

Pretty Wedding at St. Columban's

Baskets of white gladioli decorated St. Columban's Church in Cornwall, when Rev. George Maloney solemnized the marriage vows exchanged between Gloria Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Richmond of Williamsburg and Gary Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred J. McNulty of Cornwall in a double ring ceremony at 11 a.m. on Saturday, October 4th.

Mrs. Mary Parisien played the wedding music. The ushers were Maynard and Raymond Richmond, brothers of the bride. Gary Elderbrook assisted his cousin as best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, George. The bride wore a fitted floor length gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with square neckline, lily-point sleeves and a bouffant skirt. A shoulder length veil was held in place by a halo of crystal-like aurora borealis and white roses. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and miniature white carnations.

The bride wore crystal tear drop earrings, a gift from the groom.

Attending the bride were Evelyn Richmond as maid of honour, Debbie McNulty and Beverly Richmond as bridesmaids and Carolyn Cross, niece of the bride as flower girl. The maid of honour and flower girl wore identical empire waisted gowns of peacock blue chiffon and lace over taffeta. They had ribbon roses in their hair and carried bouquets of white and tinted blue poms. The two bridesmaids wore similar empire waisted gowns of Autumn gold chiffon-lace over taffeta with ribbon roses in their hair and carried bouquets of white and gold tinted poms.

Mother of the bride chose a Wedgewood blue crepe line suit and white accessories with corsage of white and blue tinted carnations. Mother of the groom chose a blue and silver brocade dress and matching coat and white accessories with a corsage of white and blue tinted carnations.

Guests were present from Toronto, Rexdale, Thornhill, Barrie, Lancaster, Cornwall, Chesterville, Morrisburg, Sanfordville, N.Y., and Williamsburg.

Following the ceremony a dinner reception was held at McDonnell's Inn in Cornwall. For a wedding trip to Western Ontario the bride travelled in a curly brown, virgin wool suit with a mink collar and a corsage of bronze and yellow mums. On their return Mr. and Mrs. McNulty will reside on Victoria St., Winchester.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honoured at two miscellaneous showers. One at St. John Bosco hall in Cornwall, given by friends and hosted by Mrs. Molly Lalonde.

One in Williamsburg at the home of Mrs. Charles Pitts, for friends and neighbours. Hostesses were Misses June and Janet Pitts.

Geese Arriving in Large Numbers

For those interested in the fall migration of Canada Geese now is the time to visit the Wildfowl Sanctuary.

Arriving in greater numbers as each day passes these beautiful and graceful birds glide in low over the tree tops assured by some inner instinct of food shelter and above all safety.

During the past eleven years countless thousands of Canada Geese have found a haven in both their spring and fall migrations at the Upper Canada Wildfowl Sanctuary which is for most of them an overnight stop on a journey of thousands of miles.

"Corn on the cob" is served every afternoon around 2:30. Word must get around pretty fast in wildfowl circles. Each day as feeding time draws near wild geese move into the feeding area affording a beautiful view for visitors who are often as close as a hundred feet.

Considerable numbers of wild ducks, of which several different kinds have been identified and banded, also get in the act.

The Wildfowl Sanctuary, located south of No. 2 Highway, 15 miles west of Cornwall, is possibly the only place in eastern Ontario where people can enjoy, at leisure, the full spectacle of Canada's national wildfowl during migration.

Many visitors to the Sanctuary bring along binoculars to observe the wild geese in flight as they come in to land. Wild Canada Geese mate for life and it is interesting to watch through binoculars, a flock land and "pair up".

A visit to the Sanctuary is a unique and enjoyable experience for all the family. Don't forget your camera.

St. Paul's L.C.W. Plans Yule Party

Mrs. Graham VanAllen was in charge of the topic at the October meeting of St. Paul's Lutheran Church Women. The Bible reference was the story of Ruth and Naomi. Four modern examples of women facing loneliness were based on "The Woman's Psalm." All members participated in the reading and discussion entitled "Make the Day Bright".

Mrs. Miriam Salmon presided over the devotions and business. The Scripture was read by Mrs. Hugh Shennette.

The altar committee for October is Mrs. Leonard Barkley and Mrs. Beatrice Casselman. For November it will be Mrs. Carman Casselman and Mrs. Jean Cougler.

Special guests at the November meeting will be Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Crober who have recently returned from a tour of England and the mainland of Europe.

A Christmas party is being planned for the December meeting.

Articles are being assembled for packing a dozen Kiddy Kits to be sent to Syria.

As Lutheran World Relief requires tons of soap in Zambia, Africa, to control disease there, it was suggested that the LCW contribute to this urgent appeal. Partly used bars of soap discarded by motels, home-made soap, or money donations are all acceptable.

Woven or knitted ground sheets, lap robes and baby blankets may be made from discarded nylons or patched from warm fabrics.

A report of the 1969 Seaway District Community Service Day Camp, a letter from Stella Carlson who teaches Bible at the Middle School in Hong Kong, and the September issue of "Focus" published by the LCW Eastern Canada Synod, were all passed out to be read by the members.

Rev. F.L. Howard closed the meeting with prayer and Benediction. Lunch was served.

MARRIED RECENTLY AT ST. MARY'S

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Arthur Latour were married recently in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Morrisburg. The bride is the former Miss Carol Jessie Garlough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Garlough of Williamsburg, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Arthur Latour of Mableton, Ontario.

Campaign for Funds by Bible Society

The Annual Campaign for funds for the Canadian Bible Society will be held in Morrisburg and the surrounding area during the week of October 20th, 1969. Plans have been completed to have this Campaign carried out within the week during which time every household will be canvassed.

