LOCAL AND GENERAL

Some boys are small for their age. So are some men.

Many a man who has energy enough to start a riot has not strength enough to hold his tongue.

The Dominion Government are considering giving a Goverment Grant to the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary at Kingsville, Ont.

More than 11,500,000 trees were disturbed in Ontario this season, says the report of the Minister of Lands and Forests in discussing reforestation.

A petition is in circulation in Iroquois asking that a half-holiday on Wednesday be observed during the summer months in the mercantile establishments of the village.

The Bell Telephone Co. intend extending and improving their Iroquois Central Office equipment. This is necessary to meet increased demand for telephone facilities.

The highway between Winchester and Morrisburg is now as good as at any time last summer, the frost having done very little damage. The Nation flood is now a thing of the past for this year.

George G. Publow, Instructor of Dairying for Eastern Ontario, is to retire on April 1, after 55 years' service in the cheese business, during which time he has established a high personal record and has brought the standard of the cheese industry in Eastern Ontario to a most enviable position.

A Trenton husband got vexed the other day and took his spite out on his wife's household goods. He made an excellent job of it, even smashing the stove and counting the pieces. For his pains he was allowed to pay $25 and costs or 30 days. He took the days and will be able to check up on the wreckage of his home while in jail.

The C. P. R. Trans-Canada and the Mountaineer operating between Montreal and Chicago and Vancouver are to be more complete in equipment than ever this year. Even green tiled bathrooms have been added to insure the comfort of the passengers. There will be no excuse for missing the regular Saturday nighters even if travelling this summer.

Winnipeg Health League have organized classes in Parent Education These classes consist of daddies and mothers who are anxious to become better parents. "And why not?" demanded an official of the Winnipeg Health League, when asked about it. "In this age of specialization, when a professional man has to study six or seven years before beginning to practice, why shouldn't there be some specific training available for those who take on one of the most important duties in society—that of parenthood?"

"We want to teach people simple sound, common sense things about children—nothing faddish you understand or complicated. Just the good bread and butter facts that parents should know if Canadians of the next generation are to be as healthy morally, mentally and physically as it is possible to make them"

Brockville Recorder and Times says:—"One of the most valuable assets which any community can possess is a well-stocked public library. No city in these days indeed is entitled to call itself progressive or enlightened unless it offers to its citizens the facilities for reading and instruction which are afforded through a public library. The value of such an institution bringing the priceless gifts of good books to all sorts and conditions of people, especially the boys and girls who constitutute a large percentage of the patrons cannot be overestimated. It costs a lot of money to conduct a library system of this scope but it is money well spent." Winchester has a splendid Library for the size of the place and more encouragement should be given the Library Board. If you have not already joined the Library this year why not do so now. It only costs $1.00 to join and see the benefit you will derive from it. You could only buy one book for the price it costs hardly one. The few public spirited citizens who have this matter in charge are to be congratulated, they work away in a quiet way but their influence is felt in the community as the Library bespeaks for itself. A new allotment of books are about to be added to shelves. Let us all get behind this worthy cause and give it an extra boost this year.

What They Are Saying

When are the "Stop" and "No Parking" Signs to make their appearance.

That it was a good thing to have the streets cleared up before half the dirt was blown into the stores and houses.

That the Artist, who made the H. S. window Adv'ts, is a good hand at drawing but no friend of the Printer.

That it is about time Winchester took some action toward the erection of a real Soldier Memorial or Peace Monument.

That the Speed Boys ought to organize a base ball team.

That there is room and space as well as opportunity for some fine out-door planting about the new Public School.

That Winchester will soon have to take steps to regulate the placing of gas tanks on the streets.

That it is taking some people a long time to clear the ice from the walk in front of their premises.

That Easter Sunday will show a great display of new and up-to-date headwear.

That the Auction Sale Bills printed at the Press Office are the most attractive shown anywhere

That the home coming at Easter brings much joy to both parents and children.

That if all the new cars being brought into town find customers, there will be a lot of bright and shining cars on the roads.

That a gravel road is like two many cars. They stand up well for the first season, but go to pieces quick after that.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

The T. Eaton Co. are opening a branch store at Smith's Falls about May 1st.

Don't forget the H. S. Commencement in Lannins Hall, TO-NIGHT.

"Many a dead man of whom it is said or written, he was loved by all who knew him, had never much reason to suspect it when he was alive," says the Suburban Sage.

Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fraser of Morewood, in the death of their beloved daughter Dorothy, in a hospital in Ottawa, after a short illness last week. The funeral took place on Sunday from the United Church, Morewood, and was largely attended. Interment took place at Maple Ridge Cemetery.

A Comedy Drama. "Deacon Dubbs," in three acts, will be presented by Toye's Hill Young People, in the Orange Hall, Toye's Hill, on Friday, April 5th,. Time of play over two hours. Admission 25 and 15cts.

The announcement that came to Winchester friends on Sunday morning last of the passing of Mrs. George Challies, of Morrisburg, was a distinct shock, and many were the expressions of deep regret and sympathy expressed for the bereaved ones. While Mrs. Challies' condition of late had given her many friends much concern, death came very suddenly and was a shock to the community. She is survived by her husband, Geo. H. Challies, Reeve of Morrisburg, her mother, Mrs. Fanny Gibson, and a sister, Mrs R. H. Montgomery, of Los Angeles, Calif. The funeral service was held at her late home on Tuesday afternoon and the remains placed in the family plot in the cemetery.

Examinations Dates

Dates for the annual departmental school examinations are announced by the Department of Education as follows: High School entrance, June 24 to 28; model entrance, June 24, 26, 27 and 28; lower school, June 20-26; middle school, June 17 to July 2; upper school, June 17 to July 2.

Fined $10 and Cost

A local citizen was up before Magistrate McCormick on Monday and pleaded guilty to having been under the influence of liquor. He was fined $10 and Costs. This is the first local case reported to the Press, but from reports, and other indications, more similar cases will soon be reported.

New Service Station

Winchester is to have a new and attractive service station for automobiles and travellers. The home now occupied by Mr. W. Leonard on St. Lawrence Street, and which will be vacated shortly, is to be used. It is to be turned into a waititing and rest room for auto travellers, and in front is to be placed gas filling tanks, under a neat canopy. This service station is to be modern and up-to-date in every respect, and made very attractive.

Masons at Chesterville

Over twenty-five members of Henderson Lodge, A. F. & A. M. accompanied R. W. Bro. H. B. Fetterly, the D. D. G. M. on his official visit to the Chesterville Lodge on Monday night, and they all report a most hearty reception and happy entertainment. There were no less than three clergymen among the visitors, two from Winchester and one from Morewood. After the usual routine, a very fine lunch was served by the Chesterville brethren, and then followed that "flow of soul" in which wit, wisdom, and good information was in abundance. It was considerably after midnight when the Winchester brethren returned home, but the opinion was unaminous that the Chesterville Masons were good and generous entertainers.

Do not choose your Easter Hosiery or Lingerie until you have seen the new shades we are showing.

Near Accident

The real danger of children and young boys playing on the Main Steet was very forcibly brought to public attention on Tuesday afternoon, when a young lad, playing with others, on the street, not far from the Press Office, came as near being run over by a car as he or anyone, can be and escape. The driver was not going over 15 miles, but the lad ran in front of the moving car, and was hit by the fender, but not badly hurt, and only escped going under the wheel by inches. The Press has so often drawn attention to this danger that it has become an old story. But some day it will be a sad and an awful story that will be told, and a lot of trouble and sorrow attach to it In these days of automobiles children should be daily warned against playing on the thoroughfares.

Presented With Bible

The teachers and officers of the United Church Sunday School met at the close of the prayer meeting on Wennesday evening, to spend a social hour with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Leonard, who leave for their new home in Brockville early next week. The superintendent, Mr. J. D. Stewart, read an address expressing appreciation of Mr. Leonard's services in the school, at the conclusin of which he presented him with a beautiful copy of a Holman's Teachers Bible. Mr. Leonard expressed his gratitude for this token of friendship and kindly remembrance and assured his friends that a portion of it would be read daily. A number of the workers expressed their regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard and their family from our midst, but wished them Godspeed and every blessing in their new home and undertakings. During the evening the members of the Sunday School orchestra gave a number of musical selections. The committee in charge provided dainty refreshments which were greatly enjoyed. The euening was brought to a close by singing "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love" and prayer by Rev. Mr. Waddell.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

A Good Friday Service will be held in the United Church at 10.30 a. m. Rev. Roy P. Stafford of Morewood will preach.

In Iroquois, where a speed trap was in operation last summer, with the result that many motorists were fined, notice is given by Reeve Ed Strader that Constable J Gregory has been instructed, for the safety of the public, strictly to enforce the speed and parking by-law and also the stop sign regulations.

In the Montreal Star of yesterday appeared a picture of E. R. Peacock, noted financier, of England, who has been appointed by the British Government as Chairman of Committee to consider economic aspects of proposed channel-tunnel between England and France. Mr. Peacock is a native of Glengarry county, and a first cousin to Mr. J. A. McDougall, of Winchester.

When the mitten he was wearing became caught upon a stick of wood and his hand was drawn into the sawing machine that he was operating, William Sheriff, employed by Merrill Allen, a Mountain township farmer, last week had the thumb, third finger and the little finger of the hand severed and the second finger lacerated. He was taken to Kemptville for medical treatment and later attended in a Smiths Falls hospital.

Annual Meeting

As may be seen by advt. in this issue, the aunual meeting of the Winchester Horticultural Society is called for next Monday evening, for election of officers and other business.

Got Nine Years

Louis M. Auger, late M. P. for Prescott County, who was last week tried for criminal assault on a young lady who visited his office in the Parliament buildings, was found guilty and sentenced to serve nine years in Penitentiary.

Mission Band Tea

The Sunbeam Mission Band of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will hold a sale of home cooking and candy and serve afternoon tea in the Sunday School Rooms from three to six, Saturday, March 30th. Every body welcome.

Stop Signs Working

The Smiths Falls Record says; The Stop Signs have been proving their value since erected and accidents have been cut to a minimum. No cases have come up where motorists have failed to heed the signs but a close watch is being kept upon the stop streets.

Rabies Spreading

Rabies is spreading through this County and it has been reported to the Press that five cows, bitten by a dog, were destroyed within the past week in Williamsburg township. At Morrisburg on Monday and Tuesday a Veterinary was kept busy vaccinating dogs, and a number of dogs had to be killed. If conditions are as bad as reported there should be an order compelling every owner to put a muzzle on his dog in this County.

