Roles-Johnston Vows Heard at Williamsburg

Williamsburg United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, August 12, 1972 when Linda Dawn Johnston and Wayde Donald Roles were united in marriage. Rev. D.L. Gordon officiated at the 3 p.m. ceremony. For the occasion the Church was decorated with baskets of yellow glads, white shasta daises and deep pink carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fernely Johnston of RR 1 Williamsburg and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Roles of Morrisburg.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in a full length peau de soie gown over layers of taffetta styled on princess lines with full skirt flowing into chapel train, standup collar with applique and applequed bodice and cuffs. Her full length illusion veil was held at the crown by a Juliet cap covered with lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red sweetheart roses and white carnations.

Miss Fannie Empey was Maid of Honour and Bridesmaids were Donna Casselman sister of the bride and Sandra McIntosh sister of the groom.

They chose identical full length gowns of yellow chiffon over taffetta and yellow picture hats with white bows and carried baskets of yellow and white shasta daisies and pink carnations.

Groomsman was Richard Droppo and ushers were Dale Caselman and Barry McIntosh.

For a reception at the church hall for 85 guests and later in the evening a dance at the Boucks Hill Legion, the bride's mother chose a full length powder blue chiffon over taffetta gown fitted at the waist with applique design white accessories and a pink tipped corsage. The groom's mother wore a full length mint green poly ester crepe a-line gown, fashioned with empire waist with white accessories and pink sweetheart roses.

The gift to the bride from the groom was a cultured pearl necklace and earrings, and to the bridesmaids from the bride cultured pearl pendants.

Oligarchy at Queen's Park

Municipal voters throughout the Province of Ontario have for many years been in the process of being further and further removed from governing their own affairs as successive Conservative governments have nibbled constantly at cherished institutions. The latest brainwave of the computer-minded solons at Queen's Park is the new untested system of enumeration for municipal elections to be held on December 4th.

In past municipal elections, voters lists were prepared by the various municipal clerks from the assessment rolls, rather than by direct enumeration. This system, it is now charged, was inefficient and overlooked many persons entitled to the vote. The new enumeration system and computer preparation of the voters list is supposed to improve and speed up the process. But, like so many other so-called "improvements" which are being foisted on the people who pay the shot, without consultation or agreement, it now seems the new system is in imminent danger of collapse and chaos.

Officials in Metro Toronto have already expressed fears for a breakdown in the new system. One says that the province is trying to do too much too fast, and estimates that, as a result, perhaps only 60 percent of eligible voters will be on the preliminary -omputer-prepared list, compared to 90 percent in the past under the old system.

Enumeration begins on September 5 and must be done within three weeks, so that lists can be prepared to be fed to computers for production before October 11th. The new Municipal Elections Act was enacted in a hurry only seven weeks ago. Provincial officials have never directed municipal elections before and municipal voters lists have never before been so fully computerized. Under the new act, all residency or minimum assessment residency requirements have been removed. Voting-age children living with their parents need not have lived there for two years to get the vote. Roomers can vote at municipal elections even if their room is not assessed at $400. Any Canadian citizen, or British subject (including the Commonwealth and the Irish Republic) who is 18 years of age or older, and a resident of the municipality between September 5 and October 10, can vote in local elections.

The new ac may, or may not be an improvement. Right now, it seems unlikely. But the fact remains that it was foisted on the public as a "fait accompli", that the municipal governments had no chance to oppose it. It causes one to wonder at the naivete of an electorate which continues to elect an oligarchy which feeds on its own importance, and continues to erode the cherished democratic forms which have been so dearly bought.

Again we call the attention of the Village Council to the disgraceful situation which exists with the broken glass littering our otherwise beautiful shopping centre in Morrisburg. At the west end of the plaza, just a week ago, we carefully dodged a pile of broken glass for six (and we counted them) days, before the glass was scattered by traffic. This situation not only creates a hazard to traffic, and a considerable expense to the motorists whose tires are shredded but it is most discouraging to visitors to our town. To argue who is primarily responsible for the unfortunate state of affairs seems to be futile. The taxpayers of this municipality are asking that this hazard to their motoring safety be removed — not just once — but on some kind of a regular basis. We would like to see The Chamber of Commerce, whose members stand to lose substantially, take this matter up with the local Council.

