Former Bush Glen Boy Killed in Airplane Crash

The following account of the death of R. C. Hamilton of Saskatoon, taken from the Saskatoon Daily Star of May 4th, refers to a young man well known out by Grantley and Bush Glen where his tather Ira Hrmilton formerly lived. About six years ago the family moved west.

R. C. Hamilton, age 24, mechanic for McClelland and Lobb aviators, was killed and Lieut. Lobb, pilot, was seriously injured shortly before six o'clock last evening when a Curtiss biplane in which the two men were making a test fiight crashed to the ground 150 yards north of the aerodrome.

The machine was up 1,500 feet. Lobb went into a spinning nose dive from which the plane was never righted. It plunged to the earth, striking at a slight angle, bounced back eight feet aud crumpled up.

The engine, forced back by the terrific impact, crashed upon Hamilton, whose body was literally driven into the machinery. It required ten minutes to extricate the mechanic from the debris, and in the end an axe was employed to free him. He was still alive when laid on the ground, but breathed only a few moments, expiring before he could be lifted into an ambulance.

There were only six or eight persons at the hangar when the crash occurred. They immediately rushed to the machine and extricated Lobb who was taken in a car to St. Paul's hospital.

Mechanic Hamilton was still alive for twenty minutes after the crash. His pulse barely fluttered but before an ambulance could reach him life was extinct.

The ill-fated mechanic joined McClelland and Lobb when the 1920 flying season opened. On the recent visit to the city of Lieut. Col. Scott, chief of the Canadian Board, Hamilton passed all technical tests and necessary examinations with honors and was issued a government certificate.

Hamilton enlisted in the Royal Air Force in Toronto in 1917 and served with the flying corps in Texas for five months, being attached to the school aerial gunnery. At Beamsville, Ontario, he was with Aerial Fighting Squadron No. 2 and was discharged from the R. A. F. in January 1919. In the force he ranked as one of the most expert mechanics, according to J. C. Dick, of 117 Twenty-Ninth Street West, who served beside Hamilton from enlistment to demobilization. Dick was almost overcome when told of his friend's death.

Before enlisting for active service, Hamilton was employed by the Rumely Company here and rejoined that firm on his discharge from the army. G. W. MacDonald, manager of the Rumely Co., last night said Hamilton was one of the cleverest mechanics he had ever employed.

Weekly Papers Raising Rates

At the semi-annual meeting last week of the publishers of weekly papers with representatives present from all the papers in the Midland Press Association including those as far east as Tweed, it was unanimously decided, owing to the rising cost of publishing weekly papers, that they would during the month of July raise their subscription rates to $2.00 per year.

The Record has no intention of raising the rate until it is utterly impossible to continue without. The very first necessity to keep the price at a dollar fifty is that all subscriptions must be paid in advance. We therefore now ask every one who is in arrears to The Record to kindly settle within the next thirty days at the latest. The address label on your paper shows the date from which you owe. After thirty days the collection will be made through the bank as the simplest and most businesslike method of having this matter attended to.

Morewood Presbyterians Call Pastor

In session at Morrisburg the Brockville Presbytery sustained the call extended to Rev M. N. Omond at present in charge of Y. M. C. A. work at Queen's University, Kingston. The presbytery also sustained a call to Rev. Mr. Jobb, of New Brunswick, by the Morewood congregation. An effort had been made without success to unite the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations at Heckston, the creeds failing to agree upon a basis of union and the former charge which was without a minister will now seek one.

KERR'S RIDGE

The Sunshine Band was held in St. Andrew's church, Hallville, Saturday May 22nd, attendance good.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Workman and family visited at Mr. W. J. Christie's on Sunday.

Quite a number of Kerr's Ridge folks made a trip to the Rideau Saturday evening and were very fortunate in catching fish.

Miss Prudie Ouderkirk of Crysler and Miss Sadie McRae of Finch, were visiting relatives on the Ridge last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Kay Dillon and Howard Christie motored to Kemptville Saturday evening and were accompanied home by Mr. Dillon's parents.

Misses Georgia and Lila Blain spent the week-end the sguest of their parents.

