EDITOR EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Mr. J. H. Ross, Publisher of the Winchester Press, who has returned home from the Ottawa Civic Hospital after undergoing what turned out to be a somewhat serious operation, followed by weeks of careful treatment, desires in this somewhat formal, but nevertheless sincere way, to express his deep sense of appreciation and gratitude to the many friends who so kindly remembered him in messages of cheer and good wishes, while in the hospital.

Mr. Ross hopes in time to personally acknowledge those kind and thoughtful messages. In the meantime, he asks that this formal acknowledgement will convey to all, his deep feelings of appreciation and gratitude. Especially does he desire to publicly acknowledge the kindly remembrance and message of cheer that came to his sick room from the local legion of War Veterans. The "boys" will never know what their message meant to a sick "comrade."

ST. LAWRENCE AT LOW LEVEL AT MORRISBURG

Large Islands Are Nearly Linked By Dry Land.

Dropping five inches in one hour, and still dropping, the St. Lawrence river, on Tuesday, was the lowest in memory and river traffic was almost at a standstill with boats in some places resting on bottom. Lockmen reported a depth of 11 feet 11 inches at the gates there. The large islands in the river at Morrisburg are nearly connected by dry land. In shallow places the river bottom is high and dry. Boathouses in the vicinity are, in places, 30 feet or more from the water.

Heavy fall showers, with attendant slippery pavements and fogs that at this time of year seem very prevalent, call for extreme caution with motor vehicles.

Memorial Cairn Is Unveiled On Monday

SOLEMN CEREMONY, ATTENDED BY MORE THAN 600, TAKES PLACE IN BERWICK BEFORE MONUMENT

Dr. I. G. Bogart, of Kingston, unveiled the plaque on the Memorial Cairn at Berwick, at 11 o'clock on Monday morning (Armistice Day), erected by the Women's Institute of that place in honor of those from Finch Township, who gave their lives in the Great War.

Participating in the services, with the members of the Institute, were veterans from the entire district numbering nearly 100

The parade formed at the Community Hall, and led by the Pipers' Band of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, with a detachment of the regiment under command of Lieut. Alex Stark, they marched to the Cairn.

Here members of the Berwick clergy led in the impressive ceremonies, assisted by Company Sergeant James A. Johnston, of the R.C.R.'s.

More than 600 persons witnessed the ceremony, with four of the Highlanders posted as a guard of honour.

After the singing of "Abide With Me," prayer was offered by Rev. W. E. Davies, of the Presbyterian Church. At two minutes to eleven, the crowd stood in silence with bared heads and the "Last Post" was sounded by Company Sergeant Major Robert Metcalfe.

Born In Vicinity

Dr. Bogart, born in the vicinity, a former teacher in the public school, now of Kingston, before unveiling the plaque, spoke highly of the successful efforts of the Women's Institute, on behalf of the ex-service men of the district, and complimented them for the erection of the "memorial."

He said that the total enlistments from Finch Township had been officially given as 80, and of this number 16 had fallen, which was a high percentage. Of those who had enlisted in the 73rd Battalion not one had escaped, from either serious injury or death.

He spoke of the two military honors which had been won, making special mention of the winning of the military medal by Alex McPherson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McPherson, who were present at the ceremony.

With Pipers Angus Cameron and Geo. Montgomery, of Cornwall, playing "The Lament," wreaths were placed at the base of the Cairn in memory of those who had fallen.

Nursing Sister Ella Hurst-McIntosh, of Winchester Springs, placed the wreath on behalf of Winchester Legion, Post 108; Mrs. Donald McPherson, for Berwick Women's Institute; Reeve George Pollock for the municipal council of Finch Tp., Edward Priddon for Cornwall Legion; Mrs. I. G. Bogart, of Kingston, for their family; A. K. McMillan, Cornwall on behalf of the family, in memory of John A. McMillan.

Ceremony Concludes

After singing "O God Our Help In Ages Past," Rev. Hector M. Beach, of the United Church, pronounced the benediction, and the ceremonies were closed with "O Canada" and "God Save Our King."

More than 500 attended the dinner, in the Community Hall, served by the Women's Institute. This was followed by a programme with Dr. Bogart as the chief speaker.

The most impressive incident of the day occurred when Alex McPherson, M. M., still suffering from the wounds he received, rescuing his officer from "No Man's Land," after 13 of his platoon had been killed, leaving him as the sole survivor, was carried to the platform by four comrades, and told of the incident for the first time.

Dr. Bogart spoke on the horrors of war, and impressed upon the veterans the need for peace, directing their attention to the work to be done in this regard.

Rev. Gordon N. Maxwell, B. A., B. D., a former pastor of the United congregation, now of Grace United Church, Montreal, and chaplain of the Army and Navy Veterans, brought greetings from the organization.

Numbers were rendered by the Finch quartet made up of Mrs. William Johnston, Mrs. Annie Love, the Misses Eileen and Marguerite McLean with Mr. Harold Casselman presiding at the piano.

Addresses were also given by Rev. H. M. Beach, Rev. Father G. H. Bougie, of Crysler, while others taking part in the program were, Frank Casselman, who sang, and brought greetings from Morewood veterans; Betty Beach, Betty Jack, James Brown, Marguerite McLean, John Gourley, Marion Preston, Phyllis Rutley, Qwen McIntosh, Neil McLean, Jack Preston, Margaret McLean, Lois Ouderkirk, Mrs. C. Jack, Mrs. G. McLean. Reeve George Pollock acted as chairman.

Many war veterans from Winchester and district were present and took part in the ceremony.

WEDDING

STIRTAN—BERRY

At the United church parsonage, South Mountain, on Wednesday morning, Nov. 6th, Violet Mae, second daughter of Mr. David Berry and the late Mrs. Berry, was united in marriage with Clarence Stirtan, D.D.S., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stirtan, of Spencerville. Rev. W. R. Johnston officiated.

Mrs. Donald Sullivan, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Donald Sullivan was best man.

The bride was attired in a smart wool suit of Flanders blue, a navy velour hat and accessories to match.

Amid showers of rice and confetti, Dr. and Mrs. Stirtan left for a motor trip to Toronto and Western points, where they will be guests of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence for a few days. They will later take up residence at South Mountain.

Bounty On Cheese Will Be Continued

NO NEW SCHEMES TO BE INAUGURATED UNDER THE NATURAL PRODUCTS MARKETING ACT.

Until the Supreme Court has given judgment on the constitutionality of the Natural Products Marketing Act, no new schemes under it will be inaugurated, it was learned at the Department of Agriculture recently. However, schemes already in operation will be continued.

Provision has been made to continue until Dec. 31 the scheme under which the dairy farmers are paid 1 1-2 cents a pound bounty on cheese produced.

An estimate of $1,000,000 for this purpose was voted at last session of Parliament and it will require about $950,000 to cover the payments from the time the bounty was inaugurated last summer until Dec. 31. The government has not yet decided whether the bounty will be renewed next year.

Twenty-two schemes have been approved since the act came into operation, and most of these are still functioning, although some are seasonal and some have completed the purpose for which they were created.

Eight proposed schemes will be held up. They are: Manitoba livestock marketing, Saskatchewan livestock marketing, Alberta livestock marketing, Ontario cattle export, Ontario honey marketing, Saskatchewan poultry marketing, Prince Edward Island livestock marketing, British Columbia cedar shingle domestic marketing.

Several of the proposed schemes would require a poll of the growers and it has been decided it would be advisable to await the Supreme Court's decision before such action were taken.

Bad Fire Near Finch

FOUR JUMP FROM UPSTAIRS WINDOW TO ESCAPE BLAZE

Four persons had a narrow escape from being burned to death and were forced to jump from an upstairs bedroom window in their night attire when fire of unknown origin destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl MacRae, near Finch, early Sunday morning. All four members of the household, Mr. and Mrs. MacRae, his mother and his sister, Miss Lillian MacRae, were burned about the hands and feet. Mrs. MacRae, Sr., suffered severe burns about the face when, believing that her daughter had not escaped, she rushed back into the burning building and it was necessary to rescue her a second time.

Barns and outbuildings were saved by the prompt work of neighbors and Mr. MacRae stated that the damage would amount to about $3,500.

Mr. MacRae first discovered the fire when he heard a window in the kitchen downstairs break. He started downstairs to investigate but was driven back by clouds of smoke and flames.

Arouses Family

He awakened all members of the household and lowered his wife and mother to safety after breaking a bedroom window. When he looked for his sister he found that she had escaped by another window, and he then jumped to safety himself.

His mother, Mrs. MacRae, not seeing her daughter, rushed back into the home and again had to be taken to safety. Miss MacRae had escaped by a back window and was standing on that side of the house.

Mr. MacRae drove several miles to the village to secure the services of Dr. J. G. MacLeod, who gave first aid to all four of the injured. Following the fire Mr. MacRae stated that the family had been for a drive in the afternoon and returning late, had prepared for bed without lighting the kitchen stove. He was unable to account for the outbreak. He stated that the loss was partly covered by insurance.

Reciprocity Pact With United States

For decades it has been the dream of Canadian legislators to complete a reciprocity agreement with the United States Such a task has now been accomplished by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King for on Tuesday last the Prime Minister announced that a Reciprocity Treaty with the United States had been completed.

Terms of the pact, which will be effective as soon as it is signed by the representatives of Canada and the United States, have not been made public. The strictest secrecy is being maintained by members of the Dominion Cabinet.

Broadly speaking, however, it is believed the basis of the agreement will provide for the granting by Canada of its intermediate tariff rates to the United States, plus discounts on a selected list of commodities, in return for which the United States is to reduce the existing tariff by 50 per cent. on Canadian lumber, fish, milk and cream, live cattle, and other agricultural products.

It is believed that the automobile tariff is unlikely to be altered, pending the report of the Tariff Board.

It is understood the proposed tariff reductions will be in effect as soon as the agreement has been signed, and ratifications by the Parliament of Canada and the Congress of the United States are not necessary.