Gather together a buch of university professors — experts in chemistry, physics, machine tool design, nuclear physics or geology — stir well, give them a couple of projects, and what do you get? At McMaster University, Hamilton, reports the Financial Post, they call it a multidisciplinary group. The essential ingredient, besides brains, is of course money. The National Research Council recently granted McMaster $1 million-plus for two important applied research and development programs, which will benefit mainly Canada's metalworking and petroleum industries.

Sweetie Pie

"You sure can't miss Sweetie Pie!"

Yours Sincerely . . .

BY MRS. WELLWOOD ADAM

I have come to realise that anyone who sits quietly and listens patiently to another's problems, no matter what age he or she is—it is a rare thing in this modern jet age. Some of us do find time to give a listening ear or find time to give an unbiassed opinion or another slant to the difficulty. In this way, a feeling of victory over near despair is given back.

I have real an Old Testament account of Job, who had some seri ous problems, and he had 3 good friends who came to comfort him. They stayed with him for about 7 days, but did not speak with him at all because "they saw that his grief was very great." After that, they began to give him lots of advice, pointing out all the things they thought he had been doing wrong. The story goes on that God condemned them for giving unhelpful advice, but it would appear that they had done Job a lot of good for they had comforted him by just being there. So it still shows that in some cases a quiet listening does far more, basically, than a multitude of words afterwards.

Have you a quiet friend or friends like that? I know that I have one, and just to know that she was around, especially when I had to be in the U.K. at one time. She did far more for my morale than she will ever guess!

To be able to listen objectively, even if one is a comparative stranger, helps tremendously. I should imagine it is not necessary to be a fully qualified counsellor to be an effective listener. Just that little extra patience and understanding are the most needful ingredients. The Scriptures urge "be slow to speak" and "there is a time to speak and a time not to speak." One might ask how do we know when to speak, when not to? and the only answer is to use what common sense we have, great or small. Also to certainly keep anything said in confidence, and as an African friend taught me in past years, to "keep it under my feet" something which I still find a very good reminder.

However, to be a good listener could be very costly, too, as many people prefer not be be involved; which is a pity, really, because if they faced this responsibility of being a good neighbour, they could see folks helped before it it become needful to pick up the pieces.

Yes, I think St. Paul's advice "bear ye one another's burdens" is very understanding and sympathetic, and this sensitivity to another's need should be drapped up in everyone's experience. Would you agree with me?

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor
Morrisburg Leader
Dear Sir:

May we make an appeal to your readers for some missing documents?

The Historical Branch of the City of Edmonton Parks and Recreation Department has been researching information about the Hudson's Bay Company Fort Edmonton as it was during the 1840's in preparation for an authentic reconstruction of the post. Much of our knowledge of this fort in the 19th century is derived from Fort Edmonton Journals of Daily Occurrences which are now in the Hudson's Bay Company Archives. Unfortunately, all of the Journals between the years 1834 and 1854 are missing, but it is possible that they still exist somewhere, perhaps in a private collection.

If any readers have information concerning the whereabouts of these missing journals, we would sincerely appreciate hearing from them at:

S.D.G. EDUCATION DIRECTOR RETIRES

The Trustees of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education have reluctantly accepted the resignation of Mr. H.D. Shaw os Director of Education. The resignation, however will not be effective until Sept. 1, 1973.

The Director's submission at this particular time will give the board a year to make administrative plans for the future including the appointment of a successor; it will also enable Mr. Shaw to finalize personal plans for continued studies in education.

St Lawrence College Expansion Approved

First phase of a multi-million dollar expansion and building program for the Cornwall Campus of St. Lawrence College of Applied Arts and Technology has been approved by the provincial government. Louis Tremblay, principal of the Cornwall campus announced today (Aug. 22) that the initial building project is scheduled for completion by September, 1973.

The first phase, which includes an 89,000 square foot, four-storey structure plus renovations to the existing building and major site work, is estimated at $3.3 million. The additional space is required to meet the expanding student enrolment and community service offerings provided by the campus.

Projected figures for the Fall of 1973 show a 25 per cent increase in expected full and part-time student enrolment over the total of 2,500 in 1972.

The new building, structural steel with a pre-cast concrete clad ding, will form the hub for future construction in accordance with a development master plan prepared by the architectural firm of Allword and Gouinlock, Toronto. The structure will contain a cafeteria and kitchen, a 720-seat lecture auditorium, offices for student services and student government, lounges, a computer and audio-visual centre, library, physical plan facilities and general classroom space adaptable to office space in future.

