Replacement Value Sought By Councils

Councils for six Seaway Valley municipalities voted unanimously at a meeting in Morrisburg on Monday to adopt a resolution calling fos new legislation which would enforce the principle of replacement value for compensation for those forced by the St. Lawrence project to seek new homes.

Presentation of the resolution was made by Reeve George E. Beavers of Morrisburg. O er municipalities taking part in the meeting were the village of Iroquois and the Township of Matilda,, Cornwall, Osnabruck and Williamsburg. The meeting was chaired by Mr. Thorold Lane, the deputy reeve of Osnabruck Township.

Text of the resolution follows: — "RESOLVED: that all property settlements arising from the St. Lawrence Power Project be withheld till such time as there has been put in the statutes, legislation stating in unequivocal terms, that citizens whose property is expropriated shall be paid the replacement value of such property, plus an additional amount for inconvenience and compulsory taking, and five per centum interest from the day of taking until the day of payment. The legislation should also provide that such citizen may, in lieu of compensation, have the choice, as nearly as may be, of a similar property in new, planned community, and as previously stated, that sufficient reliable information be available to every person to enable him to make an intelligent choice between a cash settlement or a new property".

(The above resolution was taken word for word from the brief presented by the Morrisburg Council in July 1952. This was prepared by the then Morrisburg Citizen's Committee and presented to the International Joint Commission expressing the conditional approval upon which agreement would be giaen for the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project).

There was a noted air of resentment at Monday night's meeting with the present methods of the Ontario Hydro as regards compensation and/or rehabilitation. Reeve George E. Beavers of Morrisburg, drew a parallel between the present negotiations and the reconversion program in Western Ontario. Hydro users in that district, he said, had their appliances converted from 25 to 60 cycle power at no cost. although the Eastern Ontario power user had to assume his share of the overall program. Similarly, in this area, we should not be out of pocket one dollar on a much larger program which would benefit not only the rest of Ontario, but the whole of Canada, and a large part of the United States.

Chairman Lane stated that he had given assurance to his constituents that they would be genreously treated by Hydro. He had been convinced then, he said, that he was speaking the truth at that time, but since then he had seen with regret, but still with some hope, the reasons for his faith in Ontario Hydro collapse.

The people of the district would remember he said, the committment of Premier Leslie Frost, at his Morrisburg meeting in June, of proper legislation to guarantee just and equitable compensation.

Other speakers included reeves Lloyd Davis of Iroquois and Orval Seeley of Matilda.

MORRISBURG IOOF INSTALLS OFFICERS AT WILLIAMSBURG

The IOOF installing suite from Morrisburg, under the direction of District Deputy John Thompson, with the capable assistance of Deputy Marshall G. William Gorrell, installed the officers of Williamsburg Lodge No. 349 into their respective offices in a very capable manner.

After the instaling of the officers a short speech-making period was held under the chairmanship of the new Noble Grand, Mr. Lee McIntosh The District Deputy Grand Master, in his address to the members, stated that the large attendance at this meeting was an assurance that the great work done by this lodge during the past term would continue for some of the actions of the Lodge during the past term, such as final payment on their hall, the prize donated for the most new members in the district, the Grand Lodge of Ontario's prize for having 24 new members in one year and many others. Other speakers during the evening were Messrs. G. William Gorrell, Keith Schell, William Whitteker Clifford Seel Herm Hummell, Charlie Hummell and others. After the meeting, lunch was served by the kitchen committee.

MRS. WALTON ROBSON DIES IN CORNWALL HOSPITAL AFTER LONG ILLNESS

The death of Mrs. Walton Robson at a Cornwall Hospital on Monday, October 25th, removed an old and highly esteemed resident of Morrisburg. Her illness had extended over a long period and she had been in hospital for several months.

Born at Norfolk, N. Y. in 1877, she was a daughter of the late William Sherman and his wife, Martha Scott, her maiden name being Nella Louise Sherman. She was the last survivor of a family of four and on her mother's side a descendent of Abraham Lincoln, a president of the United States. About 1880 her family come to Morrisburg, where her father operated one of the early hotels. She attended schools here and in 1903 was married at Morrisburg to Walton Robson of Iroquois, who survives. They lived for a time in Iroquois, later going to Ottawa. After the Halifax explosion during World War I, they moved to that city where her husband followed his trade of carpenter, coming to Morrisburg in 1924, and residing here since.

The body rested at her home on Riverside Drive until Thursday, where the funeral service was held at 2.30 p.m. Rev. J. Maxwell Allan, pastor of the United Church, of which she was a devout member, was in charge of the service.

