Rink Management Committee

A very small number of the shareholders of Chesterville Rink who were notified to attend a meeting Monday evening put in an appearance at the Town Hall It was resolved by those present to retain the rink property and to take immediate steps to prepare the ground for the making of a good ice surface as soon as the weather permits. The committee elected is composed of W. H. Casselman, M. L. A., F. Dwyer, J. T. Kearns, Dr. S. H. Hutt, and O. L. King.

Died of Meningitis

The sad news was received with sincere regret by many friends here last week of the death of Baby Donald Robertson, aged 7½ months, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Brock Robertson (nee Amy Beattie) of Revelstoke, B. C. He was taken ill on Saturday, Oct. 7th, taken to the hospital the following Monday and died on Tuesday. Loving sympathy is extended to the bereaved parents and grandmother, Mrs. E. R. Beattie.

Rev R. H. Archer Passes Away

Rev. R. H. Archer, Anglican clergyman formerly of Chesterville passed away Thursday at his residence, 376 Slater Street Ottawa, in his 69 year. He finished his divinity and theological studies at Bishop's College, Lennoxville, years ago and was associated with the late Archbishop Hamilton for some time. He formerly had charge at Combermere, Winchester and Cornwall. His health failed him at Cornwall and he resigned, going to Ottawa, where he was attached to Christ Church Cathedral. The late Mr. Archer was a man of great intellectual ability and sympathetic nature, and his death is greatly regretted. Surviving him are his widow and one son, Rev. W. H. Archer, of Port Dalhousie, Ont.

Crawford—Henderson

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian Manse on Monday, Oct 23rd, when Alice Rose second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Henderson was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Howard J. Crawford son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Crawford of Carleton Place. After the ceremony lunch was served at the bride's home. The bride looked charming in a dress of navy canton crepe, and musketeer blue coat with hat to match. The happy couple left on the 5.35 amid showers of rice and confetti, for Ottawa and other western points. Their future residence will be in Carleton Place. Their many friends wish them a long life of happiness and prosperity.

What are Hockey Prospects?

Many hockey clubs in Eastern Ontario are getting under way for the season by holding re-organization meetings. Cornwall is off to a start with a Junior team to enter in the O.H A. of which John Denneny is to be the manager.

Prospects are none to bright for as good a team in Chesterville as we had last year. Bus Hummel went west at harvest time and has been induced to cast in his lot with the Rosetown, Sask. team. It was with that team two years ago where Bus acquired considerable of his hockey ability, which when added to by last year's campaign in the Central Ottawa Valley league made him a very valuable man for almost any team to have on hand. Johnnie Sorrel, the star goal-getter of last year's bunch, is also being flirted with by a couple of clubs, in an endeavor to have him change his place of residence. Some of the second string boys of last year's outfit showed up pretty well at different times and may be able to deliver the goods when it is put up to them this season.

LEARN WHAT CHIROPRACTIC IS

Chiropractic is a drugless health science of the cause of so-called dis-ease and the art of adjusting the human spine when its segments are out of natural aligment, so that mental impulse can transmit naturally through the nerves to provide normal health function to every organ and part of the body.

It is a system that includes the use of nothing but the bare hands to locate a subluxated vertebra (small bone of the spine) and affects its replacement to normal position by a peculiar move, made in a particular direction, with a technical degree of speed and force.

The Brain is the power plant of the body. The nerves are the electric cables distributing the power by way of the spine to the different parts of the body to produce life. The stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs are motors which are run by power delivered through the nerves.

If the power is severed, or interfered with, the motor quits running. Connect up the power and the motor starts running. The same is the case with the bodies. We are simply a complicated piece of machinery and each part must work in harmony to make HEALTH, which is LIFE. The Chiropractor connects up the power that has been interfered with by releasing the pressure and allowing the power (Vital Force) to flow uninterruptedly to the various organs, which then function normally. If there was no good in Chiropractic it would have died of its own accord years ago; but it still lives and is progressing very rapidly.

Found His Sister By Radio

A Homemade radio set in the hands of a boy living in Ohio enabled him to accomplish in a few weeks what his mother, assisted by lawyers and private detective agencies, had been trying to do for thirteen years. He succeeded in finding his lost sister. The story, as Mr. Pierre Boucheron tells it in the Radio Broadcast, is one more instance of the romance of wireless telegraphy.

One evening, says Mr. Boucheron, Lester Archer of Toledo conceived the idea of broadcasting a call inquiring for and describing his lost sister whom unfriendly relatives had placed in a children's home many years before. The powerful amateur station 8ZL sent out his call in the continental Morse code, and hundreds of other amateurs relayed it.

