The "Colonel" Will Fix It

A "clothes-line cable" has been received announcing that the Irish question is in a fair way to be settled, as Lloyd George has had his real first night's sleep in months being induced by the assurance from the Reeve of Winchester, that all Canada (meaning Bates' Corners) is behind him in the matter.

Three Spuds, Four Pounds

Mrs. E. Merkley yesterday presented The Record with a sample of the potatoes grown in her garden, which are as fine as we have ever seen. Three spuds weigh slightly over four pounds, two of them coming from one hill and all without a blemish nor in anyway mis-shapen.

Leafs Win From Ottawa Victorias

Yesterday afternoon at the Driving Park the Maple Leafs handed out a nice trimming to the Victorias of Ottawa by the score of 13 to 6. It was by far the fastest game played on the local diamond this season, the shift in the line up adding much to the steadiness of the play. Sorrel put up a grand game at first, while Smith and McCloskey at short and second worked well together, the latter taking Sharkey's place who on account of injuries received on Saturday played right field. Hamlin came in from left to third while Arthur Robertson played left. The Leafs certainly had their eyes on the ball as not a man fanned during the whole game, while four were passed. Twenty hits were collected off Channing for the thirteen runs and only three errors made in the field.

Senecal pitched another brilliant game, never in trouble after the first innings when five hits and an error let three men across the plate. He struck out six and issued two passers.

With eight misplays behind him Channing pitched good ball, but was always in a hole, although Calcutt at first base was creditted with twenty put outs while Sorrel accounted for eleven at the same sack.

Score by innings:—

Ottawa	3	0	1	1	0	0	1	0	0	— 6
Chesterville	0	0	1	5	2	0	3	2	x	—13

Batteries—Henderson and Channing; Senecal and Coyne.

Harvest Home Dinner

On Wednesday, Aug. 25th, the monster picnic and Harvest Home dinner held in the Munroe maple grove at Nation Valley was a decided success. The weather man was a good sport and meted out a warm sunshinny day while their advertisement brought along a splendid crowd to partake of the best dinner ever provided for a picnic. The picnic was in aid of the Soldiers Memorial Fund and not only was the objective realized but with a surplus that encourages them to go over the top again. A flag tower has already been erected and their objective was a new flag and monument for their boys who sleep beneath the poppies "over there".

The baseball game played during the afternoon between the Winchester and Valley school girls was won by the latter team with a score of thirteen to two, a baseball and bat was donated to the winning team by W. G. Bolster.

The teams tried out on a tug-of-war, the Valley girls winning a box of chocolates donated by L. Flora.

Successful Anniversary at Morewood

The 50th Anniversary of the dedication of Morewood Presbyterian church was commemorated on Sabbath, August 29th. The Methodist church united for the services, and the weather being cool and bright, the church was filled with an overflowing congregation. The decorations were beautiful and in good taste; while the singing, led by a large and well-trained choir was most hearty and harmonious.

The special services were conducted by Rev. R. M. Hamilton of First Presbyterian church, Brockville, who brought strong and forceful messages to the people. Mr. Hamilton evidently agrees with Lord Bryce who stated recently—"The precepts of the gospel are the only remedy for the troubles we see around us at home and abroad". At the morning service he preached a splendid sermon from John3:16 proclaiming God's love, Christ's sacrifice and man's salvation; and in the afternoon addressed the Sunday School, giving them a most interesting talk on "Living letters". In the evening the congregation again filled every seat and additional chairs, and Mr. Hamilton delivered a most comforting and inspiring message from "The rainbow in the cloud".

The anniversary services were continued by a Jubilee Social on Monday evening. An excellent and bountiful supper was served by the ladies of the congregation while a program of songs and speeches was rendered to an audience that packed the church.

The minister Rev. F. L. Jobb, gave a brief history of the church, going back to the early years before the dedication of the present building, after which Rev. P. J. McLaren of Russell, brought kindly greetings from his congregations and also, as Moderator of Ottawa Presbytery, extended their best wishes for prosperity in future days. Then Rev. J. M. Glassford of Winchester, in a most happy and forceful address, extended best wishes from the church with which Morewood was united when their first minister—Rev. Andrew Rowatt—was called in 1871. He referred to the sorrows as well as the joys of such a jubilee as this, emphasized the necessity for consecration and called on the young people to "take up the torch" which other hands had laid down and to resolve that before long, one at least of their number, would represent the congregation on the Foreign Field.

