"Cancer Can Be Beaten," a slogan of the Canadian Cancer Society will be brought to the attention of Canadians beginning this week, as the Society kicks-off this year's fund raising campaign.

Over 120,000 canvassers will be calling on homes and businesses throughout Canada to raise the $6,770,000 objective. Ontario's objective is $3,900,000, and the Dundas County Branch has an objective of $10,000.

What Next?

The happenings of recent months have left the "every-day Joe" in a state of shock and confusion.

The War measures Act is just now having opinions formulated, at the local level, as to it's validity. At the time of the Quebec dilemma the majority of the populace were in favour of the move. Now with a seeming lack of retention, we hear much criticism of the Liberal Government, for the move. The supposed 'peanut' that was cracked by a 'sledge hammer' could have developed into a very serious situation. Mr Trudeau and company we still support your handling of a ticklish situation.

The raising of unemployment benefits to one hundred dollars a week maximum, we question. In some cases, where needed, the benfit is justified. Unemployment insurance should aid the 'needy not the greedy.'

An honourable member of parliament informs the faithful that firms being squeezed by the increase in the minimum wage, if unable to pay, should be out of business. The honourable member is much too far removed from the scene in rural Eastern Ontario. A bit smaller bite by the government both federal and provincial, from the businessman's working dollar, would leave him with a greater profit, which in turn could be passed on to his employees.

If Prime Minister Trudeau's use of vulgar language is only to create sensationalism, and not a slip in heated debate, we are not in favour. The repeating of the statements in a widely read weekly magazine, is inexcusable. It leaves us unimpressed.

The yo-yo stock market, the depressing unemployment situation, the decline in moral behaviour, makes for a cloudy view as we look for a 'silver lining'.

Lengthened Life Span

The principal reason for overpopulation is , of course, the achievement of a low death rate. Even the poorest government is rich enough to provide its subjects with a substantial measure of death control. International agencies and the governments of the affluent nations have been delighted to act as Good Samaritans in providing disease-fighting programmes. As a result, a Stone Age people can be endowed with a low 20th century death rate within a few years.

But the pressure of population in countries not ready for it causes suffering, unrest and poltical instability. Capital formation, industrialization, education, the opening up of new areas of cultivation: all are needed, but they cannot come in time to cope with the demands of population inreasing at its present rate.

There are people at the older end of the life scale to be counted. In both developed and developing countries the average length of life has steadily increased over man's previous history only a recent decades. Through all of fraction of the babies born had grown to maturity; now, in the industrial countries of the west, only five per cent die before adulthood, and many live into old age.

In the late mediaeval period (the 14th and 15th centuries) the life expectancy in England was about 27 years. At the end of the 17th century and during most of the 18th it was about 31 years in England, France and Sweden, and in the first half of the 19th century it advanced to 41 years. Today's expectation of life at birth in Canada is 68.35 years for males and 74.17 years for females.

Tax tips

Q. I receive as part of my income the United States Security Pension. Do I have to include this as part of my taxable income in Canada?

A. Yes. The United States Social Security Pension forms part of your taxable income in Canada.

Q. My wife and I were separated last year. What personal exemptions from income tax are allowable in the year of separaton?

A. If there was no court order or written separation agreement, you would be entitled to whatever personal exemptions you could have claimed had you continued to live together. However, if there was a court order or written separation agreement, you would be entitled to deduct in that year either the payments made under the order or agreement, or the exemptions you could have claimed if you were not separated, but not both. The exemption you are entitled to claim for supporting your wife in the year of separation is not affected by any income received by your wife after the separation.

Q. How do I report rental income, and which tax return should I use, the T1 short or the T1 general.

A. You should use the T1 general tax return. Rental income should be reported in the space provided on page 2. Attach to your return a separate statement of the rental income and the expenses. Allowable expenses would include such things as mortgage interest, fire insurance, municipal taxes and repairs paid on the property as well as capital cost allowance. For information on your claim for deductions, you get in touch with your District Taxation Offfice.