As the source of supply of Scriptures in the language of people everywhere, the Bible Society strengthens the whole Church in all the world consequently people of all denominations are vitally interested in the work of this Society.

The ministers of our Churches, Laymen representing the various churches, the executive and all members of the local Branch make this urgent appeal to everyone to assist the work of the Society by having their donations ready for our canvassers. Donations should be made to only those canvassers who are equipped to give the properly numbered receipts which can be used for income tax purposes.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM SEAWAY HIGH

HALL-DENNIS DAY
By Steven Haley

What with the increasing social exchange between students and the administration (e.g. Sir George Williams University), it was only a matter of time before a confrontation of sorts took place at Seaway.

Last Wednesday saw the first example of this exchange when a majority of the area teachers met to discuss that educational phenomenon called the Hall-Dennis Report. The conference consisted of separate group meetings, a panel discussion of local teachers and students, and a final session to frame recommendations or ideas for the local school system.

To give the conference an air of constructiveness, four students namely Faye McIntosh, Linda LaFortune, Don Delagarde and this reporter were selected to represent the students' side in the matter. From our point of view the entire day was enjoyable, but hopelessly nerve-racking. After seeing nothing but teenagers for so long it was rather awe-inspiring to see so many adults all in one room.

As for the Report itself, it seems unfortunate that such a collection of dreams will never be realized. Instituting a reform to avoid any form of failure will only remove a word, and not a way of life. Introducing a new system that de-emphasizes the cut-throat competition for marks will only attain some meaning when our society de-emphasizes the same type of competition for the almighty dollar.

In short, the Hall-Dennis Report will never be realized as a whole, and unless a lot of red tape suddenly disappears, the many good and bad points of our present school system will be around for a long time. It might even be safe to say that the report will probably be under discussion when today's students are themselves parents.

But the most important thing gained from the conference was that both sides went away with the fact that there was actually some communication between the students and teachers. Lessons were learned, and better sessions will be held in the future but the precedent of breaking the gap was established.

As the week rolled on, more than a few teachers continued to bring up the Report to their classes and students who seldom discuss anything were offering ideas and opinions. A plan for a special meeting between teachers and students was drawn up and for once the week ended with the feeling that something had actually been accomplished.

If this spark of enthusiasm has died by the time this column is seen in print, at least it's nice to know that Seaway's first attempt at crossing the communication gap was a success.

SEAWAY SPORTS

FOOTBALL—

Seaway Spartans lost to North Dundas last Thursday by a score of 6-0. Seaway came close to a touchdown two or three times, but never completed one. Outstanding players were Brian Dowe, Gary Hess and Louis Robney. With only a few minutes left in the game, Louis ran 65 yards towards the offensive, but was tackled. The boys will play their last game against South Grenville in two weeks' time. We hope their spirits haven't sagged for this is only the first year of football for many of them and the first year of Junior Football for Seaway.

SOCCER—

Seaway Soccer team deserves special congratulations for as yet they are undefeated. Seaway emerged victorious over St. Lawrence from Cornwall Thursday last with a 1-0 score. Ron Delagarde kicked Seaway's goal in the first half, and the team held the score there for the remainder of the game. Their next game will be Wednesday against North Dundas at Seaway.

Fatal Accident at Hwy. Intersection

One man was killed and another painfully injured on Thursday in a car-truck collision at the intersection of Highways 31 and 43 just south of Winchester.

At press time police had still not released the name of the dead man believed to be from the Perth district.

Ray Barkley, 30, of Williamsburg was driving the G.M.S. Company egg truck north on Highway when the collision with the car, driven by the victim, occurred.

The egg truck overturned and caught fire. Mr. Barkley is a patient in Ottawa Civic Hospital, suffering from severe burns which it is expected will take some months to heal, as he will be getting skin grafts.

There were 60 crates of eggs in the G.M.S. truck, valued at about $1,000.

Riverside Heights Institute Honors Grandmothers

"Grandmothers' Night" was enjoyed Monday at Riverside Women's Institute meeting held in the Institute Hall. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Garnet Prunner, Mrs. Gerald Link and Mrs. Fred Casselman.

Mrs. Dele Beckstead, president, conducted the meeting when a discussion was held on "Resolutions", with Mrs. Lloyd Smirle convener. The president reported that the local 4-H Club is progressing under the leadership of Mrs. Clare Nugent 14 members are conducting a successful season. Plans were discussed to have the group as guests at a forthcoming meeting of the Institute to demonstrate work being accomplished.

Roll call was answered by each member telling, "The Way I Would Like to Change Society". Plans were finalized for a food sale, tea and bazaar to be held October 29 at St. James Anglican Church Hall, Morrisburg.

The treasurer reported a balance of $129.00 on hand.

It was decided that as many carloads as possible of members be organized to attend the area convention in Cornwall, October 21 and 22.

The meeting concluded with an auction of articles donated by members. Refreshments followed.

Institute Hears Talk on Home Economics

Miss Joyce Bugden, Home Economics graduate from Guelph College addressed Morrisburg Women's Institute on "Home Economics" at the October meeting held in the auditorium of Morrisburg Public School. Miss Bugden, who now teaches at Osgoode High School and who was employed during the past season as an expert in crafts at Upper Canada Village said, "Home Economics has broadened in scope from days when it was merely a training in cooking and sewing, preparatory to marriage."

"Today", she said, "The field has broadened to include activities and resources of the home with wise use and management of things within that field".

