ED. JARVIS ESCAPED DEATH ABOARD SKEENA

When Nazi bombers dropped more than 100 bombs in an attempt to blow up the Royal Canadian Naval vessel Skeena, a Morrisgurg boy might have lost his life had the Germans been better shots.

Edmund Jarvis, A.B., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jarvis, Morrisburg, is on the Skeena, having enlisted in 1938. After training for a year Edmund graduated and was assigned to the Skeena, and has served on her since the outbreak of war. Edmund will be 20 years old on October 29. He is well-known, and has a host of friends in Morrisburg and the community.

In a letter to his mother Edmund stated he had just recently written his anti-aircraft gunner exams and passed and was waiting for a chance at German or Italian planes.

Recently the Skeena was escorting merchant ships and was attacked by German bombers about midnight. Although it was estimated more than 100 bombs were dropped not one hit was scored on the convoy.

The Skeena's crew jumped to action stations at the first sound of the aircraft. The bombers appeared overhead flying high. Although they could not be seen, the anti-air-craft guns opened up. One bomber dived and was caught in the full light of the moon. A hail of accurate fire soon drove it off.

One sailor on the deck of the Skeena had a box of matches and set a match aside every time a bomb exploded. When the action was over he had a pile of 76 matches. Officers estimated that 20 to 25 percent. of the bombs dropped did not explode.

U. S. Minister Spoke To Canadian Club

One of the largest opening-night crowds in the history of the Morrisburg and District Canadian Club, was on hand Wednesday evening to hear the address given by the Hon. J. Pierrepont Moffat, the United States Minister to Canada.

Mr. Moffat received a terrific ovation when he came into the hall, and again when he rose to speak, and when he finished his address. The warmth of that welcome, he hoped, was a token of the warm feeling between the two great democracies of North America.

The meeting opened as usual with the singing of "God Save the King." After the supper, which was served by the ladies of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Mr. Moffat was introduced by the president-elect of the club, Mr. Chas. Harkness, of Brinston.

Opening his address, on the subject, "Canada and the United States To-day," Mr. Moffat stated that the Ogdensburg declaration of a few weeks ago marked a milestone of progress in the friendly relations existing between Canada and the United States. For generations to come, he said, Canadians and Americans alike will pay tribute to the statesmanship of the men who made such an accord possible, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and William Lyon Mackenzie King.

Quoting from a speech made by President Roosevelt last winter, Mr. Moffat said that the keystone of democracy consisted of five freedoms: freedom of the press, freedom of religion, freedom of expression, freedom from fear of attack, and freedom from want. As long, said Mr. Moffat, as the press of our countries remain free, then the first bastion of the citadel is held.

He thought that one of the few drawbacks to any democracy, was its tendency to give every other country the benefit of any doubt, its hesitancy in taking drastic measures, but that once its fire is aroused by power-mad, warlike nations, a democratic country becomes irresistible.

As Mr. Moffatt spoke, the stars and stripes shared a place on the stage with the Union Jack. Following his speech, the large crowd present rose and sang 'The Star Spangled Banner,' and "O Canada," with Mr. Moffat joined lustily in both songs.

The appreciation of the Local Canadian Club was expressed by Mr. Eardley Coons.

The next meeting of the Canadian Club will be held on Wednesday, October 6th. The speaker on that occasion will be Hon. John J. Hearne, High Commissioner for Ireand. Mr. Hearne will speak on the subject: 'towards a Christian Commonwealth.' Mr. Hearne is a graduate and Gold medalist in Arts and Law at the National University of Ireland. He was called to the Irish bar in 1919, and to the Inner bar of Ireland in 1939. He served as legal adviser to the Department of External Affairs from 1929 to 1939. He was a member of the Irish delegation at the Imperial Conferences of 1926, 1929 and 1930; the Disarmament Conference in 1932, and at the Assembly of the League of Nations from 1929 to 1938. He has lectured at the Dublin University, New College, Oxford, and the Geneva Institute of International Affairs.

Meikle Cup Won By M. C. I.

Winners of four of seven events, athletes of Morrisburg High School compiled an aggregate score of 28 points to capture the prized Gerald Meikle Memorial Trophy at the 19th annual Meikle track and field meet held at Cornwall Athletic Grounds, Friday afternoon last.

The Morrisburg School topped Cornwall Collegiate and Vocational School in the aggregate standing by five points, to win the track and field title of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. Defenders of the trophy they won in 1939 at Morrisburg. Tricolor athletes scored a total of 23 points to rank second to the victorious Morrisburg school. Winchester placed third with 12 points, Maxville fourth with four, and Avonmore fifth with three points. Moorewood High School the sixth school competing in the event, failed to score in the aggregate count.

Nearly 60 boy and girl athletes took part in the meet, which was held under ideal weather conditions. The athletes were favored with clear brisk weather and a fast track and, as a result, some fairly good times

60th Anniversary United Church a Success

This anniversary was celebrated in a most thankful and happy manner. Thankful for what had been accomplished during the last sixty years. Letters were received from seven ministers of the United Church who attended our Collegiate Institute and were members of our S. S. and Epworth League, namely Lynden C. Lawson, Foster Hilliard, Thomas Shaver, Mahlon Robinson, H. M. Servage, James Shaver and G. A. McIntosh, D.D. Some frankly stated that it was by reason of their attendance and work therein that they heard the call and decided for the Ministry. Two foreign Missionaries

THE MASKINONGE

Our largest freshwater game fish is the maskinonge, or as it is called nearly everywhere, the muskie. These fish grow very large; in recent years a few have been taken in our lakes that weighed nearly 60 pounds but there are early records of 80 pound monsters from Ontario. Muskies belong to the pike family and look very much like the common northern pike. There are, however, important differences between the two fish. The head of the muskie is larger than the head of a pike of comparable size; the muskie has the lower part of its gill covers and cheeks entirely unscaled while the pike has scales all over its cheeks. Examination of the cheek scales is the method used by the biologists who wish to distinguish between the two fish.

LARGEST IN ONTARIO

The range of the maskinonge in Ontario includes the shorelines of most of the Great Lakes, the Trent Valley canal and its connecting lakes, Lake Simcoe, Lake Stoco and the Moira river, the Ottawa river and its larger tributaries, the upper St. Lawrence, the French river and many of the lakes of the Rainy river district. It is not abundant anywhere but some are taken each year from most of these lakes and and rivers. Personally, I have found the best angling for muskies along the St. Lawrence from Prescott to Lake St. Francis.

Maskinonge spawn over the weed beds in the spring. In some regions spawning occurs as soon as the ice leaves the shores; elsewhere the breeding run may not take place till late May. In the actual spawning act the female, attended by several males, scatters the eggs in very shallow water and leaves them unattended. This method of spawning is of considerable consequence in the conservaton of the fish as I will show later.

HOW MUCH THEY EAT

Maskinonge have a voracious appetite, feeding almost entirely on other fishes. The larger they grow the more food they need and a big old-timer will need many fish each year to keep alive. Maskinonge of 25 to 30 pounds in weight are said to be about 15 to 18 years of age. If you are interested in numbers try figuring out how many fish a muskie will have eaten during its lifetime if it weighs 35 pound when caught. The answer will probably show that several tons of other fishes have been needed to produce the one maskinonge.

Fugitives Flee To Switzerland

Land Is Becoming Melting-Pot of Refugees — Escapes In and Out of Country Continual

Escape! It's a magic word to millions in Europe.

Thousands, tens of thousands, try it.

Some succeed.

More fail.

Success in many cases has meant only new capture and new escape attempts. Failure has frequently meant death.

Since war began Switzerland has been the goal of many an escaped war prisoner or concentration camp captive.

MANY WAR PRISONERS

Under international law escaped war prisoners cannot be turned back by a neutral state. No such laws protect concentration camp prisoners.

German aviators who fell in France burned their planes and hiked to Switzerland, taking days for the trip. German infantrymen have reached Switzerland, too.

