A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Murdock of Cornwall on Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. when their daughter, Leona, became the bride of Cpl. Basil Millward, C.D.C., youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Millward of Morrisburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Atchison. Given in marriage by her father, the young bride was lovely in a street length dress of azure blue lace with hat to match and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of sunset roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Clark of Cornwall chose a dusty rose lace dress with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of snapdragon.

Best man was Cpl. Paul J. Laurin, C.D.C., of Cornwall.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families and friends.

Later the young couple left on a motor trip to Syracuse, N. Y., and other points of interest. For travelling, the bride wore a white sailor dress with navy trimmings and white accessories.

Thompson-Kavanaugh

A wedding of interest took place at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church on Tuesday, July 21st, when Miss Eleanor Kavanaugh, daughter of Mrs. Martin Kavanaugh and the late Mr. Kavanaugh, of Iroquois, became the bride of Mr. Albert Thompson of Kirkland Lake, Ont. Rev. Father J. Feeney performed the ceremony, and Mrs. A.B. McGannon, the church organist, played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Gus. Kavanaugh, was smartly dressed in rose sheer, with flowered hat, and carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses. She was attended by Mrs. Jefferies of Kirkland Lake, Ont., who wore a pretty gown of beige and brown silk net, with corsage of American Beauty roses and baby's breath. Dr. Jefferies acted as best man and Mr. G. Leonard Keck was usher.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served to about 25 guests at the home of the bride's mother, in Iroquois. Later the happy couple left on a motor trip to Quebec for travelling the bride wore a dress of luggage tan with brown. They will reside in Kirkland Lake.

Lanigan-Wells

A most interesting and unusual all-white wedding took place when Miss Ola Madge Wells, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Durham Wells of Williamsburg, became the bride of Mr. Edward J. Lanigan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Lanigan of Toronto. The wedding took place at Blessed Sacrament Church, Toronto, July 14th. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Penney.

The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion with tall standards of shaded roses, delphinium, and bouvardia. Mrs. J. L. Feeney presided at the organ and Mrs. T. McKendrick was the soloist.

The bride chose a wedding gown of white slipper satin, fitted on princess lines, a floor length veil draped in coronet style and held by orange blossoms and lilies-of-the-valley. She carried an arm bouquet of deep red roses and baby's breath.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Meyer, cousin of the bride, wore a long white frock of bouffant taffeta skirt, chantilly lace fitted jacket, and carried a bouquet of pastel shaded flowers. She wore a dainty lace Dutch style cap. The beautiful summer flowers relieved the simplicity and daintiness of the white costumes.

Mr. John Lanigan, brother of the groom, was best man.

Immediately after the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. W.A. Meyer, Cheriton Ave. A buffet luncheon was served to thirty guests. The table and colour scheme of the rooms was carried out in rose and pale green. Mrs. Lanigan, mother of the groom, wore a model of moss green crepe with jacket of white and green, matching green shoes and hat. Mrs. Durham Wells, mother of the bride, wore a model of navy crepe with jacket trimmed in braided design, large navy hat with Roman striped band and matching accessories. Mrs. W.A. Meyer wore a dress of rose crepe with bordered skirt of black design. The ladies wore corsages of sweet peas and roses.

Before leaving on a boat trip to Niagara Falls, Mrs. Lanigan changed to a beige and brown costume with two-toned matching shoes and hat. Mr. and Mrs. Lanigan will spend the remainder of the holidays visiting relatives and friends in Oakville and Toronto.

Local Plant Awarded Contract For Dental Corps Brushes

CHALLIES DENTAL PRODUCTS FIRST IN CANADA TO MAKE NEW TYPE BRUSHES

This week, Challies Dental Products of Morrisburg received word they have been awarded a contract to make 204,000 brushes for the Dental Corps, serving the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Force. This is a new type of dental brush, never before made in Canada. For the past year considerable research and engineering development has been undertaken to put production in shape for turning out these brushes in the Morrisburg plant.

During the past two years there has been a decided expansion in the activities of this firm, which is owned by Geo. E. Beavers, B.A. In addition to the former civilian line of all types of tooth brushes, there have been added tooth brushes especially designed for use by the Canadian Army, Navy and Air Force and which for the first time in history embodies the use of 100 per cent Canadian material for the handles. This firm has been awarded a number of war contracts for this type of tooth brush in the past year and a half, and are expecting to finish up a 50,000 run for the Army this August. Late last year, Challies Dental Products started to produce brushes for dentists' use. These were the first to be manufactured in Canada and heretofore the Canadian Dental trade was entirely dependent on supplies imported from the U. S., England and France.

It is a matter of local interest and pride that many years ago the first tooth brushes to be manufactured in Canada, were made in Morrisburg when the business was conducted by Mr. Geo. H. Challies, M. L. A., who had associated with him his father, the late J. G. Challies. From this beginning the business has expanded today to include not only tooth brushes, but dental brushes used by the profession and it is expected production of all types in 1942 will approximate 1,000,000 brushes.

PRICE OF LIVE BAIT MUST NOT INCREASE

Of decided interest to fishermen is the ruling of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that the price of live bait must not be increased above that at which it was offered for sale last summer. ### LANDLORDS REQUIRED TO MAINTAIN PREMISES

VOICE OF THE PRESS

WHAT'S WRONG?

We quite often hear the question asked: What is wrong with our educational system? One answer was supplied to us recently by a radio broadcaster and it is not so far wrong at that. The trouble with education, he stated, is that the teachers are afraid of the principal, the principal is afraid of the inspector and the school board, the school board is afraid of the parents, the parents are afraid of the children and the children are not afraid of anyone.—Carleton Place Canadian.

HELPS THE FARMERS

The editor and staff of the Bowmanville Statesman have worked overtime to get their paper "to bed" so that they may be free to go out and help at farm work. Not only this, but the paper's farm editor has for two seasons taken a whirl at haying, harvesting and threshing. Well, we'll wager there'll be wigs on the green now, up in Durham County. Congratulations, fellow editors. This is one time when hay forks and rakes and cultivators will be mightier than the pen!—Kingston Whig-Standard.

WORRIES EFFICIENTLY

Prime Minister Churchill told his friends in Washington that he had so many worries that he had to set up a personal priority system for them. To a colleague who was complaining about his minor troubles, Mr. Churchill explained that he had had so many worries for so long now that they had to have a top priority to claim his interest. One day, he explained, Kharkov has A-1A priority; the next day Egypt. In that way he explained jokingly, he could "worry efficiently."

WARTIME SLOGANS

EVENING THINGS UP

There are always compensations. Little Willie has been bawling the ban on the manufacture of kids' bicycles, but he gets a lift out of the similar action that has now been taken with respect to lawn mowers.—Windsor Star.

ONLY REALIZATION

The only times some people realize there is a war in progress is when a budget speech increases their taxation or the Oil Controller reduces their gasoline rations.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

GOOD IDEA

A contemporary says it would be a good idea to take autos away from all careless drivers, whereupon the streets would become safe, quiet—and almost deserted.—Brantford Expositor.

ORIGIN OF ANTS

Scientists find ants existed 60 million years ago—probably they started with the first picnic.—Kitchener Record.

Open Golf Meet For Seagram Cup

Will history repeat itself? That's the question Canadian Golf fans are asking themselves, for if past history means anything there will be another playoff for the Canadian Open Golf Championship and the Seagram Gold Cup at Mississauga on August 6, 7 and 8.