The speaker noted that "In Home Economics, today, cooking and sewing are taught as a means to an end. People are taught to develop the intangibles of respect, hope, co-operation, productivity and efficiency in meeting the demands and problems of modern life".

Miss Bugden was introduced by Mrs. Basil Glover, program convener and thanked by Mrs. Gordon Mulholland.

Mrs. Thomas Fraser conducted the meeting assisted by Mrs. Clifford Sykes, acting secretary. Guests were present from Matilda and Elms Institute Branches. Roll call was answered by "What grandmother served to unexpected guests"

Correspondence was read from Winchester Women's Institute inviting members of the Morrisburg and other branches to attend their 50th anniversary celebration. Mrs. Kenneth Beckstead was appointed delegate to the annual area convention to be held at Cornwall October 21 and 22, with Mrs. Oliver Smyth as alternate. As many members as possible were urged to attend the convention when an interesting program will be enjoyed. Mrs. Hugh McMillan, area representative from Elma reported that a second printing of Institute books will be available. It was her suggestion that members attending from this area wear Scottish plaid gowns as a piper and Scottish dancer will be a feature of the occasion.

Mrs. Glover spoke on "Our Blessings" and Miss Linda LaFortune sang two solos.

STUDENT OR TEACHER?

By Anita Valcour and Margaret Smit

His hobbies won't tell. He likes cars, motorcycles and skiing. Although he was a student at Lachine High School and later at Carleton University, now for the first time, Mr. Keithin has joined the teaching staff.

His family, consisting of two younger brothers and his parents, now resides in Montreal. He chose to teach at Seaway because of its convenient location between Ottawa and Montreal.

Believe it or not, he does just as much homework as, or more than, the students. On an average he does thirty minutes per class that he teaches.

On behalf the Seaway Student Body, we wish Mr. Keithin the best of luck this year.

Artificial Land Drainage

The construction of artificial drains is necessary in many areas of the county to increase the production of agricultural soils. Land drainage can be more accurately described as an essential factor in the control of surface and soil water, and soil air for the benefit of the crops growing and thus for the benefit of the farmer.

Many outlet ditches are now being improved by the Townships as a result of petitions from the owners concerned. If these owners are to obtain the maximum return from their investments in the outlet ditches, they must construct drainage channels to move the water from the flat lands and low spots into the outlet ditches. The channels may be shallow surface drains, tile drains, or a combination of both.

Shallow surface drains will prevent ponding of water in low spots and pot-holes in the fields. This reduces drowned out crops, mired down tractors, and costly inconvenience in tillage and cultivation. These drains can be established through the use of a plow, a blade on the tractor, or a road grader. The Dundas Soil and Crop Improvement Association has a pull-type grader, for use with a tractor, available at low cost. Surface drainage removes surface water only but cannot lower the water table below the surface and give the added benefit of soil aeration which tile drainage does.

Tile drains remove the free water from the soil, allowing air to enter the space between the soil particles. Since the roots of agricultural crops require air, they will only grow after the free water disappears. Tile drainage allows crops to develop a deeper root system thus increasing the volume of soil from which roots can obtain food. Until recently tile drainage has been confined to wet lands. More progressive farmers are now tilling higher ground and are finding that the investment made in tile drainage is returning them big dividends.

While research on drainage is still required, enough is known to convince any man that it is a good business investment to drain his land at the earliest opportunity. The effect on his crops and on his net income is known and proven by centuries of actual practices.

The time spent this fall cleaning water furrows and shallow drains will pay big dividends next spring in the removal of excess water that results from the snow melt and the spring rains. Anyone wishing advice or technical assistance in developing a drainage system for his farm can obtain help by applying to the County Agricultural Office.

He needs man-talk

DEAR DORIS — I have just found about a dozen men's magazines that my 17-year-old son had stashed away.

For some time I have been concerned about his behavior. He works on no private projects, seems to be overly embarrassed about anything even mildly related to sex, and his school work could be much better.

I have no one with whom I could feel confident in discussing this problem; most people talk too much. I have no idea where to go from here.

Widow

DEAR WIDOW — Just a normal Canadian boy — in the situation you describe. Your boy needs man-talk and is substituting for it in the one way he can.

I'm betting dollars to doughnuts that you, too, are embarrassed with him when the talk gets around to sex. So he picks up your anxiety. A man could help, in the person of your doctor, or teen's counsellor.

There are books that could guide you into helping him yourself; books that put the right words into your mouth. I'm sending you my recommended list on Sex and Dating. Take the plunge!

DEAR DORIS — I baby-sit for several families. All of them except one or two pay 50 cents an hour and 75 cents after midnight, the going rate. The other families pay 35 cents or less an hour, a cut rate.

I'm sure many other baby sitters have this problem, so I hope the people who pay cut rates will see this and realize that we are not slave laborers.

Underpaid
DEAR UNDERPAID — O.K. Could you clip this and show it to them?

If they trust you with their children, they must feel you do an adequate job. And if they admit that much, you have the right to make an agreement about how much you will work for.

Have an understanding just ahead of taking on the next job for them.

DEAR DORIS — At 50 I am a bundle of nerves. I have a nervous stomach, intense tenseness and now my eyes are affected. With or without glasses my vision is blurred and my eyes hurt and the eyelids are puffed up, itchy, and extremely dry.

I have not had a physical recently. What's the use? Pills won't cure my ills, and apparently there is nothing wrong organically. More than this, I am caught in the dilemma of the work complex.

Does one's eyesight give in as does one's heart or nerves?