Local Man Fined $20 For Reckless Driving

When he appeared before Magistrate John McCormick in police court here on Tuesday morning, charged with "reckless driving in a manner dangerous to the public," Charles Lynch was fined $20.00 and costs and had his license suspended for six months. He was informed that at the end of this period his license would be returned to him on the condition that he have his car fully insured against property damage and personal liability or can furnish other financial security in case of accident.

His appearance in court followed an exhibition of furious driving on Monday evening, when he attempted ta pass a car ahead of him on the wrong side. In doing so he sideswiped Magistrate McCormick's car which was parked in front of his residence on St. Lawrence street, damaging one of the fenders. The car he attempted to pass was also sideswiped and damaged to a certain extent. Being unable to bring his machine under control, he crashed into the rear end of a large truck, loaded with wood, which was about to back onto the United Church lawn to unload. This crash caused much damage to the front part of his own auto, while the truck withstood the shock.

Constable Herbert Helmer and Traffic Officer Eugene Rose investigated with the result that Lynch was ordered to appear in court on the above charge.

Steal Goods Worth $500 At Avonmore

MOTORING THIEVES SELECT NEW WARDROBE. TAKE GASOLINE AT CHESTERVILLE.

Calmly selecting a complete new wardrobe and discarding their old clothes, thieves forced an entrance into McRae and McMillan's general store at Avonmore early yesterday morning and made a successful getaway with merchandise valued at nearly $500. From Avonmore, the thieves, who travelled in a large automobile, went to Chesterville, where it was discovered that the McColl-Frontenac gasoline tanks at the C. P. R. tracks had been tampered with and approximately 20 gallons of gasoline missing.

Mr. McRae discovered that his store had been broken into when he went to open up yesterday morning and he quickly notified provincial police at Cornwall. Constable W. J. Franks was detailed to the scene of the robbery and he learned that the theft must have taken place between midnight and two o'clock. During that time, a large automobile was reported to have been seen in front of the McRae-McMillan store. Power had been cut off from Avomore early in the evening but the switch for the lights in the store had been left on. When the service was restored shortly before two o'clock the next morning, the lights came on in the store and it is believed that the thieves were frightened away before they had secured all they intended to take.

The thieves were polite, to say the least. They changed their old clothing for new apparel, and neatly replaced on the hangers their old clothing.

The man who starts to ride a hobby shouldn't neglect to provide himself with an emergency brake.

Winchester Veterans Parade To Church

GOOD TURN-OUT FOR ANNUAL EVENT. REV. W. S. ATCHISON DELIVERS FINE ADDRESS.

The annual church parade of members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion and ex-servicemen from other points in the district was held Sunday evening from the legion club rooms on St. Lawrence street to the United church, where a special service was held in observance of Armstice Day. There was a large turnout of war veterans, who were under the direction of Earl J. Spinks, president of the post, with Nursing Sister Mrs. I. P. McIntosh at the head of the column during the parade.

The address at the church was delivered by the pastor, Rev. W. S. Atchison, who served in the Canadian militia during the war. He chose as his topic the hymn "Lest We Forget," and carefully interpreted it. He appealed to the veterans to continue the fight for peace, saying the war had settled nothing, and that the efforts of every veteran was needed to correct the social order.

During the service Mrs. Percy Durant sang as a solo, "There Is No Death," a hymn written at the close of the war and dedicated to the soldiers who had paid the supreme sacrifice. She was accompanied on the organ by Miss Alice Singleton who also directed the choir during the singing.

The flag, on which the names of all the volunteers of this district who enlisted had been sewn by the members of the W.C.T.U., and afterwards presented to the Legion, was draped in front of the pulpit. The wreath presented for the service by the Ontario Government, was placed on the altar in memory of those who had given their lives.

At the close of the service the roll was called from the flag by F. Erle Helmer, of Maple Ridge, who also recited "In Flander's Fields," which was followed by "God Save the King."

UNDERWENT OPERATION

Mrs. W. H. Agnew, who underwent an operation for appendicitis in Kingston General Hospital on Friday last, is making excellent progress towards recovery. It is expected that Mrs. Agnew will remain in Kingston for a few days before returning to her home here.

TODAY and TOMORROW

by FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

WILDCAT . . . . ventures out

One of my neighbors, Merico Lacoli, saw a strange-looking beast on the grounds of the Berkshire Country Club the other day. He had his gun with him, so he took a shot, and brought down a 20-pound wildcat. Old timers up our way say it is the first wildcat seen in Berkshire in 30 years.

There's still a lot of wild, unsettled country, even in New England. Up on top of a rocky spur of West Stockbridge Mountain there is said to be a herd of wild goats. I've never seen them, but venturesome boys sometimes scale the crags and bring back reports of being menaced by fierce, long-horned, bearded billygoats. Now and then hunters up our way sight a black bear, and every so often we have a wolf scare, while the deer seem to be increasing in numbers.

I hope this country never gets so crowded that there won't be room for all the wild things as well as all the people.

TERMITES . . . moving north

The other day Fred Shaw and I went up into my farmhouse attic to see about winter-proofing the gable ends. "Say, did you know you've got termites in your rafters?" asked Fred. He pointed to half-a-dozen mounds of sawdust on the attic floor.

Sure enough, the little white ants were at work there. I thought I'd stopped 'em, seven years ago, when I found they'd eaten away one of the old hand-hewn 12 x 12 sills that the old house rests on. Now I've got to spend a lot more money, maybe put on a whole new roof, if I don't want the house to fall down on our heads.

Termites have been working their way north from the Gulf of Mexico for twenty years. Now, the expert bug men tell me, they're busy even in Canada. They get inside of a piece of timber and eat the heart out of it, leaving it only a hollow shell.

Looks to me as if we've got to figure out new ways to keep insects from licking the human race and taking possession of the world.

GERMANY . . . . holds cash

A New York friend of mine of German descent owns, with his mother, a number of houses in Berlin. A Berlin bank manages the property and collects the rents. My friend can't get any of the money, for the Hitler Government won't let cash go out of Germany except to pay for imported goods.

Last Summer his mother got permission to take $3,000 out, if she would come to Berlin in person and satisfy the authorities she needed the money to live on. She and her son got as far as Paris, where the old lady slipped and broke her hip. She couldn't go to Berlin, and the money is still there, doing nobody any good.

My friend's account of that experience brought home sharply to me the effects of nationalistic policies carried to their extreme, and the trouble caused by setting up artificial barriers to free international intercourse.

TELEPHONE . . . . improved

I saw a new kind of telephone instrument the other day, which the telephone people say will be in universal use in a few years. It doesn't have any box to fasten to the wall; the bell is contained in the base of the receiver. There are two clappers to strike the gongs. One is the usual metal one, the other is made of wood, to give a softer note for the benefit of nervous people who "jump out of their skins" whenever the telephone rings. And the two gongs are pitched to different tones, giving a musical effect as the clapper vibrates between them.

A little thing, perhaps, but one more example of the way business enterprises are always trying to improve their product.

WEB . . . . . over nation

I sat in my New York office the other day and asked the telephone operator to call my farm home, 150 miles away. "Hold the wire," replied the operator, and in three minutes I was talking to my daughter.

I hung up, then called for a Washington number. It took even less time to get my connection with the Senator I wanted to talk to. I had barely finished with him when my 'phone rang again. "Pittsburgh calling," said the operator.

And that night I got a telephone call from another friend who was stranded in Los Angeles and wanted me to telegraph him enough money to pay his hotel bill and buy a ticket back East!

I went to sleep marvelling at the miraculous web which the telephone has woven all over the nation. Sixty years ago, nearly, I saw Professor Bell's first telephone, at the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876. It was looked on as an ingenious toy, nothing more.

DUTY

Of all the watchwords of life, duty is the highest and best. He who sincerely adopts it lives a true life; he is really the successful one. It pertains to all parts and relations of life. There is no moment, place or condition where its claims are not imperative. The poet states it well:

I slept and dreamed that life was beauty,
I woke and found that life was duty.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Rev Charles E. Dunn

THE RETURN FROM CAPTIVITY

Lesson for November 17th. Esra 1:1-6.

Golden Text: Psalm 126:3.

At the time of the captivity the Hebrew people were located in three centres. About 40,000 lived by themselves as a Jewish colony in the heart of Babylon. Many other Jews found a refuge on the borders of friendly Egypt. But the majority of the nation remained in the fatherland, tilled the soil, offered sacrifices on the ruins of the impressive altar which had stood before the temple in Jerusalem, and celebrated mournful fasts.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Now we must remember that the victorious conquest of Babylonia by King Cyrus, of Persia, did not result in a general return of the Jews from their bondage. Cyrus encouraged them to go back, but only a little handful of the Jews in Babylon actually made the long journey to the familiar hills of their beloved Judah to join those who had not been compelled to leave the fatherland, and the fugitives who had returned from their Egyptian residence. No attempt was made for 18 years to rebuild the ruined temple of the capital city. And when this splendid work of reconstruction was finally begun it encountered vehement opposition at the hands of the Palestinian Jews and their neighbors, the Samaritans. It was finished, however, in 516 B.C., under the inspiring leadership of Haggai and Zechariah.

But it was not until the time of Ezra and Nehemiah, 75 years later, that the deliverance of the people was completed, and their life and religion placed upon a stable basis. Ezra had studied the Jewish Law diligently while in exile, and gave it, in the restored commonwealth of Judah, a sanctity and importance it had never before possessed. He read it indeed before the people, who pledged themselves to its obedience. Nehemiah, the cupbearer, is one of the most attractive figures in the Bible. A gifted man of action, with plenty of patriotism and religious zeal, he was able to render a service of enormous value to his people's cause.

VALUABLE DURING LIFE AND AFTERWARDS

The horse is a very utilitarian animal, valuable alike when alive and after he has shuffled off the scene. In some countries his flesh is used as food, his hide is turned into leather, parts of his anatomy turn up in the shape of glue, and that useful appendage in life, his tail, is also turned to account. Who, for instance, considers as he listens enraptured to some beautiful melody that the virtuoso is extracting his entrancing music by drawing hairs taken from a horses's tail across the intestines of some animal made into the shape of strings. And as the captivated listener sits in his comfortable chair, the chances are it is stuffed with the same kind of hair. When he goes to bed at night he reclines on a mattress, perhaps, stuffed with this hair and the painter plies his calling with a brush made from Dobbin's fly swatter. In Belgium, three different qualities of hair are recognized, stiff tails, tails and manes. As regards color, dark hair, as nearly black as possible, is mostly in demand. The hair is used in the upholstery trade, for stuffing mattresses, and making certain kinds of brushes. Argentine supplies the greatest quantity, followed by the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Canada, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. The Belgian manufacturer has a high regard for Canadian horse hair and it is probably the most expensive, which accounts for Canada not suppling a greater portion of the market, cheapness being one if the prime considerations.