Miss Essie Ouderkirk spent Sunday evening with Miss Ada Bell Hoy.

Miss Mary Blain called at Mr. Tom Kerr's on Saturday.

Unusual Circumstances

A remarkable incident happened at St. Joseph's covent in Fort William recently. One of the sisters who for the past twelve months has been unable to walk suffering from a tubercular knee, and who was told by several doctors that it would be absolutely impossible for her to walk again, fell from a chair in trying to get to a wheel chair that was close by and in falling she regained her strength. The strange thing was she started to walk: in fact ran around the convent, and she is now walking, it is said, as if she had never been sick.

Large Whisky Order

The Wiser distillery at Prescott, notwithstanding the dry wave is still a busy place. The concern has just received an order for 40,000 cases of rye whiskey or in other words 480,000 quarts. Before starting the manufacture of the whiskey, the Wisers are said to have compelled the purchasers to pay down $300,000 which they did. The alcohol is already on hand and all that will be required will be a little mixing before the whiskey is ready for shipment. The cases for the shipment cost $16,000. The Wisers also have an order for several thousand gallons of alcohol for export to England.

The Manufacture of Clover Silage

(Experimental Farms Note)

We are but beginning to appreciate the value of clover silage in modern stock feeding. When properly made clover silage is an excellent feed for nearly all classes of live stock. Aside from its higher protein content, it has an advantage over corn silage in point of lower cost of production. The yields of clover compare favourably with those of corn when the land has been equally well prepared.

Seldom are fields seeded down to a purely clover mixture. Usually some of the standard grasses are added. On the Agassiz Farm we use a mixture containing red, alsike and white Dutch clover, also Italian rye and orchard grass. This makes good silage but the greater the percentage of clover in the mixture the higher the feeding value. and the easier it is to make a silage of good quality. The grasses are inclined to be more wiry, stiff and dry, thus requiring more weight to press the mass firmly into the silo to exclude the air.

The most common practice is to cut the clover for the silo when in full bloom that is, when right for hay making. Care must be taken not to leave the harvesting period too late. It is better to err on the early side rather than postpone the cutting too long. While the plants are young the stalks and leaves are more tender and break up more easily. There is also the advantage of obtaining an earlier second crop. Only as much should be cut at one time as may be placed in the silo during the day. The mower should be started early in the morning while the dew is on and followed at once by the rake. The clover should not be left to wilt between cutting and siloing. If severe wilting does take place better results are obtained by adding water. The clover ought to feel wet as it drops in the silo. Frequently attempts are made to make silage out of clover after it is spoiled for hay. This is a poor policy. Partly spoiled clover makes very inferior silage as it loses its colour and likely decay has begun.

Clover silage has been made with some degree of success by placing in the silo without cutting. This should not be done it it can be avoided. Not only is there less liability of the clover spoiling when cut into short lengths but it can be placed in the silo and also removed with much greater ease. The knives on the cutter must be kept sharp and set to cut approximately half inch lengths. It is a good plan, where possible when siloing clover, to put a layer of corn on top to weight down the mass below and secure a more thorough packing and thereby also a better quality of silage.

Shook Branches and got Fish

Newton, N. J., May 18—Wm. Slacker, famous from end to end of the Kittanany Mountains as the best guide in Sussex county, walked into the office of Lion's Head Inn on Dove Island today and lowered to the floor a bushel basket filled to overflowing with the handsomest catch of perch ever seen in those parts.

"Didn't have no line: didn't have no bait; didn't have no nawthin'," said Mr. Slacker.

"I was just rowin' around Swartswood Lake before breakfast, when I comed up again' them willows is bending right over into the water, and I'll be doggoned if every branch wasn't crowded with perch.

"I hurried back to camp for this basket, shook the branches, and here we be. I could have filled twenty baskets".

Sowing Garden Beans

(Experimental Farm Note)

Beans are an important truck crop and practically every farmer should grow a patch either for sale or for home consumption, according to his location. Being a leguminous plant, this vegetable stores in the soil nitrogen gathered from the air, and the cultural methods generally given to it leave the ground in splendid shape for the following crop. The consumer also has great advantages in buying them as they are a delicacy, they may easily be canned and considered a very healthful food indeed.