Rush Rush

DEAR RUSH RUSH — Eyes do tire, but my ophthalmological consultant says your symptoms sound like more than fatigue. Either your glasses are not correct for you now, or there is something else going on, like high blood pressure.

Sometimes pills we take for stomach trouble blur vision.

Also tranquilizers, or blood pressure medicines, and the effects last up to three weeks from the time of stopping these "ganglion blocking agents."

There may be some link-up between the nerves, the eyes, and the stomach, be it organic or functional. It still hurts either way, and needs treatment — from a medical man.

Meanwhile — slow down before you fall down!

Confidential to Traveller — When travelling by train, you tip the dining car porter 15 percent of the bill; pullman porter 25 to 50 cents for each day's service, plus 50 cents for berth each night. Since you and your friend will be having a bedroom, raise it a little. Taking care of a bedroom involves extra work.

To Moving In — Housewarmings come in several varieties. They are informal, and heartwarming as well as housewarming. The key word is friendliness. And this tells you whom to invite: people who care about you, either in the new or old gang.

Then again they may be surprise affairs, with the new friends ganging up and ringing your doorbell, party sandwiches in hand.

My new leaflet, "Throwing a Housewarming — Or Just Any Party," is on its way to you. (Available to readers for 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope).

Weekly Report

THE DISAPPEARING LANDSCAPE

The spread of Dutch Elm Disease has been more noticeable this summer in Eastern Ontario than ever before. Twenty-five percent of all hardwood growing stock in the Kemptville District is White Elm which the disease is killing. Almost every woodlot contains some elm and many woodlots are pure elm so that there will be great losses of mature timber despite the fact that it is being harvested very heavily at the present time. The greatest loss, which can never be valued in dollars, may be our landscape. In this respect the fencerows all contain some elm because it is a hardy fast growing tree. These fencerows are disappearing very rapidly and many parts of the country already appear quite barren. Perhaps the greatest urban loss will be to many villages and towns where elm predominates the street shade trees.

What will replace this magnificent tree? The species that approaches the same rate of growth and ability to survive on a variety of sites is silver maple. This tree may fill up some of the holes on the fresh to moist sites, especially in woodlots. White ash may fill in the gaps in the fencerows along with sugar maple and basswood.

From a shade tree standpoint silver maple is the fastest growing and will suit many private landowners who have lost their favourite elm tree. Care must be taken on small lots not to plant these forest trees near sewer lines because of possible root damage to the lines. Certainly silver maple can never replace our magnificent fountain shaped elm but by starting now on an active replacement programme, we can certainly fill many of the gaps.

This is a bleak picture as to the future of white elm, however be assured research work is continuing to try and find a cure for the disease. It is also possible that as the stock disappears so will the insects that spread the disease and hence a few scattered elms will remain to hopefully form the nucleus of a new crop.

Ontario's oFrests

Ontario's productive forests cover 164,471 square miles. 48 per cent of the land area; 148,280 square miles are on Crown lands and 16,191 are privately owned.

District Waterfowl Hunting On Opening Day Sept. 27th

With favourable weather and an abundance of waterfowl, hunters enjoyed better than average success in most parts of the district on opening day this year. Comparing the three years, 1967 through 1969, the average bag in birds per hunter was 1.1, 0.9, and 1.4 respectively.

As might be expected, not all areas shared in the better hunting. The Counties of Glengarry, Stormont, and Dundas were below the district average and records show a downward trend in the past three years. Lake St. Lawrence has the dubious distinction of having the poorest hunting of any of the areas checked. If hunting is poor on that lake, it is not for lack of ducks. A count of ducks on the entire lake prior to opening day showed five times the number present a year earlier. Hunters in the area complained that ducks were flying out of range. The hunter success on Lake St. Francis at 1.6 ducks per man day, was still better than the district average, although slightly down from the year previous.

Carillon Provincial Park which is still under development, supports many duck hunters each year. Conservation Officers checked 64 hunters and found 77 ducks for an average of 1.2 ducks per hunter. Elsewhere in Prescott County, the Rigaud River provided excellent shooting with 2.9 ducks per man. Here green-winged teal provided 70 per cent of the kill followed by blue-winged teal 26 per cent and other ducks 4 per cent. If you like teal, this seems like the place to go.

Hunters were generally uniformly successful at 1.2 birds per man over most of Carleton, Lanark, Grenville, and Leeds Counties. Although many pounds are exceptionally low in water this year, hunters still fared well in these spots in most game hangouts from park staff.