Night after night Archer sat at his receiving set, listening for an encouraging reply. Weeks passed and his task had begun to seem hopeless when one evening the faint call 8KV, Archer,s own registered call signal, came from an amateur at Van Wert, Ohio. Following the call came some words that were hardly discernible, but among them Archer was able to distinguish "your sister."

Late the same night when there was less local interference in the air he got into communication with the Station at Van Wert and learned that a young girl who answered the desrsiption of his sister was living at the house of a near-by farmer at Rockford in Mercer County. The amateur added that he had been trying to reach Archer for the past two weeks.

To the surprise and joy of Archer and his mother the report proved to be correct; Mrs. Archer recognized the girl instantly as her daughter.

Hotelmen Defer Take any Action

Hotel proprietors of Russell, Prescott, Glengarry and Stormont counties holding membership in the Eastern Ontario Hotelmen's Association met at St. Patrick's Hall Ottawa, Friday afternoon to discuss the question of asking the Ontario Government to grant them certain exclusive privileges regarding the sale of temperance beers and certain soft drinks The meeting which was presided over by Mr. Joseph Hunault, of Casselman, was short.

The opinion was expressed that the hotelmen should defer any action which they might have contemplated until the Drury Cabinet has taken up the report presented by the special committee of the Ontario Legislature which recently conducted an investigation into hotel conditions throughout the province with a view of introducing reforms.

It was stated that any action at the present time would be ill-advised as the Government's decision on the report of the special committee is still pending. The meeting broke up after the announcement had been made that a further meeting would be called after the committee's findings and the Government's decision are announced.

Col. Currie Winner in S. E. Toronto

By a plurality of 3,653 votes with two polling places still to report, the riding of Southeast Toronto resumed its Conservative allegiance in Monday's by-election by returning Col. John A. Currie to the seat rendered vacant by the death of John O'Neill, Liberal. The vote was extremely light, only seven thousand being cast from a roll of about 37,000. In three subdivisions no votes at all were cast.

Russell County Elects Liberal By Big Majority

The traditionally Liberal stronghold of Russell County ran true to form Monday in the Provincial by-election, when Mr. Alfred Goulet, merchant, of Bourget, the party standard-bearer, scored a decisive victory over Phillias Blanchard, the United Farmer-Progressive entry, and James R. Bowen, Independent-Beer and Wine candidate. Results from 97 polls out of a total of 107 received by Mr. Percy Lafleshe, returning officer, gave Mr. Goulet a majority of 2,127 over his U. F. O. opponent who was his most serious contender. Figures communicated by the various deputy returning officers and which are subject to slight change after revision and addition of the few missing polls gave Mr. Goulet a total of 4,079 votes as against 1,952 for Mr. Blanchard. Judging by the votes cast in favor of Mr. Bowen, the Beer and Wine candidate, the electors apparently believe in taking their politics undiluted. The whole riding gave Mr. Bowen a scant 225 votes.

Canada's Pride

Canada has many institutions of which she is justly proud but there is one of which at least a million of Canadian's are particularly fond. It is the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal which has kept Canada to the fore in the newspaper world. That great family and farm paper goes on year after year improving in every department until it has reached a point of proficiency that places it far in the van. The publishers promise even greater value for 1923. It is already the greatest value on this Continent and no home can well offord to be without it.

"Fruit-a-tives" Prevents Auto-intoxication

Auto-intoxication means self-poisoning. Many people suffer from partial Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels. Waste matter which should pass out of the body every day, remains and poisons the blood.

As a result, there is Headaches, Indigestion, disturbed Stomach, Pain in the Back, Rheumatism and Eczema and other skin diseases.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Auto-intoxication as these tablets, made from fruit juices, act gently on the bowels, kidneys and skin and keep the blood pure and rich.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Low Cost Of The High Producer

If there is one thing to be learned from the experience of cow-testing associations it is the contrast between the comparatively low cost at which the good cows produce milk and butter fat and the high cost of everything the farmer gets from the low-producing cow, says the New Zealand Dairyman, which shows that:

Cows producing more than 8,000 pounds of milk and 400 pounds of fat a year did so at a feed cost of 17½c a pound.

Cows averaging 5,969 pounds of milk and 300 pounds of fat did so at a feed cost of 21c a pound.

Cows averaging 4,228 pounds of milk and 200 pounds of fat did so at a feed cost of 23.3c a pound.

Cows averaging 2,339 pounds of milk and 100 pounds of fat did so at a feed cost of 37.3c a pound.

In labor cost, interest and overhead the difference is even more striking. The 100 pound cow returns a pound of fat for every 2.60 days of care, the 200-pound cows returns a pound for every 1.48 days and the 300-pound cow for every 1.04 days and the 400-pound cow for every 0.74 days. Poor cows are unprofitable.

