Casselman Noted In Military and Athletic Field In Addition to Long Parliamentry Career

...e return of Arza Clair Cassel-..., K.C., as member of parliament ... the riding of Grenville-Dundas in ...sday's federal election, marks his ... successful defence of this seat ... his 19th year as one of the Do...ion's legislators

...irst elected in 1921, Mr. Cassel...n has been re-elected in this rid... in 1925, 1926, 1930, 1935 and ...40, although between 1921 and ...25 he was not an actual member, ...ing relinquished his seat in that term to Hon. Arthur Meighen, but he did remain a close student of parliamentary procedure and was in attendance at all sittings during that first period of his political life.

"Cass", as he is known to friends throughout the riding, began his political career here about 1919 when he returned from overseas and resumed the law practice he had purchased in 1915 from the late J.K. Dowsley in Prescott. Hon. J.D. Reid was then the member and when he was elevated to the Senate, Mr. Casselman was the choice of his party to contest the fight of 1921.

Born on the 19th of January, 1891, at Williamsburg, he was a son of Michael J. Casselman and Almeda Casselman, his wife, both of whom were descendants of United Empire Loyalists. He spent his early days on a farm one mile west of Morrisburg, and attended public and high schools here. In the year 1915 he graduated in law from Osgoode Hall, opened a practice in Prescott, and a few months later enlisted with the McGill Battery, which later became the 10th Canadian Siege Battery, with which he saw service in the ranks until Nov. 11th, 1918. He is now on the reserve list of officers of the Canadian Militia with rank of Major.

Mr. Casselman has not only a fine war record, but from the time he was seventeen took an active part in military matters, becoming a member in 1910 of the 59th Regiment of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, holding the rank of colour sergeant. At the outbreak of war on August 4th, 1914, he was called to the colours for service on the Williamsburg canal. He remained there until the opening of the college year received leave to complete his law course, and in 1915 he opened practice in Prescott and enlisted with the McGill unit as mentioned above. While with the 59th Battalion he was noted for his marksmanship and won the Regimental Best Shot Badge which was presented to him by Gen. Sir John Hamilton, latterly known as the hero of Gallipoli.

In his college days Mr. Casselman was greatly interested in athletics, playing senior inter-collegiate hockey with Osgoode Hall. He was a noted middle distance runner, who in the years 1910-11-12, gave exhibitions throughout Eastern Ontario against the Indian runner, Tom Longboat. In 1912 he was refused permission to enter a five mile road race at Prescott on the grounds that he had professionalized himself in the above mentioned exhibitions. Actually, the promoters knew that Cass could defeat their favorites and they did not want him to win any more awards than possible.

He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Dorothy Chalmers, who passed away after a short married life. Mr. Casselman later married Miss Elizabeth Mundle, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Mundle of Prescott. To this union was born two sons, Clifford Mundle and Richard Clair. Mrs. Casselman passed away early in 1938.

Liberal Party Sweeps Country

INCREASE MAJORITY OVER LAST PARLIAMENT

MANION AND HERRIDGE BOTH DEFEATED

CASSELMAN ELECTED IN GRENVILLE-DUNDAS

MAJORITY OVER DR. TAUGHER IS 1605 VOTES

Canada entrusted the conduct of its war effort to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his Liberal government Tuesday in what amounted to a smashing vote of confidence at the polls.

The Liberal party, which appealed to the country in a general election on its seven-month record of war-time administration, was swept back into power with a record following in the House of Commons.

The defeat of Hon. Dr. Robert Manion and his National Government party was conceded early in the evening. Also defeated was Hon. W. D. Herridge, leader of the New Democracy party.

It was a smashing victory for the Liberal Government and for Mackenzie King, who had been hotly criticized by his opponents, for his conduct of Canada's war effort.

The victory march started in tiny Prince Edward Island smallest smallest of Canada's nine provinces, which returned a solid Liberal representation and continued steadily westward, gaining momentum as it rolled along. The election of the Government was conceded at 8.47 p.m.

CASSELMAN WINS SEAT

Lieut.-Col. Arza Clair Casselman, K.C., of Prescott, chief Conservative whip in the last Parliament, who was first elected to the federal House in 1921, when he gave up his seat to the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, was elected National Government member for the constituency of Grenville-Dundas, defeating Dr. William John Taugher, of Prescott by a majority of 1 605 votes. Casselman received 7,169 votes against 5,564 for Taugher. It was the sixth time Lieut.-Col. Casselman had been elected to the House of Commons.

Although he gave up his seat to the Conservative Leader in 1921, he was subsequently elected in 1925, 1926, 1930 and 1935. His election was indicated early in the fight, when the first polls in gave him a substantial lead over Taugher, a lead which he managed to retain throughout the fight. It was evident from the outset that snow-blocked roads in the riding were affecting the vote, the almost impassable drifts keeping scores of farmers at home. Indeed, one deputy returning officer, Mrs. Iva Buchanan of Kemptville, had to snowshoe to reach her polling station in the morning. She walked into the office of John Alexander Campbell the returning officer wearing moccassins, carrying her ballot box in one hand and her snowshoes in the other.

Asked if it were possible that he might resign his seat in favour of Dr. Manion, Mr. Casselman said he did not believe that Dr. Manion would want him to.

Much credit for the smooth running of the election machinery is due to the returning officer, John Alexander Campbell of Kemptville. The first returns came in at 6.20, and by 9.30 all deputy returning officers had reported and the final results were known.

In Prescott, home town of both candidates, Dr. Taugher received a majority of 34 votes, polling a total of 779 against 745 for his opponent. Mr. Casselman, however, built up splendid leads in Kemptville, Winchester, Merrickville, Cardinal, etc.

On Waterways Project

Lieut.-Col. Casselman has long been considered one of the influential men in the councils of the Conservative party. He took a very definite stand in respect to the proposed single stage development of the St. Lawrence River, declaring himself in favour of the two-stage development of the project, which would greatly reduce the flooding in the vicinity of Morrisburg and Prescott. He served overseas with the 10th Canadian Seige Battery as a gunner in the Great War and is honorary Lieut.-Col. of the 4th Hussars of Canada. Since his entrance into the political arena, Mr. Casselman has always emerged well ahead of his opponents.

