Finch Hockney Club Rcorganizes

At a well attended meeting held in the Gormley House on Tuesday evening of last week the Finch Hockey Club was organized for the coming winter. After a lengthy discussion re the problem of lights for the rink, it was decided to interview the citizens of the town for a subsciption and install a gasoline plant. The following officers were elected:—President, Geo. Aikin; Vice-President, W. Dey; Sec.-treas., M. Bennett. Delegates to League Meeting at Crysler—M. Bennett and Willis McMartin. A committee to pick the team was left over for another meeting.

Women's Institute Meeting.

A very successful meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. A. Brown. About twenty-five ladies from town were present. After the business was gone through with the program for the day was taken up. A very excellent paper on "Sesame and Lilies," by Mrs. Thos. Houlehan, was read by Miss McGee, and a point for discussion, "Might not women accomplish more good by making the best possible use of their influence than in the actual possession of the franchise" raised by Mrs. Houlehan, was discussed at some length by those present. Miss Moad's candy demonstration left nothing to be desired, unless it was more candy. After the singing of the National Anthem a short time was taken for social intercourse anp the meeting adjourned to meet next month with Mrs. Thos. McGee.—Com.

Ended Life With Rifle

William Meacham, aged 52 years and a partial cripple from paralysis, commited suicide at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Cobane at Cornwall. A rifle was standing in the hall. The father took it when nobody was looking and fired the shot. The bullet entered his left temple, and death was almost instantaneous. It is stated that at least twice before Meacham had attempted suicide by using a knife, but each time was prevented.

Farewell Gathering at Morewood

Prior to the departure of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Cheney, who have removed to Winchester; about one hundred of the friends gathered at their residence on Friday evening last and read the following address:

Morewood, Nov. 19th, 1909

To Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Cheney,

Morewood, Ont.

Dear Friends:—A few of your warmest friends of our little village are gathered here tonight bent upon a mission that is frought with regret as word has passed around that you have decided to allow others to occupy your farm and that you are leaving home to abide elsewhere for a season. Your friends gathered here this evening, and many others, have heard this intelligence with profound regret indeed, and we would that our meeting could be more significient of pleasure and our expression of esteem couched in a happier vein. The suddeness also of the unwelcome tidings has rather intensified the note of personal concern which we all feel at losing you from our midst, and yet we must and do most sincerely hope that the step you have decided on taking is a wise one and will be frought with only beneficient results for yourselves and family

You have resided among us Mr. Cheney from your earliest boyhood, and born on our own soil, you are undoubtedly one of our own. Some gathered here have attended school with you, in the long ago, and memory turns back the page of time and brings to recollection scenes and events and boyhood pranks that have long since been a dream. Since you have come to man's estate you have ever been a most worthy and enterprising citizen, one who has held the esteem and respect of all acquaintances and friends. To have you depart is a more regretful occurance because you have ever taken a hearty interest in what concerns our little village and in any progress we may have endeavored to make within the limits of means. And Mrs. Cheney you will be missed from the Methodist W. F. M. S. of which you have been a member in the past, and yet we pray for your happiness and health in the new home you will be making in a neighboring town.

Please accept dear friends in departing this free will token of our esteem, and best wishes. Believe us that in the event of your return which we hope will be at no no far distant date, we will be glad indeed to have you back again in the home you are at present vacating. Signed on behalf of friends present.

Missionary Views and Lectuse

In spite of the inclement weather and bad roads there was a large audience gathered in the Methodist Sunday School room on Monday evening The Senior Epworth League had been so fortunate as to secure Rev. W. P. Boshart, of Montreal, who delivered a lecture on "Chin and its People" illustrated by limelight views. Mr. Boshart had spent some time in China and had with him many curios illustrating the wonderful mechanical skill of these people. The audience showed their appreciation by their wrapt attention during the hour and a half that he spoke. At the close Mr. Harry Merkley moved and Mr. Fred Forward seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker.

Missionary Anniversary

The Methodist people have beeu singularly fortunate in being able to sucure a deputation of returned missionaries for the anniversary this year. Rev. C. J. L. Bates, M. A., of Japan, is a strong preacher, of clear logical mind, and warm heart. Dr. C. W. Service is a christian physician and stands in the first rank among the men of profession. On Friday night these men gave inspiring addresses. Mr. Bates described the conditions of Japan during the war with Russian showing the strength trustworthiness and valor of Japanese character. Dr. Service spoke at length of the movements in China showing the tremendous resources and strength of the empire. The sermon on Sunday will not soon be forgotten and aught greatly to augment missionary zeal in the church here. The Epworth League secured Rev. P. Boshart, B. D. who spent some time in China as a business man. He spoke for an hour on China and showed views of the existing conditions of the people without Christ. Mr. Boshart is an inspiring speaker and will be warmly received at any future time in Chesterville. Notwithstanding the bad weather more than one hundred people heard his address.