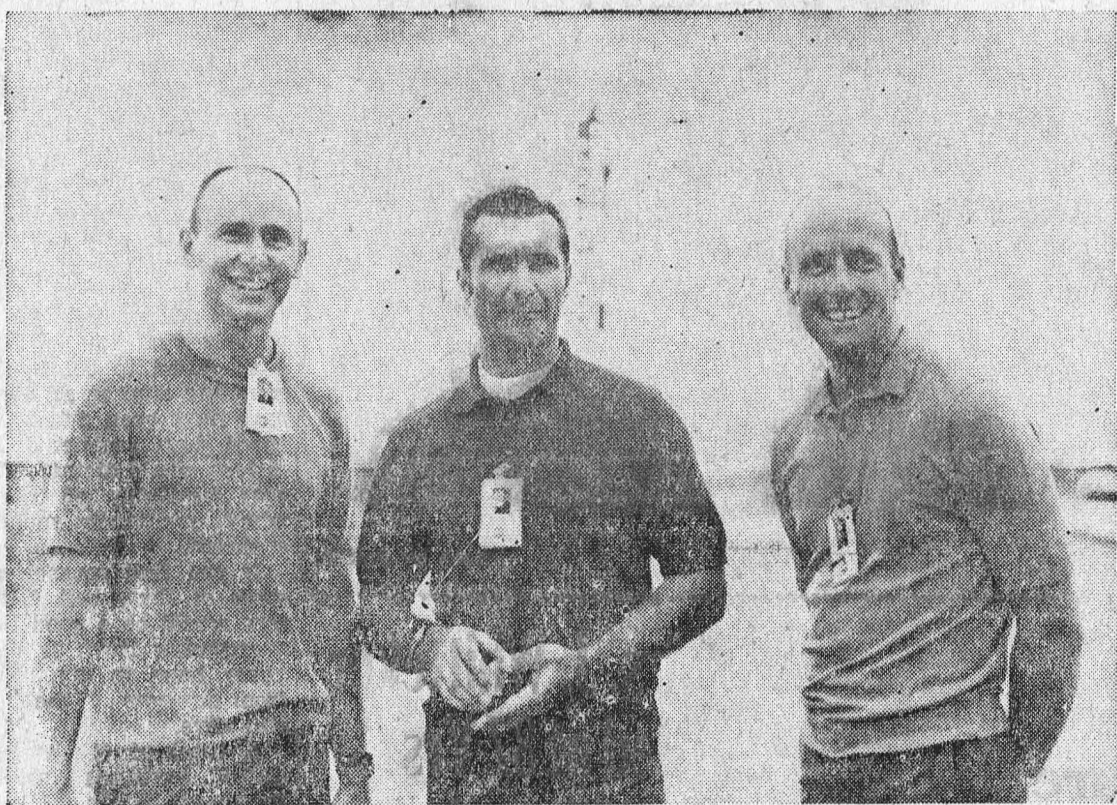

instances. Our information suggests that hunters were particularly successful in Carleton County beaver ponds. Other good spots were Cranberry Lake at 2.4 ducks per hunter and Wiltse Lake and 2.3 ducks per hunter.

In order of abundance in the kill were: Blue-winged teal 25 per cent, Black duck 18 per cent, Mallard 18 per cent, Green-winged teal 13 per cent, Wood duck 12 per cent, Widgeon 5 per cent, Lesser Scaup 2 per cent, American Merganser 2 per cent, Pintail 1 per cent, with other species comprising the remaining 4 per cent.

DISTRICT PARKS REMAIN OPEN

Provincial Parks in this district are now officially closed, but will remain open for public use, with limited facilities available. Certain areas within these parks may be closed for short periods due to maintenance operations or because of poor road conditions caused by weather, etc.

It is contrary to regulations to hunt in a Provincial Park. Sportsmen are urged to obtain information re park boundaries (and local fared well in these spots in most game hangouts) from park staff.

The 'fearless forecast'

The National Hockey season is again upon us, and it is the usual custom of this corner to prognosticate as to how the various teams will survive. And, before we continue, if you are a firm believer in past performance charts, disregard the following.

However, if you tend to stray to the ridiculous side of life, then come aboard and we'll all make a financial killing.

Enough! Enough! I realize the suspense is proving to be too much, so without any more hesitation, here goes the fearless forecast (as they say in the trade).

Boston Bruins will win the Stanley Cup defeating the Los Angeles Kings in five games.

I realize that at this juncture 200,000 bowls of pea soup have been splashed across this column, but nevertheless, just like the spilled soup, Les Habitants will fall.

Undoubtedly an explanation is in order.

Jean Beliveau will have a sub par year — his last. This scribe is now going on record that this year will be Beliveau's final season as a player in the NHL. His varied and lucrative outside interests along with an assortment of injuries will result in his retirement.

The Canadiens will keep Beliveau in the organization as a type of goodwill ambassador with the coaching door being opened in three or four years.

Goaltending will not be consistent. Both Lorne Worsley and Rogation Vachon don't appear to be ready to play up to last year's Vezina style. Worsley looks to be too slow and Vachon's sprawling style only baffles the Toronto Maple Leafs and expansion teams.

Although all star defenseman Ted Green will miss most of the season, and maybe all of it, Boston's young legs and scoring power will offset the loss.

Maturity has been the missing ingredient in the Bruins' championship reign in the past two seasons. This year it's included.

Gerry Cheevers gives Boston excellent goaltending and with Bobby Orr and his talented playmates on defense, Boston's rearguard appears to be the league's best. Up front the goal scoring juggernaut remains led by crafty Phil Esposito.

Detroit Red Wings, if they receive adequate netminding, will surprise and wind up third. Much of their downfall has been a porous defense, but with former Maple Leaf all star Carl Brewer paired with his buddy, Bobby Baun, the Wings should skitter into third.

The big line of Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Frank Mahovlich will win some games without any assistance. A healthy Pete Stenkowski and an improving Gary Unger will also play important roles in the Red Wings' revival.

New York Rangers have excellent balance, but unfortunately, injuries crush this club's momentum throughout the campaign.

New York is always a threat, but injuries which sideline key performers result in sending the Rangers into losing streaks.

Vic Hadfield, Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle form one of the NHL's top attacking units, but from there back it's simply a case of adequate personnel. However, the adequate personnel consist of balance, and that's why you have to give New York fourth spot.

Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs will wage a two-team race for sixth.

Leafs should finish just ahead of the Hawks as Chicago has nothing outside of Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita. Two premier soloists have never been able to drown out a large choir.

Next week the other six teams.