FAMILY DISCUSSION

Family discussion of the right sort is an excellent thing. If a group of brothers and sisters can talk over important questions, advancing reasons for the views they hold, and finding the weak points in the others' arguments, they are getting a worthwhile training in logical thinking. Few family groups carry on discussions in this way, however. When they disagree, they lose their tempers.

Most people solve the questions by avoiding argument. Since they cannot discuss a question without losing their tempers, they avoid discussion. What they should do is to take their tempers in hand. In these days of perplexing situations, when opinion is so divided as to the best way out, young people need to practice intelligent discussion. The silly childishness of becoming angry just because people do not agree with you, should be mastered, just as you master the habit of bursting into tears when you cannot have your own way. Keen discussions in the family circle, unmarred by displays of temper, will help to fit you young people to do your share in the world of the future.

LOVING TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF JAMES CURRIE

One of the largest funerals ever seen in Crysler or vicinity was that of James Currie, for more than 30 years postmaster in that village, held Wednesday afternoon last from his home to Knox Presbyterian Church and cemetery. Mr. Currie died on Sundy evening last, after being compelled to remain in bed for two weeks. The large attendance was a tribute to the memory of one of Crysler's native sons, who had spent so many years in the public service.

The service at Knox Church, of which Mr. Currie was an elder and clerk of session, was conducted by Rev. W. E. Davies, B.A., pastor of the joint charges of Finch and Crysler, assisted by Rev. P. A. McLeod, D.D., of Maxville. During the service the beautiful solo, "One by One" was sung by Mrs. Jacob Smirle, the accompaniment being played by Mrs. W. E. Davies.

Pall bearers were Jesse Coons, Walter Carruthers, Henry Armstrong, Alex McLeod, Archie MacInnes, J. R. Cockburn.

HEN THIEVES ARE ACTIVE IN COUNTY OF RUSSELL

Hen thieves are again active in this section of the country and many farmers have lost a number of birds. In one case the same poultry yard has been visited twice in the past month. Hugh Graham, prominent Russell county agriculturalist, relates that he was awakened during the earthquake and heard a noise at the poultry yard. Upon investigating he found the windows of one poultry house broken and the lock on the door intact. The pen had been looted of some thirty birds. County and provincial police are investigating in an attempt to put an end to this yearly epidemic of poultry thieving.

HINTS FOR THE FARMER

One large duck farm in Eastern Canada is planning to ship 2,000 boxes of ducks to England before the close of navigation at Montreal and to hold them in storage for subsequent sale.

Shipments of feeder cattle brought from Western to Eastern Canada to be fattened under the Dominion Feeder Policy totalled over 2,000 head for the month of September.

To drive home to farmers in general the important place of good seed in an agricultural programme requires that a continuous, persistent, sound, educational programme be carried on over a period of years, said Professor Robert Summerby of MacDonald College in his presidential address to the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

ONTARIO EGG LAYING CONTEST

On Wednesday, October 23, the 15th Ontario Egg Laying Contest came to an end after a course of 51 weeks.

Assisted by the absence of any serious sickness or disease, the records of this year's birds are well in advance of those of any previous contest at Ottawa. Production was unusually steady, particularly during the middle and last stages of of the contest. The average yield per bird was 20.7 eggs higher than that of last year. The number of birds which qualified for registration was 203, or 69 more than last year.

Egg weights were very good, 49 pens showing an average of over 24 ounces to the dozen for all eggs laid.

The Barred Plymouth Rocks were the most conspicuous breed in the final results.

MANURE FOR HAY CROP

In order to determine accurately the influence of manure on the yield of hay, part of a field of new seeding on a farm in Oxford was manured at the rate of 10 tons per acre in the fall of 1934.

A marked difference in the vigor and density of growth was noticed all season on the manured side as contrasted with the lower, thinner strand and smaller percentage of legumes in the unmanured hay.

Careful yield tests were taken in 1935, which show that the manured land yielded 27 per cent. more hay than the unmanured. The manured hay also surpassed the unmanured in protein and mineral content.

The aftermath of the topdressed land came back faster and there were fewer weeds in this hay.

The proprietor stated, "I am sold to the idea. We cannot get along without putting some of our manure on the hay land."

It is a sound practice, especially in mineral deficient areas, to reinforce barnyard manure with phosphate on the manure in the stable at the rate of 1 or 2 lbs. per cow per day. The phosphate retains much of the nitrogen, which is otherwise lost by evaporation.

PETER KAVANAGH PASSES, WAS OSGOODE FARMER

Peter Kavanagh, well-known farmer of Osgoode, Ont., and only surviving member of his family, died in an Ottawa hospital Saturday as a result of injuries which he sustained from a fall last March. Born in Osgoode, Ont., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kavanagh, early settlers of that community, he had spent all his life in that district, where he was engaged in farming. His passing will be heard with keen regret by his many friends in the district. A devout Catholic, he worshipped at St. John's church, Osgoode, Ont.

Surviving him are two nieces and two nephews.

The funeral was held from McEvoy Brothers' funeral home, 471 McLaren street, on Monday at 8.15 a.m. for requiem high mass at St. John's church, Osgoode, at 9 o'clock. Interment was made in the parish cemetery.

VICE REGAL REGRET EXPRESSED

Evidence of the kindly thoughtfulness of His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's new Governor-General, was given recently when His Excellency directed a note of deep regret be despatched to Ovide Boudreau, Pendleton farmer, whose two valuable horses were unavoidably struck and killed by the vice-regal special train when nearing the Capital on Monday morning of last week.

His Excellency's first intimation of the unfortunate accident came when he read an item in the Ottawa Citizen and he at once instructed his private secretary, Arthur S. Redforn, to write Mr. Boudreau voicing his regret.

Mr. Boudreau's two horses had escaped from his farm, one-quarter of a mile north of the C. P. R. track near Pendleton, on the boundary between Russell and Prescott counties, and strayed onto the railway right-of-way. Mr. Bondreau, trying to drive the horses, frightened by the train whistle, to safety, was almost struck himself by the train. The engineer slowed the vice-regal train but was unable to avoid striking the animals.

BE THANKFUL

Too many of us are blinded by little setbacks—thinking only of the misfortunes that seem to keep overtaking us, and not of the good things, which we take quite as a matter of course.

In other words, are you grateful enough that it is not worse?

There are comparatively few who could not be thankful for something.

Lives might be much brighter if consideration were given to the sunshine of life instead of bewailing what can't be helped.

Don't you have many things in your life that others have not, and would enjoy?

Yes, there are many worse off than you are. You have but to look around.

These others are victims of circumstances; have the same troubles that you have, and possibly more.

If you have health, you should be thankful.

Health is the greatest blessing.

Don't bemoan your fate when you are well.

BILLY SUNDAY IS DEAD

"Billy" Sunday, the internationally famous evangelist who caused thousands to "hit the sawdust trail" to his pulpit and renounce the devil and rum, died suddenly on Wednesday of last week.

As described by the wife of the Rev. William A. Sunday—known as "Ma" Sunday—"He just slipped back on his pillow and closed his eyes" at 7.15 p. m.

Sunday, who quit major league baseball at the height of his career to become the leading evangelist of the U. S. A., had been an invalid for some time. He was visiting at the home of a brother-in-law, illiam J. Thompson, when he told his wife, "Mother, I just feel dizzy." A doctor could bring the 72-year-old preacher only temporary relief. He had been in ill health for three years.

As late as October 27th, however Sunday conducted one of his picturesque revival meetings in Indiana and was elated that some two score of his audience had come to the altar.

He had been a compelling figure on North American revival rostrums since 1896—thundering voice, tangy phraseology, vehement in gesture.

DEER ARE NUMEROUS

The sound of deer hunters' guns has been heard in the North Gower district during the past week and the deer are reported to be quite numerous. A number have been shot not far from the Prince of Wales highway between Kemptville and North Gower. In the township of Marlborough they are even more numerous.

THREE MONTHS' SENTENCE FOR

Although it was not in operation, a still with a capacity for 48 gallons of mash was seized in the home of George Bourdon, Dalkeith, Glengarry county, by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Cornwall detachment, on Monday last. The still is believed to be the largest ever seized in that district.

OnTuesday afternoon last, Bourdon appeared before Magistrate Percy C. Bergeron and pleaded guilty to a charge of having a still in his possession. He was assessed $100 and costs or three months in jail, and he took the latter.

COPYING IN SCHOOL WORK

Copying in examinations was referred to at Ottawa, by the Deputy Minister of Education, as a serious menace of the future. It no doubt is to be regretted that students resort to copying but there are circumstances when it can be understood, though not approved. Some students of a nervous temperament face examinations with fear and trembling, and this mental condition is intensified as the examinations proceed. They are therefore unable to do themselves or their teachers, justice, and take advantage of any means to escape from an unhappy predicament. Such pupils rarely make as good a showing at examinations as they do during the term and that is where promotion on term work could operate to advantage. In the meantime, copying is prevalent and always will be as long as human nature remains as it is.

600 ATTEND MORRISBURG SERVICE

In spite of bitter winds and threatening weather, more than 600 persons turned out to attend the impressive Remembrance Day service at Monument Park in Morrisburg Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. R. Douglas Smith, pastor of the United Church there. The service was preceded by a lengthy parade of more than 250 members of the Canadian Legion from Cornwall, Morrisburg, Iroquois, Winchester and Williamsburg, accompanied by the Morrisburg municipal council and Reeve Flynn, the Morrisburg militia and the Cornwall Legion bugle band. Prominent among the veterans at the service were Col. Magwood, one of the officers commanding the old 154th, and Captain Frank Hunter, also of the old 154th, deputy chief of the Cornwall police department.