A Corwall Deal

The Cornwall Electric Railway company has at length secured permission to run its line up the West Front road over Wood's hill to the Ottawa and New York station, a privilege that has been sought for some time, as the line at present makes a detour and runs along the Toronto Paper Manufacturing company's mills. The franchise to use the Front Road was obtained from Cornwall township council in exchange for a dozen street lamps 10 of which will be place between the Cornwall town boundary and the O. & N. Y. depot. The Electric Lighting company also gets permission to erect poles and do business in Lorneville, Gladstone and Beaconsfield villages, suburbs of the town of Cornwall.

LOOKS LIKE ULTIMATUM

Loreburn Makes a Statement in House of Lords.

In Speech on Budget British Lord High Chancellor Says That Government Can No Longer Submit to Actions of Upper House—It Is Believed to Be the Last Statement of Mr. Asquith on Eve of Election.

London, Nov. 23.—The main interest in the historical debate yesterday in the House of Lords in the budget centered in a grave declaration of the Liberal policy which fell from Lord Loreburn, Lord High Chancellor, in the course of an eloquent peroration. Deliberately pausing and adjusting his glasses, he read slowly from a piece of paper:

"It is my opinion that it is impossible that any new Liberal Government can ever again bear the heavy burden of office unless it is secured against a repetition of treatment such as our measures have had to undergo for the last four years."

This statement had an electrical effect upon the Liberal members of the House of Commons, who surged from the public galleries into the lobbies in a state of excitement, under the conviction that they had heard the Government's last word before the general election, that Premier Asquith will make a similar declaration in the House of Commons next week, and that the long delayed campaign against the Lords has now begun in real earnest.

It was held that Lord Lereburn's statement can only mean that no Liberal leader will henceforth accept office unless he receives a pledge from the crown that sufficient peers will be appointed on the Premier's nomination to secure the House of Common against interference by the House of Lords in financial matters.

After the Earl of Crewe, Lord Privy Seal, had formally moved the second reading of the budget bill, without comment, Lord Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition, immediately moved its rejection.

He quoted precedents to show that although the House of Lords could not amend a financial bill, it had full right to discuss it and to throw it out if it so willed.

Besides, the present bill, he argued, had tacked on to it legislation, such as land taxation and increased license duties, which the House of Lords had already rejected, and which had been placed in the bill with a view to ousting the Lords from their legitimate opportunity of dealing with these measures. No self-respecting second chamber would tolerate such treatment.

Lord Loreburn replied, contending that there was nothing to the bill foreign to finance, with which the House of Commons had the exclusive right to deal.

"The attempt of the Lords to interfere," he declared, "was the beginning of a system which would lead to constitutional revolution. What was embodied in the bill was not new either in the United States or Germany, and had been approved not only by the present but the late House of Commons."

After the Lord High Chancellor, many peers addressed the House, but interest waned. The Duke of Norfolk, who supported Lord Lansdowne's resolution, confessed that the Lords had a serious and anxious problem to face, but that that should not daunt them in performing their duty.

Noblemen who had never attended a Parliamentary session in their lives attended, and the pomp of England's proud peerage were on parade. Gray-bearded grandfathers, so aged and feeble that they could scarcely walk, tottered to their century old places on the arms of their trusty retainers.

As aged and decrepid aristocrats rolled up to the House in carriages, in answer to the urgent call of their party, the crowd alternately jeered and cheered.

Wild Storm at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Rain and sleet, driven by a wind which at times registered a velocity of 48 miles an hour, marked the storm which has raged all day over the region of the great lakes.

In the morning the Government life-saving crews from Evanston and Chicago answered an appeal for help from the crew of the freighter Boston, which was thrown rudderless upon a sandbar near Wilmette. Eight of the crew of 18 men elected to leave the vessel, which was fast in the sand.

Tolstoi's Appeal For Peace.

Geneva, Nov. 23.—At an anti-military meeting, held at Bienne, when 100 Swiss and foreign delegates were assembled, an appeal by Count Tolstoi was read amid great enthusiasm.

Count Tolstoi appeals to the good sense of the world's peoples to refuse to serve as soldiers, either voluntarily or under pressure, even if that refusal entails punishment. Killing by soldiers, he asserts, is a criminal act.

His Welcome Home.

Galt, Nov. 23.—Harry Osgood, late of Galt, went to Cobalt a year ago and returned Saturday to find the police with a warrant from Cobalt waiting his arrival. He is charged with running a "blind pig."

