ONTARIO GOVERNMENT TO CARRY ON FOR JANUARY SESSION

The Ontario Government as presently constituted will carry on during the next session of the Legislature after which a general convention of the liberal associations of Ontario will be called upon to choose a permanent leader and to decide future policies of the provincial liberals.

This was decided Wednesday in a caucus of liberal members of the Legislature, who met for the first time since Gordon D. Conant succeeded Mitchell F. Hepburn as Premier in a dramatic move October 21.

Decision to cary on the present set-up through the next Legislature session and to call a convention the following session was endorsed by a 47—5 vote.

At the same time, it was learned the caucus had been told by Mr. Conant that the next regular session of the Legislature, scheduled for February, probably would open around Jan. 15. An earlier start than usual is being made because of important power and labor legislation which is coming up for legislative action.

In outlining what occurred at the caucus, Chairman W. Lynn Miller, member for Algoma - Manitoulin, said that while preliminary reports had it that a fight would develop between party factions at today's gathering, the meeting in reality, was conducted on a high plane.

No personalities were entered into, he said, and there was no acrimony and no vindictiveness.

Trouble had been expected chiefly because of the manner in which Mr. Conant succeeded to the Premiership — without endorsation by a regular liberal convention. The manner of changing leaders had been disputed by two of Mr. Hepburn's cabinet ministers—Harry Nixon, who resigned his Provincial Secretaryship, and Farquhar Oliver, who quit his Public Works and Welfare portfolios. As a result, repercussions were expected at to-day's caucus, but, according to Mr. Miller, even Mr. Nixon and Mr. Oliver had no harsh words.

Both urged the calling of a convention before the next Legislature session. Mr. Nixon also said that as a Cabinet minister he had been uncomfortable because of Mr. Hepburn's attacks on the Federal Government. The attacks had not been constructive, he said, and he objected to them because he thought the Federal Government was doing a good job.

Premier Conant, Mr. Hepburn and Hon. T. B. McQuesten were the other chief speakers, Mr. Miller said. All pleaded for support for the present administration and for unity

Mr. Hepburn was given a vote of thanks in appreciation of his services and regret at his resignation was expressed in a resolution which carried unanimously. Mr. Hepburn still holds the Treasurer's portfolio in Mr. Conant's Government.

Te resolution which decided the present policies of the Liberal members, resolved, Mr. Miller said, "that the Government, as at present constituted carry on during the forthcoming session of the Legislature, and that two months afterward, a general convention of the Liberal Associations of Ontario be called to choose a future leader and decide on the future policies of the Ontario Liberal party". It was moved by John F. Glass, Toronto St. Andrew, and seconded by Joseph A. Habel, Cochrane North.

Mr. Miller did not divulge who the five dissenters in the 47—5 vote were but it was reported unofficially later that they were Mr. Nixon, Mr. Oliver, Dr. Milton T. Armstrong, member for Parry Sound; Morgan Baker, York North, and Eric W. Cross, Haldimand-Norfolk.

It was also reported the same five were the only ones to vote in favor of an amendment of the main motion asking that a convention be called prior to the next Legislature session.

Premier Conant, the chairman, reported told the caucus he wasn't responsible for the present set-up. Mr. Hepburn had insisted upon resigning, and the Government had to be carried on. He asked co-operation and forbearance of the members in the coming session and suggested that a later convention could endorse him or choose a new permanent leader.

Mr. Hepburn was said to have told the caucus his reasons for resigning. He urged the members to give support to the new Premier and the Government during the forthcoming session.

Mr. McQuesten in what Mr. Miller described as a forceful speech, said it would be a mistake to hold a convention prior to the session, as such procedure perhaps would break up the liberal party. He stressed the need for preserving party unity.

Following the gathering it was learned that the general feeling of the members is that there shouldn't be a general election this coming year, especially in view of the fact that the life of the present legislature was extended at the last session, with the consent of the Conservative Opposition to one year.

Of the 63 Liberal members of the Legislature, only three were absent from the caucus. While the vote on the main resolution accounted for only 52 members, it was suggested that some in attendance did not vote or were absent from the meeting room at the time.

NOMINATIONS TODAY FOR TOWN AND TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS

Today is Nomination Day both in Morrisburg and the Township of Williamsburg, and in both places nomination meetings were held between the hours of 12 noon and 1 p.m. to receive nominations for the various municipal offices.

In Morrisburg, at least, there was no dearth of nominations, as the list of proposed officials was the longest in some years. They were:

For Reeve: Arnold Jarvis, Fred H. Broder, Eddie Jones, Arthur Flynn, George D. Meikle.

For School Trustees (3 to be elected): John F. Casselman, W. S. L. Merrill, Erdley Coones, George Fraser, Dr. Will C. Davy, J. E. Christensen, Murray Ball.

For Hydro Commissioner (1 to be elected): John Harback, John H. Meikle.

Here are the township nominations:

For Reeve: Edgar Whitteker; Oscar Beckstead. (Mr. Whitteker has been reeve of the township for the past term; Mr. Beckstead is also a former reeve.)

For Deputy-Reeve: E. A. VanAllen; John H. Wells; Frank Darling; (Mr. Darling held the position last year; Mr. Wells and Mr. VanAllen were Councillors last year.)

For Councillors: Frank Casselman E. A. VanAllen; Melvin Dillabough; Andrew McMillan; John H. Wells; (Messrs. Casselman, Wells and VanAllen were last year's councillors.)

Chief interest in the township centered around the possibility of an election for the position of reeve. If such an election takes place, it is conceded to be anybody's race, both prospective contestants having considerable prestige in the township.

SMUGGLERS CAUGHT NEAR MORRISBURG SENTENCED

On charges laid by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, leaders of an international smuggling ring, trapped near here on September 4th last received varying sentences on Monday at Cornwall from Magistrate P. C. Bergeron.

Roland Rutley, 31 of Waddington N. Y., and Clarence Lavesque, 31 of Morrisburg, were sentenced to serve one year in reformatory on charges of conspiring to defraud the government of revenue on smuggled amusement devices. On additional charges of assisting in the unlawful importation of the machines, Lavesque and Rutley were sentenced to one yead, to be concurrent with the term imposed on the conspiracy charge. Sentences date from the time of their arrest. William Barski, 23, of Brantford, George Armstrong, 29 of Morrisburg, and Jack Skolnik, 39 of Montreal, were each ordered to pay fines of $200 and costs or serve three months in jail, when all three pleaded guilty to charges of unlawfully assisting in the importation of pinball machines.

SMITHS FALLS MAN BELIEVES HE HAS SYNTHETIC RUBBER

Stanley Lawson, of Smiths Falls, declares he isn't stretching his imagination when he holds glowing hopes for a synthetic rubber discovery. Samples of his invention have been forwarded to experts, Mr. Lawson said, and response to tests would indicate there is actual value to his discovery. Naturally unwilling to release definite details, Mr. Lawson nevertheless confided that a certain very common weed forms the base for his experiments. He crushes the weed stems and adds a certain chemical to the resulting liquid, then picks out a piece of hard brown substance, which is his synthetic rubber. When heated with a match, long stretchy strings may be drawn from the brown ball.

MR. & MRS. LARMOUR HONOURED

The Sunday School room of the United Church, Williamsburg, was the scene for a social gathering of about fifty members of the Young Peoples' League and Sunday School of the Church on Friday night of last week. The purpose of the meeting was to honour the former Miss Aleda McIntosh, whose marriage to Clifford Dalton Larmour of Rowena took place recently.