In 1926 he contested the seat against the late Preston Elliott, of Chesterville, Progressive Candidate, winning with a majority of 3,356 votes. in the 1930 election he was opposed by Dr. Taugher, Liberal, and increased his majority to 4,420 votes. In 1935 he was opposed by Preston Elliott, this time as a Liberal candidate and by C. A. Patterson of Jasper, Reconstructionist, emerging with a majority over his two opponents of 740 votes. He received 8,936 as against 6,581 for Elliott and 1,615 for Patterson.

THE WINNER

— W.L. MACKENZIE KING

His Liberal Party was the overwhelming choice of the people of Canada to continue the conduct of our war effort.

HE RETAINED HIS SEAT

LT.-COL. A.C. CASSELMAN, K.C. who retained the seat of Grenville-Dundas which he first won in 1921

BADLY BEATEN

M.C.I. Will Publish Year Book; First School Publication In Years

For the first time in many years, the Morrisburg Collegiate Institute has undertaken the task of publishing a year book.

The name of the book has been changed from the old "M. C. I. Opener" the well-known publication of years gone by to "The Saga". It is expected that the first edition of "The Saga" will be printed and ready for distribution by the end of next week.

The object of the school year book, is, of course, primarily to provide the pupils with a lasting souvenir of school days. There may also be some old graduates of the M. C. I., who would like to get a copy, to compare it with the "M.C.I. Opener" of the good old days, away back when etc.

Orders for copies of this book may be sent to Mr. Keith Utman, Williamsburg, Ontario. The price is 25 cents per copy. The supply is necessarily very limited, so if you want to get a copy, order it now! Orders will be dealt with in the order in which they are received.

TRUTH TRIUMPHANT

The sun is not to blame
If dark battalions sweep across the sky
In blackest cloud,—
The sun shines just the same.

And so in war,—
The clouds put out the sun
Of happiness and joy
When those most dear
Are risking life for Peace.

But as earth's vapors bring the stormy clouds,
Men's greed and hatred brought this sorrow near,— God's love alone can bring the world release.

—Dorothy Sproule

He arrived home in a fury at night.

"And what would be making you so angry, Seumas, and yourself havin' had a fine day at the polls, to be sure?

"Och, it's the dishonesty!" cried Seumas. "It's the dishonesty of politics that maddens me. When I get to the polls to give my vote, what do I find but that somebody's impersonated me already and voted for the government!"

If we would let love rule our lives at all times and practise the art of being kind at all seasons, what a very different world this would soon become. Then greed would give place to fair dealing, competition to co-operation, and ill-will to friendship.

Miss Fay Bartley wore a gown of dusty pink crepe, a brown hat and accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held and later the couple left for St. Johns, Que., where they will take up residence. For travelling the bride donned a black cloth coat trimmed with fox fur over her wedding frock.

Wm. Randall came to Spencerville when a young boy from his home in England, and lived in this vicinity here for several years, up to the time he joined the Royal Canadian Dragoons. He was then a member of the Young Peoples Union and was a member of the Dramatic Society, assisting in several plays with great ability. He was also a member of the Young Peoples' Choir. He has many friends in this district who extend their congratulations.

SPRING TERM

The announcement of the opening of the Spring Term from March 19 to April 2, carries added encouraging significance to the young people this year because of the daily increasing demand for the services of those trained to do office work. The recently released results of civil service examinations show that 46 stenographers, 76 typists and 75 clerks from our Kingston and Brockville Colleges were successful. Already a large number have been called to fill government appointments.

New Home for Banff School of Fine Arts

The Banff School of Fine Arts has a new home which is as modern as the splendid work done by the school. The new auditorium, which was officially opened in January in the presence of educational and other Alberta leaders, will be the scene of the eighth annual session of the school, from August 1st to 31st. This $50,000 building is made of native Rundle stone and is of the chalet design which harmonizes so well with the surroundings. The theatre has a seating capacity of 700 and a modern stage fitted with the finest lighting equipment and there are dressing rooms, music room, work rooms and other meeting rooms for small groups. The building is truly a co-operative effort. The Parks Department deeded two lots worth $10,000 to the Banff School Board and supplied plans and specifications free of charge; the Sir Edward Beatty donation of $2,500 to the Department of Extension of the University of Alberta made possible the furnishing and equipment of the stage and theatre.

Monthly Meeting Roebuck Institute

The regular monthly meeting of the Roebuck Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Dake on Tuesday afternoon with the president Mrs. R. J. Kelso presiding assisted by the secretary Miss Evelyn Dixon.

The meeting opened by singing the Institute Ode after which all repeated the Lord's Prayer in unison. Roll was called with twenty members and two visitors present. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. Treasurer's report was given. Mrs. F. Alkerton sick visitor reported making several calls by telephone. Mrs. E. Dutfield and Miss Ruby Black were appointed for next month A short discussion followed regarding 'Summary Day" which is to be held at North Augusta on April 11th. It was decided to leave the responsibility with the local leaders of the meat cooking course, Mrs. R. J. Kelso and Mrs. R. Whitley and the vegetable course, Mrs. J. Attridge and Miss Dorothy Toppin. A motion was made that we send a donation to help with the gift for Lady Tweedsmuir The program then followed. All joined in singing "O Canada." Mrs. Wm. Steele, agricultural convener, gave interesting readings on Agriculture and Mrs. R. Whitley, Education convener, gave a reading on "Our New Neighbours from Czechoslovakia." Community singing was then enjoyed, collection taken and the meeting closed with singing the National Anthem. Lunch was served and a social hour spent.

SAY THESE QUICKLY

Here are some new tongue-twisters which were tried out on listeners to a Tongue Twisters' Bee between teams of actors and singers; each phrase had to be repeated three times in succession. Actors won by one point, the score being 27 to 26.

Will Willie Wilkins wink or will Winnie Wilkins walk?

Six thiek thistle sticks.

Should such a shapeless sash such shabby stitches show?

Proudly the pouncing prancing panther passes.

The sea ceaseth and it sufficeth us.

In which ditch wishes rich Miss Dish to fish?

My sister has a silver thistle sifter.

A glowing gleam growing green.

Which switch, Miss, is the switch for Ipswitch, Miss?

Cracked cricket critics.

Are you copper-bottoming 'em, my man? No, I'm aluminuming 'em, Mum.

Twp. School Area Board in Action

The writer was very anxious to get a picture of a larger unit Board in action and wrote the secretary of ————Board asking if it would be convenient to visit the Board at their next meeting to solicit membership in the Association and get a picture of the Board in action. By return mail I was notified when the Board meeting would take place and that I would be quite welcome.