Heavy rain fell down all yesterday. The whole region is flooded, and the Grand River is rising to high water mark.

FOOLED THE CITY.

One of the Hoaxes Perpetrated by Theodore Hook.

In the early part of the nineteenth century great preparations were made in England to receive a Spanish ambassador who was expected to arrive at Southampton. A mischievous idea came into the head of Theodore Hook (born 1788, died 1841), novelist and journalist and above all contriver of that diversion known as the hoax. The English fleet was lying off Southampton. Hook, then a young man, knew many of the younger officers. He formed his scheme, and one morning a launch set out from the fleet and drew up at the quay.

In this launch was he who purported to be the Spanish ambassador in almost royal robes, arrived two days before the expected time. The mayor of Southampton, who was to receive the Spanish envoy, was greatly flustered. It was all so sudden. He did the best he could. Several companies of soldiers, some on foot, some mounted, were called out. The bells were rung. The ambassador, accompanied by a number of young officers of the fleet, was escorted with much pomp to the mayor's palace. There was a banquet and speechmaking, one of the young officers acting as interpreter for the ambassador.

After it was over and the Spanish envoy was supposed to be on his way to London the true ambassador arrived. There was but a sorry reception for him. The other ambassador, who was Theodore Hook, having perpetrated the greatest hoax ever known on a mayor and a city, had exhausted the hospitality of the town. The scandal was so great, the mayor and the people of Southampton had been so outrageously cold, that to make any stir about the affair would only cause them to be laughed at all the more. With the exception of the dismissal of some of the naval officers who had taken part in it little was done, and the affair was allowed to blow over.—Indianapolis News.

MASTERING A LION.

Exciting Experience of a Famous Animal Trainer.

"Show a lion that you are his master and he will be submissive; once permit him to get the notion that you fear him and his antipathy will increase," said Frank C. Bostock, the famous animal trainer.

In illustration of the lengths to which owners of wild beasts will go in order to retain control of them Bostock told the following story:

"Some years ago when we were at the Hippodrome, in Paris, I decided as a special attraction to go into the arena with Wallace, a huge African lion that all our trainers had despaired of. The house was crowded. We placed the lion in a cage sixteen feet square, and this was put inside a twenty foot ring. Two assistants were stationed in the outer ring in case of accident. I had scarcely got inside when the beast leaped at me. It bit right through my left hand and with one blow ripped the flesh off my back. 'Clear out!' I shouted to the two men in the outer ring. 'I am going to open the doors and let him into the big arena.'

"I was as furious as the lion. My pride as a trainer was wounded deeper than my back. I flung open the doors, and the lion sprang out. The blood was pouring from my wounds, but in the excitement of the moment I felt no pain—only a mad desire to be master. I picked up a 'property' chair, and when the beast came again I struck it full across the muzzle; then, seizing my whip, I actually became the aggressor.

"The audience was in something like a panic, and loud cries of 'Enough, enough!' were raised. But I hadn't finished. In ten minutes I had subjugated Wallace to such an extent that he cowered like a dog. I got out of the cage and just fainted away. From that day no one attempted to teach Wallace."—Pearson's Weekly.

The Good Dinner.

The successful housekeeper was planning a dinner for a few of her husband's friends.

"I must have apple pie and cheese for dessert," she remarked without a flicker of indecision.

"But I should think you would want something more dainty this time of year," suggested the woman who always worried herself sick over a company dinner, "an ice or a frozen pudding."

"Oh, but apple pie is my husband's favorite dish! When he has company I always serve what he likes best, then he thinks his guests have had such a good dinner, and everybody is happy. At least my husband and I are happy, and if the guests aren't no one is the wiser."—New York Press.

Bible Eating.

I am told by a lady resident that in the Hampshire parish in which I am writing there is living at the present time a good woman who once ate a New Testament, day by day and leaf by leaf, between two slices of bread and butter, as a remedy for fits. This was treating the Bible as a fetich with a vengeance.—London Notes and Queries.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

BLAMES GOVERNMENT

Dr. Daniels Charges It With the Wreck of the Hestia.

He Criticizes the Department of Marine For Allowing the Gas Buoy to Go Unlighted For So Long—Mr. Brodeur Says Weather Was Too Bad to Fix It—Estimates Brought Down—Dr. Barr's Death.

House of Commons,
Ottawa, Nov. 23.

The hill of uncertainty over the question of a Canadian navy has hung over the House since its opening and as a result there has been an indecision in the debates. Added to this last week a pall was cast over both Houses by the sudden death of Dr. John Barr, Conservative member for Dufferin, which put a damper on party wranglers.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, however, found an opportunity for his time-honored assault on the estimates a little function which he employs as a sort of preliminary canter to his grand onslaught on the budget later in the session.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Daniels charged the Department of Marine with negligence in keeping its buoys in condition and therby causing the wreck of the liner Hestia.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur said that for some months the weather was so stormy that they could not get near the buoy to relight it, and that when they found that it required repairs it took some months more to put it in order again.