Interment followed the service in Fairview Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Mr. B. Sherman, Mr. J. R. Deitz, Mr. R. Prosser, all nephews of the deceased; Mr. D. Anderson, a cousin; Mr. C. Dunlop and Mr. B. Robinson.

Relatives and friends from a distance present for the funeral included: Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Sherman, of East Orange, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Jno. R. Deitz and Helen of Brockville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. David Anderson Miss Sally and Mr. George Anderson, Potsdam, N. Y.; Mrs. Peter Terrion, Prescott; Mr. Alvin Prosser Cardinal, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Proser, Morrisburg; Mr. and Mrs. John Haggertty, Prescott; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hooker and Mrs. Gerald Walthauser, Brockville; Mr. and Mrs. C. Presley, Perth, Ont; Mrs. Jessie Dunlop, Mr. C. J. Dunlop and Mrs Vahey, Ottawa.

PLANNING BOARD MEETING HEARS REPORT ON NEW MORRISBURG PLAN

A meeting of the Morrisburg and Williamsburg Planning Board was held in the Council Chamber on October 27th at 8.00 p.m.

Present were Geo. E. Beavers, C. M. Crober, R. H. Armstrong, A. W. Guay, B. Froats. Present also for the Council, in addition to Mr. Beavers and Mr. Guay were H. B. Duvall, and J. A. Edgerton.

It was resolved that Charles M. Crober be appointed as chairman.

Mr. J. S. L. King, of King, Coons, Ltd., was present and explained at some length his firm's critical study of the plan proposed by Ontario Hydro for the Village of Morrisburg. Members of the Planning Board and Council asked numerous questions, and many points were discussed rather thoroughly. The general conclusion and recommendation in the written report of King Coons, Limited, was as follows:

CONCLUSION

A general conclusion may be drawn as a result of this study, namely:—

The plan "Reconstruction Project and Plan for Expansion" presented by the Ontario Hydro is a workable plan which would entail a minimum of expenditure by the Hydro, at the cost of adversely affecting the future development of Morrisburg and abbutting areas of Williamsburg Township.

Further, it may be concluded that the general principles underlying the plan should be acceptable to the municipalities and that by means of coperative negotiation, a plan may be adopted which will preserve and enhance development possibilities without imposing an undue burden on the Ontario Hydro.

RECOMMENDATION

We would recommend that the Morrisburg and Williamsburg Planning Board consider the plan not acceptable in its present form, and request the Department of Planning and Development and/or the Ontario Hydro to enter into discussions with them for the purpose of determining rehabilitation requirements and a method of fitting them to the continuing needs of the Municipality".

Asked when King Coons, Limited proposed plan for Morrisburg would be ready, Mr. King stated that he expected to bring it here on Friday the 5th day of November. It was agreed that the Planning Board would meet in Friday night, November 5. with the Council present, to study the plan, discuss it with Mr. King, and make any changes desired. After revision the plan will then be presented to the citizens at a public meeting.

SEAWAY AUTHORITY TO HANDLE ITS OWN PLAN FOR COMPENSATION

Officers of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority visited the Iroquois district this week and announced to interested parties that the matter of compensation, with regard to properties expropriated for the St. Lawrence Seaway will be handled by the Toronto firm of W. H. Bosley, independent of Ontario Hydro, which will be expropriating land for the St. Lawrence Seaway-Power Development. Previously the federal government had indicated all compensation for persons displaced would be the responsibility of the Ontario Hydro.

Owners of the first farms to be taken, Mr. Chevrier said, would be receiving notices of expropriation proceedings within a few months.

It is expected the lock on the Canadian side of the river will be dug through the centre of Iroquois Point.

When completed the seaway lock would give permanent employment to 30 people.

Iroquois Reeve Lloyd C. Davis, Matilda Township Reeve J. Orval Seeley, along with their councils and representatives of the Iroquois Planning Board, attended the meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

On Friday evening, October 15th, a group of Morrisburg cadets, accompanied by Mr. E. H. Greig, Chief Cadet Instructor, left for Connaught Ranges near Ottawa, for a week-end of military training. The cadets were fed upon arrival and then billeted in heated quarters, separate from the Reserve Forces.

Reveille called them for breakfast at seven a.m., followed by training in wireless, bren gun carriers and military vehicles. Training in the use of the "Nineteen" and the newest "Twenty-Six" sets in wireless communication gave more instruction than could be gained in a month with local equipment. Such training may assist in disasters such as the recent "Hurricane Hazel".

Sunday morning found every cadet andinsttructor at morning church service at eight o'clock. The services and messages were reported worthwhile.

