Stanley Fetterley Falls From High Tree On Victoria Street

Stanley Fetterley took on the contract to remove a couple of old dozy California maples on the property of Leon Marcellus on Victoria Street last week. Assisted by Jack Barkley and Jack Hartwell, he had felled the largest of the maples without trouble other than quickly removing a telephone pole when the falling tree caught the wires.

The remaining tree was smaller and seemed to present no problem. Fetterley had removed many of the top branches and had them lowered to the ground by rope. In the early afternoon of Friday when work commenced again, there remained several tall limbs hanging over the street. The saw was busy gnawing away at one of them well above the hydro lines when Fetterley slipped and to the horror of onlookers crashed to the icy pavement, falling a matter of 25 feet and landing with a sickening thud on the side of his head and shoulder.

Mr. Marcellus, who was at home at the time, rushed the injured and unconscious man to the hospital at Winchester. His condition was serious and after emergency treatment he was transferred to the Ottawa Civic.

At this writing the injured man is doing as well as can be expected. He is 72 years old.

Hospital Auxiliary Plans Further Purchases For Memorial Hospital

The February meeting of the Winchester District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, which was held in the Winchester Town Hall on the evening of the 5th of February, was very well attended by interested members wishing to help with further progress of the work of the Auxiliary. Mrs. F. M. Cass, the president, was in the chair, assisted by the secretary, Mrs. Lyle Marcellus.

Cass Bridge, Chesterville, Melvins, Morewood, Mountain Ridge, Ormond, Winchester, Mountain and Inkerman units were represented. These answered the roll call by telling of card parties, skating parties, a rummage sale, draw tickets on a beautiful quilt, variety concerts, etc. that these units had put on showing their activity in raising funds for the Auxiliary.

The treasurer, Miss N. Elliott, said after monies had been received and spent, $1921.70 was the cash on hand.

The purchasing committee had very ably completed the repair work at the hospital planned for at the last meeting at a cost of $539.60. The convener, Miss Madge Coons, also brought to the notice of those present that some more things could be purchased to help in the good work already being done at the hospital. These were linens, brush dispenser, baker, lamps, table and steam insulator. It was the wish of all to make necessary purchases of linen and the Auxiliary would pay for same. With the approval of their respective units, Cloverdale and Harmony would supply the brush dispenser and Ormond, the baker. Morewood and Chesterville are to consult their units as to which of these articles they would care to give their funds for.

Miss H. Wilson, superintendent, gave a very fine report of January at the Memorial Hospital. Many patients were cared for and much work done at this busy place of the community. The value of donations in money, etc. to the hospital in 1952 was $8925.42. Of this $2513.52 was for equipment, the greatest of which was the installation of a bell system at a cost of $1186.40. The meeting adjourned with the singing of the national anthem with Mrs. Cass as accompanist.

Dr. J. A. MacMillan Dies Native of Finch

Decendant of a pioneer family of Finch and one of Canada's leading eye specialists, Dr. John Alexander MacMillan died at his home in Montreal Friday at the age of 67.

Dr. MacMillan enjoyed a long and brilliant career before his retirement in 1948. For many years he had been associated with Royal Victoria Hospital and McGill University, from which he received his MDCM degree in 1906.

Dr. MacMillan's great-grandfather came to Finch in 1806 from Invernesshire near Lochaber in Scotland. Half the land which the pioneer farmed is still retained by Miss Annie MacMillan, sister of Dr. MacMillan, and until he became ill two years ago, Dr. MacMillan often returned to his home village. There are numerous relatives in the Finch area.

Dr. MacMillan was the son of the late James MacMillan and the former Mary Cameron. Surviving besides his sister is a brother George MacMillan, a civil engineer in Medicine Hat, Alta. He also leaves two daughters, Mrs. David F. Kerr (Peggy), and Mrs. G. D. F. Robertson Cooper (Marion), and three grandchildren. His wife, the former Edith Leslie died in 1947.

Dr. MacMillan received his early education in Finch and at Cornwall High School. Following his graduation from McGill, he interned at the Royal Victoria Hospital and took post-graduate studies at the Manhattan Eye, Ear Nose and Throat Hospital in New Yory City. He then took one year's additional study in Europe.

He was appointed to the staff of the Royal Victoria Hospital in 1913 and later went overseas with No. 3 Canadian General Hospital in France, serving with the rank of major as consultant opthalomogist with the Canadian Corps during 1918-19.

Following the war he returned to the Royal Victoria Hospital and was later named opthalomogist-in-chief, a post he held until his retirement in 1948, when he was made honourary consultant.