Several Morrisburg churches also included memorial prayers and special hymns in their services Sunday.

To the Hayden Planetarium, the new acquisition of the Museum of Natural History, the other night, probably the only place in New York City where you can really get a good glimpse of the stars of the heavens. Certainly the only place that you can watch the day's movements of the stars and planets condensed into 10 minutes. The first sight of the heavens, projected from a miraculous machine onto the hemispherical dome of the auditorium brought such a hush over the audience as I have never known before. Intensely interested, the entire audience remained almost deathly still for a full hour of watching the stars, the planets, meteors and comets.

BANQUET FOR CHEESEMAKERS

Continuing his practice for a number of years, James A. Sanderson, of Oxford Station, well known cheese buyer and former of the Legislature for Grenville, was host to the cheesemakers of the Kemptville district at a banquet in Leslie Hall in that village Wednesday evening last. Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture if Ontario, was the chief speaker at the banquet.

After these buildings were raised the entire front was laid with concrete and the completed effect is good. WARNS AGAINST DANGER OF GASOLINE

Following several fires in an unnamed garage the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department has issued a general warning against the use of gasoline for cleaning purposes.

Gasoline is a very handy article for several purposes, but, like fire, it is a good servant but a bad master. Judging by the way some of its users treat it, especially for cleaning purposes, the wonder is that it has not caused many more deaths and injuries than it has.

One very common practice is to use it for removing spots from clothing or rugs, by the simple process of rubbing the spot until it disappears. The worse the spot, the harder the rub, never, apparently, knowing or caring that friction caused by the rubbing is liable to strike a spark that will ignite the gasoline and cause an explosion and fire. Another risky practice is to do cleaning with gasoline in a closed room with a light burning. If the light is a coal oil lamp the user is looking for trouble, for fumes will carry several feet, so that a lamp at apparently safe distance may explode the gas.

Too much care cannot be used in handling gasoline. Have you ever noticed the chains trailing under the big gasoline trucks and wondered why the driver did not tie them up out of the way? Those chains are there to carry off any static electricity that may be generated by friction in any part of the truck—they are there to save the truck from going up in a burst of flames. You may have noticed too, that your service station attendant, when he is filling your tank, holds the hoze nozzle against the side of the tank. That is to take up any static electricity that may be generated by friction between the gas and the hose. He knows what is liable to happen.

So, if you use gasoline for cleaning, do it in the open air away from lights and do not use too much "elbow grease" if you want to be sure of coming out with a whole skin. When pouring it from one vessel to another, keep the edges of the two vessels together. Keep open lights away from it. Do not turn the switch of an electric light in a gasolined-filled room; the switch may spark and start a fire. Keep it away from any fire. In short, treat gasoline with all the care and respect due to one of the most useful—articles in existence.

CANADA'S 1935 WHEAT CROP

Canada's 1935 wheat production is estimated at 290,541,000 bushels, a gain of 5.3 per cent., or 14,692,000 bushels, over the unrevised estimate for 1934. The 1935 crop comprises 277,274,000 bushels of spring wheat and 13,267,000 bus. of fall wheat. The great wheat producing areas of the Prairie Provinces accounted for 272,000,000 bushels, including 16 million bushels of Durum wheat and about 60 million bushels of common wheat so shrunken by rust and frost as to be unfit for milling. In Ontario the production of soft winter wheat was much greater than in 1934, amounting to 13,267,000 compared with only 6,724,000 bushels a year ago.

Other grains also show increased production. The 1935 production of oats in Canada is estimated at 449,297,00 bus., a 40 per cent. gain over the 1934 harvest of 321,120,000 bushels. Barley crops show an increase of 48 per cent. over the preceding year, being estimated at 94,550,000 bushels compared with 63,742,000. Better harvests of both rye and flaxseed are indicated. The combined Canadian crops of spring and fall rye are estimated at 13,354,300 bushels compared with the low yield of only 5,423,000 bushels in 1934. Similarly, the 1935 flaxseed production is estimated at 1,636,100 bushels compared with the 1934 production of 910,400 bushels.

Hay and clover production shows a 23 per cent. increase for the whole Dominion. The preliminary estimate for 1935 is 13,788,000 tons compared with 11,174,000 in 1934. Most of the increase is accounted by a return to good harvests in Ontario and the Prairie Provinces.

One morning recently Jack Miner, the Kingsville naturalist, found an 85-pound bear up a tree in his bird sanctuary. The animal had escaped from its pen in the nearby village.

Kid Gloves

If the kid glove is too tight in the wrist, dampen the wrist of the glove on the inside with water, then place on a glove stretcher and dry.

Ironing Doilies

Doilies must be ironed until thoroughly dry to prevent puckering, and should be ironed with the grain of the cloth to prevent warping.

Instead of carrying the firewood from the yard or cellar to the fireplace, stacked in the arms, dropping a stick now and then, try tying it in a piece of canvas.

Dirty Windows

Windows that are unusually dirty may be easily cleaned if washed with a mixture of one tablespoon of ammonia to one quart of water, then wiped with a chamois that is almost dry.

Kitchen Sink

After using gasoline to clean some article, pour the gasoline down the kitchen sink. Follow this by pouring down some boiling water. This will clean the sink pipe of all greasy deposits.

To Soften Brown Sugar

To soften brown sugar that becomes hard and lumpy, place it in a shallow pan in the oven for a few minutes. Then cover with a damp cloth to keep it soft and moist and put away in a cool place.

Ironing Georgette

When ironing georgette or crepe de chine, wrap it while still damp in a Turkish towel and allow it to stand until it is the proper dampness for ironing. Follow this method and the material will retain its color.

The Eyes

The eyes need exercise as well as any other part of the body. A good strengthening exercise is to turn the eyes up toward the ceiling, then down to the floor, then to the left and to the right, repeating several times a day.

With carloads of western steers being imported into Leeds and Grenville for feeding purposes, some of the "prime western steer beef" of which we read in butchers' announcements will be produced only a few miles distant.

FRIENDLY CIRCLE HOLDS MEETING AT METCALFE

The first meeting of the newly formed organization known as the "Friendly Circle," was held on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Ida McLaurin and there was an enthusiastic turnout of members. Mrs. D. Kidney as leader presided and outlined the purpose of the organization, pointing out that it is non-denominational and is fourfold in its scope, embracing music, literature, historical research and social life. Conveners have been appointed as follows: music, Miss Ida McLaurin and Mrs. R. A. F. Blair; literature, Mrs. W. J. W. Woods; historical research, Mrs. A. C. Blair; social, Mrs. E. W. McGirr.

In connection with the first meeting a splendid program was offered, opening with a sing-song led by Mrs. D. Kidney with Miss I. McLaurin at the piano. Current events were in charge of Miss J. Cameron. The musical part consisted of a study of Beethoven by Miss I. McLaurin and Mrs. R. A. F. Blair, with piano selections from the same composer bby Mrs. E. Stanley. The life of Lord Tweedsmuir with a review of his writings was given by Mrs. W. J. W. Woods. Mrs. E. McGirr introduced a novel feature in games which were much enjoyed.

Mrs. C. McLaurin-Brown who is renewing acquaintances in the village was present and added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Miss E. McDiarmid, of Ottawa, and Mrs. R. Blair.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 21st at the home of Mrs. Alfred Scrivens.

A MONUMENT IS NEEDED

Someone should start a movement to build a monument to the average taxpayer. He is the man who keeps the home fires burning and makes the wheels of government go around. He has gotten himself into the position of a taxpayer by thrift, by spending less than he makes, by investing in the home town, by building a home first and owning a roof over his own head. To do it he has denied himself pleasures and luxuries that the spendthrift had in plenty. In every community he may be abused and referred to slightingly on many occasions, but in good years and bad years he is the backbone of the country, and without him there would be no government and no relief. He carries the burden that others shirk, many times without complaint, which he would often be justified in voicing. He is deserving of a monument—a tall enduring monument, for he, like Atlas of old, bears the world upon his shoulders.—Cranbrook Courier.

Don't forget that jewelry takes on a new importance this season. Get out all the old family heirlooms and polish them up. Many of them will go nicely with Renaissance styles, just as they are. The large pieces such as your grandmother might have worn, are particularly appropriate.

For that constantly shiny nose, an astringent with alcohol in it sometimes helps. Powder, of course. But if your skin is too oily, the only real solution may be a change in diet that will cut down on the fatty foods, excess of sweets, starches and the excess fuel foods.

WHEN BUYING APPLES

When buying apples the housewife would do well to remember these lines:

"There is an apple large and round,
At the top of the barrel always found
There is an apple small and mean,
Always at the bottom seen."

A MIXTURE

A school inspector began by putting a few questions to the small girls.

"Now," he said, "if all the good people were white, and all the bad people were black, what color would you be?"

Some of the children said white and others black, but little Gloria, who had remained silent until the others replied, said: "Please, sir, I'd be streaky."

In the year 1934 Canadians purchased automobiles to the amount of $75,785,461 and 49,919 of the new cars were paid for in cash. Cars being more or less a luxury this is evidence that the automobile trade was not seriously damaged by the depression.

THE RETIREMENT OF PREMIER HEPBURN

There has probably never been a man in the history of Ontario politics who has had such a meteoric rise to prominence as Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn. A few short months prior to the election in 1934, Mr. Hepburn was an unknown cog in the Liberal machine. His dynamic personality and forceful manner brought attention and on June 19th of that year the people of this province voiced their opinion in no uncertain manner regarding the young Liberal leader and the policies of his party.

Since that time Premier Hepburn has succeeded in introducing numerous bits of legislation that were long overdue and eagerly awaited by the majority of the electors. While it is said in some quarters that the Liberal chieftain has shown himself to be a rank partisan, it must also be admitted that he has tackled problems in the administration of the affairs of the province which had been spurned by his predecessors.

In many ways the Premier of Ontario resembles Hon. G. H. Ferguson, former Conservative Leader. Both men possessed a vivacious and striking platform manner; an energetic mind and a desire to get action—come what may. Both were elected to power by convincing majorities and dictated the policies of government in no uncertain terms, and if current reports are true, both will have retired from the position as leader of the ruling party—undefeated.