The approaching open will be the third held at Mississauga and in each of the previous struggles there have been deadlocks, one being decided by a thirty-six hole playoff and the other by one that went twenty-seven holes. In the fourth round in 1931 Walter Hagen had 262, after slipping to a bad 74 in the final round. In the playoff the Hags scored his only victory in the Canadian open.

Seven years later Slamming Sammy Snead and Harry Cooper tied with a total of 277. In the eighteen hole playoff they both carded brilliant 47's and after a consultation with the R. C. G. A. officials it was decided to play nine additional holes. On these final holes Cooper slipped badly turning in a 39, while Snead who was really hot from tee to cup, came in with a 34.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This and That in Our Canadian Army

Hitler must hang! And that forthright statement may be taken as a compound sentence for the whole gang of Nazi leaders.

After the fighting finished in 1918 there was a lot of talk about bringing the Kaiser to trial and demands for punishment of the leaders of the German people—but, as time went on the fervor died down, Christian tenets were mouthed by the very people who later on were the apostles of disarmament, and—nothing was done to show the German people that it is an evil thing to let loose the forces of evil on mankind.

Nothing was done? Nothing! Oh Yes, a few colonies were put under mandate—the German mind would expect that; reparations were claimed—and partially forgiven; and, almost immediately, loans were made to Germany to assist in the rehabilitation of trade!

What did the Army think about all that? I can speak for only one Sergeant in that army. But I am sure that what I felt was echoed—and intensified—by the mothers of dead sons, the widows, the orphans.

What good did the Christian attitude do? Was it really a Christian attitude?

Let's answer the second question first. I don't think it was. I think that was a time when, remembering that Christ said "turn the other cheek," we forgot that the same Christ drove the money-changers out of the Temple!

Perhaps you are wondering where the Individual Citizen's Army comes into this. Don't worry, it comes in all right! The Individual Citizen's Army—that means all of us, don't forget—is concerned and very deeply concerned, with everything that goes on in the world today.

There is not a thing that happens that does not concern each one of us. The death of a U. S. Army aviator somewhere over the Coral Sea is just as important to the whole scheme of things as the loss of a Canadian-made tank in Libya.

Death has hardly touched us yet. By the time the "Great War" was as old as this one thousands of Canadians had been killed in battle. There was hardly a home in the Dominion that had not been shadowed by the dark angel's wing.

And by the same token there was hardly a home in the whole of Canada that was not straining every sinew to help beat the enemy.

Then death, sudden violent death, had become so commonplace that "Casualty Lists" in the daily papers occupied more space than the "Sports Pages" do today—and were as eagerly scanned.

Today as much space is given to the drowning of two office cadets in an Army Week display as would have chronicled the deaths in action of 300 men in the 1914-19 war.

What a shame! What a shame that we should need an "Army Week" to focus our thoughts on our soldiers. It is symptomatic of something half-hearted and lackadaisical that all over the Dominion it should be necessary to stage demonstrations to remind us that there is a war going on.

But "Army Week" or "Navy Week" or "Air Force Week" should be every week. We must generate the proper state of mind about this war. It is our war. Not the war of the soldier, the sailor or the airman. And it will fall to those of us who could only help in a very limited way to back up the fighting forces when their job is done and see to it that a grim retribution falls upon the guilty.

There is nothing soft about our men in uniform.

Let us see to it that there is nothing soft about us when the day of reckoning comes. Every lamp post in the Unter Den Linden described the Red Army as "destructively beaten" along 220 miles of the Don front. Moscow reported heavy Soviet counter-attacks designed, apparently, to divert the main weight of the German drive from reaching toward Stalingrad and the Caspian, hundreds of miles away. The Wehrmacht's goal seemed to be no less than to cut Marshal Timoshenko's southern army in two, to isolate the whole Caucasus region. Then Hitler could strike for the wells that normally produce 90 per cent of the Soviet supply; he could seek to cut the Allied supply line that runs from Iran up through the Caspian.

There is a job for us privates in the Individual Citizen's Army—a job we will do wholeheartedly as we look—and we shall look—upon our comrades on crutches or following "Seeing-Eye" dogs or as we place flowers under memorial windows in our church yards.

Right now there is another job to do, the job of conserving everything that is needed for the business of waging successful war. It is a simple job. So simple we may not think it worthwhile. It involves such things as cutting out joy-riding, carrying parcels from the store, turning last winter's coat, giving up smoking, drinking less tea and coffee, doing without alcoholic beverages, having shoes repaired even when the uppers are shabby.

It involves reporting infractions of the price ceiling orders no matter how abhorrent "snitching" is. None of us would hesitate to tackle or report a spy or a saboteur. Neither should we hesitate to report a commercial saboteur—for breaches of the price ceiling are acts of sabotage against the law-abiding. The storekeeper, wholesaler, manufacturer, landlord or other business man doesn't just break a law—he harms you. If he gets away with it because you keep silent the spectre of postwar inflation looms closer, if the ceilings are maintained postwar inflation will be averted and we'll have time to see that the war has not been fought in vain.

To Send Clippings Instead of Papers

Post office officials last week said a general campaign is being planned to encourage Canadians to send newspaper clippings rather than complete newspapers overseas.

The plan has already been presented to newspaper associations and is being supported by the Canadian Postmasters' Association.

"In most cases clippings are quite sufficient to give the news and would overcome the terrific waste in shipping space which there is at present with thousands of papers being sent overseas," a departmental spokesman said.

German And Japanese Thrusts Menace Russia's Supply Lines

The story of Russia's military strength is the story of space, endless space. Armies that have crowded all rivals off the face of Europe have marched into Russia and been swallowed up in the vast brown landscape rolling away to the east. Napoleon learned 130 years ago that a battle won in Russia does not have the same meaning as a battle won in Austria; there is always room in Russia for another battle. Adolf Hitler learned last year that each mile forward in Russia, each great industrial town destroyed, only means another mile to go, another town to destroy. Last week, in battles spaced hundreds of miles apart, Hitler's armed might tried to solve the problem of space, says the New York Times.

Germany's Objectives

The German effort presumably had two objectives: (1) to take possession of important arteries of traffic by which strength flows from one part of the Soviet body to another; (2) to block the routes over which come war materials from Russia's Allies across the seas. The accomplishment of these objectives would make Soviet transportation problems more difficult. It was conceivable that Russia's resistance might be split into two parts, each of which could obtain supplies from the other only with the utmost difficulty.

Drive To The River

To win the first and greatest of these prizes the Germans aimed their chief drive at the Don River.

An announcement from Berlin described the Red Army as "destructively beaten" along 220 miles of the Don front. Moscow reported heavy Soviet counter-attacks designed, apparently, to divert the main weight of the German drive from reaching toward Stalingrad and the Caspian, hundreds of miles away. The Wehrmacht's goal seemed to be no less than to cut Marshal Timoshenko's southern army in two, to isolate the whole Caucasus region. Then Hitler could strike for the wells that normally produce 90 per cent of the Soviet supply; he could seek to cut the Allied supply line that runs from Iran up through the Caspian.

Sea Battle In North

To win its second objective in the war against space, a German battle squadron skirted Norway's towering North Cape. Once round the cape the German fleet, consisting, according to reports from Moscow, of the battleship Tirpitz, the pocket-battleships Scheer and Luetzow, the heavy cruiser Hipper and eight destroyers, was on the main supply route from the democracies of the west and the Red armies. There, guns blazed.