He was chairman of the medical board of the hospital from 1945 to 1948. He was also professor and chairman of the department of opthalmologists at McGill University from 1941 until his retirement.

He was made a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and was on the Council of the Association of Research in Opthalmology at the State University of Iowa.

For four years he was president of the Pan-American Conference of Opthalomogy and was chairman of the council of the American Opthalmological Society in 1949-50.

He was consultant in opthalmology to the Physicans Hospital, Plattsburg, NY, and the Jewish General Hospital in Montreal. He was also president of the Canadian Opthalmological Society in 1946-47 and held the same position with the Montreal section in 1936-37.

He served as president of the Montreal Medico-Chirugical Society in 1945-46.

Friends Shocked by Death Of Jack M. Hill Last Friday At His Home

The funeral service of Jack Marcellus Hill was held at the United Church, Williamburg, Sunday afternoon. The pastor, the Rev. G. H. Dunlop officiated. The church and adjoining Sunday School were filled with friends paying their last token of respect to one who was widely known and esteemed in the district. There were also many floral tributes to his memory.

His sudden death at his home at Bouck's Hill, about a mile east of Williamsburg on Friday, Feb. 6, caused much sorrow to all who knew him. He was seemingly in his usual good health on that day and went with his father to the barn to harness the horses. Having placed the harness on the animals he stepped back from them and fell, dying before aid could be summoned.

He was born at Dunbar, a son of George Hill and his wife Fanny Marcellus. He attended school at Bouck's Hill and Morrisburg Collegiate Institute. He then took up farming on the home farm, a work that was dear to him. He was a member of several farm organizations, in which he was deeply interested, also the I.O.O.F., Williamsburg and the Williamsburg United Church.

Five years ago he married Doris Strader of Williamsburg who survives, with two young children: Lynn Hill, four years and Shaler Hill, 20 months. Other survivors are his father, George Hill of Bouck's Hill; and three sisters: Mrs. Philip Strader (Clara), Smiths Falls; Mrs. Howard Hanna (Mae), Addison, Ont.; and Mrs. Trevor Crowder (Rose), Morrisburg.

Following the service interment was made in the family plot in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Pall bearers were: Alton Barkley; Clifford Casselman, Ralph Casselman, Claude Casselman, Aden Casselman, and Ferenley Johnston.

Along The Way

By Stylus

Christmas hadn't quite faded into the past, in fact the Christmas tree had not been taken down when the skating season rolled in. Junior had had his eye on the situation for some time, so when the first whisper reached us that there was skating on the river, he got his skates out. Of course he couldn't go alone, if for no other reason than that he needed help lacing his boots, so his weren't the only skates that came out of the mothballs that day. The surprising thing wasn't that, however. It was that Junior had hardly worn off last year's rust when his sister helped herself to his skates while he was at school one day. No one had thought of the twins beginning their skating career this year, they didn't even show any interest in the sport. When the skates didn't come off for the whole afternoon, though, a different opinion was forced upon us. Indeed, it was only two or three days later that we were constrained to venture forth in pursuit of two more pairs of skates—for most things have to come in twos around here—and luckily we secured them without too much trouble. It has been pretty slippery along the way ever since.

While the weather this past month hasn't been what grown-ups would wish for, it couldn't have been more perfectly made to order for Canada's future skating champions. You can find them in action in almost every corner of the town. There are groups of boys playing hockey and groups of girls practicing 'figure' skating. There are older ones whose keen blades cut nicely into the ice, and younger ones who get around as much on their knees as on their feet. In my day the big question was: "Are your's CCM?"; today it is: "Are your's Barbara Ann Scott's?" There is a particular trio in our corner of the town who even managed to get someone to flood a rink for them—thank goodness the rain has taken over and we don't have to get ourselves soaked with icy water any more! The trio are referred to as Sonja Henie, Barbara Ann Scott and Susan Morrow (although any resemblance to people living or dead is quite coincidental); the Canadian hopes of the 1975 Olympics, if they have 'Olmpics then!