Kiss

Kiss! Kiss again! Kiss all you want to! Kiss everybody who is kissable. For many years Doctors have heartlessly told us to avoid kissing, claiming that the kiss is a spreader of disease germs. But now comes Dr. Louis Katzoff, noted physician and psychologist, who advises us to kiss to our hearts' content. Just hearken to his words of wisdom. "Some bacteriologist," he says "would have us carry around a jugful of carbolic acid or other germicide to wash our lips before kissing. They forget that heat is the greatest antiseptic known, and that the heat generated from a kiss destroys the supposed germ. Among sweethearts kissing sends forth ethereal and hypnotic waves, travelling with great velocity, electrifying and rejuvenating every cell structure of the body, so that next to love itself it becomes the most potent agency for courage, optimism hope health and longevity." Hurrah for Katzoff! He's human. Perhaps he even enjoys kissing. At any rate, he would not rob us of one of our greatest delights. Keep up, and keep kissing!—Massena Observer.

Big Barn Fire

Barns supposed to be the largest in Carleton county were destroyed by fire last week on the Richmond road, near Bell's Corners. They were owned by Bower Henry, who estimates his loss at more than $40,000, with an insurance of $22,000. The fire broke out from some unknown cause in a barn filled with straw. Mr. Henry, who ran as a Progressive candidate in the last Dominion election, is one of Carleton's leading farmers. He gives his losses as follows; Three barns, one 100 feet long and two 90 feet long; two silos, 30 by 20 feet, 1,000 bushels of barley; 4,000 bushels of oats and 300 bushels of wheat; 125 tons of hay; 150 tons of straw; all the farm machinery, including a separator, binder, mowers, etc. A tractor which was backed up against one of the barns, was partly destroyed before it could be pulled to safety.

Geo. Jowett Representing Canada

On Saturday morning next Mr. Geo. Jowett, of Inkerman leaves for New York City, as Canadian Representative, at the World's Physical Culture Exposition, to be held in Madison Square Gardens, Oct. 23-28th. While there he will try to duplicate his two world's records, before American Continental Weight Lifters Association, which we are confident he will, as he has done it three times this year, before the lifting fraternity of Quebec province. He is also hoping to capture more honors for Canada and accomplish the summit of his lifting ambition as he has accepted a challenge from W. Stone of Chicago, for the middle-weight title of the world. This big match will be staged in Chicago or New York the first of the year. Mr. Jowett has defended this title since 1909 and is training every day and claims he is in tip-top shape. Mountain Herald.

Hog Grading Commences on October 30th 1922

The regulations under which the official grading of hogs will be undertaken have been approved by Council as submitted after final agreement by all interests represented by the Joint Swine Committee. The swine graders appointed through the Civil Service Commission following the grading examinations have reported for duty to the Dominion Live Stock Branch.

The Honorable W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, announces that the hog grading regulations will be made effective on October 30th, 1922. In the meantime, the new hog grading staff is being given a thorough course of instruction at the Toronto Stockyards, so that the official grading regulations as established will be uniformly applied at all stockyards and abattoirs in Canada.

Standard grading equipment is being adopted and is already installed at several stockyards where preliminary grading tests are being conducted and the necessary adjustments to expedite the grading and movement of hogs being made. Experimental work in eartagging for co-operative shipments providing for the identification of individual farmer's hogs is in its final stage and the Live Stock Commissioner will announce an approved identification mark simultaneous with the inauguration of grading.

Ontario Temperance Act Not Intended For Persecution

Woodstock Sentinel-Review—A Norfolk county farmer had a keg of cider made from his own apples and stowed away in the cellar so that it might turn into vinegar. Before the vinegar stage was reached the man was summoned before a magistrate for breach of the Ontario Temperance Act. The cider had developed a stronger percentage of alcohol than that permitted by law. The case was referred to the Ontario license board with the result that the prosecution was dropped. More than that, the reference of the case to the board brought the reply from the chairman of the board, Mr. Hales, that the intention of the act was that its provisions should not be used to harass people who have shown no intention to evade its conditions. If that be the intention of the Ontario Temperance Act, then there are places where its purpose is wholly misunderstood. There are places where the Ontario Temperance Act is interpreted as a measure which gives an officer of the law an opportunity or imposes it on him as a duty, to make a petty nuisance of himself by annoying decent people. It is satisfactory to learn from the head that the Ontario Temperance Act does not demand the persecution of harmless people, but that its intention is that its provisions shall not be used for such a purpose.