Mysterious Disappearances

The mysterious disappearance of a young lady lady in Montreal, and a business man of Perth, during the past week are among the great problems by which the whole country is more or less agitated, and has so far baffled the cleverest of detectives. A Miss Pitcher, attending McGill University, left for the University on the morning of March 21, and was last seen near the University. Since that time no trace of her has been found, although a reward of $5000 is offered for information of her. The other case is that of a business man of Perth, T. C. Spence, who with his wife was visiting at the farm of a Mr. McLean, near Perth, last Friday. The men had gone to inspect some rat traps, and parted soon afterwards. Spence intending to return to the farm house. Since then no trace of him has been found, although search parties of the whole country side have been out.

Late Mrs. Ferrier

The somewhat unexpected passing of Mrs. Ferrier, wife of Dr. G. C. Ferrier, at South Mountain on Thursday morning last, came as a distinct and sad shock to a very wide circle of friends, and to the community in which she lived. Mrs. Ferrier was known and beloved by many because of her benevolent and kindly nature, her unselfish devotion to the welfare of others, and her kindly and Christian interest in all. A woman of many attainments, her influence for good was great, and in her home she was all that wife and mother could be. She was stricken with the Flu epidemic about Christmas time, and never really regained her health. When pneumonia developed just a few days before her passing, her weakened constitution and heart could not withstand the attack.

The late Mrs. Ferrier was educated at the convent at Landsove, and later at the Conservatory of Music, Toronto.

She was a member of the United church and very prominent in the Ladies' Auxiliary, Women's Missionary Society and the Sunday School. Mrs. Ferrier was also organist for a number of years. She had a wide circle of friends who will deeply mourn her passing.

Besides her husband, she leaves to mourn her passing, two sons, George C. of Toronto University, and Lyall at home, and two brothers, A. M. and George Redmond, of Toronto.

The funeral was held from her late residence at South Mountain, on Saturday, at 10.30 a. m. to the United Church. Interment was made at the Cataraqui cemetery, Kingston.

To Dr. Ferrier and sons is extended the heartfelt sympathy of this community.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Eldon Fennell is spending this week with her parents at North Gower.

Rev. Mr. Reid of Ottawa, was the speaker in the Baptist Church on Sunday last.

Mr. Ken Christie of Toronto, paid a flying visit to his parents on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Christie were visitors to the parental homes over the week-end.

Miss Jean Fetterly, who has been visiting her parent here, returned to New York today.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barkley and daughter Ruth, of Ottawa, spent Sunday with the latter's parents here.

Mrs. D. S. Hamilton, of Brinston, has returned to her home after spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. E. J. Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. James Barkley and son, Dwight, of Ottawa, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barkley.

The Press joins their many friends in congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Karl Helmer, who, on Saturday last, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding day.

Dr. McKendry, Mr. Robert Suffel, Mr. and Mrs. Will Lannin and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mill attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Dr. Ferrier at South Mountain, on Saturday last.

Miss Mabel Waddell, who is attending the Ontario Ladies College at Whitby, is expected home on Thursday to spend the Easter holiday with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Waddell.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Fawcett on Sunday last were, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Bellinger, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Murdock, of South Mountain, and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Fawcett and children, of Cloverdale.

Mrs. Chris. Johnston was made very happy a few days ago when there arrived in Winchester her sister, Mrs. Coyne, of Port Townseud, Wash., whom she had not seen in over 25 years. Mrs. Coyne was accompanied by her husband and son. They are on a trip east to visit old friends old scenes, and recall old memories.

A Warning

The gate leading to the public dump grounds, and the lock have been broken. Parties have been carting to the dump grounds, refuse that should not be taken there. Warning is hereby given that hereafter anyone found, in any way, interferring with the gate or lock of the dump ground, or depositing anything there that they should not, will be made to answer for their illegal act before a magistrate.

To Curb Chicken Stealing

Legislation to curb the practice of chicken stealing will be introduced in the legislature. The legislation will provide all police constables with the right to stop and examine all loads of chickens being transported to the market, and the driver would be forced to show his bill of sale for the load. At present this can only be done with a search warrant. All the dealers will be licensed under the proposed legislation, and would be forced to keek track of all their transactions.

Poor Decadant Britain

Britain not having progressed very far in the gracious art of self-advertising is often alleged by those of limited information to be lagging far behind other lands. Herbert N. Casson in a recent issue of the Financial Post cites nine important particulars in which Britain leads the world. Summarized, Mr. Casson's list is as follows:

The Midland Bank—The world's largest bank with deposits of over two billion pounds. Progressive and dynamic as well as large.

London Stock Exchange—Listing more than 4000 securities as compared with New York's 1,100, and with four times as many members. Run for investors, not for cliques of "bulls" and "bears."

Lloyds— The world famous maritime insurance exchange dating from 1689. An association of 1200 members, largely accountable for Britain's pre-eminence on the sea.

The Daily Mail—With a circulation of 2,000,000 copies a day. Nearly three times the circulation of the New York Evening Journal. Its front page sells for $7,000 a day to advertisers, and is sold out six months in advance.

Despatching room of the Midland Railway—From this room in Derby every train gets its order to move. The highest degree of efficiency ever reached in the operation of railroads, wholly developed by English experts.

Shipyards—The three largest in the world, Glasgow, Newcastle and Belfast. The largest ship in the world is now being built at Belfast. It will have twice the tonnage of Mauretania.

Carreras Factory—A copy of the Temple of Bobastis, Goddess of Ancient Egypt. Machinery is so automatic that it makes $2,000 net profit a year per worker.

Cadbury Factory—The ripened flower of industrialism. Self-governing for over twenty years, has received 35,000 suggestions from its workers.

Underground Station at Piccadily—A subterranean marvel. It leads to two subways that run 1,500 trains a day, and handle 50,000,000 passengers a year.

Changing election issues, depression in trade, in mining, hard times perhaps, are but incidents in Britain who rides on majestically as the world's greatest leader.

English Raise Stonehenge Fund

Premier Heads Effort to Preserve Majestic Isolation of the Ancient Monoliths

A new and vigorous effort is being made to preserve the setting and surroundings of Stonehenge, that mysterious legacy from early British civilization. Prominent Britons, among whom are Premier Stanley Baldwin, ex-Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald and Lord Grey, fear lest the vicinity of the ring o' huge hanging stones take on the aspects of a popular holiday resort and the monoliths lose their majestic isolation on the Salisbury Plain. To purchase the land surrounding the stones, a fund of about $225,000 is being raised and must be made up before March 31.

About ten years ago the Stonehenge circle was presented to the nation by Sir Cecil Chubb. The land surrounding the stones, however, is still private property, and there is danger lest the erection of unsightly buildings on the Plain spoil the setting. During the war the military authorities erected an airdrome on the Plain and rows of huts near the circle, many of which are still standing. A cafe has been erected near the stones, and it is feared lest other commercial buildings rise to mar the solitude of the unique monument.

The total area under consideration is 1,444 acres, all of which might be called "the Stonehenge skyline." Options have been obtained on the plots; two of the three have already been purchased, and demolition of their buildings undertaken. There remains one plot of 650 acres to the north of Stonehenge. Unless this, too, is secured, the members of the Stonehenge Protection Committee feel their previous work will have been in vain. Co-operating in the project are representatives of the National Trust, the Wiltshire Archaeological Society and the Society of Antiquaries, acting with the approval of the Office of Works.

Many theories have been advanced regarding the period and purpose of the ring of stones, situated about seven miles north of Salisbury in Wiltshire, in a bare field containing a series of prehistoric barrows of the Bronze Age. Nennius believed that they were built to commemorate the treacherous slaying of 400 nobles by Hengest in 472. The stones have been thought also to be the remains of a Roman temple. Wealth bards had a legend that Stonehenge was erected by the successor of Vortigern, aided by the Magician, Merlin, who moved the huge stones from Ireland, whither they had been brought from Africa by giants.

Other stories relate that Stonehenge was a temple of the Druids and a place where human sacrifices were made; that it was a temple to the sun; that it was a temple of the Bronze Age 1500-1000 B.C.

Stonehenge is composed of a series of circles of large hanging stones, many of which have long since toppled from their places. They are located within a circular earthwork about 300 feet in diameter. The outside circle of stones is about 100 feet in diameter, and originally contained, it is believed, thirty great monoliths. The circle within consisted of approximately forty stones. The other circles, of ten and nineteen stones respectively, completed the monument.

The circles were open at one ned, making a great horseshoe, the open part facing the sunrise at the summer solstice.

Salisbury Plain is considered one of the most important archaeological sites. Here is also Old Sarum, fortress of the early Britons, where Cedric, who founded the West Saxon Kingdom in the sixth century, established his headquarters. Alarm is widely felt lest the Plain lose any of its historical value, and contributons to aid the effort to preserve its setting may be sent to the Stonehenge Protection Committee, 7 Buckingham Palace Gardens, S.W., London.

HENRY'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL
Ottawa, Ontario
No school in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa Schools to come to it.
Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

The New Art

Willison's Monthly. When new ideas are invented, it usually happens that they strike the public mind, first, as being silly, and next, as being dangerous. So it was with the new art. At first the paintings seemed to be the crude productions of childish minds, and then they seemed to be menace to all that was sacred in the orderly tradition of painting. Finally they became recognized and now even the staidest museums and galleries are paying high prices for Cezannes and Van Goghs.

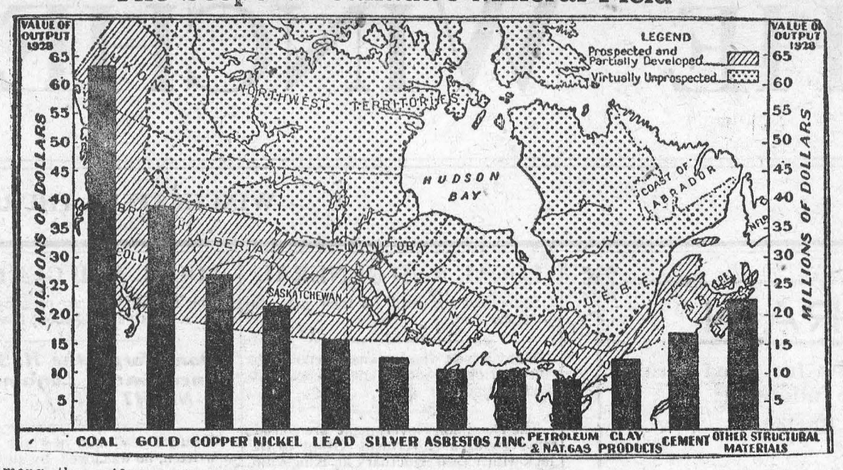
The Scope of Canada's Mineral Field



Among the evidence of Canadian progress in 1928, none is more gratifying than that which again reveals, in stronger light than ever, the real worth of the Dominion as a field for mineral industry. The preliminary figures for the value of the country's mineral output, recently issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reach a peak well above any previous level.