Morrisburg parents and citizens can be proud of the good report of the conduct of their cadets while they were at summer camps this year as well as at the recent week end camp.

NEW FINA STATION NEARLY READY FOR OFFICIAL OPENING

Although products and service have been available to the public for some time, finishing touches are now being made to the new Fina Service Station at the corner of Isabella and Main Streets, Morrisburg in preparation for an early official opening. This i sthe latest addition to the many new stations being opened by Canadian Petrofina, Limited, affiliate of the world-famous Petrofina group of oil companies.

This new Canadian Company, with headquarters in Montreal, came into being last year. Since that time, Canadian Petrofina Limited has established itself as an increasingly important factor in the Canadian Petroleum industry. Its Fina products have been made available at scores of retail outlets in Eastern Canada.

The decision to market Fina petroleum products in Canada was made after a careful study indicated that Canada's growing population and motor vehicle registrations woul result in a growing demand for refined petroleum productts of a high standard. To meet this demand, a new refinery, capable of processing 700,000 gallons of crude oil per day will soon be put into operation by the company in Point-aux-Trembles on the Island of Montreal.

The new service station in Morrisburg, like the company's other new stations will be identified by the FINA trade name. Jack Notman, well known Morrisburg citizen is the lessee-dealer of this new Fina station.

The number of housing units built in Canada during 1953 reached an all-time peak of 96,839.

ANNE HIRST
Your Family Counselor

Dear Anne Hirst: I can't understand why so many wives complain when their husbands handle money! I handle ours, and it is a nuisance. My husband didn't want to be bothered with it, so when we married three years ago I took it on. I am too impatient by nature to enjoy the task; more than once I've made bad mistakes that landed us in a hole . . . He never scolds me, just goes over the figures and straightens me out.

"Once I got so discouraged I asked him to take over. He did for two months — and forgot to pay important bills! He does have a responsible position, and often works at night. I am willing enough to help as I can, but this job irks me and I've come to hate it.

"We never quarrel about money. I give him an allowance, and if he needs more I hand that out, too; I spend little on myself because I feel guilty. I'd feel better if he would do the whole thing, and I ask him for what I want; he is so indulgent that I'm sure I wouldn't mind . . . Is there an easy way to manage?

BAD MANAGER"

FIGURES ARE COMFORTING

The word budget frightens you, I expect, yet how can you know where you are spending too much if you don't keep a record of it? That is all a budget is. Your bank, or the dime store, has housekeeping budget books that will give you a start. Get one.

Begin immediately; put down every dollar (cash or check) under its proper head-in — rent, food, clothes, contributions, incidentals, etc. At the end of the month, add up each column. That will show you how much you have spent and for what. Set aside some sum, however small, for regular savings. If you find yourself in a hole again, that will prove a comfort.

Buy a desk calendar, with a page for every day. As each bill comes in, observe when it is due and make a note on the calendar so you won't forget to pay it.

You needn't keep a budget forever, you know; a few months of careful use will indicate your average expenses. Then you will find where you can economize if you must, or buy that new frock without feeling guilty. Also, you will feel a grand relief knowing that bills are being paid on time; that establishes one's credit, a valuable asset.

Since your husband is so busy and dislikes the task anyhow, you can spare him this burden — and won't he be proud that you've licked the job!

Don't be afraid of it; once figures are mastered, they can be fascinating. Approach them as a challenge. Take your time, and soon you will feel the lift of conquering an unwelcome chore.

— And how many other wives will envy you your husband's faith!

"HE DOUBLE-CROSSED ME!"

"Dear Anne Hirst: For six months I've been going with a wonderful girl — and then my brother came home from Korea. She met him, and now they are inseparable! I feel sure they love each other.

"I had not told her (or anybody) that I loved her because I wasn't sure, but this interference has crystallized my affection. I don't see how I can go on without her! Yet I want her to be happy, even if it must be with someone else.

"Don't you think he should have been more loyal? I feel I've been double-crossed by a brother I've always been close to."

HURT AND JEALOUS"

You are doing your brother an injustice, in my opinion He did not know you were in love with the girl. The two were immediately attracted, and naturally they are always together. You have lost out — but could you lose to a better man?

You say you want the girl's happiness more than your own. Now you have the chance to prove it. If these two marry, you will rejoice with them, and carry your disappointment silently.

