Army is Old Bob, who for over twenty years has faithfully served in the military hosts of the King. During service in India in 1897 he received wounds which are visible in the scars he bears to-day. Old Bob was severely cut in rushing upon the foe during a charge of his regiment. When the Dragoons returned to England his services were transferred to the Prince of Wales's Own Regiment, and to this command he is at present attached, and can frequently be seen at Whitehall.

LAYMEN'S BANQUET

Of Matilda District Held at Chesterville—Large Gathering—Excellent Program.

A complimentary banquet to the laymen of Matilda District was provided by the Women's Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid of the Chesterville Methodist Church on Thursday evening last. Supper was served in the Sunday School room of the new church, the basement, which in all future occasions will be used for gatherings of this kind, not being completed.

The delegates, as requested, met in the old church about seven o'clock, and about 7.30 were invited to the dining room in the new church, and when they were all seated it was found that about 235 had responded to the invitation

The Rev. John Webster of Winchester, chairman of the evening, asked the blessing, and then the ladies and gentlemen waiters were ready to attend to the wants of the large assemblage, and which was well executed. The tables were well ladened with all that the inner man could desire, and we must say that all seemed to enjoy it. On each table were several bouquets of cut flowers and other ornamental fixtures, which presented a very pleasing appearance. Right here we might add that it is almost an impossibility to get a better table than that set by the Ladies' Aid and Women's Missionary Societies of the Methodist Church. Inform the ladies of what you require and your wishes will be granted.

After all had done justice to their craving appetites, the chairman started the program by announcing a hymn, in which mostly all joined heartily. Then Mrs. Frank Wilson, leader of the Methodist choir in this place, favored the assemblage with a solo, which was well received.

Elmer Davis, Esq., of Kingston, was then called upon, and spoke for about one and a half hours, and he was listened to very attentively. His subject was home and foreign missions, but more especially pointed to home missions. He told of the origination of the missions and of the centennial celebration of the haystack prayer-meeting in New York in 1906, and followed on to the present time, giving an abundance of knowledge and facts along this line, and exhorted his hearers to be more liberal in their givings along this line.

After the singing of another hymn, the chairman called on Rev. W. R. Young, D.D., of Montreal, who proved to be suitable to the occasion, and while he drove home many facts to his listeners as to the wants of the mission fields, still he was somewhat humorous, and kept the assemblage in rather a jolly mood. Although he did not speak at any length still during that time he said something that seemed to be of special interest to

J. J. Black's Sale Very Successful.

Despite unfavorable weather which delayed trains and kept a large number of intending purchasers at home, the dispersion sale of J. J. Black and son, Winchester, proved a success. About 500 people attended and Mr. Black is well satisfied with the results.

The imported Hackney stallion, Rillington Grandee, sold for $1,025 to Mr. Mitchell of Port Hope. Sally Lloyd, the Imported Clydesdale mare, brought $350. Mr. Luther of Almonte, was the purchaser. F. S. Cryderman of Osnabruck Centre paid $375 for the imported Clydesdale mare, Lady Maire The yearling Clydesdale stallion, King Harold. sold for $150. The other pure bred horses were not sold. $1600 was bid for Adam Bede; $750 for Gladden's Pride, $900 for Merry Andrew, and $750 for Coker's Prince Charles. Mr. Black did not consider the foregoing satisfactory prices, consequently withdrew his horses.

The farm horses sold at $61, $96, $110 and $120.

The thirty milch cows brought an average of $35 per head and the brood sow $23 and $20 Had the weather been more favorable Mr. Black would have undoubtedly received much better prices.

Frequent Headaches—Do They Affect You.

You find life a missrable affair because you have headaches, but you have neither nausea nor are you weak—You know if you could only prevent headaches you would enjoy perfect health.

Such headaches indicate a general lowered condition, because they arise from a general decay of the nervous system.

This depressed condition of the nervous system has its origin in the reduction of the quality and quantity of the blood.

The blood is thin—its red coloring is reduced—it contains no nourishment.

The digestive organs are not supplying it with sufficient nutritive matter.

The result—nerve weakness, nerve debility, ill-health.

If you had used Ferrozone you would know how powerfully all the digestive and assimilative functions of the body are stimulated.

Ferrozone does more—it supplies all the elements that are essential to the rebuilding of the body—supplies the reconstructive forces that contribute to the formation of rich red blood.