Q. My house is in my wife's name. Recently we moved into an appartment and rented the house. Do I consider that the rent is her income for income tax purposes?

A. If you provided the funds to buy the house, the rent from the house is your income and should be reported by you. If however the house was purchased with funds provided by your wife, the rept would be your wife's income and should be reported on her income tax return. If you both provided the funds, the income should be split between you for tax purposes.

Q. My mother, aged 63, has an income of under $950 and I contribute to her support. On the tax form I see I must state whether she is infirm. My mother is very well for her age, but could not possibly take a job. What exactly is meant by infirmity?

A. "Infirmity" is not define and atfor purposes of the Income Ta late Act but is taken to mean a dedgree of physical or mental in firmity which prevents a perso a from being gainfully employed. Your mother would be accepted as having this degree of infirmity solely because of her age.

Q. I have agreed to work in the United States for my employer for a period of three years. Can Canada Pensoin contributions be continued on my behalf?

A. Under certain circumstances employment outside of Canada by a Canadian employer can be covered. You should contact the nearest Taxation Office with the full particulars for further information.

Ann Landers...

Dear Ann Landers: Mike and I went together for six years. We planned on being married. One evening I learned he was sleeping with someone. (Besides me.) I was crushed. It seemed as if my whole world crumbled. I told him I never wanted to see him again.

We stayed apart for six months. Then one day he called. He asked if I would see him — just to talk. It was a heavenly reunion. I knew I had never stopped loving him. He said he felt the same about me and asked for another chance. I said yes. So now we are back together again and plan to be married in July.

The problem is that I can't trust him. Whenever he calls and says he must work or do something for his boss I have the feeling he is lying — that he's actually cheating on me again. I find myself checking up on him and I hate myself for doing it.

Will I ever get over this horrible suspiciousness? You say it's the woman's place to forgive and forget. I have been able to forgive, but I can't seem to forget. Can you help me? — Mexico, Rose

Dear Rose: I've said it before and I'll say it again, the woman who is constantly checking on her man will not make him more honest, she will simply make him more inventive. It's a fact of life that when a woman builds a better mousetrap, nature breeds a smarter mouse.

The sweetheart or husband who is intent on slipping his collar will manage to do so. No amount of supervision will deter him. The trick is to keep him so contented (or tired) that he won't want to roam.

Dear Ann Landers: Please say something in your column about women who make daily phone calls to friends and ask, "What's new?" It took me a long time to figure these cuties out. They are nothing but gossipmongers. I get mad at myself when I recall how dumb I used to be. I'd try my darnedest to think up juicey little tidbits to liven up the conversaton. But no more. Now when someone calls me and asks, "What's new?" I reply, "Not a blamed thing. What's new with you "You'd be surprised at how that responce shortens the conversation. They get off the line in no time flat — calling up the nert sucker.

You're good at passing the word, Ann. Pass this one, will you? — Mrs Know Nothing Of Tulsa

Dear Mrs K. N.: Consider it passed, honey. And now, if you SHOULD hear of something new — write again, will you?

Dear Ann Lander: Like you, I do not drink. Like you, I am often surrounded by people who do. It used to be a problem — getting drinkers to leave me alone at a party. I became weary of carrying decoys — ginger ale I didn't want, or water with a cherry in it. After awhile I became annoyed with myself for pretending. I solved the problem with one simple sentence. Here it is "I have never known a person with so many brains that he could pickle part of them in alcohol." After that little salvo the lushes leave me pretty much alone. Try it, Ann. — Success It's Beautiful

Dear Beautiful: I don't need to, thanks. I just tell the lushes that if I don't mind them getting smashed, they shouldn't mind my not getting smashed. It works just as well.