AUTUMN MIGRANTS AT UPPER CANADA BIRD SANCTUARY

Suddenly — without any warning — Out of nowhere — these are typical expressions used by some drivers who have just been involved in an accident. Although the driver may have thought that this accident was caused by an unlucky event, it was probably the result of a long period of preparation and rehearsal.

Quite possibly this same driver had been taking foolish chances while passing other vehicles when the road ahead was not clear. Possibly he was uncertain of the route he was to take which necessitated him to make a sudden turn in front of oncoming traffic. He may also have failed to bring his car to a complete stop at all stop signs. He may have been driving at a faster speed than weather or traffic conditions would dictate. These unsafe acts inevitably led to near-misses, which eventually ended up as an accident.

If you find yourself a victim of some of these bad driving habits, now would be a good time to start overcoming them so that you will never have to say, "But officer, from nowhere..." that is, if you are still alive.

A total of 44 charges were issued and 51 warnings issued by Ontario Provincial Police in Dundas County. During this time, a total of 9272 miles were patrolled by officers while working 958 hours.

Officers from Morrisburg and Winchester Detachments investigated 1 break and enter, 2 thefts, 4 disturbances and 20 miscellaneous complaints. Four persons were charged with break and enter and 1 person was charged with causing a disturbance. Nine persons were charged under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario as a result of officers investigating 8 complaints.

Provincial Police were kept very busy on our highways while investigating 10 property damage accidents and 2 personal injury accidents in which 2 persons received minor injuries.

Provincial Judges Court was quiet last week with officers spending 19 hours in court while registering 46 convictions.

Report from the Ontario Legislature

BY FRED M. CASS, Q.C.

The fall sitting of the Second Session of the present Ontario Legislature has now been under way for a fortnight, with little indication of any change in the attitude of Members. Heated debates have marked discussion of the new OHSIP which came into effect on October 1st last and the House, both in plenary Session and in Committee, has continued to be noisy, wordy and relatively ineffective in transacting the people's business.

While there is a considerable amount of legislation on the Order Paper awaiting action by the House the Government has been concentrating on having Departmental Estimates (for the present year) considered and adopted. This has meant that the Members have been sitting in Committee of the Whole House where debate is free and almost unlimited as to time and content. This has resulted in many rather violent and unnecessary confrontations between strong minded and uninhibited Members to the detriment of the business of the House. Thus in the two weeks so far, the Estimates of the Departments of Financial and Commercial Affairs and of Trade and Development only were completed. Since there are still 14 Departments to be processed, it can easily be surmised that this Session will undoubtedly be prolonged until Christmas at least.

The Report of the Select Committee on Rules and Procedures was presented to the House and now awaits government action. Undoubtedly many of the recommendations of the Committee are sound and long overdue and their adoption would most surely not only expedite the business of the House but assist all Members.

At the present time, there are 2 Dundas County grade 8 boys among the 22 Legislative Pages at Queen's Park — Tom Workman from Winchester and Alan Sharkey from Chesterville. They are following in, and upholding, the tradition of good service established last year by Kenton Peterson of Prescott and Rodney Walker of Kemptonville who were the first boys from our area to serve the Legislature as Pages.

Upon a motion of Hugh McMillan and Hubert Casselman the term for council was extended from 2 to 3 years but will again in 3 years revert back to the two year term. Queen's Park Comment

Since the Government has flatly refused to heed our plea that the Health Estimates be debated as soon as possible in order to give Members of the Legislature the chance to demand changes in the OHSP scheme, we have therefore moved to the nitty-gritty of the estimates of the Department of Trade and Development.

The man in charge of that department, Stanley Randall, has, as most people know, quite a reputation as a high pressure salesman. He spends a great deal of his time travelling the world attempting to convince businessmen that they should locate in Ontario. This, of course, is a very laudable effort, and although there are times when the Minister gets carried away with his "forgivable" loans to certain industries, nonetheless I think it would be fair to state that Stanley Randall performs far more satisfactorily in selling Ontario than do many of his Cabinet colleagues.

Yet there are moments when Mr. Randall gets carried away. On occasion, at fancy dinners with the wine and gourmet food, the glow of all this good food and good company prods him to oversell his product somewhat. For example, when in Philadelphia he referred to "seven million affluent Ontarians". He rather unfortunately neglected to mention the twenty-five per cent of the people, who far from being affluent, are in fact forced to live below the usually recognized poverty line. All of us are aware of the wretched housing conditions, etc. that many in this Province must endure, and it is therefore unsatisfactory for Ontario's chief salesman, to continually ignore these forgotten individuals.

Moreover, it is doubly unsatisfactory for Stanley Randall to ignore these people in his speeches. For Mr. Randall has another important responsibility aside from his job of "selling Ontario". He is, believe it or not, the Minister of the Ontario Government who has been given the sole responsibility for housing in this province. Half in jest, (but only half in jest) we have accused Stanley Randall of being too fond of his own words for the good of the people of Ontario. It is surely unfortunate to have a Minister in charge of housing who is so impressed by his own oratory that he fails to see the major problem in his department. There can be no question that Ontario in 1969 faces a housing crisis of immense proportions.

We desperately need more housing starts, more imaginative public housing projects, and more authoritative steps taken to stop land speculators from driving up the price of housing for ordinary people. Yet we will hardly get any of these from a Minister who refuses to concede that there is a problem.