One or more varieties? To be profitable and palatable garden beans should be eaten when the pods are well grown but still green, and this period only lasts during about a week of the plant's life. This is why a succession of sowings is generally made by persons who desire to have this fine vegetable on their table for any length of time. It was suggested that a number of varieties of different seasons, put in the same day, might do as well, and this prompted an experiment at Cap Rouge.

The Cap Rouge experiment.—The object was to compare the yield of green pods from one variety, sown at four different intervals of about a week, with that of four varieties of different seasons the same day. The results of five years showed that Round Pod Kidney Wax, sown at four different intervals, yielded at the rate of 3139 quarts of green pods per acre, whilst Round Kidney Wax, Stringless Green Pod, Early Red Valentine, Refugee, sown the same day, yielded at the rate of 3298 quarts per acre.

One variety generally enough.—The difference between the two methods was only around five per cent, which is practically negligible, and it seems that either will about give the same results. Persons who would rather make only one sowing, and be done with it, will have, of course, to choose varieties of different seasons, whilst others who prefer to sow at intervals of a week or ten days, should take an early variety, such as Round Pod Kidney Wax or Pencil Pod Wax, so as to get the first edible pods as soon as possible.

Save your own seed—Probably the latter way is preferable as ripe beans can be gathered from strong healthy plants each year for the next, which not only means a saving of money, but, which is quite important, one is this sure of getting seed of good vitality and of the right strain.

Would Like Another 500 Per

The members of the House of Commons at Ottawa are endeavoring to put over the same trick that Premier Drury turned down at Toronto, that is, an increase in the indemnity. Private members at Ottawa since the election in December 1917 will have each received ten thousand dollars with the end of the present session. They are seeking to add another five hundred per session.

Take Warning in Time

It should hardly be necessary to warn autoists that there is a speed limit in Chesterville for the purpose of protecting the lives of people who while walking use the street crossings. Pedestrians have the right-of-way on crossings and the autoist must keep clear of causing trouble. Last Sunday morning while on her way to church a lady was so nearly struck on the crossing opposite Flynn's, by a car, that strong men who saw it gasped at the narrow escape.

Noted Holstein Cow Dies of Milk Fever

"Lowbanks Prilly Korndyke", one of the best bred Holstein cows in Canada, owned by Mr. K. M. Dalgleish of Kenmore, Ont., and valued in the neighborhood of $6,000, died at Speedwell Hospital Stock Farm, Guelph. The animal was taken to Speedwell about two months ago to undergo a milk test, and while there contracted milk fever. When three years old, this noted cow held the championship record for Canada, having produced 720 pounds of milk in seven days. Although the animal was heavily insured, the loss to its owner will be a severe one.

A One-Sided Question

The beginning of the gardening season marks the beginning of the neighborly disputes over chickens. This is one question to which there are not two sides. The man whose chickens dig up his neighbor's garden is absolutely in the wrong. Accidents will happen, of course, and if your neighbor as a rule keeps his chickens shut up and one slips out and scratches up your favorite bed of sweet peas or radishes, said neighbor deserves forgiveness. But any man who wilfully allows his chickens to run helter-skelter through his neighbor's yards deserves to be gently but firmly requested to leave town.—Strathroy Despatch.

Crop Prospects Good

Seeding throughout this section is completed with the exception of corn which will be almost finished this week. The soil this year has worked up in a most satisfactory manner and it is some time since conditions gave such good promise at this time. Clover has made a wonderful growth during the past week and hay fields give promise of a good yield. The heat of the past few days with the rain of Monday is giving the spring crops a good start with rapid growth. Monday's rain appears to have been only local as it is reported none fell at Crysler.