O.P.P. REPORT

Ontario has had a long cold winter; early frosts and record snowfalls. In many ways this has been a boon for those enjoying outdoor recreation activities. These ideal winter conditions for some have also created extremely dangerous ice conditions on many lakes and rivers. Smaller lakes, protected from heavy winds, froze over before the first snowfall. Snow followed quickly with sufficient depth to act as insulation preventing the usual buiild-up of ice in spite of extremely cold temperatures. Consequently, many Ontario lakes have been unsafe for snowmobiling or even travel by foot. During the next month increased hours of day light and warmth of sun will increase the flow of water and currents which will bring even greater hazards.

Snowmobilers who have been using trails over ice-covered lakes are urgently warned not to take these trails for granted during the next month. Check ice conditions and depth frequently; in fact, every time you go out on ice is advisable. At the first sign of ice honeycombing or reducing in depth, forget about lake travel and stay with land trails.

Ontario Provincial Police in Dundas County patrolled 11,056 miles while working 1,013 hours. During this period 28 charges and 61 warnings were issued under the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario.

Officers from Morrisburg Detachment investigated 5 thefts, 7 break and enters, 1 disturbance and 21 miscellaneous complaints.

Two persons were charged under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario while one other person was charged with driving an uninsured vehicle. Two stolen vehicles were recovered.

As a result of an intensive investigation by Provincial Constables Brian Jeffrey and John Goalen, 1 person has been charged with rape while three others have been charged with attempting to commit rape.

Area highways were busy with officers investigating 6 property damage accidents and 1 personal injury accident in which 2 persons received minor injuries. Damage to property as a result of these accidents was estimated at $3,500.00.

Provincial Court was quiet with officers spending 16 hours in court while registering 36 convictions.

Convention topic • Improving County Fairs

Judges at local fairs should talk to no one, never mingle with exhibitors, ringmasters or competitors, and make sure all contests end at a reasonable hour each day.

Mr M. L. "Tory" Gregg of London, Southwestern Ontario's "Mr Master of Ceremonies" for county and local fairs, told delegates to the 71st Annual Convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies in Toronto, February 25, that judges could only perform efficiently if supported rather than harassed by local committee members or others associated with a fair.

Mr Gregg was one of a panel of experts called to discuss the improvement of larger fairs and exhibitions in 1971. He said a courteous welcome to patrons, efficient parking, controlled supervision of the midways, a rigid timetable, an attractive fairground, and a schedule that ended in time for visitors to get home to do the chores were all factors contributing to a successful fair.

Discussing livestock classes, Mr Gregg said, "Eliminate those who don't show up on time. It throws off a schedule and chaos results. Set a time for starting and stick to it. Don't let the exhibitors and competitors run the fair. Make the fair run them."

When questioned on whether fines should be levied on those arriving late to a class, Mr Gregg said it would depend on the circumstances. "You can't fine a man whose truck breaks down a hundred miles from the fair", he said, and left such decisions up to the local committee.

The two-day convention, sponsored by the Agricultural and Horticultural Societies Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, reviewed all types of fairs and exhibitions held in Ontario. Other suggestions presented at the meeting were:

1 Promote exhibits where people are working - "live exhibits" will draw crowds.

2 Keep midway noise down so that all results and timetable schedules are heard clearly.

3 Conduct livestock and other classes in front of the grandstand so that as many as possible see the animals.

4 Use the money provided to build and maintain clean washrooms and spectator facilities.

5 Dress up every fairground. Make the fair a holiday outing for patrons.

The Maple Syrup Season - Spring Returns

Longer days and milder temperatures herald the return of spring and with it, the maple syrup season. Maple syrup season gives many people a chance to get out into the country to various festivals and see how the traditional treat is prepared.

Maple syrup is exclusively North American, produced in states and provinces surrounding the Great Lakes and St Lawrence basins. In the U. S., this includes 11 of the northeastern states, as far west as Minnesota, and, in Canada, the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

Smiling faces and sticky fingers - a sure sign that the maple syrup season has arrived. These children couldn't wait for maple syrup or maple taffy, sap straight from the trees does for now.