Additional work to be completed in the first phase of construction will provide an enclosed link between the new and existing buil ding, extra parking areas, a bridge and road link to the retaining building on the north-east corner of the Windmill Point site, and classroom and studio space in renovated sections of the old main building.

Described by the architects as providing flexibility for alternative solutions as needs are identified, the phased building program for the Cornwall campus has as its central feature a weather-enclosed, east-west concourse facilitating comfortable pedestrian movement, and allowing additions to be "plugged in" as required. Thus phase two plans provide for another structure to the east of the first new building, and phase three describes a third complex across a bridge spanning the water inlet from the St. Lawrence River which divides the property.

The third building in the plan, which is itself expandable in phases as dictated by requirements, will be linked to the other buildings and the retraining facility by covered walkways.

The existing main building on the Cornwall campus site was formally the Cornwall Classical College, owned and operated by the clerics of St. Viator. Built in the late 1950's. the facilities were purchased by SLC n 1968, and the pre-engineered retraining building added in 1970.

The Cornwall campus of St. Lawrence College is the easternmost of three serving the six Ontario counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Leeds, Grenville, and Frontenac. Including the King ston and Brockville facilities, total full-time and part-time college enrolment in 1972 was over 7,000 students.

Agriculture Critic Reports

Murry Gaunt, M.P.P. Huron - Bruce, the Liberal Agriculture Critic, today called for the Ontario Government to designate Eastern Ontario farm lands a disaster area.

"The heavy rainfall in the past two months in South Carleton, Dundas, Prescott-Russell and Glengarry Counties means that most of the crops in those areas are without harvest potential", he stated. He noted that many farmers have already started to sell their cattle herds as they cannot afford to purchase feed. "I have been told that hay is selling at $1.50 per bale in some areas," Mr. Gaunt said, "which is beyond the reach of all farmers."

Mr. W.A. Stewart, the Minister of Agriculture has toured the area and is aware of the problem, but Mr. Gaunt is critical of the Ontario Government's offer to match any funds raised locally. "Any funds raised locally would just be peanuts," he said, "and the Federal Government is hamstrung as they cannot inject funds into the area unless the Provincial Government declares it a disaster area."

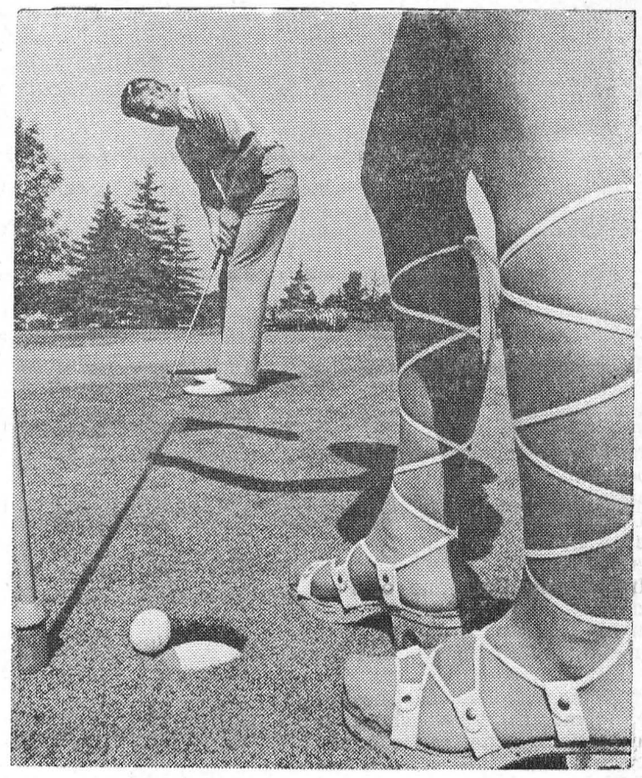
In addition, he called on the Ontario Government to subsidize transportation costs for hay shipped from Western Ontario to the East. "The hay is available in the West, but the Eastern Ontario farmer cannot be expected to bear the cost of transportation."

Mr. Gaunt indicated that an exchange program has been discussed among the farmers whereby dairy herds in the East would be shipped to Western Ontario farmers who would feed them and care for them until next spring in return for the milk produced. "In this way the farmer would not be faced with the enormous cost of acquiring a new herd next year," he said. "I understand the Milk Board is sympathetic to waiving t hequotas to accommodate such a system, but the Government must be instrumental in establishing such a program. Many rules would have to be established to make it work, such as who would bear the cost if a calf or cow were lost over the winter."

