Mrs. James McAvoy Dies Unexpectedly Tuesday

The unexpected death of Mrs. Jas. McAvoy was a distinct shock to Chesterville and district friends at the noon hour on Tuesday. Mrs. McAvoy had been about in her usual good health until late on Tuesday morning when she suffered a heart seizure and died before medical aid could reach her. The funeral was very largely attended in St. Mary's church at nine o'clock this morning, when Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. P. J. Keaney. Interment was in the Upper cemetery.

When Mr. McAvoy came home from his morning work of delivering the mail on Rural Route No. 3 Tuesday morning, he went on an errand over-town for Mrs. McAvoy who complained of not feeling well, and he left her resting on a couch. When he returned, Mrs. McAvoy was unconscious and he hurried for Dr. H. Justus. Although the doctor arrived in a few minutes, Mrs. McAvoy had died without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. McAvoy was indefatiguable in her work with the Red Cross throughout the war years and in other community endeavors. She was in constant attendance at the Red Cross rooms assisting with the handling of the large amount of sewing and knitting turned out by the local branch.

She was a devoted member of St. Mary's church, a former president of the Catholic Women's League, and a member of the Altar Society of St. Mary's and the Sacred Heart League.

Mrs. McAvoy, who was the former Nancy Jane McKee, was born in Newington, and was married on October 27th, 1903, at Finch.

Surviving besides her husband, are three daughters: Mrs. D. Hamill (Madolyn) of Montreal; Mrs. J. Kovacs (Edith) of Bellevue, Ohio, and Miss Frances of Ottawa; one son Lt. Jack McAvoy, RCASC, with the Army of Occupation; one sister, Mrs. Jos. Cleary of Harrison's Corners; and three brothers, J. McKee, Newington; T. D. McKee, Oliver Aerdrome, B. C.; F. McKee, White Rocks, S. Dak.

The pall bearers were Thos. Flynn, Bernard Coyne, Wm. McCloskey, Charles Kearns, P. J. Gilroy and J. A. Morris.

Hummel last week purchased the James Blacklock house at the corner of Main and Queen streets.

Bishop of Ottawa Visits Holy Trinity for Confirmation

The Right Rev. Robert Jefferson, Bishop of Ottawa, visited Holy Trinity Parish Sunday evening to administer the rites of confirmation on a class of four girls and two boys presented by the rector, Rev. J. A. Ellacott.

In his address, the bishop thanked the congregation for its loyalty in fulfilling the promise for missionary givings. Ottawa diocese had a great responsibility placed upon it at the beginning of the war, but never failed to fill each year's requests. Four million dollars is asked for next year, of which Ottawa will be asked to give $400,000 to mantain the church's work in the North, especially the schools.

Speaking directly to the children about to be confirmed, His Grace likened them to soldiers of Christ, and like all good soldiers they must retain good health, learn to be obedient, and be ever faithful.

S. S. NO. 10 ORGANIZES FOR CLOTHING COLLECTION

The Red Cross Unit of S. S. No. 10 (Fruid) met at the home of Mrs. Graham Smith where plans were made for the clothing collection to be made early in October. Mrs. Albert Smith, who had attended the rally in Chesterville, explained the plans and the urgency of the appeal. Some of the members will bring their donations to the Red Cross meetings, while others of the district will take their bundles to the depot in the Band Hall on Saturday nights. Red Cross sewing was also distributed at this meeting.

CONTRAST IN WEATHER

Sunday night brought the lowest temperature of the season with frost damaging the less hardy garden crops. The previous week-end had seen the all-high of the summer with the thermometer registering 90 above in the shade.

COAL BUSINESS CHANGES HANDS

Mortgage is Burned By Morewood United

On Thurdsay, September 13th, in a very impressive service arranged by the Rev. E. A. Martineau, minister of the church and carried out by a large number of the officials, the mortgage of Morewood United church was burned. This beautiful edifice, which was built at a cost of $35,000 was dedicated in June, 1926. Since that time the congregation have carried a mortgage in the form of notes of $6400 ,and with interest the total debt amounted to $6681.

In February of this year the minister and his board started a financial campaign to raise this sum and rid the church of this encumbrance. And in seven months through the hearty response of the people they received in cash and pledges the splendid total of $7104.

At the service which was very largely attended, the following former pastors were present and took part: Revs. R. W. Armstrong, J.A. McCaskill and T. A. Woods. Greetings were read from two others, Revs. R. P. Stafford and Geo. Smith. The presbytery was represented by the chairman, Rev. George Beatty and Rev. F. W. Taylor. The Rev. Thos. McNaught and Rev. Wm. E. Wright brought hearty congratulations from the neighboring charges. The Rev. N. Thomas and Official Board of Winchester United Church sent their message of good wishes.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. L. H. Fisher, D.Th., President of the Montreal and Ottawa Conference who gave a very timely and inspiring address in which he emphasized the importance of the church in the life of the community.

The burning ceremony began with the lighting of a large candle on the Communion Table; after which a procession in which representatives of the Baby Band, the Mission Band, the C.G.I.T., the Sunday School, the Y. P. U., the Choir, The W. M. S., The W. A., the Board of Session, the Board of Stewards and the Board of Trustees participated. Each holding a candle marched from the entrance to the rostrum of the church and from the central candle the minister gave light to all the others.