Maple syup has been known since the days of the earliest settlers, and undoubtedly originated with the Indians. One legend claims that maple syrup was discovered long ago when some braves were practicing tomahawk throwing. One is said to have hit a maple tree, and from the gash flowed a clear liquid. An Indian woman on her way to get water rested by the tree and saw the liquid collected on a piece of bark. Instead of continuing to the spring for water, she returned with the liquid and used it to cook her venison. Her brave was delighted with the taste of the meat, and was told about the "sweet water" from the tree. The sap of the maple continued to be known as sweet water and was often used to cook meat.

For the early Canadian settler, maple syrup and products like maple butter and maple sugar and taffy were a welcome source of sugar. Sap as it comes from the tree contains an average of about 2.4% sugar. It takes approximately 35 gallons of this sap to make a gallon of maple syrup. The entire process consists of evaporating the excess water. By law maple syrup may be called maple only when it contains a maximum of 35% water.

Modern technology has made inroads in even the most traditional events, and sugaring time is no exception. Originally the sap was collected in birch bark buckets. Later a trough made from a log was used, then wooden and finally metal buckets. Today a modern producer uses a network of plastic pipes to gather the sap directly from the trees into a storage tank.

Sap evaporation methods have also changed. Early settlers found the Indians throwing hot stones into a wooden trough filled with sap. The early settlers used large iron kettles, then a flat-bottomed pan with an enclosed fire box. The modern evaporator consists of a flue pan and a flat pan set over an arch made of metal or cinder block. Even the fuel source is changing. Usually it is wood which is readily available. However, high labor costs made wood very expensive, so more producers are changing to oil-fired stoves.

In 1968, Canada produced about 3 million gallons of maple syrup. Ontario's share amounted to about 10%. However, the Ont-

A by-law for requiring and regulating connecting to the sanitary sewer system in the Village of Chesterville.

WHEREAS the Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1960, Chapter 249, Section 379, Subsection (1) paragraph 69 and 72 authorizes the council of a municipality to pass a by-law to make regulations for sewage deemed necessary for sanitary purposes;

AND WHEREAS by-law No. 17-70 prohibits and regulates the discharge of domestic sewage and industrial wastes into any land drainage works, drains, or place draining to or connecting with any water course or storm sewer.

NOW THEREFORE the council of the Corporation of the village of Chesterville enacts as follows:

(1) Any property owner whose sewage, or outfalls from septic tank systems, flows into the storm sewers, into any drainage works, or into any water course must connect to the sanitary sewer system on or before August 31st, 1971.

(2) All new buildings requiring sewage disposal must connect to the sanitary sewer system where the sanitary sewer main passes along the property or where connection to the sanitary sewer main is practical. Council decision is final.

(3) Land owners are required to close or fill up water closets, privies, privy vaults, wells or cesspools, the continuance of which may, in the opinion of the council or the medical health officer be dangerous to health.

Penalties apply as outlined in the Public Health Act.

By-Law read and passed this 22nd day of March, 1971.

In loving memory of a dear father Stanley Barkley who passed away April 4, 1971.

Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest
And those who think of him today
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave
May wither and decay
But the love for him who lies beneath
Will never fade away.

WHITTAKER — In loving memory of my dear husband Leslie Whittaker, who passed away April 3rd, 1970.

God saw you getting weary
So He did what He thought best
He came and stood beside you
And whispered "come to rest"
You wished no one a last farewell
Nor even said good-bye
You had gone before I knew it
And only God knows why.
What I would give if I could say
Hello dear in the same old way
To hear your voice and see you smile
To sit with you and talk a while.

There is nothing so treasured,
And nothing so rare,
As the love that a Brother,
And Sister could share.
Through Joy and through laughter,
Through sorrow and tears,
They develop a closeness,
That grows through the years.
This love, that they share,
Doesn't need to be spoken,
Its a wonderful bond,
That can never be broken.

MAPLE SYRUP —

ario Department of Lands and Forests estimates we have about 70 million tappable trees. At present, only about a million are tapped. Walt Humphries, the maple syrup extension specialist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, says this potential means production could easily quadruple without making a significant dent in the vast resource.