Dr. Philp of the Methodist Church, Morewood, followed, and, in his well-known bright and breezy style, extended the congratulations and good wishes of his congregation.

The last speaker was Rev. J. A. Shaver of Strathroy, a former Morewood boy, who gave most interesting reminisences of the early days of the congregation and closed a vigorous address with an appeal to the young people to dedicate themselves to the work of Christ and His Church.

With the singing of the National Anthem, was brought to a close what is generally felt to have been the most successful Anniversary in the congregation of Morewood. The proceedings were much enlivened by the pipers Mr. Kenny and Mr. Carruthers, who rendered inspiring music at intervals throughout the evening.

The receipts from the Thankoffering and Social amounted to over $500.00.

Stand by Your Town

If you think your town's the best,
Tell 'em so.
If you'd have her head the rest,
Help her grow.
When there's anything to do
Let the fellows count on you,
You'll feel bully when its through,
Don't you know?

If you want to make a hit,
Get a name.
If the other fellow's it
Who's to blame?
Spend your money in your town,
Thusly keep your prices down,
Give the mail concerns a frown—
That's the game!

If you'r used to giving knocks,
Change your style;
Throw bouquets instead of rocks,
For a while;
Let the other fellow roast,
Shun him as you would a ghost.
Meet his hammer with a boast
And a smile.

When a stranger from afar
Comes along,
Tell him who and what you are—
Make it strong;
Needn't flatter, never bluff.
Join the boosters—that's the stuff,
We belong.

Brockville Boy Shows Praiseworthy Courage

A movement has been started in Brockville to obtain some recognition for "Kenny" Rowe, son of Mrs. W. G. Rowe of Brockville, for his bravery in risking his life to save two companions from a watery grave in the St. Lawrence.

The boys were attending a Scout camp in the Thousand Islands. Young Rowe and his companions set out in a canoe from Oak Point for a paddle. When half a mile from Oak Point the craft upset by the swells and the lads were in a dangerous situation. One of the boys could not swim, while another was by no means an expert in the water. After seeing that his companions were safe for a time by clinging to the boat. Kenny Rowe started a two mile swim for shore for help. Oak Point was only half a mile away, but there was no one there who would have been of assistance.

After swimming for a period that seemed like hours, young Rowe became numbed with the cold water, and the last he remembered was turning on his back to float. A passing motor boat saw him splashing his feet and stopped to investigate. He was picked up unconscious and taken to Alexandria Bay. A doctor in the motor boat and others worked for a long time. His first thought was for his companions. They had been picked up also by the motor boat.

Warm praise is heard for Rowe's action. He could have saved himself by swimming for Oak Point, but risked his life making the longer trip through the dangerous currents for the others. He was nearly three hours in the water, it is believed.

Rather Expensive Shooting

A dog attacked a trespasser on a farm near the town on Tuesday and in order to scare him off the man raised his gun and fired. Unfortunately the shot struck the dog, resulting fatally. The owner, who valued the dog highly, was about to launch an action in the police court but the "gunman" settled at $75, plus some costs incurred.—Oshawa Reformer.

Stung

"All right back there? called the conductor from the front of the car.

"Hold on," came a feminine voice. "Wait till I get my clothes on."

The entire car full turned and craned their necks expectantly. A girl got on with a basket of laundry.

Would You Believe It?

A young lad while fishing on one of the wharves at Christie's lake last week became a little too interested in his occupation and fell into the lake. On emerging, a sadder, wiser and wetter boy, he found he was minus his spectacles. After a vain search he went home without fish or glasses but with a good quantity of water which he had swallowed during his immersion. The next day the lad was back on the same dock to try his luck with the finny tribe again. He got a strike and landed a big pike. Imagine his surprise when he beheld his glasses entangled in a bit of the line, sitting in the regular position on top of the pike's head.

Mr. Irwin K. Barkley

Irwin K. Barkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Barkley of Williamsburg, passed away at the General Hospital, Cornwall, on Monday, Aug. 16th, following an operation for appendicitis. For about two years he had not enjoyed good health, and a short time ago further trouble developed. The patient was then hurried to the hospital, where an operation was performed, but of no avail.