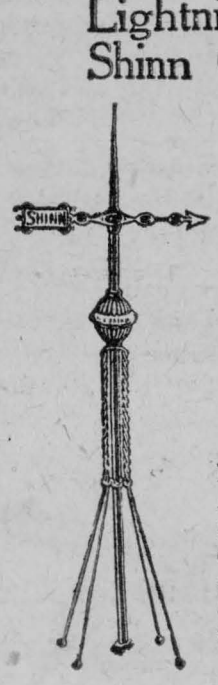
Prevent Lightning Losses

WHEN your buildings are protected with Shinn-Flat Lightning Rods, you may be absolutely sure that they're safe from Lightning damage Shinn-Flat Lightning Rods are the only kind made in the form of a flat cable—which has 36% more conducting surface for electricity than the same amount of material made into a round cable.



Lightning Can't Strike if Shinn Gets There First!

Shinn-Flat prevents the accumulation of electricity in the building, by permitting it to gradually pass from the heavily charged ground and building into the atmosphere above.

Lime Water for the Preservation of Eggs

By experiments carried on for 15 years at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in the use of different preservatives for eggs it has been decided that lime water is the most dependable. Closely following lime water is the so-called "water glass" or sodium silicate. "Both", says Frank T. Shutt, Dominion Chemist, "have proven effective preservatives, but it may be remarked that it is useless to expect that either can entirely arrest that "stale" flavor commonly found in all but fresh eggs.

DON'T DIE ON THIRD

It was several years ago, when the Tigers were playing the team from Cleveland.

Moriarty was on third base.

Around the chalk-lined arena 18,000 persons strained themselves in tense expectancy. The score was a tie. Two men were out. The fate of the game centered in the white-bloused figure that shuttled back and forth near third. Tigers and Naps stood up on their benches, for the decisive moment had come.

Moriarty was at third.

He got there by the ordinary events of the game. At the bat he hit the ball and ran to first. Another player bunted and sacrificed himself to run Moriarty to second. Then a "long fly" advanced him to third. There he stood, alert and active, with the fate of the game in his quick eye, his quicker brain and his running legs. If he failed, he failed not alone, for the team failed with him. If he won, he won not alone but gave the men behind him their chance for "home". In him centered the hopes and fears of thousands upon thousands of spectators who had forgotten to breathe, and so still was the great park that even the breeze seemed forgetful to blow.

Moriarty was at third.

Much as it meant to have advanced that far, nothing had been accomplished by it. Three quarter runs are not marked up on the score boards. Third base never raised a pennant. Third base is not a destination but the last little way station on the road home. It is better not to run at all than to run to third and "die". The 18,000 spectators that kept ominously silent at that moment could be changed to a vortex of cheering hero-worshippers or into an animated groan by the kind of work a man did between third and "home". There is no time for self-congratulation on third. The man on second wants your place—he can get it, but if you get safely "home" no one can take that achievement from you. One way to get off third is to wait for some fellow to bat you off; another way is to get away on your own initiative and according to your own secret plan.

Moriarty was on third.

It is ninety feet from third to home. Sometimes that ninety feet is a leaden mile, sometimes a mere patter of lightninglike steps. If it is a mile to you, you are a failure, and the great circle of spectators groan for your incompetency: if it is but a lightning streak, you are the great man of the baseball day. Moriarty was intent on dwindling that ninety feet instead of lengthening it. How many things converged in the few seconds he stood there? He watched the signals of the Cleveland catcher—he gathered they meant a high ball. A high ball meant that the runner might duck low to the base while the catcher's hands were in the air after the ball. Moriarty knew, too that a high ball required that the pitcher "wind up" when they don't intend to throw the ball. More than that, he knew the pitcher in the box was left-handed and could not keep his eyes on third when "winding up". That was why Moriarty closely followed all the strange little signals pitcher and catcher were making. There was another consideration, too. Mullin was at bat. Moriarty knew that Mullin had a batting average of something like 250, which means that Mullin hits safely about once in four times at bat. Would the ball about to be thrown be one of the hit or one of the missed? No human calculation could even guess at it. If Mullin missed it, it would be useless for Moriarty to run. If Mullin hit, there were still chances of his being put out at first, making Moriarty's run wholly uncounted and ending the inning. There was only one thing to do—make home between the time the pitcher "wound up" his arm past all recall and the time the ball landed in the catcher's glove—make home in the second of time when Mullin's hit or miss hung in futurity. It was to be a contest in speed between a five-ounce ball delivered with all the force of a superb pitching arm and the 170-pound body of Moriarty. An unequal contest, at that, for the five-ounce ball travels only sixty feet while the runner from third must hurl his body over a distance of ninety feet. All the considerations are in the mind of Moriarty. He builds up his prospective run as an engineer builds a bridge over a torrent, step by step, with infinite pains. Now the Cleveland pitcher is "winding up" his arm—round and round it swings—he poises himself—there is yet a fraction of a second in which he can recall his intended throw—Moriarty is crouched like a tiger to spring. Now! Now!