Mr. Gaunt also attacked the Crop Insurance Program presently administered by the Province. "The insurance doesn't cover existing crops which cannot be harvested due to conditions such as we've had this year, and when a crop loss does qualify the payment is only sufficient to recover the original investment in seed and labour. The lost income must be borne by the farmer. The whole Crop Insurance Program needs to be reviewed and revised."

"Many farmers will endure great financial hardship this year and the shortages will be reflected in consumer prices and still the Davis Government does nothing, except continue to pour money into things like Ontario Place which lost $2 million last year and is now headed toward greater financial disaster."

NOW THAT'S CONCENTRATION!



Even the loveely legs of Miss CBC, Brigit Schulze, failed to distract Bob Moir, one of CBC-TV's dedicated sports commentators from sinking this 10-foot putt. Bob was out on the green practising prior to his coverage of the Canadian Open, and Birgit was used to test his powers of concentration, the proof of which is in the putting.

G. G. FOOTGUARDS AT CRYSLER PARK THIS SUNDAY

The Regimental Band, Governor General's Foot Guards, made its first appearance on June 15th, 1872, barely eight days after the formation of the Regiment. The occasion was the departure from Canada of Lord Lisgar, who was relinquishing his post as Governor General of Canada. In the one hundred years since that first ceremonial occasion, the Band's appearance at the many miltary and state functions that take place in the Nation's Capital have made it familiar to many Canadian and foreign guests alike.

The band has performed on several occasions before Her Majesty, the Queen. Due to the Regiment's close association with the Governor General, the Band has performed for many distinguished Canadian and foreign personages.

The band is comprised of approximately fifty musicians. The present Director of Music, Captain G.E. Aubrey, CD, has served for twenty-one years with the band, rising through the ranks to attain his present position. He is ably assisted by the Badmaster, Master Warrant Officer J. Fleming, who saw service with military bands in England prior to coming to Canada in 1957, and the Drum Major, Master Warrant Officer J.R. Milne, CD, who has served with the band for seventeen years.

The band appears by kind permission of Lieutenant Colonel H. R. Hill, Lieutenant Colonel Commanding, Governor General's Foot Guards, and with the co-operation of the Cornwall Musicians Guild, Local 800, American Federation of Musicians.

The public is cordially invited to enjoy this performance. Admission is free.

NEW LOOK FOR CATTLE SHOW AT OTTAWA EX.

The cattle show at Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, turned a new face toward the public this year. Held in a specially prepared building called "Cattle Castle — Land of Milk and Honey", conditions for the housing and showing of the cattle were not only vastly improved, but an expert commentary was carried on throughout the show to explain to the city folk present the significance of the judging routine being carried on in the ring. Display booths showing the making and handling of cheese and other dairy products were placed adjacent to the showing.

This format, together with an evening show and a quality exhibit of 83 head from 22 Ontario and Quebec breeders, made for a highly successful Holstein show on August 21st. The ribbons were placed by Curtis Clark of Carstairs, Alberta, President of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada.

The Premier Exhibitor honours went to the joint entry of Ralph J. Fawcett, Winchester, and Wm. A. Carss, Arnprior, with Spring Farms, Streetsville, the runner-up and Charles Naylor, Lancaster, a very close third. Spring Farms carried off the banner for Premier Breeder with Locus Lane Farm, Brockville, and Hugh Blaine, Mountain, tied for the runner-up position.

Strong competition was provided by a group of breeders from Quebec and it was one of these, Ferme Bermaska, St. Pie, who showed the Grand Champion female. She was A Welch-Acres Reflection Frances, the winning four-year-old heifer. A daughter of Romandale Reflection Marquis, she had the size, scale, constitution and general quality, particularly a well attached udder, to make an outstanding winner.

Another Quebec breeder, Normand Fontaine, St. Marc sur Richeliue, took the Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Championship on his winning dry aged cow Bond view Princess Bellboy. She is a big, strong cow with a well attached, shapely udder and especially good teat placement, who typed in well with the Grand Champion.

Normand Fontaine also showed the Junior and Reserve Junior Champion females that stood first and second in the yearling heifer class. The Junior Champion was Belfontaine Evelyne Ormsby and the Reserve Junior Belfontaine Raven Bonnie. Judge Clark called it a close placing between these two, both having excellent udder promise and exhibiting clean-cut upstanding dairy quality

J. Wesley Ferguson and Son, Newington, Ontario, had the first prize winner in the bull calf class in Wesson Lad, with second place going to Spring Farms on Spring Farm Micky. These two bulls went through to the Champion and Reserve Champion honours of the show. No senior bulls were shown.