The Minister further said it was not customary for mariners in any part of the world to rely entirely on lights, as it was impossible to keep them always in order. Official warning had been given that light gas buoys were not to be entirely depended upon. No charges against the Department had been made by the Donaldson Company or its agents in Montreal. If the vessel had followed the proper course or taken into consideration the error of compass there would have been no error and no loss of life. If, however, it was found that officers of the Department had been negligent, he would take severe action.

Hon. Mr. Fielding laid on the table of the House of Commons Thursday afternoon the main estimates of expenditures for the year which will close March 31, 1911, or, in other words, the 1910-11 fiscal period. These call for a total expenditure, exclusive of any supplementary estimates which may be brought down, of $127,670,993. Of this, $91,891,578 will be chargeable to consolidated fund and income, an increase of $10,752,940 over the current fiscal year. The remainder, $35,779,415, will be charged to capital expenditure an increase of $5,294,675.

The capital expenditure will include the large sum of $31,981,415 for railways and canals, of which $27,000,000 is for the National Transcontinental Railway, an increase of $7,000,000 over the current year.

The total amount to be voted for Canada's naval service will be $3,676,500. For the navy proper, the vote will be an even three million dollars, the expenditure to include "the purchase, construction and maintenance of ships, the maintenance and upkeep of dockyards at Esquimault and Halifax, and the establishment and maintenance of training schools."

Other items included in the naval vote are $320,000 for hydrographic surveys, including a survey of the Hudson Bay, $281,580 for the fisheries protection service, and $75,000 to provide for the construction of a steamer for surveying the Gulf and River St. Lawrence.

They had a busy session Friday and got through a considerable portion of the civil service estimates. The sitting was comparatively quiet, the only feature being a discussion over the appearance of the union label on The Labor Gazette, although this publication is printed at the Government's printing bureau, an open shop.

E. N. Lewis, West Huron, introduced a bill respecting injuries to persons due to motor vehicles, which he said was necessary, as highway assaults by vehicles, not known at the time the criminal code was drawn up, were far too common and required special legislation.

Mr. Sinclair of Guysboro introduced a bill to amend the Canada Shipping Act so that ships purchased abroad and inspected should be liable to inspection again in Canada.

A new bill by Hon. Mr. Fisher seeks to include alfalfa in the Seed Crain Control Act.

Hon. Mr. Graham explained that by the terms of his bill to authorize the Government to lease lines of railway connecting the Government railways, no lease would become operative until ratified by act of Parliament.

Major Sharp's bill to amend the Bank Act provides that all stocks on which no dividends have been claimed for upwards of six years shall be transferred to the Government, as trustees.

The death sentence of John Dillon calls attention to previous executions in Montreal. Since 1827 there have been 38 sentences, including 12 executed for the '38 rebellion. Of the 38, only six have been commuted, the first one being in 1898. Only one woman has been executed in the past 82 years.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 20 were 2375 cattle, 2250 sheep and lambs, 2500 hogs and 475 calves. Offerings this morning consisted of 1575 cattle, 1400 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 250 calves. The feature to-day was the stronger undertone for cattle, and prices show a further advance of 12½c to 25c, attributed to the colder weather, and the surplus stock of the past two or three weeks has been all cleaned up. Buyers showed a disposition to operate more freely. The supply of really choice steers was somewhat limited, at 5⅛c to 5¼c per lb. Good steers sold at 4¾c to 5c; fair at 4¾c to 4½c; medium at 3¾c to 4c; common at 3c to 3½c, and good bulls at 3½c to 4c per lb. Supplies of canners' stock were much smaller than usual, and prices firmer, at 2¾c for bulls and at 1¾c for cows per lb. The market for sheep and lambs was also stronger, and prices are fully ¼c per lb. higher than a week ago. Supplies were fair, for which the demand was good from local buyers, who are still putting them away for winter requirements. Straight lots of lambs sold at 5¾c to 6c; mixed lots of lambs and sheep at 5¼c to 5½c, and sheep at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. There continues to be a good demand for calves, of which supplies are none too plentiful, and prices rule firm at from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

Owing to the more liberal supplies of hogs coming forward of late, prices have a lower tendency, as packers are fairly supplied for the present. The demand was only fair, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ending Nov. 20 were 3295 cattle for export account, and 1800 cattle, 2632 sheep and lambs, 1340 hogs and 170 calves for local consumption, while the offerings on the market this morning amounted to 1000 cattle, 1000 sheep, 1300 lambs, 450 hogs and 60 calves.