There are two physical facts that carry a broad and special interest in connection with the steady ascent of Canada's mineral production in late years. One is to be found in the sheer variety of minerals that enter into our annual output. In financial circles the wisdom of "diversity of investment' is a byword, and it may well be said that Canada's strength as a mining field likewise lies largely in 'diversity'—in the fundamental fact that Nature has invested the Dominion with mineral assets which, in variety, are matched by few, if any, countries. It is to this wide range of resources that the Canadian mining industry mainly owes both its enjoyment of present prosperity and its assurance of stable, well-sustained growth.

A second physical fact of no less importance exhibits itself in the breadth of territory afforded by the Dominion as a fair ground for more intensive prospecting. A major portion of Canada has so far been subjected only to cursory study, but even so, ample information has been gained as to the potential mineral wealth of the less known regions of the country to confirm the Canadian mining industry in its title to an ample field for further development.

Winter in Antarctica

It is not yet winter at Little America, Antarctica. The season may be called Autumn, with the sun still visible. Not until late in April will it vanish. But on March 6 Blackburn, a dog-team driver, was lost in a blizzard one-third of a mile from the American camp. He was bringing supplies landed by the Eleanor Bolling on the Barrier. A search party, after he had been missing for six hours, found him barricaded by gasoline cans, his dogs lying in front of a trench which he had dug to crawl into. From his shelter Blackburn could see nothing but a wall of whirling snow, and for all he knew he might have been miles away from his comrades in the huts, who were reading and playing cards or busy with their scientific work, "with the stoves giving off a pleasant warmth." Storms of great violence are a commonplace in Anarctica. A winter temperature of 78 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, was recorded by Dr. E. A. Wilson of Scott's last expedition.

Antarctica's winter climate is formidable, not because it is the coldest region on earth, but because of the combination of very low temperatures and fierce winds that blow for days together. Stefansson has pointed out that in the city of Irkutsk, Siberia, the liquid in the tube has been known to fall to 90 degrees below zero. The population of that city exceeds 50,000; it has many factories and dates from 1686. Mr. Stefansson observes that " the inhabitants probably do not complain any more about the climate than do those of London and New York." The adventurers of Antarctica have work in the open to do in the long winter, for science must be served. The climate is their implacable enemy. Even Antarctica is beautiful, if cruel. Even Amundsen, who was not sentimental, had his rhapsodies. Scott, Shackleton, Mawson in their writings constantly record the grandeur of Antarctica scenes. The first sunrise of spring is an unforgetable sight. Scott and some of his men climbed an iceberg on the morning of Aug. 26 to see the sun come up. "One of the moments of our lives, and we could not restrain our joy," wrote Ponting, the photographer. "We felt very young," said Scott, "and sang and cheered."

The winter passes quickly, in spite of its darknes sand storms, in a well-organized expedition like Byrd's "The modern polar expedition goes forth," says Dr. Mawson, "with finished appliances, with experts in every department—sailors, artisans, soldiers and students in medley; supremely, with men who seek risk and privation." Exploration goes on with sleds. Dr. Wilson of Scott's party spent many days in studying the emperor penguins. The meteorologist's work is never done. The geologists, physicists, zoologists, biologists and photographers are expected to keep busy. Scott on his last expedition detailed a night watchman to observe the auroro. The cook has no idle moments. Feast days are appropriately celebrated. T. Gordon Hayes, an indefatigable student of Antartica, says that "it is probably colder, and it is certainly more windy, on the continental ice of Antarctica than in Siberia." Dr. Mawson, describing a winter expedition, wrote: "We stumble and struggle through the stygian gloom; the merciless blast—an incubus of vengeance—stabs, buffets and freezes; the stinging drift blinds and chokes."

Adding Interest to Village Life

Women's Institutes in England Encourage Drama

The Women's Institutes in Great Britain, which were founded on the same lines as those in Canada, are filling an important place in village and rural life. Mrs. McCurdy, publicity convener of the Quebec Women's Institutes, has compiled a list of some of the activities of the Institutes in the Old Country which include a movement to improve village entertainments.

Institutes in England are being encouraged to send students to the 1929 Easter School of the British Drama League in London. In order that beginners from villages may feel thoroughly at home, they will be given a special course of half-hour talks. Besides this, they will hear lectures from a number of theatre experts and will join in discussions following visits to the best professional productions and the National Festival of Community Drama. There will be diction classes, rehearsals, and criticized exhibitions of students' work in all branches. English Institutes have been sending delegates to this school in order to have this special training for the many dramatic events put on in their own villages.

Offenham Women's Institute is in a village in England where tradition goes back to King Offa, who ruled in Mercia in the eighth century. The members looked up all that was known of the ancient king. From material collected they wrote a play and enlisted the help of the men and friends in order to produce it more effectively on the "Village Playing Field." The children helped, too, being dressed as the produce of Offenham at the present day, each bearing a rhyme descriptive of various kinds of vegetables and fruit from a strawberry to a vegetable marrow.

The Women's Institutes of England have been forming choirs and, according to Sir Richard Terry, there lies a great hope for the musical future of the country. Carol parties were in vogue at Christmas. The national magazine "Home and Country" reproduced the music and words of the "Coventry Carol!" and also gave names and addresses of houses publishing books of traditional carols.

Woman Doctor on Keeping Young

Mental "Muscles" Need Exercise and Stimulation, She Says

So much time and trouble are spent in maintaining a youthful aspect physically that it is sometimes forgotten that the mental make-up is at least as important, writes a woman doctor in the London Daily Express.

Victorian women became stout and elderly at thirty through exercise, quite often relapsing into a state of semi-invalidism which is practically unknown in these days. Modern women have not a retinue of servants, but labor-saving devices and smaller households combine to give them a considerable amount of spare time.

Letting Mentality "Sag"

It is fatally easy to let mental "muscles" run to fat. They need exercise and stimulation like the rest of the body. Too often the reading done, the plays and films seen, even the concerts attended are less stimulants than narcotics.

How many of us must plead guilty to the accusation—recently levelled at us—of allowing music to drift past our ears as stream of sound, without making the slightest effort to understand it. Similarly "easy" novels are selected. "Something light for the week-end," the librarian is asked for, and someone else is allowed to choose our mental diet.

It has been suggested that education be left till minds have matured; that the young be urged to "do," and the older in order to be able to think to any purpose, and once one loses the reins and lets one's intellectual processes drift, it requires a real effort to get the upper hand again.

A Stimulating Tonic

The brain can be kept in training alert, youthful, open to new ideas, and attuned to catch the best output from other brains, either by pursuing some special branch with real enthusiasm, filling those spare hours with definite work at a particular object outside one's ordinary concerns, or in maintaining a certain standard of what can only be called "culture" in all the arts, taking literature, drama, music, in whatever form, as small tonic doses, not as sleeping draughts.

Those who complain they are not "brainy" can turn their practical gifts into new channels, developing arts and crafts that will astonish them. The joy and enthusiasm in finding a new job or hobby, however one regards it, and the first glorious flush of success has to be experienced to be appreciated.

There can be no doubt as to its rejuvenating effect.

1-Day Stamp Issue for Medeira Island

Proceeds of Philatelic Curiosity Will Be Used to Found Museum at Funchal

Information of interest to the general public, as well as to philatelists all over the world, is contained in a communique of the Lisbon Government in regard to an issue of stamps for the Islan dof Madeira which lasted only twenty-four hours. Although Portuguese stamps are currently used on the island, the government allowed a set of twenty-one postage stamps to be current there for one complete day.

The proceeds of this remarkable circulation are to be devoted to the establishment of a museum at Funchal. The people had appealed in vain for funds for the museum; the Portuguese treasury had no money to spare. Then some one had the idea of asking Lisbon to permit the one-day stamp issue, a petition which was quickly granted. On one former occasion Madeira was provided for a brief period with stamps of her own; this was t the time of the Vasco da Gama fourth centenary celebration in 1898. Stamps of that transient issue are said to be highly prized by collectors.

The design of the one-day stamps resembles closely the contemporary Portuguese home issue with its symbolical figure of a reaper, but executed in taille-douce engraving instead of typography, with the word Madeira extending across the foot, and having the figures of value added in black surcharge.

The following are the denominations and colors of the stamps comprising the provisional series: Three centavos, violet; 4c, orange; 5s, peacock blue; 6c, burnt sienna; 10c vermillion; 15c, pea green; 16c, chestnut; 25c, magenta; 32c dark green; 40c, chocolate; 50c, gray; 64c, malachite green; 80c, dark brown; 96c, carmine; 1 escudo gray-black; 1 E.20, red; 1E.60, dark blue; 2 E.40, yellow; A E.36, olive green; 4 E.50, crimson; 7 E, Prussian blue.

PROOF OF DYES is in the dyeing!

Words won't dye a dress, or coat, or sweater. It takes real anilines to do that. That's why Diamond Dyes contain from three to five times more anilines than any other dye—by actual test.
It's the anilines in Diamond Dyes that do the work; that give the colors such brilliance; such depth and permanence. It's real aniline that keeps them from giving things that re-dyed look; from spotting or streaking.
Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. Then compare results. See how soft, bright, new-looking the colors are. Observe how they keep their brilliance. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.
The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. Dime a Day Top Pay for China Workers

Rapid Disappearance of Handicrafts Before Advance of Machine-Made Goods Indicated by Economic Investigation of Conditions in Peiping

Peiping (Peking)—Perhaps never in the whole history of China have the occupations of her people been so disturbed as at present, declares Prof. L. K. Tao, after an eight-months' study of handicraft workers in Peiping for the China Foundation, an institution established with some of the money returned under the American Boxer indemnity.