After a pleasant social time spent in games and contests the guest of honour was escorted to the centre of the group. After the customary congratulations and good wishes were expressed, Rev. E. C. Lacey, pastor of the church, addressed her on behalf of those present. He spoke of the high regard in which she is held by the congregation of which she is an active member, always willing to take her part in Church, Sunday School, Y. P. U., Choir and Social affairs.

At the conclusion of the address Mrs. Wilbur Garlough, on behalf of the gathering, made the presentation of an occasional chair.

Mrs. Larmour, in her usual pleasing manner replied, thanking all for the beautiful gift and the kind words spoken. After singing "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow", refreshments were served.

On Tuesday night of this week, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gordon Larmour were again honoured by about 200 friends and neighbours from the surrounding district who gathered in the I. O. O. F. Hall, Williamsburg and presented them with a miscellaneous shower of numerous beautiful and useful gifts.

Heartiest congratulations and good wishes for their fututre happiness and prosperity were expressed in an address read by Mahlon Strader and the presentation of gifts followed.

Mrs. Larmour, on behalf of herself and Mr. Larmour, made a very fitting reply expressing sincere thanks for the beautiful gifts and the thoughtfulness behind the gifts. Following the presentation "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung and refreshments were served. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening with music furnished by the Morrell Orchestra.

Thankoffering Meeting, W.M.S.

The W. M. S. of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg held its annual Thankoffering Service on Sunday evening, November 22nd.

Following a short devotional service, the religious sound film "The Power of God" was shown to a large and appreciative congregation. This excellent picture shows the power of God in the lives of people to-day. Many of the leading characters are young people, and the film has a definite Christian appeal to youth.

A trio, composed of Mrs. Ross Beckstead, Mrs. Clifford Casselman and Mrs. Adam Froats, sang the beautiful hymn "Something for Jesus" Several from Morrisburg and Riverside congregations attended.

W.M.S. Meeting

The November meeting of the W. M. S. of the United Church was held at the George Frederick. The president, Mrs. Reddick presided, and had charge of the opening exercises and worship period. The study on "Economic Security" was lead by Mrs. Hilliard, assisted by several members, the main thought being that we should use our influence and our franchise to secure laws that will provide in all Canada there need be no want and no fear.

Miss Smith, the district nurse, spoke briefly on the history of nursing and gave an interesting and helpful paper on Public Health in Wartime, dealing both with the armed forces and civilian life and showing, that in health as in many other things, national defence begins at home.

Ont. Hydro Film To Be Shown at The Cameo

The Ontario Hydro film "Keepers of The Light" will be shown at the Cameo Theatre here on Dec. 21, 22, and 23, it was announced this week.

The "Keepers of the Light" is an excellent picture requiring approximately ten minutes to screen, and portrays the great contribution being made by Hydro to the war effort by speeding the production of vital war materials.

• SERIAL STORY

OF BRIGHTNESS GONE

BY HOLLY WATTERSON

THE STORY: Candace Bech, an orphan, has been reared by wealthy Bruce Frazier and his socially-ambitious second wife, Belle, who is Candace's aunt. Candace, now 18 and in her last year of finishing school, meets Martin Corby, a medical-school friend of Peter, Bruce Frazier's son by his first marriage. She falls promptly and hopelessly in love with Martin.

* * *

PETER IS JEALOUS

CHAPTER III

It was late when they arrived at Tuckaways, and very dark. The place had earned its name from a chance remark of Bruce's, that it could in its entirety easily be tucked away into the pocket of any one of the huge neighboring estates. Compared to them it was indeed small; but, a creation of one of Belle's cleverer friends, it was a little gem of planning and planting.

The pretty entrance road twisted and turned and curved back on itself so that it seemed one traveled miles before coming on the house; in the dark that effect was increased and, with the glare of the headlights limning only the boles of the tall old trees, then losing itself in the foliage so that they appeared even more towering, the car seemed to be passing through dense forest. The house itself, in reality merely low and comfortably rambling, now with its shadows indefinably merging with the darker shadows of its surroundings, seemed to spread itself opulently, endlessly.

Martin was visibly impressed. Nothing in Peter's manner of living at medical school had prepared him for this. As they stepped out of the car he gave a long-drawn whistle to indicate his awe of everything.

* * *

"What were you doing sharing a room with a couple of other guys, sleeping on a cot not long enough for you," he demanded wryly, "slumming? Trying to learn how the 'other half' lives?"

Peter said briefly, "This is my folks' place," as though that explained everything. He was scarcely paying attention to Martin, being preoccupied with removing the luggage from the car. They had not wired ahead, so that the couple in charge of the place had not expected them and there was, therefore, no one on hand to help.

Candace stood beside him holding a flashlight so that he might see, and reaching forth a hand for her hatbox. As he turned to give it to her Peter was struck by her quiet, trance-like air and he saw that her eyes were looking enormous in her white face.

He said with quick contrition, "Pshaw, you run along, youngster. We'll take care of this. You've had a big day. It's off to bed with you."

Candace was not sorry to go. Martin was now completely absorbed in his new surroundings, he seemed almost to have forgotten her existence. Alone in her room she could relive that ride down, that wonderful feeling of being close to him; she could hug to herself the miracle of having met him at all. . . .

* * *

The boys were to have Saturday and part of Sunday at Tuckaways. Sunday afternoon they were leaving for Manhattan, Martin to take up his summer job as companion to a youth showing dementia praecox symptoms, Peter to continue north from there to the Adirondack hospital for chest diseases where he had obtained a three months' appointment. The appointment carried no salary, but he would get, he knew, intensive and invaluable experience of a specialized sort difficult to obtain in a general hospital such as he intended to intern in later, and he was very enthusiastic.

Saturday evening they were lolling out on the terrace, discussing it. "Gad!" Martin said, "just imagine leaving all this"—his outswept arm was meant to include the house and grounds and all of New Jersey's lovely Far Hills country in its sweep—"imagine leaving this when you don't actually have to, to bury yourself in a smelly hospital for the summer! Frazier, you must be nuts!"

"I notice you got yourself a summer job," Peter commented mildly.

"Not from choice," Martin said. "You don't think anyone would be wet nurse to a d. p. by choice, do you? I'm doing it because if I didn't earn some money this summer I wouldn't eat next fall—but you wouldn't know about that," he finished bitterly.

Candace missed the bitterness and caught only the pathos in the remark. Peter saw her look turned on Martin, compassionate and tender — and he was, suddenly, angry.

He thought, this guy's getting my goat. I'm a fool to let him do it, but he's getting under my skin. . . .

* * *

He had been conscious of a mounting irritation with Martin all day. It was funny he should feel that way, too, since back at school he'd been listening for the past few years on and off to Martin shooting off his mouth and he couldn't remember its ever bothering him before. All the fellows did it, at one time or another; at bull sessions you aired your views on life and love and politics, partly from conviction and partly for the pleasure of listening to your own voice.

He had listened many times to Martin talk on the injustice of inherited wealth and the underprivileged and the fact that Martin—in spite of his strong body, his good mind and his chance for a place in one of the finest professions in the world — clearly considered himself as one of the latter had seemed to him merely comic. Now, he found it did no longer.