The mmeting was called for 7.30. I arrived at 7.35 to find the meeting in full progress with the Public School Inspector present. The minutes had been read and the correspondence was being discussed. The Inspector gave very valuable information and assistance in reference to matter s connected with grants, engaging of teachers, caretaking and other matters in connection with schools. Only school matters were discussed from 7.30 until 11 o'clock. When I departed at 11 o'clock business was still going strong.

The procedure of this meeting was so different from the ordinary rural school meeting that it was a pleasure to sit in and listen to the discussion centred around the seven schools forming the area. The contracts of the teachers were discussed with the Inspector. It was suggested that a complete record should be secured of every teacher and that in arranging the salary for the coming year that the salary should be based on the qualifications and experience, rather than on an uniform rate for all teachers regardless of their qualifications and experience. One or two teachers in the area came under discussion and the Inspector's opinion was expressed freely and frankly.

Previous to the meeting the trustees had made an inspection of every school in the area and a report was presented to each member of the Board showing the condition in all the schools, separately, in regard to caretaking and general appearance of the school. Each item was being discussed at this meeting on its merits. Tenders were arranged for the wood to be delivered either to school sections separately or by a general tender covering the whole area. In this way a local man could tender on his local school or two or more schools or one man could tender on all the schools.

Considerable discussion centred around the caretaking of the schools. Observations were given as to their impression when they visited each school. A set of rules for the caretaker to follow was drafted to accompany the tender for caretaking in each of the schools. A copy of these rules is to be placed in each school for reference purposes. The matter of floor oil was being discussed. One member stated that they had been buying oil with a disinfectant at a special price. This was considered expensive and a more economical method of buying oil was considered.

All business was conducted in a business-like manner. Motions were regularly moved, seconded, and voted upon. The Secretary-Treasurer's bond was discussed. The Schools Act was referred to repeatedly, and all the information was available of the records of each school previous to the amalgamation.

This Board meeting was so different from the picture which the writer has of an average rural Board meeting, where the trustees meet around 8 or 9 o'clock, discuss local matters such as crops, live stock or the happenings of the neighbourhood for the major part of the evening, or perhaps conduct the business of the school over the telephone or by the side of the road, without minutes or advice from either the Inspector or the Schools Act and Regulations, that he left the meeting with the feeling of Agrippa, "Thou almost persuadest me to be a"—— member of a Township Area Board.

AGAINST THE ODDS

The fight worth winning is the one
Thats made when hope seems wholly gone,
It calls for courage rare to stay;
Against the heavy odds to stand
And gain the vict'ry single-hand.

When one has numbers on his side,
When night removes the dangers grave,
In triumph there is little pride;
The giant's never very brave.
At six to one on land or sea,
Paltry the conquest's bound to be.

Against the odds to stand and fight!
Alone to battle for the right!
Alone to battle the giant's will,
This calls for courage and for skill.
Only earth's bravest carry on
With odds against them six to one.

There are very few friends with whom you can be equally intimate on all subjects. Discover the range of your intimacy with each friend, and never go beyond it.

All men must recognize the advice of necessity. All men are willing to listen to agreeable advice that will support them—unless it be that they are ambitious and want this brand of help.

The difference between man's law and God's law is that, whereas we may reach the highest standard set before us by the former, the more we advance in striving to fulfil the latter the higher it keeps on rising above us.—Julius Hare.

HEATING HINTS by James Stewart

MANY home owners who have steam or hot water heating systems complain that they cannot get their radiators completely hot. In the case of steam radiators this is often caused by air. Air, of course, must be entirely eliminated from the radiator before it can be filled with steam. Automatic air valves usually take care of this. If you have automatic valves and your radiators still are air-bound—try unscrewing the little plug at the top of the valve. When the cold air has all been blown out tighten up the plug again to its normal position.

If this operation does not stop the trouble, or if your steam radiators have a tendency to fill with water, I'd advise you to have an expert call and check up on the valves.

Hot water radiators may also become air-bound. This can be corrected by occasionally opening the air valve with a valve key and leaving it open until water starts to flow from it. It's a good plan to have a cup or pan ready to catch the water when you open the valve. (11)

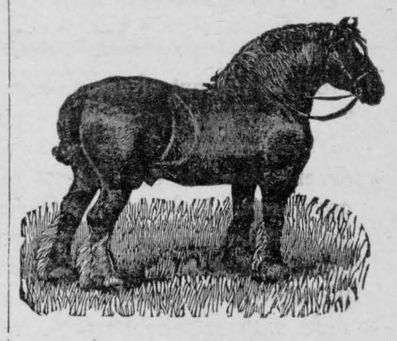

Prevents Streaking

Every little child that's admitted to The Hospital for Sick Children . . . there were more than 9,000 last year . . . wears an imaginary tag that reads "Return to Mother in Good Condition".

For more than sixty years, this Hospital has been receiving the sick and crippled children of Ontario, treating them, healing them, and sending them home to grow up and become healthy, USEFUL citizens.

Now, more than ever before, children have a greater chance to be sent home in "Good Condition".

Advances in medical science have increased greatly the scope and services of this Hospital. New treatments have been discovered to improve . . . even cure . . . the crippled children once doomed to a life of misery. Great strides have been taken to reduce the horrible effects of Poliomyelitis. New cures have been discovered for Pneumonia and many other diseases.

All these wonderful developments, plus the increase in emergency accident cases, add to the operating expenses of the Hospital.

But nothing new has yet been developed that will add, in the same proportion, something to the OPERATING REVENUE, except, of course, the generous support of kindly Ontario citizens who make many sacrifices to send a donation to help The Hospital for Sick Children.

Please appoint yourself a benefactor of sick and crippled children . . . send a generous gift to the Hospital TODAY. Your financial assistance is urgently needed.

KING GOVERNMENT RETURNED AT OTTAWA

The election campaign is over; the voters have had their chance to register their approval or disapproval of the war effort being conducted for them by the Mackenzie King Government. And they have decided to trust Mr. King with the running of their country for the next few years, which will undoubtedly be the most critical years this young nation has ever experienced, which, in fact, she ever will experience.

While the opinion prevailed throughout the country, despite Dr. Manion's claims to the contrary, was that the King government would be returned to power, the great Liberal landslide came as a surprise to most of the Liberal party leaders themselves, who looked for a slightly decreased majority.