Dr. Tao and his assistants selected 500 representative families, engaged in artificial flower-making, crocheting, making match-boxes, toy-manufacture and other occupations which can be done in the homes, or in small factories. He discovered that in most cases it is impossible for families so engaged to support themselves, even when the small children work. Of the 500 families, 299 are receiving charity in some form or other.

This study was undertaken before the capital was removed from the North to Nanking, so that the conditions incidental to removel of the government offices do not affect the survey. The picture which Dr. Tao draws is that of a disappearing group—the handicraft workers of China. Since the appearance of machine-made goods in the Orient, they have fought a losing fight, Dr. Tao points out, and disturbed political and economic conditions have hastened their defeat in competition with the machines from the West.

Unpaid or unemployed workers trained for one occupation, have turned to others as a last resort, said Dr. Tao. In consequences, he found unpaid policemen working as house servants, shop assistants who have lost their jobs becoming jinrikisha pullers, and workers in some handicrafts which have been almost destroyed turning to others, increasing the competition and lowering the prices.

Dr. Tao found that the average total earning of the 500 households was only $157 Mexican, a little more than $75 gold per year for an average of more than four persons. Living in the simplest possible manner, the investigators found that the 500 families spent about $1 gold per year on food for the family, the remaining $25 gold having to cover everything.

Of the 5157 Mexican, which represents the yearly earnings of a family, only $68 Mexican (about $35 gold) is derived from handicrafts, the rest coming from other work. In the 500 families studied, there were 934 handicraft workers skilled in some form of handwork. Their daily earnings ranged from 2½ to 11 cents gold, the highest paid not receiving enough for 10 or 12 hours of work to live on.

Dr. Tao believes it will not be long before the handicraft worker will entirely disappear.

Island Which Britain Ceded to Norway Now Reported to Be Only an Iceberg

London Paper Declares Many Mythical Islands Have Been Charted—Alleged Land Located 15,000 Miles South of Cape of Good Hope

London—"A year ago the peace of the world was shattered by the news that Norway was claiming an island 15,000 miles south of the Cape of Good Hope which Great Britain maintained was hers," says the Daily Telegraph. It continues: "Last November we breathed again. With wonted magnanimity our Foreign Office waived all and any British claim to Bouvet Island. And now comes the news that it is not an island at all but an iceberg. The magnanimity of the Fireign Office thus appears less than the original estimate, though its wisdom shines brighter than ever.

"But we take this iceberg story with every kind of suspicion, though even if it would not be unique of its kind. Many mythical islands have been put on maps. In the far Antarctic Sir James Ross charted one by the name of "Doubtful Island" because he could not make out whether it was land or an iceberg. It turned out to be mere ice. These remote lnely southern seas provided navigators with many imaginary landfalls.

"Close to Bouvet Island itself another has been reported and called by the name of 'Thompson.' Captain Norris, in 1825, saw a second island to the northeast and a cluster of others. But nobody else can find them. Shall we believe Bouvet Island a myth or an iceberg? It cannot be. In 1898 a German oceanographic expedition landed. They reported it a volcanic cone 3,000 feet high, coming down to the sea in steep cliffs pentagonal in shape and five miles across. How can it have become an iceberg? How do these tales of the sea get told?"—Christian Science Monitor.

Inauguration Legends

It would be strange if so notable and picturesque a ceremony as the United States Presidential inauguration were not surrounded by a mass of legend and tradition. On no aspect of it do they converge more curiously than on the question how the ceremony came to be observed out of doors, when the date for it made inclement weather an easy possibility. Every one knows that Washington was inducted into office in 1789 in the open air, on the steps of what is now the Sub-Treasury in Wall Street. But there was then neither a national capital nor an adequate hall of Congress. From that time until the inauguration of Monroe, in 1817, the ceremony was invariably held indoors; twice at Congress Hall, Philadelphia, and on the other four occasions in the Senate Chamber or House of Representatives at Washington.

An article on the subject in last Sunday's supplement to The Times cited a statement that the change to an outdoor ceremonial in 1817 resulted from a deadlock between Senate and House over allotment of indoor tickets. The actual facts are quite as singular. The Capitol had been burned by General Ross and the British soldiers when they occupied Washington in 1814. It had not yet been restored; Congress was meeting in what McMaster describes as an "unpretentious brick building, some hundred yards to the northeast of the Capitol" which "one Daniel Carrol and others had erected soon after the British invasion and leased to the government."

Monroe's inauguration had been planned for indoor observance in that extemporized hall of legislation; but Henry Clay, the Speaker of the House, vetoed the whole arrangement. Clay's enemies insisted that he was "getting even with Monroe" for not appointing him Secretary of State. His friends declared, on grounds which seem plausible enough, that he was convinced of the danger of assembling so great a number of people on the not oversecure flooring of Carroll's building. In the end, Monroe was sworn in on an open-air platform fronting these temporary Congressional quarters.

That this out-of-door ceremony of 1817 was regarded as a temporary makeshift is indicated by the fact that both Monroe at his second inauguration and John Quincy Adams, who succeeded him, took the oath in the hall of the House of Representatives. Only when Jackson was inaugurated, in 1829, and the hordes of the unterrified Democracy descended on Washington to see their idol inducted into office, was the open-air ceremony resumed. It was repeated invariably thereafter with each newly elected President, except on the rare occasions when, as in Mr. Taft's inauguration, the state of the weather made an open-air ceremony impossible. The American public showed no willingness to relinquish the outdoor spectacle.

A handbook of out-of-the-way political information, published twenty-four years ago, took the trouble to count up the length of each inaugural address prior to that time. It found that the average lengths was 2,340 words, which compares with about 3,000 in Mr. Hoover's inaugural of last Monday. Washington's second inaugural was the shortest, with 134 words; but Roosevelt's 977-word inaugural of 1905 also scored well for Presidential brevity—an example which his subsequent messages to Congress certainly did not follow. By far the longest was William Henry Harrison's, whose 8,578 words, nearly doubled the next highest record on the list, despite Webster's famous blue-penciling of the "twenty proconsuls" from the original draft. Perhaps this makes it easier to understand why Harrison, whose inaugural was delivered out of doors on a stormy day, should have fallen ill and died a month afterward.

The same handbook also made the curious calculation, with somewhat unexpecte results, of the number of times the personal pronoun "I" was used in each inaugural. The most frequent use of the first person singular did not occur with Roosevelt, whose inaugural was actually the only one which did not employ it at all, or even with Cleveland, in whose first inaugural it was used only five times, but, strange to say, with Lincoln, whose first inaugural introduced it forty-three times. In Lincoln's more famous second inaugural, however, it occurred only once.

Breeding Enemies of Our Insect Foes

"Beneficial" Parasites — that is, beneficial to man, are those that infest and kill pests that injure our domestic animals and cultivated trees and plants. These beneficial parasites are now being bred and exported in large quantities to points where their services are needed to war against local pests.

"A laboratory for breeding beneficial parasites, established by the British Empire Marketing Board, has now been at work for rather more than a year. Consignments of insects have been sent out in response to requests from Canada, New Zealand, Australia, South Africa, Kenya, the Falkland Islands, and different parts of England. Between 20,000 and 30,000 larvae of the pine tortrix, 90 per cent. infected with a parasite that attacks it in its larval stage, were recently collected (largely from Brandon, in Suffolk) for Ontario. Ontario also received 20,000 parsites of the greenhouse white fly, which was exported on whole tomato sprigs and sent over in cold storage.

"Adult parasites of a scale insect that attacks fruit were sent over in small sealed test-tubes to Vancoucer and provided with raisins for nourishment in transit. The wood wasp Sirex infests most timber-growing countries. Its larvae bore their way into tree trunks, leaving behind them neat circular tunnels in the wood. The Sirex parasite is another fly, Rhyssa, with a long ovipositor which it thrusts right through the grain of the wood until it penetrates the body of the wood wasp larva, on which it lays its egg. Three hundred and fifty of these Rhyssa larvae have been collected in Devon and shipped to the Cawthron Institute in New Zealand.

"The sheep blow-fly, a big greenbottle, lays its eggs in dirty and matted wool on living sheep, and the maggots that hatch out eat their way into the animal's body. There is, however, a parasite which in turn lays its eggs in the blow-fly maggot and eventually kills it. Hundreds of thousands of these maggots, with their appropriate parasites, are being bred at the laboratories, and some have already been exported in the chrysalis stage to Australia, South Africa, and the Falkland Islands, where the blow-fly causes enormous loss of sheep life. Other recent exports include parasites of the woolly aphis of the apple, sent to India and Kenya Colony, and of the earwig, sent to New Zealand and Canada. Three Australian scientific men from the Commonwealth Department of Entomology are carrying out research at the laboratories under the superintendent, Dr. Thompson, who is himself a Canadian. One is working on the sheep maggot, or blow-fly, already mentioned; one on a parasite of the apple-ravaging codling-moth, and one on an insect that attacks a troublesome weed, Saint-John's-wort. Dr. Myers, of the Farnham Royal staff, has gone to the West Indies to deal with tropical parasites, and he will organize shipments of beneficial insects between the various islands and British Guiana."

Garden Paths and Summer Bloom

Holiday Season Can Be Accounted for by Proper Planning of Flower Selection

SOIL NOTES

Holidays and the Garden

If at all possible the urban gardener should take into consideration the time of his summer holiday when he is planting his flowers and vegetables. Of course, in the perfect garden there will always be a good show of bloom and a steady supply of salad material from the first of June on, but in the amateur's layout there is usually a time when the garden is at its best. This should not come when the owner is away at some summer resort or on a distant motor tour. One can quite easily arrange to have things come on at the full either in July, August or September. If the gardener is going away, for instance, in July, it is best to delay planting of gladiolus, dahlias and the main annual flowers grown from seed until a week or two later than usual. The same rule should be practiced with beets, carrots, corn, tomatoes and melons. When this is done, the main crop, of both flowers and vegetables will come on in August. If one is not taking holidays until August, however, it is well to get some flowers and vegetables in as early as possible, and the balance in very late, so that there will be a show before going away and a second one after arrival home. In any case, it is well before leaving the garden for a few weeks in the summer to cut everything well back, particularly buds and flowers, to mulch well with grass clippings or straw to conserve the moisture when it is not possible to have a neighbor turn his hose over the fence once in a while, so that top growth will be checked while one is absent.