Irwin Barkley was born nineteen years years ago at Psiarhville, New York State. About eight years ago he came with his parents to their present home, just west of Williamsburg. Being a young man, and of a kindly and cheerful disposition, he made and retained many friends. His ideals were of the best, and his life upright and a Christian gentleman. To his parents he had been a great comfort always showing the devotion of a true and devoted son.

The funeral was very largely attended. It was conducted in the Methodist Church Williamsburg by Rev. J. B. Howe, on Thursday, August 19th at 2.30 p.m., burial taking place at Williamsburg.

To the sorrowing father and mother is extended the sympathy of the community.

"I want some shoe strings, some hairpains, a pair of gloves, and a toothbrush," the woman said. "I have to catch a train, and have but a few minutes." Take the elevator to the eleventh floor, shoe department eight aisles to the right from the main passage-way, for shoe strings; hairpins in notion department, east side of basement, three aisles beyond hardware; gloves in woman's wear, fifth floor of annex, reached by passage-way over street. tooth-brush in drugs and toilet department, on balcony, reached by moving stairs, which you will find on your right as you pass the fountain in the florist shop in the centre of the main floor."

Chesterville Loses First Game of Season

Saturday afternoon Conductor Joe Brinkman with enough men in uniform representing the C.P.R. baseball club of Smiths Falls to fill out a wrecking crew, came to town on the tail end of fifty or sixty side-doors, when, aided and abetted by some of our own athletes, carried back with him a victory over the Leafs by a score of 10 to 7.

The game was interesting and exciting, good in spots but when it was bad, "bad" is only the polite name to call it. T. B. Halpin, local manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, a former resident of Smiths Falls, gave excellent satisfaction behind the pitchers in the matter of decisions at the plate. Joe Ganz assisted on the base lines; that is assisted Smiths Falls. Joe can't help that. He is a C.P. man and all C.P. men work for the company. Joe qualifies for making close decisions from long experience in navigating a string of box cars on the "North End" single track and dodging demerit marks when he steals a minute or two from the time of fast trains. He got away with the same stuff Saturday afternoon always putting the other fellow in wrong.

The visitors looked dangerous right from the start when after Barrie struck out Haley singled to right and was advanced to second by Elliott's hit to third where they were held while Senecal struck out Maxwell and Mulloy. The Leafs also got a good start in the first when Clement cracked out a two-bagger but was caught napping at second. Foster and Coyne fanned.

In the second Emsley was thrown out by Senecal on an easy bounder. Kimberly fanned. Edmunds hoisted a long fly to left where Hamelin made the best catch of the day after a long run. Hamelin opened the second for the Leafs with a nice single to centre and stole second. Sorrel went out short to first. McCloskey was hit by Edmunds. Sharkey picked out a good one and slammed it by third for two bases scoring Hamelin and McCloskey, giving the Leafs the lead. Oshier was thrown out by short-stop and Sharkey was nailed trying to steal third.

In the third Murphy hit the first ball to Senecal and was thrown out. Barrie hit to third but was saved by a bad throw. Haley was thrown out by Sharkey. Barrie scored when Elliott doubled to left, the latter stealing third and being caught at the plate when he knew Maxwell was out at first but called safe by Ganz. Chesterville went out, one, two, three.

The fourth was barren of results, Senecal throwing out Emsley when he sacrificed Mulloy to second after Mulloy was safe on a fumble of the throw from short. Kimberly fanned and Edmunds was out for interference. Coyne, Hamelin and Sorrel fanned.

Smiths Falls pickled the game in the fifth when six men made the circuit while the Leafs put on a spectacular exhibition of aviation with specialties in bad throwing and fumbling of the ball and Mulloy's bad bounder going for two bases. The Leafs finally landed and came back to grab off two counters by McCloskey and Sharkey, repeating with two more in the sixth after disposing of their rivals in quick order.

The Falls added one in the seventh and a pair in the ninth while the best the local could do was one in the ninth when Robertson batting for Oshier was passed, stole second and went home before the catcher's bad throw to second was returned from centre.

Weather Insurance is Poular in Motherland

Apropos of Mark Twain's observation that everybody complains about the weather but nobody does anything to improve it, there's been more complaint on this score this Summer than ordinarily and, from present indications, there's a lot more to be made.