The honor of burning the mortgage was given to Mr. Wesley Smith whose record in this church is as follows: Seventy years a church member, sixty-one years a member of the official Board; fifty years superintendent of the Sunday school, twenty years Elder and Clerk of the Session, seventeen years a Steward, sixteen years a member of the Choir, and twelve years a Lay Preacher.

When the last payment was made by the treasurer, Mr. Harold Faulkner, and the papers went up in smoke, all joined heartily in singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

The choir added to the service by singing two very appropriate anthems.

At the close of the service a social hour was spent in which the Woman's Association served very dainty refreshments.

All join in wishing this congregation many more years of useful service in the Master's Vineyard.

Veterinarians' Contributions Help Maintain Canada's Health

Describing the work of the veterinarians in protecting the lives of animals and the spread of animal diseases to humans, Dr. Gwatkins, Hull, Que., stated it was "not by chance that Canada is so free of infectious diseases, rather it is due to the vigilance of our veterinarians in carrying out the instructions of the Health of Animals Act," when he spoke before the Rotary Club of Chesterville at the Monday evening meeting.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. D. Docksteader, local veterinary, who stated Dr. Gwatkins had come from England in 1907 after completing his education, and after farming in Saskatchewan for six years was appointed to staff of the Ontario Veterinarian College. He served in the first Great War in the artillery, and returned to teaching at the Ontario Veterinary College, then joined the Ontario Research Council before taking his present appointment as Animal Pathologist at the Animal Diseases Research Institute, Hull.

During the business session, Reeve Geo. H. Barkley delegated Councillors Leon Marcellus and Chas. McMillan to wait on Winchester Township Council and ascertain if the township is willing to enter with the village on a scheme to welcome home veterans who have returned from war service.

Guests of the club were Capt. H. H. Lloyd, RCAMC, and Cliff Cunningham, of Montreal, a former member of the club.

Dr. Gwatkins told of the many benefits man has accrued from the animal world since he started the first herd in the woods of ancient times and unknowingly started off civilization on its development, as the first tiny hamlet or village had its birth. Animals have had a great share in reshaping the boundaries of the world. It was a lack of animals and animal food that caused the downfall of Napoleon's grand army on the terrible retreat from Moscow, he said, citing one instance of the link between the animal and human worlds.

The first cows on the American continent were Spanish Longhorns brought out in 1520, and from which the famous Texas Longhorns were developed. The first good type beef cattle were transported from England in 1624. The history of the horse goes back many centuries, and it is known the first of the breed were no larger than a dog.

Among the animal diseases transmissable to man, are tuberculosis, anthrax, contagious abortion which occurs as undulent fever in the human host, glanders of horses, sleeping sickness also transferred from horses, and various types of tapeworms. Mummies of ancient Egypt show the result of bovine tuberculosis in their bones, and the Book of Exodus gives a word picture of a widespread epidemic of anthrax.

The spread of these diseases, and the elimination of foot and mouth and hog cholera epidemics in Canada have been accomplished by the alert and energetic work of the Dominion Health of Animals Branch and the veterinary colleges. The development of the diphtheria toxoid was the work of a veterinarian, declared the speaker as he concluded his very interesting talk.

Matthew Flynn expressed the thanks of his fellow Rotarians to Dr.

AS ONE GANG JAILED ANOTHER FEELS SMARTER

Nemesis has overtaken the Lauzons and their partner in banditing, Peltier. Young Lauzon and his wife are in custody and Peltier is in a Montreal hospital with a bullet wound in his spine, and it is doubtful if he will ever be able to walk again. The fate of the lawbreakers follows a pattern which points to the truism that "Crime does not pay." Following their sensational escape from Waterloo Jail Lauzon and Peltier, despite the police hue and cry, carried out several bold hold-ups, the trail ending outside a race track in faraway Prince Edward Island. Lauzon's young wife, said to be the brains of the pair, accompanied the robbers in their mad dash across five provinces. For a time they found sanctuary in a hideout near Chicoutimi, Que. And just here is to be said something for the security of Government bonds. In their various hold-ups the gang accumulated a large number of bonds, $300,000 worth having already been recovered from the gang hideout in Quebec. It was while endeavoring to cash in on some of these securities in a Montreal bank that Peltier was laid low. It is possible that other imitators will give Government bonds a wide birth in future hold-ups. Criminals of this ilk crave excitement and must be forever on the move. This brings up the question of what is to be done with the inherent lawbreaker. Police experts recommend that a special institution be established in Canada for the professional criminal where he could be incarcerated for life. Releasing him after he had served a prison term simply affords him an opportunity of again preying on the public. The case of Red Ryan bears out this contention. Serving a life sentence in Kingston, the conduct of this plausible desperado was so exemplary that well meaning people interested themselves in his behalf and secured his release. At the very time he was being pointed to as a brand plucked from the burning he had gathered a gang about him and was the principal in nightly hold-ups in Toronto. Finally he essayed a daylight robbery in a liquor store in Windsor and was shot down after a brave constable had been killed in defending the premises. The downfall of Red Ryan so preyed on the mind of a conscientous gospel servant who had staked his faith in his reclamation that it led to his early death.

AUCTION SALES MAKE A RECORD

It is believed the number of Auction Sales billed by farmers in the surrounding district this season is the largest number ever known locally. The Record carried advertisements of no less than 12 in these pages last issue, and a fair sized number appear this week.