Should this happen, don't grow bitter. I am confident that another happiness will come to you after a while. A young man capable of such unselfish love as you are will not be alone for long.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

by Gwendoline D Clarke

It is often said there should be a good dog on every farm. With that we agree. A well-trained dog is invaluable. A good cattle dog is also generally a good house dog too. Our Tippy is just that sort of dog. Remember I told you a few weeks back how she came to the rescue when Partner was dealing with a strange bull. And of course no one could visit the house or the barn without Tippy giving us fair warning. That's fine for the average visitor, but when the caller happens to be afraid of dogs and there is no one around, that's a different story.

Last Sunday was the Harvest Festival at our church. After supper I went down to the evening service but Partner went out to milk his cows. (Those cows interfere with so many things we should like to do together.) About seven-forty-five visitors arrived. The Man at the Wheel was going on to make another call while his wife and daughter visited with me. L—— was nearly up to the house when Tippy came on the run from the woodshed, barking furiously. L—— hurriedly wedged herself between the screen-door and the inside door, knocking with repeated urgency. But of course there was no one to answer the door—except Honey. Honey, hearing Tippy barking outside decided she might as well do her share from the inside. So there they were—a perfect trio. Tippy, Honey and L——, frantically calling to her husband to come and get her. But the Man at the Wheel was afraid of dogs too so all he did was sit there and shout encouragement to his wife—over the barking of the dogs—to come on back to the car, the dogs wouldn't hurt her! Which was true.

Fortunately Partner heard the commotion and left the barn to investigate the cause. In a little while all was peace and quietness. And thus I found things when I returned home half an hour later. But I am not too sure that our friends agree with the idea the every farm family should have a good dog.

Naturally we were sorry our friends found themselves in such a predicament but we still feel it was unnecessary. We also think that a person might as well not keep a dog at all as keep one that doesn't bark. Dogs of course have a great instinct regarding human reaction to their watch-dog tactics. A dog knows very well when a person is afraid of him—and the more fear the person shows the more the dog barks. Walk up to a house or barn and take absolutely no notice of any dog that runs out to meet you and the chances are he will just go about his business satisfied that you have no evil designs upon the house or its occupants. For my part the only kind of dog I am afraid of is the kind that slinks along behind me and doesn't bark. That sort of dog needs watching.

Well, we seem to be getting plenty of rain these days, but was there ever a fall that was more beautiful? The few nights of white frost that we got a little while ago really did the trick. And now the current spell of warm weather is prolonging the season of colour and charm. And what is left in the garden is still growing. Last week I was busy potting the geranium slips I had rooted in the garden. And speaking of geraniums we have one small bed at the back of the house, hard as clay, and yet it grows the biggest geraniums I ever saw. I picked two leaves the other day—one measured seven inches across the other six and a half. One plant had 32 heads in full bloom at one time. And then, just as it was at the height of its glory something began happening to my lovely geranium. One by one the leaves turned brown and died, but they did not drop off. In a few weeks it was a sad looking plant although it kept on blooming. Yesterday I decided it was no longer a thing of beauty nor could it possibly be a joy forever, so I pulled the plant up by the roots. Turning it upside down I examined the woody stalks and found a dozen or more creamy-white insects in and around the roots—insects like miniature centipedes — lots of legs and a pair of prong-like feelers. Without a doubt these insects had been responsible for the slow death of the plant. But what were they and how does one get at the things to stop their work of destruction? If anyone knows the answer I should be glad of advice as I hope to have a lot of geraniums bedded out next year, and it would be awful if they all went the same way.

Our grandson was here yesterday and he must be getting to know his grandma as he went to sleep in my arms while his mummy and daddy were out picking apples.

Golden Fish 'n' Batter

Heat shortening (it should be at least two inches deep) to 370° in a deep-frying pan. (If a fat thermometer is not available, test fat temperature with a cube of bread—the bread should brown in 60 seconds). Cut 1 pound fillets of any suitable fish into serving sized pieces and sprinkle lightly with salt. Mix and sift into a bowl 1 c. once-sifted pastry flour (or ⅞ cup once-sifted all-purpose flour), 1½ tsps. Magic Baking Powder and ½ tsp. salt; stir in ½ c. very cold water and beat until batter is very smooth. Dip fish pieces in batter and then fry in heated shortening, turning once, until golden. Drain thoroughly on absorbent paper, sprinkle lightly with salt and keep hot until all fish has been cooked. Yield—4 servings.

Always Dependable

How Can I?

Q. How can I wash suede jackets?

A. Wash in warm water and soap suds, to which has been added about one tablespoon of household ammonia to a gallon of water. Rinse and stretch to the desired size to dry.

Q. How can I avoid wasting cream?

A. Rinse the cream pitcher with cold water before pouring the cream in it. This will prevent the cream from sticking to the sides of the pitcher.