It is my hope that the Prime Minister will see fit to appoint a new man to be solely in charge of housing. Stanley Randall can continue to sell Ontario (at least until the next election) but right now we need a Cabinet Minister in charge of housing who will be prepared to devote some energies to so solving the problems. I shall be doing what I can in the next few weeks to see that this happens.

Don't spare the rod!

On November 23, 1967, Canada's House of Commons allowed a free vote on a government bill to abolish the death penalty for murder, except in the slaying of policemen or prison guards.

The vote was 114-87 and since that date, capital punishment has not been carried out in Canada, even for murder of a policeman.

In August of this year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported that since the ban went into effect, the murder rate has gone up. In 1966, the murder rate per 100,000 population was 1.3 percent. This increased to 1.6 in 1967 and 1.8 last year. (The last execution in Canada took place in 1962.)

Solicitor General George McIlraith admitted "the removal of capital punishment may be a factor in the increase... but there was also an increase in the whole field of crime and violence."

As Mr. McIlraith said, it is too early yet for conclusions about any correlation between the trail legislation and the rising rate of murder.

That law was passed after lengthy debate and each member made his own decision on the matter. The five-year clause must be respected.

But, using the same arguments, the section on murder of a policeman or guard, also must be respected.

The government, to date, has shown no inclination to follow this.

Leonard Otto Borg was scheduled to die July 23 for the murder of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police corporal in Alberta. Early in July, the Federal Cabinet, after many leaks that the death penalty would not be carried out, commuted his sentence.

Even Borg told reporters that "they'll be making a mockery out of their own Bill... if they commute me."

Yet the Federal Cabinet again flouted the law at a time when the government is telling others to respect the law. They based their action on a strong recommendation for mercy by the jury. A psychiatrist had testified that Borg was unable to decide right from wrong when he shot the policeman. Obviously, other opinions were given that Borg knew what he was doing and after a fair trial, he was convicted.

The Cabinet decided not to respect the law which upset law enforcement agencies across Canada — for obvious reasons.

If a criminal is caught in the act of a robbery, he now knows the Canadian Government will do nothing worse than send him to jail for life if he kills a policeman in a bid to escape.

There are several do-gooders who claim capital punishment has no effect on the murder rate. In their argument for total abolition, they forget that once a person is sentenced to life, there is no tougher penalty. It is an open invitation for criminals to try and escape from prison, killing any guard who stands in the way.

Certainly capital punishment is brutal but under the existing Canadian law, it can only be handed out for brutal crimes.

There is now a young widow in Toronto with a two-year-old son who will never know the pleasure of an outing with his father. David Goldworthy was brutally murdered while doing his job as a Metro Toronto policeman the morning of Oct. 6.

We may never know if the policy of the government on capital punishment played any part in this crime.

We do know that when the person or persons responsible for the killing are brought to trial, the law must be implemented. And the law clearly states that the murder of a policeman means hanging by the neck until dead.

Canada needs to protect the police who make our cities safe to walk in at a time when United States' cities are an invitation to disaster after dark.

The criminal element in this country needs to be shown once and for all that the law will be enforced.

The Federal Cabinet has a duty to perform. It is time they realized this and acted accordingly.

BELL LINES

The more things change the more they stay the same. Witness the following excerpt from "Rules for Troublemakers" issued by the Chicago Telephone Company (now Illinois Bell) in 1911.

- Put up a "good front" It is not necessary to advertise any tailor shop neither is it necessary to go about your work looking like a coal heaver. Overalls can look as respectable as anything else, but they must at least show that they are on speaking terms with the laundryman.

- Make the liveryman wash and oil your harness, and do not tie the harness up with wire longer than is necessary to get proper repairs. The same may be said of your suspenders and buttons.

- Treat everybody as you would like to be treated, not forgetting your horse: If you want to know the horse's side of it, just take off your coat and hat some day, hitch yourself to the same post with your belt, and stand there for about two hours. Hereafter don't forget his blanket.

- Don't go pell mell through the streets regardless of pedestrians as though you were going after your salary cheque. The fact that a man is always in a hurry doesn't always mean that he is accomplishing overmuch.

- Close the door when you go out, not forgetting to shut the front gate.

- Be courteous and polite, and don't be afraid to hand out a little jolly occasionally. It doesn't hurt anybody's feelings to be jollied a little.

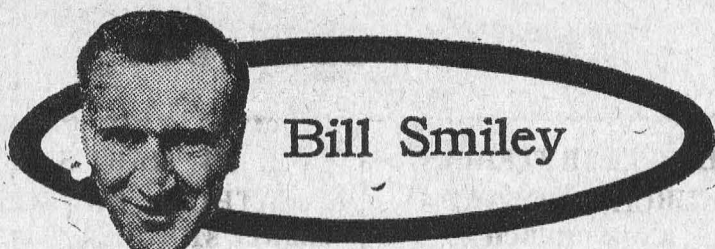

- Carry yourself with dignity and others will accord it to you.

- Study your business and try to improve the quality of your work.

- If you will do today what somebody would put off until tomorrow you need not worry about your future.

Just three months ago we were witnesses to the first telephone call to the moon. Perhaps anticipating increased long distance traffic to the lunar surface, the Fall meeting of the Consultation Committee of International Telephone Carriers will include choosing an Area Code for the moon.

Smileys go visiting

This column is not going to have one theme, but several. Fair enough? I've just returned from an exhausting weekend, taught eight 40-minute periods of English and attended a department heads' meeting which ended by six p.m., with everybody snoring.

We went to visit our daughter at university. A mistake, but you love them. First few weeks are bad enough, but when you add a tooth extraction, with complications, it's horrible.