But the sport is not without its problems. There is, for example, the daily question: To skate or not to skate! Some enthusiasts have even been known to slip out before breakfast (or even before Mummy gets down to get the breakfast) and test the ice to see whether the puddle is sufficiently frozen. If conditions are right there is an upsetting rush to get under way. Stockings, perhaps even the ones that were "hung by the chimney with care", are yanked out of drawers, sweaters, leggings, windbreakers, caps and mitts all form a jumble in the middle of the floor.Someone is sure to trip over the toaster cord (and if the toaster falls to the floor just once more it will never work again) or upset the milk jug in their haste. Eeven the dog knows enough to get out, out, out of the way. There is turmoil everywhere, and none is ever so popular as Daddy, because he alone can really draw the laces tight enough. Usually things gradually sort themselves out, Daddy's mutterings over the lace that broke is forgotten, the fighting over who wears which scarf, mitts, cap is settled and the enthusiasts hit the ice. Peace and quiet reign again.

Of course, Neighbour, we watch from the window for no TV show will ever equal the performance that goes cn on the frozen puddle at the end of the lawn (where that flower garden will soon be in full bloom.) We soon lose count of the number of falls that take place although they get fewer as 'practice makes perfect'. If the girls are in good form they may try gliding on one foot the way they saw Mary do the other day. Indeed, one may even manage a turn at the end of the rink. So, in spite of wobbly ankles, buckling knees and tumbles galore, they 'skate'.

The business of growing up! How the little ones seek to emulate the grownups, to excel, to perfect an accomplishment. Such incentive, and what prompts it? No mere monetary return or material advantage, that's for sure. There must be something deep down that will not rest until it finds suitable expression. It bears out the Earl of Chesterfield's rmark that "Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well", doesn't it, Neighbour?

THE IMPERIAL STATE CROWN

When Her Majesty the Queen leaves Westinister Abbey after the Coronation and drives through the streets of London to Buckingham Palace, she will be wearing the Imperial State Crown. This has been recently taken from the Crown Jewels in the Tower of London and is now being remade to fit Her Majesty. It is essential that it should fit her as comfortably and securely as possible as she will have to wear it for a considerable time and will be unable to adjust it during the procession, as she will be holding the Sceptre in her right hand and the Orb in her left.

In a recent BBC broadcast Cecil Mann, the Crown Jeweller who is supervising the complicated and skilled work of remaking the Imperial State Crown, said it was originally made for Queen Victoria in 1838. By 1937 it was required again for the Coronation of His Majesty King George VI, and the jewels had become gravely insecure in their settings and the Crown was entirely remade. The jewels were now completely secure but the Crown itself did not fit the Queen. The Imperial State Crown is more than a foot high and weighs three pounds, a jeweled band fits over the soverign's brow and mounted on it are four Fleur de Lys and four Maltese Crosses. On top of these spring four jewelled arches of pearls and diamonds, fashioned as oak leaves and acorns, a design that dates back to the days of Charles II. The first thing the jewellers will do is to remove the arches and crosses which are secured with gold screws. All the jewels must then be removed and the headband cut in four places. After altering its shape it will be soldered together again and the jewels reset. This apparently simple operation requires very great craftsmanship and while it is being done new arches will be made and set with the jewels taken from the originals. In due course arches, Maltese Crosses and Fleur de Lys will be assembled on the band for polishing, and the last thing will be the insertion of the purple velvet cap that goes up inside the crown and is then fitted with its band of miniver trimmed with ermine. The Crown will then be submitted to the Queen for her approval. Mr. Mann has been asked many times what it felt like to hold the Imperial State Crown and said in his broadcast that it was always a great moment of pride to feel that he was holding in his hands what was, after all, the emblem that bound the British Commonwealth and Empire together.

DEAD CITY IN THE DESERT

For some time archaeologists have been trying to find out why all the inhabitants fled from Mohenjodaro, the Mound of the Dead, more than three thousand years ago. This complete, red brick city lies some two hundred and fifty miles north of Karachi, in the heart of the Sind Desert in Pakistan, and the BBC's correspondent in India and Pakistan, Richard Williams, recently made his way to the unaccessible spot to see the silent city. Broadcasting in "Eye Witness" he said that the site is one of the most important excavations of recent times and comparable in antiquity and historical significance to the Valley of the Kings in Egypt, though of less splendour.

When digging started less than 30 years ago the ruined city lay under thick alluvial soil and silt washed up by the Indus during its periodical floods and when this had been cleared away a great deal was revealed of the ancient Indus civilisation of about 2400 B.C. Williams travelled the last few miles along an exceedingly dusty road in intense heat. The desert crackled under the pitiless sun, even tough green bushes wilted and there was almost no sign of life. "Mohenjodaro itself was dead asleep", he said, "like London on a Sunday afternoon, but there would be no awakening on Monday morning." He walked down the wide main street with his guide, and visited the houses of the wealthy in one quarter and those of the slaves in the other. The spacious bathing pool had survived and the well constructed drains were a notable feature but there was no trace of the temple that the excavators expected to find. The architecture and town planning were monotonously regular and followed a strict geometric pattern and when everything had been examined and the relics pieced together it was possible to reconstruct in outline the kind of life led by the former inhabitants.