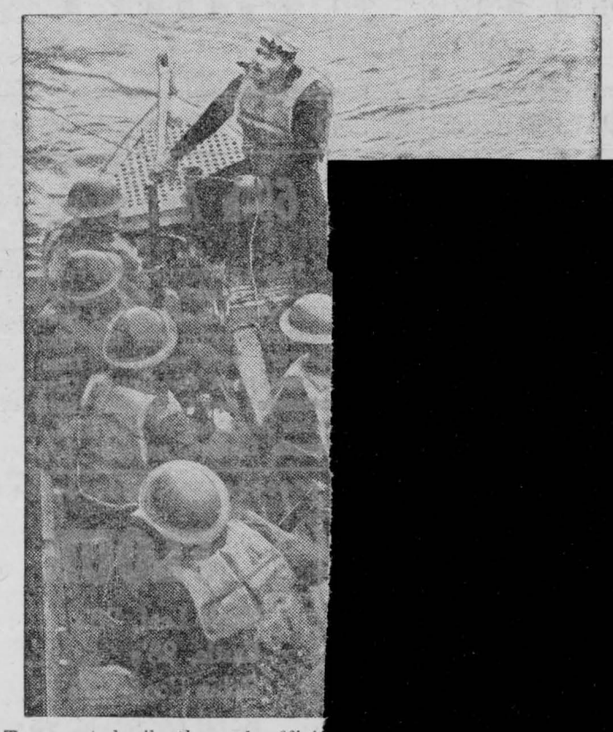

From Germany, however, come many more escaped prisoners, for Germany had more prisoners. Austrians, Czechs, Poles, French, Belgians, Netherlanders, Danes, Norwegians and British trickle into Switzerland by night and day, using a hundred disguises, a thousand tricks to travel hundreds, even thousands of miles to liberty.

BRITONS ARE RETURNED

Of all those who escape, only the fate of the British is clear once they arrive in Switzerland. Return to his country once he reaches this neutral soil is easy for the Briton. It's not so easy for the rest—for theirs are conquered, occupied countries.

What happens to these men of occupied countries depends entirely upon cases. If they have friends in Switzerland, they might be permitted temporary liberty. If they have friends abroad they might be lucky enough to get visas and transportation out.

THE WAR-WEEK—Co

FRONTS ARE IN AFRICA, MIDDLE EAST

Britain has "enjoyed the last pause" in the war, and the Axis offensive will be carried out now against the entire British Empire, the Essener National Zeitung said last week in summarizing the Ribbentrop-Ciano talks in Rome. The conversations in Berlin immediately following doubtless dealt with Spain and its entry into the war; the Italian assault on Egypt; a German push down through the Balkans towards Britain's vital oil wells in the Middle East. Strong warnings were issued to Egypt and Greece to renounce their ties with Britain.

Air War Of Attrition

United States military experts were of the opinion last week that a major attempt at invasion of England this fall had been shelved by the Axis in favor of a big drive in the eastern Mediterranean and in Africa. They declared that the Battle of Britain for the present had become the Siege of Britain — an aerial war of attrition against the British people while more spectacular military operations against British strongholds took place elsewhere.

A delaying factor in the new Axis program was seen to be close political connection of events in Africa and the Middle East with events in the Balkans. Italy obviously needed bases in Greece before jumping into Africa with both feet, but an explosion in the Balkans might bring Turkey into the war and upset Mussolini's calculations. Demobilization of Syria was also seen necessary to the Axis plans.

To Last Through Winter?

Both Berlin and London admitted that the air war over England might be expected to go on all winter. His Majesty King George VI addressing the British people reassured them once this was made known. "After our present trials," he declared, "will assuredly come victory." The Government immediately set about ordering construction of 1,000,000 bunks in London's air raid shelters and announced the commandeering of shelters in industrial establishments for the use of the public — the people of London could not continue indefinitely sleeping on subway station platforms.

Lifeline From U. S.

Besieged, truly, the people of Great Britain yet had one wide-open avenue through which to get supplies. Food, ammunition, planes, kept coming in vast quantities from the United States (40 per cent of U. S.-manufactured planes were going to Britain). Between Britain and the U. S. last week evidence multiplied of tightening co-operation, military and economic. Corps of British specialists were in the States, working with Army, Navy, Defense, on behalf of British purchases, consulting and exchanging information.

In Washington, a genuine war spirit was abroad, partially obscured by election talk and preparations. The belief everywhere seemed to be that the United States was likely to be involved in Europe, at a not far distant date, possibly fighting in a "shooting war"; most certainly in an economic war with Germany and Italy . . .

Collaboration In East

And Japan? Reported U. S. collaboration with Britain in the defense of their Far East possessions was followed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull's warning to Japan that the status quo in Indo-China was being upset. He declared: "The position of the United States in disapproval and deprecation of such procedures (the invasion of French Indo-China) has repeatedly been stated," but gave no indication of the Government's plans, aside from the loan of $25,000,000 to the Chinese Government. Was the United States really beginning to talk tough, and mean it? Was the United States ready to risk war with Japan?

War-Week At Home

Canada, drawing closer to the United States, was considering new steps toward mutual defense, preparing to sign the St. Lawrence seaway pact, at an early date . . . Definite action in regard to the Western wheat problem, which approached the proportions of a first-class emergency, was reported in Ottawa quarters to be impending. Farmers hoped something would be done immediately about the record grain crop which was having to be stored in schools and other public buildings out west . . . Big cities of the Dominion were told to stay on daylight-saving time indefinitely, and, whether they liked it or not, rural and small-town residents of Canada faced the possigility that they might have to go on "fast time" for the winter, too.

FINLAND: German troops landed at the Finnish port of Vasa, midway up the Gulf of Bothnia. The landing followed Finland's submission to Germany's demand for troop facilities to aid in her occupation of Norway. Did Russia agree to the German action? Know of it in advance? Were the Nazis getting ready to jump off for Iceland?

CHINA: A big move in the Shanghai area by the Japanese was viewed as not unexpected, involving possible seizure of the international settlement and the French concession, if the United States didn't follow up their tough talk about the invasion of French Indo-China.

BRITAIN: The British Government will continue the evacuation of children to America despite last week's torpedo disaster.

FRANCE: The Petain regime in unoccupied France might soon disappear, it was hinted at Rome. A new disposition of French territory with a new government to administer it, is expected.

JAPAN: New York Times' correspondent Hallett Abend declared that Adolf Hitler appeared to be on the verge of successfully forcing Japan into an unwilling full-fledge alliance with the Reich. Adopting frank "or else" tactics, (Abend said) Hitler is demanding that Japan immediately enter upon full participation in the war against Britain and join an iron-bound politico-economic alliance with the Axis powers.

RUSSIA: Heavy Russian military concentrations and manoeuvres in the region of Odessa, with Soviet Black Sea naval forces also gathering on a preparedness basis, were reported from Budapest. These developments were believed prompted by Russia's uneasiness over the Iron Guard Government in Rumania whose territory has been guaranteed by Germany, and by Moscow's fears that the Axis powers were planning to carry the war more directly in the Near East.

BALKANS: Turkey and Greece exchanged diplomatic confidences in the face of an Axis threat to sweep them clear of "nests of intriguing Englishmen." Their ally in the old Balkan Entente, Yugoslavia, was authoritatively reported to have "reaffirmed loyalty to the Rome-Berlin Axis." Territorial concessions to Hungary and Bulgaria were believed being planned by Yugoslav "appeasers."

TURKEY: "If the Italians try to take over Syria, the Turks will be there one hour before they arrive," an authoritative spokesman said in Istanbul upon the return of the Turkish ambassador to Rome.

"ESCAPE"
By Ethel Vance

One of the most exciting adventure stories you will ever read, is "Escape" by Ethel Vance. You will thrill to this tale of loyal Germans risking their lives to thwart Nazi brutality — about a woman betraying the man she loves — in a desperate plot to save from execution a woman they hardly knew.

As fiction, the book is different from any other you will have come across because it reads, in its circumstances, like the most exciting happenings in real life. It's convincing to the limit.

The book formerly was $2.50, but it is now available in reprint form at a much lower price.

Ontario Boasts Marriage Jump

Big Increase This Year Over Last, Especially In the Month of July — Due to National Registration

Marriages in Ontario during July showed a decided increase prior to national registration, according to the provincial secretary's department. The average was 182 a day compared with 105 a year ago.

Total marriages for the month were 5,013, compared with 2,840 a year ago. In June there were 4,928 and a year ago 3,589. In Quebec, during June there were 4,718, or at the rate of 157 per day.