Duing his term of office, Premier Hepburn has placed his stamp of approval upon measures of legislation which have incurred the wrath of certain factions throughout the province, yet the general trend has invariably been towards a reduction of the burden now being borne by the patient tax-payer. His policies and those of his associates have caught the fancy of the masses of the people and as such have consolidated his position in numerous respects.

If Premier Hepburn's decision to retire is definite, it is exceedingly doubtful if the Liberal party in this province will find a leader who is capable of firing the enthusiasm of the people as did the young man from St. Thomas. As yet, however, no steps have been taken in this direction pending Mr. Hepburn's final decision later in the year.

In any event, it is likely that the Liberal party are doing considerable thinking at the present time for a situation looms directly ahead, the solution of which may easily spell the difference between success or failure during the next few years.

THE RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT.

The announcement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King that a reciprocity agreement has been completed with the United States will be received with general satisfaction throughout Canada. For decades, political leaders have striven to bring into being such an agreement without success, through failure on the part of negotiators to agree on terms.

There is no doubt but Canada and the United States belong to one economic unit and both should benefit from a freer exchange of goods and commodities.

The reported 50 per cent. reduction in tariff rates on Canadian dairy products and cattle, will be heartily received throughout this district. Dundas is noted for its dairying activities and an increased trade in those lines with the United States would do much towards restoring prices to a more normal level, bringing benefit to all classes.

During recent months, hundreds of fine dairy cows have been exported from this country to the States. A reduction in tariff rates with respect to cattle should further stimulate this trade and bring additional revenue into the pockets of the farmers throughout this section. Grade cattle will, of course, benefit mainly from the proposed reduction, which will mean an increase in price approximately equal to the amount of the reduction.

In any event the Canadian farmer will be ready and willing to co-operate in developing further trade with the country to the south and all classes will eagerly await a more definite announcement as to the terms of the trade pact.

THE BUSINESS OF GOVERNMENT

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has proven himself to be a wise and earnest leader, in refusing to comment upon or criticize the work of the Bennett administration since coming into office. Political leaders have been known, who spend a great deal of time, upon taking over the reins of government, in condemning the actions and efforts of their predecessors; in revealing to the public gaze, so-called acts of mal-administration and lack of judgment on the part of political rivals. Such actions cause thinking people to wonder about the sincerity of those seeking public office. There is nothing to be gained from belittling the efforts of those who have devoted their time and energies towards solving the problems which face Canada at the present time, regardless of their political affiliation.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, who is recognized generally as a capable and far-sighted man when asked concerning the condition of affairs upon taking over the portfolio of Minister of Finance, replied that everything was found to be in good shape. Such reports tend to inspire confidence in those who are chosen to control and direct the affairs of state.

Canada is making a splendid recovery from the depression. This work must be continued, and it is gratifying to note that the Liberal leader and his followers are intent upon such business rather than seeking to point out defects in the former administration.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Great care should be exercised by motorists who have occasion to use the public highways at this time of year. Speed and reckless driving take a heavy toll from week to week but when snow, ice and sleet add to the driving hazards, number of accidents mounts greatly.

Inspect your car and make certain that all driving equipment is in first class condition. It may save your life and the lives of others.

Mrs. Clarence Kennedy donated blocks for another quilt. Final arrangements were made for the annual Bazaar and supper to be held the last Saturday in the month. Mrs. Lorne Campbell volunteered to make a three-storey Christmas cake for a door prize and Mrs. A. Hill donated a beautiful cushion for a second door prize. Following the completion of business delicious refreshments were served.

What sculpture is to a block of marble education is to a human soul.—Addison.

IDEAS FOR RIGHT LIVING WORTH KEEPING IN MIND

There exists in life six things which we ought to learn. These are:

First—To laugh. Laughing is better than any amount of medicine. Whenever you smile or laugh, the mind is liberated for that moment from all the burdens and cares of human life.

Second—To know how to tell a good story. A tale amusing and well narrated is as acceptable in any company as a sunbeam in the dreary room of an invalid.

Third—To learn to conceal your own regrets and discomforts. The world has sorrow enough without listening to your complaints and injustices too.

Fourth—To refrain from grumbling, even in secret. If your circumstances are not always pleasant and agreeable remember that they might be far worse.

Fifth—To greet your friends with real cheerfulness. They already have troubles enough of their own without feeling that they are about to share another's.

Sixth—To help loyally every object and effort which our conscience acknowledges as worthy, chiefly our homes, our churches and our lodges. We should always feel that we can benefit from these factors of a happy life only in proportion to the efforts and sacrifices we make for them.

THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

During the last session of Parliament a law was passed limiting the hours of industrial undertakings to eight in the day and forty-eight in the week. This was in accordance with the convention concerning the application of the principle adopted by the general conference of the International Labor organization of the League of Nations. The law, which passed the House on July 5th was to come into force three months later or on October 5 1935.

Premier King, while not questioning its validity, prefers to submit this and other measures to the Supreme Court and have that august body rule on its constitutionality before enforcing it. In the meantime the Law is suspended.

It has taken a good many years to get an eight hour day, forty-eight hour week for Canada. Years ago when it was set forth as an ideal work week, the same type of mind we have with us to-day enquired: "What will these people do with their leisure?" Today the majority of workmen have that extra leisure and they seem to employ it very profitably indeed. In some industries working hours have been reduced to forty-four and there are industries working only forty hours a week, while the American Federation of Labor has gone on record as favoring a thirty-hour week. The aim of the new legislation is to whip the laggards into line so they won't have an edge on honest producers. The law will apply to villages and towns as well as the cities.

W. C. T. U. PARLOUR MEETING

This annual event of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. James Slater on Friday afternoon, November 8th.

The speaker for the occasion was Mrs. James Faulds, of Cornwall, who brought a very interesting report of the recent Provincial Convention held in Barrie, to which she had been sent as a delegate from our county unions. A few thoughts she brought were:—Financial gain is the urge back of the liquor traffic, and it demands organized attack. Encouragements noted were the more thorough distribution of leaflets, the co-operation of the Sunday Schools and the day schools, and of the press. Brewers are the only ones who favour beer parlours. Ontario has now 1700 places of legal sale in government shops, beer parlours. brewers' warehouses and wineries. But we are in a winning fight because right is right and God is on the side of right.

Others from Cornwall were present, also some from Inkerman. Mrs. Poirier, of the latter place, spoke of the inspiration received from this meting.

Mrs. Clara Johnston conducted the devotions, reading and talking on Eccles. 11. Mrs. Miller, of Inkerman, and Mrs. Wm. Johnston led in prayer. The musical programme consisted of solos by Mrs. Wood, "Help Somebody Today;" Mrs. Atchison, "A Little Word of Love;" Mrs. P. Durant, "A Million Boys Are Needed," (by request.) The accompanists were Miss Alice Singleton and Miss Mary Empey. The meeting was presided over by the vice president, Mrs. Wm. Johnston, because of the absence of the president through bereavement in her family. The minutes were read and taken by Mrs. K. Helmer. It was decided to send a letter of appreciation to the Winchester Press for its publication of the Temperance Lessons.

Mrs. Wm. Johnston expressed appreciation to Mrs. Faulds, and all who helped in the programme and to the committee. The clip sheet entitled: A Winning Fight, was conducted by Mrs. Earle. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Atchison, after which appetizing refreshments were served by the committee.

The Thankoffering meeting of the Crusaders Mission Band of Morewood Presbyterian church, was held on Saturday, Nov. 2nd, in the church hall. They had as their guests the members of the W. M. S. An appropriate address of welcome was given by Miss Marion Marcellus, secretary, and responded to by Mrs. W. S. Feely, who also gave a talk on "Sowing the Good Seed." As this was the last meeting that the president, Miss Mary McLeod, who has entered Kingston General Hospital to train as a nurse, and Miss Marion Marcellus, who is leaving for Kemptville Agricultural School, would be with the Band, Mrs. Thos. Coulthart presented each with a life membership certificate, and Miss Helen McQuaig and Miss Lillie Smirle gave each a gift from the Band. On behalf of her children, Mrs. Lyle Hunter expressed their thanks to Band and friends. Refreshments were served by the Band and a social hour spent.

FINED $100 AND COSTS

Appearing on a charge of criminal negligence in magistrate's court at Morrisburg on Friday Leland C. Kyle, of Belleville, N. J., was fined $100 and nearly $70 costs by Magistrate John McCormick. The charges arose out of a motor accident last Sunday night near Morrisburg when Kyle's car collided with a buggy, seriously injuring Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Casselman and their three children, of Williamsburg. Dr. Charles A. Louden, of Morrisburg, who is attending the injured, was the sole witness called.

COLD WEATHER INCREASES CARBON MONOXIDE PERIL

The hazards of carbon monoxide gas are increased with cold weather, according to warnings issued by health and safety experts. They stress the fact that with proper ventilation in motor vehiles on the road and with an open window or door in the garage when the engine is kept running the possibility of danger from deadly gas will be removed.

Carbon monoxide defies the ordinary senses. It is without odor or color, and cannot be detected by taste. The early symptoms of monoxide poisoning include headache, dizziness, smarting eyes, drowsiness and nausea. Any one of these is a danger signal. It should cause the driver to stop his car and get into the fresh air, the surest antidote.

Those who have tested many motor vehicles for monoxide gas make these recommendations:—

Avoid running the engine if it is necessary to remain in the car while parked in a closed garage. The window of the car should be left at least partly open. Be sure of complete combustion of fuel. Don't use a cut-out that discharges gas in front of the muffler when the motor is idling.

Cars should be regularly inspected for leaky exhaust connections.

Dear Friends:—

It is with very great pleasure that your many relatives and friends have assembled this evening to congratulate you on this the golden anniversary of you marriage. Fifty years of wedded life is a rare thing in any family, and although, doubtless, the years have brought you some sorrows, we know that, on the whole, your fifty years of life together have been happy ones.

We rejoice with you, that as yet your immediate family circle is unbroken—in that a loving Providence has spared you, so far, every one of your children and grandchildren. This home has always held a warm welcome for us all, and not one of us but can recall many happy times spent here.