The people of Mohenjodaro were a highly organised and proserous agricultural community. They kept many domestic animals and trading links have been established between them and the people of Sumer, a contemporary civilisation in Mesopotamia.

They were cultured and fond of jewellery and ornaments, and left behind a large number of seals beautifully engraved with representations of different animals. The language they spoke never has been deciphered. Discoveries pointed to increasingly disturbed conditions towards the end of the city's thousand years of life and hidden objects and shoddy construction were among the signs of fear. Skeletons were found lying unburied on a staircase, with the other evidence of massacre and the hasty departure of the inhabitants, and it is now thought that the city was sacked and destroyed by the Aryan invaders who came that way three thousand five hundred years ago. But no one can be absolutely sure.

MRS. CAROLINE CAMPBELL, 98 DIES AT FINCH

Many friends and relatives assembled in St. Luke's Presbyterian church in Finch on Friday afternoon to pay final tribute to the memory of Finch's oldest resident, Mrs. Caroline Campbell who passed away Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. A. MacLean in her 98th year.

Mrs. Campbell was born on March 5, 1855, in Osnabruck township, her maiden name being Caroline Campbell, daughter of the late James Campbell and his wife, Marion Duffield. In 1872 the family moved to Finch township where she later married William Campbell who died in March, 1913. Mrs. Campbell moved to Finch village in 1942 with her daughter, where she has continued to live, being confined to her bed since December, 1948, due to a fractureed hip sustained in a fall at that time.

Mrs. Campbell was a member of St. Luke's Presbyterian Church and a pioneer of the district.

Left to mourn her passing are her daughter, Mrs. A. A. MacLean, one sister, Mrs. Lillas Alguire, Finch; three grandchildren, Stuart C. MacLean, Ottawa; Mrs. Gordon B. McNeil, Aldershot and Miss Vera MacLean at home; also three great grandchildren, Heather and Bruce MacLean and Betty McNeil.

The funeral was held at St. Luke's church with the services being conducted by the Rev. John Honeyman, Finch, assisted by the Rev. R. Millar, Martintown, a close personal friend of Mrs. Campbell and a former minicter of St. Luke's and the Rev. H. M. Beach, Finch.

Pall bearers were Hawley MacLean, Basil Crawford, Roy Rupert, Ernest Campbell, Merritt Campbell and James Campbell.

Surrounding the casket were many floral tributes to the memory of the deceased. The sorrowing relatives received many expressions of sympathy.

The body was placed in the vault at Finch to await burial in the family plot in Finch cemetery.

UP IN THE WORLD

Sheep herders of Landes, France, overcome the boggy condition of their grazing fields by wearing long stilts, over six feet in height. A third stilt is carried with them and when they want to rest they sit on the third stilt.

Perched high in the air on his tripod arrangement, the Landes shepherd looks like a fantastic long-legged insect, but he can keep a watchful eye on his sheep and if one strays from the flock the shepherd can easily catch up to it in a few monstrous strides.

Perhaps the most unusual feature of the stilt-wearing shepherds is, that while perched on their tripods, they spend their time knitting—and are quite adept as any woman knitter who operates in a rocking chair.

It is said that when one witnesses a group of men on three-legged stilts all busily knitting the memory of the sight remains vivid for years.

Relief Sought in Social Field By Municipalities from Gov.

Annual grants to relieve the cost of municipal social services were demanded from the Provincial Cabinet on Tuesday by the Ontario Municipal Association.

The association, which represents some 250 municipalities, also asked that revenue from the administration of justice be turned over to the municipalities.

Other requests:

1. That the Government assume a fair share of the responsibility for "manipulations" of the level and flow of the Great Lakes, and make compensation accordingly.
2. That standard plans for school buildings be made available through the Department of Education to all municipalities wishing lower cost school buildings.
3. That workmen's compensation benefits be boosted for widows, invalided widowers, children and orphans.
4. That Porvincial Government make further provision for care and housing of elderly persons who don't wish to leave their home community.

The association also requested changes in legislation dealing with maintenance of provincial wards without residence, changes in the Local Improvement Act and revival of the confirmation of the Tax Sales Act.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Shrove Tuesday the day before Ash Wednesday, ushers in the Lenten season. It was so-called from the custom of confessing or receiving shrift on that day. Among many nationalities there is a special occasion for rejoicing — Italian folk may have a Carnival, the French a Mardi Gras and to the English, a family eating pancakes is typical.