Canada has not had a monopoly of rain this Summer. It has rained in France. It always rains there. If you don't believe it ask anyone who served in the C.E.F. It has been unusually wet in Germany. And as for England! The days have been rare when the heavens have not dripped.

The London Times says the companies that write rain insurance have had a costy experience. Weather insurance is so common in Great Britain that men now take out a policy against being troubled by rain when they have a holiday.

Rain insurance is termed a Pluvius Policy.

July, says the Times, the great month of the year for open air-social events, was a bad one for the insurance people and the first week of August was likewise. One company had 300 claimes filed by holiday makers in one week, while it had substantial claims also from caterers and others at amusement resorts. It adds:—

"A lament of those who have been providing for open-air entertainments is not only their receipts are reduced by rain—a contingency against which they can now insure—but the fear of rain has kept visitors away. That is a risk which, so far has not been taken into account in insurance policies; but it is possible provisiou may be made for it.

"A good deal of insurance was effected early in the Summer against the risk of damage to crops by rain, and while it is now rather late in the season to get fufl protection, this is a form of business which in coming years is likely to be much dev. eloped."

An Old-Fashioned Home

There is one place I like to go, of that there place I'll write—it's got your fancy dangled homes knocked higher'n a kite. To enter there's a tonic sure for every aching bone, that place is sure a wholesome one—a real old fashioned home.

You seem to feel, the home-like stuff before you're quite inside, there's not a touch of snobbling, or jealousy or pride. They haven't got those spindley chairs you fear to sit upon nor the paper tinted to a shade betwixt the night and dawn. And cushions ain't piled up in hills, just to be squinted at; what's more, there is no Turkish rug nor Oriental mat.

But everything seems just to say, it talks as plain as mud, "Just come and rest your carcass here, you great big weary dub. It doesn't make no odds to me how hard or fast you sit, or whether you wear silk-lined gloves or just a home-made knit".

Perhaps the carpet's just as plain 'twas rag made hit and miss, but it beams and shines and seems to say, this is a place of bliss. Folks like to joke about the words in mottoes on the wall and about the peacock feathers stuck resplendent in the hall. And if a spot appears upon the carpet by a chance, the folks don't throw a fit right off, or pass into a trance. It ain't a very serious crime, it really ain't by heck—to spot a place upon the wall where flies have left a speck.

But sweet content is campin' there—it comes in like a flood, and you conldn't chase it out again with a broomstick nor a club. Let's toast the good old-fashioned home, with its dear old-fashioned airs, unspoiled by touch of higher art, nor cursed with three-legged chairs.

An Exception

It was a model prison, and the warden was talking with his latest "guest."

"Now, my man," he said kindly "have you a trade, or are you skilled in any line?"

"Why, yes," the man replied.

"Good! We always put men to work at their specialty. I'll do so with you."

"I'm afraid you won't, sir," the man replied regretfully.

"Oh, yes we will. What are you?"

"Aviator, sir."

Fall Planting of Spring Bulbs

Bulbs, because they are bright and beautiful, because they push back the earth with their green lance leaves, and shake out their gay, tender petals at the very first intimation of spring's arrival, because they are easy to grow, inexpensive, faithful year after year to their familiar corner or border like dependable old friends, are universal favorities. Not a plot of ground that can boast the enchanted name of garden but has a fair measure of bulbs hidden modestly beneath the earth ready to fairly dance and wave silken banners with exuberance of joy when the windy March and rainy April take their turn in ruling over our land. The very names of the flowers curled up in those funny brown bulbs speak of hope, lightheartedness and banish gloom and dull despair.

Bulbs so crazed the minds of kings and countries a few years ago that the mania goes down in history as one of the world's great events. Not even an orchid can boast the price then paid for a single tulip bulb. One man put in the balance for a small Viceroy bulb what looks like, (after studying a bill of sale) his entire farm outfit of four fat oxen, eight fat pigs, twelve fat sheep, two loads of wheat, four loads of rye, two hogs-heads of wine, four barrels of beer, two barrels of butter, a thousand pounds of cheese, a complete bed, suit of clothes and a silver beaker. Nowadays we can have a veritable carpet of wonderfully colored tulips for a smaller price, for growers and importers concentrating upon these wonderful flowers have made this possible. Tulips true to type dependable of growth, are now to be had in abundance in every color under the sun, save blue.