Without taking anything from Dr. Manion's proclaimed ability, or his projected government of "the best brains in Canada," it can be said that Mr. King has at his command enough men of worthy cabinet timber, to form a government which will be as strong as any we have ever had.

It is unfortunate that Dr. Manion and so many of his National Government candidates saw fit to pursue the mud-slinging political course which they did. Their tactics not only are below the level of any self-respecting Canadian politician, but they also assured their own defeat. The Nazis, who have been making a great "blow" during the campaign, about the lack of unity in Canada, can take little comfort from the clear majority accorded to Premier King and his Liberal government.

HIGHWAY CLEANING EQUIPMENT NOT ADEQUATE

This week's high winds, which piled up drifts and paralyzed traffic in Eastern Ontario, impressed upon the minds of the people, the fact that the Department of Highways is negligent in not providing better equipment for their crews.

The trouble, which was the only really bad weather we have had all winter, saw almost every plow in this part of the Province put out of commission.

That latest raise in the gasoline tax should have netted the Department of Highways with sufficient revenue to put decent plows at the disposal of their men. When the present government took over at Queen's Park, they read us a long list of the sins of the preceding regime. But most of us will remember that the Henry Government kept our roads open in the winter; that they did not ask their men to work 24-hour shifts with only light trucks, to which a small inefficient plow had been buckled.

Of what use is it for us to pay for keeping our roads open at all, if the one bad blow of the winter can paralyze the whole equipment of the Department as happened last week. If we are going to trust to Divine Providence to keep our roads free of snow, then we might as well sell the small plows which we have.

The truth is that the Ontario Department of Highways is grossly inefficient and lax in fulfilling its function, and they are going to have a hard time proving otherwise when their turn comes to go to the country.

MAKING PIGS PAY PROFITS

With the outbreak of the war and cutting down of bacon shipments to Britain from several European countries, Canada is being called upon to export more and more bacon. Swine producers are already considering their plans for the next year or so. Many already engaged in hog will increase production, and others will start in the business, so it would seem a good thing to suggest some practical economies within the control of every hog raiser.

Many good suggestions along this line have come from the Agricultural Supply Board which has stressed quality and economy in hog production, through their advertisements. These together with uniformity of supply are essential in developing our export trade in bacon and in maintaining it.

Quality of bacon and uniformity of supply are national problems. Yet each individual breeder can help by better breeding, feeding and management, or hinder by producing poor quality hogs. Each should do his share, if Canada is to secure and hold a reputation for bacon on the export market.

Economy of production is not associated with any one phase of swine raising. It includes the use of suitable breeding stock; their proper housing and feeding, the care of the sow and the litter, as well as the proper feeding of the pigs up to market weight, good judgement in marketing them at the right weight and finish.

As profits from hog raising are largely governed by the individual producer's ability, this would not be too early to start the time-honoured "spring house cleaning", discarding those methods which are bad and adopting such new methods as will result in larger hog cheques.

Bulletins and other information on hog raising are available from the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The election of the Hon. Arthur Roebuck in Toronto—Trinity won't add a great deal to the joy of the Boss of Queen's Park. He was gunning for Mr. Roebuck's political scalp a few weeks ago. The boys will tell you now that it is a pity Mitcheil Hepburn's feeling for the National Government Party didn't extend so far that he would have contested one of their seats. What a handy way that would have been to obliviate him.

With the challenge by Dr. Manion taken care of, there are about two of his cohorts whom we would submit should be eliminated from the political stage, if Canada is to make the greatest possible contribution to the Allies cause. One is in Alberta, and the other is in Ontario. Guess who?

If the present administration lasts for another five years, and Mr. King retains his leadership, he will tie the record of Sir John A. Macdonald, of nineteen years in office. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, one of Mr. King's heroes was in office fifteen years.

Nephew of Rev. Dr. D. N. McRae Killed In Crash

Friends of Dr. D. N. McRae, a former pastor of the United Church, Morrisburg will be interested to know that among the recent war casualties was his nephew, Bill McRae of Regina, for some time a student at Queen's University, Kingston and for the last four years with the R.A. F. in England.

Two weeks ago this young man, for conspicuous bravery, was summoned to Buckingham Palace, London, and while there was decorated by the King with the Distinguished Fying Cross, the equivalent of the Victoria Cross on the field of battle, for flights over Sylt and Heligoland, where, flying low, he took photos of the Nazi hangars and destroyed three Heinkel bombing machines.

On his return to England from the last raid, his machine met with an accident and he was killed.

Health Unit Will Assume Duties April 1

First program of the kind set up by any county in Ontario, the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Counties Health Unit will go into operation April 1st, it was announced at Cornwall last week. The unit will take over the duties and functions of all municipal boards of health in the three counties, under direction of a single board headed by Dr. J. Howard Munro, reeve of Maxville, and an ex-warden of the counties.

Advertisements have been published calling for applications for staff for the unit, which will comprise a medical director, three part time assistant medical officers of health, three sanitary inspectors, a supervisor of nurses and eight public health nurses, and necessary office staff.

The medical director is Dr. Murray G. Thompson, who has been chief of the Eastern Ontario Health Unit, operated by the Ontario government and the Rockefeller Foundation in Glengarry, Prescott Russell and part of Stormont counties for the past five years.

Fitting Out Steamer

Members of the engine room crew of the Canadian lighthouse tender Grenville are busily engaged preparing that stout vessel at its Prescott wharf for the season of navigation. As soon as ice conditions permit, the Grenville will clear from Prescott to place buoys and other aids to navigation in position along the upper St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario. Last year, Captain Murray Barry piloted his craft to Brockville on the 9th day of April, breaking ice along the eastern waterfront in order to permit the entry a few days later of the coal-carrying steamer Coalfax.

With The Girl Guides

Just a little reminder that tonite is the nite. Do come, parents and friends, to our little entertainment. We will let you in on a real Guide Meeting. A hearty welcome awaits you.

The Guide Law—Concluded.

7. A Guide obeys orders. As a Guide you should discipline yourself and put yourself readily and willingly at the service of constituted authority for the main good. The best disciplined community is the happiest community, but the discipline must come from within and not merely be imposed from without. Hence the greater value of the example you give to others in this direction.

8. A Guide smiles and sings under all difficulties. As a Guide you will be looked on as someone who can keep their head, and to stick it out in a crisis with cheery pluck and optimism.