Since the modern trend is to use the waffle iron and prepared mixes we shall remind you of do's and dont's in the preparation of crisp waffles at your table. Nowadays mother should be enjoying her serving after the first batch is made since a waffle iron will not mark the finish of the table. So make them at the table. By the way, we make the first number of servings and place them individually on the shelf in a low temperature oven before mealtime.

TAKE A TIP

1. If the waffle iron has not been used for several months it is wise to repeat the seasoning method. To do this, heat the iron for 2 minutes, then pour on hot unsalted fat or vegetable oil and close the grids for about 2 minutes. At bake position pour on batter, then as soon as the steam stops coming from sides remove waffle and discard it.
2. If there are any crumbs on the iron brush with a hard brush.
3. If waffles stick to the mould, the iron may not be hot enough, batter may be too thin or contain too much sugar.
4. Always close the waffle iron between the baking of waffles. Leaving it open cools the top grid so that the next waffle does not cook evenly.
5. Length of baking time depends on consistency and amount of batter. A fruit batter, for example, bakes more quickly than a plain waffle. Uspally an 800 watt iron requires 4 minutes to heat to bake and 4 minutes to cook the waffles. Never lift the lid until reasonably sure that the waffle is done or it will stick or separate.
6. For variation add a dash of your favourite spice to the waffle batter. Better still, add orange or lemon rind.
7. Accompany waffles or pancakes with fried sausages, bacon or ham as a main course.
8. As a dessert course or in place of toast and jam serve waffles with warmed jelly, lemon sauce, drained fruit such as pineapple. Of course everyone favours rich maple syrup having dotted the waffles with butter.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. T. H. asks for a Pancake recipe using sour milk.

Answer:

Sour Milk Pancakes

1¼ cups sifted flour
½ tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp. salt
1 egg
2 tbsps. sugar
1 cup sour milk

Sift flour, salt, soda and sugar. Beat egg and add milk. Stir milk and egg into flour mixture thoroughly. Bake on a hot iron or aluminum pan. Turn to brown. Serves 6.

Note: May add 1-3 cup chopped chocolate chips to this mix.

Miss J. C. asks: Why do pancakes burn at the edges?

Answer: The pan must be too hot since it should not be at a temperature when a drop of water will roll in the pan; never smoking hot. Then, too, the batter must be a bit too thick.

Mrs. B. D. asks for a nut bread recipe that will be moist.

Answer:

Nut Bread

2 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup milk
2 tbsps. shortening melted
½ tps. salt
1 cup chopped walnuts
3½ cups sifted pastry flour
3½ tsps. baking powder

Beat eggs and sugar until light then beat in milk and shortening. Add nuts. Stir in the flour which has been sifted twice with baking powder and salt. Pour into a greased rectangular casserole and allow to stand for 20 minutes before baking. Bake in a pre-heated oven at 375 degrees for abuot 50 minutes.

Shrimps, common to Canadian coastal waters, mature first as males in the first or second year. After one or two seasons as sexually active males, these shrimp change sex and function as females for the rest of their lives.

The value of Canada's production of ski poles and fittings in 1950 amounted to $287,142 and should be even greater during the 1952-53 season since the sport is becoming ever more popular.

In 1949 a population check showed the average number of children per family in Canada by racial origin as: British, 2.87; French, 5.35; others, 3.23.

ANIMAL AILMENTS AND GYPSY CURES

Juilette de Baircli Levy studied animal medicine at Manchester University but soon decided that orthodox veterinary practice was not for her. She began to treat animals with herbs and followed the gypsies' treatment, working and living with them in many parts of the world. In her BBC talk she said gypsies believed that plants can cure every animal ailment and pass their herbal knowledge down from family to family only telling it to other people in very rare cases. Her search for gypsy remedies had taken her from Mexico to Turkey, all along the Mediteranean and to North Africa, and she had obtained many herbal cures from gypsies and made numbers of lasting friendships.