An Ideal Soil

If it were always possible for a gardener to pick his soil, he would pick one composed of an equal mixture of organic and inorganic matter, a light, deep sandy loam with plenty of humus in it. This is the ideal toward which to work in bringing the soil to condition. Gardeners have to take the soil as they find it and bring it into condition, not a difficult work at all if undertaken intelligently, but one requiring patience and perhaps several seasons to secure the proper tilth. A soil of the composition mentioned is particularly valuable for its ability to absorb fertilizer. Heavy soils absorb it too slowly and sand too rapidly, so the admixture with humus as the carrier is the proper mixture. Every time a crop with the luxuriant growth of a favoring climate is taken off the soil, a portion of the soil fertility goes with it and it is necessary to replace it. The plowing under of green manures, the spading in of stable manure and the adding of vegetable compots and commercial fertilizers is a continuous process.

Garden Paths

Paths add much to the attractiveness of any flower garden or lawn. If a supply of limestone is plentiful and cheap, a pleasing effect may be produced by paving crazy style or in regular fashion. Simply dig out sod or soil the same size and exact depth of you stone and plant irregularly. If this is done carefully, the lawn mower will run right over and no trimming will be necessary. The central path of the garden should be in line with the centre of the back porch or with a window commanding the view if the porch is so placed that it is impractical as an axis. To round off, have the path lead up to a rose-covered garden seat or archway through the flower garden into the vegetable patch. If there is room, the main path may circle a garden pool in which water plants are growing, or if this is too elaborate, a bird-bath or sun dial may be used for similar effect.

Spinach Is a Standard Vegetable

Spinach will be one of the first vegetables harvested in the vegetable garden, and, if planted at intervals of a couple of weeks, from the time the soil is fit to work until June, will furnish delightful greens for the table until midsummer. This vegetable delights in a warm, rich soil, and must be heavily manured and, like all other vegetables, should be pushed quickly with regular applications of nitrate of soda. The rows should be at least twelve inches apart, and, where horse cultivation is practiced, two feet or a yard. If preferred, and the soil is clean, it may be broadcast, but in this case it is harder to keep down the weeds. After the plants are up well, thin well to at least eight inches apart, and keep the soil cultivated and fertilized. Bloomsdale Savoy Leaved is one of the hardiest and is an early variety as well. This, like the Victoria, is wrinkled like Savoy cabbage, succulent and curled. King of Denmark is one of the most valuable of the recent introductions, an dwill keep in condition for cutting for a week or two after other varieties have gone to seed, although it is not as early as the first-named. Some of the spinaches after cutting will grow up again an dfurnish a second crop, but the quality of these is not equal to the others.

Now, Even China!

Chinese Press Seeks Freedom From Curb by Government

Shanghai. — Chinese newspapers, long throttled by strict military censorship, have struck their first blow for freedom of the press.

The papers complain that, even with the establishment of the Nationalist government and so-called recognition of the people's rights, they are still unable to print the news uncurbed.

In an effort to break down this long established censorship, publishers, especially those in Shanghai, have formed an association with the specific purpose of forcing the Nanking government to discard the last vestige of censorship.

For years Chinese newspapers have managed to exist in spite of a continually changing governmental authority, each keen to prevent the publication of news that might prove harmful to its shortlived regime.

Prior to the coming of the Nationalists Chinese dailies were forbodden to print news of political developments or to editorialize on governmental changes taking place. As a result the dailies for a time were reduced to printing trivialities.

China's Navy to Expand

President Chiang, at Launching, Advances Cruiser Program

Shanghai—President Chiang Kai-shek recently visited Shanghai to attend the launching of a new Chinese gunboat at the Giangnan dockyards, the same government dockyards that, strangely enough, not long ago completed several gunboats for the United States Navy to operate on our Yangtze River patrol.

In his address at the launching President Chiang spoke of the importance of increasing the Chinese Navy, and said he intended to do all in his power to get the government to pass appropriations for a large cruiser-building program. The Chinese press came out with long stories on the President's support of a "big navy" program:

The Chinese Navy long has been something of a sore point with patriotic Chinese. It actually does not amount to much as it stands to-day, they are forced to admit. It is also a fact that not a single vital engagement at sea took place during the entire revolution, and no military commander was at any time definitely sure of where the naval officers stood.

There are at present four squadrons or divisions in the Chinese Navy, according to an official report made by the Navy Department in the Ministry of War, submittd during the recent disbandment conference at Nanking.

The ships in the first total twelve under Vice Admiral Chen Chih-lang. The tabulation does not designate what class of ships make up each squadron, but it may be presumed most of them are of the small gunable type, with a few ships comparable to American destroyers, but much older and in many cases obsolte and virtually useless except against merchantmen or for anti-pirate work.

Vice Admirable Chen Shao-kwan is the commanding officer of the Second Squadron, which lists twenty ships, and Vice-Admiral Tseng Yitink of the Third with eleven ships. For three ships in the Fourth (training) Squadron no commanding officer is stated.

The Barriers of Class

Viscount Knebworth in the Saturday Review (London): It is an indisputable truth that the real interests of the worker are bound up with the interests of the concern for which he works. It is equally a truth that this fact has so far been concealed from him. Any policy which tends towards lifting the curtain and enabling the worker to see in what direction his real interests lie must strike at the very heart of organized class.

Nobile Proves Amundsen's Story

Italy Herself Proves Their One Time Hero a Quitter and to Blame for Italia Crash

One of Italy's heroes is toppled from his pedestal by the recent findings of the board of inquiry, appointed by Premier Mussolini, to learn the cause of the wreck of the dirigible Italia, and to fix the responsibility for the loss of the airship. In the report of the board, made public on March 3, Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the Italia on her voyage from Spitsbergen to the North Pole, is adjudged responsible for the crash of the dirigible and the disastrous ending of the expedition, which cost the lives of eight of the Italia's crew and nine voluntary rescuers. In a resume of their findings, the board reached this conclusion:

"The loss of Italia's was caused by a false manoeuvre, the result partly of the composition of the crew and of the way the craft was handled. The responsibility for this faulty manoeuvre rests on the Italia's commander."

General Nobile, one of the heroes of the Amundsen-Ellsworth flight over the North Pole, also is sharply censured for having allowed himself to be taken off the ice-pack before the others were rescued. In the board's opinin, this was "without justification." Furthermore, points out the Brooklyn Citizen:

"It cannot be said that this crushing condemnation was adopted by a committee capable of judging the events considered, or without due investigation. The committee was presided over by Admiral Cagni, and had as members four Generals, one Admiral, and one Senator. It held sixty sittings, examining hundreds of documents and questioning all survivors of the wreck."

In the opinion of the New York Times "the report reflects an honest effort to bring out the facts, whether they hurt reputations or not." It must have been difficult for the Italian commission to reach these conclusions, observes the Baltimore Sun, "and it must have been equally difficult for Premier Mussolini to consent to their publication." As the Brooklyn Eagle explains:

"The official condemnation of Gen. Nobile carries, in itself, no explicit penalty. But it fixes definitely the blame that has been informally and pretty widely bestowed. If the commander of the Italia expedition failed in fortitude, as the unanimous opinion of the committee holds that he did, he must endure the severe penalty of a public disgrace. By all accounts, he is a man of honorable intentions, of worthy ambition, on whom such a penalty must fall with crushing force. But he seems to have lacked something that no man can definitely know he has until the test comes. For a weakness, he endures a punishment more severe than that of many a deliberate wrongdoer."

On the other hand, the board of inquiry completely exonerates Capt. Filipo Zappi and Capt. Alberto Mariano, of the Italia crew, who are said to have continued their retreat toward the nearets land after their companion, Prof. Finn Malmgren, Sweedish meteorologist, fell behind. So General Nobile is left to bear the brunt of world-wide criticism. "It is a hard blow," remarks the Philadelphia Inquirer. But adds the Troy Record:

"Italy will gain instead of losing the regard of the world because of its determination to hew to the line. The commission undoubtedly was instructed by Premier Mussolini to render a decision in accordance with its findings. General Nobile, not Italy, has been weighed in the balances and found wanting."

Censorship

New Statesman (London): (The police confiscated a MS. sent by D. H. Lawrence by post to his publisher.) The interference of the police with Mr. D. H. Lawrence's private correspondence . . . is utterly indefensible and abominable. We suppose there is some law or regulation . . . which gives the police power to do such things. Or perhaps there are provisions in the old Post Office Act which were made for an utterly different purpose. But the point which concerns the public is whether this means that the mails are no longer safe, to the supervision of some more or less stupid policeman, that our letters may be steamed open and reclosed by any curious censor. Must we resort once more to sealing-wax to be sure of privacy, and can we be sure even with that? It is nothing less than an outrage upon all modern ideas of individual liberty that policemen should possess such powers.

Ireland to Have No Entry in Beauty Show at Galveston, Owing to Clergy's Protest

Dublin.—The most beautiful girl in Ireland will not compete in the beauty competition at Galveston, Texas, in June. An agitation was started by an Irish Catholic newspaper against the beauty competition which had been arranged by a Dublin evening paper in order to select Miss Ireland in 1929. With the other beauties of some dozen other countries to travel to Texas this summer to compete for the title of "Miss Universe."

Beauty competitions generally were denounced as unseemly and degrading and critics here were reinforced by Bishop Byrne who cabled from Galveston declaring that no modest girl would participate, as the competitors had "to parade half naked before the mob." This created a profound sensation and the Catholic proprietor and editor owed before the storm.

They both communicated with the Bishop, whose reply has not yet been disclosed, but the upshot of it was that they announced the aabndonment of the competition which had been running several weeks.

"Sherlock Holmes" Fooled for Once

Conan Doyle, Noted Spiritualist is Victim of Hoax Revelation

Nairobi, East Africa.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, famous author of the Sherlock Holmes detective stories and more recently prominent as an advocate of spiritualism was the victim here of a hoax revelation.

Sir Arthur, who is touring and lecturing on spiritualism, was exhibiting "ghost pictures" which he had accepted as authentic physical manifestations of spirit existence. One in particular he had pointed out, a dim figure which he asserted was a spirit which had inhabited a local haunted house. He called attention to the "hard, wicked face" of the apparition and suggested that it perhaps was the spirit of a clergyman "earth-bound because of his sins."