Glancing over the bills turned out by the Record staff in the past few days, we see the reasons for sale given are ill health, rental of farm, three are giving up farming, some farms have been sold, and one farmer is returning to the West.

Auctioneers report good prices obtained for farm stock and machinery and with only the odd sale offering credit terms, the farmers disposing of their stock and chattels are really "making hay."

With the depression of the early '30s, the terms for auction sales became strictly cash. The change from long-term credit—sometimes up to 12 months—must have been a good one, for cash sales have been accepted ever since.

There is no doubt that both buyers and sellers have benefitted from this change. A farmer with good credit but a bit short on cash can obtain a loan from his bank at a reasonable rate of interest, and the seller is not left nursing one or two promissary notes that are worthless except for scrap. Neither is the farmer who intends to pay cash forced to bid against the man who, having signed his promissary note, says "Thank God, that's paid for."

PRODUCERS BEGIN TO THINK

It is made clear that stock producers are not opposing the ration principle and are willing to do their share in aiding the hungry people of Europe. The basis of criticism of the present plan by livestock producers, according to H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, is the fear that, with the cattle population at its highest point in history, the capacity of packing houses and the efficiency of the export machinery of the country is not such as to do the job that needs to be done, without serious losses to the producers.

SOUVENIRS PERHAPS BUT STILL LOOT

With at least a minor crime wave in the Province, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is emphasizing that all pocket guns must be registered. This order is particularly aimed at war souvenirs which servicemen may bring back from overseas which, in some cases, include machine guns. It is not contended that these souvenirs will be used unlawfully by veterans, but there is the danger of weapons being stolen and used deliberately in crime. It is pointed out by the Department of Defence that it is contrary to regulations to bring back weapons within the terms of the order bearing on looting.

Dominion House Changes Hands After Being In Flynn Family Almost Seventy Years

Having watched Chesterville grow throughout almost 70 years, the Dominion House has changed hands for the second time in its long history. After being operated by the Flynn family for just over 67 years, Alfred Lavigne, of Kirkland Lake, is now in possession having purchased the place from Thos. Flynn.

The Dominion House was built by the Wyngard Brothers, and was purchased by Matthew Flynn when it was completed, and put into operation as a hotel. The building consisted of five rooms, with a cottage roof, and apparently was plenty large enough to cater to the business of those days, especially as there were at one time five hotels in the village.

Louis LaPierre operated a hotel now occupied by the Chas. McMillan apartments by the C.P.R. Crossing; A. S. Beckstead was in business near the C.P.R. station on King street, but this building was destroyed by fire. Jas. Spotton conducted his hotel in the block now known as the Kearns Building, which was purchased and converted into business places and apartments by the late J. T. Kearns. The McCloskey house was the other establishment and is still carrying on under the old name. Thos. Flynn was the only survivor of this quintet of hotel keepers in Chesterville.

Thos. Flynn took over the Dominion House from his father and under his ownership the house grew to its present 27-room size. Steam heating was installed a few years ago and the frame building has been covered with brick siding, which has changed the appearance considerably. He was assisted in the operation of the hotel by his brother, Edward Flynn, who passed away three weeks ago, and in later years by his son, Matthew Flynn.

For years, the Dominion House has been the centre for race horse owners and drivers in the district. Thos. Flynn was one of the prime movers in the establishment of the present half-mile track which has been rated as the best half-mile course in Eastern Ontario.

The Dominion House was licensed from its inception until the law was repealed in 1916, and the dry years until 1934 were nightmarish for hotelkeepers, Mr. Flynn told the Record.

Going back over the years when the Flynn family commenced its long term in the hotel business here, Mr. Flynn recalled that the majority of the business places were on the south side of the Nation River. It was not until the Canadian Pacific Railway came through in 1886 that the village began to grow north of the river.

The Geo. Barkley store, formerly the T. J. McGee store, has kept the Dominion House company across the street. Ed. Carr was in business, as well as Chester Casselman where Fulton's Block now stands. A. C. Beach operated a general store where the Bank of Nova Scotia now stands.

Going up Queen street, there were Will Gillespie, "Tanner" Smith, Chas. Kane, Wm. Huxtable, Sime Hummel, Geo. Sharkey, and Jos. Fisher.

The Nation was then crossed by a wooden bridge, which was replaced by the present iron structure after a near calamity struck the village in 1887, the year the wooden bridge collapsed.

There was but one school in the village when the Dominion House was opened, the Public School, a three-room building that was destroyed by fire in 1902. St. Mary's Catholic church, the Methodist church and Holy Trinity Anglican church looked after the spiritual life of the village.

South of the river was the McCloskey House, Henry Moad's store, O. D. Casselman's store, Barrie's Mill operated by W. N. Barrie, and utilizing the water power from the Nation.

Only one fire has marred the record of the Dominion House. That occurred a few years ago when the stables were lost.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Flynn will take up residence shortly on Church street, opposite St. Mary's church.

A Common Failing

There is an old Negro preacher down in Mississippi who, despite an extremely sketchy education which makes his reading difficult and faltering, still enjoys opening the Bible at random and preaching upon whatever text his bony old finger falls upon.

One day he opened the Book, peered down owlishly at the page, and read:

"And unto Enoch was born Irad, and Irad forgot Mahujael and Mehujael forgot Methusael, and Methusael forgot Lamech, and Lamech took up-to him two wives and forgot Jabal."