She began to work in England, mostly on dogs suffering from distemper, using the gypsy remedy of wild garlic roots and fasting on honey and water whilst fever was present. She cured hundreds of dogs and then turned to horses and cows with equal success, making use of the supreme gypsy herb garlic, wood sage and dock leaves. After Britain's cruelly hard winter of 1947 she went to the Yorkshire dales, where more than a thousand sheep were suffering from an infection that was a relic of snow starvation; paralysis was striking them down and ewes were losing their lambs. She gave them garlic to check the infection, extract of meadow grasses and nettles to restore health, and black molasses and saved nearly every animal. Her particular pride was a ewe that had been paralysed in its hind legs for two months. Her herbs effected a spectacular cure and the ewe was standing in ten days, running rapidly in three weeks and produced twin lambs the following Spring.

In Mexico she used garlic with plugs of nettles up the nostrils to cure of sinus disease a mare condemned to be shot. In Turkey she doctored a cat which belonged to the Director of the National Bank in Smyrna. The big brindled beast with magnificant eyes had pneumonia and when Miss de Bairacli Levy saw him he had a high fever and was breathing painfully in a hot stuffy room, saturating the cushion on which he lay with pouring saliva. She advocated strict diet, herb pills and fresh air, and after much heated discussoin windows were flung open, garlic and fenugreek seed pounded into pills and all food but honey and water witheld. Five days later she called at the flat and pussy came strutting out to greet her, his tail erect and his big eyes shining.

Another cure was given on an island off Tunisia where her own dearly loved Afghan hound was attacked by a dangerous parasitical mite, minute, black and unaffected by DDT and said to kill all dogs in ten days. A combination of gypsies' and Arab cures saved her hound, which she took daily into the sea and fed with crude salt in his meat—the Arab method—adding to this the gypsy medecine of garlic internally, external dusting with sand and insect powder as a smothering agent ,and rubbing all over with crude vinegar into which a little essence of eucalyptus and camphor had been put to discomfort the mites and destroy their eggs. The fatal eleventh day passed, the hound lived, his mites decreased and at the end of a month he was free and well.

She was eternally grateful to the gypsy herbalists who taught her so much, usually by a great fire of tree boughs and brush that cast a golden light around. She found gypsy life in all countries both alluring and rewarding and it had given her material for several books and enabled her to heal sick creatures of every kind. "Seventeen years with the gypsies have caused me to love and admire this strange and little known race of people who have preserved the precious art of herbal medicine which otherwise would have become almost lost to this modern world", she said.

CHIP ON HIS SHOULDER

HE ALWAYS has something to grumble about,
The man with a chip on his shoulder;
The world to the dogs is going, no doubt,
To the man with a chip on his shonlder.

No matter what happens, it never is right;
When peace is prevailing, he is spoiling to fight

CANADIAN PLOWMEN ABROAD

by ROY SHAVER Past President
ONTARIO PLOWMEN'S ASSOCIATION

Douglas S. Reid

Algie Wallace

Editor's Note:

Roy Shaver, of Finch, Ont., past president of Ontario Plowmen's Association, accompanied Douglas S. Reid, of Brampton, Ont. and Algie Wallace, of North Gower, Ont., Canada's champion plowmen, on their trip to the British Isles, Eire and France. This is the third of a series of five weekly articles he has written as team manager about their experiences and impressions.

PLOWMEN'S NEWSLETTER

Fame touched us fleetingly late in November when we were staying at the Gresham Hotel in Dublin, and for a brief minute or so it looked as if Canada's champion plowmen and their team manager were going to be called to another or more glamorous career.

Registered with us at the Gresham was—as the placards in Dublin cried—"the incendiary American blonde," Betty Hutton, and her party. I must confess that the visit by Doug Reid, Brampton, Ont., champion tractor plowman, Algie Wallace, North Gower, champion horse plowman and their team manager, Roy Shaver, Finch, Ont., was rather overshadowed by this party. The American group was the reason for our new-found fame—if such it can be called.

Young Dubliners seemed to hang around the hotel to catch glimpses of the glamorous Miss Hutton, and one day as we emerged onto the street in our tall, white Western hats, we heard a shrill cry: "Oh, look! There's Miss Hutton's cowboys!" Though their legs were not bowed in the traditional Lone Star manner, Doug and Algie carried off their new roles with a fine air of nonchalance.

However, though we sat at the next table in the dining room, we received no bids from Miss Hutton and so recrossed the Atlantic as dairy farmers instead of cow-punchers.

Soon after our return to Canada someone asked Doug which part of the trip he would choose if he were allowed just one section of it over again. Without hesitation he said, "The trip to Ireland." Algie enthusiastically concurred. Their choice had nothing to do with Miss Hutton. It was because, as Doug said, "The Irish really did us proud."