Bell Company Makes Offer.

Brockville, Nov. 23.—The Rural Telephone Federation of Leeds and Grenville has a fight on with the Bell Telephone Co. The federation is made up of the different rural lines of the counties, with a central switchboard connecting all in the village of Athens. The Plum Hollow line runs into Athens, and is a competition of the Bell there. The Bell recently discontinued connection with certain of the companies because of their affiliation with Plum Hollow. It is understood the Bell has agreed to resume connections providing the Plum Hollow Co. does not increase the number of its subscribers in Athens. This proposition will be submitted to the shareholders for ratification; also an offer from the Bell to purchase the entire service of the rural in that village.

MUST OWN STEAMERS.

All-Red Line to Australia Must Be State-Owned, Says Mr. Thomas.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—"I may, however, add that the representative of Australia would be instructed to urge that the steamers to be employed in the service should be owned and controlled by the several Governments concerned. The main object of the enterprise being to knit more closely ttered portions of the Empire, we are convinced that only by Government ownership can this object be attended with that maximum advantage to our respective countries."

This important declaration upon the policy of Government ownership is contained in a letter addressed by Hon. Mr. Thomas, Postmaster-General of Australia, to Dr. R. M. Coulter, who was sent to Australia and New Zealand and Great Britain by the Canadian Government early this year, to promote negotiations regarding the all-red steamship route project.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier laid on the table of the House yesterday the report of Dr. Coulter. While New Zealand agrees to name a delegate to wait on the Imperial authorities, and urge them to take such steps as will lead to the inauguration of the proposed service, nothing of a definite nature was accomplished insofar as Australia was concerned. A promise was given by Premier Fisher's Government, which has since gone out of power, that in the event of either Great Britain or Canada calling a further conference, a delegate from Australia would be named. Australia refused, however, to commit itself to any share of the cost, on the ground that the Commonwealth could not do anything until the expiration of the limitation of its expenditure fixed by the constitution.

RAGS WERE BURNING.

Firemen Found Bundle That May Have Started Fire.

Barrie, Nov. 23.—The inquest into the Guthrie fires of last week resumed yesterday. While the firemen had been at the residence of S. J. Guthrie they were called to the Music Hall block, which was gutted. The Music Hall was occupied by Guthrie. Evidence given at the inquest Friday revealed that insurance had been placed on the Music Hall that same afternoon and that during the day arrangements had been made for the removal of trunks from the Guthrie residence. Mrs. Guthrie testified that these trunks were the property of a guest, a Miss Meeks, whose identity is somewhat of a mystery.

Yesterday morning Jessie Montgomery, adopted daughter of the Guthries, was closely examined as to her acquaintance with the mysterious "Miss Meeks," who Mrs. Guthrie had stated on Friday accompanied her to Allandale, when she made arrangements for the shipment of Miss Meeks' trunks to Elmvale. Miss Montgomery said she did not know her in Peterboro, and although she had slept in the same room with Clara Guthrie and Miss Meeks for one week, some three weeks ago, she knew her but slightly. After examining the trunks, which had been seized by the police, she said they might be Clara Guthrie's, but she was not sure.

Two firemen testified to finding burning rags and a strong odor of kerosene.

Guilty of Bigamy.

Brantford, Nov. 23.—John Curley, a well-to-do resident of the Indian Reserve, pleaded guilty in the Police Court here yesterday of bigamy.

In view of the fact that his second wife lived with him for some time without complaining until domestic troubles arose, sentence was suspended on Curley. His wife was the complainant.

H. Lamb and F. Cunningham, street railway employes, were charged here yesterday under a section of the criminal code with allowing their car to stop on the T. H. & B. Railway crossing on Market street. Both were discharged and prosecuted by the company. Sentence was suspended, but they were warned severely.

Spanelli Must Hang.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The Court of Appeal yesterday dismissed the motion of A. R. Hassard for an order directing the trial judge, Mr. Justice Riddell, to grant a stated case for Samuel Spanelli, under sentence to die at North Bay on Friday of this week for the murder of a Chinaman at Haileybury.

In handing down judgment, Chief Justice Moss said he could see no ground whatever for saying that there was any miscarriage at the trial, and that was all the court had to deal with.

Wright Aeroplane Co. Incorporated.

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 23.—Capitalized at $1,000,000, the Wright Aeroplane Co. of New York was incorporated yesterday. The directors are: Wilbur Wright, Orville Wright, of Dayton, Ohio; George A. Stevens, Henry S. Hooker and Alpheus F. Barnes, New York.

