Glimpse of the past

At left, the Osgoode Township Hall as it stands today is a centre of much community activity. Such was also the case when it was a much smaller building, as above, built in 1870.

Old town hall evokes nostalgia

by Jim Rowan
Special to the Press

A good many weeks have now gone by since my brother Joe's untimely death. He must have known that all was not well, but he kept it to himself. In his usual efficient manner he continued to do his secretarial work for the Lions Club and plan future material for the Press and the Seventh Column. There was one item in his 'unfinished business' file that he discussed with me a number of times. He had written a letter to former residents of our community, former schoolmates, who like himself grew up in the dirty thirties and for whom the old Town Hall was the meeting place. This is what he wrote.

Dear .....:

Do you have nostalgic memories of our old "Town Hall"?

I plan to feature the transformation in a future issue of the Winchester Press.

I'm hoping you can pen some fond recollections of the days when we were 'a bit younger', and the Town Hall was the focal point of community life.

I have here on my desk an old school photo, and you're in it.

Please send along a recent shot (head and shoulders). Bet you haven't changed a bit.

Joe Rowan
Metcalfe, Ont.

P.S. At your very earliest convenience please.

Joe was already semi-retired when Joan and I sold our school photographic business. From then on, I would visit him two or three times a week. There at the kitchen table, surrounded by clippings from newspapers, photos, Lions magazines and minute books, he recorded the activities of the Lions Club and prepared his Seventh Column. Occasionally he would swing around in his swivel chair and, as though lost in thought, gaze wistfully at all the homes that dotted what was once the Rowan farm.

When he first learned of his illness he tried to carry on as usual and then one day he handed me some urgent Lion business that needed attention. A few days later he asked me to record the minutes of the Lions executive meeting. He wouldn't be there. I asked if he planned to give up his job as secretary and his response was an emphatic No! Then one day he was not in his usual chair, he had retired to the bedroom where he told his doctor the cool breeze comforted him. That was the end of our frequent discussions.

He attached so much importance to his recollections of the town hall that I resolved, with some trepidation, to complete the project for him.

Twenty-two letters were mailed and it wasn't long until he started receiving replies by mail and in person. Here are some excerpts from the response.

I recall the Sod Busters orchestra playing for dances. Our favorite song was the old Spinning Wheel In The Parlor. The huge stove not far from the main entrance. People sitting near the stove nearly cooked while those seated near the windows were freezing. Many a time I helped my Dad take down and clean the great, long string of stove pipes and then put them back up.

Stirling Bishop

Ruth and I remember Nov. 11th, as school children parading from the school and lining up in front of the monument as we honored those members of our community who made the supreme sacrifice. Inside we remember all the broken — back chairs and plank seats. The folding tables stacked in the window niches.

Emily Walker

Just recently, my brother George sold his home and as he started going through old records came upon a sheet of paper giving the names of all Professor Jones' music students and how he rated their performance at a musical concert in the town hall, in the late 1920s. George played the violin and my sister Jean played the piano. I can see her in a new coral colored dress, standing in our parlor over the big square grate of the pipeless furnace, as the warm air blew up the skirt of her dress.

Norma Simpson Morrison

I remember the 11th of November. Was it Father Harris, Reverend Phillips or Reverend Eakin who officiated? We carried the Union Jack and sang God Save the King. I recall parties when Val Chartrand, Ann Hamilton, Walter Heron or Lawrence MacAndrew provided the music and Harold or Lloyd Graham called for the square dances. Then there was the choral society, sponsored by the Women's Institute. Under the direction of Professor Berry a hall full of people was transformed into a melodious four part choir, in jig time.

For me, the Town Hall always seemed to be associated with food functions, particularly our United Church supper. I remember always hoping that Maybelle Thompson would bring some of her wonderful butterscotch pies, and that I would get a slice. They were so good.

We were on holidays when your letter arrived so if this reply is too late just throw my picture in the garbage. My memories include Alexander's Rag Time Band, parties when Harold Woods and Noel Rolston provided the music. A favorite is receving the Osgoode Township Service pin on my return from overseas.

Mary Byers Roxborough

Metcalfe Public School

Sure I am a bit younger than everyone in the photo but I remember two tall skinny guys, Les Robinson and Gord Fisher square dancing. They were much taller than anyone else. The music was supplied by Dan Scharf.

Lynn Dowser

I remember the church card parties where I learned to play euchre, and the school plays and concerts. One play, I think, was Silas Smidge from Turnip Ridge.

Rosella Ralph

I too remember the choral society mentioned by Oren Stanley. Was the professor Mr. Berry or Mr. Johnston? No matter, he did a great job of moulding us into a choir. I still catch myself humming "Men of Harlech". My brother Jack worked for Mr. Blair and he used to tell us that in the very cold weather Mr. Blair would place a small desk and chair atop another larger desk and work from there to get away from the draughty floors. Of course the vault where records were stowed had no heat. To go there meant putting on his overcoat, scarf and cap.