There is a white streak across the field!

The cloud of dust at the home plate!

The umpire stands with hands extended, palms downward.

A bursting roar of acclaim echoes and re-echoes across the space of the park. Again and again it bursts forth in thrilling electric power. Thirty-six thousand eyes strain toward the man who is slapping the dust from his white uniform.

Moriarty is home.

All the world's a baseball diamond. You are one of the players. Perhaps you have reached first by your own efforts. It may be that the sacrifices of parents or friends have enabled you to reach second. Then on some one's "long fly" into the business world—a "fly" that was not "long" enough to prevent him going out—or some one's fluke on the rules of simple morality and square dealing, you have advanced to third. The opposition against you at third is stronger than at either first or second. At third you are to be reckoned with. Your opponents converge all their attention on you. Pitchers and catchers, coaches and opposing fans, are watching to tip off your plans and frustrate them. From the third you become either a splendid success or a dismal failure.

What are you doing to win the score that life is ready to mark up against your name? Third base has no laurels on which you can rest. What are you doing on third? Are you waiting for someone to "bat you in?" Suppose he misses, his miss is yours, too. If you place all your dependence on some one else, his failure spells yours. What are you doing on third? Waiting for "something to turn up?" Don't! Nothing turns up, but the thumbs of the thousands of men who watch you may turn down, and make you a permanent failure. Moriarty wouldn't have scored had he waited, for Mullin didn't hit the ball—and that run was absolutely necessary to save the game. That run was gained in an unmeasureable fraction of time, but the difference between success and failure is very often measured in seconds Don't die on third!

Moriarty's run was not a foohardy dash. It wasn't a toss-up with luck. It was deliberate mathematical work. Any fool could have led off spectacularly, but only a trained body and an alert mind could have stolen home right under the nose of the catcher whose hands were closing over the ball. Even a game means work. Work itself is a game and has its rules as its sudden openings. So, don't die on third. Bring to third every bit of your honest strength; study conditions; postpone thinking of your luck until you hear the umpire call "safe".

Then you will score all right

The Macartney Machine Milker Is Fool Proof

There is no complicated machinery to the Macartney Machine Milker, in fact it is a marvel of simplicity. It only needs ordinary care and it will not get out of order.

The Cow's Adopted Child

Besides being so simple, the Macartney Milker is perfectly natural in operation, there is nothing about it to irritate the cow, in fact its use is greatly preferable to the old method. Hand milking at best is only poor imitation of the calf's way of taking the milk. The Macartney Machine milks exactly as the calf sucks—that's why it is called "The Cow's adopted child."

Increase Your Milk Production

More milk per cow is invariably the result where the Macartney Milker is installed It is not a matter of great expense and the Macartney soon pays for ftself for it does the work in half the time and effects a great saving in Labor cost.

Fill in the attached coupon and let us send you full particulars. Get this information anyway for future use and don't buy a milker without investigating the exclusive features of the Macartney.

BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday May 30—1 Samuel 14; 1-13

Golden Text—Be strong and of good courage--Josh. 1:6

Topic:—Jonathan and his Armour-bearer or A Brave Prince.

Saul as King of Israel found plenty of opportunity to prove himself "the man of the hour". The Amonites, a fierce tribe east of the Jordan, began to attack the people of Jabesh-Gilead, who offered to serve them if they would make a covenant. But the only condition on which Nahasb, the King of the Amonites would enter into an agreement was that they might first blind the men of Jabesh-Gilead in the right eye, thus making them unable to fight as the left eye in battle was covered by the shield.