The old darky paused, scratched his chin reflectively, then proceeded to apply his text thusly:

"Now, my beloved bruddern, dis text am meant to show firstly dat dem old patriarchs, dey wuz mighty forgitful. Let us dwell for a little while on de sin of forgitfulness."

DEFLATION
INFLATION
YOU CAN'T GAMBLE WITH

THE DICE ARE LOADED AGAINST YOU

Canadians are lucky. So far we've prevented inflation and avoided deflation.

It's not been just good luck.

Your support—everybody's support—of price ceilings, rationing and other controls alone has made it possible.

BUT NOW COMES THE REAL TESTING TIME.

The danger of inflation and its black shadow, deflation, will last as long as goods are scarce and insufficient to meet demands.

With the war over and plenty of money in our pockets it's easy to overlook the danger.

It's easy to think that paying just a little more to get something we want is unimportant now.

It's easy to think that what you do can't hurt—and to forget that careless, extravagant buying is a sure way to help a general rise in prices.

That's how inflation gets going.

BUT INFLATION IS ALWAYS FOLLOWED BY DEFLATION.

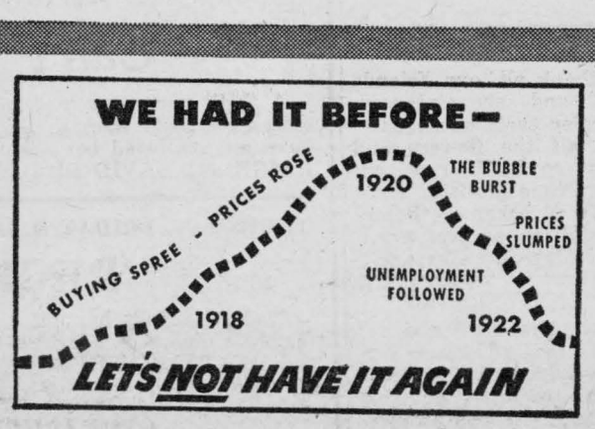
And deflation brings cancelled orders, bankrupt businesses, mortgage foreclosures, unemployment and distress—distress you can't avoid.

Until industry gets back to normal, price ceilings, rationing and other controls are our safeguard.

SO— Keep on watching your buying. Don't rush to buy scarce goods.
Keep on saving your money. Put it into Victory bonds and War Savings certificates.
Keep on supporting wage and price controls, and rationing.
Keep on fighting inflation and its black shadow... deflation.

This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing a further increase in the cost of living now and deflation and unemployment later.

WE HAD IT BEFORE—



LET'S NOT HAVE IT AGAIN

Europe's Liberated Millions Desperately Require Clothing

The winter ahead may be "one of the grimmest in history" for the liberated millions of Europe, warned Herbert E. Lehman, Director-General of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, the other day in London. He was recommending a new UNRRA levy of $1,516,906,150 upon participating nations. He told the delegrates of 43 member countries, "We stand before the crisis. We must act and we must act now."

The thought of winter brings warm clothing to mind. There is much that Canadians would do if they could. Of manufactured goods Canada has little, but there are millions of serviceable used garments lying in attics and clothes closets across the country which can be spared without having to be replaced. A National Clothing Collection is to be held from October 1-20 to reach into every home in Canada for these used clothes. Giving them will not deplete the local supply to a danger point. Quick and decisive action is necessary, for Europe needs them next winter. It is now or never.

This is a fateful hour in history and heed should be given Mr. Lehman's stark warning when he says that unless contributing countries supplement their aid already being given, "the name of the United Nations will be a mockery in Europe this winter". He asked for millions more as he told the meeting: "It is inconceivable that the United Nations could abandon the peoples of the liberated areas of Europe at the moment of their greatest peril. They must be brought safely through the following harvest."

These war-torn peoples will be living precariously at the mercy of the elements from October to April. They are as a shipwrecked crew adrift at sea. We have life-saving equipment. We should give them all we can spare.

Europe's Christmas hearths will be meagrely kindled and the Christmas stockings, if there are any, will be empty. Europe's shivering millions will look at the raiment that shields their frail bodies, and they will think of us who live in lands of plenty according as we measure up to our responsibility and share with them what we can spare—and see that they get it all and get it quickly.

Winchester Boy is Killed When Run Over by Truck

Seven-year-old John Ault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ault, of Winchester, was fatally injured at 5:15 p.m. last Thursday when he feil off a tricycle under the rear wheels of a truck owned by H. S. Lannin Ltd., as the truck was driving into Lannin's garage on Main street.

With a playmate, Billy Rice, John had gone to the garage earlier in the afternoon to get his tricycle repaired. John Ault thought he would try out Billy Rice's tricycle and apparently backed into the truck while it was in motion.

The wheel passed over the boy's head causing a compound fracture of the skull. Robert Brown of Winchester, the driver of the truck, said he didn't see the boy.

Seeing John Ault lying prone on the sidewalk, William Workman, an employe at Lannin's garage, rushed out. He observed that the boy was seriously injured and telephoned his mother, Mrs. Ault, formerly Marion Shaver, of Ottawa.

Dr. H. S. Grosse was summoned and the boy was taken to his office. Dr. Grosse called in Dr. Howard Justus of Chesterville but despite the efforts of both doctors the boy died.