The cannon out front is long gone but it was always a great attraction for us. Many a mock battle was fought on this site.

Jim Rowan

I remember the school concerts when the senior boys would build a human pyramid and hang a "little feller" on a hook suspended from the ceiling. The pyramid then collapses leaving him hanging there. Of course, the pyramid was rebuilt and the "little feller" was rescued. Wasn't he Joe Rowan? My most memorable occasion was a night when we rented the hall for three dollars, charged twenty-five cents admission and paid Harold Woods to play for our dancing. I spied this little colleen warming her hands by the wood stove. She was wearing a bright red suit and an Irish smile. Something happened, a spark was ignited. I asked her to dance and after fifty years we are still dancing.

Len Mullins

I remember when I was in Junior Primer, at the annual school concert put on by the public and continuation school students, I, along with two other little girls, started the program by standing in front of the curtain, on the stage and singing this song. "We are little Metcalfe blue birds and we'll sing our song to you. We hope to make you happy and pretty blue birds too. We love our country, we love our town, we love Ontario's fair renown, and we'll live for dear old Metcalfe town and be blue birds all year round."

Another memory is when the Women's Institute sponsored short courses. Eleanor Woods and I were asked to prepare and demonstrate a nutritious and attractive invalid tray. Mrs. Russell Boland, Institute president, gave each of us a lovely recipe book. I still have and use mine.

Marguerite Rowan Donovan

My memories are mostly connected with the old "Municipal office" at the back of the hall. Often, on my way home from school I stopped off to see my Dad, Russell Blair. The municipal office was divided into two parts. Three quarters of it was for council meetings and one quarter was the township clerk's office. Dad had a very large and very high desk that sloped from back to front and one had to sit on a high stool to use it. I think it was called a bookkeeper's desk. Dad had a typewriter which was mounted on two blocks of wood fastened to the seat of a backless chair. He typed with two fingers at an impressive speed and in colder weather he wore fingerless gloves to keep his hands warm.

Dorothea Blair Knowles

I remember the church suppers when it was my job to carry water to the backroom that was suddenly converted into a kitchen. Then I had to fetch some wood to keep the fires going. It was all worthwhile because the suppers were delicious.

Ernie Whiteside.

My memories of the town hall include the minstrel shows that came to town and put on a show every night for about a week. They sold medicines that would cure all your ailments. I think one was called Cherokee Indian medicine. The star of one of these shows was Dodi Delaney.