10 PER CENT RISE

As between Ontario and Quebec, according to federal statistics the increase during 1939 over 1938 is about equal, there being a 10.8 per cent increase in Quebec and a 10.5 per cent increase in Ontario. In 1939 there were 34,657 weddings in Ontario and 28,911 in Quebec. In 1938 there were 30,008 in Ontario and 25,044 in Quebec.

Whippoorwill: Elusive Bird

Few Ever See the Bird of Dusk — Master of Camouflage

Although lovers and poets often have noted the song of the whippoorwill, the bird itself has come almost as near to achieving complete invisibility as any living creature.

The whippoorwill is masterfully camouflaged, according to Dr. Winsor M. Tyler in a Smithsonian Institution bulletin, and it is not "one person in a hundred" who has ever seen one. It is a bird of the "dusk and the dark," migrating between Florida and the Northern climates and travelling entirely by night, he said.

HAS CURIOUS HABITS

Only recently, according to Dr. Tyler, has close observation brought to light many of the whippoorwill's curious habits.

It builds no nest but lays its eggs on the ground, depending on the flickering shadows of the woodlands over the background of dried leaves to conceal them. The newly hatched chick, almost exactly the color of the dead leaves, remains essentially invisible, and the young are found almost exclusively by accident.

The melancholy refrain which is repeated over and over, is continuous from dusk until 9:30 and from 2 a.m. until dawn. John Burroughs, the naturalist, once counted 1,058 such repetitions.

LAZY PARKING

Double parking of passenger cars is quite without excuse, and offending drivers should be prosecuted vigorously. The offending driver parks in a second line because he is too lazy to find himself a legal parking place and walk back to his destination, and for offenders in this class there is no justification for police leniency.

ONTARIO COALITION?

There is an impression abroad that Mr. Hepburn and Col. George Drew, the Conservative leader, are getting together to form some kind of coalition Government. Col. Drew has been strangely silent since the last Federal election, and Mr. Hepburn must know that his position has been greatly weakened by his attacks on the Federal Prime Minister. Some new alignment may be in the making, and it would not be at all surprising if the two leaders should agree to join forces.

MORTAL STORM

Werner, fleeing for his life, seeks shelter at the Breitner farm.

Adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture

BEATRICE FABER

SYNOPSIS

In a little University town in Southern Germany, the happy family of Professor Roth, a non-Aryan, has been tragically torn asunder by the accession of Adolf Hitler t othe Dictatorship of the country. Mrs. Roth, an Aryan, is agonized by the persecution of her husband's race, especially when her two sons, by a former marriage, Erich and Otto, become fanatical Storm Troopers and repudiate the stepfather they had once revered. Then young Freya Roth breaks her engagement to Fritz because he too, has offered himself to the State, body and soul. It is then that she realizes her love for Martin Breitner, who had been Fritz's rival suitor and whom the other boys now hate, labeling him a Red and a Pacifist because he refused to join the political party.

CHAPTER FOUR

Freya was still in Martin's arms and they were murmuring all the wonderful and age-old words of endearment when the outer door opened.

They turned as Mrs. Breitner ushered in Professor Werner. Then the reality and horror descended again for Werner told them what they had known would be inevitable—since that day in the Inn—he was to be arrested for "treason" and the Brown Shirts were searching for him. All he wanted was a pair of skiis so that he could get through the Karwendel Pass into Austria.

Freya's heart told her what Martin would do even before he spoke. The Pass was dangerous and only an expert skiier like himself could get a man through, he declared. And despite Werner's protests he began to ready himself for the journey.

A few moments later they were poised at the slopes and Martin took Freya's hands in his. "Pray for me?" he whispered.

"Every minute." She pressed his lips with hers for one last yearning moment. Then she stood back. "Goodbye, my love." She watched them as they disappeared down the mountainside. Then, "I love him," she said softly, to Martin's mother.

"Did you tell him?" She nodded. Mrs. Breitner wiped away a happy tear. "I'm very happy my dear. I always hoped—I'm very, very happy."

DEFINITELY SUSPECT

But the silence was suddenly disturbed by the shouts of a Brown Shirt patrol. They rushed into the house and Mrs. Breitner quickly instructed Elsa, the little serving maid, to say that she had seen nothing. Then the men stamped in and from their blunt questions it was clear that Martin was definitely suspect now.

When they had left, Freya said tonelessly, "He can never come back. You must warn him." Slowly, Mrs. Breitner nodded and it was then that Freya realized the dreadful import of her words. "He can never come back now," she said again.

One black day after another passed and Freya tried to keep a tight grasp of her control. She busied herself doing research for her father. She tried to do needlework. But always the pall of this new order prison-world hung over her like the miasma of a poisonous swamp.

IN A CONCENTRATION CAMP

Even so, she had thought herself steeled to shock. Until that day when Professor Lehmann hurried into the house with his infamous news. Father -- father had been arrested. He was in a concentration camp. They had taken him off the street that morning.

After that, one didn't seem to be living at all. One merely existed for a purpose—to secure a visiting card to the prison so that Mother might visit there to see her husband. Then finally there came an hour of desperation when Freya went to see Fritz, at political headquarters, hoping for his help.

He looked at her with tortured eyes, unable to extinguish the love that he still felt for her. And finally he said, in a choked voice, "What you ask is difficult and dangerous. But I'll do my best to find out where your father is—and if your mother can be allowed to see him—" The door opened and a Gestapo agent came in. Mechanically, Fritz changed his tone. "I'm sorry Miss Roth, there's no point in further discussion."

But Freya knew that she had won. He would get the pass for the prison.

It came a few days later and for hours Freya paced the floor waiting for her mother to return from the prison.

But as Amelia Roth walked into the front door, Freya wanted to shriek aloud. Her mother — this woman—was a ghost. Something inside her had died today when she had gone through the gates of the concentration camp.

"WILL LEAVE FOR VIENNA"

Tonelessly, she told Freya the stark details. Chained men, marching on paved stones, as guards stood over them with guns and whips. Barbed wire fences. Their prisoners' uniforms with the arm-band, "Jude." Fine, sensitive faces, bloated and disfigured from starvation and cruelty.

Mrs. Roth's voice was just a thin thread as she finished. "He said for us to get ready. We're going to leave for Vienna when he is released."

"Released." The word was grim irony. One day, without any warning, Otto came to the house. Yes, he told his mother, Father was released now, from all care and strife. He was dead—a heart attack—

It was then that Freya turned on him. "They killed him—your friends. They killed my father."

Otto started to reply. Then his jaw clamped and he turned away.

It was Otto and Erich who arranged for their mother's departure with little Rudi and Freya. On the station platform they said their farewells but the simple word "goodbye" stuck in Freya's throat. Impossible to even speak to these brothers who now appeared in guise of monsters. They and their kind had struck her father down. They and their kind were murdering the people of his faith.

They had just reached Thalheim at the border when the inspection officials boarded the train. Dully, Freya watched as they opened all her suitcases. Then suddenly, she realized that something was wrong. They were examining her father's manuscript with minute care. It had been his last work and she had brought it along so that she could look, finger it, look at it with a fond eye now and then—and imagine that he was there beside her, alive and well.

The Gestapo officials however, were suspicious of such sentiments. A manuscript like this was traitorous to the law of the State, in its scientific content. She would have to return with them. Her passport was cancelled.

Only at Freya's urgings did her mother continue on with Rudi. "Father would have wished it," she said feverishly, in that moment before she was led away.

And Mrs. Roth could only nod and give her daughter one last embrace as the tears rolled silently down her cheeks.

Back in her home town Freya was taken to the Gestapo building for more questioning. She was leaving the place when suddenly she saw Fritz. Impulsively, he ran to him and poured out the story. But suddenly, realization came to her. He was the enemy. He was of that breed who had destroyed her father—destroyed all of them.

Sobs stifled her voice. "I — I don't know why I'm telling you all this. I'd forgotten that — we're no longer friends." She tore away, not heading Fritz's distressed cries.

"Freya — please Freya."

MARTIN AGAIN!

But as she walked up the steps of her dismantled house and opened the door something white on the threshold caught her eye. It was a note from Mrs. Breitner. If should could manage it would she come up and see them this afternoon?

The first happiness she had known in many days stirred in her breast. A while later she was at the door of the Breitner house.

"My dear, I'm so thankful." Gently, Mrs. Breitner took her in her arms. "I was afraid you were followed?"