Matilda District W. M. S. Convention

The annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Matilda District of the Methodist church will be held in Trinity Methodist church on Friday, Oct. 27th, with sessions at 10.15 a. m. 2 00 and 7.30 p. m. A very comprehensive programme has been laid out, which at the evening session, includes an address by Miss Margaret Armstrong of Kolokreeka, Alta.

Miss Alice Henderson Showered

On Thursday evening, Oct. 19th, Miss Alice Henderson was agreeably surprised on entering her home after being out for tea with her friend Miss Victoria Pelletier, to find a room full of her young girl friends awaiting her. After following a string through different rooms she finally came to the end to which was attached a beautiful set of Roger's silverware A very enjoyable evening was spent in games and music, after which a dainty lunch was served to the happy crowd. Lunch being over they joined a circle around the young bride-to-be, singing the familiar strains "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot."

Greatest Bargains Ever Presented the Buying Public

In the conducting of large business enterprises mistakes are often made.

Such was the case this year when the Management of the Chesterville Driving Park gave away a lot of money and did not expend it in a proper manner. Consequently a large loss was incurred.

Realizing that big events such as have been witnessed on Chesterville Fair Grounds during the past two years cannot be arranged and succesfully financed during the course of a few weeks, I have decided to commence early, offer good bargains, and give the prizes to the investors—to the people who spend the money.

The Annual Spring Carnival, Horse Show and Trials of Speed will be held on Chesterville Driving Park grounds on May 23rd and 24th, 1923, when a programme in keeping with that of 1922 shall be arranged.

Tickets of admission will be offered for sale from this date forward at amazingly low prices:

The first One Thousand Tickets will be sold for 50c each or Three for $1.00. Each ticket will be numbered, and will admit one person to the Grounds and Grand Stand on both days of the Horse Show and Trials of Speed, May 23rd and 24th, 1923.

To the persons holding the lucky numbered tickets will be given the above mentioned prizes absolutely free, beginning first with the Ford Touring Car, and so on as the lucky numbers are drawn

Fifteen per cent. of all tickets sold for one month from date of commencement shall be handed to the Secretary of the Red Cross to be forwarded for the aid of the fire sufferers of Northern Ontario.

By purchasing one of these tickets your are not only assisting the management of the Chesterville Fair Grounds, and yourself by obtaining admission to the Grounds and Grand Stand on both days of the Spring Fair, but you are, with little effort on your part, making it possible for a substantial contribution to be made to the fire-sufferers of Northern Ontario. as fifteen per cent. of all tickets sold for one month from date of commencement shall be handed in to the Secretary of the Red Cross, Chesterville, for the above mentioned cause.

The drawing for the prizes will take place on May 24th at the Fair Grounds, when all gifts will be presented to the persons holding the lucky numbers.

Don't destroy the number on your ticket as it may be worth a Ford car to you.

Tickets may be purchased from the undersigned and others who shall be authorized to make sales.

Big Fellows and Their Little Debts.

Toronto Star—A business fable used to be told about Jones, Brown and Smith meeting on the street, when Jones paid Brown $10 which he owed him, Brown paid it over to Smith, and Smith paid it to Jones—so that the three men parted as they had met, although three debts had been paid, and none of them the worse for it. In fact, all of them were the better for it.

Something like that is occuring every day if we only knew it. When you pay your bill somebody three removes from you, or 30 removes, perhaps, is enabled to pay you the bill he owes you. If you fail to pay your account you never know how far up the stream you may be blocking the general current of payment.

Not long ago a man in Toronto could not make his business go and sold out. When questioned about it he gave what appeared to be a curious explanation of what had happened to him. He said that his failure was due to his success. He had gone after big orders from big corporations, and had succeeded in getting them. His business was flourishing until he made the discovery that as a rule, big corporations are slow pay. He had to wait two, three, or even four months sometimes before he could get his money. In the meautime he had to keep his shop going, rent, wages, material had to be paid for. He was up against it. The big corporations were doing a business so big that the amount they owed him was mere chicken feed. They couldn't be expected to change their whole system of doing business to oblige him. They didn't like being dunned. The subordinates to whom he could get access didn't like to be pestered about an accouut that would be paid all right, if this fellow would only understand that there was a regular routine through which an account for payment had to take its course.

This man's experience was, perhaps, not an uncommon one. It is now pretty generally known that quite a few of the large financial and other corporations in Toronto are slow pay—absolutely sure pay, no doubt, but provokingly slow about it. An account, before being paid, has to pass along a channel so long and winding that the small business man who is waiting for it sometimes ages perceptibly while he waits. Nor can he make a row about the delay without risking the loss of future business. He doesn't want to do that but he would like his money in 30 days.