9. A Guide is thrifty. As a Guide you will look ahead and will not fritter away time or money on present pleasures, but rather make use of present opportunities with a view to ultimate success. You will do this with the idea of not being a burden, but a help to others.

10. A Guide is pure in thought, word and deed. As a Guide you are expected to be not only pure-minded, but clean-willed; to give an example to others of being pure and above-board in all that you think, say and do.

As a Guide, you are not only yearning to carry out the Guide Law, but you are actually using it for guidance of your conduct in life. More than this, you are now in the responsible position of giving an example to others, which may lead them to good or to evil, according to whether or not you model your conduct on the law, and how far you carry out that promise which you have made, on your honor, as a Guide to give out good-will and help to all.

Charges Regarding Ballots Were False

(Winchester Press)

According to a press despatch in an Ottawa paper on Tuesday night, Mr. A.C. Casselman, Conservative Candidate for Grenville-Dundas, charged "that ballots used in this riding were all numbered on the ballot proper and not on the counterfoil as required by law."

In as much as these ballots were printed by the Press, we feel that we are privileged to discount Mr. Casselman's charges regarding them. His statement, as published in the Ottawa paper, is not true. The ballots were printed and numbered according to specifications, as provided by the Chief Electoral Officer, and, as every intelligent voter who marked his or her ballot on Tuesday knows, the one number was printed on the stub of the ballot (that is the part that the ballot was torn from before it was handed to the voter,) the other number appeared on the counterfoil, and when the ballot was returned to the deputy returning officer, this number was torn off at the perforation line before the ballot was deposited in the ballot box, thus removing any identification mark by which the voter could be identified. What Mr. Casselman based his charges on is beyond us, and we feel that if he erred in this respect, he should forthwith tender his regrets to the local returning officer, who O.K'd the ballots before they were delivered to the several polling booths. As printers of the ballots, we feel that Mr. Casselman has questioned our ability to print them according to law, and we would appreciate an explanation in the interests of the general public.

The press despatch which was dated March 26th, went on to say:

"Mr. Casselman further charges marked inefficiency in the local polls. Five of the nine local polls are located outside of the polling division, which is resulting in confusion in directing voters to their proper polling place."

"The Conservative candidate also charges that practically every poll throughout the riding is located in a private house instead of in a public building as was the case in previous elections, with the result that, added to bad weather conditions, many voters are being confused."

We cannot discount these charges as they might apply to other sections of the riding, but we can state, in all fairness to Mr. Campbell, the returning officer, that all polling booths in Winchester were located in business shops and in the polling areas in which the voters resided. Moreover, there was no outward sign of inefficiency in collecting the votes of the electors in Winchester, and so far we have not heard of any complaints. How the vote was conducted in other sections, we cannot say, but it was, no doubt, uniform throughout the riding.

Jones-Dixon

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Dixon, Winchester, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when their only daughter, Ruth Alison, was united in marriage with Mr. Dwight Edward (Casey) Jones, son of Mrs. Gordon Jones and the late Mr. Jones, of Mountain Township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W.S. Atchison, pastor of the United church.

The couple were attended by Miss Jean Smith, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Lloyd Dixon, brother of the bride. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was chaming in a street-length frock of Chartreuse Dovetone crepe, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and gored skirt. The bodice was designed with fine tucking, which also finished the three quarter length sleeves. She wore a corsage of Orchids and black accessories.

ELECTION NOTES

The return of A.C. Casselman as member of Parliament for this riding, together with the re-election of the Mackenzie King Government will likely mean Mr. Casselman's continuance in his post as Chief Whip of the Opposition. Had a National Government been returned, it is understood that Mr. Casselman was slated for a Cabinet post.

VOLTAIRE: I wholly disagree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.

EASTER

Say not that death is king, that night is lord,
That loveliness is passing, beauty dies;
Nor tell me hope's a vain, deceptive dream
Fate lends to life, a pleasing, luring gleam
To light awhile the earth's despondent skies,
Till death brings swift and sure its dread reward.
Say not that youth deceives, but age is true,
That roses quickly pass, while eypress bides,
That happiness is foolish, grief is wise,
That stubborn dust shall choke our human cries.
Death tells new worlds, and life immortal hides
Beyond the veil, which shall all wrongs undo.
This was the tale God breathed to me at dawn
When flooding sunrise told the night was gone.

VICTORY FOR ABERHART FORESHADOWS ECONOMIC BATTLE IN FUTURE.

The triumph of Premier "Bible Bill" Aberhart in Alberta is more than a triumph for the party of which he is head. It is victory for the exponents of what is loosely termed "soft money" over the vested interests.

There is no question but that institutional interests ganged up on Mr. Aberhart and his Social Credit Government in much the same manner as they battled President Roosevelt in his last appeal to his people, and had it not been for Aberhart's political sagacity in pushing his appeal in just before the federal election, it is quite likely his ideologies would have met a setback in Alberta. As it was, both the old political parties were entangled in their vote-catching fight and could not waste any time on the "lesser evil" of trying to defeat Social Credit.

Just what is behind the political curtain of Alberta is hard to guess at from this distance but there must be a little fire behind the smoke else his enemies would not have spent so much money in trying to beat Mr. Aberhart. An antiquated monetary system is at the root of most of the world's ills of today, being inadequate to bridge the gulf between production and consumption and there can never be any permanent peace established in the world until the system of distribution is reformed to create a semblance of equality for all and eliminate the hills and valleys which periodically now appear to disocate the balance.

In season and out of season, we have preached, and sometimes prattled, during the past 15 years against a system which appears to have only unemployment or war as the price of its perpetuation, and that is why our sympathy is naturally extended to the Social Credit forces. Not that we believe them to be wholly practical, but we do lean to experiment in monetary reform to try and attempt some evolution of values which would establish a flow of goods and services to all those who have wants to be filled, with fairness and profit to all. Whether social credit is the answer will remain to be seen, but one thing seems sure, that within the next decade the two old line parties are both going to have to face a battle against the proponents of a better economic order.

BRITAIN'S CONCESSIONS TO ARABS FULFILLS LAWRENCE'S PLEDGES.

If the British Government's recent decision to stake Palestine into restricted zones unfavorable to further Jewish encroachments, as pushed through the house by Dominions Sec'y Malcolm MacDonald, is to be trusted then the Arabs may be considered to have achieved a victory and the promises of Lawrence of Arabia at last fulfilled.