Coroner Dr. T. W. Hamilton, of Brinston, decided no inquest would be held as the death was purely accidental. Constables Gilbert Raistrick and Herbert Helmer, of Winchester, and Provincial Constable R. H. Wan- nel of Morrisburg investigated.

Surviving are two sisters, Carol and Marjorie.

The privilege of talking, and even publishing nonsense is necessary in a free state; but the more sparingly we make use of it the better.—Coleridge.

Rest is the sweet sauce of labor.—Plutarch.

A vine bears three grapes—the first of pleasure, the second of drunkenness, and the third of repentance. —Anacharis.

Ontario's Future In Cheese Industry

By: W. H. Sproule, Professor of Dairying, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont.

Last year, Ontario's cheese output was over 178 million pounds, an increase of 49% over the five year average prior to the war. During the same period 131 million pounds were exported to the United Kingdom. It is largely because of its position in the export market that cheese commands so much attention in Canadian Agricultural policy.

In periods of favourable prices for cheese and other farm products it is well to give careful study and consideration to the future. It is beyond our reach to accurately anticipate what the post-war period may bring. We know that prices which we now enjoy are induced by war demands. It is therefore quite natural to expect that when the war is over and normal demands are resumed many of the price advantages we now enjoy will, of necessity, adjust themselves to lower levels. It was generally recognized, while negotiations regarding the cheese contracts were under way between the British Ministry of Food and the representatives of the Canadian Government, that while twenty-cent cheese was possible during the war it could scarcely be considered as a post-war price. However, it is not necessary that the future be viewed with alarm but rather from the standpoint of exploring possible trends and challenges.

The impact of war is bound to create changed conditions, and these conditions—the aftermath of war—may be expected to be different from those which prevailed in prewar times or during the peiod of the war itself. In order that the cheese producer may successfully meet the demands and uncertainties of the post-war period, a policy of conservation of financial resources now, when farm income is at a high level, would seem to provide the best assurance for the future adjustment period. The temptation to spend in keeping with increased earning power in the purchase of non-essentials should be avoided as far as possible. Funds thus preserved will be available later for both farm and cheese factory equipment which is likely to undergo considerable improvement in design, wearing quality and cost. Reserves of savings accumulated through the purchase of Victory Bonds and bank Savings will enable dairymen not only to withstand loss of markets or decline in prices, should such occur, but also to make possible carrying through such post-war plans as may be deemed necessary in the best interests of the industry.

Let us recall that for the past five years of war the cheese industry has enjoyed a noncompetitve market for all surplus cheese supplies. With the termination of war and the resumption of normal international trade, competition in markets is certain and with it quality will become the deciding factor. To assure the quality of cheese, high quality in milk supplies will be necessary. This involves the possible improvement and modification of many stables in which milk is produced and also, the acquisition of modern milk-cooling facilities on many farms. Undoubtedly the fundamental cause of much of our second-grade and mediocre cheese is traceable to inferior milk supplies. It will be better in the future to provide the facilities and equipment necessary to assure high quality of product even at the expense of quantity. These improvements should not be attempted now because of shortage of labour and materials. The future need of these improvements is one of the essential reasons for conserving finances at the present time.

Among other considerations to which the cheese milk producer should give study immediately is the cost of producing milk from his own herd. Not only will the industry be confronted with competition in cheese quality, but price and cost of production also will be a vital factor in his future. One of the most important ways to reduce the cost of milk production will be to improve the average production per cow. There is no doubt that among our cheese-producing herds of Ontario may be found many individual cows and even herds which, at probable post-war prices for milk, would pay their maintenance, not to mention profits to their owner. To establish these herds upon a paying basis at lower price levels for cheese will require drastic culling of low-producing cows. This will entail a policy of herd improvement which will involve the keeping of milk and fat production records, followed by judicious selection of good cows for replacements. The acquisition of bulls of proven ancestry and the possible introduction of additional females into the herd where necessary will of course require the investment of capital which should be provided for post-war plans.

From the standpoint of cheese-manufacturing costs there is little doubt of the existence of too many small, poorly-equipped factories in Ontario—factories in which the present cheese tonnage output is too small to permit employing sufficient trained personnel to manufacture cheese economically. Many of these factories have been carrying on year after year with old equipment which has reacher a poor state of repair and is not conducive to high-quality cheese. Future demands will undoubtedly make necessary a recognition on the part of cheese producers and factory owners of the need for improved manufacturing facilities. In many instances the amalgamation of two or more existing factories may offer a solution. In such cases, a new building fully equipped with modern vats, cheese presses and curing rooms could be provided, for which the cost can be partly subsidized by the government. The remaining 50% of the cost might be provided from a reserve established for this purpose, facilitated by authorizing that deductions be made from milk payments now when prices are most favorable. The aggregate of funds thus collected might be invested in Victory Bonds, in which form funds would be readily available at a future time when needed. The main point to keep in mind is that careful consideration and planning in advance will be necessary if cheese producers are to secure the greatest benefits from the present improvement in their financial position.

H. School Noon Supervision Benefits Out-of-Town Students

In order that parents and students fully understand the rules governing noon supervision the following facts are mentioned.

The time-table, as planned for this year, is very similar to that of 1944-45. This affords approximately one and one-half hours, at noon, and dismissed as soon after four p.m. as possible. The long noon hour is of benefit to many town students, but frequently leaves out-of-town students with time on their hands.