That is not meant to decry or belittle our reception elsewhere in the British Isles. Far from it.Wherever we went we were welcomed with open arms. I can only say that the general enthusiasm with which we were received speaks volumes for the teams of Canadian plowmen who made the trip in previous years. The teams that went before us left wonderful impressions of Canada and Canadian plowmen.

So I don't think it was because the Irish did anything more to make us feel at home than anyone else, it was just that they did it with a Gaelic zest that is probably peculiar to Irishmen.

Perhaps it was also that some of the things we saw in Ireland were unique and added savour to the main diet of the trip.

Without arguing the pros and cons, or the ethics, of gambling and sweepstakes, all of us were very interested to see the headquarters of the famous Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes. It has been said that more goes in prizes than is given to the hospitals, but I know nothing of that. One thing I did not realize though was that the livelihoods of thousands of people are wrapped up in this gigantic enterprise. In one vast room in the modern office building that houses the Sweepstakes we saw 2,000 clerks busily sorting and checking counterfoils, names and addresses.

Doug immediately bought six tickets, one for each member of his immediate family, including his two young children. He bought them even after Mr. Sheenon, the manager, told us that each ticket has one chance in ten million of being drawn from the huge barrel in which the counterfoils are placed. Doug refused to be squashed by these odds, and as he placed his counterfoils in the drum, he grinned and said, "Here comes number ten million!" I hope he is right.

He seemed to be so sure of his chances that I began to wonder whether he and Algie had picked up some information straight from the horses' mouths. Earlier that day we had visited the National Stud of Ireland and watched some of the finest horse flesh in the world put through its paces.One horse, Royal Charger, was valued by the Stud at over $120,000, which as Algie remarked is "a mighty lot of horse." We saw many other famous horses, the names of which I am ashamed to say I have forgotten;but then I am not a racing man.

Touring in the British Isles and Eire is like stepping back into the pages of history. I know that we have our own history, but apart from Montreal and Quebec it has always seemed to me that we never paid much attention to preserving historical sites and places. Doug made a similar observation the day we visited a castle in Ulster where once William of Orange had lived. We felt much the same the night we attended a play in that famous old playhouse, the Abbey Theatre. In fact one gets so imbued with this idea of living in the past that it is often quite a shock to come across modern hydro electric plants.

In all we spent six days in north and south Ireland, and we were sorry when the time came for us to board the packet boat for Liverpool. However, England soon produced its compensations for leaving the friendly Irish and one of the first was a visit to the Shakespeare country at Stratford-on-Avon. We browsed around the cottage of Ann Hathaway and leaned out of the casement window in much the same manner that Fair Ann was supposed to have done when she was courted by William Shakespeare.

From the Bard's country we slipped by car through Warwickshire and had tea in an old abbey standing in the shadow of Warwick Castle. We would liked to have had time to have looked over this beautiful 700-year-old structure, but unfortunately our schedule would not let us. That night we had supper with the John Camerons. Mrs. Cameron's father had lived in Canada for many years and went overseas with the Princess Pat's in the first world war. The Camerons live in a 400-year-old house with the delightful name of "Tinker's Hatch." They had just had some restoration and redecoration carried out and the ancient oak beams gleamed warmly in the electric light. And I might add it was one of the few warm things about the house, for it was exceptionally difficult to heat. However, to an Englishman that is nothing, not having been bred on central heating. Perhaps our more modern buildings have some compensations.

Just outside Cambridge we met Mr. E. J. Shropshire, an elderly farmer who 50 years ago had homesteaded at Carman, Manitoba. Even yet he talks nostalgically of the prairie country, though today he has a very successful farm, on which he raises fat cattle and large white hogs. While visiting him we saw our first stone house, for that was what Mr. Shropshire's farmhouse was built of, some 400 years ago.

History again and a visit to the ruins of the old abbey at Bury St. Edmunds where the English barons gathered in 1214 to draft the Magna Charta, and then on to Newmarket race track, the oldest registered race course in Britain, where hundreds of thoroughbreds are trained and Charles I wagered his realm away.

If there is ever a competition for the strangest farm on earth, David Alston, who lived nearby, could legitimately expect to place within the first 10, for he shares his grain farm with a disused airdrome. Originally he had 7-800 acres, but during the war the American airforce took over his farm and built an airdrome. Across 250 acres of his land still stretch the concrete runways the Americans laid down; several other acres are taken up by hangers, one of which he uses as a store house and granary. The government won't release the land so Mr. Alston is still farming between the runways.