Now why can't he have it? Is any bank, insurance, loan or any other big business so big that it can't within 30 days, o. k. an account for payment, as every well-conducted smaller business does? Are the heads of the big corporations aware of the delays or is the dilatoriness the fault of subordinates? Are the heads of many large corporations aware of the censure they incur by their indifference to the principal of prompt payments, which does so much to expedite business and promote prosperity?

In order that business may hum the big fellows who handle most of the money should not hang on to it too long each time it hops their way. They should do their part in keeping it jumping. They should set the best, not the worst, example.

A Good Moral to It

A London Advertiser reporter at the Western fair picked up a story that has a good point. A farmer and his wife had decided to leave the farm and retire to the city. Their family had grown up and left and so the farm was advertised for sale. It was not a large piece of land that was left, some 20 acres. So the real estate man fixed it up in an ad that was so attractively worded that the couple decided not to part with the property, as it was just the place they would be looking for if they sold their own. So it's a good thing to have a live relator describe your property so you may have a good look at it—Bruce Herald and Times.

Contributor; "You sit down on every joke I write."

Editor: "Well, I wouldn't if there was any point to them."

Health of Children

A few weeks ago I was down in Eastern Ontario and spent some time in the rural districts, many miles from even a town. I was interested in the health of those people that I met and I was particularly interested in the Health and general condition of the children. In some cases an examination was made of the boys and girls at school, the very ones who were supposed to be in good health and who never had a doctor see them since they were born. There were a good many children examined, in fact over one thousand, and would you believe it, over half this number showed physical defects of one kind or another. In some instances it was defective hearing, in another defective sight in one eye, in another diseased tonsils, in another some skin disease, in another rheumatism and yet in another heart disease. Of course many other defects were found but these mentioned are just a sample.

In every part of the province it is the same, and the regretable part of it is that so many of these defects could be corrected in early life if the trouble was not allowed to develop.

One hinks of the farm as a health resort, and an ideal place for the upbringing of children. It is, in so far as country air and surroundings go, but in some other respects it is no more conducive to health than the city. For instance, children in the country do not get the opportunity of being examined for physical defects and consequently they drift along to adult life oftentimes impaired in health and physique, when with a little foresight in youth they might become normal men and women.

Then again there is the question of personal hygiene. Many farms are not equipped with suitable bathing facilities and so the warm bath weekly and the daily sponge of the body are oftentimes neglected. The question of keeping one's body clean is one of the most important in the whole range of public health. Then again the question of milk must be considered. I heard a doctor say not long ago that there were far too many cream separators in this province. That may or may not be so, but one thing is certain, we should not impoverish the milk at the expense of babies and young children who would thrive better on whole milk than on skim milk. In case of infants not fed at the breast, whole milk is absolutely necessary if the proper feeding is to be given.

One of the greatest causes of malnutrition in young children is mismanagement, This often happens in the case of so-called "spoiled" children who get out of control and do just whatever they like. Perhaps the mother is too indulgent and and lets the child have its own way. It takes advantage of this and consequently leads a most irregular life that is anything but good for its health. The child rises in the morning when it likes, eats the kind of breakfast it prefers without any thought as to what nourishment the food may contain; bolts its food at midday and does not take any time for rest in the atternoon. Between meals the child eats candy, ice-cream, soft drinks and other things that impair its digestion yet bring very little nutrition to the growing child. When evening comes there is no regular bedtime arranged, and the child roams the streets with other boys, perhaps learning bad habits, and getting totally out of parental or maternal control. These conditions are all too prevalent at present, and parents should realize their responsibilities towards their children i the coming generation is to be improved or even kept at the present level.

Fall Preparation For The Vegetable Garden

(Experimental Farms Note)

Probably no effort is so well repaid as that given to the development of a good vegetable garden. It is wise to make preparation for this in the fall, in order to realize the benefits accruing from the early sowing of many vegetable crops. There is really no good reason why the vegetable garden should not be prepared in the fall, except that the time necessary to do so is usually not given to it. It is assumed that a certain area is set aside for the vegetable garden. If this is not the case, by all means set aside a certain plot now, locating it reasonably near the house so that vegetables may be conveniently gathered with a minimum loss of time to the housewife.

Apply twenty to twenty-five tons of stable manure per acre. Ten pounds to the square yard is equal to twenty-four tons per acre. Plow this six to eight inches deep. If it cannot be plowed, dig it in. The amount of manure to apply will vary according to the way the soil has been previously manured. It is not wise to overfertilize, and if annual applications are made, probably five pounds per square yard will be quite sufficient.