The Department of Education advises noon supervision of town high schools. In schools such as ours, with Departments of Agriculture, noon supervision is insisted on. This assumes that students, not living in town, are supervised at the school.

The noon supervision of lunches is a definite requirement of the Department and is supported by a provincial grant. Students, from out-of-town, are required to assist and take an interest in this programme.

Many, in fact most High Schools, and a good many Collegiate Institutes have found that much of the health and cadet training programme has to be taken after 4 p.m. This High School has sought, and will seek to keep students after 4 p.m., as infrequently as possible, for this purpose.

It will be seen that considerable extra curricular work can be taken during the noon hour supervision.

The principal is able to state that the vast majority of rural parents consulted have expressed in favour of their children being supervised at the school at noon. Parents, of course, may send word to the principal, any time they wish exceptions to be made. It is hoped that no one will translate the supervision rule in the light of student regimentation. It is designed for the benefit of the school, in accord with Departmental regulations governing Agricultural school grants. Its success of operation is largely in the hands of the parents concerned.

BUTCHERS THREATEN STRIKE FARMERS WILL PAY SHOT

There is a spirit of revolt abroad in the land. The butchers threaten to discard their white aprons and go out on strike against meat rationing. Master plumbers have joined in the protest against the order of the War-time Prices and Trade Board freezing ten major items of plumbing supplies so as to give priority to veterans' homes being built under Government Housing plans. The advantages of the plan, according to the Prices Board, are that it routes needed supplies of plumbing materials through normal channels for the construction of homes built under the Veterans' Land Act and low rental houses erected by Wartime Housing Limited for veterans. A spokesman for the plumbers says the industry has no objection to Government housing getting plumbing materials when the houses are ready for them. What the Association objects to is that so much stock-piling is being held for Government houses which are only in the foundation stage or up to the rafters while other completed houses cannot be occupied for lack of plumbing. He maintains that if private builders were given the same access to materials as Government contractors, they could put up houses in rows too, and cheaper. It is held that shortages of plumbing and heating materials are rapidly creating a situation of panic among the plumbing and heating contracters of Canada. It must be realized, an official says, that a fair percentage of materials available should be allowed private enterprise, which started erecting dwellings long before the Government — buildings which are incomplete today because of lack of materials, while plumbing fixtures are frozen in warehouses for weeks and months waiting to be used on Government projects.

IMMATURE BIRDS IN FLOCK A POULTRY LIABILITY

To make a satisfactory profit from the poultry flock, quality must be considered before quantity. The immature or under-developed bird is far more likely to prove a liability than an asset, says W. T. Scott, Head Poultryman, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

It is not always the size of the flock that controls the revenue but the uniformly good quality and the well directed development of the birds that are important. The smaller flock of well matured birds may show a better margin of profit than a larger flock where the runts have not been properly culled out.

Paying little attention or no regard to the time of year most favorable for good growth, hatching eggs from immature parent stock, errors in feeding and unsanitary surroundings are mainly responsible for late maturity.

Late chicks take longer to mature and are seldom as thrifty as chicks hatched in March or April and the possibility of the late pullets reaching reasonable egg yields at the time of high prices is generally remote.

It is advisbale carefully to inspect the flock in September and by a rigorous culling dispose of the runts.

There should be no difficulty in the selection of the birds that are likely to prove profitable. Their light glossy feather, bright bay eye, red comb and wattles and good weight for age are all unmistakable signs of vigour and proper development. This kind of bird makes a profitable layer of eggs or good dressed meat.

At five months of age the cockerels of the light breed should weigh at least four pounds and the pullets three pounds. The cockerels of the heavy breed should weigh five and a half pounds and the pullets four pounds at the same age. If they are heavier at this age so much the better, the males will bring a better price and the pullets will stand up well under the strain of winter egg production.

Birds that are not up to this standard should be looked upon with suspicion, only an exceptional bird that is undersized can prove to be an asset to the flock.

Attention makes the genius; Newton traced his great discovery to it; it builds bridges, opens new worlds, heals diseases.—Willmott.

MY DEEP-SEA FISHING TRIP

By Amelia MacMillan Lambkin

For many years I have had a great desire to go out over the deep waters on one of the ocean-going fishing-boats. Having expressed the wish to my cousins, they arranged for my going with one of their friends. The arrangement was away back in June while the war was still on, so it was necessary to have a regular Pass port before any of the ocean-going boats would allow you on board. To obtain this, we had to go to the office of the United States Coast Guard at the Navy Yard. To reach this office we must climb a long, steep outside stair. Once inside we could look all over the great harbor—a magnificent view. Right below us, lying in wait, was the newly-launched "Franklin D. Roosevelt"—a gorgeous blue beauty. Here I was interviewed by two U. S. Coast Guard officials—was finger printed, and given a regular questionaire to sign. I also had to present character references and be identified by a citizen owning his own business, who declared me to be a responsible and trust-worthy character. Then a Passport picture was taken and I received a card which allowed of my going out on any of the fishing boats.

Knowing we must leave early, to catch the boat, I had lunch ready the night before, since no food is carried on board. In the event of sea sickness I took Thermos bottles of hot coffee and iced ginger ale.