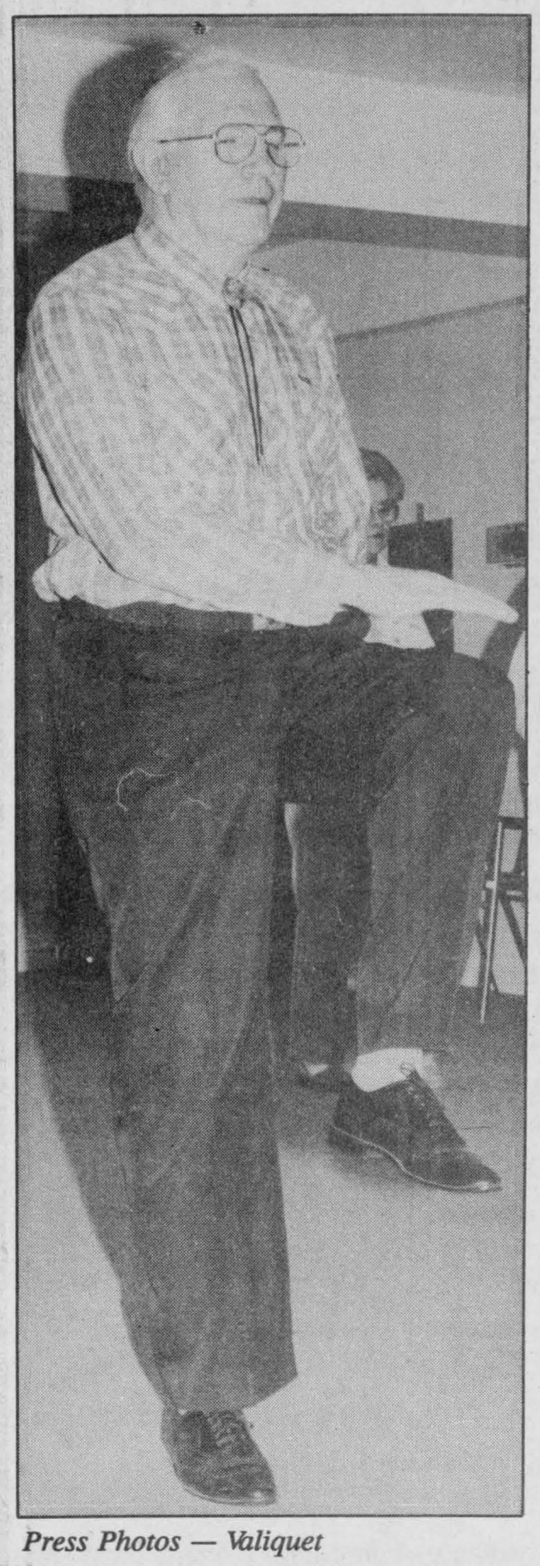
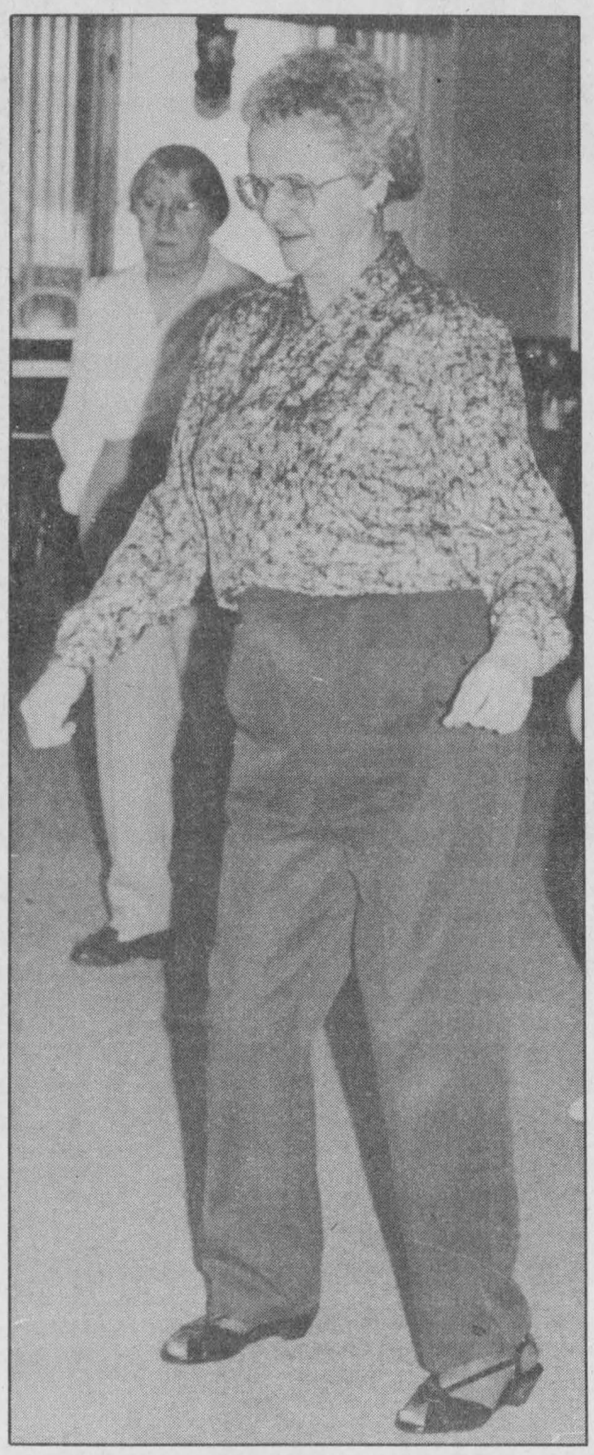
Doin' the Achy Breaky

Senior citizens line up for the latest dance craze





Press Photos — Valiquet

by Michelle Valiquet
Press News Editor

WILLIAMSBURG — Seniors aren't standing in line at the Park Lane Seniors Support Centre these days, they're dancing in it.

The "line dancing" craze that is presently sweeping North America has caught on in Dundas County as well, attracting area seniors to classes being held at the Centre every Tuesday afternoon at 2pm.

The toe-tapping twang of country music can be heard blaring out of a cassette player at the front of the room while dancers wear expressions ranging from intense concentration to laughter as they count out the various steps.

Leading the group of approximately 20 seniors who make their way through everything from "The Alley Cat", "The Slosh" and the popular "Achy Breaky", is instructor John Wilson, 65, who was a late bloomer himself when it came to dancing.

Although the Iroquois resident has always been interested in all types of music, the British-born Wilson never played an instrument and didn't even start any kind of dancing until 1986 when he took ballroom dancing lessons from Mary Baker in Prescott. The course included several line dances.

A short time later, the Cardinal Resource Centre coordinator invited him to show her Home Support committee a few steps at their planned pot luck dinner. He soon made a name for himself.

Now he is out almost every night of the week teaching line dancing to various seniors groups.

Despite his polished steps, Wilson denies he's a professional dancer. "No way... I'm a retired small engine mechanic. I do this for fun more than anything else," he insists.

"It also helps the seniors with their exercises too."

FUN ACTIVITY

Fun is also what attracted Morrisburg's Barb Pilkington.

"There's only three words to describe line dancing... fun, friendship and fitness," says Pilkington who learned about the lessons from a poster in the local post office.

An accomplished square dancer, she was no stranger to following steps and instruction, but line dancing has won a special place in her heart. She has even brought several of her friends out to the lessons.