In the community and church as well as in your family, another's need has always been your good opportunity to help, and you have never once failed any of us.

On behalf of your relatives and friends we present you with these gifts, as a remembrance and a token of our affection and regard, and we trust that God will continue to bless and keep you both in His loving care.

Signed, Edith Mellan, Annie Hess and Eleanor Cowden.

The Dr. M. W. Locke Scholarship of one hundred dollars ($100.00) at the Kemptville Agricultural School for outstanding agricultural achievements, open to boys of Dundas and West Stormont, has been won for 1935 by William Sanderson, of Newington.

Six candidates underwent a written and oral examination at the Agricultural office, Morrisburg, on Thursday, Oct. 31st, before a committee composed of Dr. J. H. Grisdale, of Iroquois; W. J. Stewart, Public School Inspector for Dundas, and J. Hume Grisdale, acting agricultural representative for Dundas and West Stormont.

This scholarship is the generous donation of the celebrated physician, Dr. M. W. Locke of Williamsburg, and was announced some months ago.

LET'S ALL BE "BUILDERS"

The slogan of a service club, the Kiwanis, is "We Build." With the Midland Free Press we ask: "Why cannot we all catch some of the Kiwanis spirit and become builders? Let us forget our failures, our shortcomings of the past, and get our eyes front." Let us take these words to heart:

"I watched them tearing a building down,
A gang of men in a busy town.
With a ho-heave-ho and lusty yell
They swung a beam, and the sidewall fell.
I asked the foreman: "Are these men skilled,
And the men you'd hire if you had to build?"
He gave a laugh and said: "No indeed!
Just common labor is all I need.
I can easily wreck in a day or two
What builders have taken a year to do."
And I thought to myself as I went my way,
Which of these roles have I tried to play?
Am I a builder who works with care,
Measuring life by the rule and square?
Am I shaping my deeds to a well-made plan,
Patiently doing the best I can?
Or am I a wrecker, who walks the town
Content with the labor of tearing down?

Fairly pointed question, isn't it? Never mind telling us how you answer it. From now on let us all "Build" and "Boost."

Many of the farmers of Western Canada who fed Wester lambs during the 1934-35 winter under the Dominion Lamb Feeding Project are placing increased repeat orders, in many cases asking for double the number of lambs they fed a year ago. The applications, particularly from Quebec and Ontario, reflect the abundant supplies of hay, grain, silage, and other crops in Eastern Canada.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE AUTHOR

by ETHEL HUESTON

THIRTEENTH INSTALMENT

Rowena and Peter are employed by Rack Ruff Motors to make a coast-to-coast trip, advertising the roadster. They take Bobby along as chaperon but she deserts them in Colorado and they get married, in name only, so they can travel without criticism. At last, after many tiffs, they near New York. They discuss what they intend to do after obtaining an annulment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rowena was a little more touchy even than usual just at that time because she was having some trouble with her own work, and the fact that Mr. Rack had not been entirely satisfied with her last three stories had done nothing to improve her disposition.

When—the picture done Peter's way, in spite of her—he turned the roadster east once more, Rowena retired sulkily to the rumble seat.

In Richmond they received a long telegram from Bobby Lowell. It was "Prepaid." As Rowena said afterward, "We should have known from that they were married." As indeed they were.

"Darlings," exclaimed the telegram extravagantly. "We did get married and my gown was lovely. Carter was going to sue the railroad but the conductor took him off and apologized so Carter gave him ten dollars instead. Can't we fly down and meet you some place and finish our honeymoons together—even if yours isn't real?"

Peter said he thought he had better answer that telegram and he wrote very fast indeed without one pause for thought.

"Love, kisses and condolences I mean congratulations. As your honeymoon waxeth ours alas doth wane hence how could we twain ride opposite directions in one Rackruff? Anon."

"It doesn't seem to mean much," objected Rowena.

"It means plenty," said Peter firmly. "It means that our honeymoons aren't riding the same sky if I can help it. Carter'll understand."

They were increasingly quiet as they neared New York and the end of their adventure. Peter thought Rowena was troubled about the future because she often referred to things she might do and regretted that her work had fallen off. "If I had kept up as well as I started I could land a good job on the strength of it," she said ruefully.

"You can, anyhow. Your work, as a whole, has been top-notch. You were good down to the last adjective. The trouble was that in the beginning you were so superlative you got them to expecting miracles. Never begin at the top," he advised her wisely. "It leaves no place to climb to. Anyhow," he added slyly, "you must have saved up enough on your expense money to keep the children in bread and milk for a long time—what with doing your own laundry and living on soup and cheese."

"Well—some," she admitted evasively.

"Do you suppose we'll ever be real good friends, Rowena? And never quarrel again?"

"I'm good friends now! I've been friends from the very first. I am really fond of you, Peter, but you're so darn mean the angels themselves couldn't get along with you."

"That's odd. Every one has always remarked what a good disposition I have.—No credit to me," he added modestly. "I was born with it."

"People are so dumb," sighed Rowena.

"Do you think your judge will have any trouble getting the annulment?"

"No."

"How long will it take?"

"I don't know."

"When will he start?"

"He's started now."

"Started now! Why, what do you mean?"

"I wrote to him the day we were married and told him to go ahead with the preliminaries so he could put it through with a rush."

Peter resented that. "I think it was needlessly insulting of you, Rowena! To spread the news like that the day we were married."

"Married! Oh, tish, tosh—and even tush! That was no marriage."

"No. But it was nasty of you just the same."

"I'm sorry you feel that way about it, Peter," she said gently. "I did not mean to be offensive, I assure you. I really thought I was doing the stitch-in-time sort of thing."

"Do you think you'll ever marry the judge?"

"I don't think I'll marry anybody. I hate men."

"What are you going to do when we get home, Peter?"

"Oh, work at something, I suppose. I don't know just what. Maybe I'll go to Paris."

"You can't go until we get that annulment. They will need you here to swear that we—we didn't—that we never—that we never were really married, or anything."

"How long will it take?"

"Why? Are you in such a hurry for your freedom?"

"No. I was just wondering."

"What do you intend to do first, Rowena?" Peter asked.

"Oh, I really don't know. Write up those stories perhaps."

"No plans for the far future?"

"No. Maybe I'll keep house for Buddy when he gets through school. Maybe I'll get married."

"But you say you hate men!"

"So I do. That's the only way to get even with them."

From Pennsylvania Peter wanted to cut through as quickly as possible into New Jersey and home that way. He said it was shorter and he knew the roads. Rowena, on the other hand, wanted to go up through Pennsylvania. She admitted it was a longer route, but said she would try to endure a few more days of Peter's company for the sake of the scenery. Peter didn't argue with her. He just turned off and went over the Water Gap into New Jersey. Then they realized indeed that they were nearing home, for New Jersey was their neighbor and Peter recognized every road and landmark. The sign-posts began to give mileage to New York—seventy-five miles, sixty miles and then fifty.

They had luncheon at a lovely little wayside place near a cool blue lake and Peter said if Rowena would excuse him a few minutes he wanted to call up some people in New York.

"Gosh, but you're in a rush to get in touch with everybody," she protested irritably. "I suppose you'd like me to call up the judge and ask him to have the papers ready for us to sign tonight."

Peter didn't say anything, but went on into the telephone booth. When he came back his face showed a little white under his summer's tan and his lips were grimly locked.

"I suppose she had another date," said Rowena disagreeably. "And I'm glad of it."

Peter had nothing to say, but when they had reached the next town he said he hoped Rowena wouldn't mind waiting as he had a little shopping to do.

"Shopping!" she ejaculated. "Shopping within forty miles of home? What do you want? Is it anything I can lend you?"

"Oh, no, nothing like that," said Peter vaguely. "Just some odds and ends—little souvenirs—presents, you know—nothing much."

"You would go through Yellowstone and the Rocky Mountains and buy your souvenirs in New Jersey," she remarked coldly.

When he came back his arms pretty well filled with stoutly tied bundles, Rowena and Constantine were under the umbrella in the rumble seat.

"For heaven's sake——" he began impatiently.

"It's a sort of sentiment with me," she said. "I would never feel that we had a grandstand finish unless we breezed into Times Square in our regular traveling order. You can put your souvenirs in Bobby's place."

Rowena slumped lower and lower in the rumble as he drove swiftly along the heavily shaded roads. She did not feel at all well. In a way, she almost believed she was sorry it was over. It had been fun—all except Peter. It would have been great—glorious—without Peter. Rowena certainly was not feeling well. Her heart was leaden within her. Two large tears forced themselves under her hot lids and through the silken lashes. Rowena closed her eyes and pretended she was asleep.

"If Peter thinks I've got anything to cry about, he's crazy," she said stoutly.

At a sudden lurch of the car she opened her eyes. Much to her surprise she saw that they were far from the state highway, and following a narrow dirt road through a thick piece of woods. She tapped on the window.

"Peter, you're off the road. This isn't the way to New York."

"I know it. It's a short-cut."

Rowena sighed. "I knew I should watch you," she said resignedly.

Presently he turned off from the dirt road into a narrow wood lane, no more than a cow-path it seemed. Rowena knew instantly it would never take them any place at all. She knocked on the window again.

"Peter, you're lost. This road doesn't go anywhere!"

The cow-path turned abruptly up a sharp and jagged hill and ended abruptly at the foot of an immense boulder in the very heart of the forest.

"It's a dead end," said Rowena. "What did I tell you?"

Peter got out of the car and went back, very slowly, to stand beside her, folding his arms rigidly on the rim of the rumble. She noticed immediately how very grim he looked, how his pleasant eyes had narrowed and his lips set. She stared deeply into his eyes, her lashes still wet with tears, and waited for him to speak.

"Do you suppose we'll ever be real good friends, Rowena?"

"Get out, Rowena," he said at last thickly. "This is our last stop."

"Why, we can be in New York in two hours!" she protested faintly. "We've had our luncheon—there's nothing here to stop for!"

"Get out," he repeated doggedly, "We're staying here tonight."

Rowena looked at him wonderingly and put out her hand, slender and sunburned, pink palm upturned and fingers curling. Peter ignored the silent appeal of it.