There was an excellent entry of eight Breeder's Herds, with Spring Farms standing first, Locus Lane Farm second, and Hugh Blaine, Mountain, third.

Spring Farms also showed the winning two-year-old in milk, while Drummond Bros., Smiths Falls, had the first prize three-year-old and Charles Naylor, Lancaster, the top milking aged cow.

The 2nd FORTY

Constantly Quarreling

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

Perhaps there are other unhappy women like myself — who are unable to do anything about it. My problem is: there just isn't any love between my husband and myself. If there was companionship, that would help; but my husband, who works hard, has neither the time nor the desire to talk or even watch television with me. (It's alwys early to bed and early to rise, even on weekends). We were married late in life and I had my last child when I was 40. Now the children are pretty much grown up. I have a nice home but there's seldom anyone in it. All I do is clean and clean. (During our marriage, I only worked three years. Although I drive and do all my own housework, I have an arthritic condition and am also too frightened to look for a job.) My husband and I quarrel constantly and once separated for an entire year. We visited marriage counselors several times and also have seen our minister over the years, without much help. I've seen an attorney several times, but there was nothing more than talk — no action. My question is: should I seek a divorce or just go on from day to day grasping at whatever I can?

C.L.

Dear C.L.:

Although you've had a number of opportunities to separate from your husband, you've apparently chosen not to make a complete break. However, at this point, he and his way of life won't change, no matter how much you quarrel. Have you thought instead about making a few changes in your own life? You have more free time now than you ever had before. Although you may not feel up to a full-time job, why not consider becoming a volunteer? After all, you do drive a car. And institutions — such as your local hospital or children's home usually need extra transportation facilities. They generally welcome people who might provide them. Why not look into this as a possibility for yourself? It could be a way of getting out of the house and making more of a life of your own.

Does Love Conquer All?

(Note: Here's still another reaction to the letter from M.G., who wrote that her husband of 22 years wanted to marry a younger woman with three children, who was still married herself. This reader believes that M.G. has nothing to worry about.)

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

If M.G.'s husband truly loved the woman with three small children — he would try everything in his power to get this woman — since love conquers all. I know something about these things. Two years ago, I fell in love with a married man and still love him. But all he ever talked about was his son going into the service and the home he was building on the shore. He never told me he loved me and never asked me to leave my husband. If he had, I'd be with his right now. I think M.G. should hang on, because although men may get involved with other women, they always go home to their wives.

DENTAL TOPICS

..X-Rays Are Important and Safe

Radiation scares a lot of people — as it should. But controlled treatment by doctors and dentists with the finest equipment available is safe.

Today's dental x-ray equipment exposes a patient to far less total body radiation than he receives from merely walking down the street, exposed to natural sources.

Dental x-rays are essential to diagnosis. They can reveal the beginning of decay unseen by the dentist's eye. They can also detect abnormal growth conditions such as unerupted or mal-positioned teeth and they can expose such abnormalities as tumors or cysts.

The dentist himself, is exposed far more to x-rays than his patients. If his equipment was not safe, he would not live long. A survey conducted on dentists' life spans, showed that the average dentist lives longer than non-dentist males. He lives until 71.2 ears while the average male span is 68.5 years.

Interestingly, the survey included many older dentists, men who were using x-ray machines when the procedure was in its infancy and not nearly as safe as it is today. For example, older machines often took exposures from five to seven seconds, instead of today's one-tenth to three tenths of a second.

Lead aprons are recommended as an extra safety precaution, especially for pregnant women, but the greatest protection is still the use of modern equipment and fast speed film by trained operators such as dentists.

All the excitement of the 20th Summer Olympics will be relayed by CBC Radio during its daily coverage from Munich, August 26 to September 10. Anchorman is Gordon Atkinson; Bob Willson will cover track and field; Fred Walker, swimming and diving; Walt Unger, general sports.