I suppose, Peter thought, he considers me in the inherited wealth class. Boy, if he only knew. . . . Tuckaway's was in Belle's name and she had a way of saying, "My house, my place," in referring to it that placed himself and Candace—almost, Peter thought resentfully, Bruce himself—on the footing of privileged guest in it and nothing more; many of his father's securities, he suspected, had been made over to her in addition.

That was all right with him. He had been given a swell start, he was doing work that meant more to him than anything else ever had or probably ever would, the lack of a soft cushion of wealth on which to fall back would be no hardship.

* * *

He supposed there was some justification for Martin's attitude. There was certainly no fun and but little profit in the way of knowledge that would be useful to Martin later to be gained in taking care of a d. p.; while he himself could at least afford the luxury of an appointment that carried no salary. But, he thought, if the guy hadn't come out of the gutter he wouldn't keep rubbing it in, not here while he's my guest certainly. . . .

That was the trouble, Peter suddenly realized. Martin didn't measure up. He was good enough at school, but he didn't fit in here. At school Peter would have been ashamed of such a thought, scoring himself for a snob; but here it was different, here Candace was involved.

That was what had been at the root of his dissatisfaction all day. Candace, he at last admitted reluctantly to himself, had been "taken" with Martin—"smitten" was a word which more nearly described her condition. Part of his own trouble might well be that whereas in former years she had always been delighted to be with him, had tagged him around rather like an adoring puppy, now he seemed not to matter to her at all.

* * *

He thought of her as she had first come to them, a shy, frightened child, with her habit of thinking and speaking in her father's tongue forcing her to a slow carefulness in English that gave her an air of strange, unchildlike dignity, holding herself aloof from them all; he remembered how long it had taken him, in spite of the blandishments he had lavished on her, to win her confidence; and now, in such a short time, Martin—

But his jealousy was not so much of Martin as it was for Candace, he justified himself. She was a grand kid, she deserved the best—and Martin didn't quite, he felt, make the grade.

It had grown late. In the darkness both Candace's and Martin's faces, only a few feet from him where they sat side by side, had faded into mere blurs. He thought angrily, that's just a sign of what's happening, that just shows you, they're sitting practically cheek by jowl while I sit alone. An intruder.

Woman Gets Credit For Spotting Sub

Alertness of a woman member of the Volunteer Aircraft Detection Corps led to the probable destruction of an enemy submarine off the Newfoundland coast, R.C.A.F. Headquarters said recently.

Activities of this body of 10,000 volunteer Canadians who use their eyes and ears to watch and listen for enemy activity against this country, whether it comes by land, sea or air, were outlined by the R.C.A.F. in a departmental statement.

The woman member spotted the unidentified submarine lying off the coast early one morning and saw it speed away. Within fifteen minutes of her report United States planes roared in pursuit. Indications are that the sub was destroyed, the statement said.

The corps members report, over a speeded-up communication system, all aircraft movements, submarines, strange vessels, and any other possible enemy activity in the area.

Not long ago alert spotters in the little Pabos River area of Quebec made it possible for the R.C.A.F. to plot within four or five miles the spot where a bomber had crashed.

Italians Put Money Into British Bonds

Italian prisoners of war in Britain are buying British war bonds. This revelation was made by Macdonald Hastings of the London Picture Post, in a B.B.C. broadcast, picked up by the British Information Services short wave listening in New York.

Hastings said:

"As you know, there are many thousands of Italian prisoners here, who are helping with agricultural work. By international agreement, if they work, they get paid.

"Last week a group of Italians came to the commandant of their prison camp and made the startling request that they should be allowed to invest part of their earnings in British War Savings Certificates.

"The camp commandant explained to them that by putting their money into war savings they were directly assisting the war effort of this country. The money would be used to make bombs, perhaps to be dropped in Italy; to make guns and munitions, perhaps to be used against Italian soldiers. The prisoners were undeterred by the protest.

"We still want to put our money in British War Savings," they said, "because if it's in British War Savings—well, at any rate, the money will be safe."

That Christmas Cake

To have a Christmas cake or not to have one is quite a problem and this will have to be answered individually by yourselves. If it is the sugar problem, which is worrying you this will entirely depend upon what kind of a "sugar" family you are. For instance if you are a family who just must have sugar on cereal, in tea and coffee and ample supply in everything you cook, then you will be short when it comes to baking. However, I think all will agree, if you do not take sugar in the above named things then with care you will have enough sugar on rationing for a reasonable amount of cooking and a reasonable amount of baking.

So, as these recipes are requested I am giving them and you are the one to decide whether they will be yours or not.

A couple of weeks ago I gave the "War Fruit Cake" so will not repeat it here.

Dark Fruit Cake

¾ lb. butter
1 lb. currants
1½ lbs. raisins
¼ lb. almonds
2 cups brown sugar
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon & nutmeg
6 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon almond flavoring
½ cup cherries
1 slice candied pineapple
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ lb. citron peel
¼ lb. lemon peel

Cream butter and sugar in the usual way and add the eggs well beaten. Beat all thoroughly, then add the prepared fruit. Stir in well and allow to stand while preparing the flour and spices. Stir sifted flour and spices into fruit mixture and add the liquid flavoring. Bake about four hours in a very slow oven. This makes two medium sized cakes.

White Fruit Cake

1 cup sugar
⅛ cup white corn syrup
1½ cups butter
8 eggs
1 lb. sultana raisins
¼ lb. mixed peel
½ cup chopped cherries
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon almond flavoring
2 slices candied pineapple
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
3 cups sifted flour

Bake 1½ hours in a slow oven. This makes 1 large cake.

Economical Fruit Cake

2 eggs
1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups seedless raisins
½ lb. chopped cherries
1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups flour
1 cup butter or shortening

Cook 300 to 350°F. 1¾ hours. Makes 1 medium sized cake.

Russians Salvage War Equipment

The British Radio reported that "Russian divers have succeeded in recovering from the bed of the Volga a number of guns and other much needed equipment."

The radiocast, recorded by CBS, continued:

"The Volga is deep at Stalingrad and the current strong, and the Russian divers performed their feat under a rain of German shells and bombs."

HEARTY CORN BRAN MUFFINS

All-Bran Muffins do a fine filling-up job on cold winter mornings. But when they're made with golden corn meal in the batter they're extra delicious. Try them soon, using the following recipe:

ALL-BRAN CORNMEAL MUFFINS

3 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups milk
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
¾ cup corn meal
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg, beat until creamy. Add milk, All-Bran and corn meal. Let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 30 minutes.

Yield: 16 muffins (2½ inches in diameter) or 12 muffins (3 inches in diameter).

GOLDEN TEXT. — As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you. John 20:21.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—The words here quoted from one of our Lord's discourses were uttered in the autumn of A.D. 29; Christ's last words before His ascension, May 18, A.D. 30; Pentecost occurred May 28 of the same year. The first deacons were appointed A.D. 36. The incident taken from Acts II occurred probably in A.D. 43, and Paul began his first missionary journey A.D. 47. First John was written approximately A.D. 90.

Place.—Our Lord's words here quoted were spoken at Capernaum; the first three passages from the book of Acts relate to instances occurring in Jerusalem. The incident of the collection in our lesson occurred in the city of Antioch, far north in Syria, twenty miles inland from the Mediterranean coast on the Orontes River where also the event of the last passage from the book of Acts is to be placed. We do not know from what city John wrote his epistles, but it was probably Ephesus.