The almost legendary life of Thomas Edward Lawrence was brought to a close in March, 1931, in what many suspected was a mere subterfuge in order that "Air Mechanic Shaw" might retire from public attention to work out some greater strategy, but which we now know was the last act of a bitterly disappointed man whose spirit may at long last rest, secure in the knowledge that his pledges made on behalf of his beloved Empire have finally been kept.

We believe it was a good day's business the British House of Commons accomplished when it passed Mr. MacDonald's recommendations to: 1. Create a prohibited zone in Palestine where Jews could no longer buy land; 2. create a restricted zone, where Jewish purchases can be made only by 'special permission' and 3. create a small free zone, where Jews can still buy. In supporting his ideas, Sec'y MacDonald, son of Britain's first and only Labor Prime Minister, pointed out that it was the impoverished Arab working class who suffered when wealthy Arab landlords sold out to Jews. These ousted Arab workers, he warned, made ideal tinder for an uprising. "If there were trouble in Palestine, there would be repercussions in Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and India" added the Secretary.

In spring, 1917, the commander of the Turkish fortress of Akaba, harassed from all sides by the enemy, ordered his chief lieutenant Ibrahim, to capture the "English Devil" Lawrence, living or dead. 400 gold pounds and the order of the Iron Halfmoon were to be the reward for this capture. The commandant was rightly aware that things would not go well with Turkey as long as Lawrence continued to conjure before the eyes of hungry Arab sheiks the mirage of a Greater Arabia.

T. E. Lawrence was born in 1888 in County Galway, Ireland, the son of a country squire and sportsman. When he was still a boy he spent three years in Scotland, then was sent to a Jesuit College in France and later to Oxford. Very early Lawrence began to show a great inclination for archeology and devoted considerable study to war literature. A professor encouraged Lawrence to go to Syria to study the monuments of the Crusade period, then being excavated. He embarked for Haifa in 1909 and thence, disguised as a native, he marched as far as Urfa on the Euphrates, mixing with the settled and nomadic tribes, learning their dialects and studying their life and habits. During the next three years he studied native customs and languages more than he did archeology and in 1912, when the Germans were given control of the port of Alexandretta and the right to continue the Bagdad railway, he rushed off to Cairo, where Lord Kitchener was resident general, and complained to him about the slackness of London. It is said that in the course of that interview Lord Kitchener had predicted the world war in 1914.

In the Great War Lawrence was asigned to collecting information on the movements of Turkish troops and drafting reports in Arabic. In 1916 he turned up at Djeddah, the port of Mecca, just when the revolt of the Arabs had come to an standstill and the Bedouins were fleeing before the disciplined Turkish troops. It was then Lawrence began to act the role which made him famous. Disguised as a sherif of Mecca, got together about 200 camel riders, with whom he penetrated into the desert supplying food and munitions to the besieged Arabs and doing extensive propaganda for the union of the Arabic tribes, eternally at war with one another. He made promises and showed gold, and what British, French and Turkish diplomacy had been unable to achieve throughout the centuries, he achieved in a few months. Before the avid eyes of the sheiks, he conjured up such a resplendent picture of a powerful and independent Arabia that they became intoxicated with hope and on their own accord asked to be allowed to do what they were wanted to do. His triumphs with the Arabs and the route of the Turks is possibly well known enough to avoid repetition and like a prince of the "Arabian Nights", Lawrence, the "uncrowned king of Arabia" made his entrance at Damascus in September, 1918, and proclaimed in the name of Feisal, an Arabic government.

During the peace negotiations at Versailles he was a leading figure in having set up five new republics in the East. In 1921 he retired from the political stage for some time. Perhaps he was meditating on the duplicity of his game, and the manner in which Britain deserted the Arabs after taking advantage of them. He never quite recovered his confidence in the honesty of British pledges after Versailles, although he labored nobly from 1922 to 1929 in India and Afghanistan. England prematurely lost a great diplomat in the death of Airplane Mechanic Shaw in 1931.

The man who is carrying to a happy conclusion Lawrence's unfinished task has also the makings of a great diplomat and an unselfish leader. Malcolm MacDonald entered Parliament in 1929 as a Laborite. Next year he served as his father's secretary at the London Naval Conference. At the Imperial Conference in 1930 and at Ottawa in 1932 he was the British delegation's press officer. At 30, he became Under Secretary for Dominions in Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet, handed his increased salary of $5,700 back to the Government on the ground that the $1,520 he earned as an M. P. was enough for a bachelor. In 1935, when his father and Stanley Baldwin switched jobs, young Malcolm became a full-fledged cabinet member as Colonial Secretary. He quickly became known as a quiet plugger, rather than a brilliant go-getter. His chief virtues were patience and calm.

Transferred to Dominions Secretary he had his first big job in settling the troublesome Erie-British trade war over with a treaty satisfactory to both countries. Switched back to Colonies, Secretary MacDonald became fascinated by the black, brown, yellow peoples of the British Empire. Then came the big problem of Palestine. He flew to the Holy Land, interviewed both Arabs and Jews and invited them to a round-table conference in Lodon to compose their differences. Nothing came of it. Early this month, after repeated warnings Malcolm MacDonald finally announced his solution of the Problem of Palestine. Obviously this represents an Arab victory and a brightening of British honor in the eyes of the Moslem Kingdom.

Anyone who stops learning is old, whether that happens at eighteen or at eighty.

Everything that is worth while has a fence around it—but there are always a gate and key.

It is not who is right, but what is right, that is the important thing in this life.

The Ottawa Spotlight

By Spectator

Ottawa, March 26th.—On the eve of the election, when leaders and candidates of all parties have closed their strenuous and hard fought campaign, and have placed their political fate in the hands of the electorate, there is the usual amount of speculation on the result among observers in the capital. Such speculations are always of course unreliable; they are almost always if unconsciously tinged with the political feeling of the individual. There is always also the possibility of "surprise" in every election. If any inventor should arise who could produce some sort of machine to register accurately trends of public opinion, he would make a fortune. Certain features, however, stand out prominently in this contest. One is that on the issue which the vast majority of candidates contend is the main issue, the war, the purpose of all parties is the same. They differ only in the efficacy of measures taken for its successful prosecution and on the ability of their opponents to carry the war effort with maximum efficiency. The question of the maintenance of civil and parliamentary liberties plays its part, with many other issues, but out of the welter arises another feature. In relation to the two major parties, it is clear that the fortunes of the Conservative party in large degree depend on the extent to which the plea for a National Government appeals to the public. It is also quite evident that it is in Ontario with its 82 Federal seats that the principal test of strength between the two parties will take place. The situation in Ontario is complicated by a further unpredictable factor: that is what effect the antipathy of Mr. Hepburn to the Federal Liberal administration may have on the fortunes of Liberal and Conservative candidates in the province. There is another feature about the election, which can be confidently stated is widespread. This is the general relief which will be felt when it is over and done with, and whatever administration is accorded a mandate by the people be left free to carry on the work of governing the country in the hour of national emergency.