"Rowena," he said, his voice grown low and strange, "you've made a damned fool of me day after day the whole summer. You've made me the laughing-stock of reporters and hotel clerks and automobile mechanics from coast to coast—not to mention the kick your friends in New York are getting out of my predicament. Well, it's my turn now. You may get an annulment, you may get a divorce, you may get anything you damn please, but you're my wife—you're married to me——"

"But—not really married—Peter ——"

"Well, you are going to be, and pretty damn quick," he said decidedly.

With a wave of his hand he indicated a little log cabin, deserted and still, that showed above the boulder in the thick of the forest.

"We're honeymooning here till Monday."

Rowena blinked her lashes very fast indeed. She fumbled around in the pocket of the rumble until she found rouge, powder and lip-stick and painstakingly repaired the ravages of travel. After that she looked at Peter and laughed.

"You—you're good-natured about it," he said.

"Of course," she declared gaily. "This is an accident. Accidents never make me mad."

"Well, save up as much good humor as you can," he told her. "You're going to need a lot of it between now and Monday."

Rowena looked about her. The little cabin was tucked away snugly in a huge cleft of great rocks and about it on every side towered broad-branched trees, beginning to show gold and blood-red with the touch of autumn. Somewhere near a noisy brook chattered down-hill over the stones. And there was no sight of other habitation or wandering woodsmen in all the length and breadth of the forest.

"It belongs to a friend of mine," said Peter. "That's what I phoned about—to say we were tired and would appreciate the use of the cabin for a few days?"

"Are—are we to be quite alone here?" she inquired casually.

"Quite alone."

"It—it will make it—difficult—about the annulment."

"That," said Peter haughtily, "is up to your friend the judge."

Rowena put her hand on his arm "Peter," she said gently, "don't do anything rash. You'd better th-think it over."

ONTARIO EXPERIMENTS WITH CLAY AND SALT TOPPING FOR GRAVEL ROADS

A mixture of clay and common salt is being used in the new formula with which Ontario's Department of Highways is experimenting for the surfacing of gravel roads, it has been learned.

Successful salt highway construction has been reported from New York, Michigan, Vermont, Maryland and other parts of the United States, where it is claimed that the salted roadways provide a hard, non-skid dustless surface at a much lower cost than asphalt or concrete

The new surfacing is being tested on a few miles of the Schomberg-Allandale Road, while in northern Ontario it is also being used to see how it will stand the severe winter in the north. Salt or calcium chloride is used in proper proportion to the amount of clay and gravel to keep the surface moist, and this damp clay maintains a uniformly hard surce. It is suggested that these salt roads may eliminate the deep holes and ruts which develop in gravel roads.

Salt is used rather than calcium chloride because of the difference in cost.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By JOHN HIX

Strange as it seems, you can actually see air in motion—just as you can see water in motion. The best way to prove this is to take a straight edge—the back of an ordinary carpenter's saw will do very well—and hold it up so that the wind blows against the side. Now sight along the edge and you will see air flowing over the back of the saw like water over a dam. Air currents of different refracting properties, and their movements can therefore be seen.

The eccentric Rev. Francis Henry Egerton, Earl of Bridgewater, who lived a little more than a century ago, in England, kept track of the date by the number of pairs of worn shoes in his wardrobe He wore one pair of new shoes every day, never wearing the same pair twice. After wearing a pair, he always kept them—row after row of them—marked off like a calendar with days, weeks and months. Thus, with 27 pairs of shoes on the July row, he knew that the month was about over.

Sir Henry Morgan, once the pirate terror of the seas, was fully as much feared by former associates after he became the lientenant-governor of Jamaica, as he was by peaceful voyagers in his pirate days. Nobody knew pirates as well as the old ex-pirate himself, so when some strange ship put into port, Morgan's suspicions were aroused in spite of the fact that the crew was well-behaved and orderly. Morgan invited officers and crew to his house for dinner. There they talked over many glasses of wine—so many in fact that the guests talked freely of their pirate activities and plans. Next day Morgan had them hanged.

HELPFUL HINTS

Be Helpful

When sending a garment to the cleaner, and it has some very prominent spots on it, pin a note to the garment stating the cause of the spots, if known. This will be a great help to the cleaner, as well as doing yourself a service.

Dish Drainer

The wire basket in which the dishes are drained will of course become rusty after a certain period of use, but if then it is given two good coats of white enamel it will be as nice as when new and will not rust again as long as the enamel lasts.

Exercise

The person who gives his body the proper amount and kind of exercise will seldom have a cold. Nothing is better than walking in the open. Step briskly, hold the head erect, let the arms swing, and breathe deeply through the nose.

Washing the Hair

During the cold weather one is sometimes hesitant about washing the hair on account of catching cold. But a good plan is to heat the towels in front of a wall register, or hung over a radiator, changing the towels frequently as each one becomes wet. This method will dry the hair quickly.

SUNDAY MORNING

If I could turn life's pages back and from its golden store
Could take some precious moments and make them mine once more,
I would not ask for wealth or fame, nor far-flung fields to roam,
But just for Sunday morning on the old farm home.

Those were days of toil and hardship, care that could not be denied,
But the Sabbath brought a respite—the worthy tasks are laid aside.
House all shining, quiet, peaceful, mother's face so dear, so blest,
Father's voice in prayer uplifted, "Lord we thank Thee for Thy rest."

Clean white cloth upon the table, silver gleaming, china gay.
With a place laid for the preacher should he honour us today;
On the spare bed little garments, dainty ruffles, snowy white,
All that mother love could compass to make Sunday a delight.

And the old horse with the carriage, faithful friend for many a year.
Gladly do I pay tribute to a memory still dear,
Well he knows it's Sunday morning; hear him whinny "Don't be late,"
As impatiently he watches for our coming out the gate.

No stained windows, no grand organ, made that little church so fair,
Plain the people and humble, but 'twas love that brought them there.
And the awe and holy quiet, emblem of the heavenly grace,
God was near and very precious as we met Him in His place.

I cannot have that little bit of Heaven on earth today,
I cannot be a child again, so free from care, so gay,
But when life's week of toil is o'er and I to rest have come,
It will be Sunday morning in the old farm home.

—Mabel Tackabury.

WEALTH

You can buy a rubber ball,
For a penny,
O the wonder of it all
For a penny.
Or a whistle or a gun
Or a sugar coated bun—
You can have a lot of fun
For a penny.

You can wear a jewelled pin
For a penny;
And you're fifty dollars in
For a penny.
You can find how much you weigh,
Read the gossip of the day
And the music box will play
For a penny.

You can drive away the night
For a penny,
With a stick of candle light
For a penny.
When the circus comes in June
You can buy a toy balloon,
Send it floating to the moon—
For a penny.

All the pleasure, who can guess
Who can count the happiness
For a penny.
Why this starving after gold?
Life is yours to have and hold;
You can have your fortune told—
For a penny!

—Leonard Feeney S.J. from "In Towns and Little Towns."

"THEY SAY"

"They say!"—ah, well, suppose they do;..
But can they prove the story true.
Suspicions may arise from naught
But malice, envy, want of thought,
Why count yourself among the "they,"
Who whisper what they dare not say?

"They say!"—but why the tale rehearse,
And help to make the matter worse?
No good can possibly accrue
From telling what may be untrue;
And it is not a bolder plan
To speak of all the best you can?

"They say!"—well, if it should be so,
Why need you tell the tale of woe?
Will it the bitter wrong redress,
Or make one pang or sorrow less
Will it the erring one restore,
Hence forward to go and sin no more?

"They say!"—Oh, pause! and look within;
See how the heart inclines to sin:
Watch, lest in dary temptation's hour,
Thou, too, should'st sink beneath its power;
Pity the frail, weep o'er their fall,
But speak of good, or not at all.

A newspaper headline announces that Canada may get a seat at Geneva. Judging from what has been accomplished by the League since its inception Canada might as well take a seat at the North Pole.

THE PRICE OF SUCCESS

If you haven't the patience to work and wait,
To build with precision and lay your brick straight;
If you haven't the courage to grin now then,
When the structure falls down ,and to start again,
Just remain where you are and be satisfied too,
For the hazards out there will be too much for you.

If you can't stand alone in the thick of the fight,
And persise in your course when you know you are right;
If you can't keep your faith when it's greeted with sneers,
Don't leave the broad highway to carve out anew,
For the hardships out there will be too much for you.

But if you will take all the fates have to give,
Stand hardships and set-backs, still glad that you live;
If you cling to your faith and keep plodding along,
When disaster besets you and everything's wrong;
If you're willing to battle and never give in,
Go after your dream for in time you will win.

MOTHER'S GARDEN

There are many, many gardens, you can see them everywhere,
In the countryside so beautiful and in the city fair;
In the south where the roses bloom, that garden by the sea,
But none can e'er be so sweet as Mother's garden used to be.

In the spring time from the elm tree you could hear the robin's song
And the gentle breezes whisper to the flowers who've waited long;
Star of Bethlehem, and tulip bright, and daffodil so gay,
And the modest little violet that loves the sun's warm ray.

But, oh the roses how she loved them the yellow, white and red,
And the dear old-fashioned pink ones that such a sweet fragrance shed
The peonies, and the iris, and the pretty meadow sweet,
And the lilies white so beautiful that blossomed at her feet.

Then the angels came one May time as the lilacs were in bloom,
And carried her away from us to that land beyond the tomb,
Where the flowers bloom eternally and are so wondrous fair,
And she'll dwell forever in her Heavenly Father's care.

There are many, many gardens, you can see them everywhere,
In the countryside so beautiful, and in the city fair;
In the southland where the roses bloom, that garden by the sea,
But none can e'er be so sweet as Mother's used to be.