At this point Spencer Halmer, a dentist well-known hereabouts, arose and announced: "That's me!" He explained that the picture was taken 15 years ago at Nottingham, England, 100 miles northwest of London. After he and friends had unsuccessfully watched all night at a haunted house for signs of a ghost, he said he had dressed in a night shirt and a friend had made the photograph.

Find Hidden Treasure in Russian Monastery

Children Playing in Cellars of Abandoned Building Come Upon Secret Passage

Moscow—Buried treasure in gold coins, ingots an djewels, estimated at several million rubles, is reported to have been discovered in an empty monastery in the middle Volga region.

The report states that a group of children were playing hide and seek in the cellars and one of the hiders suggested that they remove some pieces of timber heaped in a corner to conceal themselves. They discovered a hole and a passage leading downward and became so interested that the seekers easily caught them, whereupon the whole crowd abandoned the game and decided to explore the passage. At the end of it they found a small stone chamber in which were the treasure chests.

The story is probably exaggerated as to the value of the articles, but it is a fact that such troves exist and are constantly being discovered. Thus jewels worth more than $1,000,000 were found hidden in a safe four years ago in the Leningrad palace of Prince Yussopf, who killed the Monk Rasputin, and an equally valuable art treasure was unearthed beneath the cellar of the Moscow mansion, which was the headquarters of the American relief food packet system.

Canada's Mining Industry

The variety of Canada's mineral deposits, the large scale on which operations are conducted, and the great extent of its mining lands, make it evident that the Dominion is a country of great mineral possibilities, that it is undergoing rapid development, and that it offers an attractive field for exploration and development companies.

THURSDAY, MARCH 28th, 1929.

The Municipal Councils will soon be little but a rubber stamp in the matter of expenditures and the governing of such. The latest addition to their task to keep the tax rate at the same figure (or lower it) is the proposal of the Provincial Government to assess twenty per cent. of the Old Age Pension payment on the municipality. And their say in the matter is sign on the dotted line and pay their allotment. The Dominion Government will contribute fifty per cent of the amount and it was left to the discretion of the Provincial Governments to take advantage of their payment or else reject it. In Ontario it is proposed to accept the terms but dump two-fifths of the burden over to the municipality. And the municipality must accept, without two or three years to consider the proposal, as in the other cases. Judging from the opinions already expressed the municipalities aren't even saying thank you for Mr. Ferguson's legacy. With County Council expenditure saddled on municipalities on the one hand and debenture indebtedness voted on by the people and now the added duties of Old Age Pension to provide for, small wonder that the thankless job of municipal legislator is not being strenuously sought after in many localities. Insult will be added to injury when the heat of the Provincial election comes on and the Government parades this bill as one of their gifts—providing for the care of the old and infirm of this fair Province.—Acton Free Press.

George A. Putnam, superintendent of Women's Institutes, Department of Agriculture, Toronto, has completed his twenty-fifth year of service in this capacity. Mr. Putnam on this occasion referred proudly to the welfare work being done by the Women's Institutes in Ontario, with which he works in an advisory capacity. The Institute, in its beginnings, had been scornfully spoken of as "merely the efforts of a few enthusiastic women" but it had now developed into a world wide organization of community welfare. The objects of the Women's Institutes are better housing, better clothing and better feeding, as described by Mr. Putnam. They had introduced the idea into England during the war, where it had been taken up and adapted to the needs of the localities concerned. Since then the movement has spread to India, New Zealand, Australia, and a letter had just been received from South Africa, telling of 174 Institutes being organized there. Mr. Putnam added, "We have 1,120 Women's Institutes in Ontario, with a membership of 40,000 and 50 instructors on the road.

Some towns charge tourists the small sum of 50 cents to $1.00 for stopping in their motor camp and the sums so collected go toward the improvement of the camp. The front part of our Fair grounds might be used as a camp ground to good advantage and a little revenue derived from it during the tourist season, and the merchants might profit lrom it also.

While Miss Agnes McPhail holds the distinction of being Canada's only M. P., the presence of women in the House of Commons, in the British Isles, is now no longer a surprise. At present there are ten M. P.'s in the British House, the youngest and most recent to be elected being a school teacher, Miss Lee. The women of Canada will have to wake up to keep in the procession.

Two men, who police allege were under the influence of liquor, ran over and injured one little boy, who later died, and seriously injured another lad. The police found, a short distance from the scene of the accident, a Liquor Commission bottle. with a small quantity of rum. Government whiskey is just as dangerous as any other kind and just as uncontrollable.

An event believed to be without parallel in the annals of Freemasonry on this continent, if not in the world, took place at St. Thomas last week at the Talbot Lodge, No. 548, when Andrew A. McNames, master of the lodge, initiated his four sons into the order, the sons being two sets of twins.

Arnprior in the last month heard much of the boys and girls and how to keep them on the farm. Someone now writes to suggest that if they had tractors that could make sixty miles an hour there wouldn't be any difficulty, says the Chronicle.

Among 'best sellers' the Bible still is the leader. More than thirty-two million copies were issued in America and Britain in 1927. It has been translated altogether into 836 languages and dialects.

Late Thomas Barclay

There was placed in Maple Ridge Cemetery yesterday the body of Mr. Thomas Barclay, a former resident of Chesterville, who passed away at Ottawa on Sunday last. A funeral service was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. M. Hayes, Ottawa, and the body brought to Winchester. The chief mourners were six daughters, Mrs. D. Durant of Morrisburg, Mrs. M. Baker of Willoughby, Ohio, Mrs. A. Raymo of Gouverneur, N. Y., Mrs. W. Elliott of Morewood, Ont., Mrs A. Larmour of Westboro, and Mrs. M. Hayes of Ottawa, and one brother, Melvin Barclay of Winchester Springs. Twenty-two grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren also survive.

Edward Johnston, the world-renowned tenor, has donated $25,000 to his native city, Guelph, for the promotion of music in the schools of that city. A monster two day musical festival is being arranged for May 7th and 8th to demonstrate to the public and also to Mr. Johnston the remarkable results that have been obtained in the way of musical education in the short space of eight months among the school children. It is a wonderful advantage to any school and should be more encouraged even though we can not be all as fortunate as Guelph is receiving such a wonderful donation. Several schools in this district have introduced the teaching of it and Winchester had the privilege a few years ago, but it was dropped from the curriculum. Why should it not be introduced again and the children given the advantage of learning to sing by note, thus making good material for our church choirs and a source of pleasure to the community as well as a wonderful advantage and education for the young people. The movement should be given every encouragement.

Mr. Leslie A. Gould, manager of the Lansdown branch of the Bank of Toronto, figured in a motor accident on Saturday, says the Gananoque Reporter, when his car, a chevrolet sedan, skidded on the road about three miles east of Lansdowne and went into the ditch. A remarkable thing about it is that although the car rolled over a couple of times it landed right side up, very little damaged and none of the occupants were injured beyond a shaking up and a few minor bruises.

Mr. Wallace Bowman has been ill for a few days, but his friends hope he will soon be around again.

Mr. P. Wyatt had to kill his dog, as it acted very much as though it had rabies. Dr. Bean is coming to town on Tuesday, and will vaccinate a number of the village dogs.

Next Sunday is Easter and also the farewell of the Rev. Mr. Innes of the Presbyterian Church. It is hoped that there will be a good crowd out.

The men of the Presbyterian Church put on their first Y. P. S. Program on Friday night. They convinced all those present that they were just as capable at that work as are the women. The Male Quartette made its first appearance and is a woneerful addition to the talent of the Church. The names of the singers are, Messrs Ken Dow, Harvey Cameron, Bert McKercher and Irvin Dalgleish, accompanied by Miss Alma Hanes at the organ. Mr. Dow also gave a very funny recitation, "As Things Seemed." Mr. Robin Campbell and Mr. Harvey Cameron gave real good readings. Rev. Mr. Innes read the scripture and offered the prayer, and Mrs. I. Dalgleish sang a solo. After the program there was a riddle contest, the winners being Mrs. Earl Campbell and Mr. Robin Campbell. Mrs Jim Cameron was lucky at guessing and was awarded a nice basket of homemade candy. Songs were then cut up and handed out. The pieces were put together and the partners that had them had to sing the song. It was very interesting. After this, the boxes were given out and there were only 40 boxes and so a few of the men did not get one, but their friends shared up and all reported a good time. The Society is getting along so well they are beginning to think they will have to build a hall of their own if the community does not soon start.

It is with deep regret we announce the sudden death of Mrs. (Dr.) G. C. Ferrier, which occurred at her home Wednesday, March 20th, after only a few days illness with pneumonia. Deceased, who was in her 49th year, will be sadly missed in her home as well as in other circles in which she took active part. The funeral, which was largely attended by sympathizing friends, took place on Saturday, at 10.30 a. m. to the United Church by her pastor, Rev. A. O. Lloyd, assisted by several other ministers who came to pay their respects. She leaves to mourn her demise, her husband and two sons, George of Toronto, and Lyall at home, who have the sympathy of their many friends. Lunch was served and the friends dispersed feeling they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

The Story Of Buick

The well-knowan Buick automobile was developed by Mr. David Buick, whose name it bears, but when the machine had been perfected Mr. Buick's health failed, and he was torced to sell his large holdings for a small sum. Until about a month ago he live in the city of Detroit and supports himself, at 74 years of age, by teaching in the school of Trades; and he was not able to own even one of the machines which bears his name. Yet he was not a pessimist, and neither discouraged nor unhappy. He has lost much, but he faced life undefeated and serene, with a cheerfulness that his losses were not able to dim or eclipse This story is well worth knowing. Men are not made by their success nor marred by their failure. The man is more than his work.

If I Knew

If I knew the box where smiles were kept,
No matter how large the key
Or strong the bolt, I would try so hard
'Twould open, I know, for me.
Then over the land the sea, broadcast
I'd scatter the smiles to play
That the children's faces might hold them fast
For many and many a day.

If I knew a box that was large enough
To hold all the frowns I meet,
I would like to gather them every one
From nursery, school and street.
Then, folding and holding, I'd pack them in
And, turning the monster key,
I'd hire a giant to drop the box
To the depths of the deep, deep sea.

A motorist was held up by a traffic policeman.

"What's your name?" demanded the cop.

"Abraham O'Brien Goldberg," replied the motorist.

"What's the O'Brien for?" asked the officer.

"For protection," returned Abraham.