The War Supply Board, under the chairmanship of Mr. Wallace Campbell, which has the duty of making all purchase of all equipment and supplies needed in Canada's war effort, has issued a statement of all contracts which it has made from November 1st last year to March 1st. During the four months contracts total over 100 million dollars, while purchases made by the Defence Purchasing Board which preceded the War Supply Board amounted to 42 millions. The contracts cover purchases of every sort of material for the active service forces from small consignments of nails to aircraft and vessels. Orders have been placed in 12 Canadian shipyards for the construction of anti-submarine patrol vessels with a total value of over 37 million dollars. Over 9 million dollars will be paid for the construction of minesweepers now being built in British Columbian shipyards. Contracts for aircrafts, appearing in the report, reach a total of over ten million dollars, while in addition requisitions have been placed with the British Air Ministry for planes which according to agreement the British government delivers free of charge for the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. The progress being made in this cooperative scheme to swell the ranks of the air fleet on the battle front is also shown by a number of contracts for the construction of hangars and other buildings on sites for the air schools. Food and clothing material for soldiers, sailors and airmen, and equipment and supplies of all kinds for the fighting services, all appear in contracts listed by the Supply Board. A further order has been placed for 7,302 motor vehicles to be used by the First and Second Divisions and auxiliary forces. This order divided equally between the Ford Company of Windsor and General Motors of Oshawa will reach a total of over nine million dollars.

After the noise of the election battle has died away, certain domestic issues which have played little or no part in the contest will again appear. Among these is the Sirois report on Dominion-Provincial Relations which is completed but not yet placed before the government and parliament. Mr. Lapointe says it will be issued soon after the vote is cast. He claims that with provincial leaders like Godbout the difficulties between the provinces and the Dominion which it was the duty of the Commission to investigate fully and make recommend remedies, there will be no difficulty in ironing out differences of opinion and coming to an agreement. But matters of the kind lie at this moment in the lap of the fates. Another question is the St. Lawrence Waterway project, of which something was heard during the election from candidates in the province of Quebec. Whatever may be the fortune of the negotiations, now lying dormant, and whatever the relative force of the arguments for and against the plan, the idea of the cost of the enterprise at a time when the finances of the nation will be strained by the war effort, has led to a fairly general lack of enthusiasm.

John Boyd Dunlop Born In Ayrshire 100 Years Ago

Because an obscure veterinary surgeon rebelled against the jolts and bumps he encountered during his dog-cart travels about his practice, an invention was born that has since put the world on wheels.

The centenary of John Boyd Dunlop is observed throughout the world on February 5th, 1940. He was born in Dreghorn, Ayrshire, 100 years ago, and emigrated to Belfast Ireland, in his early twenties. There at the age of 48, his thoughts on the cushioning of vehicles from road shocks crystallized in the idea of enclosing air under pressure in a rubber and canvas tube placed between the road and the rim of the wheel.

JOHN BOYD DUNLOP

Fired by the idea, he constructed a pair of tires on rims and fastened them to the two driving wheels of his son's tricycle. Then in the bright moonlight of February 28th, 1888, Johnny Dunlop went on a test run, little realizing he was participating in an invention that was to revolutionize transportation throughout the world and lead to the tremendous expansion of travel by road and by air with which we are familiar today.

This first trial run demonstrated that the pneumatic tire was faster and infinitely more comfortable than the solid rubber tires then in use. A famous automotive engineer has said, "We could build cars without steel or iron, but we could not get along without Dunlop's invention."

The first pneumatic tire perfected for commercial use is still to be seen in the Royal Scottish Museum, Edinburgh, after enduring 3000 miles' travel without a single puncture. But its modern successors are travelling in millions on the highways of the world ..... giving safety, speed and comfort to millions of passenger, truck and farm vehicles ..... and sheathing the wheels of the aeroplanes, ranging in size from small civilian planes to mighty bombers. Even John Boyd Dunlop could never have guessed that his invention of pneumatic tires would enable an automobile to roar over a mile stretch at a speed of 368.86 miles per hour, as John Cobb did on August 23rd, 1939, at Bonneville Salt Flats.

When the first pneumatic tire was proved commercially successful, a company was formed bearing the Dunlop name, and that small beginning has grown and expanded until to-day it has become a huge organization with factories in ten countries in five continents, and a range of products that serve the world.

The shortest and surest way to live with honor in the world, is to be in reality what we would appear to be; all human virtues increase and strengthen themselves by the practice and experience of them.

THE COUNSELOR

By R. W. Armstrong
(Copyright Reserved)

The repercussions of war are just as marked in the realm of sex relations as they are in the realm of economics. The following extract from a letter reveals the kind of questions that are being raised in some people's minds.

My fiance has joined the army and he wants me to marry him before he goes over seas. I want to wait till he comes back. If he were killed I would be a widow, and that idea is terrible to me. On the other hand if I do not marry him I may lose him altogether. What should I do about it? I have a fairly good position which I think I can hold whether I marry or not.

When I read this letter my first impulse was to write the young lady, briefly, advising her not to marry him at all, because she did not love him. After a little thought it occurred to me she might have an unwholesome complex regarding widowhood which was preventing her from thinking straightly. Before I had finished my reply ran into six pages of single-spaced typewriting.

I told her that the prospect of her man being killed was no reason why she should refuse to marry him if she really loved him. Marriage was the fulfilment of a process that had been going on in each of their lives ever since they had fallen in love. I tried to point out that widowhood was not such a terrible thing after all, and that as a widow she would command just as much respect as she would as a spinster or wife. I suggested as tactfully as I could that her love for the man should outweigh the objections that had come into her mind.

I also told her that many men who felt sure they were going out to die desired marriage before they went, because it brought a sense of completeness into their lives which they felt could not be realized in any other way, and HER lover was probably no exception. After being engaged for two years it might mean a great deal to him to feel that she was his in the truest sense of the word as he endured the hardships and faced the horrors of war.