Grain Inspection.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—Trade and commerce reports show the inspection of 51,246,350 bushels at Winnipeg to Nov. 7, and of this 40,516,350 bushels were wheat. To the same date lake port shipments amounted to 29,806,989 bushels. This is about 10,000,000 bushels ahead of last year.

$40.000 in Mexican Rubber Scheme.

What is Known the Actions and Methods of Gottfried N. Hamann.

(From Ottawa Citizen)

That Gottfried N. Hamann is one of the slickest financiers with whom it has ever been their lot to come in contact is the opinion of many members of the Holiness movement who bought stock in the Pan-American Rubbers Plantation company and that had it not been for the opposition of Bishop Horner to the scheme they would have been out to a conderably greater extent is the statement of those intimately connected with the deal. Hamonn's whereabouts are at present unknown and any information on this point will be gladly received by those who are most interested.

According to the story told, Hamann met Rev. A. McIntosh, the Holiness movement minister in charge of the Montreal circuit, in that city last winter. He cultivated his acquaintance and became very intimate with Mr. McIntosh, always representing himself as a wealthy man and one who was greatly interested in church work. He always seemed to have lots of money, and talked at times of big investments he had in rubber plantations in Central America and Mexico. When Mr. Mc Intosh was transported to the Ottawa circuit, Hamann followed and established himself in Ottawa. The talks about the interest in Mexico became of frequent occurence and finally Hamann proposed the formation of a company to exploit a big property he claimed to own there. In this company members of the Holiness movement only were to be admitted Bishop Horner stating that others must be eliminated as tobacco and other things might be grown on the land by outsiders to which he objected. Hamann agreed to this condition at the start, but the agreement was not carried out to the full as later facts will show.

As a beginning Rev. Mr. McIntosh was taken down to Mexico and Central America by Hamann and shown over several uncultivated tracks of land, which Hamann said he owned, and produced papers which seemed to prove his statements. Rev. Mr. McIntosh returned to Ottawa full of the beauties of the Climate and the promise of big returns on an investment which Hamann said could be made. A company was then formed, with Hamann as general manager and tresurer and ex-Judge George F. Gould of Portland, Me., president. Hamann was to have full control of all the money collected. The sale of stock was then commenced Hamann securing the services of Messrs. John Hamilton and J. P. Dozell of Ottawa to help him dispose of the shares, which were to be in acres, at $165 each. The whole Holiness circuit movement was canvassed, many of the ministers and parishioners investing heavily. Residents of Chesterville, Winchester, Kempville, Carleton place, Stittsville, Ashton and other towns in the district besides the city, took a great numbers of the acres. The sale started in February and promises of a 7 per cent dividend in May were made. The company was to develop the land, and pay at least from ten to twenty-five per cent per year for the use of it for seven years, after which it was to be given over to the owners with a bonus of 100 per cent. on their investment. They were to have the unrestricted use of it or the company guaranteed to take it from them at $1,500 per acre. Needless to say with the recommendations of a preacher of the gospel to back him up, Hamann made hay while the sun shone. The money flowed in to him like water. One poor farmer in the neighborhood of Chesterville is understood to have mortgaged his farm to the limit giving the proceeds $2,400, to Hamann. To-day he is working as a day laborer where before he had a pretty little farm yielding excellent crops. Numerous instances of similar cases could be cited without going very far out of the city.

Hamann spent the spring in Ottawa and his actions while here were those of a man of wealth. He lived in the best of style at a leading hotel, drove a high power automobile, and took the families of his assistants around and entertained them in princely manner. He talked of endowing the Holiness movement college on Bank street handsomely and of giving a huge sum to carry on the work of the movement.

Dezell, and Hamilton, who accepted Hamann as genuine on the recommendation of Mr. McIntosh and sold a great deal of stock on the Glebe, ceased to be connected with the deal when in June they found that no satisfaction could be obtained regarding the promised dividend to be paid in May. Hamann had by this time left the city and despite many efforts to locate him could not be found. Ex Judge Gould, who had been merely acting as president when the incorporation took place at Portland, also had severed his connection with the company and the offices, which were nominally at 85 Exchange street, Portland, Me., were closed. Inquiries elicited, the information that Hamann was sick and again that he was in the south and no dividends would be paid until his return So far as can be found, he has not returned and nothing can be learned as to his whereabouts or where the money has disappeared to.

Last June the conference of the Holiness movement with the consent of Bishop Horner, forbade the members of the church to have anything more to do with the project. Bishop Horner who is out of the city to-day is understood to have opposed the scheme from the first but he was overruled by a majority.

At one time in the negotiations Hamann talked of establishing a colony of the Holiness movement in Mexico on the plantation but when the money began to come in he let up on this line of argument and contented himself with the business in hand that of getting all he could.