"No, I was very careful." Now Freya looked at her. There was a twinkle in the woman's eyes. "Why did you send for me? Is there a message?" Still no answer. "Why do you smile . . .?" And then she knew. "Oh." She broke away and ran through the front door. Then she stopped. "Martin."

He brought her close and kissed her eyelids, her cheeks, her hair. And Freya clung to him, giving herself up for a moment to the protection of his strength.

Five-Minute Beauty Tips

If Youn're Trying To Economize, Here Are Helpful Hints

Excessive make-up has gone by the board. Concentrate on keeping the face in good trim rather than "gone-glamorous." Remember that to be sure of a good result a face must be clean and it must be nourished. Cleanse it night with cream, leave on for a few seconds, then wipe off. It takes under a minute to do this. Tap in a mild astringent and you will feel the skin glow under it. Last thing at night tap the skin food all over the face and particularly round the eyes, because this is where lines come first. Second danger points — those smile lines, and under the chin. Feed these points well.

CARING FOR THE HAIR

Now for the difficulty of hair. Hair feels the strain of present times badly. Brushing takes up too many of the precious moments but give it as much as you can. Use a good brilliantine if your hair is dry, and do make up your mind that you must use a first-class hair tonic.

Don't go in for elaborate hair styles. The long bob is the easiest to manage and you can always push it into a snood and look tidy. When it comes to the home shampoo, whihc lots of us indulge in today, remember to choose one suited to your type of hair. Be sure you rinse your hair enough — that is where most of us trip up when we resort to home methods. Spray with setting lotion if you have greasy hair, use only water if you have dry hair, and pin into waves; dry in the sun, if you can.

Nervous Tension Needs Recreation

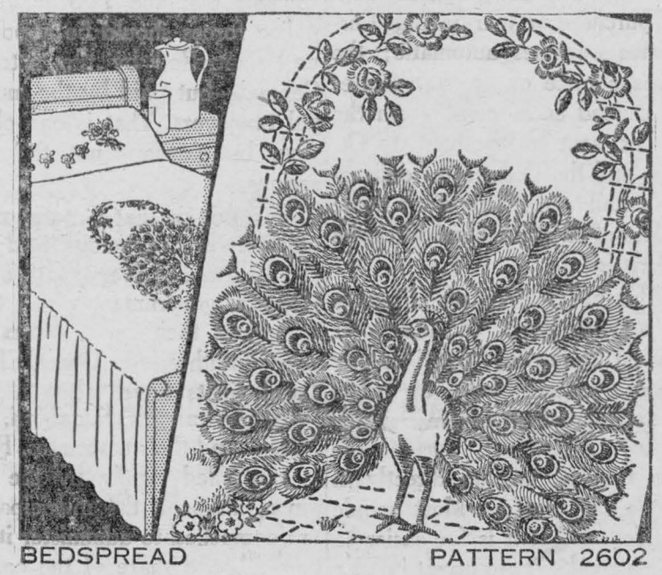

Change From Normal Routine Helps — Keep Feet On Floor

Keep your feet on the floor and don't grit your teeth if you want to escape nervous tension.'

An issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association recommended elimination of "energy sapping" motions, monotony and immobility as the best means to avoid nervous tension, a product of civilization.

Recreation should provide a change from normal routine, not merely physical activity, the journal advises. Eat regularly and not between meals, and relax competely several times each day, the journal said.

Snake "Shorts"

Trouble-shooters of the Alabama Power Company have found a new cause of short circuits. The pumps at a station at Mobile, Ala., went out because of a blown fuse. Subsequently it was found a snake had crawled over a wrie on a rafter, short-circuited the line and burned itself to a crisp.

"SAVORY MEAT DISHES"

As Autumn advances and the fresh fruit season nears the end, the homemaker as a natural consequence makes changes in daily menus. As desserts change in type so do all the courses to some degree. Meat savory dishes seem to be synonymous with the early crisp Autumn days.

Savory Tenderloin Casserole

1½ lbs. tenderloin
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 cup diced apple
⅔ cup diced onion
1 teaspoon sage
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Dip each piece in flour and sprinkle with paprika. Fry until brown quickly in hot fat on top of stove.

Place brown pieces in baking pan. Add about 2 tablespoons of fat in which meat was fried, to the other ingredients. Combine together for a dressing and add to the meat (each piece) a mound of dressing. Cover and place in oven at 400 deg. F. Remove cover, bake 30 minutes longer. Serves 4 people.

Spaghetti and Steak

1½ lbs. round steak
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped mushroom
½ cup green peas
1 teaspoon horseradish
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups cooked spaghetti
1 cup tomato soup (canned)

Combine steak, onion, green pepper and mushrooms. Fry until browned. Blend in seasonings and peas. Arrange meat mixture and spaghetti in alternate layers in casserole. Pour on tomato soup (if real thck, dilute a little with milk or cream). Bake at 375 deg. for 30 minutes. Serves six.

Pork Tenderloin Breaded

1¾ lbs. pork tenderloin
1 egg
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon tomato catsup
1 small onion, chopped
1 cup dry bread crumbs

Beat egg slightly, add water and seasoning. Dip tenderloin into egg mixture then into crumbs. Place in greased pan (sprinkle with onion). Dot with butter. Bake at 400 covered for 10 min., add ¼ cup hot water at side of pan, cover, bake 35 minutes longer.

Pressed Veal

4 lbs. veal shank
1 lb. pork (hock or other meat
2 quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon cloves (ground)
1 small onion
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon chopped mint
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ tsp. mustard

Wipe off meat. Cover with water and add seasoning. Bring to boil and boil 5 minutes. Reduce heat and simmer for 1¼ hrs., or until meat falls from the bones. Pick off meat, put through chopper. Place in mould. Cook stock down slightly; add lemon juice and pour onto the meat until it feels soft and moist. Chill until set. Slice, arrange on plate with garnish. Serves 8.

Fashion Flashes

Placing a fall of gathered fullness off-centre is an arresting feature of a dramatic white silk jersey frock, the bodice developed with a cape-like bloused back, the deeply pointed wide corselet waistline embroidered like fine grille work.

In an afternoon frock of black woollen, the skirt is slashed to show the sapphire blue velvet sheath, which also is revealed beneath the cut-work embroidery. A widened, dropped shoulder yoke is emphasized by embroidery.

Novelty stiff taffetas — the kind that "stand alone," are a high-style choice for teen girl "formals" in woven stripes or stripes or checks that suggest a brocade effect.

Can't Find House So Leaves Town

With housing accommodation of all kinds at a premium in the Lakehead cities, despite a building boom in houses, the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce has issued a call to citizens with an extra room to rent it. A member of the Port Arthur City Council has had to move to Fort William because he couldn't find a house in his own city, it was reported. Alderman G. McComber, theatre manager, sold his home, was unable to buy a suitable one, and rented an apartment from Mayor C. M. Ross of Fort William.

Workers in war industries, Air Force instructors at the Fort William Air School and others in the armed services have taken up all rooms available.

ANOTHER BRIGHT IDEA !.

Premier Hepburn and Attorney-General Conant, of Ontario, have just released news of what, coming from any other source, might be termed a "brainwave." The super colossal idea of the provincial princes is the formation of an auxiliary police force, to be known as the Ontario Volunteer Constabulary. They would be under the Ontario Attorney General's Department. They would be subject to regular police discipline, and receive police training. They would also be required to furnish their own uniforms. The volunteer constables would serve without pay, and would have to be ready at any time to be moved to any point where their services might be required.

If these bright ideas of the Ontario powers-that-be were not costing the people of this province so much money, they would be positively funny. Ontario hasn't got so many well-off men that they can afford to let their work go to take up police work as a hobby, and an expensive hobby at that. Even his own staunch supporters will question the wisdom of this Hepburn move.

Why can't our Ontario leaders speak and act more rationally?

CANADA'S JAPANESE PROBLEM

Canada is to-day faced with a problem as a result of the recent Tokyo-Berlin-Rome accord. In the Province of British Columbia, one of Canada's richest provinces, there is a large colony of Japanese. At the time of the 1931 census there were 23,342 Japanese in Canada. This represented an increase of some 8,000 or nearly 50 per cent over the census of 1921. Figuring on this basis, there should be nearly 35,000 Japanese in Canada to-day. In British Columbia, the Japs have a large share in the control of the fishing industry.