Ministry of Restoration

15. "And if thy brother sin against thee, go, show him his fault between thee and him alone: if he hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. 16. But if he hear thee not, take with thee one or two more, that at the mouth of two witnesses or three every word may be established. 17. And if he refuses to hear them, tell it unto the church: and if he refuse to hear the church also, let him be unto thee as the Gentile and the publican." Jesus said, 'If thy brother sin, go, show him his fault,' charge him with it. By no means in the spirit of jealousy or judgment, but bring him to realize it as a fault, as sin. It is not enough to convince him that we count it as sin. Our business is to bring the man to see that he has sinned. And if an erring brother shall say to us when we go to him, I know it in the depths of my soul, then we begin the ministry of restoration.

Care of the Poor

1. "Now in these days, when the number of the disciples was multiplying, there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration. 2. And the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not fit that we should forsake the word of God, and serve tables. 3. Look ye out therefore, brethren, from among you seven men of good report, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. 4. But we will continue stedfastly in prayer, and in the ministry of the word." As the Church grew in numbers, problems would also multiply. Here, in the mother church at Jerusalem the Greek-speaking Jews complained that the widows belonging to their part of the community were being neglected by the church in the daily distribution of food, and other necessities for their comfort. The apostles realized the necessity of some arrangement to meet the difficulty. Seven men were chosen to distribute the common funds and to care for the poor. Thus the apostles were free to carry their special function of teaching.

Spirit of Charity

27. "Now in these days there came down prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch. 28. And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the Spirit that there should be a great famine over all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius. 29. And the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren that dwelt in Judaea: 30. which also they did, sending it to the elders by the hand of Barnabas and Saul." When Agabus prophesied that there should be a great famine over all the world, the Christians at Antioch at once determined to minister to their Jewish brethren. They raised a sum, each contributing in proportion to his means, and then sent it by two delegates of high position in the church, none other than Barnabas and Saul, who delivered it to the presbyters at Jerusalem.

Guidance of the Holy Spirit

1. "Now there were at Antioch, in the church that was there, prophets and teachers, Barnabas, and Symeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen the foster-brother of Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. 2. And as they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Spirit said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. 3. Then, when they had fasted and prayed and laid their hands on them, they sent them away."

The command was emphatic, and the church obeyed. Either at the end of the season of fasting, or after a special fast, there was a special service when after prayer hands were laid upon Barnabas and Saul. By this action the church set them apart, committed them to the grace of God, and so dismissed them. The question arises—who did this? The Holy Spirit was the real consecrator but no doubt the whole church took part in the service and dismissal.

It is still the Holy Ghost who has charge of all mission work. He will still reveal His will, in the appointment of work and selection of men, to those who are waiting on their Lord in service and separation. In the fellowship of the Church, we must learn to wait more earnestly for the Holy Spirit's guidance in the selection of men and fields of labour, in the wakening of interest and the seeking of support: It is in the mission directly originated in much prayer and waiting on the Spirit that His power can specially be expected.

Fellowship With God

3. "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you also, that ye also may have fellowship with us: yea, and our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ." The apostle writing these words is one of the original twelve disciples, John, whom Jesus particularly loved.

The Christian life is more than the individual life of the believer in Christ; it is the life of a society, in which all believers have their place; it is the life of a body, of which each believer is a member; it is the life of a family, the family of God, of which each Christian is a member. The Church is not a mere luxury to the Christian life; it is essential to its complete development and expression. There is no more serious peril in the present day, so far as the spiritual life is concerned, than the gradual loss of the Church idea, and the comparative indifference of many very excellent Christian people to any real fellowship in the Church.

The Father and the Son take you into partnership with them. It is a fellowship of sympathy. Being of one mind, in this partnership with the Father and the Son, you are of one heart too. Seeing all things, all persons, and all events, in the fight in which the Father and the Son see them, you are affected by them and towards them, as the Father and the Son are.

Must Never Speak To Moslem Women

Booklet Gives Advice To U. S. Soldiers In Africa

American soldiers in North Africa were forbidden even to speak to a Moslem woman, lest they imperil the whole campaign.

A booklet warned them to put aside all preconceived notions and ideas about women in Africa, that the "most innocent word" to a Moslem woman is an insult to Moslem men.

"There is no Arab custom which must be respected more completely than their attitude toward women," it said. "The difference between peaceful and friendly relations with the natives on the one hand and serious difficulty on the other may depend on whether or not every single one of us understands and respects the very special outlook the Moslem have toward women.

"You must not talk to Moslem women. Never, under any circumstances. The most innocent word addressed to a Moslem woman is considered an insult bitterly resented by all Moslem men.

Serious Warning

"If an Arab asks you to his house, the women in the house are confined to their quarters. If anything is said or done by you which would make the Moslem men feel you have shown disrespect for their women, there will be no limit to their righteous indignation.

"Regarding Moslem women, you must put aside all your preconceived notions and ideas. You must remember your conduct in this matter may decide the fate of the campaign.

"Remember this at all times. It is a most serious warning."

The booklet in other respects was similar to one issued to United States forces going to Britain. It contained a geographical sketch of the landing area, customs, living conditions and many do's and don'ts.

It told the Americans not to think of themselves as conquering heroes, but as good-will ambassadors, always remembering that the French and Americans are traditional friends.

NO SURRENDER
By Martha Albrand

By day, Ruis van Rinnekom was an official in the Netherlands Department of Justice—a tool in the hands of his Nazi superiors, a Quisling hated and despised by his countrymen.

By night, he became Hendrik Loemen, an important keystone in the Dutch underground movement, lashing out against the Nazis by whose side he worked during the day.

Ruis loved Holland as much as he loved life itself, as much as he loved his pretty American wife, who tried vainly to understand how he could serve in the camp of the enemy.

But the choice was not his. The Nazis commandeered him to carry out their plans. Unable to reveal his double identity to his best friend or even to his wife, Ruis plays his dangerous game—murders a German officer—and then helps the Nazis to hunt the murderer!

According to all information available "quiz" programmes still continue to draw tremendous listener interest. Among the most popular "quiz" shows is the programme known as "Truth or Consequences" a feature of the National Broadcasting Company. It's one of those performances which can always be depended upon to get a laugh. If you don't answer the question correctly, there's no alternative . . . you pay the "consequences" . . . and in thinking up the "consequences" they certainly go places and do things. On Saturday, November 28th, "Truth or Consequences" will originate in Toronto, and will give Canadian quiz artists an opportunity to trot their wares. The show is not heard directly in this Dominion from Canadian Stations. You'll have to tune in WBEN, Buffalo 8.30 to 9 p.m.

For several weeks, genial Todd Russell one of whose bids for radio fame was in the role of M.C. in CFRB's morning eyeopener "The Yawn Patrol" has been touring Canada as partner in Claire Wallace's breezy conversational show "They Tell Me." Now that the original road show is completed Todd Russell is returning to re-join the regular announcing staff of CFRB, Toronto. Claire Wallace's new partner will be Jaffray Ford.