When the sap starts flowing, usually in early April, it is the occasion for maple syrup festivals which attract thousands. There, the visitors can eat pancakes topped with butter and maple syrup or buy syrup, sugar or taffy made right on the spot.

The largest maple syrup festival, in Ontario is held in Elmira near Kitchener-Waterloo. Last year about 40,000 visitors attended. As well as consuming the delicious products, they have an opportunity to see how they are made, and perhaps even participate in an old-fashioned taffy-pull!

For those people who need an excuse to spend a sun-filled day in the country, the first week-ends in April are ideal. As well as food and fun they give the added benefit of participation in a page of Canada's history.

Weddings Of Interest . . .

Hummel - Lannin

Winchester United Church, decorated with white satin bows, was the setting for the marriage of Bonnie Belle Lannin, daughter of Mr and Mrs Wilfred A. Lannin and Steven George Hummell, son of Mr and Mrs George Hummell of Chesterville on Saturday, March 13, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev Angus MacDonald officiated at the ceremony, while Mrs Jessie Fetterly played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor length gown of white velvet and a matching chapel train flowed softly from the waistline. A flowered crown held in place her shoulder length veil of Tulle illusion. She carried a cascade of red roses and white carnations.

The maid of honour, Judy Goddard, wore a floor length gown of velvet and carried a white fur muff accented by a single orchid. The bridesmaids, Jackie Hummell, Susan Hummell, Heather Lannin and flowergirl, Tracy Lee Burnside were dressed alike in floor length gowns of maroon velvet and carried white fur muffs accented with one red rose. Their headpieces were white velvet bows.

Mr Henry Humbeault assisted the groom as best man for the occasion. The guests were ushered to their seats by Brian Lannin, Clifton Cheney and Gerald Helmer. The ringbearer, Sean Burnside, was attired in identical colour and material as the attendants of the bride and carried a pillow of satin and lace.

The reception was held at the Chesterville Legion Hall, where the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a red navy and white two piece ensemble, highlighted with accessories of tinted carnations. The mother of the groom was attired in a two piece turquoise brocade ensemble with black accessories and a corsage of tinted blue and purple carnations.

Master of Ceremony for the occasion was Mr Hank Voerman, of Brockville.

For a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride chose a blue pantsuit with midi length vest and a corsage of red roses.

Upon their return, Mr and Mrs Hummell will take up residence in Napanee.

Out of town guests were from Dryden, Brockville, Ottawa, Quebec, Kemptville and Belleville.

The marriage of Betty Lou, daughter of Mr and Mrs Dalton Casselman, Chesterville, to Roger Lawrence Cole, son of Mr Lawrence Cole, Bloomfield, Ont., took place in Trinity United Church on Friday, February 19, 1971. Rev. L. M. Ferguson officiated at the ceremony.

Farm Service

Estate planning for Farm People

(2nd in a series)
by
J. W. McCullough,
Farm Management Specialist

Last week in this column you read about the importance of estate planning. That is was a continuing thing that required changes frequently as the business developed. It was suggested the first thing to do was to figure out where you are at now. Think in terms of what you would likely be able to pass on to your survivors in the event you were to die tomorrow.

Value all your property at a fair market value — what it would sell for rather than what you would like it to bring. Include everything you own, and your interest in any property jointly owned with some other person. Don't forget to include any money owed to you, and to subtract anything you owe to others.

You must include the value of any life insurance owned by you on your life, or jointly with someone else if it is payable to your estate if you die. This means if it is payable to your wife or children, too — provided you own or control the policy. If you have savings, a retirement fund or a pension plan (including Canada Pension) the proceeds are valued as part of your estate.

And in case you decide to give it away, any gifts made within three years prior to your death must be added. If you have made gifts to take effect after your death these must also be included. And in case you think of something that has been missed you might as well include it since there are few loopholes.