After the fighting was over conflicting claims by some governments, silence from others, left a confused picture of what had occurred. The Germans said that their ships, supported by land-based aircraft, fell upon an Allied convoy, sank a heavy American cruiser and destroyed all but six of a thirty-eight ship flotilla. From Moscow came the report that the German attack was halted when a Russian submarine torpedoed the Tirpitz twice and that the German ships withdrew while the convoy sailed on to a Russian port. The Soviet spoke also of heavy bombing raids on Nazi airfields in Northern Norway and Finland, the bases for the forays against the Allied supply line in the Arctic.

1942 Push Starts

Observers in Allied countries were ready to concede that Hitler's "big push" for 1942 had at last started. It had been long expected; predicted for early Spring, then late Spring. Both on land and at sea it constituted Hitler's attempt to solve the problem that baffled Napoleon—the defeat of Russia.

While the battle along the Don was being fought on a limited front compared to the great battles of last Summer and Fall, there were those who saw in its threat to the Russian internal transportation system a threat as great as were last year's battles. If it were not checked, and if it turned southward toward the Caucasus, it could be the gravest menace yet in the Wehrmacht's drive toward the Middle East. Others pointed out that space was still on the side of Russia. East of the Don, they pointed out, lies the Volga and east of the Volga the Urals and beyond that, the wide expanse of Siberia.

Battle of Aleutians

In the Aleutian Islands, on 230 days of the year's 365, a battle relatively small in scale but significant in strategy is being fought by Japan and the United States. The action began when the Japanese forces raided Dutch Harbor on June 3 and shortly thereafter put troops ashore at the tip of the archipelago that thrusts 1,600 miles from Alaska across the North Pacific. The United States hit back at the invader with attrition tactics, seeking to destroy landing groups and the ships supplying them. A report on the progress of the battle was issued not long ago by Washington.

Submarines in Action

American submarines, it was disclosed, had penetrated the waters around the three westernmost islands seized by the Japanese—Attu, Agattu and Kiska. The fogs that have hampered long-range air bombers helped screen the undersea raiders' movements. Two weeks ago their torpedoes sank four enemy destroyers, left a fifth in flames. The toll brought Japanese naval losses—mostly inflicted by Army planes—in Aleutian encounters to fifteen vessels sent to the bottom or damaged. United States losses have not been disclosed, save for unspecified damage at Dutch Harbor, but it was evident that the Japanese were extending their grip in the Aleutians. Their eastward advance from Attu to Kiska spanned 230 miles. They were surely erecting air and naval stations that could play an important role in the North Pacific theatre.

Japanese Menace Grave

From Kiska it is 615 miles to Dutch Harbor. From Attu it is 595 miles to Russia's Kamchatka defenses and 765 miles to Paramushir, Japan's northernmost naval base. Thus, the Nipponese are in a central position (1) to drive toward the North American continent, (2) to intercept an Allied move across the North Pacific against Japan, (3) to strike the U.S.S.R. from a new flank, (4) to cut a possible line of supply from Alaska to Siberia. Despite the gravity of the Japanese menace, it was believed, the Allies could not yet spare forces from the many other global theatres for a campaign to regain the far Aleutians.

Gneisenau May Be Out For Duration

The 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau, which slipped through the English Channel from Brest February 13 despite a heavy British aerial attack, is anchored in the former Polish port of Gdynia with her three 11-inch gun turrets dismantled. British aerial photographs showed recently.

About 30 feet of the ship's forecastle deck also has been removed and the British expressed the belief she had suffered such serious damage that she "may be out for the duration." The Air Ministry said it would be impossible to make the necessary large-scale repairs on the vessel at Gdynia.

The Gneisenau was bombed repeatedly while she was tied up at Brest from March, 1941, until the day she slipped out of the French port with other units of the German fleet and successfully eluded the British. The Air Ministry said the ship suffered further damage on the flight from Brest.

The ministry statement added that the Gneisenau, first taken to Kiel, probably was hit again during a British raid on Kiel February 25.

The photographs, made in daylight some time after that raid, also showed the German depot ship Monte Olivia or a liner of the same class burned out and moored near the battleship.

Have You Heard?

After six months at a new factory, the superintendent developed a feeling that he wasn't popular, so he called aside an old worker. "Bill," said the superintendent, "how is it the men don't seem to like me? Why, at the last place they gave me a silver teapot when I left." "Only a silver teapot?" said the candid worker. "If you'd only leave here we'd make it a whole silver tea service."

Jack: "That lawyer chap you told me of is not a man of his word." Mac: "Why, what's happened?" Jack: "Well, he told me that I could talk freely to him, and this morning he sent in his account."

An East London man who had been advised by his solicitor upon the matter of making everything over to his wife in case he was killed in an air raid, later wrote to his legal adviser thus:

"Dear Sir—Having as you advised, put all my possessions in my wife's name, regret to say I now have no money to pay you for your services."

Mother announced that a prize would be given each Saturday to the most obedient member of the family during the week.

Almost with one voice the five children protested: "Oh, that isn't fair. Daddy will win every time."

After much thought, an Aberdeen couple decided to adopt an orphan boy.

"I wonder, Mrs. McFie," remarked a neighbour, "that ye didna choose a lassie. Now you're up in years she would have been helpful tae ye."

"Maybe," replied Mrs. McFie; "but, ye see, we had a guld glengary bonnet in the hoose."

Something went wrong in the cookhouse and the piecrust was as hard as a brick. The mess wag sent it back with a message:

"Give us the tools and we'll finish the job."

And so the gay suburbanite, Expending his last nickel, Proceeds to carry home at night One hoe, one rake, one sickle.

His garden is well under way; And if he keeps on working He'll have on some summer day One beet, one squash, one gherkin.

Doris: "Mother! what did you do when a boy first kissed you?"

Mother: "Never mind." "That's funny; I did the same thing, mother!"

Predicts End To Shortage Of Beef

Packers' Head Cites Reasons For Optimistic Outlook

Mr. James S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Limited, declared last week that the crisis in the beef situation had been reached.

New policies instituted last week by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will have the effect of easing the beef shortage and the situation will show immediate improvement, Mr. McLean asserted.

Reasons for his optimistic outlook were:

1. Absence of any beef scarcity in the country.
2. A lowering of the ceiling price, enabling civilian needs to compete with the military market.

3. Resumption of business by drovers, who had stopped buying for a brief period because of the confused situation.

Mr. McLean could not produce a similar bright picture regarding the pork situation which, he said, would probably remain a scarce commodity until war's end. Exports to Great Britain under Government contract have cut deeply into pork products remaining for Canadian consumption, he asserted.

"The sale of beef to the military authorities had been a big factor in keeping up the price and causing a shortage for civilian needs," said Mr. McLean. "Under the new arrangement of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the military contracts have brought to the ceiling level which has been set at 16¢ cents per pound."

"This is a long step down, because at one time, prices paid to farmers to fill military contracts were a full cent above the ceiling of 19¢ cents," Mr. McLean continued. "Three weeks ago the price started to come down and recently it dropped to 18¢ cents. The final price set is at 16¢ cents."

Packing plants had lost money on beef bought above the ceiling price, Mr. McLean asserted.

"The reaction to bringing down the price has been bewildering to the farmer," he stated. "He had been selling all along at a price above the ceiling, and I don't blame him for doing that because those were the prices offered to him. However, the new price is still a good one for beef."