HERE ARE THE FACTS

READ THEM

Many people buy without investigation of facts and on snap or emotional judgment. Every year it is estimated a million car buyers change their ideas on their car after they have had it six months. Consider the following facts before purchasing your next car—and then decide for yourself which car offers the most value for the money.

1—Do you know that no car under $2,000 outside of Ford is putting on Houdaille Double Acting Hydraulic Shock Absorbers as standard equipment?

2—That no car under $1,500 except Ford has triplex shatterproof windshield glass as their standard equipment.

3—That Ford is the only car under Buick with three quarter floating axle.

4—That Ford is the only car under Buick with Torque tube and Radius drive construction.

5—Ford is the only car under $1,500 with five-bearing transmission.

6—That the New Ford has 25 roller and ball bearings in its chassis.

7—Ford is the only car under $1,500 with three-quarter irreversible steering system.

8—That Ford is one of few cars built today that has five-steel-spoke wire wheels as standard equipment.

9—That Ford is the only car under highest priced cars with silent six brake, internal expanding all-enclosed system.

10—That wrist pins in motor are machined to .0002 and are of full floating type.

11—That aluminum alloy pistons are balanced to an accuracy of two grams. This is the finest balance of any piston in any car regardless of cost.

12—That when car is travelling 50 miles per hour—the revolutions per minute of motors is only 2053.

13—That gear ratio of new Ford is 3.7

14—That the actual road clearaace of the New Ford is 9½ inches—highest of any American stock car.

15—That New Ford car has proven itself in public hands this past year as one of the finest performing cars ever built—from standpoint of pickup, hill-climbing ability, speed and riding comfort.

16—That the New Ford car has proven itself beyond any doubt as the most wonderful winter car ever built. It starts easily in cold weather and bucks snow beyond belief—ask the owners.

17—That service and dealer resposibillty behind the New Ford is unequalled by that of any other car built.

18—That New Ford holds the road at high speeds as good as cars being sold at highest prices.

19—Lastly—That the New Ford stands out supreme in its field—in mechanical design, specifications, equipment, quality and precision workmanship.

THESE FACTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

A STREAK OF LUCK

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

A thousand dollars was not much, but it fairly dazzled Mark Seaton. He had led a happy-go-lucky existence for over five years exploiting mining prospects and real estate booms, had lived from hand to mouth and the unexpected legacy of what to him seemed to be a substantial sum of money brought new ambition and dreams of opulence.

It was William Morse, an old-time partner, who had remembered him thus strangely after they had not met for ten years. The money was paid promptly to Seaton, who emerged from the threadbare vagabond into a quite presentable and well dressed man.

"I'll make the thousand real capital, no wasteful living it up," decided Seaton. "There's chances down in the new oil fields near Elmore. I'll be careful, wary and economical until I get on my feet. And this time I'll stay there."

Seaton put up at a hotel at Elmore and began looking around for business chances. At the end of a week he decided that $3 a day was too steep for him. He had been told that a widow, a Mrs. Alma Bryce, had room and board for a respectable guest who was good pay. Seaton one morning walked up to her little home. He found her absent, but her two little children were playing in the yard. Handsome, hearty Mrs. Bryce came home to find the trio the very best friends in the world. Seaton presented his plea for housing, and cleanliness and prime cooking made his new home a palace to him.

"You are the kind of a woman I've always pictured in my mind as pretty nigh perfect," he declared one day.

One day Seaton came home to find a stranger seated on the porch enjoying its coolness and shade.

"Been waiting for you, Mr. Seaton," announced the visitor crisply. "I'm named Burt Talbot and I'm a speculator. I heard you were to be in Elmore and I wanted to have first chance at that oil land of yours down at Herkimer Forks."

"Aren't you mistaken?" inquired Seaton. "I own no land anywhere."

"I expected that—natural for a tenderfoot to be cautious. All right, I'm square. I happen to know that a certain tract is registered in the name of Mark Seaton and have some parties who might be prevailed upon to give a snug sum for it."

Now Seaton was clever. Could it be possible that William Morse had added to his benefaction and included some property? He decided to consult the records and find out. Meantime he would be duly politic with his visitor.

"You see," Talbot enlightened him effusively, "I'm only a go-between. Ten per cent commission is all I'm offered. My buyers have all the equipment to handle your land and capital enough to stand a risk. Shall I feel my way on a $20,000 basis, say?"

"Too little," dissented Seaton.

"All right, if I get your figure and there is a sale will you see that I am paid for my services?"

"Oh, sure!" acceded Seaton, and after the man had left, hurried to the record office. Sure enough, there was the document on file showing that over five years ago a "Mark Seaton of Denver," had owned the property in question.

"That settles it—some other Mark Seaton," soliloquized Mrs. Bryce's boarder and went and played with the children to forget his shattered dream.

But two days later a letter was sent to him which had been delivered at the hotel. Seaton read it to find that it was from "Your wife, Nella," at Denver to "Mark Seaton" of the same place. It hoped that her husband would make a sale of his oil land at any price, as the mortgage on their home was due, and she advised him to make any sacrifice to get a needed $4,000.

"Ah! here is something to think about, indeed," meditated Seaton. "Evidently this namesake of mine is on his way to Elmore to sell his property. Four thousand dollars! Why! that fellow Talbot mentioned five times that, first move."

Two days later Talbot appeared with an offer of $30,000 cash for the land. The very next morning, going to the hotel, Mark Seaton of Elmore found that Mark Seaton of Denver had registered there. He went at once up to the room of the new arrival.

"Mr. Seaton," he said, "we happen to bear the same name and this letter to you was delivered to me by mistake. Come on to sell your land down at Herkimer Forks, I understand."

"Why, yes, I've got to, as I am hard pressed financially. Is there any chance of getting rid of it somewhere around $5,000?"

"Will you authorize me to take double that?"

"Yes, and I'll divide all over $10,000 50-50."

He was true to his word and within 48 hours Seaton the landless possessed $15,000 minus $4,000 commission paid to Talbot. He sought out his landlady.

"Mrs. Bryce," he said, "if I had been sure I could support you and these dear little ones, I'd have asked you to marry me the first day I saw you."

"Oh! money isn't everything in the world," fluttered the handsome widow.

"I've found out I can," proceeded Seaton. "What say, eh?"

And Mrs. Bryce replied with the simple affirmative so gladly spoken when love inspires its utterance.

OUT OF THE DEEP!

Finds Range From a Mastodon's Tusk to a Bottle of Beer.

Among the art treasures which have left the Old Country for America is a beautiful solid silver vase—a unique specimen of French fifteenth century work. It was found in the net of a Brixham trawler, and the skipper kept it as a curiosity. A visitor, a trifle wiser, offered him a sovereign for it, and the offer was accepted, much to the subsequent profit of the buyer.

The floor of the sea — the North Sea especially—is littered with thousands of objects, and the trawl nets, as they are dragged slowly along the bottom, gather not only fish, but a motley assortment of rubbish — old anchors, bits of wreckage, bones, lumps of coal, and the like. There is also always the possibility that among the mass of squirming, flopping fish there will be something of value.

Two years ago a small sack was brought up in the net of an east coast trawler. The skipper made remarks when he saw it had torn the net, but when it burst and a thousand half-crowns spilled themselves among the fish he "cussed" no more. As he and his crew were on sharing terms, the trip was a profitable one for all.

In 1912 a Lowestoft trawler brought up, with difficulty, what turned out to be the tusk of a mastodon. It was purchased by the curator of a museum for £7.

Anchors, unless modern, have only an old iron value, but the Dogger Bank has yielded two small silver ones. They would have been pitched overboard if a lad hadn't had the inspiration to scrape one with his knife and reveal the white metal. Experts think they were once part of the decorative work on the bows of a Spanish ship.

An old fisherman told the writer that, suddenly resolving to smoke no more, he flung his pipe overboard. A year later it came up in the net, and in it was an old fourpenny-bit.

It would seem absurd to ask trawlers to look out for anything lost overboard in such a place as the North Sea, but a Freemason who had dropped overboard an attache-case containing his regalia did so. And it was found!

An appropriate find was when the skipper of a trawler wiped his perspiring forehead and remarked: "I could do with a bottle of beer!"

He was promptly handed one by the mate. It had just tumbled out of the net, as if in answer to his wish.

A British "Jackie."

A five-year-old British boy who has just begun work in a British film studio is believed to be the successor to Jackie Coogan, who is now growing too big to play the parts in which he used to be so delightful. He is Michael Stanley, a distant relative of Lord Derby. Michael's father is Captain E. A. V. Stanley, of the National Greyhound Racing Club, who, with his wife, is also well known in hunting and racing circles.

7,000 Miles Conversation.

Mr. L. S. Amery, Secretary for the Dominions, and his Under-Secretary, Major W. Ormsby-Gore, recently carried on a telephone conversation between London and Java, a distance of 7,000 miles. They heard each other distinctly.

Grow While Asleep.

A doctor says that the growth of children takes place entirely when they are asleep.

Hearing.

Hearing, as a rule, is more acute with the right ear than with the left.

Diamonds Used in Shipbuilding.

It is hardly to be imagined that diamonds have anything to do with the building of battleships. Yet this is so, for diamond dust is used for cutting and turning the tremendously hard steel which is used in the manufacture of modern armaments.

Henley in the Middle Eighteen Hundreds

Early morning in Henley! From over the wooded hills in the east there comes a great flood of sunshine that lies warmly on the ruddy side of the old inn, on its evergreens ,and on the slopes of sweet-scented mignonette, and sweetbrier and various blossoms that adorn the bank of the river. The river itself, lying apparently motionless between level and green meadows, has, its blue surface marred here and there by a white ripply of wind; the poplars that stand on its banks are rustling in the breeze; there are swallows dipping and skimming about the old bridge, and ducks paddling along among the rushes and weeds, and cattle browsing in the deep green; and farther on, some high-lying stretches of rye-grass struck into long and silvery waves by the morning wind.

All the stir and motion of the new day have come upon us; and Henley, clean, white, and red, with its town-hall shining brightly down its chief street and all its high clusters of old fashioned houses backed by a fringe of dark-wooded hills, shows as much life and briskness as are usually seen in a quaint, small, old-fashioned English town. But where the silence and the stillness of the morning dwell is away up the reach of the river. Standing on the bridge, you see the dark blue stream, reflecting a thousand bright colors underneath the town, gradually becoming greyer in hue until it gets out amid the meadows and the woods; and then, with a bold white curve that is glimmering like silver in the north, it sweeps under the line of low, soft green hills that have grown pearly and grey in the tender morning mist. Bell is standing on the bridge, too. The Lieutenant has brought out his sketch-book, and has placd it on a stone parapet before her. But somehow, she seems disinclined to begin work thus early on our journey; and, instead, her eyes are looking blankly and wistfully at the rich green meadows, and the red cows, and the long white reach ofthe river shining palely beneath the faint green heights in the north.