This represents a good-sized fifth column for Japan in Canada, if the Japs choose to stick with the cause of their fathers. Of course, we have no reason to believe that all these people are inimical to the interests of Canada. But, at the same time, there are 35,000 who will bear watching. They might start something. They exercise a big influence in one of Canada's largest industries. There is no reason why we should hesitate to apply restrictions on the movement and activities of the Japs. We must consider them as enemies. If not active, they are at least our potential enemies. This makes it even more imperative too, for the government to put a stop to the export of Canadian mineral products to Japan. Is our government going to let a Canadian company furnish the bullets ti kill or maim the youth of Canada?

2,000,000 "WAR SAVERS" WANTED

An army of over 2,000,000 regular "War Savers" is sought in a national "Smash Hitler" campaign now opening by the War Savings Committee, it is announced by Messrs. W. H. Somerville and de Gasp Beaubien, National Chairman.

To enable every man and woman in Canada to join this "Army of Two Million Regular War Savers," the Committee has developed, in collaboration with the chartered banks, a special Pledge Form which will be delivered by mail to over 2,500,000 householders from coast to coast. This is one of the largest single mailings ever carried out by the Canadian Postal Service.

By using this new War Savings Pledge Form any bank depositor can instruct his bank to invest in one or more War Savings Certificates for him on the 15th of every month. Once the Pledge is signed and handed to the bank, the regular purchase of War Savings Certificates becomes automatic; the purchase price of the Certificates is deducted each month from the account, sent by the bank to Ottawa, and the Certificates delivered by mail to the depositor's home address of to any other address he may designate.

"This new Pledge plan," states the announcement by the Joint National Chairmen, "provides any man or woman with an ideal means both of saving money for his own future use, and at the same time of helping directly in Canada's war effort. Most people have found that it is far easier to make a resolution to invest in War Savings Certificates every month than it is to keep that resolution. By using the new Pledge form, the individual overcomes this human weakness, and having signed the Pledge knows that regular investment in War Savings Certificates every month will from then on be automatic.

"In connection with this plan, the War Savings Committee hopes to impress upon all Canadians the fact that when they purchase War Savings Certificates, they are not giving their money, but lending it, at a reasonable return to themselves. That return amounts to a full 25 percent. in 7½ years. We hope by the end of the year that at least two million people will have taken advantage of this new and useful means of building up a reserve of savings for the future."

MR. CONANT STILL WANTS TO CONTROL THE POLICE

A year or two ago Mr. Conant, the Attorney General of Ontario, proposed to the Legislature that it should give his department jurisdiction over all municipal police in the province. Such strong objection was taken, outside the Legislature and in it, that the proposal was dropped. However, M. Conant was not discouraged. He returned to the subject in a speech at Guelph to the Police Association of Ontario, when he complained that the Attorney General, although responsible for maintenance of law and order, had absolutely no control over any municipal police force, and declared this situation was "anomalous" if not "impossible" in "a war emergency such as at present."

It seems to be Mr. Conant's thought that the 900 municipal police forces should be appointed and controlled by the Attorney General—but paid by the municipal taxpayers. That is one objection, but perhaps not the most serious.

The fact is that Ontario municipalities are suspicious, and with good reason, of every move of the Hepburn government which tends to reduce their own powers and pile up authority in Queen's Park. Local rights have taken a hard beating from Mr. Hepburn, Mr. Conant and their associates. Relief is controlled rigidly by the province, although the municipalities are compelled to administer it and pay a heavy share of the cost. It is impossible for a municipality to borrow money, even on a favorable vote of the property-owners, without the fomal approval of a provincial board. The Government has not hesitated to interfere even in such matters as the rate which Ottawa may charge neighboring small communities for purified water supplied them at their request, and the conditions under which small communities may be merged with larger ones.

So consistent and pertinacious has been the effort of the Hepburn regime to secure domination of the municipalities that even schemes not without merit are met now with profound distrust. As step follows step the municipalities wonder what will come next to limit their authority and restrict their rights of self-government. The policy has had some good effects, of course—control of borrowing undoubtedly has reduced municipal debt, although sometimes this control has been enforced beyond reason. But the broad trend has taken on proportions which have had to be resisted, and the police scheme thus meets accumulated hostility.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Conant's fears of an "emergency" which could not be met by the present police system would appear far-fetched. He has a big provincial police force under his command, and of course the co-operation of every municipal force. If closer co-operation is needed it should be attainable without further inroads upon our few remaining local rights.

Carter-Casselman

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Casselman, Rowena, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. When the eldest son, Ellery W. Casselman was united in marriage to Miss Olive Carter of Rowena, daughter of Mr. Anson and the late Mrs. Carter, with Rev. Mr. Lister, Dundela, officiating. The bride entered the drawing room with her father, while the wedding march was being rendered by Mrs. Lister.

The ceremony took place under an arch of ferns, decorated artistically with autumn flowers. The bride was prettily attired in an Empire blue crepe gown, with accessories to match, and was attended by Miss Marian Saddlemire, while Mr. Carl Casselman supported the groom.

After a sumptous wedding dinner was served the young couple left amid showers of confetti on a short honeymoon to Quebec and other eastern points of interest, and on their return will reside at Rowena.

W. M. S.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Peter's Lutheran Church held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening, October 2nd, in the Church parlor.

The president, Mrs. G. L. Barclay conducted a short business meeting and in co-operation with the church council laid plans for the celebrating of the 75th Anniversary of the Church, Sunday, October 27th, with a banquet and programme on Monday evening. A card of thanks from Mrs. Adam Froats who had received flowers during her recent illness was acknowledged.

A special feature was the presentation of a life membership certificate and pin to Miss Mae Merkley by the pastor, Rev. C. R. Cronmiller, on behalf of the former's sister, Mrs. Lillian Myers of Toronto.

Mrs. Merle McIntosh was appointed official delegate of the Missionary Convention in Kitchener. The topic, "Women, and the way in Great Britain" was taken by Mrs. Jason Whittaker.

Mrs. C. R. Cronmiller conducted the magazine quiz. The meeting closed with prayer by the president.

in China were too far away to receive letters from them, namely Harold Robertson and Irwin M. Hilliard. We also received most appreciative letters from Dr. Kirkland, Senator Graham, J. A. Cooke, A. W. Massey, Carrie Stata, J. Smyth Carter and Ernest Moore, as to the blessings they received while attending our Church.

We were happy Sunday morning and evening as a large attendance of our people and many from other Churches worshipped, listening to the inspiring and helpful sermons of our Preacher, Rev. J. Bruce Hunter, not merely a guest Preacher, but one with us who brought us into the fellowship and blessed presence of our Heavenly Father. Many would like to have the manuscript of the evening, others of the morning sermon. Then happy, in that the people of Knox Church closed their evening service and joined us in that fellowship.

The dinner Monday evening was a success under the Chairmanship of our Minister Rev. J. A. Payton, not only in what good things we had to eat but because of the continued friendship and fellowship. Rev. Davies brought greetings from the Anglican Church. The other local ministers were unable to be present. Ernest Moore spoke a few words of appreciation. Music was contributed by the Cochrane family, Mrs. Epplett, Lois Mallen and the Sunday School Orchestra. The address of our former minister, Rev. R. Douglas Smith, now of Brockville, was a final climax.

Three memorial windows were unveiled during the close of the morning service all on the west side. First, that of the S.S.S. Class commemorating the 60th Anniversary, subject "The Angel of the Resurrection," second, that of the Children and Grandchildren of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benson S. Wickwire "Jesus in the Garden 'Gethsemane' Thy will be done," third that of Fred S. Broder, Executor for his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Cowan, "A Sower went forth to sow." All the windows are most beautiful. The music by the Choir was excellent and inspiring.

Returns from Thank Offerings and dinner exceed the objective of the Committee which was $750.00. Among which were several special donations from Dr. Marion Hilliard, Mrs. McTaggart, Women's Association and the S.S.S. Class. And finally we wish to mention the beautiful silk flag presented by Mr. Fred H. Meikle.

TO THE GUEST CHILDREN—

Welcome to our land of sefety,
We shall gladly clasp yaur hand,
When you children come for safety
To our great and glorious land.

To our land of full and plenty,
We will gladly with you share;
For our homes and hearts are open,
For you children over there.

And when your little prayers are said,
And off to bed you go,
You'll be so safely tucked in bed,
For God is good you know.