"Last week, drovers bought cattle at higher prices than they could sell them for," said Mr. McLean. "This caused them to lose money, and they stopped operating. The present extreme shortage is caused by this fact. However, they are operating again and the situation will soon be back to normal. There is plenty of beef in the country and conditions will soon be relieved."

HOW CAN I?

Q. How can I kill dandelions?
A. An ice pick dipped in gasoline and thrust into the heart of the dandelions will kill the weeds with little damage to the surrounding grass.

Q. How can I keep the teeth and gums in good condition?

A. Try using salt occasionally on the tooth brush, instead of the usual toothpaste. It invigorates the gums, and if used with cold water, is an excellent mouth wash or gargle.

Q. How can I prevent spots on the surfaces of mirrors?

A. Be sure to protect the mirrors in your home from receiving the direct rays of the sun, which cause spots and other blemishes.

Q. How should a linen suit be pressed?

A. When pressing a linen suit, dampen with a cheesecloth which has been dipped into water; then press the linen on the wrong side.

Q. How can I make tender doughnuts?

A. Doughnuts will toughen if handled or kneaded too much. Roll out only a small quantity of dough at a time and cut it into doughnuts before rolling out more. Fashion the holes into the doughnuts with the fingers, without re-rolling.

Modern Etiquette

1. When a verbal invitation has been extended to a person, isn't it rude for this person to say, "All right, I'll come if I can"?

2. If the wedding is to take place in church on a summer morning, is it permissible for the men of the bridal party to wear dark blue coats and white flannel trousers?

3. When a man meets a woman on the street, with whom he is well acquainted, should he offer his hand?

4. Which is better, to have a dozen real friends, or be like some people who seem to be friends with everyone?

5. Is it ever permissible for the parents of a young man who is to marry, to announce the engagement?

6. When a man is the guest of another man in a restaurant or hotel dining room, should he leave a tip for the waiter?

Answers

1. Yes, this indicates a lack of good breeding. One should say, and without hesitation, "I am very sorry, but it will be impossible for me to accept your kind invitation." 2. Yes. 3. No; this is the woman's privilege. 4. It is preferable to have a dozen real genuine friends. The old proverb says, "A friend to everybody is a friend to nobody." 5. No; only the parents of the girl are entitled to do this. 6. This is not necessary; it is the duty of his host.

Aussies Capture Museum Specimen

When the Australians were in Tobruk, recalls Australian Press Union, men of a famous R.A.A.F. fighter squadron spotted a fast super-streamed saloon car scorching along below them. Their bullets killed the driver and the ground troops captured the passenger—a Nazi general.

An A.I.F. photographer whose car had been shot under him, claimed the car as a replacement, but later the authorities decided that even with its bullet holes it was too good for him and that it should go to the War Museum in Canberra.

So the car arrived in Australia and here the authorities decided it was too good for the War Museum so the staff got it after all. Now it is showing 95 m.p.h. paces to Northern Australia. It was ducced in the desert, dressed with sand and ducced again to fix the sand. It will go to the War Museum later.

Production Affects Canada's Income

The Dominion's war effort gathered tremendous momentum last year, says The Edmonton Journal. Mr. Ilsley's balance sheet for 1941-42 provides the following demonstrations of how the national income has been affected by the harnessing of the Dominion's powers of production, all increases being a comparison of 1941 with 1940:

Direct income taxes paid up 186%; other forms income tax up 111%; all forms Dominion revenue up 70%; total Federal expenditure up 50%; general employment up 22%; manufacturing employment up 30%; retail sales up 20%; sales tax receipts up 32%; exports, mostly war supplies up 50%; agricultural subsidies, etc. up 46%.

What Science Is Doing

LIBYAN SAND

Sand from the Libyan desert has been specially sent to the Research Laboratory of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway for tests on the air filters of the diesel shunting locomotives to be used in the deserts of the Middle East. The filters were placed in a wind tunnel and the sand blown past them in order to imitate actual desert conditions.

A related problem was to give a better supply of cooling air to the engine gear-boxes of tanks operating in hot climates. The model of the after part of a tank was erected in the laboratory, and by making various alterations in the circulating fan and the air ducts, an improvement of 90 per cent was achieved. The results of these experiments may be used in future tank designs.

The research department has recently devised another novelty rather like a pistol, with which pins that have been recovered from old correspondence are picked up magnetically in exact pack-etsful by a pull on the trigger. Seven cwt. of pins, clips and fasteners were recovered in the first year.

Most of the work of the Company's scientific staff is directly concerned with the war effort, either on the Railway's own war problems or for Government Departments. Substitutes have to be continuously sought for as regular supplies become unobtainable, and a good example has been the discovery that the wool grease retrieved from the sewers at Bradford can be used in lubricating oils in the place of fatty oils previously imported for this purpose.

The research department's instrument shop has also been carrying out investigation on barbed-wire entanglements, steel helmets and armor plate.

The introduction of spray painting has been accelerated, enabling a wagon to be painted in six minutes as against 40 minutes required by brushing. The work has been so simplified that it has been quickly mastered by women who have taken the place of painters called up to the Forces.

The 100 odd painters in the painting department of a Canadian aircraft plant use 18,000 gallons of paint per month, or enough to coat the hull of the Queen Mary half a dozen times.

CAMEO HIGHLIGHTS

For superlative summer entertainment it would be difficult to find anything to surpass WEEK END IN HAVANA, a most delightful musical comedy, all in beautiful technicolor, starring Alice Faye and John Payne. Reserve one of these dates for it—Aug. 3—4—5.

DIVE BOMBER, starring Errol Flynn and Fred MacMurray will be here on August 6—7—8. A great and timely picture.

And the one that towers above them all, the picture that won the Academy Award as the best picture of last season, HOW GREEN WAS MY VALLEY, will be shown to you on August 13—14—15. Walter Pidgeon is the star, and is supported by a large cast in addition to the world-famous Welsh Choir.

Another picture in the class with the best is KING'S ROW, coming on August 17-18-19. Ann Sheridan adds new laurels to her career for superb acting in this picture. Be sure not to miss KING'S ROW.

Other big ones coming along are: Ginger Rogers in ROXIE HART, Charles Laughton in THE TUTTLES DIED WITH THEIR BOOTS ON, SONG OF THE ISLANDS, Bette Davis in IN THIS OUR LIFE, MY GAL SAL, TO THE SHORES OF TRIPOLI, JUKE GIRL and many more.

JOGGING AROUND : : :

BY THE EDITOR

SECOND FRONT NOT IMPOSSIBLE

The man on the street these days is doing a lot of talking about the possibility of the establishment of a 'Second Front'. It is doubtful, however if he fully realizes the tremendous amount of organization and preparation that is necessary for such an establishment. In addition someone has to take responsibility for the establishment of this front. And that responsibility is no small thing. When the war began, people were all for launching out at Germany and crushing her with one fell swoop, but when the British and Canadians were forced to back out of Dunkirk, there was a lot of ugly criticism of the government.

In any contemplation of a second front in Europe, we must take into account the possibility of another Dunkirk, and if our second front were launched prematurely, that is just what our forces would face. And heaven only knows that the troops which form the spearhead of the second front assault will face enough trials without that.

On the other hand, continued delay now may prove almost equally disastrous. The situation in Russia is serious, and grows more so hourly. If our position there deteriorates much more, Hitler may be in a position to withdraw large forces to guard his western approaches. Then the psychological moment would have passed.

Certainly the problem of whether to make a try at a second front now or to wait longer, seems to be desperately complicated from any angle. Put a decision one way or the other is near.