Of special interest to members of the fair sex will be the concluding program of a C.B.C. series "War Womanpower" which has been heard Fridays commencing at 4.18 p.m. for a number of weeks. The final broadcast in this series is scheduled for November 27th and will bring to the air waves a woman broadcaster whose voice is known all over Canada . . . Mrs. Mattie Rotenberg, who is a typical Canadian wife and mother and practices the common sense she preaches. Mrs. Rotenberg, capable home manager and mother of five lovely youngsters has found time to become a leader in club life, as well as a director of a progressive school. Since the war she has been attached to the staff of the Department of Physics of Toronto University. Her discussion which will be aired over C.B.C. Stations, including CBL will describe the sorry lot of the women workers of Germany.

Ernest Seitz, Canadian composer who wrote the popular melody "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" has passed another radio milestone of success. The Ernest Seitz Musicale is one of the longest established weekly commercial programmes on the Canadian air. Last Sunday Ernest Seitz celebrated his 300th programme, and his tenth year as a radio artist when he appeared before a C.B.C. microphone at his usual 1.30 afternoon piano recital. Congratulations Ernest.

One might logically expect some tall excitement and a bit of extravagant furore when the three fighting services stage their big show in the "Comrades in Arms" series, C.B.C. and CFRB, Friday, November 27th at 10.15 p.m. The lads in khaki, in navy blue and air force blue are cooking up a tumultuous reception for two certain parties who made their debut a couple of years ago in the "Carry on Canada" series. You'll remember them, no doubt . . . Adolf and Benito. Yes they'll be back for certain on the above date.

And speaking of events in northern Africa, it isn't generally recognised that Canadian radio was the medium through which the first news of the landing of American troops was flashed to the world. Correspondents of press and radio from all parts of the world were called to the White House in Washington at 9 o'clock in the evening, Saturday, November 7th, to hear the news. Less than three minutes later the C.B.C. Newsroom beat every other medium of world publicity to the punch by hurtling this greatest of all recent news stories into the ether.

A NEW POLICY

Beginning with the first issue of 1943. The Leader will adopt a new policy with regard to subscriptions, which will be to send out papers to paid-in-advance subscribers only.

In the past, we have been rather lenient in this regard, and have continued to send out papers to subscribers who may have been some months or even some years in arrears. This policy may be neighbourly, but it doesn't pay very good dividends. A certain number of subscribers have also paid at the end instead of at the beginning of the year.

With the issue of January 1st, 1943, this new policy will come into effect, and we sound this warning now, in order that you may not miss any copies.

On the same date, all arrearages will be handed to our solicitors for collection.

AN ACCOUNT OF THEIR STEWARDSHIP

It is customary at the end of the business year, for corporations and likewise for municipalities to issue some sort of financial statement, outlining the net results of the years business, the profits or losses as the case may be, and other items which are of prime interest to the shareholders of the corporation or to the voters in the case of a municipality.

At noon to-day, (Friday) a nomination meeting is being held in the Public School Building, and this week, the treasurer employed by the local municipal council has issued a financial statement for the year 1942. Last week Reeve Fred H. Broder stated to The Leader that the municipality was in better financial shape than had been the case for some ten or twelve years. That, we believe, is the absolute truth. But that financial statement issued this week will never prove it to at least 75 per cent of the voters. So far as that proportion is concerned the money spent in printing the statement might far better have been saved, or given away. We understand that the statement is of a type advocated by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, a department formed by the Hepburn administration, and which for years Ontario municipalities got along nicely without. But the point is this—the Department of Municipal Affairs does not pay for the report—neither are they interested in reading it. It is paid for, and it should be read carefully by the voters of the municipality concerned. Then why the heck not give the voter a report he can read? Or else save him the money that it costs to print a report which he cannot read.

A GAP IN TIME

As we understand the matter the new motor licenses are to be issued in December and will be in use from the first of next year. But the gasoline ration books which motorists now hold are good until next March. It is part of the duty of the gasoline salesman to compare the license number on the book which is presented to him with that which appears on the plates of the car to be served, and it is a condition of sale that these must be the same. What is he going to do between January and March, when the numbers will not be the same. Unless there is to be a great deal of cheating during that period this discrepancy should be adjusted at once.

START CHRISTMAS SHOPPING NOW

Half the joy in giving Christmas presents is in the buying of them. Shopping can be pleasant if done at your leisure, bit by bit. One can always run in at the last minute to buy a tie for dad or a box of chocolates for mother, but that is not the enjoyable sort of buying. It is the unusual gift, picked up when stocks are plentiful, which is appreciated by the loved ones. It appears to them as though some special care was taken in their selecttion.

So shop early, shop at home, buy with discrimination —and enjoy it.

Father J. F. Feeney, who has been sponsoring a series of bingo parties in St. Mary's parish hall, announces that the entire proceeds from the next bingo party there will be donated to buy smokes for Morrisburg boys (of all denominations) who are overseas. This is a very generous and kind gesture by the popular priest, and should have the support of all the people of the community.

Keep your subscription paid up to date, and be sure that you do not miss a single copy of The Leader,

NOTHING IN THE PAPER

"There's nothing in the paper", says the man who isn't interested in municipal affairs and local situations of various kinds. He's the man who is looking for the flashy report of some human frailty, and he is one of those persons who looks stupid and utter the smart answer: "I'm not an information bureau", when someone asks him an intelligent and interested question about his own town.

He yawns, throws his home-town paper aside, and goes down street to get the news. He hears a distorted story of somebody's prejudiced opinions on the most important questions in the community and wonders why the newspapers didn't have it that way, so it would be worth reading.

The paper that does not reveal some scandal, somebody's error, some depravity, "has nothing in it" for the person who prefers gossip, and knows everybody else's business better than his own.

PROHIBITION PRELUDE?

Just before he resigned from the Cabinet, the Hon. J. T. Thorson announced that one stage of the Government's plan to restrict liquor consumption would shortly be put into effect. The small pressure group which had been badgering the Government rubbed its hands. So did the shifty-eyed men who saw easy pickings serving the public with questionable liquor in questionable surroundings.

Press reports have been suggesting that the Government will take steps, which, at first glance, may appear to produce little more than inconvenience for the legitimate buyer or the legitimate seller. The only one who would seem to gain would be the bootlegger. Any enforced deterioration in quality would help him. Shorter hours of sale would react to his benefit, and the elimination of all advertising of beer, wine and liquor would give the illicit product that much more advantage.

Naturally we are interested in the advertising aspect of the situation. Yet we can honestly say that we sincerely believe that more has been done by the iquor people themselves to promote temperance than has been accomplished by the drys with all their distorted arguments. Those who make whiskey urge moderation—sensible moderation. Similarly the beer and wine companies, have been equally successful in educating a generation which had rome to regard all alcoholic beverages as something which must be used to excess—which was one result of prohibition. Prohibition does not prohibit. Both in Canada and in the United States, records indicate that more drinking is done in dry areas than in those which are under sane control. Observation points to more drunkards per sguare mile as well.

The drys preach temperance, but their real objective is complete prohibition. If prohibition did make for moderation—instead of excesses — there might be a sounder argument for it. But it doesn't. Prohibition stimulates drinking, and under it the criterion for liquor degenerates to its power to stupefy. The dry pressure group, however, has been careful noot to advocate prohibition. They know that only 29 per cent of the people would support such demands. So they edge in with pleas to protect the men in the armed forces. Unfortunately our fighting men are too busy to send opposing delegations to Ottawa. Foor a time the drys gave the impresssion of having had their way. Those who know the technique of pressure groups and the ways of prohibitionists could see the shape of the wedge. As we go to press, however, the voice of the majority is being heard and there is said to been some delay in the introduction of the new measures, many of which would require provincial co-operation.