"I started just to keep in shape and because my friend was going too, but it's so much fun and Johnny is very patient, I keep coming back."

Wilson says it's the different rhythms that are available for people to learn that attracted him to line dancing.

"So many people can't recognize a waltz, a cha-cha or a rumba or what-ever... and I like to put that right if I can," he says.

Wilson uses all sorts of music for his line dancing lessons, including even a Mozart piece.

Wilson prefers to broaden the definition of line dancing to encompass more than just country and western music. He says solo dancing, a set routine of dance steps that dancers can perform individually without the need for partners in a row resembling a chorus line, is a more appropriate description of line dancing.

DANCING SOLO

It's the solo nature of line dancing that drew Winchester's Corrine Wilson (no relation to John Wilson) to the Williamsburg classes.

A widow, she had always enjoyed dancing, but the lack of a partner had sidelined her temporarily.

"With line dancing I can go by myself and have fun," says Corrine Wilson. "It's brand new for me."

She doesn't know whether she will get the cowboy boots and denim clothes favored by some line dancers.

"I was in Cornwall shopping with my daughter the other day and I saw a pair of cowboy boots. I told her they looked pretty attractive, but I don't know if I'll ever get them. I'm a little old for that nonsense," she laughs.

When pushed to name his favorite line dance, John Wilson admits it's the current popular "Achy Breaky" because of the challenging nature of the steps.

He sometimes uses videos to help his students learn the steps. Dances are for all levels, including ones that can be performed sitting down. Prospective dancers only have to show up says Wilson and pay the $2. The first lesson is free.

"A little bit of exercise, a little bit of good music and a good laugh at your own mistakes... it's great fun."

Town Hall

From conversations and notes that he had left, I have put together the following. My memories of the town hall include the nomination meetings held in the afternoon when it was standing room only as residents listened to the candidates for office. Some who stand out in my memory were Jack James, Cam Stuart, Jack Nixon, and George Lewis. They never referred to a written text. I believe they were called stump speeches. How, you may ask, could a young gaffer like myself witness these occasions? The answer is simple. I skipped school.

But it wasn't only local politicans who campaigned from the stage of the town hall. The Honorable George Drew and the Honorable Michael Dewan spoke to packed houses.

When Queen Elizabeth was crowned in 1952 television had just arrived in Ottawa. Brother Jim was working for Crawley Films and he brought a large TV to the hall. Lloyd Graham installed the antennae on the roof and many locals came to watch the coronation. It was their first taste of TV.

In a conversation with my brother Bob, he mentioned the fact that Mr. Blair had no use for ball point pens. In order for a document of any kind to be legal it was necessary to use a pen and ink.

The hall is not as you may remember it. Thanks to an imaginative council, a large addition has been built that conforms to the architectural style of the original. The hall itself is now the council chamber. The back room is now the foyer. Stairs lead down to offices and a large meeting hall. Other stairs lead up to the main offices. There is even an elevator to serve the handicapped.

I wonder, if today, council were to advertise for a township clerk and stated that the successful candidate must be prepared to clean the ashes from the stove, carry wood from the woodshed, build a fire and keep the stove going all day, would they have many applicants?

Farm update

Local group launches drive to purchase Co-op outlets

Greg Hewitt
Special to the Press

CHESTERVILLE — Local Co-op members are trying to keep the traditional farm products outlets in the hands of farmers.

United Co-operatives of Ontario (UCO), which owns 10 Co-op outlets in Eastern Ontario, announced recently that it is getting out of the retail business and would concentrate on wholesale.

And rather than have UCO sell the stores privately, a committee of Co-op members from the 10 outlets in the so-called Golden Triangle — from Finch to Gananoque to Eganville — is selling $100 shares in order to raise equity.

Those who buy three common shares will be entitled to Co-op membership. Members are entitled to shares of profit and voting privileges.

Six-per-cent cumulative and non-voting preference shares of $100 each are also being offered.

If Golden Triangle Co-operative Inc. raises $500,000 by the end of January, they can buy the Co-op stores and keep them farmer-operated. If not, UCO will sell the stores privately.

Chesterville Co-op board member Stan Vanden Bosch is chairman of the Golden Triangle equity committee.

He says many farmers feel the Co-op, although farmer-operated, is no longer in their control because the head office is in Mississauga.

He says if the group is successful in raising the money to buy the outlets, it will mean local operation of local Co-ops.

And if successful, the Golden Triangle group will take over the Kemptville feed and fertilizer bagging plant, fertilizer blender in Carp, 10 retail outlets including ones in Chesterville, Finch and Brinston, and a fleet of delivery trucks.

The Golden Triangle group is also negotiating with the privately-owned Brockville and Perth Co-ops to bring them into the organization.

"There is a positive response to what we are trying to do and we hope that will translate into people buying shares," Vanden Bosch says.

"But unless we raise that half-million by the end of January the deal is dead."