It is desirable that certain areas should be ridged or mounded, to permit of ready drainage and early drying out of the soil. In these, carrots, beets and lettuce for very early use are seeded. Here also cabbage, cauliflower and celery are started for planting out later. There is very often difficulty in getting such plants in the spring. This may be overcome by giving a little thought now to the development of a spot where seed may be sown just as soon as the surface soil is dry to the depth of one or two inches. It is quite often possible to sow seeds outside on such a plot about the middle of April. The only reason why onions are so seldom a success in this country is that the seed is put in the soil the middle of May when they should have been planted a month earlier. For this early spring seeding surface working of the soil is all that is required, if the land has been fall prepared, and this can be done early if good drainage is provided by mounding up strips three to four feet wide as already indicated with a slight surface slope to give drainage.

It will be understood that, for spring growth, in addition to heat a readily available food supply is necessary. In old garden areas this is usually present, but if the garden plot is new, it may be necessary to use a little quick acting fertilizer to give the crops a start. One ounce per square yard of nitrate of soda or other active fertilizer is equal to three hundred pounds per acre; this amount is sufficient for any vegetable crop. If fertilizers are applied, it is wise not to make the mistake, so often made, of applying too large an amount without thoroughly mixing it with the soil. Surface applications of fertilizers like nitrate of soda very often kill the young plant just as it germinates; and for that reason it is much better to depend upon an application of stable manure well worked into the soil the previous fall. Many good prospects have been blighted by not using good judgment in the application of commercial fertilizers to small areas, either through applying too much, or through not thoroughly mixing into the soil, before seeding, that which has been applied.

Almost As Good

Little Mabel, says Punch, cast an indignant look at her brother, who had got the best of the plateful of cherries that the children were dividing. "You really are a pig, John," she declared.

But her mother did not like the word. "It's not very nice to call your brother a pig, darling," she said.

"All right then," replied Mabel. "But the next time I see a pig I shall call him 'John.'"

Men Who Photograph News Of The Day

Who are the real daredevils of the movies? They are decidedly not the stars, even the stars who have been press-agented into fame for their thrilling stunts. These stars as a rule have understudies, professional acrobats and gymnasts and athletes who take the flying leaps and the horrible dives for salaries not a tenth as large as those of their more valuable and fragile principals. But perhaps the real daredevils are the cameramen who travel about the country making moving picture events of the day's news. These men thronged the battlefields of Europe when they were permitted to do so and, setting up their cameras, cranked away with death hurling past their ears or yawuing at their feet. More lately they have filmed the Greek defeats in Asia Minor, and we have no doubt that they did not hesitate to have Kemal Pasha pose for them. These movie operators go everywhere that war correspondents and special reporters go. They are even taking the place of the former, for while few papers would think it worth their while to send special correspondents to accompany the Greek or Turkish army all the movie picture concerns that make a feature of filming the chief events in the day's news have been represented there.

Nerve and enterprise are the necessary qualifications of these movie men rather than a profound knowledge of the art of photography and they are now accepted like newspaper reporters as a necessary adjunct of modern life, even though their attentions are sometimes resented. For instance, When President Wilson married for the second time and went to Hot Springs, Va., on his honeymoon, he did not want the event to appear on the screen in the movies. He was surrounded by secret service men, who were as keenly on the lookout for photographers as for bomb throwers. Two of these photographers, Bill Hearfield and Arthur Sorenson determined to get a few pictures. They knew the President golfed every morning, so one night they hid themselves in the club house to be prepared for his arrival. But the detectives arrived first and discovered the photographers, whom they expelled none too gently. Finally they succeeded in engaging a room in the hotel where the President was staying, a room overlooking a path in the gardens, where the distinguished pair strolled in the morning.

They cut slits in the window shades and camouflaged their focus lenses. Then they learned that detectives were at the door waiting for the tell-tale cranking sound to rush in and throw them out. They hit upon the ruse of turning on the water in the bathroom, and this made such a noise that they were able to get their pictures without interference. More perilous were the exploits of Ariel Varges, a New York photographer, who accompanied Villa on one of his campaigns, and made such an impression upon the bandit chief that on more than one occasion he postponed a fight until Varges could arrive on the scene. He was sent to Europe when war broke out, and after great difficulty got to France. Three times he wormed his way to the front, only to be turned back. Then he was deported to England. There he learned that Sir Thomas Lipton was fitting out a yacht for the Red Cross to go to the relief of the Serbians.

He knew Lipton in the United States, and eventually got permission to join the expedition. He passed through the epidemic and accompanied the Serbian Army on its retreat to Salonica, running all the risks of a soldier. He continued to take his pictures all through the war wherever he was permitted to do so, and sometimes where he was not, and on the signing of the armstice was the first movie man from any of the Allied countries to enter Berlin. He was also the first to enter Bolshevist Russia and take the photographs of Lenin, Trotsky and the other Soviet leaders.