Q. How can I make the ceiling of a room look much higher?

A. Hang the curtains from the top of the window to the floor instead of stopping at the bottom of the window.

Q. How can I prevent coal from burning too quickly?

A. This will not happen if a solution of one-half pound of washing soda to a gallon of water is sprinkled over the coal a few days before burning. It will also give more heat.

Q. How can I hasten the cooking when using a double boiler?

A. The cooking will be quickened if salt water is put in the outer part of the double boiler. It will create a greater heat than if ordinary water is used.

Q. How can I remove ink stains that are on wood?

A. Apply equal parts of linseed oil and vinegar. Use a soft cloth.

Q. How can I clean white felt?

Decorate your ceiling with balloons for children's party. Inflated balloons will stick to the ceiling without cellulose tape, if you lightly rub each balloon over your hair to create electricity.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

● British people are almost proverbially sporting, traditionally addicted to the side of the under-dog in sports contests. There's something fine and sincere about this, and it's doubtful that British sentiment ever reached a finer pitch than when all England's tennis world rooted with feverish acclaim for Jaroslov Drobny, a Czech exile, to win the Wimbledon Challenge Cup the past summer.

This was amazing, in view of the fact that Drobny was playing Ken Rosewell, a crafty, speedy and young Australian who had just knocked the last hope of the United States, Tony Trabert, out of the running.

Not even could the Hollywood wizards of film have planned a final fade-out more dramatically — for a king, a princess, dukes and duchesses and masses of commoners screamed and applauded and actually wept with sheer joy as "Old Drob" at last attained the goal for which he began striving as a boy of 16 in 1938.

Since then he has been in the finals twice and always in the quarter-finals or semi-finals. He played first as a Czech, then for a time as a man literally without a country as he fled the Communist regime which had swallowed his own country, a regime he found distasteful.

Knowing all this, appreciating a background not untouched with personal heroism, and scenting that, perhaps, it was now or never for this quiet man, his final victory in a long, bitterly-fought match was greeted by a most extraordinary scene of genuine tribute and congratulation.

Here was a man who had overcome all the vicissitudes of fortune to become champion. Six times in nine years Drobny had reached the semi-finals at Wimbleton. And at this, his third final, he was champion at last. So, even though he had defeated a Britisher to achieve the goal at last, sporting England rose to give him a tremendous ovation.

The self-exiled Czech, now a naturalized Egyptian but married to an Englishwoman and living in England, had everybody but the most loyal Australians on his side. Even the Duchess of Kent told him as she presented the glittering silver challenge cup that she had her thumbs crossed for him.

All this, we think, rates as one of the finest sporting gestures of a year which has had a great many of them.

.. PLAIN HORSE SENSE ..

By F. (BOB) VON PILIS

Our article on the confused thinking on Liberalism, Socialism, Capitalism and Democracy, as manifested in a recent editorial in Saturday Night, apparently aroused considerable interest.

Mrs. Winifred M. O'Rourke, Wexford, Ontario, writes: "I read with interest your syndicated column in which you take to task the writer of an editorial in a recent issue of Saturday Night. I think it is the first time that I have ever seen St. Thomas Aquinas referred to in a secular paper, and I congratulate you on it. Mind you I wonder just how many people would know to whom you were referring."

Angelic Doctor

In a period of worldly thinking, like the present, which concentrates all efforts on technological, i.e. material progress, and which has banned all spiritual influences from our daily life, it is quite likely that a large number of people would never have heard of Thomas d'Aquinas.

Thomas was born over 700 years ago five miles north of the little Italian town Aquinum; hence the name d'Aquinas. Like all young men going to university in the middle ages, his education included philosophy and theology. He joined the Dominican Order and wrote a number of books.

His best known and universal work was the Summa Theologica in which he treats of all aspects of life, material as well as spiritual.

The Summa forms the basis of all teaching of the Universal Church. Thomas wrote it within a few years, but was prevented from finishing it by an early death at the age of 49. He was canonized by the Church and is also known as the "angelic doctor."

Social Justice

A large part of the Summa is devoted to the definition of Justice and it is here that he warned against secularization by the commercializing influences of trade and finance.

He dealt extensively with the natural right to property, discussing the possibilities of common property and private use, or private property with common use. He came to the conclusion that private property, limited by the demands of the common good, was the better solution. However, he pointed out that this was a question of expediency to avoid strife within society.

St. Thomas was quite outspoken in his condemnation of the profit motive unless directed to an intrinsic good as the maintenance of a family or the improvement of society as a whole.

The inclusion of the teachings of the angelic doctor in the curricula of our schools would certainly go a long ways to make this a better world to live in.