You see, Ferrozone does'nt treat a sympton—it remedies a cause—and that's why a month's treatmont will absolutely remove every vestige of recurring nervous headaches.

Nothing like Ferrozone to build you up to give the reserve of force, that happy health that contributes so much to happiness and contentment.

Ferrozone will make you feel like new, try it—sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

WALES.

It is with deep regret we chronicle the death of one who was, up to a short time ago, one of our most respected citizens, in the person of Wilson J. Morgan, son of the late Gilbert Morgan. The deceased had been living for the past few years in Massena, N.Y., where he was employed as a foreman in the large Aluminum plant of that place. About two weeks ago he was taken to the Cornwall General Hospital, having contracted typhoid fever of a very malignant type. Everything possible was done for him, but on Sunday morning he was released from his sufferings. The funeral service was held at St. [illegible]urch here on Tuesday. Twenty-five years ago it was difficult to sell spring wheat flour for pastry at any price.

People didn't want it—they were using soft, winter wheat flour, and saw no reason for changing.

But hard wheat flour was persistently pushed. The women tried it and succeeded with it,—to-day hard wheat flour is the favorite for Pastry as well as for Bread.

Ogilvie's Royal Household

is hard wheat flour at its best—milled by modern methods, retaining all of the good of the wheat. It is without an equal for every kind of baking in which flour is used. 16

EXTEND THE TIMBER AREAS

Canadian Forestry Association Would Adopt Scientific Methods.

"Let us not only carefully conserve the timber we have, but let us by systematic and scientific methods extend our timber areas for the benefit of generations to come, and for the good of the nation."

This was the keynote struck repeatedly at the meeting of the Canadian Forestry Association, held in Convocation Hall, Toronto, last week. Speaker after speaker told of the plans pursued in his part of the Dominion to bring this result about.

DRAIN THE BOG LANDS.

For years Mr. Macoun has studied the forest problem in the Canadian northland, and his plea was "Drain the bog lands."

"Between Hudson Bay and the Mackenzie River there are as many acres of bog land as of growing timber," he said. "I have seen myself that with slight drainage timber begins to grow in these areas. In one place a branch of the Canadian Northern Railway has been run through this bog, draining the right of way. What has been the result in the forest? Timber has grown plentifully along the track in the drained area. West of Winnipeg, where the C. P. R. has drained, you find the same thing, the closer to the track you come, that is to say, the better the drainage is, the better is the timber.

FOREST RESERVES INADEQUATE.

Dean Fernow of the Faculty of Forestry at the university and Mr. R. H. Campbell, Dominion Superintendent of Forestry, urged that the present forest reserves were not sufficiently great; the increasing demand meant that there must be an increasing supply, and this could be obtained only by a larger area devoted to the growing of timber.

NEED OF LECTURES.

Mr. W. B. Snowball, president of the association, urged that the Government send lecturers into different parts of the country to explain the necessity of forest conservation. Each Province should have its forest areas surveyed; more careful watch should be kept for fires; and the public should not be allowed into the forest reserves without a permit.

"The Americans want our pulpwood to save their own," he said. "We want their mills, not only to increase our industrial employment, but so that they will have a large investment depending on our forests, and thus give them an interest with us in conserving them."

"The cutting and exporting of timber in Nova Scotia has reached its limit. The increased value of timber is drawing too heavily on the Provinces' already diminished supply, and a policy of afforestration is very badly needed," was the message of Mr. F. C. Whitman, president of the Western Nova Scotia Lumberman's Association.

GET AFTER FIRE STARTERS.

Mr. A. T. Drummond asked greater severity in dealing with persons guilty of carelessness in starting fires. He would see imprisonment imposed instead of a fine in such cases. He would see the same scientific treatment of our forests as that employed nowa-days in Washington.

President Falconer, of Toronto University, pointed out that the number of students in the Department of Forestry was the same today as the numbers registered in science thirty years ago.

MONEY IN FORESTS AND MINES.

Mr. Aubrey White, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests, of Ontario, went over the history of timber regulations in this Province. Revenues of $50,250,000 had gone into the Provincial Treasury from forests and mines. North of the height of land he believed Ontario's greatest timber wealth lay to-day. Up there were 250 million cords of pulpwood. Next summer the National Transcontinental Railway would go through there, and unless the greatest care were taken it would be a line of fire. There was a thirty-year supply on hand, an asset of three hundred and ten millions of dollars.