J. C. Brown, another movie cameraman was with Secretary of the Navy Denby in his visit to China and Japan, and it was at his suggestion that Mr. Denby asked for permission to fly over Peking and make an examination of the Great Wall of China. Something went wrong with the plane, and it was wrecked, the flyers having a narrow escape with their lives, but by the time Mr. Denby climbed out of the wreckage, Brown had scrambled to his feet, had his camera in position and took a picture. John A. Bockhorst, one of the most noted of American aerial photographers, has probably a greater number of flying hours to his credit than most of the United States army and navy aviators. It is said that a considerable portion of his time is taken up in writing letters of condolence to the families of friends and companions who have been killed while flying. George Doran, a twenty-year-old camerman, is one of the most noted climbers in the United States. He is as comfortable taking pictures on a steel girder a hundred yards in the air as if he were snapping a family party on a lawn.

Tracey Mathewson, another of the craft, considers himself a personal friend of the Prince of Wales, whom he accompanied on his Canadian tour. As their train would reach a station Mathewson would jump off and have his camera ready for the Prince when he stepped off and he would continue to "shoot" the ceremonies until the Prince had returned to his car and the train was moving. One day the Prince sent for him and said;

"There is something about you, Mr. Mathewson, that has puzzled me tremendously. When I arrive at a town, you are always the first person I see, and whenever I leave a town you are the last person I see. I can't understand how you do it."

Not long ago Mathewson went to London, and through the Prince's influence was able to take some intimate and valuable pictures of the Royal family.

Cellar Wintering

(Experimental Farms Note.)

In all parts of Canada bees require protection from the winter and cold during the winter months. There are two methods by which this protection can be supplied; either by packing the colonies in special outside wintering cases or by placing them in a cellar. Although outside wintering is gaining in popularity, cellar wintering will give excellent results in any part of Canada where the conditions in the cellar are such that they will prevent the bees from wearing themselves out with too much activity; and is advisable in the more northern localities where the winter weather is usually very severe.

The cellar for bees, no matter whether it is built especially for the purpose or partitioned off from the cellar beneath the beekeeper's residence, should be one that is well insulated against the variations of the outside temperature and can be maintained at a temperature of about 480 F. throughout the winter. It should also be dry in order that there is no condensation of moisture at any time and fitted so that it can be ventilated when necessary.

Bees to be wintered in the cellar will require less stores than those wintered outside but these stores must be of the best, containing as little indigestible matter as possible or the bees may die of dysentery before the spring. Clover honey or sugar syrup is the best food for cellar wintered bees, The bees should be brought immediately in the celiar after the last good cleansing flight which is usually about the first week in November. It is far better to put the bees in a week or two before the last opportunity of a flight than to leave them exposed to the cold that is not followed by a cleansing flight. If the temperature is sufficiently low there will be no need for closing the hive entrances when bringing them in. The hives should be carried as carefully as possible, with little disturbance to the bees and they should be placed on empty hive bodies or other stands of similar size in tiers of four high. The covers of the hives need not be removed. The entrance should be left open full width but if there is a danger from mice getting into the hive the entrance may be covered with screening with ⅜ inch mesh. No white light should be used in the cellar. Dead bees may be cleaned up from the floor at intervals but there must not be any disturbance to the colonies at any time. If the cellar is properly constructed the bees will require no further attention during the winter.

Buck Chased Rider Who Injured Fawn

George Hooley of Saranac Lake, riding a bicycle through woods on the outskirts of the village, ran without warning into a family party of deer at a sharp curve.

In the deer party were a big buck, two does and two fawns. One of the fawns ran into the bicycle. The boy was not thrown but the fawn was hurled to one side. The buck instantly lowered its horns and charged boy and wheel. Came then a frantic race down the road with the boy pedaling madly and the enraged buck at the rear wheel. The race ended when the boy flashed into a yard.

Emptiness

Mary and Tommy had attended a talk by a returned missionary. On their return home their father asked: "Did he tell you about the poor heathen?"

"Oh yes," answered Mary eagerly. "He said that they were often very hungry, and when they beat on their tumtums it could be heard for miles."

FIRST TRANSCONTINENTAL TRAIN

Canadian Pacific engine 374, which drew the first train into Vancouver, B.C., 35 years ago.