Another case that recently came to my attention was that of a soldier who declined to propose to the girl he loved because he thought it unfair to hold her affections during an absence of uncertain duration. It was also possible that his present plans regarding the future might not materialize when the war was over. I commended this boy for his high sense of honor and for his calm and impassioned judgment. His was a more serious problem than that of the girl, whose attitude I thought was not based on common sense.

There are many cases in which marriage before departure to the front is the right and proper thing, but there are other cases in which it would be very inadvisable. Sometimes the romance and glamor of army life so plays upon the sentiments of a man that he imagines he is in love when he is not. Sometimes the heroic spirit of a soldier becomes so enshrined in a girl's sentiments that she imagines she is in love when she is not. Love making, should go on normally in war time wherever it is practical, but the abnormal phases of love making, arising from the peculiar psychology of the period and the contingencies of the situation, are to be avoided. In order to do this young people must keep their heads level, their hearts calm, and their consciences alert.

Ralph Bennett is a man in his mid-twenties who is trying to work out for himself a satisfactory philosophy of life. He reads widely, thinks deeply and talks a lot. Some of his family think he is a bit unorthodox and I think he is of the same opinion and secretly proud of it. His theories are not new to me but I like to hear him talk and try to lead him out every time we meet. I am very much interested in the processes going on in his mind.

One of his themes is "The Consistency of the Cosmos." He says that the laws of nature so-ordinate so as to produce a perfect unity in the universe. The laws that make for cohesion in the material world are also at work in the realm of physical life and if acted upon in society would produce a unified social order. He goes further and says that the same laws would perfectly unify personality and in turn harmonize the soul with universal truth. He was surprised when I told him that Emerson said something about seeing the world as a mirror of the soul one hundred years ago. Incidently I was able to indicate recent works which would clarify his thinking on this theme.

Another theme on which he talks a great deal is "The Equitable Distribution of Resources so as to Meet the Needs of Human Life." This he says is the fundamental problem of our day. It is thought of as an economic problem, but he claims that it is in reality an ethical problem because it affects human relations and human well-being. Anything that affects human well-being has to do with religion, and religion has to do with infinite and eternal laws. He declares that you cannot separate economics from religion and that sound economic procedure is nothing more or less than the practice of human brotherhood.

He is also very fond of talking about what he calls "The Dynamics of Life." When he gets on this theme he generally reviews an elaborate psychological theory which boils itself down to this. Men act from personal interest. Personal interest can be selfish or unselfish. When it is selfish it makes for extinction, when unselfish it makes for comprehensive relationships and for identification with the universal. Co-operation rather than competition; service rather than profit should be the incentive to human endeavor. Natural laws are organized around a principle of mutualism and if they abandoned this principle the universe would not survive. Neither can we expect civilization to survive when it abandons coo-perative effort.

A few months ago some of these theories were quite vague in Ralph's mind, but they are gradually becoming clarified. He is keeping an open mind to all scientific findings, and his interpretation of them is in every case leading him to the conclusion that the ultimate thing in the universe is spiritual. Young men who reason along these lines are not far from the truth and I would not consider this fellow very unorthodox.

A spiritual interpretation of the universe is one of the first requisites for a working philosophy of life, and I wish there were more young people thinking along the same lines as Ralph Bennett.

Large Class For Royal Arch Degree

On Wednesday evening, March 20 at a regular meeting of L.O.L. No. 162 a large attendance of members saw the Royal Arch degree exemplified to a class of candidates in a very effective manner. The master of the degree staff Bro. Clarence VanCamp and the chaplain Bro. Clarence Robinson have certainly succeeded in building up a wonderful degree team After the close of business the brethren were seated to a turkey supper which included all the regular fixings Incidentally we understand that the Wor. Master Bro. Guy Keeler had considerable trouble catching those birds, but the boys found them very appetizing. After supper the chairman, Bro. Guy Keeler, called upon a number of the brethren for speeches amongst whom were Walter Livings, Clarence VanCamp, Carl Reilly, R. VanCamp, P.M. R. J. Pearce, A. Levere, Wm. Morris and a number of others. The secretary during his talk mentioned that the present membership list has exceeded all previous records, of which the lodge is justly proud. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Painting the Ceiling

When painting the ceiling, a good idea is to secure a large hollow rubber ball, such as children play with. Cut it in half and slip one-half over the brush handle to catch the paint drippings.

Too Early for Milk

A couple of tourists called at a farm house of an early morning recently. "We were wondering" spoke up the lady, "if we could get a glass of fresh milk?"

"Now that's too bad," sympathized the housewife, "but you see we live quite a ways from the city, and the milkman hasn't got here yet!"

Mr. Nelson Casselman

On Tuesday the citizens of Morrisburg learned of the death of another of its oldest and most highly respected citizens in the person of Mr. Nelson Casselman. Although Mr. Casselman had not been in robust health for some time, his condition only became serious three weeks ago.

The late Mr. Casselman was born in East Williamsburg, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Warner Casselman and was in his 85th year.

About 30 years ago he came to Morrisburg, where he has lived in retirement.

He was twice married, his first wife being Elizabeth Harkness, who predeceased him 13 years ago. On August 9, 1927, he was married at Lunenburg to Lucinda Werley who survives.

The funeral was held at his late residence on Beckstead st., on Thursday at 2 p.m. Rev. J.A. Payton was in charge of the service. Hymns sung during the service were "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and Abide With Me". A solo by Mrs. Edward Mullin— "Sometime, Somewhere, We'll Understand" was nicely rendered.

The remains were placed in the vault to await burial in the spring in the family plot on his father's farm in East Williamsburg. The pall bearers were Messrs. Walter Beckstead, Andrew McLatchie, Chas. Casselman, Frank Stata, Wm. Hummell, and Wm. Dawson.

Among those from a distance at the funeral were: Mrs. Charles Werley and son Earl, Mr. and Mrs. David Werley of Norfolk, N.Y.; Mrs. McMillan, Mrs. Trueman Price, Miss Bessie Myers, of Cornwall; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Casselman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Casselman, Mr. Wilbert Casselman and Mrs. Harper of East Williamsburg.

He is survived by his widow, one brother, Mr. Frank Casselman of East Williamsburg, and two sisters in New York State.

ADVANCE NOTICE.

Reserve the date May 13th for "The Royal Tour" in the United Church, Morrisburg. 13c.