A WORD TO THE WISE (Trenton Courier-Advocate)

There is so much stuff coming out of Ottawa that never finds a better place in the newspaper office than the waste basket, that the government may be printing a paper of its own. Before doing this we would suggest that the parties interested get in touch with the Hon. G. H. Henry, somewhere up around Toronto. Once upon a time there was a government paper called 'The Straight Furrow' and you all know what happened to the government that launched that masterpiece. The Ottawa government might take a tip from that. The people of this country may elect a government but they are not going to have that government shove everything down their necks. And party newspapers, which are now few and far between, can tell a lot about that. The Ottawa would-be newspapermen better hold their fire. They may be needing it later on when peace has come and there is a rush for hiding places from the wrath of a people who are not satisfied that everything is as they would like to have it.

Apparently not placing too much faith in the old axiom that 'The pen is mightier than the sword', editor Fern Workman and his assistant, Randall Wylie, of The Winchester Press, are at camp this week at Connacht, with the 2nd Battalion, S.D. & G. Highlanders, training to show the enemy something a little more deadly than penmanship, if he ever gets to set foot in Canada.

MORE GAS FOR TOURIST (Midland Free Press Herald)

It was all right to cut down the gasoline unit from five to four gallons for Ontario folk, but surely it was possible to give the American tourists the 20 gallons promised them over the radio and through the newspapers. Many of them made plans to come to Canada thinking they could get 20 gallons, only to find when they got to the border that they could have but four units, or 16 gallons, which would not take them to their destination.

TRAVEL IN MID-WEEK

The Canadian transit controller has made an appeal to all vacationists asking them to begin and end their vacation this year in the middle of the week. Because of the exigencies of the war, passenger travel has increased greatly in the past few months and train accommodation is being taxed to the limit. The movement of troops and other necessary travel in connection with the war and industry has appropriated vast amounts of railroad equipment and heavy traffic cannot readily be taken care of. Week-end traffic is heaviest and vacationists can do the cause a real service by travelling during the week.

Incidentally, wouldn't we have been in a fine mess today if we had taken the advice of the boys who wanted us to amalgamate the railroads a few years back, tear up a few thousand miles of track, junk hundreds of freight and passenger cars, and reduce skilled labor by 30 per cent? The alibi in those days was the fifty million dollar railway deficit—you remember.—The whisper of death—What's fifty million today?

We have heard people say: We will not lose this war. The Lord is on our side. We hope they're right—but it's not a question of the Lord being on our side—but rather the more important one of: Are we on the Lord's Side?—Winchester Press

Britain's Partnership of the Air The Giant 4-Engine Stirling Bomber

Britain's Stirling Bomber, the largest four engine bomber in the world, has figured prominently in raids on Germany and the occupied countries during the last year, but details of its unique features were a secret until late January, 1942. Larger even than the formidable American-built Flying Fortress, submersible bomber, the Stirling carries a bomb load of eight tons, and when fully loaded, weighs 30 tons. It has a speed of 300 m.p.h., a range of 2,000 miles and is very heavily armoured, its defensive armament including 3 gun turrets. Dimensions: Length, over 87 feet; wing span, 99 ft.; height 22 ft., 9 ins. Bombing up one of the Giant Stirlings preparatory to a raid over Germany.

IMPORTANCE OF SALVAGE—

(Stirling NewsArgus)
If every home in Canada saved for salvage one newspaper every week for a year those papers would provide enough fibre board for packing five million two-pounder shells for tanks. It is all a simple matter of arithmetic. Paper—like rubber and rags can be used over and over again. Salvage of it must be regarded as essential.

R.A.F. SCHOOL FOR TRAINING BRITISH AND ALLIED AIR GUNNERS:—During conferences at an air gunners school in Flying Training command in Britain, senior officers and pilots of the R. A. F. listen with respect to what the air gunners have to say, for the majority have something to learn about the air war. As seen from the unusual angle backwards. Many an air gunner has directed his aircraft home to safety by directing evasive tactics from flak or enemy fighters. The picture shows: A Czech, a Pole and an Englishman with their Sergeant air-gunner Instructor, an Australian, watching other cadets at air firing exercises.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON 30
NOAH: GOD'S COVENANT WITH MANKIND

Genesis 6-9
PRINTED TEXT
Genesis 9:1-16

GOLDEN TEXT.—I will remember my covenant. Genesis 9:15.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—The traditional date for the flood is set about 2350 B.C. Archaeologists are now quite united in believing that a great flood took place in the Mesopotamian valley about 3000 B.C., and there is nothing in the Bible which makes it impossible for us to accept this earlier date.

Place.—We do not know where Noah lived during the time he built the Ark. Mt. Ararat, on which the ark rested after the flood, is in what is now known as Armenia, near where the Tigris River has its source, about three hundred miles directly north of the ancient city of Babylon.

Command to Noah

1. "And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth." This command to Noah is exactly like the command originally given to Adam and Eve (Genesis 1:28).

2. "And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every bird of the heavens; with all wherewith the ground teemeth, and all the fishes of the sea, into your hand are they delivered. 3. Every moving thing that liveth shall be food for you; as the green herb have I given you all. 4. But flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, shall ye not eat." Noah is permitted to eat the flesh of animals but he is explicitly told not to eat the flesh with blood in it—that is the animal must be slain before any part of it is eaten for food.

Human Government

5. "And surely your blood, the blood of your lives, will I require; at the hand of every beast will I require it; and at the hand of man, even at the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man. 6. Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man. 7. And you, be ye fruitful and multiply; bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein." Here for the first time, we find the principles of human government set forth by God. Man is given the right to execute judgment upon evil doers, even to the extent of taking the life of the evil doer. This does not mean that individuals are to take judgment into their hands, but that society, as constituted by the races of men on earth, has the right to exact the death penalty from those who, themselves, are guilty of murder. Man is made in the image of God, and he that destroys man in murder is destroying that which most perfectly should manifest the person of God on earth.

The Great Covenant

8. "And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying, 9. And I, behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you; 10. And with every living creature that is with you, the birds, the cattle, and every beast of the earth with you; of all that go out of the ark, even every beast of the earth. 11. And I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there be any more be a flood to destroy the earth. 12. And God said, This is the token of the covenant which I made between me and you and every living creature that is with you for generations: 13. I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth. 14. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud: 15. and I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh; and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh. 16. And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth."

The word 'covenant' is one of the great Bible words. It means 'a coming together.' As used of a human transaction, it implies a bargain, one party giving and the other receiving. It also sometimes partakes of the nature of a voluntary undertaking or pledge, without any expectation of a return. This latter view is its characteristic in the passage before us, for we read only of God's covenant with Noah, not Noah's covenant with God. God binds Himself, and lays down the line of His relationship to man. It was for Noah simply to receive this, to reckon upon it, and to rely upon its blessings.

Purpose of the Covenant

The Purpose of the covenant should be carefully noted. It was associated with the assurance that human life should not be cut off or the world destroyed any more by a flood. The appropriateness of this revelation is apparent, for at that time it must have been a real perplexity to know whether there would be any repetition in the future of what they had experienced in the Flood. Everything connected with their relations to God had been altered by that catastrophe, and now God does not leave man ignorant, but, on the contrary, pledges Himself not to bring another similar judgment upon the earth.

Sign of the Covenant

The Sign of the covenant is specially emphasized. The rainbow is now given a specific spiritual meaning, and nature for the first time becomes a symbol of spiritual truth, the first of such visible signs illustrative of spiritual truths. The message of the covenant was an assurance of God's faithfulness. He was prepared to carry out all his promises, notwithstanding all the previous failures of mankind.