THIRTY-FIVE years ago the first Canadian Pacific Railway transcontinental passenger train steamed into Vancouver, and the steel link of 3,000 miles binding ocean to ocean in Canada was at last complete. Quaint to modern eyes looks old locomotive No. 374, which drew this first Atlantic Express. It burnt cordwood, and with its big smokestack, its generous display of polished brasswork, which shone like gold; its array of flags and floral decorations, made an imposing spectacle. Coal burning engines had drawn the train over the eastern and prairie sections of the line. President E. W. Beatty of today was a small boy at school in Toronto, when old No. 374, with old Peter Righter at the throttle and George Taylor poking logs of resinous Rocky Mountain spruce into the fire-box; Brakeman J. Madigan and Baggagemaster J. Kavanaugh and Conductor Barnhart in charge of the train, snorted her way down the forbidding defiles of the Fraser, and along the densely wooded shores of the Burrard Inlet, pulled up at the terminus with a hissing of the old air brakes amid the blare of brass bands and shouts of acclaim from the assembled citizens of Vancouver. That day, a memorable one in the history of Canada, will always be one of Vancouver's most important anniversaries. In 1887, the journey from Montreal to Vancouver, which now takes but four days, consumed a full week.

"Queen's weather ushered in the day long looked for by the Vancouverites—the blending of the Occident and the Orient," states a despatch sent that day from the Coast. "When the train reached Vancouver carrying the officers of the road and your special correspondent, it was greeted with ringing cheers in every direction. Streamers floated on the breeze across the track at different points, while the ships and boats in the harbor were resplendent with variegated colors. At the railway wharf it seemed as if all Vancouver had congregated, and a mighty shout went up as the train thundered into the station under a double archway of fir.

"There were many eastern travellers who proudly boasted that they were the first to come through from Montreal. The Vancouver City band struck up "See the conquering hero comes" in good time, as Mayor McLean mounted the platform and proposed three cheers for the Canadian Pacific Railway and its popular local manager, Mr. Abbot, who made a grateful acknowledgment. The mayor then read a complimentary address to Mr. Abbot, who replied in pleasant and suitable terms and made an appropriate reference to the able assistance which he had received from William Downie, assistant superintendent; W. H. Armstrong, superintendent of construction, and C. E. Brown, general freight agent."

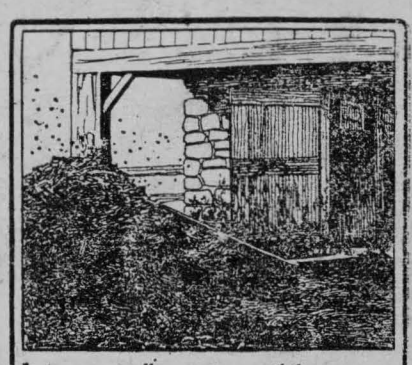
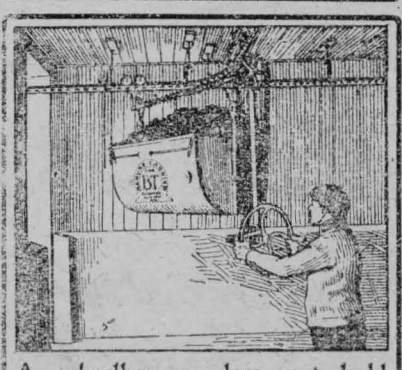
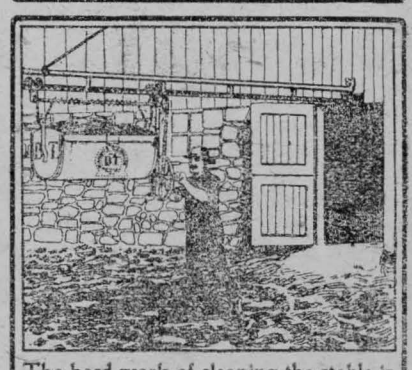
Day in and day out, the hard work of cleaning the stable has to be done. Stable cleaning with a wheelbarrow is a monotonous, hard, disagreeable chore. It is hard to wheel a heavy wheelbarrow load through a muddy yard and up a slippery plank. And the worst of it is, this hard, disagreeable chore has to be done every day.



It is practically an impossibility to get the manure far enough away from the stable. The conditions in the yard make it impossible. Manure piles right up close to the stable give off ammonia fumes that spoil paint and woodwork, rot harness and at the first opportunity breed flies.



A wheelbarrow does not hold much at a load, which means many trips before the work is done. The BT Carrier holds three times as much as a wheelbarrow. It will tackle 800 lbs. in one load.



The hard work of cleaning the stable is cut in two with a manure carrier. It runs on overhead track so it does not matter about the state of the yard. No planks to lay; no snow to shovel; no more pushing to the top of the pile with a wheelbarrow.