Gordon Pinsent, who created the role of Quentin Durgens, MP on CBC-TV and who recently starred in his own films, The Rowdyman, returns to CBC on The Bush and the Salon, Saturday, August 26. Pinsent takes part in The Greatest Hunt in the World, a semi-dramatic account of the Newfound land seal hunt, based on the 1924 book by American journalist George Allan England. The play reunited four members of the Rowdyman cast: besides Pinsent there is E.P. (Ted) Henley who played the policeman in the film, Hugh Webster and Murray Westgate. Pinsent did the taping in one day, flying in from Nefcundland where he took part in a local celebration, and before that Czechoslovakia where The Rowdyman was shown at their film festival, then took off for his home in Los Angeles for a well-earned breather.

James Nichol is a young playwright from Paris, Ont. and is one of the fortunate few who makes a living solely from his writing. He's had several dramas produced on CBC Radio and TV and on stage. His latest, The Austere Gwendolyn Parker Elliott, is scheduled on CBC Stage, Saturday, August 26, a Calgary production starring Andrew Allan and Eve Crawford.

In the last few months, two multicultural conferences have been held: Heritage Ontario and Heritage Alberta. Attended by representatives of different ethnic background, the conference aired many of the problems encountered by the different language groups. The production crew from Identities was there in person and taped several of the discussion periods as well as some interviews. The results will be heard on the program of August 26.

Michael Yeats is the only son of the Irish poet William Butler Yeats. He is also a lawyer, a leading spokesman for the government party in the Irish senate, and a prominent figure in Irish musical life and an authority on his country's folk music. His wife, Grainne, is a distinguished Irish harpist. Together, they present a History of Ireland in Song on CBC Tuesday Night, August 29.

Women Taking a Fresh Look at Life . . .

The attitudes of the woman over 40 today are in a state of flux, because her family is getting smaller, her house work less demanding and her life expectancy greater. This is the finding of a five-part report titled, "Many Lives of the Mature Woman," issued by the Information Center on the Mature Woman.

The report attributes these changes to advances in health, medicine and technology. Because they have far-reaching implications for her future, it notes, the mature woman is taking a fresh look at herself as a parent, a worker and a consumer. She's also re-evaluating her sex life and her personal status in terms of current women's liberation activities.

In coping with her adolescent children, the report notes, the woman often feels as though she's "walking on a tightrope". She knows her children will leave home just about the time her child-bearing ability comes to an end. She recognizes she should have a new identity to replace the familiar one of "mother." The adolescents, meanwhile, are having identity crises of their own. In addition, she is confronted with the fact that their values and life styles are very different from her own. The report believes it possible, however, for the mature woman to give her adolescent children guidance and support, while still retaining her own values.

Smart Consumer

As a consumer, beset by inflation, today's woman has "to make as much sense as she can from the shrinking dollar," the report states. Outlining the techniques by which the "smart consumer" cuts costs without cutting down on quality, it points out that she's never an impulse shopper, but always takes advantage of department store sales and supermarket specials. It also describes what's being done to protect her against "repair shops that overcharge, merchants who defraud, advertising that misleads and mail order companies that don't deliver the goods."

The Information Center report points out that more than half the women in the labor force today are between the ages of 45 and 54, and that their numbers are expected to increase. Although the majority of mature women are found in unskilled jobs, trends are changing, it observes. "The pressure of equal rights and equal opportunity legislation," it says, "is opening the doors to women in a number of traditionally masculine fields." It quotes the U.S. Labor Department as suggesting that since many of the so-called "women's fields" are becoming overcrowded, women now consider jobs involving automotive mechanics, business machine maintenance and the repair of household appliances. "These require no special strength," the Labor Department notes, "and often allow the woman a more flexible working schedule."

Victorian Attitudes

Many women of all ages, the report says, no longer accept the Victorian notion that a "good" woman is a sexless one and express some concern about the quality of their sex lives. For the mature woman, the situation is sometimes made more difficult by the onset of menopause, since her symptoms can interfere with her marital relationship. The report points out however, that medical treatment in the form of estrogen replacement therapy can often help restore a woman's equilibrium. It quotes a noted physician as saying this hormone therapy has been known to return women to "a more active sex interest."

Finally, the report notes that although women were once apparently content with being wives and mothers, they're becoming "increasingly restless and speculative" about their role in life today. Yet whether they choose to become active feminists, remain full-time homemakers, or try to reconcile the views of both sides, change is in the air, the report maintains, as far as "liberation" is concerned. It cites a nationwide poll which last year indicated that the majority of American women opposed efforts to improve their status. A follow-up poll this year found the majority now favors such change.