Record Service

Here is what probably constitutes a speed record for delivery of vital Navy equipment to the other side of the world.

At 6 p.m. on a recent Thursday an order was received at an eastern General Electric factory for equipment by a U.S. warship near Australia.

As many workers as could be employed efficiently worked that night and all the next day and night to assemble the equipment.

Escorted by police, it was then rushed to a nearby airport and flown westward, arriving in San Francisco Sunday.

On Wednesday, six days after the order had been received, a bombing plane landed the equipment at its Pacific destination, more than 10,000 miles from the factory where it originated.

Guerillas Fighting On Dozen Fronts

Patriots Fighting Axis Powers Number About 1,800,000

Guerrilla armies are battling the Axis on a dozen fronts around the world. In Spanish, "guerrilla" originally meant "little war," but there is nothing small about the war that today's guerrillas are fighting. The lowest possible estimate of the world's guerrilla strength is well over a million, and if the divisions of the Chinese regulars fighting behind Japanese lines are included, the figure is something closer to 1,800,000. The Kansas City Star concludes.

The Chinese guerrillas, of whom there are at least 800,000, operate in every area where there are Japanese troops. They have their own special training school in Southern Hunan Province, where picked leaders can learn the techniques of swift surprise attack which are the stock-in-trade of guerrillas everywhere.

Much in the news recently have been the exploits of another guerrilla army, half-way around the world from China. This is the patriot army of Yugoslavia, led by General Mihailovitch. Mihailovitch's men, who dominate a great triangle of the supposedly-conquered mountains of Serbia, number about 200,000. In spite of a number of German and Italian forays against them, these successors to the Serbian "Chetniks" of another day are constantly increasing in numbers and getting additional equipment at the expense of their Axis foes. Currently twenty-four Axis divisions — nearly 400,000 men — have been diverted from the Russian front by Mihailovitch's activities.

The main Yugoslav guerrilla army is in touch with allies in the occupied territory on both of its flanks. To the north in the puppet state of Croatia is the "Green Army," a loosely-knit group of bands who take their name from the green Croatian forests in which they dive. Southward on the Greek border it is in active contact with the long chain of Greek guerrilla forces that extends throughout the mountainous peninsula.

The Greek guerrillas have a notable record in the wrecking of troop trains and the cutting off of small Axis detachments. Their favorite method of attack is to make a swift attack on a town and then withdraw into the hills to lie in wait for their pursuers. This spring one band in the western Peloponnese, led by a Greek Orthodox priest, Father Nicolas, wiped out the last of several punitive expeditions sent against them by rolling large boulders down a ravine on the heads of the oncoming Italians.

Fighting with the Greek guerrillas, both on the mainland and in Crete, are a number of British and Anzac troops who were left behind after the evacuation.

The third great guerrilla front is in Russia. There the organization of units for fighting behind the lines began long before the war. In every village men and women were trained in marksmanship and the tactics of irregular warfare. When, last year, the Nazi army drove into the Soviet Union, the people were ready.

The Nazis Can't Beat The Dutch

At Schiedam, near Rotterdam, where the Germans have taken over shipyards for their own purposes, a new submarine slid into the water. But Nazi cheers were suddenly hushed, for the U-boat went to the bottom with its German crew.

When a second submarine built to the same specifications was ready for launching, the Nazis, deciding to profit by past experiences, manned it with an all-Dutch crew.

It, too, promptly sank below the surface.

But twelve hours later it came up—at an English port.

RADIO REPORTER

DIALING WITH DAVE:

Bob "Take It or Leave It" Hawk's radio career has been one big question mark! He was one of the first to bring a mike to the man on the street, starting off in Chicago with such sidewalk quizzes as "Foolish Questions" and "Fun Quiz." Later he came to New York for "Quixie Doodles" and "Name Three," finally querying his way to success in "How'm I Doin'," the top ranking audience participation show which got its first NBC National airing on July 9th.

Bob was born in Creston, Iowa 35 years ago. He started his career of questions by teaching school for a year. When he left teaching to go to Chicago, his first job in radio was reading poetry. Then came announcing and with recognition as a first-class ad-libber, he started emceeing quiz programs and he's been at it ever since.

Growing old together is an enviable achievement usually identified with a devoted married couple. Thus it's somewhat of a story to be able to write home about, when two boys grow up together, in the same town in the state of Arkansas where they were born, play in the same band, go to public schools and college together, marry home town girls, and then — overnight — grow old together. This distinction is claimed by Chester Lauck and Norris Goff, known to millions of network listeners as Lum and Abner. The quick switch in age came when they were still in their teens, doing a black-face act at a radio benefit broadcast. Learning at the last minute that there were six other blackface comics still waiting to go on, they went into a huddle and emerged as two old Ozard characters, which were to lead them to national fame and fortune!

Gabby Tobe Reed, driver of the popular "Fitch Bandwagon" each Sunday night, at last has something to keep him quiet. Tobe's busy counting the votes that will decide what bands will win the coveted honor of appearing on the Bandwagon during its 13-week summer series. Band fans all over the country — and Tobe swears there are millions of them — take their franchise seriously in this matter of balloting for their favorite string-brass-wood combinations. Big name bands and radio station orchestras are barred, according to Reed, because the show wants to give breaks to good bands battling for national recognition!

Germany Recruits French Workers

The Chief of the Vichy Government, Pierre Laval, has made special arrangements so factories in France may shut down and their entire personnel go to Germany as units under his volunteer labor recruiting campaign, it was revealed recently.

MRS. MINIVER

Adapted from the MGM Picture by HALSEY RAINES

SYNOPSIS

Propelled suddenly from the peaceful, workaday, middle class world of their own Kentish village into the maelstrom of another World War, Mrs. Miniver and her husband courageously accepted the fact that their son Vin, who has been at Oxford, must go into the service. In Vin's mind is just beginning to dawn a realization that he is in love with Carol Beldon, granddaughter of the village "overlord," Lady Beldon. The two younger Miniver children are excited by blackout drills and other wartime precautions, but fail to realize what it will mean to the world with which they are familiar.

CHAPTER THREE

The German radio propaganda stations were going full blast, trying to capitalize to the full on the rout in France. The booming, cultured voice that came over the air was declaiming:

"Attention, England! Your English friend in Germany is here again to speak to you of the great events that are shaking the world. It is eight months since your government declared war. Since then, France has been utterly defeated, while your English expeditionary force is now trapped in a small area on the French coast, surrounded on all sides. There can be no escape from this foredoomed graveyard. Your government not only conceals from you the extent of this disaster, but also withholds the truth of the internal situation in England. There have already been serious riots in English cities—"

The bartender in the village tavern turned off the radio with a snort of disgust. "E's all wind and whitewash," he exclaimed.

Clem, who was on civilian defense duty, and had stopped by for a drink, heard a familiar, excited voice from the doorway. "Hello, Dad!" it cried.

"Vin!" exclaimed his father, whirling. "Where did you spring from?"

"Belham Airfield," answered the boy. "I've been transferred." He looked boyishly chivalric in his matty pilot officer's uniform.

"Belham!" cried Clem. "Why, you're on the doorstep!"

"Yes, isn't it grand?" commented Vin. "You don't know the half of it." He pointed proudly to his officer's designation. "See that?"

"So soon?" exclaimed his father.

er, elation blending with a more ominous feeling. "Well, great stuff. Congratulations!"