Complicate that with loneliness and you have a pretty sad kid on your hands. (Funny, isn't it? Kids spend years telling you how glad they'll be to get away from their rotten parents and be FREE. And a week later they're desperately homesick.)

But it wasn't all bad. We had a good dinner, out; and Kim ruined her new leather skirt by dropping a fried shrimp on it. This is the only skill she has really mastered, after 13 years of education. Dropping things.

And then there was Dennis, the cab driver. Rotund and jolly, he talked steadily as he drove us in circles and squares, looking for an address. When we finally found it, we realized we could have walked in half the time.

And Dennis, striking his forehead violently, remarked: "Geez, I shoulda known this place. I work right across the street here at de garage two nights a week."

But he gave us a refund, which you'd never get in most cities.

Perhaps the highlight of the weekend was The Newlyweds. We were coming down in the elevator on Sunday. A very large man, in his late fifties, and stoned to the eyeballs, joined us at the fifth floor. He was accompanied by a statuesque blonde, in her early fifties. Also stoned, but a lady. Couldn't say a word.

"Wantcha to meet the wife," he burred deliriously. "Just got married yesterday."

We were delighted at this manifestation that love knows no race, creed, or age, and congratulated them heartily.

"We got 12 kids," he announced proudly. Seems she had four sons and two daughters and he had four daughters and two sons, by previous marriages. Lots of grandchildren.

They were just off to Boston on their honeymoon. Now, don't ask me why anyone would go to Boston on a honeymoon. There isn't that much time to talk while you're going down five floors in an elevator.

But they seemed extremely happy, and God bless them, and I hope they made it out of the city without being thrown in the impaired driving tank. He almost wiped out a bellboy as he backed away from the hotel entrance. But love and peace to both of them. How would you like to start on a honeymoon with 12 kids?

Personally, I love and admire anybody who believes in love and admiration after the age of 50. But 12 kids! And all those grandchildren. Wow! It's like going over the trenches at dawn with a cap pistol and a string of firecrackers.

Theme two. Does anybody in his right mind understand Medicare? I take it from the silence that the answer is a resounding "No!"

This will replace that, and that will replace this, and I can get a hearing aid, which I don't need. How about a smelling aid for those who can't smell? My wife, after carefully reading the utterly confusing directions, has the idea that we belong to four different medical plans, none of which will pay all our medical bills. The only thing that comes through to me, loud and clear, is that it's going to cost more money.

Theme three. Do you realize that a high school with about 1400 students in it, is a snake pit? Confine about 1600 people (counting staff and janitors) into a shoe factory about a city block in size, and what do you get?

A learning situation? No, a burning situation and a gaggle of paranoids. More about this later, when I'm feeling better. And I feel better already, just having said it.

The maximum security penitentiary at Kingston, Ontario, is the last place you'd expect to find such luminaries as Tommy Hunter, The Rhythm Pals, Debbie Lori Kaye, Al Cherny and Danfele Dorice. But they were there, in person, last spring for a special CBC radio variety show, at the request of pen officials. It was the first time in five years the 600 inmates had been together in one room at the same time. They proved to be a far better audience than anyone had hoped for. Recalls producer John Cantelon, "the applause was like nothing we'd ever experienced before—a massive roar". The performance was taped for broadcast on the Stage series, Saturday, October 11. It was a unique experience for both the inmates and the cast; it should also prove to be one for the listener.

For many years M. J. Coldwell led the CCF party, forerunner to the New Democratic Party. He's heard on the Voice of the Pioneer, Sundays, beginning October 12, discussing his early years and his colorful political career.

Maurice Gagnon, author of The Body in the Pool to be heard on Theatre 10:30 November 3 to 7, is one of Canada's most successful radio-TV writers. He is one of those rare writers whose work is equally good in English or French. A native of Winnipeg, Gagnon was an army colonel in the Second World War and returned to Canada to take degrees at Rimouski College, McGill and the University of Ottawa. Before taking up writing as a Funny You Should Say That, Canada's funniest radio show, returns to the air for its second full season October 12. Regulars Barrie Baldano, Ted Zeigler, Peter Cullen and beautiful Joan Stuart will be back in a variety of zany skits guaranteed to tickle the national funny bone. Curvaceous singer Sheila Graham and the Tony Chappell Orchestra provide the music. The show is taped live at the Sir Geo. Williams University Theatre in Montreal — and the laughter is for real! That "comedian's comedian" Jonathan Winters is the guest on the first show, to be followed by Jack Duffy, English comedian Freddie Sales, and actor-broadcaster Bruno Gerussi.

Ravi Shankar is acknowledged as the world's foremost sitar player. He was well-known in his native India for years, until The Beatles went Oriental and helped make his name international. Last July the great sitarist, accompanied by Alla Rakha on the tabla and Kamala Chakravarty on the tamboura, gave a recital at Toronto's MacMillan Theatre. It was recorded as part of this year's CBC Toronto Festival of Music, and will be the highlight of CBC Tuesday Night, October 14.

NO TURKEY, BUT... While Canadians settle down to a full-course Thanksgiving dinner, this fella's going to look after himself in his own way. Although leftovers aren't always the tastiest, he doesn't seem to mind. He's a bad boy though, he gulped his milk. — TTS Photo

MEMOIRS EXHUMED. Christine Keeler, still in her 20s, has disclosed her "inside" story to The News Of The World in London, England; only this time with more details and names of society friends she bypassed six years ago. At that time she was a teen-ager who came from a poor home and became involved with a Russian spy and a British War Minister. — TTS Photo