So again we bid you come,
Until its time to part;
And may the glorious flag fly high,
When its time for you to start.

A LITTLE steam lifts the lid of your tea-kettle. A lot of steam drives trains, machinery. Your bank deposit may be little, but it combines with millions of others to make a lot of "steam". It helps to run the nation's machinery of production, marketing, employment, business. It is important indeed to the country's war financing and war-time effort. The money is yours yet it helps provide the credit necessary to move the goods and services of the nation. ¶ Canada's chartered banks thus perform functions of great usefulness. They receive the deposits of millions of Canadians, and extend credit to individuals, governments, businessmen and marketing organizations. The small depositor is important to the banks. The "little fellow", popularly so-called, is welcomed by any bank, as a customer.

In war, as in peace, Canada's Chartered Banks maintain, uninterrupted, their useful services — safeguarding depositors' funds; facilitating the nation's business — looking forward to peace with freedom as the only sure basis of enduring prosperity.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LUKE AND HIS GOSPEL.—Luke 1; Acts 1: 1-5; 16: 9-15; Colossians 4:14; 2 Timothy 4:11a
PRINTED TEXT, Luke 1: 1-4; Acts 1: 1; Col. 4: 14; 2 Tim. 4: 11a
GOLDEN TEXT.—It seemed good to me also . . . to write . . . that thou mightest know the certainty concerning the things wherein thou wast instructed. Luke 1: 3, 4.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—Luke wrote his Gospel sometime between 63 and 68 A.D., and the book of Acts not long after the death of the apostle Paul, probably about 68 A.D. The events described in the first chapter of Luke occurred 6 to 4 B.C. Luke and Paul were together at Philippi about 52 or 53 A.D.; the epistle to the Colossians and the Second Epistle to Timothy were written during Paul's imprisonment in Rome, between 61 and 65 A.D. The place where Luke wrote the third Gospel and the book of Acts we do not know. The events recorded in the first chapter of Luke took place in Jerusalem, in Nazareth, and in the hill country of Judea. The city of Philippi was in the northeastern part of Macedonia. Paul wrote Colossians and the Second Epistle to Timothy from the city of Rome.

The purpose of this lesson is to give us an opportunity for studying St. Luke and his writings. The name Luke or Lucas is a shortened form of Lucanus. Both the name and profession of Luke prove him to have been a Gentile — most of the doctors at this period were either Greeks who had been slaves, or sons of freedom. Luke was probably the son of a freed slave. Luke was originally a heathen.

He Investigated Accurately

The first four verses of the chapter give us a lively picture of the evident universal interest felt by the early church in the story of the Lord Jesus. Apostles were constantly telling what they had seen and heard, circulating their messages amongst believers. 1. Forasmuch as many have taken in hand to draw up a narrative concerning those matters which have been fulfilled among us. This verse might be paraphrased "concerning those things which have become widely known among us Christians." 2. Even as they delivered them unto us, who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and ministers of the word. Luke was a secondary, not a primary, witness of the event. But he had access to both written and oral sources. 3. It seemed good to me also, having traced the course of all things accurately from the first. Accurate writing can only follow accurate investigation and research. Luke has sifted the evidence he found, and has given us the wheat, not the chaff. To write unto thee in order. "Order" may mean "rational order", omitting nothing that is essential for full and proper understanding. Some experts think that Luke aimed at chronological order, on the whole attaining it. Most excellent Theophilus. This man is mentioned only twict in the New Testament. From the way that Luke speaks of his friend it would seem that he was a man of high rank in official life.

Historical Foundation

4. That thou mightest know the certainty. Luke is determined that Theophilus shall know that the faith which he has embraced has an impregnable historical foundation. Some religions can be independent of historical fact, and move entirely upon the plane of timeless truth. Christianity cannot. It rests upon the affirmation that a series of events happened in which God revealed himself in action for the salvation of men. The Gospels profess to tell us what happened. Concerning the things wherein thou wast instructed. The world here translated "instructed" is the one from which we derive our word "catechism."

Luke's Gospel is the longest of all the four Gospels. If we think of the whole course of Christian history in the Gospel and in Acts, the work is chronological. The figures are drawn with lifelike power, and the greatest drama of human history is set forth with supreme literary skill. The book is a scholar's attempt to picture and to interpret the life of Christ for the world at large. Luke's other work, The Book of Acts, begins with a prologue which gives a condensed summary of the conclusion of our Lord's life on earth as recorded in the Gospel. Acts 1: 1. The former treatise I made, O Theophilus, concerning all that Jesus began both to do and to teach.

Paul's Companion

When the Apostle Paul was in Galatia, he had been hindered from preaching the word in Asia, hindered by a severe sickness, and it was immediately after this illness that Luke, the beloved physician, became his companion. He went with Paul from Troas into Macedonia and finally on to Philippi, where they abode some time. He was Paul's companion at Miletus, Tyre, Caesarea, and Jerusalem. He was with him in his journey to Rome; he was near him in his first imprisonment, and comforted him in his labors. He was the apostle's faithful companion during the last scenes of his life. Scripture tells us no more about Luke; but traditions, uncertain and untrustworthy, have completed the stor of his life. He is said to have preached the gospel in Italy, in Macedonia, and in Gaul; to have lived on to an advanced age, and to have died a martyr. Luke was the first scientific physician who laid his skill at the feet of Jesus. Thousands have followed in his steps, and, like Luke, have taken Christ with them into the sickroom.

In his epistle to the Colossians (4: 14) Paul writes: "Luke the beloved physician, and Demas salute you." Again in 2 Tim. 4: 11a: "Only Luke is with me."

Irritable Parents Harm Children

They May Cause Emotional Havoc In Sensitive Child

Irritable or excitable parents or teachers may cause emotional havoc in a sensitive child, according to Dr. Carl W. Aretz, District Superintendent of Philadelphia schools.

Speaking before the Child Research Clinic of the Woods Schools at nearby Langhorne, Dr. Aretz said that divorce, crowded conditions in large cities, and women in commerce, industry and politics had made "today's home different from the home of our childhood."

"Whatever the nature of the home life of tomorrow may be," he said, "it is fraught with serious difficulties in the form of emotional disturbances and presents a gigantic problem in mental hygiene."

Among others forced to leave England, temporarily at least because of Hitler's habit of dropping bombs and other unpleasant things all over the place, are Al and Bob Harvey.

Al and Bob are a pair of Canadian entertainers who went to England some years ago and were immediately "accepted" by the British public. They rose to become one of England's most popular vaudeville and music hall team, and were well on their way up the ladder before the Blitz. Back in Canada now, Al and Bob are now heard in a series of programs on the CBC chain, broadcasting Tuesday evenings at 8.30.

THE FUTURE IN RADIO

The other day we spent some time absorbing some technical radio knowledge as we watched Marconi engineers installing the new CKOC transmitter — and they gave us an interesting piece of news. They say that within four years frequency modulation will be in general use — and that means the scrapping of all broadcasting equipment and home receiving sets as they are today. But on the other hand frequency modulation will bring "absolutely true" broadcasting — without distortion or any fades — and with no less of vocal or musical quality.

What a step forward that will be to radio!

Farm Notes . . .

Testing Soils After Harvest

Shortly after the crop has been removed is the most suitable time to take soil samples. Bacterial life and chemical activity in the soil are still at their best, just as they were when the growing crop was making its greatest demands on the plant food, says G. R. Snyder, well-known Canadian Soil Chemist. Soil samples taken at this time show the fertility condition of the soil during the growing season, and the test will indicate which link or links in the fertility chain —organic matter, lime, nitrogen, phosphate, potash, calcium, sulphur, magnesium, etc.—are being depleted most rapidly.

Crops lodge easily, mature late and unevenly when the nitrogen supply is out of balance with the mineral plant foods. New seedings of grass and clover fail when the soil is strongly acid in reaction or exceptionally low in phosphate and potash. Potatoes scab badly in soils high in lime. Pastures and meadows thin out and become weedy when there is a lack of lime, organic matter or mineral plant food. Livestock develop mineral deficiency diseases when the feed they consume is low in phosphorus and calcium.

Learn State of Fertility

A soil test gives the farmer definite information concerning the lime supply and state of fertility of his fields, thus permitting him to adjust the manurial and fertility practices according to the crop requirements.