Messengers were hastily sent to Saul to see if assistance would be given in which case they would refuse to submit to such a "reproach". Saul was filled with righteous indignation and cutting in pieces the oxen with which he had been ploughing he sent the pieces around among the Israelites bidding them come to his aid or their oxen would be treated in the same manner. "And the fear of the Lord came on the people and they came out with one consent," 330,000 strong. The Amonites were completely routed "so that two of them were not left together".

This great victory was followed by a national assembly at Gilgal, where amid great rejoicing Saul was publicly proclaimed King. He nobly refused to mar this victory by the execution of those who had opposed his leadership for, he said "to-day the Lord hath wrought salvation in Israel. At this gathering of the people Samuel made his farewell address as Judge urging the Israelites to "fear the Lord and serve Him in truth". Samuel called upon God to show His power by sending thunder and rain, though it was the time of wheat harvest, when rain never fell, the people were terrified when God answered this prayer. God speaks to a sinful world in the same way today reminding us of His wonderful power and majesty and yet like Israel we forget His kindness and many deliverances and "go after vain things which cannot profit nor deliver".

When Saul had reigned two years the campaign against the Philistines began. Three thousand of the men who had defeated the Amonites were retained as a standing army, being stationed in three strongholds, Geba, Mickmash and Bethel, Jonathan' Saul's son, who was in charge of the men at Geba, defeated the Philistines there and Saul immediately summoned all Israel to meet the expected attack of the Philistines, who gathered in vast numbers, with chariots, horsemen and people "as the sand which is on the sea shore in multitude". Now the Israelites had no swords or spears as the Philistines had taken into their own land all the smiths lest the Hebrews should make arms for themselves; so only Saul and Jonathan were armed with swords and spears. Seeing such a great host gathering against them and forgetting to put their trust in Jehovah, who had so often delivered them, the Israelites were afraid and hid in caves, and thickets, among the rocks and in pits, until Saul had only six hundred men left.

Again as in the use of Gideon, God wished to show that "one with Jehovah, is a majority" and Saul's army stands idle while Jonathan with only his armorbearer, a man after his own heart, made the daring dash up the precipice causing terror and panic among the Philistines and inspiring the Isralites with hope and courage. This was not the rash act of an impatient youth but the brave act of a man of faith who believed that "there is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few". A study of Jonathan's life shows him to be one of the most noble characters in history. Unlike the sons of Samuel and Eli he possessed the stirling qualities of self-reverence and self-control and kept himself pure even when in unwholesome surroundings. Looking always to Jehovah for strength he was not afraid to attempt what in his own strength would be impossible. Christianity to-day needs men and women with such faith as Jonathan's; faith which trusting in Jehovah's power attempts by means of the "faithful few" tasks which appear colossal. "When God is your partner make your plans large." "History affords at every turn some impregnable fortress which was the despair of the wise and prudent, but was carried by some enthusiast with a rush." Enthusiasm means "In God" or "God in us" and is the result of faith. This was the great central thought in the teaching of Christ oneness with the father the source of his own power which caused Him to "speak as never man spoke."—In His Name.

Feeding Ducklings

Ordinarily ducklings are more easily raised than chickens. If properly fed and cared for they can be put on the market at about 10 weeks of age weighing from five to seven pounds each. If not forced they will get much of their feed from grass and other succulent plants.

Ducklings do not need feed until about 36 hours after hatching after which they may be fed five times daily on a moist mash of equal parts, by measure, of rolled oats and bread crumbs, with about three per cent grit. After the first week change to three parts, by weight, of bran, one part middlings, one part cornmeal, one part green feed, one-half part meatscraps, and about three per cent. grit. After the ducklings are a week old the grit or sand may be fed in mash or in a hopper, but the common practice is to feed grit in al duck rations. Meatscraps is not usually fed until the ducklings are a week old when about five per cent. is added to the ration and gradually increased to 15 per cent. Gradually increase the proportion of cornmeal and decrease the bran until the ration becomes the fattening ration given below, for those ducks which are to be marketed. Those to be saved for breeders should be fed the first mash mixture. They should be given a good range where grass and running water are available. If confined to yards considerable green feed and vegetables should be fed.