"Things are moving pretty fast," said Vin. "They cut short the course. I got eighty-five per cent in the test, Dad, and a week's leave on the strength of it."

Despite the fact that Vin had phoned both his mother and Carol about his visit, he was astonished to find them together when he arrived home. He ran forward to embrace his mother; then Carol, as if it were the most natural thing in the world, turned simply and kissed him.

"See these?" exclaimed Vin, when he had recovered some of his poise, pointing to his insignia.

"Now you're ready for—real flying?" asked Mrs. Miniver tensely.

Vin smiled. "Not only for real flying," he said, "but real —" He stopped short, realizing he might be blundering.

"Fighting," said Mrs. Miniver, ending the sentence. In her mind's eye was her small son, of yesterday. And now here he was, still of 'teen age, going out to join the armored knights of the sky.

At dinner, Clem disburbed the news that Gladys, the maid, was to leave the household the next day having joined the Women's Auxiliary Air Force. Then, with total unexpectedness, Toby turned to his father and said: "Is Vin going to marry Carol?"

Vin almost choked on the generous helping of food in his mouth. Mrs. Miniver quickly tried to change the subject. Toby repeated his query, this time directly to Vin.

"Well, Toby," said Vin, flushing. "I haven't had the nerve to ask her yet."

"Why not?" asked Toby. "You're brave, aren't you?"

"Oh, Toby, don't be silly!" cut in Judy. "Gentlemen don't propose when they're eating!"

Carol turned seriously to the children. "Toby," she said, "why not ask me if I'm going to marry Vin?"

"Are you?" asked Toby, happy to be the center of all eyes.

"If he asks me," said Carol softly.

"I say, I'm not going to stand for that," said Vin, rising with an awkward gesture. "Carol, I meant to wait for a moonlit night and all that, but now — well — look, will you marry me?"

Carol leaned over and gently kissed him. Then Mrs. Miniver kissed her.

"My, dear, I'm very happy," she said. "You're both terribly young, but nowadays—"

The ringing telephone was for Vin. He returned to the table to announce that his leave had been cancelled and that he must report at once to the airfield. He hurried upstairs to get his bag. Not for the world would either his mother or Carol have let him see how depressed they were as he came bounding down.

"Goodbye, darling," said Mrs. Miniver. "Take care of yourself."

"Don't worry about me," cried Vin. "Eighty-five per cent. In the test, you know." He turned to kiss Carol. "Be good," he admonished her. Remember you're engaged. I say, you'd better not tell the old lady — not till I get back. We'll go hand in hand then and beard the lioness in her own rose garden!"

The clock on the bedroom table showed 2:15 a.m. as the Minivers were awakened by the phone. Mrs. Miniver's eyes reflected her unexpressed fears as Clem came back to her side.

"It's all right," he said. "Only the River Patrol."

"Clem you're not going out on the river tonight?" she demanded.

"I must, darling," he answered. "I'm on the Patrol."

"But what on earth can they want?" she pursued.

"I can't imagine," replied Clem, seizing his clothes. "But there's work for everybody these days."

Clem was the center of an eerie, tossing group of boats, at the pier near the Sailing Club. Flashlights shone back and forth like giant fireflies. One by one the men recognized each other and exchanged inquiries; but no one knew what the hurry call was all about.

"I've got to be over at market at daylight!" exclaimed a farmer across the way. "You should 'ave 'eard my missus when I come away. What a flow!"

"I've got three extractions at nine-thirty!" added the village dentist, who had just come up.

Captain Halliday, whose duty it was to supervise the gathering of the local volunteers and their craft, said merely that orders were to report up the river at Rams-gate.

When Clem arrived at the latter destination, a thin, menacing mist half-enveloped the river, he was conscious of a startling number of boats all around him. It looked as if there might be a thousand, most of them thirty-footers or better, but of varying shapes, designs and engine power.

Suddenly there loomed up on the river the dark hull of a British destroyer. The voice speaking from the megaphone on deck might have been coming from another world.

"Attention, everyone!" it called. "Your destination is Dunkirk! As you know, the British Expeditionary Force is trapped between the enemy and the sea. Four hundred thousand men are crowded on the beaches, under bombardment from artillery and planes. Their only chance to escape annihilation rests with you. It's my duty to tell you that the effort is not without risk. You're asked to cross forty miles of open sea, many of you in small

Suggestions For Overseas Parcels

Returned Officer Tells What To Put In Boxes

The light layer cake or the cookies which looked so nice as they were being packaged to mail to a warrior on active service will probably be crumbled by the time he gets the parcel, an officer who has been returned to Canada for instructional duty after service in Britain, remarked as he offered advice on what to send a soldier.

"Soldiers get good food, and there is lots of it," he remarked, "but they miss the luxury delicacies they had at home. And they miss some of the sweets they used to have."

"One of the nicest gifts for a soldier overseas is the chocolate powder done up in small packages. All the soldier needs to do is mix the powder with hot water and he has a nice chocolate drink, already sweetened."

"Concentrated fruit juices are very much appreciated because fruits are so scarce in England. Some small tins of concentrated orange juice, for instance, will make a gallon of orange drink. Fresh fruits of any kind cannot be sent by mail, but tins of fruits are very good. And soldiers also like the little packages of raisins and dates," he continued.

Tea Not Needed

"Fruit cakes are a bit heavy and the lighter cakes get broken up before the soldiers get them. The same with cookies. But cheese wafers are very good. They travel better and they're much lighter. They fit so well, too, into the soldier's desire for a light snack at night before turning in. For these light snacks cheese is greatly appreciated and so are all kinds of jam."

"Cigarettes are always welcome. They're hard to get. But not so many persons send pipe tobacco as send cigarettes, and the tobacco is just as hard to get in England and just as appreciated."

"Some people send large quantities of tea, but that's not necessary. Small packets of tea are all right, but the soldier usually gets all the tea he wants in England and it's quite good. Coffee is quite another matter; the coffee in England is not so good as here and tins of coffee would go over big with almost any soldier."

Matches Forbidden

In Ottawa, Postmaster-General W. P. Mulock warned that packages containing matches or inflammable liquids will be confiscated and the senders of them prosecuted unless the practice is stopped immediately. He said that in a recent shipment thirty sacks of mail, including parcel mail for Canadian forces abroad, were destroyed by fire which originated from matches igniting in a parcel sent to a soldier. "Persons mailing matches are impairing the war effort," he said, "for not only may they cause destruction and loss to the mails, but may occasion a disastrous fire at sea. The destruction of soldiers' mail strikes a blow at the morale of our forces, who are eagerly awaiting the arrival of letters and parcels from home."

Munition Workers Become Redheads

Swedish women working in a certain munitions plant have all become redheads, according to the Stockholm radio.

Chemicals at the plant "affect the substance in the hair" and turns it red, a broadcast recorded said.

"But unfortunately for the men who may have chosen their girls for their red hair, they may wake up one day to find them blondes or brunettes again, as the red color disappears as soon as the women stop working around the dangerous explosives."

boats that are far from seaworthy. Shore guns and enemy aircraft are going to make it hot for you. Any of you who wish to withdraw may do so now."

No one moved. Total silence prevailed. Many of the encamped eyes, even in the dim light, sparkled defiance.

"Very good," resumed the voice. "You will put to sea at once. Smaller boats without compasses will endeavor to follow in the wake of larger ships. Every moment counts. Good luck to you."