The procedure for sampling fields depends somewhat on the problem being studied. If the field is fairly uniform, all that is necessary is to take a small shovelful of soil to plow depth from eight to ten different paces, mix them thoroughly and send in a cupful or half pint of the mixed soil. With rolling land, the high land should be sampled separately from the low. In the case of problem areas, a sample representative of the poor spots and another of the productive areas nearby should be procured.

Information concerning previous cropping practices, condition of crops and crops to be grown for the next two or three years should be provided in a covering letter.

Samples submitted to the soil testing laboratory in the fall can be given a more thorough checkup than is possible during the rush period of spring, and the sender is sure of receiving the report in time to make use of it in planning next year's cropping programme.

Bigger Stores Doing Better

Increased income at home, together with virtual elimination of tourist shopping in the United States or abroad, resulted in a 25 per cent increase in Canadian department store sales in August over August, 1939, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports. Every province shared in the increase.

Sales were 14 per cent above July, 1940. On making adjustments for number of business days and for normal seasonal variances, August purchases were 23 per cent higher than a year ago and two per cent higher than in July. The unadjusted index (on the base 1930 equals 100) stood at 76.7 for August, 61.3 for August, 1939, and 67.1 for July, 1940.

Hog Grading Plan Changed

Carcass Basis of Judgment as From September 30, Ottawa States

In order to insure more hogs of suitable quality for export to the United Kingdom, carcass-grading of hogs is now the official method of grading throughout Canada, Agriculture Minister Gardiner has announced. This became effective Sept. 30.

The present hog grading regulations, which provide for live-grading of hogs and have been in effect since 1922. are rescinded as from Sept. 30 and live-grading of hogs will not be continued.

WAS ON VOLUNTARY BASIS

"The progressive and anticipated increase in hog marketings followed by increased exports of bacon to the United Kingdom make it necessary for a much higher percentage to be suitable for export," Mr. Gardiner said in a statement.

Carcass grading of hogs has been in effect on a voluntary basis for about six years. Number of hogs so graded under this voluntary system has progressively increased until it now stands at 62.5 per cent. of all hogs graded to date this year.

War's Blight Could Not Touch Him

Outside his ruined home, this young Londoner plays with his tiny trains and dog dolls, blissfully ignorant of the tragedy that is all about him. The empire may be fighting for its life, London may be battered, and death may be raining from the skies, but he is happy, his toys escaped the bombs.

- HAVE - YOU HEARD?

A prizefighter and his girl friend entered a fashionable restaurant and ordered a large meal. When they had finished the waiter presented the bill. The prizefighter paid, and then suddenly hit the waiter in the eye.

Outside the fighter lighted a cigar.

"A fine waiter that chap," he told his friend. "Gave us perfect service. I expect to dine there again tomorrow."

"If he's such a fine waiter," she said, "why did you give him that black eye?"

"I like him for a waiter," explained the fighter. "And when I go back there tomorrow I'll have no trouble picking him out."

Movie Fan: "And so you wrote the scenario to that wonderful picture?"

Author (whose plot has been so altered that it is hardly recognizable): "No, I only wrote the knock on the door in the opening scene."

The circus strong man rode out on horseback to challenge a farmer whose great strength had gained him a reputation. He entered the farmyard, tied up his horse and approached the farmer.

"Hey," he said, "I've heard a lot about you, and have come a long way to see which is the better man."

Without answering, the farmer seized the intruder, hurled him over the fence into the road, and returned to his work.

When the loser had recovered his breath, the farmer growled: "Have you anything more to say?"

"No," was the reply, "but perhaps you'll be good enough to throw me my horse."

Traveling Teacher: "What a quaint village. Truly, one-half of the world is ignorant of how the other half lives."

Native: "Not in this village, ma'am. Not in this village!"

A friend called upon a guest at a hotel, knocked, and asked him to open the door.

"Can't, door's locked!" the voice within announced.

"Well, unlock it!" the caller requested.

"Can't; lost the key."

"Great Scott, man! What will you do if there's a fire?"

"I can't go!"

Don't Shop When You're Feeling Low

Many Office Safes Are Not Fire-proof

The words "fireproof safe" should imply security. Under this title it has become common practice to market many types of safes, both new and second-hand, all supposedly giving fire protection. But surveys show that about 40% of safes tested by fire fail. This is logical when we investigate many of the receptacles sold under the name "fire-proof." In some of these safes we find the walls are only an inch thick, whereas in a proper, full-strength safe, it should be approximately six inches. Then we find all types of insulation, some merely consisting of an air space. Large institutions with branches, having fire experience, know the unreliability of many so-called "safes." Though more able to take losses, they do not take chances. The wise firm does not trifle in making certain he really has reliable protection.

Modern Etiquette

BY ROBERTA LEE

1. When a young man takes a girl out to dinner, and she knows he doesn't earn much money, should she be very modest in what she orders?

2. Should one turn down the corner of a borrowed book to mark his place?

3. Can you give a list of about six subjects that should be avoided in general conversation?

4. When sending invitations to a dance, should exactly the same number of men as girls be invited?

5. At a church wedding, on which side of the main isle should pews be reserved for the bride's family and the groom's family?

6. Should peas be eaten with the fork or spoon?

Answers

1. Yes, but she shouldn't overdo it. The young man would not have invited her if he didn't have the money, and if she ordered merely a sandwich and coffee, he would resent it. 2. Never; nor should he do so in any book. It is just as easy to use a piece of paper. Or a good way is to use a rubber band, placing it around the pages read. 3. Yes. six topics that should be avoided are accidents, disease, death, dress, money, and personal domestic affairs. 4. It is wiser to invite a few more men. Then all the girls are insured partners. 5. The left side for the bride's family, the right side for the groom's. 6. The fork should be used.

How Can I?

BY ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I make a hole in glass?

A. First cover the area where the hole is to be with putty, making the hole the size desired in the putty. Then pour into this hole a little melted lead and if the glass is not exceptionally thick, a perfect hole will result.

Q. How can I make ordinary fabric waterproof?

A. To make ordinary fabric waterproof, dissolve equal parts of isinglass, alum, and soap separately in water. Then mix the three, and brush the mixture on the wrong side of the cloth.

Q. How can I clean medicine droppers?

A. Medicine droppers may be cleaned effectively with pipe cleaners.

Q. How can I stone raisins?

A. Pour hot water over the raisins and allow it to remain for five or ten minutes. Drain, and rub each raisin between thumb and finger until the seeds come out clean. Dry before using, and if using for cake, rub them in flour to prevent their sinking to the bottom.

Q. How can I regulate "gathers?"

A. Gathers can be regulated by lengthening the stitch on the sewing machine and loosening the tension. Stitch two rows along the edge to be gathered, one-fourth of an inch apart. Draw up the two under threads, regulating the gathers with the free hand.

Historic Sites Attract Visitors

Thousands Pay Visit to Fort Wellington in Ontario This Season

Approximately 25,000 persons visited national historic sites in Eastern Canada during the four-month period ended July 31, 1940, according to reports of attendance received by the Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa. The recorded attendance at the museums at five of the larger sites was as follows: Fort Chambly, Quebec, 6,811; Fort Wellington, Ontario, 4,769; Fort Beausejour, New Brunswick, 3,809; Louisbourg Fortress, Nova Scotia, 3,082, and Fort Anne, Nova Scotia, 2,543.

Although a comparatively young country, Canada has a rich historical background, and more than three hundred historic sites which have been judged to be of sufficient national importance to warrant their being marked and maintained. These include: Indian earthwork, forts, and villages; French forts, trading posts and mission enterprises; sites connected with British exploration and naval and military operations in the long struggle for the possession of Canada; posts of the Hudson's Bay Company; and sites related to the economic and industrial development of the Dominion.

Are Harvesting Peppermint Oil

The mint harvest is on, and four farmers are busy distilling their 30-acre crop of peppermint.

Fred Malloy, Fred Donald, George Jamieson and Arnold Harris are the farmers engaged in the unique harvest. With the exception of a small still which is in operation just north of Stratford, these men believe that they're the only people in Canada who are distilling peppermint oil on a commercial basis.

Their rich deep soil is as well adapted to the growing of peppermint as it is to the growth of some of the finest celery grown in this province.

Peppermint oil, according to Mr. Malloy is worth $2 a pound at the moment and some 12,000 pounds are imported into this country by wholesale drug and pharmaceutical houses. Most of it comes from the United States and England. They distill about 18 pounds of oil from a ton of peppermint leaves. Peppermint is cut in the same way as hay, and left to wilt in the field for a short time. It is then put into the still and distilled under steam pressure.