We are still a free people. We do not want prohibition. Gallup polls reflect this clearly. It is up to our representatives, therefore, to see that the insistent salesmen of prohibition do noot work their foot too far into the door which has been opened respectfully for them.

One of the sad reflections raised in connection with the recent Victory Loan is the ease with which billions of dollars can be secured from the public for war purposes— the same public that a few years ago let men beg from door to door and ride on box cars during a depression for which these unfortunates were in no way responsible.

Potato Seller Pays Fine for Improper Tagging

For selling potatoes in bags noto properly taagged with the name and address of the seller, their grade and weight, Phillip Lapensee, 167, Gloucester street, was fined $10 and costs on Wednesday in court at Corn wall.

The charge was laid by Egbert Bryant of Morrisburg, an inspector of fruits and vegetables, attached to the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Mr. Bryant warned that potato sellers are noto observing the regulations of the Ontario Farm Products Grades and Sales Act, and that those caught at this practice, will be prosecuted. He added that his department is now conducting a check-up to see if the regulations are being complied with.

ALL-BRAN IS OUR FAVORITE CEREAL BECAUSE WE HAVE FOUND IT THE "BETTER WAY"

Says Mrs. Anna Fortin, Jonquière, Quebec: "Ever since we first realized how beneficial KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is to our well-being, it has been our favorite cereal. ALL-BRAN helps us keep regular naturally . . . we don't need pills or powders any more." Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause if you're troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Have You Heard?

Two women neighbors were in a shelter while an enemy 'plane was droning overhead.

Said one of them: "Good gracious, my husband is still in bed. I forgot to wake him."

"Don't worry," said the other, "let him sleep, if he can."

"Sleep!" said the first woman. "You don't know my husband; if a bomb drops on him he'll nag me about it for months."

A fly and a flea in a flue.
Were imprisoned; now what could they do?
Said the fly, "Let us flee."
"Let us fly," said the flea.
So they flew through a flaw in the flue.

Jack, the sailor, had broken with his girl. After ignoring several letters requesting the return of her photograph, he received one threatening to complain to the captain.

Deciding to silence her for all time, he borrowed all the pictures of girls available on the ship from his pals, and sent them on to her in a parcel with the following note: "Pick yours out, I have forgotten what you look like!"

"Auntie, were you ever proposed to?"

"Once, dear, a gentleman asked me to marry him over the telephone, but he had the wrong number."

The bewildered guest eyed the youngster who was driving nails into the furniture. He turned to his host.

"I say," he said, pointing to the boy with the hammer, "don't you find it rather expensive to let your children play like that?"

The host smiled proudly.

"Not at all," he replied cheerfully. "I get the nails wholesale."

"Who made these doughnuts?" asked Brown.

"I did," replied his wife, proudly.

"Keep the recipe — you have the answer to the rubber shortage."

The battleship was in port and visitors were being shown around. The guide was exhibiting a bronze tablet set in the deck.

Guide—"Here is where our gallant captain fell."

Nervous Old Lady—"Well, no wonder. I nearly tripped over it myself."

"Will you sail with me on the sea of matrimony?"

"Yes, after you've made a raft of money."

W.A.A.F.s Get Ride With Queen Mary

Girls Delighted With Charming Grey-Haired Lady

Two W.A.A.F.'s, leaving their station "somewhere in the West Country" a few days ago, thumbed a passing car in the hope of getting a lift on the first stage of their "hitch-hike" journey to London.

It was a big, dark red saloon, and as it pulled in towards the side of the road one of the girls realized that it looked like a Royal car.

Thinking perhaps they had held up the King on an important journey, the W.A.A.F.'s approached the car apprehensively.

A tall major got out, asked them where they were bound, and invited them into the car. There a stately, gray-haired lady offered them seats on either side of her, and apologized that she could give them a lift only as far as Reading.

Yes, it was Queen Mary. She has made a practice of giving lifts to all service men and women for the past two years, and when the two W.A.A.F.'s reached home they were full of delight at the charming way Queen Mary had talked about service life and conditions.

Before they got out of the car Queen Mary shook hands with both girls and gave each a little medallion with her cipher "M.R." as a souvenir of the drive.

What neither of the girls realized was that the Queen was driving on one of the saddest missions of her life—to the funeral of her youngest son, the Duke of Kent.

St. Thomas Proud of Air Graduates

In days of peace the motor car manufacturers told with pride that the so-many-thousandth car had just rolled off the line. In like manner the R.C.A.F. Technical Training School at St. Thomas makes a bit of justifiable fuss every time the 10,000th graduate passes out of its portals a skilled man in some form of ground crew work. Last year the first 10,000th man graduated; last week the second 10,000 mark had been passed. It was a great day for this training centre and a greater day for the British Empire Commonwealth Air Training Plan, of which it is an integral part.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

STATE OF MIND AFFECTS STOMACH

Unusual evidence that emotions are a factor in the development of ulcers was reported recently by two physicians who spied on a man's stomach during emotional disturbances.

The study was made on a 56 year old man who has to be fed through an artificial opening in his stomach—remarkably similar to the way an army doctor a century ago discovered the nature of digestion by looking into a man's stomach through a gunshot wound that failed to heal completely.

The new observations, confirming the medical belief that the state of one's mind affects the state of one's stomach, were described in the journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. Stewart Wolf, U. S. army captain, and Dr. Harold G. Wolff of New York.

"It appears likely," they concluded, "that the chain of events which begins with anxiety and conflict and their associated overactivity of the stomach and ends with hemorrhages or perforation is that which is involved in the natural history of peptic ulcer in human beings."

The physicians took a look at the man's stomach—34 times—and reported that fear, hate, anxiety and similar emotions produce a stomach condition making it possible for acid gastric juices to start an ulcer.

They noticed, for instance, that during such emotions the stomach becomes red from excess blood in the mucous membrane, acid production increases sharply and vigorous contractions begin.

They found also that the stomach's lining was protected from its own secretions by an efficient insulating layer of mucus, enabling most small erosions to heal promptly within a few hours.

The man upon whose stomach they spied had drunk scalding hot clam chowder at the age of nine, completely blocking his esophagus, and has been fed since through an opening cut by surgeons.

Tin Output Rises In British Mines

The thousand-year-old mines of Cornwall, in southern England, are increasing their production of tin despite labor and machinery shortages, according to the United States Department of Commerce.

This increase will compensate in part for loss of Malayan tin mines to the Japanese.

HOW CAN I?

Q. How can I prevent milk from curdling when using it with brown sugar?

A. It will not curdle when combined with brown sugar if a pinch of soda is placed in the mixture.

Q. How can I train vines to grow down over the edge of a flower pot or window box?

A. By using long hair pins and pushing these into the soil over the vine at the base of the stems. The slight pressure will force the vines in any desired direction.

Q. How can I make soup as quickly as possible?

A. When pressed for time, try cutting the meat for the soup into pieces the size for stew. It will hasten matters.

Q. How can I keep pot holders clean?

A. They will keep clean much longer if they are round instead of square. There will be no corners that are liable to get into any of the food.