The public were not satisfied, and an inquest was ordered by Coronor Bacon. After several sittings the inquest was aejourned to November 22 and the stomach of Mrs. McLaughlin was sent to Toronto for analysis. Dectectives Seek Kemptville Man

James Maley is Suspected of Having Stolen Package of Bills From Express Co. in West

James Maley of Kemptville, who recently returned from Stransburg, Sask., is wanted by the local bailiff and detectives from Montreal and Winnipeg respectively. The charge is robbing the C. P. R. station at Stransburg, near Saskatoon, where a parcel containing $550, the property of the Dominion Express Company, disappeared. Maley is a son of respectable parents, was born and educated at Kemptville, and taught school until a few months ago, when he went West. He disappeared about the same time as the money at Stransburg and suspicion was directed toward him particularly as he has been spending money very freely since.

Another old and highly respected resident of this place was called to her reward on November 9th, in the person of Mrs. Sarah Locey, daughter of the late Thomas Harris, and widow of the late Thomas Locey, who predeceased her some forty years ago. The late Mrs. Locey was born in Stepingly, Betfordshire, England, in 1831, and came with her parents in 1837 to this place, where she has since reside.d She was 78 years of age. She had been in failing health for some time, but bore her suffering with Christian fortitude and resignation. She was a good and affectionate mother and a kind neighbor and will be much missed by her sorrowing family and many friends. She leaves to mourn her loss one son, Geo. E. Locey, of Osnabruck Centre; and four daughters, Mrs. Wm. Alguire, of Dauphin, Man.; Mrs. Allan McGill, of Dixon; Mrs. Nelson Cooke, of Lunenburg, who was constant in her attendance on her mother; and Miss Sarah Anne Locey, the invalid daughter, who still resides at her home, All of the family were present at the funeral, except Mrs. Wilham Alguire. The funeral which was held on Thuesday afternoon to Lunenburg Methodist Church, was largely attended. The Rev. Mr. Bridgetts of Newington preached a very appropriate sermon, taking for his text the first verse 7th chapter of Ecclesiastics. "A good name is better than precious ointment; and the day of death than the day of one's birth." The pall-bearers were Messrs. Wm. Hawn, Thos Shaver, Jacob Paupst, E. Runnions Wm. McLean, Alvin Eamon. We all join in extending our sympathy to the bereaved family.

A GREAT CENTRAL SUN

Madler's Theory Is That It Is the Star Alcyone.

THE CENTER OF GRAVITY.

According to the Astronomer, the Principal Star of the Pleiades Is the Body Around Which All Created Matter Within Our Ken Revolves.

It has been the dream of all the romantic astronomers since the time of Copernicus to prove the existence of a central sun, says Lawrence Hodges, writing in the New York Tribune. By this is meant a heavenly body as much larger than the sun as the sun itself is larger than the earth, round which the sun, with all its planets, must revolve. It has been proved that the sun and all its satellites are rushing forward through space with enormous velocity, but whether the motion was in a straight line or a circular path was not proved for some time.

But even if it was proved a curved path and that there probably existed a central sun that transcended the earth's lord in size, why couldn't we see it? The only answers are that it would have to be nonluminous or else so far away that the light hadn't reached us yet. But if all the stars, including our sun, were children of this big sun, just as the earth is the child of the sun and the moon of the earth, they would have had to have been flung off from the big sun with a greater velocity than that of light in order for the big sun not to be visible and still be luminous; also the big sun would have to be luminous if any of its children were, for that is the invariable law of the heavens. So the problem simmered down to finding a star or group of stars that would take the place of the central sun.

The motion of the solar system having been settled as to fact, quantity and direction, astronomers set about to find the center of gravity of the whole astral system, for there, if anywhere, the central sun was to be found. An astronomer named Madler thought he had found the star to satisfy the necessary conditions in the constellation known as Taurus, or the Bull. A closer search proved the special star under examination to be lacking in some of the conditions, so this one was left and the search begun anew. This same astronomer persisted in his search with a wonderful faith in his theory and at last found a star fulfilling in the most wonderful and complete manner the necessary conditions. Every one is familiar with the beautiful little cluster known as the Pleiades, or seven stars. The telescope, however, shows fourteen stars clustered about the beautiful and brilliant star Alcyone, which is the optical center of this group.

The proper motions of all these have been determined with great exactness. They are all in the same direction and are all nearly equal to each other, and, what is still more important, the mean of their proper motions differs from that of the central star, Alcyone, by only one-thousandth of a second of arc in right ascension and by only two-thousandths of a second in declination. Here, then, is found a magnificent group of suns either actually allied together and sweeping together through space or else composing a cluster so situated as to be affected by the same apparent motion produced by the sun's progression through the celestial regions.