What Science Is Doing

CURE OF DIABETES

Dr. Elliott P. Joslin of Harvard University Medical School cited last week an as yet unpublished discovery that diabetes can be both cured and prevented in animals, and said the world "can look forward to the day when the same results can be achieved for humans."

The discovery, he said, covers a program of research by Dr. Charles Best of Toronto and his associates, the results of which are to be published for the first time Oct. 15th.

NEW ATTACK ON CANCER

A new attack on cancer, trying Vitamin K as a possible preventive, was anonunced last week.

K is the recently discovered vitamin which aids blood to clot. Alfalfa is rich in K. But an inexhaustible new source has been supplied by chemists who synthesized K in five forms.

The cancer prevention experiments are starting at Harvard University.

HEALTH TOPICS

ASTHMA

Like hay fever, asthma is not caused by the pollen of plants conveyed by bees or other insects. It is caused in some cases by windborne pollen. Inherited sensitivity, as in hay fever, is at the bottom of it, writes Dr. John W. S. McCullough of the Health League of Canada.

Causes

The windborne pollen of plants. Foods, food dusts, face powders, animal dusts and dandruff and feathers, especiall those from ducks, turkeys, chickens and geese. People whose asthma is due to feathers usually show attacks of asthma early in life. This is because they have slept on feather pillows as infants and have become sensitized to that particular type of feather.

Many cases of asthma develop in children who play with cats, dogs, and rabbits.

The dandruff of cattle, horses, sheep and swine is a common cause of asthma. Foods cause about 10% of all asthmatic attacks, but in children the percentage may reach 25 per cent. Many cases of asthma in children are caused by eating foods made from wheat, oats or eggs whose protein content is high. The use of nuts is a common cause, but fruits and vegetables rarely cause the affection.

There are people who are sensitive to milk.

Sensitiveness to certain foods may manifest itself by eczema and hives in early life, and, later on in their early teens or twenties, the persons develop asthma.

An attack of asthma begins with difficulty in breathing and is accompanied by wheezing. It may be mistaken for croup. The attacks usually begin between one and five o'clock in the morning and may last from a few minutes to a few hours.

Treatment

Before attempting treatment, it must be determined what protein the patient is sensitive to. A series of light scratches is made on the surface of the skin without piercing the true skin. On those scratches extracts of pollen, animal dandruff, foods or dusts etc., are placed. If a hive or reddened area is produced by one or more of the extracts used it is a sign that the person is sensitive to that particular product. Having discovered the cause or causes, the next step is to desensitize by injecting a small quantity of the offending agent or agents. If due to pollen, the desensitization must be carried out 2 or 3 months before the time of pollenization. In case of foods, dandruff, feathers etc., the offending agent must be avoided. In cases accompanied by chronic bronchitis, desensitization will not avail for these cases are due to bacterial infection of the bronchial tubes.

Flies A Plane To Chase Ducks

Earl Larrabee, Chico, Cal., owner of a plane, is putting up a one-man fight for the protection of his father's rice fields.

Ducks come in great waves one after another in an effort to invade the rice fields. Larrabee rises magnificently and disperses them. The dispersion lasts for an hour. Then they reform and re-attack. Larrabee rises again and the battle is repeated. Darkness alone saves the ducks —and Larrabee.

With Ink on His Hands

This week, the "Leader" along with other newshpapers in Canada pause in the hustle and bustle of everyday life to observe the 500th anniversary of the art of printing. An exchange supplies the following short tribute to the printer, and we dedicate it to the many generations of those artisans who have gone before us.

WITH INK ON HIS HANDS

The Printer, hard at work over his cases was observed by his visitors. His keen ears heard the quiet voices say: "I would not want to work at printing. It is too dirty, this job with ink and types." The printer rose, stretched out his hands, and observing them, said:

"I am not ashamed of the ink on my hands. The labor with these little leaden casts dwarfs in importance all the other industries of mankind. Without these metallic types the world would never have risen above the power of the enemies of liberty and freedom of thought and law. This trade is powerful in education and business; without it both would cease to exist. During the chaos of the dark ages, printers, hidden away in the fastness of the mountains from the roving, destroying bands, preserved through printing the arts and crafts, the law and literature of a world gone mad. Printing hasc long controlled the destinies of mankind. I am proud of this ink on my hands.

May the high standards set by those old masters, which have meant so much to our present-day civilization and the finer things it stands for endure forever.

It is our constant endeavor as a source of public information, to live up to their reputation and high ideals and be be worthy successors of them.

Chevrier Possible Cabinet Member

Lionel Chevrier, B.A., Ph.D., K.C., M.P., for Stormont since 1935, is now being mentioned as possible choice of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn for the French-Canadian and Eastern Ontario vacancy in his cabinet at Toronto.

Prominent Cornwall lawyer, Mr. Chevrier is well thought of in parliamentary circles at Ottawa, as evidenced by his appointment as assistant chief government whip last May on the opening of the first session of the new Parliament. Mr. Chevrier is 37 years old and has five children.

Reports are heard here also that Mr. Hepburn is toying with the idea of holding a provincial election, either this fall or in early spring. The last election was in October, 1937. Mr. Hepburn, it is believed, would come out on a platform strongly supporting Canada's war effort. There are seven or more vacancies in the Ontario legislature at the present time. The only by-election Mr. Hepburn has called is that in Simcoe Center, where Hon. Dr. Duncan McArthur, new education minister, is replacing the late Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, former education minister.

Ottawa East riding is vacant by reason of the recent appointment of Paul Leduc, K.C., former minisetr of mines, as clerk of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Morrisburg to have Girl's Band

A few years ago, the Village of Morrisburg was without any kind of a band. Then, through the enterprise and ambition of one of its young men, R. Stewart Hall, a boys' band was organized and instructed. Today the Morrisburg boys band is a thriving organization. They have filled many engagements during the past summer, and wherever they played have reflected credit on themselves and their organizer and bandmaster.

Now Stewart (or Tody, as he is known to his friends) is busy with a brand new project. He has for the past several months been planning the organization of a girls' band. Today the first steps in the organization are complete. Already some eighteen girls have received instruments and are now receiving instruction. Mr. Hall plans to have about double that number in the [illegible], which will probably be ready to play next summer.

At last!—delicious WHITE BREAD with the natural wheat vitamins lost for generations

RETAINED IN THE MILLING—NOT ADDED

You Get the Extra Nourishment and Flavour at No Extra Cost

NATURE gives our wonderful Canadian wheat sufficient B vitamins and other essential food elements to make our daily bread truly the staff of life. But for generations, in order to make white flour, millers have had to rob the grist of many of these precious elements. And so much vitamin-robbed white bread is consumed today that there is a serious Vitamin B deficiency in our national diet, medical authorities assert.

No synthetic substitute can improve on the natural B1 and other vitamins of the "B" family provided in the sun-ripened wheat—the very finest Canadian Hard Spring Wheat.

Thanks to the discovery of a new milling process, you now get the natural wheat Vitamin B1, and other essential vitamins of the B family, in Melior Bread. Here is more nourishment than you have ever had from ordinary white bread, and the taste of fine white bread. PLUS—at no extra cost.

Melior Bread is creamy white. It has irresistible white-bread taste. It is golden-crusted, fine textured, velvet-smooth. It makes appetizing sandwiches, extra-delicious, satisfying toast. It has excellent keeping qualities. Melior Bread is the well-nigh perfect loaf. Take every advantage of this triumph of scientific research. Make good your possible lack of the "B" group of vitamins, in a natural way. Give your family the benefits that come from eating Vitamin-rich Melior Bread 3 times a day. Get a loaf or two from the "Wonder" Bread salesman. There's one on your street every day.

MADE FROM PUROS FLOUR
QUALITY CONTROLLED BY SCIENTIFIC STANDARDS ESTABLISHED BY THE PAEDIATRIC RESEARCH FOUNDATION OF TORONTO
Paediatric Research Foundation has set the nutritional standard for Melior Bread. It is constantly assayed by Paediatric Research Foundation for its Thiamin vitamin (B1) and Iron content. Every loaf of Melior bread contains 500 units of vitamin B1 and 13 mgs. of Iron.