Q. How long should clothing be soaked before laundering?

A. The soiled parts of clothes should be rubbed with soap before putting them to soak. If they are to be soaked overnight, put the clothes into cold suds; if to be washed within a short time, soak them in hot suds.

1. Isn't it gracious for a hostess to urge more food upon a guest who has refused?

2. When a woman is traveling alone on a train and wishes to have a stubborn window shade raised or lowered, or a piece of heavy luggage moved, what should she do?

3. What is the most becoming color to a girl who has "greenish" eyes and golden brown hair?

4. Whose duty is it to see that the bride and bridegroom's car is ready and waiting for them, at the wedding reception?

5. When a man is with a girl and wishes to light a cigarette, should he offer her one?

6. At dinner, which fork should be placed nearest to the plate?

Answers

1. It is very rude and distasteful to the guest for a hostess to do this. She should never make but one offer, and under no circumstances should she urge or scold because the guest "is not eating enough." 2. Ask the porter to do this. 3. Jade green. 4. India's Volunteer Army 1,500,000

Which country has the world's largest volunteer army? In the World War this honor would have gone to the United Kingdom, which recruited around 2,500,000 men before compulsory service was invoked, says the Windsor Star. This time, however, the palm goes not to Canada or Australia, but to India. The land Gandhi would sell out has 1,500,000 in its armed forces, and is adding to them at the rate of 50,000 a month. Around 350,000 Indian troops, incidentally, are serving away from home.

"Rommeling"

The German people, already beginning to be depressed at the lack of promised Soviet annihilation, must have received further cruel blows over the crushing disaster to the German Afrika Korps, a B.B.C. commentator said on the regular British radio news reel last week.

The Germans, he said, had invented a new verb, "To Rommel." It meant to advance, to march forward to victory. Unfortunately, added the commentator, the idol of the German people is now "Rommeling" in the opposite direction. He recalled that German troops in camps and barracks at El Daba and Alamein sang songs in which prominence was given to the line, "We are Rommeling along."

BOMBS AWAY!

This remarkable picture was taken from the bomb bay of an American Flying Fortress, just as two bombs were simultaneously released and sent on their mission of destruction toward the German submarine base at Lorient, France. In the city's pattern, between and around the bombs, can be seen the smoke puffs of previous hits during the raid.

THE UNCONQUERABLES

Nurse Becomes Underground Reporter

In the early winter of 1939 a wounded Polish officer picked his way through the ruins of Warsaw to the apartment he had occupied before the German invasion. It was in one of the few buildings that had escaped destruction or serious damage.

Waiting in the apartment was a nurse who had cared for him as a child. The nurse immediately assumed her former authority and took him off to a workingman's home. The Germans, she said, would take his apartment. The next day the officer's quarters were requisitioned and the nurse was ordered to serve the German occupant.

In a few weeks, his wounds healed, the Polish officer became the editor of an "underground" newspaper. He proposed to "steal" his own excellent short-wave radio from his apartment in order to obtain foreign news. But the nurse had a better idea. The German was away from the apartment all day. She would listen to the British broadcasts in Polish, take notes, and relay them to the officer.

At first the Polish officer was dubious. But the nurse was insistent and finally he consented. From the first the scheme was a success. The amateur reporter provided much valuable information and was greatly pleased when she read her "news" in the "underground" paper. She felt she was making an important contribution to continued Polish resistance.

One day, however, the German returned to the apartment earlier than was expected, and she was caught red-handed. The Gestapo subjected her to a severe grilling, but she kept her silence in spite of all threats.

The German authorities sentenced her to twenty years at hard labor. The nurse went to prison with her head held high and a smile on her face. She knew that her one-time charge was still at liberty; that he had found another source of foreign news, and that the secret paper was still giving the Polish people a reason for the unquenchable hope that was in them.

VOICE OF THE PRESS

THEY'LL GO OVERSEAS

The question is frequently asked: "What happens to the young officers who are employed as instructors at the O.T.C.?" The answer is: "If they are physically fit and otherwise qualified, they go overseas like everyone else." This is proved by the recent arrival in Britain of a group of these instructors who will now join active units on duty in that country.

REAL LEMON-AID

At a benefit auction in Wales to help the Red Cross a lemon sold for $132. That sounds like real lemon-aid.

SCOUTING

Boy Scouts of Queensland, Australia, did not let difficulties stand in their way when their country needed old rubber. Heading up the drive the boys made an amazing showing. One country troop rigged up tackle at the top of a 100-foot precipice and hauled up 200 old tires which had been thrown over in palmier days. One pack of Wolf Cubs borrowed a pony and canvassed the farming country, returning many times with their cart full to capacity.

It may not be generally known, but Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, was induced to give up his army career to lead the Boy Scouts organization by King Edward VII. King Edward also instituted the King's Scout Badge, the hallmark of the finest among Boy Scouts.

Boy Scouts of Toronto are assisting in a salvage campaign which is expected to supply enough wool for 44,000 military uniforms. The boys make regular collections of wool clippings from some 240 Toronto clothing stores. The money raised by the sale of these clippings is being donated to the Citizens' Committee for Troops in Training.

In a recent radio broadcast J. Edgar Hoover, head of the American F.B.I., stated that most of his men had early training as Boy Scouts. He told the story of one former Scout who "for months, with fellow agents, maintained a daily radio contact with Nazy spy headquarters in Germany. At any moment there was the possibility of his identity being revealed and his life snuffed out by the agents of a nation that long ago strangled its Boy Scout movement. But this was no deterrent to him or to other special agents who have carried with them the lessons of their Boy Scout days."

Across Canada just now Boy Scouts are opening up their Toy Shops, and at Christmas thousands of toys will be distributed to institutions and to the children of soldiers serving overseas. In Montreal last year 8,089 articles were distributed through 63 social agencies. In this total were included 590 dolls and 507 stuffed animals, repaired by the Girl Guides of the city.

Tiny Gadget

One of the tiny assemblies in the gyro horizon and directional gyro indicators for warplanes, says Pathfinder, weighs only 15-100,000 of an ounce; 3,000 of them could fit into an ordinary needle.

Hitler Orders Extra Holiday Food Ration

Germans will receive a small extra food ration as a special Christmas gift, according to a decree published in the German Official Gazette, D.N.B., the official German news agency, announced in a broadcast.

The extra ration will include one pound of flour, a quarter-pound of butter, a half-pound of sugar, about two ounces of coffee, two and one-half ounces of cheese, a quarter-pound of candy and a small bottle of spirits.

In place of the coffee and spirits, children will receive a half-pound of candy.

The special ration also will include between four and six eggs.

English Farmers Praise Canadians

Farmers in south-east England, having reaped and stored the finest harvest in history, are now paying tribute to the magnificent help given them by Canadian soldiers during the summer.

Lord Monsell, South-East Regional Commissioner, told reporters: "Our farmers would have been in very great labour difficulties if it had not been for the help of the Canadians. Most of the men had experience of Canadian farm work, and our farmers regard them as thundering good fellows."

The Canadians worked in large forces from the first haysell to the carting of the last load of corn. Since then they have been lending a hand at threshing and baling, and many are now helping to lift potato and root crops.

Some of their work has been performed as part of their military duties, but many of them devoted their leave-days to voluntary work in the harvest fields. In a few cases, so eager were they to help, they walked from farm to farm until they found work.