These Girls Really Go After Their Man

June 24th is the shortest day of the year for feminine crowning glory in Brazil, for at dawn on that day Sao Joao girls cut their hair as short as their vanity will allow to make it grow lustrous and beautiful, and at night they put three red roses under their pillow so that they may dream of their future husband.

If they can't find three red roses, they write a selection of names on pieces of paper and put them, folded, in a bowl of water. They are sure to marry the one whose name is on the piece of paper which has opened most by morning.

It is the season of Festas Joaninas, a time of revelry almost the match of the famous Carnival in Brazil. Parties go on all night, gay parties with dancing, bonfires and fireworks, lasting altogether nearly three weeks.

The bonfires are in memory of the fire lit by St. Isabel, mother of Sao Joao, to signal his birth to her cousin the Virgin Mary. Coins are thrown into it and are collected afterwards for the poor. And couples leap over the bonfire to bless their marriage.

As the night wears on it grows chilly and the merrymakers drink pinhao, a hot drink made from sugar-cane.

But for all this, it is really the season of the maidens, who in addition to the hair cutting and the red roses often go to great extremes to "get their man." They write his name on a piece of paper and put it under a statuette of Santo Antonio, patron saint of marriage. If the man does not propose within three days, a girl may put the image itself in a coffee strainer at the foot of her bed or even down the well of her loved one — that is, if he has a well. She can go on doing this at three-day intervals; then, as a last resort, she may take the boy Jesus from the statue's arms.

Sao Joao is credited with having power over the future, and the season is accompanied by much fortune-telling and superstitious rites.

Spent Years Looking At Hole In Moon

Astronomers are saying that 69-year-old Roland Clarkson, who died not long ago in Suffolk, achieved immortality for himself and his name because he spent all his spare time after dark gazing intently at the moon through a portable telescope on the lawn of his bungalow home.

For twenty-nine years he studied specially one of the moon's many craters, then known as Crater 2412. What he observed was so important to astronomical science that it is now renamed Clarkson Crater.

"When the first landing party is completing its plans for reaching the moon, it will certainly have to make a special note of the Clarkson Crater," one astronomer said.

Since the seventeenth century, more than 600 men and women who have helped to increase mankind's knowledge of the moon have been immortalized by having craters, walled plains and mountains on the moon named after them.

Some years ago their names were compiled in a unique Who's Who of the Moon. Most of them are dead. They include an eccentric U.S. millionaire, who built the greatest telescope then known and had himself buried under it, a man who played the oboe in a German band, a waif found on the steps of a French church, a former Lancashire brewer and a fabulously rich stockbroker who devoted almost his entire fortune to astronomy.

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. ## Fantastic Feats Of Endurance

"I did my best for England" — that was Jim Peters' simple verdict on his agonizing ordeal when he collapsed 200 yards from the tape in the recent Vancouver Marathon.

Similarly, when Roger Bannister streaked round the track to triumph in the Mile of the Century against his Australian rival, John Landy, — and more recently when he beat an all-star field in the 1,500 metres at Berne — he drove himself to the point of exhaustion to win a gold medal for his country

Remarkable efforts of courage and endeavour — all of them. But some of the most fantastic feats of sporting endurance have been performed as wagers, or simply to show what can be done in the way of physical achievement.

Sportsmen all over the United States are still talking about 48-year-old Ben Lloyd's walk. He completed it a few years ago; and it lasted ten years.

In 1944, Ben set out to become the unofficial walking champion of New Orleans by walking along all the 1,500 miles of streets in his home city. When he finished his self-imposed, arduous chore, he said: "I've done what I set out to do, walked through every street in my own time at my own pace."

Now somebody has suggested that Ben might care to travel to London and walk through London's 2,333 miles of streets, so creating another record which is never likely to be seriously challenged.

But bachelor Ben Lloyd probably won't be interested, although he might be tempted later on to tackle a similar long walk through the streets of New York. He's quite capable of it.

Fantastic records like his don't get into the sporting handbooks, though unofficial world champions do astounding things. Take Ken Baily, for instance. He ran from Bournemouth to Paris. Impossible, you say? Well, Baily did it, nevertheless, in thirty-five and a half hours of running, in 1937.

He ran thirty-two miles to Southampton at night, boarded a liner bound for Cherbourg after taking a first-class ticket, and kept on running round the decks throughout the cross-Channel voyage. He ran the last lap, 213 miles from Cherbourg to Paris, in twenty-seven hours.

Said Baily when asked why he did it: "Just to prove it could be done and to do something for England, something to promote the cause of international friendship."