The ducklings for market should be fattened for two weeks before selling on a ration of three parts by weight of cornmeal, two parts middlings, one part bran, one part meatscrap, three per cent. grit and about one part green feed. If milk is available with which to mix the mash cut the meatscraps to one-half part.

Fond Mother; "Tommy, where did you get that black eye? Didn't I tell you good little boys never fight?"

Tommy; "Yes, and I believe you, ma. I thought he was a good little boy until I hit him, then I found he wasn't".

"Do you guarantee results in your nerve treatment?" asked the caller.

"You bet I do", replied the specialist. "Why last week a man came to me for nerve treatment, and when I got through with him, he tried to borrow $50 from me".

Dodge Bros.' Motor Cars

Touring and Roadster $2050 F.O.B. Brockville

As long as they build motor cars they will be the best motor cars Dodge Brothers can build.

As long as the name is attached to their motor car, Dodge Brothers may be depended upon to safeguard and protect it.

The name has come to suggest integrity—integrity in the car, and integrity in manufacturing and business methods of the men who build it.

The first thought that follows, wherever it is seen, is the thought of a car that is reliable.

They call up a picture of a particular kind of a motor car.

Or, to be exact, a particular kind of motor car workmanship, which people have come to associate with the name Dodge Brothers.

It has grown because the users of these cars have given Dodge Brothers a good name as careful, conscientious manufacturers.

The result is that wherever these two words—Dodge Brothers—are seen, they stand as a symbol of exceptional motor car value.

Your Child's Future

WHAT ?

Educational endowment policies. The main object of these policies is to provide a fund for the Education of children on arriving at adult ages.

The usual form of children's Endowment has been found to possess one great disadvantage, namely, that in the event of the parent, or it is often impossible to continne the payment of premiums, and the policy is thus allowed to lapse.

The present plan completely overcomes this objectlon by providing that in the event of the death of the parent or guardian before the policy matures, no further premiums will be required, but the policy will become automatically paid up, and the sum assured will nevertheless be payable in full if the child survives the Endowment term.

Should the child die during the Endowment period, all premiums will be returned.

Further particulars will be furnished on request. Mail a card to-day.

Even Two Coats of Paint Give Less Than a Hundreth of an Inch Protection

When you know that you must depend on a paint film less than a hundredth of an inch thick to protect your buildings from weather's wear and tear you begin to realize the vitalness of buying the right paint.

An outside paint must be not alone waterproof but weatherproof. Making a paint weatherproof is the difficult part. If it is not weatherproof it will not long stay waterproof.

To be weatherproof, the paint film must be so elastic that it will expand or contract with the weather's changes—and do it without cracking.

Lowe Brothers High Standard Liquid Paint is specially made to meet these conditions. That is why it stands so many years of weather's wear and tear.

The picture above is taken from a photograph showing a two-coat film of High Standard Paint held in the hand. The film was over two months old when photographed; yet it was as flexible as a handkerchief.

If you have been having paint troubles, or want to prevent them, tell us about your painting needs. The expert advice given so gladly will cost you nothing. It may save you much.

Every seat in the Music Hall was sold for Monday night's presentation of Mary Pickford in "The Hoodlum". While the picture was a fine one portraying city life from wealth to proverty, it has not the appeal found in such pictures as "Daddy Long Legs" and "Evangeline" by the same actress.

Principal Coombs of the St. Catharines Collegiate Institution, issued a statement yesterday, in which he intimates that there may be numerous failures in the annual examinations, because as a result of a surfeit of late parties, dances, entertainments and picture shows, many of the pupils had gone to school fagged out day after day.

In these days of high prices we should be careful not to live beyond our means. A rainy day may come when we will need a little extra money, and it is a good plan to put aside a few cents or dollars whenever possible. A little "skimping" won't hurt anyone, and it is not at all necessary that we should buy the highest priced goods in the market. A shoe dealer said recently that people refused to buy the lower-priced shoes. They demand the goods with the highest price tag, and then complain of the high cost of living.