TABLE TALKS

Nutritious Summer Salads

Some women have a tendency to serve the lightest of salads during hot weather. With ordinary meals, this is ideal, for our bodies do not require as many calories in summer as in winter.

But how about making the salad more nutritious and serving it as the main-course dish? This reduces your calories still more, keeps from over-heating your home, makes it easy to prepare a meal, and gives a decided change. Summer greens may be combined with such healthful foods as chopped meats, eggs, and cooked, dried Lima beans to form dozens of delicious salads of this kind. Most of the ingredients called for in the following recipes, are already in your stock.

Harlequin Salad

- 1 cup cooked, dried Limas
- 1 1/2 cupsfuls chopped tongue or ham
- 3 hard-boiled eggs, sliced
- 1 tomato, peeled and sliced
- 1/2 cup chopped pickles
- 1/2 cup French dressing
- 1 head lettuce
- Sour cream or mayonnaise salad dressing

Prepare and combine meat, Limas, eggs and pickles. Mix with French dressing, let stand 1 hour in a cold place. Pile on a bed of lettuce and garnish with the sliced tomato.

Savory Lima Salad

- 2 cups cooked, dried Limas
- 1/2 cup finely cut celery
- 2 small green onions
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 2 hard-cooked eggs
- 2 tablespoons chopped Pimiento
- 1 cucumber, sliced
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Combine all ingredients and mix with highly seasoned French dressing. Arrange on lettuce leaves.

Cauliflower Orange Salad

- 1/2 cup shredded raw cauliflower
- 3 oranges, cut in small pieces
- 1/2 cup diced celery
- 3 tablespoons minced green pepper
- Salt and onion juice to taste

Combine ingredients in order given and chill. Place on individual plates on a salad green and serve with favorite salad dressing. Serves 6.

LADIES GROUP CONSERVE TEA AND COFFEE

Try Different Drink at Meeting

Neither coffee nor tea were served, as is the usual custom, at the quarterly meeting of the local Ladies Aid, but an excellent beverage was used, and the guests commented upon its delicious flavor. The president explained that the ban on tea and coffee was in deference to the request of the Government. Expressing satisfaction at the success of the experiment, the chairman said Postum—the beverage used,—had taken less sugar than would have been used for tea and coffee. It had cost less than either tea or coffee and so was a saving to the treasury, as well as a saving on tea, coffee, sugar.

Whether it's a meeting of a society or a meal in your own home, Postum provides the easy way to conserve tea and coffee. Grand, heartening flavor—economical—so easy to make.

Health In Ontario Improved By War

Public health in Ontario is improving as a direct result of the war, medical authorities said in an informal survey.

Doctors said workers are eating better food, calling on their doctor and dentist before emergencies arise and are more healthy than ever before.

Dr. Bernard T. McGhie, deputy Minister of Health, said the public is becoming increasingly more health-minded and far more receptive to health instruction.

Communicable diseases have increased in number since the start of the war, but these are not a vital factor in estimating the public health of the province, authorities said.

Driving Ram Tank Needs Strong Arm

On smooth ground a Ram tank rides like a heavily loaded truck but when going over rough country, deep-ditches, trees, rocks, it rolls and pitches like a canoe in rough water.

A tank driver has to be right on the job all the time and use the muscles of both legs and both arms. The big levers which steer the Rams and change their gears take a man to move them. There is no such thing as one-arm or one-finger driving in a tank.

The steering levers are simply brakes which stop the tracks on one side or the other and so bring the tank around. The driver sits with the two steering levers between his legs, one foot on the clutch and the other on the accelerator. The gear shift is at his left.

He drives by order when in action because he can see little through his narrow slit of glass. The tank commander, who is usually also the wireless operator, has a periscope through which he can survey the landscape and gives the driver orders over the telephone although he is only a few feet away.

Mrs. Edmund Lewis

The sudden death on Wednesday, July 15th of Mrs. Edmund Lewis, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Wright, Morrisburg, removed one of the oldest and most esteemed residents of this vicinity, and her passing will be mourned by a large circle of friends.

The late Mrs. Lewis, whose maiden name was Martha Donaldson, was in her 89th year, and was born at Dundela, Ont., a daughter of the late George Donaldson and Avis Lavis, early pioneers of Matilda, from Ireland. For many years she resided with her family in the 2nd Concession of Matilda.

In early life she was united in marriage to Simon Strader, who was drowned during the building of the Iroquois canal. For some years they resided in the stone house along the canal, now the Bowling Club House. To this union were born two sons: Edward, who died in infancy; and William (deceased) of California; also one daughter, Mrs. W. G. Nunn, (Avis), of Oakland, California (deceased).

Following the death of her husband, Mrs. Strader moved to California where she lived for some years. In 1915 she returned to Iroquois, and was married to the late Edmund Lewis of Iroquois, where she resided until the death of her husband in 1940, when she came to Morrisburg to live with Mr. and Mrs. Wright.

The late Mrs. Lewis, while suffering from a heart condition for some years, was able to be around her home until the time of her death, which occurred very unexpectedly. She was a very quiet unassuming person, a great friend of young people and a true friend of all who made her acquaintance. She was a devout member of the Anglican faith all her life and a member of St. John's Church, Iroquois, where she was a faithful attendant, despite her advanced years.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a grand-daughter, Mrs. J. A. Anderson and a grandson, William Nunn, both of Oakland, California; three half-sisters, Mrs. Sofia Snettinger and Mrs. Amand Owens of Picton, and Miss Elizabeth Donaldson of Montreal; a half-brother, George Donaldson of Lindsay; a step-son, Dr. T.A.

Serviss-Graham

A quiet marriage was solemnized at St. Mary's R. C. Church on Tuesday, July 15, with Rev. Father Feeney officiating when Miss Maude May Graham, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Graham, became the bride of Thomas P. Serviss, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Serviss of Cardinal.

The bride wore a smart summer suit of heavenly blue, with white accessories. Her corsage was of sweet peas and baby's breath.

They were attended by Thomas P. Serviss and Miss Ethel Serviss, of Chesterville, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Serviss left for a trip to Montreal and Quebec City. On their return they will reside at Cardinal.

Lewis of Hammond, N.Y., and a step daughter, Mrs. Herbert Coons of Montreal.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wright, to St. John's Church, Iroquois, where her pastor, Rev. J. Lionel Homer preached a very impressive sermon on the beautiful life lived by the deceased, and of her faithfulness to her Church and to her friends. The large attendance at her funeral and the many floral offerings, bespoke of the esteem in which she was held by those about her.

Interment was made in St. John's Anglican Cemetery east of Iroquois. Pall bearers were Messrs. John Skinner, Percy Barclay, Jesse Barclay, Chas. Fisher, William Armstrong, and Percy White.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire in this way to thank our many friends from Morrisburg and Iroquois, for the many acts of kindness shown us, at the time of the death of the late Mrs. Lewis; also Rev. Homer and the choir of St. John's Church; all those who sent flowers, and assisted in any way.

Clear telephone lines for ALL-OUT PRODUCTION

Your telephone is part of a vast interlocking system now carrying an abnormal wartime load. Don't let needless delays hold up messages on which production efficiency may depend.

OTHER "WARTIME TELEPHONE TACTICS"

1. BE SURE you have the right number... consult the directory.
2. SPEAK distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece.
3. BE BRIEF. Clear your line for the next call.
4. USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9.30 a.m., 1-2 p.m., 5-7 p.m., after 9 p.m.

These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.