The organizing committee produced a pamphlet describing its situation and encouraging people to buy into the new corporation.

It describes the tradition and need for a farmer- operated retail outlet. It describes the deal as a "window of opportunity" and projects a $24-million sales and service revenue in its first year of operation.

An information meeting will be held at the Finch Legion Hall Jan. 7 at 1pm. Vanden Bosch noted that anybody, not just farmers, can buy shares in the new corporation.

He said similar groups are trying to buy the outlets in other areas of the province. In other areas, private Co-op owners will buy the stores.

Seven local children recently took prizes at Winchester's Paws and Claws pet food store coloring contest. In the front row are winners for the ages six and under catergory including first place winner Taryn McMenomy, 6, $50 draw winner Melissa Lee, 4, second place Louise Mulder, 6, and third place winner Karen Berends, 6. In the back row are two of the winners for the six and over catergory including first place winner Emma Guy, 10, and third place winner Melanie Flowers, 8. Second place winner Jeannine Roffey was absent.

Revamped FCC legislation tabled

REGINA — New legislation introduced recently expands the role of the federal Farm Credit Corporation (FCC) allowing it to make and guarantee loans to farm businesses diversifying operations beyond the farm gate.

Agriculture Minister Bill McKnight announced the tabling of the Farm Credit Corporation Act which replaces the Farm Credit Act, passed in 1959, and the Farm Syndicates Credit Act, passed in 1964.

"The new legislation means the FCC can now provide credit to farm operations carrying out related businesses off the farm," McKnight said. "This will help encourage diversification, value-added processing and the development of niche markets for farmers.

"By extending the mandate, the FCC now has the flexibility to provide specialized and personalized financial services to clients who are seeking to strengthen their positions in a changing and increasingly competitive agri-food market," the Minister added.

Under the previous Farm Credit Act, the FCC could only make loans for the purpose of farming. The legislation introduced today recognizes the recent trend of farm operations expanding into value- added businesses.

"The continued viability of family farm businesses, the agri-food sector and rural communities depends on the ability of farmers to develop new markets," Mr. McKnight said.

The provisions of the new Act were developed in consultation and at the request of industry. The legislation evolved out of the recommendations of the federal Task Force on Farm Finance, established in 1989, and the Working Group on Farm Finance, formed following the reort of the Task Force in June, 1990.

To provide more cost effective financial services to farmers, the new Act will allow the FCC to deliver joint programs and services with federal agencies, provincial governments and private lenders.

The removal of administrative restrictions now gives the FCC the authority to set loan limits, own land for periods longer than the previous five year limit, and establish security requirements in response to changing business conditions without seeking legislative changes. In addition, cabinet approval will not be required to set interest rates.

The FCC has a loan portfolio of about 60,000 accounts, valued at $3.6 billion. There are more than 100 offices located in rural communities across Canada.

Net farm incomes predicted to drop in '93

OTTAWA — Net cash income of Canadian farmers is expected to range between $6.7 and $7.7 billion in 1992, an increase of between 23 and 41 per cent over 1991, according to a forecast released Dec. 23 by Agriculture Canada economists.

The increase is due mainly to increased program payments, Canadian Wheat Board final payments and an improved livestock outlook, which more than offset lower crop receipts.

Net cash income — which is the measure of cash receipts less expenses — is expected to increase in 1992 in all provinces except Prince Edward Island. The largest increases are expected in Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta.

While income is expected to be higher in 1992, projections for 1993 indicate a decline in net cash income. Net cash income in 1993 is currently forecast at between $5.6 billion and $6.7 billion. Realized net income in 1993, which includes depreciation, is expected to range between $3.2 billion and $4.3 billion.

Provincially, net cash income is forecast to decrease in all provinces in 1993, except British Columbia. A decrease of between nine and 24 per cent is expected in the western provinces while the eastern provinces are expected to show a decrease of between four and 20 per cent.

Net cash income for the grains and oilseeds sector, which represents total receipts less expenses, is expected to increase to between $2.1 and $2.6 billion in 1992. This represents an increase of between four and 27 per cent from 1991 levels. For 1993, net cash income for the grains and oilseeds sector is expected to be between $1.4 and $1.9 billion. For all other commodities, net cash income is expected to be between $4.6 and $5.1 billion for 1992, and between $4.1 and $5.0 billion for 1993.

OUTLOOK AND FORECAST

Farm cash receipts

- Total cash receipts in 1992 are expected to increase between eight and 10 per cent from 1991 to $23.2 to $23.5 billion.

- In 1993, total cash receipts are expected to decrease between zero and eight per cent to from between $21.4 to $23.3 billion.

- Program payments are forecast to reach between $3.5 and $4.3 billion in 1992, an increase of between 50 to 83 per cent over 1991.

- In 1993, program payments are expected to decrease slightly to between $2.6 and $3.6 billion. Most of the decrease is attributed to the completion of FSAM I and II.

Crop receipts

- Crop receipts in 1992 are forecast to decrease by as much as nine per cent to between $7.6 and $8.6 billion. The reduction is due to lower levels of marketing and lower harvest quality.