Dean Fernow replied that thirty years meant only thirty years, and at the end of that time there would still be the demand for timber. It was easy to theorize, practice was a different thing.

THE MILITIA CAMPS.

Summer Drill will be Held This Year, as Usual.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The fear expressed in some quarters that the cutting down of the militia estimates this year by $340,000 on the item for annual drill, as compared with the expenditure for the same purpose last year, means a curtailment of the number of men to be drilled in the annual camps next summer, is not borne out by the facts. The decrease in the item is due to the fact that this year there will not be the expense of a military display involved in the Quebec Tercentenary last year. For 1906-07 the whole militia force was drilled for $650,000, and in 1905-6 for $600,000. This year the appropriation is $860,000, which will be ample for all requirements.

THE MAYOR DROPPED DEAD.

Mr. W. E. Stevens Expired Suddenly at Aylmer.

A despatch from Aylmer says: Mayor W. E. Stevens dropped dead on Monday evening while opening a tea meeting in the Methodist church here. His Worship, who was to preside, had just begun a congratulatory address when he was seen to stagger and fall on the platform. Friends rushed to his assistance, and he was carried to the lecture-room, where Dr. Clark pronounced him dead. Death was due to heart failure. Mrs. Stevens and her daughters were in the audience, and the sudden death of Mayor Stevens occasioned a good deal of excitement. The audience was dismissed immediately.

LADY CASHIER WAS ROBBED.

Young Woman in Montreal Store Knocked Senseless.

A despatch from Montreal says: One of the most daring and sensational robberies ever perpetrated in this city took place on Friday afternoon in H. A. Wilder's departmental store. The cashier, a young lady named Miss Damour, was making up her cash in order to go to the bank when a man crept up behind her desk, hit her a blow with his fist, grabbed $100 and escaped. OVER 300 PEOPLE PERISH

An Appalling Calamity in the City of Acapulco, Mexico

A despatch from Mexico City says: Between 250 and 500 people were burned to death and many were injured in a fire which destroyed the Flores Theatre in the city of Acapulco on Sunday night. The news of the disaster reached this capital on Monday afternoon, telegraphic communication with Acapulco having been destroyed on Sunday night owing to the fact that the telegraph office adjoining the theatre was burned and all wires put out of commission.

The Flores Theatre was a wooden structure, and on Sunday night over 1,000 people crowded into it to witness a special performance given in honor of Governor Damian Flores of the State of Guerrera, who was visiting the city at the time.

One of the numbers on the programme consisted of a series of moving pictures. While the operator was exhibiting these a film caught fire and a blaze was quickly communicated to some material which had been used for decorative purposes. In an incredibly short time the flames spread to all parts of the structure. There were but three narrow exits, and the panic-stricken audience rushed to them, many falling, to be crushed to death, their bodies choking the way of escape to others.

The screams of those imprisoned were terrifying, but owing to the rapidity with which the fire spread and its intense heat it was impossible to attempt rescue work, and those imprisoned with literally roasted alive, as the fire burned with little smoke and few were suffocated.

DENIED HIS GUILT.

Last Words of Stephen Swyryda Before Hanging.

A despatch from Brampton says: Stephen Swyryda, Galician, was hanged on Thursday morning in the jail yard here at 8 o'clock. At 8.12 the jail physician, Dr. D. Heggie, pronounced the man dead. Swyryda's last words were uttered in the corridor after his hands had been manacled behind his back and after he had bidden farewell to his confessors and others. They were: "Please, people, I no guilty. I may be guilty before people, but not before God." At 8.30 the body was placed in a coffin and viewed by Coroner Lawson's jury, who afterwards returned the customary verdict. The body was interred later on in a grave dug in the north corner of the jail yard.

BOMB FOR LORD MINTO.

Attempt to Take Viceroy's Life Near Calcutta.

A despatch from Calcutta says: A bomb was thrown at a railroad train near Barrackspur, fifteen miles north of here, on Wednesday evening, and on Thursday an investigation resulted in the suspicion that the act was an attempt upon the life of Lord Minto, the Viceroy of India. The Viceroy was due to pass this spot on his way to Assam, but it so happened that he was on another train. The explosion of the [illegible] did not result in injury [illegible]