We had a drive of 14 miles to Sheepshead Bay where the boat was scheduled to pull out at 8 a.m. sharp. We arrived at 7:30. Here was great excitement. Men and women of all nationalities and of every description were rushing about, carrying all kinds of fishing tackle, hampers, boxes and baskets. The men carried burlap bags in which to put their catch. The bay seemed to be carpeted with boats, many of which were elegant yachts and launches owned by New Yorks' millionaires, and costing small fortunes. They made a colorful picture as they lay at anchor, their gorgeous trappings glittering in the sun. Together with these were many sail boats whose lovely white wings dipped gracefully to the breeze. Altogether it made the proper setting preparatory for my maiden voyage.

The friend who took me supplied a splendid, modern rod, equipped with up-to-the-minute gadgets in the latest of reels, sinkers and hooks. I was all excitement over the long waited-for venture.

Our boat was lying in at the dock among scores of others all ready to put out to sea at the appointed time. We got on board right away that we might secure a favorable place at the rail. I was amused watching a big, bronzed seaman who sat on a stool breaking open large clam shells and cutting the meat into sizeable pieces for bait. He had beside him, small tin pans about the size of a saucer. These he filled up for each passenger. This service went with your ticket which cost $4.00 each, with an additional 50 cents if you wished to join in a pool which won a prize of $7.00—this to the one who caught the biggest fish. There was a weather-beaten old tar who came alongside our boat with his smaller one, and he supplied the clams. He handed them up in bushel baskets freshly gathered. I asked the man how many he used for the average trip. He said from 8 to 10 bushels.

When at length the passengers were all on board (about 50 of us) we pulled out, and while our boat was not the largest, she was the fastest and we soon outstripped the others. The morning was dark, threatening rain. This did not materialize but shortly after we left the Bay the wind rose to a great fury and the sea was one mass of white caps. Our boat rolled and tossed as we flew along. Finally, we cast anchor, to try our luck. The boat was plunging so, it took me all my time to keep on my feet with hanging on to the rail and hugging my rod under one arm. We were tossed about like a feather in a gale. She dipped into a trough and just as you thought you were never coming up and would be swallowed up, she would ride high on the breast of a giant wave, the sea splashing in over the deck, and at times everyone flying helter-skelter, as she tossed this way and that. It was too rough to remain put, so we pulled up and away again further out to sea. Then came a moment of respite and we anchored again. All hands cast out their lines, I with the rest, clinging the while with one hand to the boat-rail. I had come to fish and fish I would, so I clung like grim death to my rod while I awaited a friendly fish to grab my bait. All about me, fish were being pulled in, but each time I reeled my line in, the bait was gone and no fish. Finally I caught one—it wasn't the biggest fish in the sea—but it was a fish and I was supremely happy and called to everyone to look. The older fisherman knowing me to be a greenhorn praised my catch. And then the wind started up again worse than ever and making it impossible to keep either your feet or your stomach under control. Everyone got sick, all in a bunch. Ye gods! what a crew. Even the men too were wably.

In one of my somersaults I grabbed a big fat old fisherman with a grip of steel, and begged of him not to move an inch away from me. Poor man! was very patient and when his rod flew out of his hand he looked down at me and asked in very apologetic tones if he might move over and retrieve his rod. Before releasing my grip on him however, I made him promise to come right back, which he did. I'll wager that poor man's arm was black and blue where I gripped him. I was thankful he did not hold it against me, for when we left the boat, he shook hands with me and said:

"Sister! I hope the next time we go fishing the boat will refrain from too many of those Coney-Island Coaster tricks, but believe me I have never seen this old Atlantic any rougher than it has been today." I agreed with him that it was a tough old ocean.

And so—after weighing anchor in many places and tearing over and under the waves at a mile a minute, everyone decided it was much too rough to continue, so we made home at around 3:30 in the afternoon. On arriving there I decided that while I was glad to have had the experience, I really did not crave to repeat it again for a while at least.

We did however gain something. My partner caught the largest fish so we carried home the prize.

The TELEPHONE HAS SERVED THE FARMER WELL

For more than half a century, the telephone has served the farmer well . . . in business . . . in emergencies . . . in more pleasant living.

There was the farmer, for example, who wrote that his telephone enabled him to get better prices for his crops.

"It gets me to market in a few seconds," he said, "and at the best time."

Today, the number of rural telephones is at an all-time high. When materials and man-power are again available, it will be much higher. Telephone service for farms will be even better than ever before.

HORSES THAT "SWEAT BLOOD".

In the Chinese section of the Royal Ontario Museum there are many small figures of horses, brightly coloured and full of animation. Behind them there is a story which takes us back over 20 centuries. In 138 B.C. the Emperor of China sent an emissary, Chang Ch'ien, to the northwest border of the country in search of a nomad tribe. He finally found it. Among other wonders, he reported to his Emperor that he had seen large and powerful horses that "sweat blood". When peaceful efforts failed to obtain samples of these "Heavenly Horses", as the Chinese called them, an army was despatched to seize some. At great cost of soldier's lives, some hundreds of these horses were brought back to China and bred. For centuries they were the delight and pride of Chinese officials who owned them. When an official died small portrait models in clay of his favourite steeds were put in the tomb with him.

The blood sweating was probably due to a disease common to horses in northern Persia even to-day. It is caused by a small parasitic roundworm which gets under the skin of a horse and causes small haemorrhages that colour the foamy sweat of the animal when it is exercised. Apparently this disease does not materially weaken a horse.