The Information Center on the Mature Woman, which prepared the five-part report, is a clearing-house for information on all phases of the life of the American woman over forty. Included among these are: economics, education, health and medicine, sociology, physiology, leisure and cultural activities.

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

As long as Johnny can be outdoors, any season is perfect for this seven-year-old. He loves camping, enjoys snow, is fascinated by water and finds mud irresistible.

Anglo-Saxon and German in descent, Johnny is a slim boy with dark blonde hair, fair skin and brown eyes. His health is good since he has outgrown a pre-school anemic condition.

Psychological tests indicate Johnny is in the average range of intelligence, but he did not finish Grade one this year. His teacher feels he is immature and will probably pick up next year.

Johnny is a sensitive youngster, very shy when he first meets strangers but becoming friendly if given plenty of time. He speaks with a very mild lisp and is attending speech therapy class to correct it.

He looks forward to joining Cubs on his next birthday. He likes making things and enjoys crafts of all kinds. He goes regularly to the library, bringing back books either to read or be read to, and he has shown some interest in learning to play the piano. Sunday School is one of his favorite outings.

Johnny needs a relaxed, loving home where the parents will give him warm reassurance without pressure for academic achievement.

To inquire about adopting Johnny, please write to Today's Child, Box 888, Station K, Toronto. For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

LOVES THE OUTDOORS

Fishers OUTDOOR TOPICS by RED FISHER

MERCURY FISHING CONSULTANT

Guide To Fall Angling Success

Cool weather brings better fishing, but—as always—the best success goes to those who know where to fish and what lures to use.

To help you select the best fishing areas, and the most likely lures and baits, Red Fisher of Mercury outboards has prepared the following tips.

For largemouth bass fish the shorelines near lily pads and moss beds. Fly rods with popping bugs, light action spinning rods with surface lures, and live bait (minnows and frogs) fished shallow beneath a bobber are good bets.

If you're a musky fan, try big minnows and frogs, shallow running plugs that dart to and fro, and bucktail flies on stiff tackle. These will often produce around the edges of weed and lily beds.

Walleye like to run in large schools in water with a rock or sand bottom. Trolling medium-running plugs and spoons will produce hits, as will minnows fished along underwater bars or around rocks and ledges.

Crappie take readily to live minnows, small spinners, and bright-colored jigs fished near flooded trees and underwater brush. Some good fishing occurs at night, beneath the lights of a dock.

Flies and popping bugs fished along the shore will tempt scrappy sunfish out of their daytime resting places. Best poppers are those which have rubber legs. Move the lure rapidly, stopping for a few seconds between pops.

To get those hard, tackle tearing strikes out of northern pike, work spoons, plugs and minnows near the mouths of small streams feeding into a lake. Real hotspots are where dense weed beds grow near feeder streams. Trolling alongside these often produces big fish.

Whatever your favorite fishing, don't let the cooler days of fall keep you from going out on the lake or river. For ,even if it's late in the year, it's not too late for some real fishing fun.

ADELAIDE DANIELS SAYS

THE VACATION TRAP

So you are going on vacation, and the price includes meals — lots of them . . . all big . . . all rich and with second portions available, especially desserts.

Trapped! You are trapped between all that food you have already paid for and your diet programme.

What are your choices? Firstly, forget the diet, you tell yourself you only live once so why not enjoy? You can start your diet when you get home. After all, it won't be the first time you quit and started over again.

Or, you can say to yourself that you've been so good up to now you deserve a reward. Keep on giving yourself pats on the back and by the time your holiday is over, there should be at least ten extra pounds to pat.

Then there's another alternative. Don't go on vacation. Be a martyr and stay home.

The choice I recommend is to go on your holiday and stick with your diet. You might say: how can I possibly do this? I have found it's all in one's attitude. Learn to enjoy holidays without making eating the highlight. If you keep food in its proper perspective, you can enjoy eating, enjoy holidaying and keep on losing weight.

The meal plan I recommend for weight watchers contains foods and choices that should present no difficulty in hotels. The important part of dieting, when dining out, is to be precise. Tell your waiter how you want your food prepared and don't succumb to his offers of more. He will honour your requests but you must ask. Once your waiter or waitress understands that you really mean business they will usually go out of their way to help.

Weight watching is your responsibility. Holidays are fun but as there is no vacation from health there is no vacation from sensible eating, that is if you really want to lose weight.

(Adelaide Daniels is Founder & Director of Weight Watchers of Ontario Limited.)