- In 1993, crop receipts are expected to decrease by as much as 12 per cent to between $7.1 to $8.4 billion as a result of poor weather conditions in the fall of 1992.

Livestock receipts

- Livestock receipts are expected to increase in 1992 to between $11.3 and $11.4 billion.

- This increase is due to the strength of cattle exports.

- The outlook for livestock receipts is largely unchanged in 1993 from 1992.

- 1993 hog prices are expected to average higher than in 1992, contributing to a modest increase in livestock receipts of about one per cent on average to between $11.2 and $11.8 billion.

Farm expenses

- Operating expenses are expected to remain about the same level in 1992 and 1993 as in 1991.

- A slight decrease is expected in 1992 to $15.6 to $16.7 billion.

- Little change is forecast in 1993 to between $15.4 to $16.9 billion.

- In both years, the percentage change is expected to be less than one per cent.

- Decreases in interest, feed, rent expenses and insurance premiums are expected in 1992, with continued decreases in interest and rent in 1993.

Food prices

- The Consumer Price Index (CPI) for food declined by 0.5 per cent in 1992, the first decrease since 1958.

- In 1993, the CPI for food is expected to increase by two to four per cent; food purchased from stores is forecast to rise by one to three per cent, while the CPI for restaurant food is expected to increase by two to four per cent.

Livestock

- Total marketings of Canadian beef are expected to increase two per cent in 1993.

- Inventory of cattle and calves on Jan. 1, 1993 will be about 12 million head, up one per cent over the same date in 1992.

- Canadian slaughter is expected to increase two per cent next year while exports of live cattle to the U.S. are expected to remain at similar levels to 1992.

- Slaughter cattle prices in 1993 are expected to average near the same levels as the previous year.

- Canadian hog inventories are forecast to decrease by one to three per cent and marketings will dip by two per cent.

- Live hog exports in 1993 are expected to increase substantially, while pork exports are expected to decline slightly.

- Canadian lamb production for 1993 is expected to decline slightly while prices are forecast to increase slightly.

Poultry

- Canadian chicken consumption in 1993 is expected to rise about two per cent over year-earlier levels. Domestic production is expected to rise about three per cent.

- Domestic turkey consumption should increase about 1.5 per cent, while domestic production is expected to decline by about six per cent in 1993 due mainly to quota reduction for the 1992-93 control period.

Dairy

- Market Share Quota has been reduced in 1992-93 by three per cent because of continuing decline in demand for butterfat.

- It is expected that sometime during the current dairy year or in 1993-94, Canada will switch from a surplus in solid non-fat (skim milk powder, for example) to a surplus in butterfat.

- Fluid milk consumption in 1992-93 is expected to follow usual patterns; sales of standard milk are forecast to fall while sales of low-fat milk are expected to increase.

- Demand for butter continues to fall at a faster rate than expected (10 per cent in the 1991-92 dairy year) but the decrease is expected to slow in the next two years.

- Cheddar cheese consumption is expected to increase slightly in 1992-93.

Wheat

- In 1993-94, supplies of wheat worldwide, especially high-quality wheat, are expected to increase slightly mainly because of higher production in the U.S. and Eastern Europe and improved crop conditions in North America.

- In Canada, total wheat production is expected to decline slightly while exports are expected to increase slightly.

- The Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) price for durum is expected to remain at a discount to spring wheat because of higher exporting costs.

Coarse grain

- In 1993-94 in Canada, the supply of coarse grain, especially corn, is projected to increase.

- Canadian corn prices will increase in 1992-93 although U.S. corn prices are expected to decrease. This is due to the weakness of the Canadian dollar and because Canada will become a net importer of corn in 1992-93.

- The price of barley is projected to remain relatively stable although barley production in Canada is projected to increase.

- Both the price of oats and oat exports are projected to decrease slightly in 1993-94.

Oilseeds

- Canadian canola and soybean production is projected to be moderately higher and flaxseed production is expected to recover in 1993-94.

- Increased exports of Canadian oilseeds products are expected.

- Canadian 1993-94 oilseed prices are expected to remain the same or slightly above the stronger prices being observed in 1992-93.

Horticulture

- The Canadian farm price for apples is expected to decline in 1992-93.

- Canadian apple production in 1992 increased to a record 550,000 tonnes or 7.6 per cent above 1991 levels.

- The Canadian farm price for potatoes is expected to decline in 1992-93.

- In 1992, Canadian potato production went up by 23.4 per cent reaching a record 3.5 million tonnes. The increase was particularly strong in PEI (26.6 per cent), New Brunswick (34.6 per cent) and Manitoba (28.8 per cent). Yields increased in all provinces.

Special crops

- North American dry bean production is expected to increase due to improved yields and crop quality in 1993-94.

- Plantings of dry peas are expected to increase by five per cent while lentil plantings will likely decline by five per cent.