MORE SOAP

Welcome news to the housewife is the Prices Boards' assurance that there will soon be an increased supply of bar and household type soaps.

A new soap order brings redistribution of the soap manufacturers' own allocation of soap fat, resulting in the availability of several million pounds more laundry soap within a few weeks.

F. H. Lehberg, Administrator of Oils and Fats, pointed out that there is no lack of soap in Canada and that the recent scarcity of bar laundry soap was the result of a shortage of specific raw material coupled with panic buying and hoarding.

Tragedian: My parents tried hard to keep me from becoming an actor.

Comedian: I congratulate them on their success!

Animated

A young mother was aboard the Staten Island ferry with her little boy. A tug boat passed with a big vessel in tow, and every once in a while the tug would whistle a blast or two. The towline stretched from tug to steamer.

"Look, mama," the little boy said. "The big boat has the little one by the tail and it makes the little one squeal."

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! One way of reducing the quantity of sugar used daily by your family is the combination of salad and dessert courses. Dessert-salads and fruit cups afford a sugarless dessert without sacrifice of vitamins and minerals. Furthermore, they save time in meal preparation.

Combine some of the features of both salad and dessert. Use several fruits with a not-too-sweet dressing, crisp lettuce and a garnish of watercress. The secret of success lies in the coldness of both salad and serving plate; the compatability of the ingredients; and the attractiveness of the arrangement. If gelatine is used it should be light in colour and flavour so as not to mask either the appearance or flavour of the fruits held in it. For an interesting finishing touch, sprinkle cake crumbs on top when partially set.

CLARA SALAD

Twelve cooked prunes, 6 raw peaches skinned and quartered, 1 package of cream cheese, bunch of grapes (separated into sprigs of 6 or 7 to a stem), lettuce.

Stuff the stoned prunes with cheese. Arrange fruit and lettuce attractively on salad plate, leaving the peaches until the last minute.

QUICK JELLIED FRUIT SALAD

1 tbsp. gelatin, ½ cup cold water, 2 cups left-over fruit juice or orange juice, 1 cup diced fruit, ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ tsp. salt.

Soften the gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Add lemon juice, salt and dissolved gelatin to fruit juice. Stir. Turn into mould that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill. When firm unmould onto lettuce and serve with salad dressing if desired.

This may be served in a ring of cottage cheese. Press cottage cheese into individual ring moulds which have been rubbed with salad oil. Chill and turn out.

MERINGUE PEACH CAKE

1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ cup shortening, ¾ cup milk, 1 tsp. vanilla, cooked peaches, 2 egg whites, ⅛ tsp. cream of tartar, 4 tbsps. sugar.

Sift flour before measuring, then sift together with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, add the sugar gradually and beat together, add beaten eggs and beat until mixture is fluffy. Combine milk and vanilla and add alternately with dry ingredients to egg mixture, using folding motion. Do not beat. Pour at once into greased 9x9 baking pan. Bake in electric oven (350 degs.) for 30 to 40 minutes. Then cut in squares. Arrange slices of peaches on top of each square. Beat egg whites until foamy. Add cream of tartar, continue beating until egg whites are stiff. Fold in the 4 tbsps. of sugar gradually. Spread meringue over peaches and bake in slow oven (300 degs. F.) until the meringue is lightly browned. Eight servings.

Note—Left-over plain, spice or sponge cake may be used this way too.

TAKE A TIP.

1. If corn-on-the-cob is tender and sweet, with that fresh-from-the-garden flavor, you will not require much butter.

2. Corn loses its flavour rapidly, so the sooner it is used after picking the better.

3. Choose ears that are plump and well-filled.

4. Overcooking is the cause of unappetizingly tough ears. Place the trimmed ears of corn in boiling salted water; cover and cook rapidly 5 to 7 mins. If water does not continually boil, the corn will lose its sweetness. Some varieties require 10 to 12 minutes. Drain immediately and wrap in a soft towel or serve at once in a heated dish.

5. Leave left-over cobs of cooked corn in the refrigerator until you prepare a supper dish, then cut kernels off and add to mixtures for stuffed tomatoes, stuffed green peppers or casserole dishes.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. A. asks: How do you cook a tongue nicely?

Answer: Soak salted tongues overnight. Fresh pickled tongues need only a thorough scrubbing with a brush and cold water. Cooking time: for beef tongue, 2½ to 3 hours; calves', 2 to 2½ hours; pork, 1½ hours.

Since salted tongues are available we suggest:

Spiced Boiled Tongue—Cover meat which has been soaked overnight with boiling water. Add ½ tsp. salt for each pound of tongue. Add 2 sliced carrots, 1 stalk of celery and leaves, 1 onion stuck with 6 cloves, 1 bayleaf. Bring to boiling point and simmer (not boil!) until tender. Remove the tongue from liquid and skin while hot, starting from the thick end. Cut out any small bones embedded in roots and trim off fat.

Mrs. J. B. asks: Why does some chili sauce look a lot darker than others?

Answer: A bright red chili sauce is the result of using whole mixed spices and careful simmering, while ground spices tend to darken the relish.

Mrs. S. M. asks: What causes Parker House rolls made with mashed potatoes to turn grey?

Answer: It may be cold potatoes or too much handling of dough. The mashed potatoes should be cooked fresh and used hot. When flour is being added, stir in enough to stiffen the dough, then knead in the remaining quantity.