FORGET IT

IF YOU KNOW of a skeleton hidden away
In a closet, and guarded and kept from the day
If you know that its showing or sudden display,
Would cause grief and sorrow and life-long dismay,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know a thing or two that will darken the joy
Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy,
That will wipe out a smile, or the least way annoy
Or cause any goodness or gladness to cloy,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

Mr. Smith, Please

"Is that Peabody, Finchley, Longworth and FitzGerald?" came a voice over the telephone.

"Yes, this is Peabody, Finchley, Longworth and FitzGerald."

"I want to speak to Mr. Smith."

BACK-CHECKING PAYS

Back-checking means work and unfortunately the average hockey player is just interested in scoring goals. A good point to keep in mind is that a two-way player is always a welcome sight for a scout's sore eyes. The greatest contribution a player can make to his team's success is by doing a good back-checking job.

The most important factor in the technique of back-checking is the quick come back turn. You should work on stopping quickly and turning as quickly as possible so that you can come back fast.

Another important factor is your attitude towards back-checking. If you are inclined to think that it will not do any good even if you do tear back, because you are too far out of the play, you will not be pulling your weight in work effort. Your attitude should be, "As long as I'm physically capable, I'll go back as hard as I can." If you're tired go to the bench; don't use the time when you should be back-checking to take a rest for the next offensive play.

Often the momentary disappointment that a player feels at seeing a promising offensive play miss, will cause him to lag behind as he gives way to his feelings. This should be also avoided.

Try to get between your man and the goal. If you cannot see your man, analyse the situation and head for what seems to be the danger spot. Don't just come back haphazardly, with no thought of what your job will be.

Condition, of course, is the prime factor in back-checking. Stopping quickly and then accelerating again is one of the toughest assignments the body can be given. So make sure you get into top-notch shape so that you can go both ways and thus will be a really great help to your team.

Remember, back-checking is a team manoeuvre; don't let your team down.

C.H.S. Holds Annual Dance

On Friday, February 6th, the annual High School formal dance was held in the Community Hall. The entrance to the hall was decorated with a garden trellis made bright with asters.

A receiving line made up of Mr. Jack Curran and Miss Edna Merkley, both representing the student body, Mr. Cunningham, the principal and Mrs. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Clarke, Mrs. L. Pedley and Mr. and Mrs. A. Milhousen greeted the arriving guests.

Valentine silhouettes and baskets of roses highlighted the wall decorations. The ceiling was adorned with gay streamers. The stage used a coloured metal paper worked in an attractive design. Rows of balloons accented the bright colours.

During intermission a cradle of favours was upset and balloons and noisemakers tumbled down to the dance floor. Dancing was enjoyed from nine to one. Music was by Jimmy Thompson and his popular Cornwall group.

The students and the teachers are to be congratulated on their decorations and the general decorum of the dance. This dance is maintaining its popularity as the outstanding dance of the winter season.

Weekly Farm Report For Dundas County

Recent snowfalls have given protection to new seedlings and pasture lands which up to now have been bare and very vulnerable to the weather. Farmers, in general, are busy working in the bush taking advantage of what little snow there is.

Farmers in the county are short of hay and other roughages, the result being that some cattle are not being too well fed. This is further aggravated by the fact that most cattlemen are carrying a greater number of surplus stock than usual. Swinemen are a bit perplexed with some of our larger breeders selling most of their sows.

Clover and grass seeds are in good supply with the price being asked for No. 1 seed about half what it was last year. Registered seed grain is in short supply and farmers would be well advised to obtain their requirements for spring as soon as possible. Demand for fertilizer is above normal with many taking advantage of the discounts available on early orders.

Prices being received during the past week at community sales seem to have strengthened, especially as far as hogs are concerned. Condenseries have large stocks of processed milk on hand and it has been necessary to divert some milk to cheese and butter production.

BERWICK WEST FORUM MEETS AT HOME MR., MRS. P. MANLEY

Mr .and Mrs. R. R. Crozier were special guests at Berwick West Farm Forum meeting held at the home of Stormont MPP Peter Manley and Mrs. Manley when the topic,—"The Farmer and the Public", was under discussion.

There appears to be a lack of understanding between the farmer and town or village people. Town and village people have the mistaken idea that it does not cost the farmer anything for production, due mostly to thoughlessness and lack of knowledge on their part.

The following suggested methods should help to improve this misunderstanding: Regular arrangements for exchange of speakers between farm and urban organizations, farm women becoming active members of the Canadian Association of Consumers, regular contact by farm organizations and farm forums with local newspapers.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr .and Mrs. George Richer when the use of farm credit will be discussed.