- Mustard seed producers are likely to increase yellow mustard plantings while plantings of brown and oriental seed will be maintained at 1992-93 levels.

Mountain Musings

by Shirley Mills

I was in a used book store recently, not unusual for someone who reads a great deal, but what struck me was the memories books can conjure up. Not necessarily the stories themselves but sometimes the situation when the story was read.

Take "Lassie Come Home" for instance. This took me right back to a young age when I went to see the movie of the same name. It was a Saturday matinee and for some reason I had gone alone. Well, Lassie gets lost and has to make her way home, overcoming difficulties, to her owner who is pining for the lost dog. A real tearjerker and I can still remember my embarrassment over sitting there weeping.

Sometimes it's the books themselves I remember vividly like "The Secret Garden." It had everything — a sickly young boy, a spoiled child, a secret garden which was coaxed back to life (don't forget I was a city child who had never planted anything), those knowledgeable about animals and a most satisfactory happy ending.

I am a compulsive reader and start another book as soon as the previous one is finished but, with few exceptions, I read indiscriminately yet enjoy most of them. One exception was when, at age 14 and newly arrived in Canada, I was offered "The Yellow Briar" by the school librarian. This is a dry-as- dust historical story about a pub in York (Toronto) — and the first book I didn't finish. It also took me many years to pick up another Canadian book.

I am easily sidetracked and if I find a topic of interest I tend to read everything I can on the subject. This has led down varied paths — ballet, mountaineering, archeology, the psychic world, etc. — interspersed with more regular "escape" literature. A simple little paperback however, had the most impact on my life.

In Elizabeth Peters' "The Seventh Sinner," a work of fiction, one of the characters was a librarian. This woman, while not claiming to know everything, had the skills to find any information. I was fascinated. With my lightweight approach to knowledge, wanting to know a little bit about a lot of things, here was my answer. So, I went to college and took library training.

Now I'm a librarian in a small public library. Not only do I have thousands of books waiting to be read, can help others look up factual information, suggest books I've enjoyed, but I can even, as part of my job, go into book stores.

For a reader, who could ask for more!

Resolve to make a difference

MORRISBURG — A new year upon us and once again the resolutions are trotted out, dusted off and we vow to have another go at them — only this time we'll stick to them. Right!

In our last column we promised to provide some environmental New Year's resolutions. Some of these will be familiar to you; some may be new. To do all of them would be challenging; to do none, irresponsible. Why not choose half a dozen (which will entail reasonable but important changes to your lifestyle) and make a commitment to stick with them for 1993. You never know. When 1994 comes along, you may be ready to accept another half dozen environmental resolutions.

WATER
- fix that leaky tap
- don't pour toxics into drains. Store safely and save for Oct. 2, 1993 — Dundas's Household Hazardous Waste Day
- don't run water unnecessarily. Cut down on water wastage by turning off the tap (when brushing teeth for instance)
- replace regular shower heads with low flow heads

ENERGY
- turn thermostat down at night
- turn off lights in unused rooms
- reduce driving by walking between stops when shopping or doing errands

The Dundas Environmental Awareness Group

GARDEN
- start a compost
- reduce dependence on herbicides and pesticides by using alternatives
- start grasscycling. Leave lawn clippings on lawn instead of treating them as waste
- plant one tree

HOUSEHOLD
- learn what to put in your blue box and use it!
- use returnable bottles instead of recycling (saves more energy in processing and reprocessing)
- donate unwanted items to special agencies (Naomi House, House of Lazarus, Salvation Army) instead of automatically throwing out
- use rechargeable batteries, not disposable ones
- store household hazardous wastes for the next collection day, Oct. 2, 1993

CONSUMER ACTION
- boycott over-packaged goods
- use a cloth bag or reuse grocery bags to bring home purchases
- shop wisely. Buy for the long-term

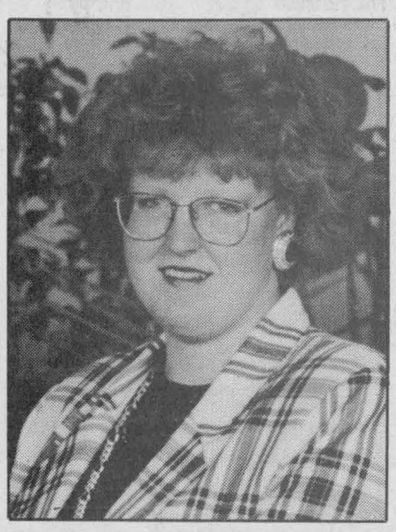
CITIZEN ACTION
- become knowledgeable about and involved in local environmental issues
- join an environmental group
- lobby for government action on known sources of pollution
- organize clean-up days at parks, beaches, green spaces

There is no premium on ideas for resolutions. The challenge lies in turning an idea into a resolution; a resolution into a way of life.

GREENER CHRISTMAS

Hats off to Elma Public School for celebrating Christmas with an environmental theme. Crafts and decorations where made of (and wrapped in) pre-used material truly an example of "one person's trash is another person's treasure".