THE RUGGED WAY

I am bringing my child to the Heavenly Land,
I am leading her day by day,
And am asking her now, while I hold her hand,
To come home by a rugged way.
By a way that she never herself would choose
For its beauties she doth not see,
And she knoweth not yet what her soul would lose
If she trod not this path with me.
I will walk by her side when the road is wild.
I will ever my succor lend;
She shall lean on My strength, I will shield my child
As the shadows of night descend.
I will point to the stars in the midnight sky
And will tell of the lights of Home;
I wll comfort her as the hours pass by
With the thoughts of the joys to come.
I will carry her over the silver stream,
I will sing to her songs of peace;
She shall tranquilly rest in a fair, fair dream
When the pathway of life doth cease.
I will waken her gently in realms of bliss,
In the land of Eternal Day,
And My child shall be glowing with thankfulness
That I brought her the rugged way.

A schoolgirl's essay in a Montana paper, ran as follows:

"When we go camping, we must keep the place neat, we must be very careful to put out our fire. This is God's country. Don't burn it up and make it look like hell."

ON THE PROHIBITED LIST

To what does Canada commit herself when, as a good member of the League of Nations, she accepts the decision of its Assembly to prohibit the export of armaments to Italy?

A proclamation in an extra of the Canada Gazette furnishes the answer to this question, enumerating as it does the various articles which it is now illegal to export, re-export or transport to Italy or any Italian possession:

Category I—

1. Rifles and carbines and their barrels.

2. Machine guns, automatic rifles and machine pistols of all calibres and their barrels.

3. Guns, howitzers and mortars of all calibres, their mountings, barrels and recoil mechanisms.

4. Ammunition for the arms enumerated under 1 and 2 above, filled and unfilled projectiles for the arms enumerated under 3 above, and prepared propellant charges for these arms.

5. Grenades, bombs, torpedoes and mines, filled or unfilled and apparatus for their use or discharge.

6. Tanks, armoured vehicles and armoured trains.

Armour of all kinds.

Category II—

1. Vessels of war of all kinds including aircraft carriers and submarines.

Category III—

1. Aircraft, assembled or dismantled, both heavier and lighter than air, and their propellers or air screws, fuselages, aerial gun mounts and frames, hulls, tail units and undercarriage units.

2. Aircraft engines.

Category IV—

1. Revolvers and automatic pistols of a weight in excess of 1 pound 6 ounces (630 grammes) and ammunition therefor.

Category V—

1. Flame throwers and all other projectors used for chemical or incendiary warfare.

2. Mustard gas, lewiste, ethyldichlorasine, Methyldichlorasine, and all other products destined for chemical or incendiary warfare.

3. Powder for war purposes and explosives.

Except during the period of war, Canada, essentially a peaceful and peace-loving country, has not devoted herself very intensively to the manufacture of armaments. Their production from year to year in Canadian factories does not reach a very great volume. It thus involves no remarkable sacrifice on her part to subscribe to the ruling of the League of Nations in regard to the export of arms and munitions which have been listed. But she, of course, will suffer to a considerable extent from loss of her export market in other commodities which are associated with peace rather than war.—Brockville Recorder & Times

The Family DOCTOR

BY JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"CAFFEINE"

Most important vegetables contain "active principles" which distinguish the particular plant from others. In medicinal plants, leaves, roots, flowers or seeds, the active principle thing is called an "alkaloid." That means, likeness of a salt, or alkali. Nicotine is the ultimate principle of tobacco. Morphine, the alkaloid of opium; theine the alkaloid of tea, and so on.

Caffeine is the active principle of coffee. I have said in these columns that, caffeine is one of the most valuable of heart tonics. It is virtually harmless, if used in moderation. Immoderate use is harmful in anything. I have been criticized, even berated, for telling this sort of truth. I pay no attention to the senseless carping of shallow, ignorant faddists.

Let me give you some opinions of eminent authors on caffeine:

Hare says, "Caffeine is a valuable cardiac stimulant and tonic, as well as a renal (kidney) stimulant . . . so useful in cases of cardiac disease, that it has largely supplanted digitalis in the hands of some practitioners. . . . A cup of strong black coffee is often useful in relieving a paroxysm of asthma. . . . In headache, due to nerve-strain, it is often of the greatest service."

We give two to four grains of caffeine in disease; the average cup of coffee contains about half a grain.

Caffeine gently raises lowered blood-pressure by its tonic action. It may slightly increase high blood-pressure by stimulating the entire nervous system. But that is only temporary.

Don't rely on coffee to offset the effects of overwork. If you are overworking, rest . . . And, do it right now.

WHEN THE BILL IS RENDERED

It is a good thing for most of you that your bills are rendered promptly. One of the best checks on extravagance is to get all bills on the first of the month. Often you are annoyed at the total of the purchases which seemed to you comparatively trifling. If bills ran a year before they were rendered, many of you would find yourselves in the uncomfortable position of being unable to pay your debts.

It almost seems unfortunate that nature does not always render her bills promptly. Some young people who must be at work at half-past eight in the morning, laugh at the friends who remonstrate with them for late hours and consequently insufficient sleep. "I'm tough. Nothing hurts me," is a favorite answer.

There are a lucky few to whom nature renders a bill almost immediately. Improper food at improper hours means a sick headache next day. Insufficient sleep results in stupidity which precipitates appalling blunders. Such people early learn what to avoid. It is those to whom the bill is not presented promptly who plunge deeper and deeper into debt, until when they should be at the height of their powers, they find themselves bankrupt.

A prominent man told recently of a bitter lesson received in his youth. He was guilty of a silly escapade, and the girl he admired most crossed him off her list. He was invited to no more parties at her home. When he met her on the street, she nodded, and looked the other way. His efforts to regain her liking were unavailing. "It was a bitter experience," he said, after thirty years! "but it was the best thing that ever happened to me. It taught me that a fellow can't make an idiot of himself without paying the bill." Others make the discovery so late in life that the payment of the accumulated debts mean ruin.

If the bills come in promptly, so much the better for you. If not, remember that the time will come when they must be paid.

STRICTER REGULATIONS

Regulations for obtaining 1936 automobile licenses are much stricter than in former years. Before any 1936 plates may be issued the purchaser must have a 1936 operator's license and the number must be included on the application for the plates. Application for 1936 plates also must be made on the reverse side of the 1935 cards and if these have been lost or mutilated, copies must be obtained from the Department of Highways, Toronto. This applies to cars registered in Ontario in 1935. Permits also must be issued in numerical order, unless on special authorization of the Department of Highways and all questions on the application forms must be filled in by the applicant before he will obtain his plates or license.

POPPY RETURNS ARE GOOD

REMEMBRANCE DAY CEREMONY HELD AT INKERMAN

On Monday, Nov. 11th, impressive tribute was paid to the memory of Canada's war dead, by a largely attended Remembrance Day ceremony, held at Inkerman.

Sharply at 10.58 a.m. members of the Township of Mountain Canadian Legion paid impressive respect to the dead heroes. The program was opened by Robert Bryan, Reeve of Mountain township, who gave a short address on the significance of the ocasion. Mr. Bryan called on the deputy reeve, Christie Wynn, who then addressed the assemblage. The hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers," was then sung by the gathering after which Rev. W. R. Johnston led in prayer. A very inspiring address was given by John E. Crowder, ex-reeve of the township of Mountain.

Miss Willena Hurley delighted the audience with a vocal solo. Rev. W. R. Johnston of South Mountain then gave a very fitting address on the Peace Celebration and what it stands for. "O God Our Help In Ages Past," was sung by the entire gathering, after which the closing address was given by Rev. Mr. McConnell, pastor of the United church, Inkerman.

Representatives from many branches of civic and professional bodies were present the township council of Mountain being represented by Reeve Robert Bryan, deputy reeve, Christie Wynn, Councillors Fred Cassidy, Wm. Carlyle, Charles Shaver, and township Clerk Edward Bush.

REMANDED AT CORNWALL

Charged with the brutal slaying of Rene Tessier, 34-year-old Cornwall railway worker, at Cornwall on Aug. 31 last, Arthur Tremblay, 28, fair-haired Cornwall carpenter, appeared in magistrate's court at Cornwall on Tuesday morning for preliminary hearing, but was remanded. Court officials revealed that Tremblay would not face the preliminary hearing until his counsel, Lionel Chevrier, M.P., for Stormont, returned from a two months' enforced vacation owing to ill-health. Tremblay will not likely be given preliminary hearing until early in the new year.

Tremblay is alleged to have slain Tessier with a hammer and a hatchet during a brawl in the former's house. Tremblay was taken into custody less than two hours after the slaying, his clothing spattered with human blood, analysis revealed.

Driver of Car Fined $100 And Costs

LELAND C. KYLE DRIVER OF CAR WHICH STRUCK BUGGY NEAR MORRISBURG

Appearing in court at Morrisburg on Friday last, on a charge of criminal negligence, Leland C. Kyle, of Belleville, N. J., was fined $100 and $68.25 costs by Magistrate John McCormick, who refrained, he said, from imposing a sentence of two years, due to the fact that Kyle was from the United States, and also that because he believed a civil action should be forthcoming. To the last remark, Crown Attorney J. G. Harkness, K.C., of Cornwall, appearing for the prosecution, said: "Don't worry; there will be!"

Kyle, through his lawyer, Arthur Flynn, Morrisburg, pleaded guilty, and Dr. Charles A. Louden, Morrisburg, who is attending the injured persons, was called as a witness. Dr. Louden described the injuries of Mrs. Casselman as very serious, including a fracture-dislocation of the right arm near the shoulder, a depressed fracture of the outer table of the skull, at the forehead, a punctured nose, multiple bruises, skin off both knees and other parts of the body, injury to the hip joint, very painful, and severe shock. Mrs. Casselman, the doctor said, may be in bed two or three weeks. It is impossible to say, he said, but they expect complete recovery. Mr. Casselman suffered an injured ankle and flesh wounds, which are swelling and infected. The baby had two bruises and as many blood tumors on the back of its head. The second eldest girl had a black eye, and the eldest had an injury to the back of her skull, and a blood tumor there. She has been complaining of headaches and floating spots in front of her eyes. The exact extent of her injuries cannot be known until after further examinations by specialists.

The magistrate told Kyle that he believed a civil action should be taken in this case. He welcomed the United States cousins to Canada, but impressed upon Kyle the seriousness of his actions. The code, he said, provided for a two-year sentence, but allowed for a fine instead, so he imposed a $100 fine and costs on Kyle, the costs amounting to $68.25.