The insatiable appetite of some sportsmen for novelty has resulted in amazing feats. An Army sergeant established a ball-punching record by hitting a 40-oz. leather ball with elbows, wrists, knuckles and forearms for twenty-eight hours on end. And an Australian club swinger swung a pair of 3-lb. 6-oz. Indian clubs for 107 hours continuously.

Two Cambridge undergraduates walked thirteen miles backwards from Cambridge to Newmarket a few summers ago; and a Massachusetts enthusiast walked forty-five miles in twelve hours twenty minutes on stilts five feet long.

Crowds gathered in a Berlin street in 1949 to watch Bruno Kaminsky and his two friends set out on a 2,000-mile barrel tour of Germany. The barrel had full accommodation for the three men, and they slept in it each night, after rolling it along all day. It was electrically lit, but had no brakes. The three men, accompanied by a dog, accomplished the trip.

An Australian rode more than 500 miles, from Sydney to Melbourne, on a rocking-horse. The rocking-horse was fitted with a pair of roller skates, one of which was attached to reins for steering, the other geared with pedals.

The same man achieved another freak record in the following year. He travelled 2,200 miles from Port Augusta to Brisbane, on a child's tricycle, winning a big wager.

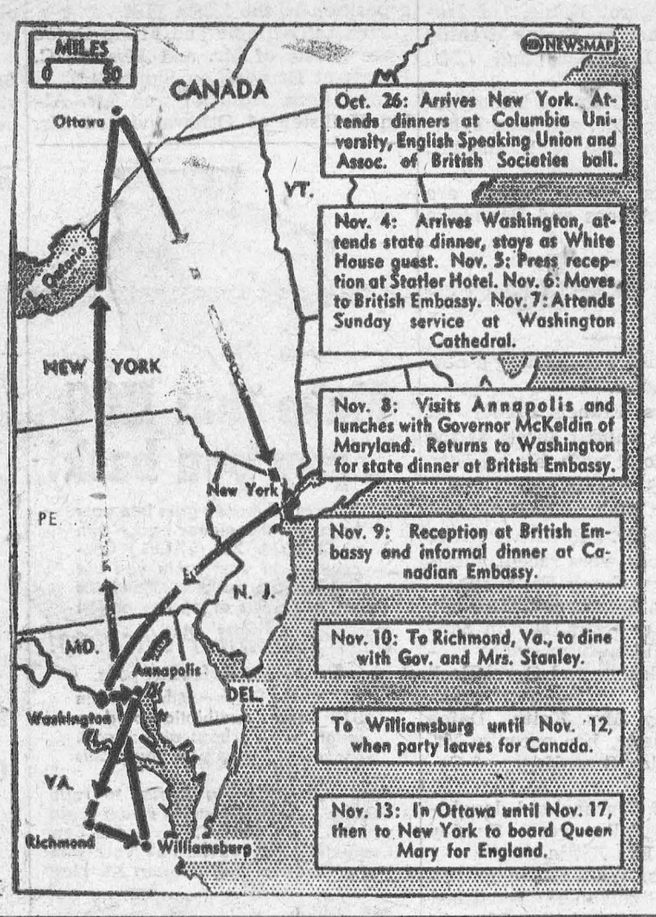
Some years ago a cyclist undertook to ride his bike down the 350 stairs leading from the first platform of the Eiffel Tower, Paris, to the ground. He managed some of the stairs safely, but fell off his machine and injured his leg while trying to negotiate others.

He persevered and continued his ride at breakneck speed, reaching the ground without further mishap.

You'd think it impossible for a man to skip 1,000 miles — from Melbourne to Adelaide and back. Yet this was done by a man named Tom Morris. The journey lasted forty-four days.

He said afterwards that he wore out sixteen ropes during the trip.

Queen Mother Elizabeth --- And Her Itinerary



TRIO SOLOS — The Andrews triplets (no relation to the singing trio), are in complete harmony on two things; each of the girls dresses differently, and each wants to pursue a separate career. The first triplets ever enrolled at Stephens College, Kathleen (top) plans to teach; Jana Lee (center) hopes to nurse and Sheela has yet to choose.

Gone are the days when fish dinners could be enjoyed only on the shores of ocean, lake, or stream, for now these dinners are taken as a matter of course thousands of miles inland. Quick-freezing has contributed most to this revolution in sea-food eating — quick freezing and swift airplane delivery.

Gone are the days, too, when cleaning fish was a major undertaking before it could be cooked and eaten. Now fish are cleaned before you ever see them in your kitchen, and even cut to size and breaded for quick cooking.