May 1993 bring happiness to all our readers.



Tanya McNeely

Tanya McNeely of Russell was the winner of the W. Ross Elliot Bursary at the McDonald Campus of McGill University's annual Scholastic Awards of the Faculty of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences including the School of Dietetics and Human Nutrition. The awards ceremony was held in November.

McRoberts clan hails New Year

by Jean Milne

WINCHESTER — Winchester Lions Hall was the location for the annual New Year's Day party when the McRoberts Clan met for a time of fun, food and fellowship.

"Gramps" Bill McRoberts, wearing his tartan, welcomed everyone, with a special welcome to new arrivals since last January. These included Wyatt Milne-Elliott, Randy Woodley, Julia Smith, Lisa McRoberts, Emily McRoberts and Nicole Soucy.

Sixty-six family members of all ages enjoyed a delicious pot luck buffet, followed by an afternoon spent in games and visiting.

Verna and Harry McRoberts hosted this year's party and invited everyone to the next get-together — the summer picnic which will be held June 27 at their home in Winchester.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS — We would like to take this opportunity to express our deepest gratitude to our friends and family for their tremendous support and love, after the loss of our precious daughter, Brittany. To our families, who were always there for us, day and night. You cannot begin to express how thankful we are to each of you. Your thoughtfulness and compassion will always be remembered. To our friends and relatives, who sent the many cards, letters, flowers and donations and to everyone who sent gifts of food to the house. Thank you for your words of sympathy and comfort. Your kind thoughts are truly appreciated. Our heartfelt thanks to Dr. Merrett, Dr. Campbell and Dr. Fiegel for their excellent care and support, before and after Brittany's birth. A sincere thank you to the St. Catherine's CWL for catering the luncheon, to Chris Duncan for his caring assistance in such difficult times, and to Father Vayalil for his spiritual words of support and beautiful mass.

"A butterfly lights beside us like a sunbeam.
And for a brief moment
it's glory and beauty belong to our world.
But then it flys on again,
and though we wish it could have stayed,
we feel so lucky
to have cherished it."
- Author Unkown

Brittany... you are our little butterfly, forever in our hearts.
— Sincerely, Steven, Maureen, Brandon and Kaitlyn Wade

VERSPEEK — In memory of Gerard, cherished husband, father and grandfather, who left us so suddenly Jan. 8, 1992.
It's lonely here without you
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same for us,
Since you were taken away,
You worked so hard for many years,
With just one thought in mind,
To help your family as they grew,
The best of life to find.
We often said we'd miss you,
These words have proven true,
For now when worries trouble us,
We cannot turn to you.
— Always remembered and loved, wife Henrica, children and grandchildren 40

JOHNSTON — In memory of Glenna Johnston who passed away Jan. 4, 1980.
In tears we watched you
We saw you fade away
Our hearts were almost broken
You fought so hard to stay.
But when we saw you sleeping
So peacefully free from pain
We could not wish you back
To suffer that again.

Budget cuts play havoc with municipalities

Chris Thatcher
Special to the Press

WILLIAMSBURG — Keeping the municipal tax rate at or below the rate of inflation will be one of Williamsburg Township's main objectives in the new year.

But continued cutbacks by the Ontario government could make that quite a challenge, said Reeve Johnny Whitteker.

"The Ontario government seems to be putting more things down to the municipal level and this, in turn, is going to make it tough to hold the mill rate down to inflation," he said in a recent interview.

Whitteker expects that provincial funding cuts to school boards and hospitals will force municipal governments to pay for more and more services.

"There's quite a few things that are going to make it tough for us to keep it (the mill rate) down. We're the last stop for the ratepayers."

Small things such as testing the township lagoon, which used to be covered by the province, have added to the municipal bill.

"That used to be paid 100-percent. Now we have to pay for it. It will cost us about $600 to do it," Whitteker said.

In spite of the cuts, Williamsburg received several large grants from the provincial government in 1992. Three supplementary road grants were approved, as was a grant to help pay for street lights at two intersections on Hwy. 31.

"The NDP, a year ago, was trying to spend its way out of recession and we made applications for four supplementaries and three were approved," said Whitteker. "They were for road work and we got lot of roads blacktopped or widened."

Though council intends to continue its "blacktop program" in 1993, its plans could be affected by further budget cuts.

"We're also looking foward to getting all the township numbered and lighting up our intersections at Hwy. 31," Whitteker said.

Rural numbering, which has been in the planning stages for the past five years, was given the go ahead at United Counties council several weeks ago, said Whitteker.

"I think, finally, we're going to get it completed," he said.

The veteran reeve had a new council to work with in 1992. All four councillors, Trevor Tolley, David Carkner, Robert Gillard and Lyle Van Allen, are serving their first term. But inexperience was not a hindrance, according to Whitteker.

"I have a very good council," he said. "They debate things very well and they don't always agree. And that gives us not only one opinion but five."