"Is Henley the prettiest town in the world, I wonder?" she said.

"Yes, if you think so, Mademoiselle," replied von Rosen, gently.—From "The Strange Adventures of a Phaeton," by William Black.

Probably when Cupid twanged one in the direction of Lindy he pulled that old one about "the higher they fly the harder they fall."

One-third of the accidents in building construction are due to falling objects, says a statistician The rule applies 100 per cent., however, in the Stock Exchange.

Broke Record

Frank Dupuis established a world record but lost the race. He established his record when on the first day he covered the initial 41 mile lap of the Eastern International Dog Sled Derby, at Quebec, in 3 hours, 22 minutes, 42 seconds. On the two succeeding days, however, Seppala, veteran Alaskan musher, succeeded in overtaking the lead and carried off the honors, but Dupuis' time for the first day has never been excelled.

A DANGEROUS MONTH FOR THE BABY

Mothers Always Dread the Blustery March Days.

No month of the year is so dangerous to the welfare of little ones as is March—the month of quickly changing weather. One day is fine, the next cold and blustery. One day dry, the next wet and disagreeable. In spite of all precautions the little ones will take colds and these colds often lead to more serious troubles. Mothers, when the first symptoms appear—sneezing, redness of the eyes, running nose—Baby's Own Tablets should be given at once. They will rapidly break up the cold and prevent the more serious complications.

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the home always feel safe—just like having a doctor in the house. The Tablets are a gentle but thorough laxative that sweeten the stomach and regulate the bowels, thus driving out constipation and indigestion and relieving the baby of the many childhood ailments which are the direct result of a clogged condition of the bowels or a sour stomach.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Scotch City Has Fine Women's Club

Aberdeen, Scotland—The women of Aberdeen seem to have been particularly successful in their achievements in 1928, particularly the Aberdeen Business Women's Club. This club is unique in Great Britain, outside of London, and deserves the admiration it has aroused in other Scottish cities. Its example may well be followed by Aberdeen's neighbors, as the need is great. Miss Bettina Clark, the warden of the club, welcomed all inquiries, and Miss B. Walker, who was its founder, was enthusiastic over its possibilities.

It was felt, Miss Clark said, that Aberdeen had many young business women who needed a social center and residential club, but the difficulty was how to get it financed. Help has flowed in from all sorts of quarters, but the chief support came from the Y.W.C.A., which generously supplied the initial sum of £2000 at a small rate of interest. Two beautiful old houses in one of the best squares in the city were purchased, and on these there is a bond of another £2000. Over 700 business women have joined, which gives the club £350 in subscriptions alone. The letting of their beautiful dance hall also is a source of income, and altogether the finances of the club are in a most satisfactory position. The residents have charming position. The residents have charming rooms, and pay for room and full board only £1 a week for a north room, and 22s. a week for a south room—which seems unbelievably cheap in these days. Everything, however, seems to work out profitably in such a large family—the restaurant is charming, the food appetizing but all help the venture to pay its way. The girls, Miss Clark said, were keen on having the club free, and are constantly devising new ways and means to clear the debt—a splendid Aberdonian trait, as the visitors remarked.

"What is this?" Miss Clark was asked pointing to what looked like a model of a Norwegian saeter.

"A present from one of our workmen," she replied. "At the time of our sale in the Music Hall we were touched and pleased to receive from every man who had been employed on the reconstruction a contribution made by himself. This beautifully made model, presented by a joiner, was won by a well-wisher who returned it to the club as a gift. This attitude of the workmen was typical of the interest and goodwill our venture aroused."

In 1928 Aberdeen. also. appointed her first policewoman, and during the year the Soroptomists appeared on all city's horizon. Aberdeen has also one of the best industrial women's clubs in the country—the St. Katherine's Club. In addition, the Cowdray Club caters for its professional women in the city and in the country the Women's Rural Institutes have had a wonderful year of prosperity. Altogether at the present moment the women of Aberdeen seem to be leading in the club movement in Scotland, and everything points to real growth and development in the Granite City.

At Manchester, the guard, finding Isaac without either ticket or money, grabbed him by the arm and put him off the train with a well-placed kick. At the next station he found Isaac again, and repeated the expulsion, accentuating the force of the gesture. At the third station the conductor was completely astounded to find Isaac yet again. Bending low, Isaac attempted to jump off quickly enough to escape at least part of the violence of the attack. "How far do you think you're going to get like this?" asked the guard. "As far as London," replied Isaac, "if my constitution will stand it."

Minard's Liniment for Coughs, Colds.

British dramatic critic says where women dominate an institution they ruin it. Indicating that man is somewhat of an institution.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

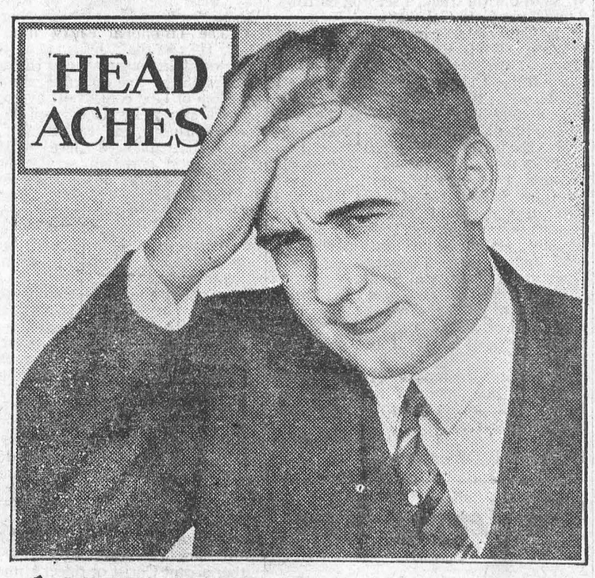
Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

HEAD ACHES



A DOZEN different things may cause a headache, but there's just one thing you need ever do to get prompt relief. Aspirin is an absolute antidote for such pain. Keep it at the office. Have it handy in the home. Those subject to frequent or sudden headaches should carry Bayer Aspirin in the handy pocket-tin. Until you have used it for headaches, colds, neuralgia, etc., you've no idea how much Aspirin can help. It means quick, complete relief to millions of men and women who use it every year. And it does not depress the heart.

RED ROSE ORANGE PEKOE is extra good

A bright little miss, who always has a ready answer, started in to take a bath the other evening. when she discovered that the soap was missing. So she climbed out of the tub and, dripping wet and without stopping to throw over her small body even a bath robe, pranced downstairs to get some soap. When she returned, her older sister took her to task. "That's a pretty thing to do," said she. "What if the minister ha dhappened to come if the minister had happened to come

"Well, I'd have pointed my finger at him," replied the youngster, "and I'd have said: 'Mr.———' you just look the other way. This is private.'"

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs ,sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

Popular Morewood Girl Passes Away

Last Friday morning many residents of Winchester township were deeply grieved when the death was announced of "Dorothy" Fraser, daughter of Ex-Reeve Frank Fraser and Mrs. Fraser, of Morewood, which had occurred at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, where after an illness of two weeks she had been taken for a blood transfusion, in an atte pt to restore her health after an attack of pneumonia.

Letta Doris Fraser was a particularly fine girl, highly esteemed and exceedingly popular among a very wide circle of friends. She was a graduate nurse and was following her frofession in Montreal until about five weeks ago when she came home for a vacation.

The funeral Sunday afternoon at the Morewood United Church was attended by a very large number of people desirous of paying a last tribute to one they loved and expressing their sympathy to the pareuts and members of the family. Services were conducted by Rev. R. P. Stafford at 2.30 and interment made in Maple Ridge cemetery.

The chief mourners were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fraser, of Morewood; one brother, Gordon at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Leslie Moore of Ottawa, and Mrs. W H. Slinn, of Lachine, Que.

Floral Offerings—Pillow, Fraser Family, Basket, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. James Millar, Smiths Falls; Wreaths, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Churches and Money

Everybody is familiar with the complaint often heard from the blatent critic of churches and their undertakings to the effect that churches are "Always asking for money." This complaint was effectively countered locally recently by simply asking how often the Christ himself expounded this subject during His ministry on earth? In the four gospels more references made by Christ to money are found than are recorded regarding prayer, more references to money than to the atonement, more than to the new birth, and more than to repentance. Christ spoke of money matters more times than He spoke of the new birth and the atonement put together. Church workers have ample justification for asking for money. The example of the woman who gave the two mites can be used to advantage implying as it does that it is not how much the giver possesses; the millionaire must give a large amount to give anything and even then he gives nothing in comparison to the woman who gave all she had.

The United Church

(Contributed)

Suitable to the occasion of Palm Sunday were the messages of Rev. J. A. Waddell, who spoke at the morning service on "The Triumphal Entry from Mark 11-8. He said that Jesus knew that He was not taking possession of the hearts of the people by this outward show. The kingdom of God comes not by might nor by power but by God's spirit. There was a spirit of real enthuisiasm in the group that followed Jesus that day. Enthusiastic christian service should be normal. Fervency of spirit is so essential to the christian life. The pastor said "Let us fittingly consecrate ourselves to God and his service and be more enthusiabout the work of the church and may our lives be characterized by a real spirit of helpfulness to others."

A message to the children emphasized the daily reading of the Bible and the following of its precepts carefully.

The choir sang "There is a green hill far away" in which a tenor part was taken by Mr. Howard Annable, and Soprano Solo by Mrs. Hutt.

The evening anthem was "Just as I am." The events leading up to the question asked in John 6-67 were briefly sketched by Rev. J. A. Waddell who said "In all ages this sifting process is going on. Peter is presenting our case as well as his own when he expresses the words: "To whom shall we go but to Thee?" All men need Christ. All of us must face the alternative. We must either accept Christ or reject Him If we go away from Christ to whom shall we go?

Service will be held in this Church Good Friday at 10.30

Next Sunday the choir will give special Easter music under the direction of the organist, Mr. Potter. and at the evening service a Cantata "Olivet to Calvary" will be given.