Recently a new fish fillet has been added to the frozen fish family. It resembles a cutlet 4 inches wide by 3 inches long, and is of uniform thickness to insure even cooking over the entire fillet. Boneless, of course, and lightly breaded, it is good either pan fried, deep fried, or broiled.

Broiled Halibut Steak, Cheese
2 pounds halibut steak
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ cup butter, melted
6 thin slices cheese

Cut halibut in serving-size portions; sprinkle both sides with salt and pepper. Place fish portions on preheated, greased broiler pan about 2 inches from heat; brush with fat; broil 5-8 minutes or until slightly brown. Baste with fat and turn carefully. Brush other side with fat and broil 5-8 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Cover fish with cheese and broil until cheese melts. Garnish and serve immediately.

A new idea for serving frozen fish fillets is to put them in a pie. Brown them first to a crusty, golden hue, then make this pie which serves 3-4 people.

Fish Fillet Pie
1 12-oz. package frozen breaded fish fillets
1 package frozen mixed vegetables
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ package pie-crust mix
¼ cup grated sharp cheese

Fry or broil fish fillets according to package directions. Cook mixed vegetables and combine with onion, soup, milk, salt and pepper. Arrange browned fish fillets in a 1½-quart casserole or a 10-inch pie pan. Add soup mixture. Pour pie-crust mixture into small bowl; add grated cheese; prepare pastry as package directs. Roll out on floured board. Top casserole with pastry as you would for a pie and cut vents for steam escape (or cut in fish shapes). Bake at 425° F. 25-30 minutes, or until crust is golden and fillet mixture steaming hot.

Garnish this broiled halibut and cheese with thin lemon slices, parsley, and paprika for a pretty as well as good fish dish.

Perhaps you'd like to serve, for your next Sunday evening supper, a dish of shrimp Creole with spaghetti. Here is one with a special flavor that comes from long simmering of the sauce. If you're going to have a busy afternoon, cook the sauce and spaghetti in the morning and combine them just before serving.

Shrimp Creole With Spaghetti
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup diced green pepper
¼ cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup flour
3½ cups cooked tomatoes (2½ size can)
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
4 ounces spaghetti
1 cup cooked shrimp

Heat fat in skillet; add celery, green pepper, onions, and mushrooms. Cook 10 minutes. Sprinkle flour over vegetables, mixing lightly. Add tomatoes, salt, and pepper. Cover and simmer 1 hour. While sauce simmers, cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender (about 12 minutes). Drain and rinse. Fold shrimp into sauce. Heat thoroughly and pour over spaghetti. Four servings.

Here is a way to dress up an inexpensive type of fish and produce an exotic Oriental-tasting dish. The secret is in the sauce which has a zestful flavor. Marinade whatever fish you choose in the sauce for an hour or two before broiling it. For the table, garnish the platter with slices of stuffed olives, wedges of lemon and sprigs of parsley.

Oriental Fish
½ cup fresh lemon jujice
4 4teaspoons soy sauce
¼ teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons oil
1½ pounds fish

Mix all ingredients except fish and shake well. Place fish in bowl and pour marinade over it. Marinade for 1 hour, or, if you like a stronger flavor, leave fish in the sauce for 2 hours. Broil until tender. Serves 4.

All of this propaganda ignores that the United States of America is today the most powerfully armed nation the world has ever known, and in case it is attacked can retaliate mightily with its air power from a ring of bases that surrounds the Soviet Union. — Arizona Daily Star.

PRESTONE BRAND
ANTI-FREEZE

Without the complete protection of "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze, you may suffer the expense of serious cooling system damage this winter or even next summer after the anti-freeze has been drained and replaced with water and rust inhibitor.

Remember—a 'substitute' anti-freeze just might get you through the winter without cooling system freeze-up. But freeze-up is less than half the hazard of winter engine operation. Many cases of summer engine overheating problems are caused by inferior anti-freeze protection during the previous winter.

"Prestone" Anti-Freeze protects the cooling system against freeze-up, rust, corrosion, acid contamination, clogging, seepage, deterioration of metal and rubber parts. That's complete protection!

It always pays to insist on "Prestone" Anti-Freeze. Don't accept 'substitutes'—not if you're looking for guaranteed, complete protection, the kind that only "Prestone" Anti-Freeze can give.

Matthew Halton voices a caution on the eve of re-arming Germany. Should we not move carefully in our treatment of a population who allowed its leaders t ocommit, unmolested every form of torture known to man? He plucks authentic reality from his war correspondent days to show how totally ignorant Germans were of crimes committed. Can this be a nation's excuse for its leaders executing mass murders? Halton's caution is well-taken. His report is in this wek's Star Weekly.