Lord Monsell said that apart from their land work the Canadians have rendered grand service in civil defence. "At every bombing incident," he said, "the Canadians have been among the first on the scene, anxious to lend a hand, ready and willing to take instructions from whatever officer was in charge.

"Fine fellows, fine workers and fine soldiers."

Rabbit Same By Any Other Name

The recent announcement of the price board that henceforth dyed rabbit must be called dyed rabbit and nothing more sent a Toronto reporter into the trade to find out under what guises the rabbit had been operating, states The Ottawa Journal. His list follows:

Arctic Seal, Australian Seal, Super Seal, Electric Seal, Baltic Fox, Beaverette, French Sable, Lapin, Squirreline and many others.

The reporter also found out while he was at it that Alaska Sable now becomes natural or dyed skunk, Genet is dyed or natural cat, Moufflon is goat and Wolf Fox is dyed dog.

We can just hear Mrs. Jones calling out the window to her friend in a waiting car: "Half a jiff. I'll just throw my skunk over my shoulders and be right down."

Foods May Be Sent To Prisoners

Certain types of food now may be included in parcels sent to prisoners of war by their next of kin, External Affairs Department announced recently. Previously only clothing, small personal items and chocolate was allowed to be sent. Under the new arrangements, limited amounts of dehydrated fruits and berries, dehydrated soups, shelled nuts, hard chocolate and cocoa, coffee, tea, sugar or hard candies, dried chipped beef, spices and curry powder may be sent.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

Political Policy Of United States In Campaign In North Africa

This is a good time, says the New York Times, for a little patience, and confidence as well, about the political policy our Government is pursuing in North Africa. The situation is admittedly a strange one. Our friends the Free French are nowhere in the picture. Instead it is Darlan, until a week ago the colleague of Laval, who is organizing North Africa on our side; Darlan who appoints General Giraud as the Commander-in-Chief of the French forces; Darlan who uses the American-controlled Algiers radio to broadcast, in the same breath, a call to arms against the Germans and a claim that his authority to make war upon the Germans derives from Petain, who is a puppet in German hands. It is in these perplexing circumstances that the de Gaulle committee in London announces that it is "taking no part" in the present situation and will accept no decisions made by the Americans and British "should the negotiations result in arrangements which would in effect confirm the Vichy regime in North Africa."

Criticism Premature

There will be some bewilderment in this country also, and no doubt the charge will be made in certain quarters that our Government has once more embarked on a policy of "appeasement" at the expense of its real friends. But such criticism, in our judgment, will be premature. It will also be made without full possession of the facts in a complex situation. A great military operation is under way in North Africa. Whether it succeeds or fails is a matter of touch-and-go. Only the military commanders in the field, and the Government officials in Washington who receive from them the first-hand information which they have gathered on the spot, know what problems we face in North Africa, what obstacles must be overcome, what risks must be taken, what means must be used both to save the lives of American boys and to assure the success of the vast military enterprise which we have launched from a distance of three thousand miles. Surely there is only one thing that counts at the moment. This is to obtain control of the whole north coast of Africa, Tunisia included, as the necessary first step toward the liberation of France herself.

Patience Urged

Whatever obscurities or apparent contradictions there may be in the present American political policy in North Africa, we do not for a moment believe that the course our Government is following means that we have mistaken our enemies for friends, or lost interest in the real cause for which our friends are fighting—namely, the life of the French Republic. We urge patience, and confidence, on the part both of Americans and of their French colleagues in arms. The French Republic never had a better friend than President Roosevelt who directs our policy in this crisis.

Battle of The Solomons

Though we do not know, the New York Times continues, and for reasons of safety cannot be told at this time, how many American ships were damaged in the Solomon Islands battle, in addition to those which were sunk, there can be no doubt that we have won a naval victory which will have far-reaching consequences on the course of the war in the Pacific. We have sent a Japanese battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and eight transports to the bottom of the seas, and in doing so we have struck a blow that has sent the enemy reeling from the scene of action, so badly confused, in the later stages of the battle, that he is reported to have fired on some of his own ships.

Full Details Not Known

More time must pass before we can learn the full details of the battle, but it is already clear that we made skillful use of both our seapower and our airpower. The Navy notes the great assistance it received from General MacArthur's heavy raids on the invasion fleet at Rabaul and at Buin. The bare outlines of last week's communique carry their own evidence of the ability with which our surface ships were fought and of the gallantry of the crews that manned them. The victory is all the more promising because it was won within a few hundred miles of the great Japanese naval base at Truk by an American fleet operating from an improvised island base which was in turn far from the centre of our naval power at Pearl Harbor.

Enemy Will Come Again

Sharp and punishing as this blow has been, we must assume that the enemy will return to the scene of battle to renew his challenge. He is drawn irresistibly to the southern Solomons both by his desire to command an air base important to the defense of Truk itself and by the inability of the Japanese military to accept a loss of "face." He will come again, but when he comes he will sail without some of his finest ships. We have won a victory that brings appreciably closer the supremacy of American seapower in the Pacific.

Report To Britain

Mr. Churchill, speaking in the House of Commons last week, reviewed the battle of Egypt and the American-British invasion of North Africa. He dwelt on the amount of time and careful preparation necessary to these enterprises whose initial success, requiring a delicate precision in the combination of so many elements, seems to the layman almost miraculous.

Mr. Churchill's account was accompanied with a reproof and admonition deserved by many well-meaning persons in Great Britain and the United States. Where is the second front? Why is nobody doing anything for Russia? What's the matter with the British? Well, Russia was told that a landing on the Continent would be made this year if it could be. When this turned out to be impossible, the North African expedition was fitted out. Mr. Churchill went to Russia and explained the situation. He and Mr. Stalin parted in "mutual understanding." But for months a hullabaloo of censure was made in entire ignorance of the facts.

Thanksgiving For Victory

The President's wise and generous course after the fall of Tobruk in letting the British have our best tanks and a lot of self-propelled 105-mm. guns was not forgotten by Mr. Churchill. The Prime Minister's stoic determination to look forward unafraid to blunders and disappointments inevitable in war was reiterated. From his sober prose a touch of poetry stands out pleasantly. He said the church bells would ring out all over England. Instead of an air raid warning they would be a thanksgiving for victory. One thing of the old, quiet, "green and pleasant land," of cathedral closes, of peaceful villages and parish churches.

A Wartime Holiday In Great Britain

A young married couple in England recently determined to spend their first wartime holiday on the western coast. A huge crowd was at the station, but they managed to get into a crowded compartment when, to the wife's dismay, she discovered that she had left her ration cards at home. Returning home and collecting the books, they gathered up their luggage once again, only to discover that their "macks" had been left in the first train.

The next train not being due to leave for an hour, they adjourned to the station buffet for a stimulant. In the crush at the counter, a tall fellow's elbow was jabbed into the husband's eye, which needed first-aid. When at length the by now disgruntled couple arrived at their destination, they learned that the landlady was too ill to accommodate them. The new address given to them was half a mile farther from the sea.

Nothing further happened to upset their peace of mind until on reaching home madame found that she had once again left her ration books behind—and on the mat in the hall reposed her husband's calling-up papers!

HOME POWER OR WAR POWER?

TURN OFF THAT SWITCH!

There is not enough power for our war industries and for our homes. The use of electricity in our homes must be reduced —reduced away below normal, if we are to keep our war plants working at full speed.

Unless you cut your power consumption by at least twenty per cent — you're not saving enough.