Probably a second step in estate planning is to try to decide what you want to do. What needs to be done. You certainly will be thinking about providing security for your old age. You may need to provide a chance for your son or son-in-law to take over the home farm. You may be thinking too as to how you can treat all members of the family fairly. You will certainly think about how you can keep those death taxes to a minimum. And depending on your age, your main concern may be to simply provide enough protection for your wife and family to cover all existing debts and provide for their welfare till the children are educated at least.

A family conference is often a good idea at this time. Discuss with other members of your family where you are at and what you are trying to do. You need to be sure their aims fit in with yours. Why spend time trying to figure out how and when you will transfer your farm to your son if he really doesn't want to farm at all.

There are many sides to estate planning. Since making a will is basic to everything, let's discuss it first.

You might ask yourself why it is that many people neglect to make a will. You have heard of the difficulties it causes to die without one and can likely think of several people you know who made this mistake recently. There is a long delay in settling things. There are disputes, arguments and hard feelings. There is the added cost involved, far more than the costs of making a will. Then, too, the laws of the country have a set way of disposing of the estate of a person who dies without a will.

Both husband and wife should have a will. Usually, this means the entire estate is left to each other with the provision for what happens in case of a common calamity. This is fine as long as estates are fairly small. But when you become subject to estate taxes there are often better ways. Experts tell us that in leaving a $100,000 estate where it goes first to the wife and then to two children, that the kind of will you make can mean up to the difference of $8,000 in estate taxes alone.

Fortunately, there are people who can provide excellent and expert advice. Drawing a will is a job for a lawyer. You may be tempted to pick up a simple will form in a bookstore and do it yourself. My advice would be avoid this temptation. It is too risky.

Trust companies are often very well equipped to advise you in this area of estate planning. Many of them have specialists in this field. Naturally, they will expect to become executors of your estate iff they provide help, but this could be a real good idea too.

So the point is that a properly drawn will is most mportant. It needs to be reviewed regularly. If you don't — do it now.

KITCHEN CORNER

Honey

Honey is a natural sweetener that offers nutritious, easily digested quick sources of energy. As well as simple sugars, honey contains at least eight minerals, some vitamins and traces of protein.

There are many kinds of honey, each as different in colour, flavour, and aroma as the flavours of nectars which were collected. The four different colours of Ontario honey are white, golden, amber and dark.

Although honey has a naturally long shelf life, the keeping qualities are extended further by pasteurization, most honey sold in Ontario is pasteurized and is labeled as such. Store honey in a tightly covered container, in a dry place, at room temperature. The container must be tightly covered to protect honey from off flavours and moisture.

2 3-oz. packages cream cheese

Flour board, roll out dough 1/8 inch thick, large enough to line bottom and 1 inch up sides of 8 x 8 x 2 inch bakng dish. Line pan and trim sides to 1 inch so they are even.

In a small bowl, with electric mixer, blend cream cheese and granulated sugar and eggs until light. Add honey and ½ tsp. cinnamon; mix well. Spread mixture over dough; sprinkle with 1 tbsp. sugar mixed with ¼ tsp. cinnamon. Bake about 30 minutes until golden brown.

This helps prevent crust from becoming sogy. Scald milk and add honey and salt. Add to beaten eggs and vanlla. Strain mixture into pie shell. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake n very hot oven, 450 degrees for the first 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake about 25 minutes or until centre of filling ts jus set

Honey Salad Dressing

¼ cup honey
¼ cup lemon juice
½ cup syrup from canned peaches or pears
3 tbsp. salad oil
¼ tsp. salt
dash of dry mustard

1 cup honey
3 eggs, well beaten
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups sifted pastry flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 cups pitted dates, cut up
1 cup chopped nuts
1/3 cup finely granulated sugar

Combine honey, eggs and vanilla, beat well. Sift together dry ingredients and stir into first mixture; stir in dates and nuts. Spread batter into greased 13" x 9" x 2" pan. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees, 40 to 45 minutes. Cool a little in the pan, then cut in 3" x 1" bars; roll in sugar. Makes 39 bars.