But an extension of the limits of research round Alcyone exhibits also the wonderful truth that out of 110 stars being within 15 degrees of this center there are sixty moving south—that is, in the same direction—in full accordance with the hypothesis that Alcyone is the center, forty-nine showing practically no motion, while only one single individual that moves at all contrary to the computed motion. Thus was Madler's profound speculation justified. Furthermore, assuming Alcyone as the grand center of the millions of stars composing our astral system and the direction of the sun's motion to be as before mentioned, Madler investigated the consequent movements of all the stars in every quarter of the heavens.

Just where the swiftest motions should be found in accordance with this assumption there they actually exist, this either demonstrating the truth of the theory or else showing a well nigh impossible series of coincidences. Therefore the conclusion given out by Madler is that Alycone, the principal star of the Pleiades, now occupies the center of gravity and is at present the great central sun about which the universe of stars and all created matter within our ken is revolving, each entity in its own special path.

Cordwood Counsel Fee.

THE HUDSON RIVER.

It Has Been Known by at Least Twenty Different Names.

In the course of the past 400 years the Hudson has been known by at least twenty different names, and even today—in New York, at any rate—it is indifferently referred to both as the Hudson and the North river.

While Henry Hudson is universally acclaimed as the discoverer of the noble river which bears his name, it is well known that nearly a century before Hudson's successful exploration John da Verrazano, a Florentine, entered the mouth of the Hudson and reported that he had passed up the river about a league in a boat, not venturing to sail his vessel, the Dauphine, up a river with which he was unfamiliar. A sudden squall impelled him to return to his ship. Verrazano called the Hudson "the river of steep hills." This was in 1524. Some years later Verrazano's brother made a map of the region, and he named the mouth of the Hudson "San Germano."

In 1525 a Spaniard named Gomez, who came to America on an exploring trip, made a chart upon which he designated the Hudson as "San Antonio."

When some eighty years later Henry Hudson in his efforts to reach the East Indian possessions of the Dutch East India company by a northwestern route accidentally ran into the Hudson he promptly dubbed it the "Manhattes," from the name of the Indians who dwelt at its mouth.

Hudson sailed slowly up the river as far as Albany, and his experiences with the Indians and his observations of the surrounding country were so gratifying that he returned home with glowing reports of the new found country.

The Dutch at once realized that great commercial advantage might be gained in the new territory, and various companies were organized to colonize and exploit it.

In 1616 a charter was granted to the New Netherlands company, and the river was there referred to as "De Riviere van der Vorst Mauritius" in honor of Prince Maurice of Orange.

In various other charters granted at this time and public documents in which the river was mentioned it was spoken of as the "Groote Riviere," the "Noordt river," the "River of the Manhattans" and the "Rio de Montague."

In addition to these names, the Indians had a number of others for it, among which may be mentioned "Sanatatea," "Shawnatawty," "Cahohatatea" and "Cohongorontas."

As late as 1754 the river was referred to by a French writer as the "River Orange."

When the English took possession of New Netherlands they persistently called the river "Hudson's river," and despite the many other names by which it was known that name finally "stuck," although many of the early colonists spoke of it as the North river in contradistinction to the Delaware river, which was commonly known as the South river.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Story of Stevenson.

After one of Dumas' plays which he saw presented in Paris and in which a man employs an unworthy stratagem against a woman Robert Louis Stevenson wrote:

"I came forth from that performance in a breathing heat of indignation. On the way down the Francais stairs I trod on an old gentleman's toes, whereupon, with that suavity which so well becomes me, I turned about to apologize and on the instant, repenting me of that intention, stopped the apology midway and added something in French to this effect: 'No. You are one of the persons who have been applauding that piece. I retract my apology.'

"Said the old Frenchman, laying his hand on my arm and with a smile that was truly heavenly in temperance, irony, good nature and knowledge of the world, 'Ah, monsieur, vous etes bien jeune' (Ah, sir, you are very young)."

Sickness and Superstition.

For the cure of epilepsy, or the falling sickness, numerous were the charms that were invoked long ago. A very common remedy among the poor people about London and particularly in Essex was to cut the tip of a black cat's tail in order to procure three drops of blood, which were to be taken in a spoonful of milk and repeated three days successively. If the patient was informed of the composition it lost its efficacy. The patients also were to creep head foremost down some three pairs of stairs three times a day for three successive days. —London Answers.

For 12 hours the 17 of them battled until they had covered the sixty miles to Copper Harbor. They reached the first house about two o'clock in the morning. A man put his head out of an upstairs window. They told him they were shipwrecked and half perished.