The Darwins are perhaps the greatest favorites because of their exquisite cup shapes and fair tints. They are strong growing, of large and brilliantly colored chalices, late flowering, easily forced, stems are long, stiff, averaging two feet in height. Darwins may be identified by the perfect form of cup and by the blue or black splash of color at the base of each petal and by the peculiarity displayed in having the outside aud the inside alike in color.

24,000 Miles of tree-lined Roads

Many of us trudged up and down the tree lined roads of France during the war. All the national roads, to the extent of 24,000 miles are lined with trees planted and cared for by the Government.

Four centuries ago Francis I. started the good work with a batch of Lombardy poplars, and it has ever since been carried on, despite all political upheavals.

The Ministry of Public Works has now more than 3,000,000 trees under its control. When the road is between ten and sixteen metres in width one row of trees is set out on each side. When the width is over sixteen metres two rows are planted, with a footpath between them.

Tree-planting is given out in small contracts to local men, who receive a lump sum as soon as the trees are planted and the balance at the end of two years.

During that period the contractor is responsible for the care of the trees, and for replacing any that die or prove defective.—London Chronicle.

What the Woodman Sees

You can always tell a trained woodsman from a tenderfcot, who sees only the obvious things that are plainly evident, but the trained woodsman notices the little things that are unusual or out of the ordinary, says an authority. For example, the tenderfoot, walking through the woods will see a lot of trees that look all alike. The skilled woodsman will notice that one tree is bent in a peculiar shape or has a knob or burl on one side. When he sees that tree again he will recognize it and know he is on the right trail. The tenderfoot will be startled by the sound of two trees rubbing to-gether or of bushes cracking with the wind. The woodsman recognizes these as ordinary sounds, but he hears the faintest crack of a twig, made by an animal stepping on it. The tenderfoot walking on a trail sees only the path in front of him, which looks all alike. The Woodsman will notice the slightest mark in the trail that shows that some animal or person has passed before him, and he will able to read these marks and tell the tale of what happened.

"This gentleman is a naturalist, you say?"

"Yes, madam. His favorite animal is the hippopotamus,"

"How extraordinary! And he has such a pretty wife!"

Doctor—"Your wife's mind is completly gone."

Hubby—"Well, I'm not surprised. She's been giving me a piece of it every day for about two years."

"My sermon on thrift made a tremendous impression on the congregation."

"How do you know?"

"I could tell when I counted the collection."

Wouldn't Sell His Chum

London Express—Chum is an old English sheep dog and the millionare is Mr. Schwab, of America. Both are known to thousands of people, one by name and one by nature, for Chum sits at the entrance to Myrtleberry, in Lynmouth, and at the threshold of Watersmeet, the beauty spot of North Devon. Chum is as big as a small bear, and is most beautiful. His age is five. He has done his bit in the great war. He has collected £286 for wounded soldiers.

Mr. Schwab saw Chum and wanted to buy him.

"No," said Mr. Attree, the proprietor of Myrtleberry and Watersmeet, "Chum was such a companion to me through three terrible years. I lost my eldest son, my only daughter, and my wife during the war."

"I'll give you a thousand for him."

Mr. Attree shook his head and the millionaire departed.

Before he left for the United States he retnrned to the charge.

"I mean to have that dog."

"I couldn't part with him."

Mr. Schwab became angry. "Two thousand."

"Fruit-a-tives" Conquered Nervous Prostration

R. R. No. 4, GILBERT PLAINS, MAN.

"In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; dropping from 170 to 115 pounds.

The doctors had no hope of my recovery, and every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take "Fruit-a-tives".

I began to mend almost at once, and never had such good health as I have enjoyed the past eight years. I am never without "Fruit-a-tives" in the house". JAS. S. DELGATY.

4-Year-Old Daughter Wanders From Home

(Carleton Place C. C.)

Friday last as dusk was creeping along Mrs. David Prime, on the northside, missed her four-year-old daughter. Diligent search in the neighborhood failed to get a record. Alarmed now to a high pitch the town authorities were requisitioned about. ten o'clock. Mr. John McLaren, caretaker, heard the S. O. S. and he and his son Bob got out the latter's car and shot away. What subtle sense of smell, or fiat of the eye gave them the direction, we cannot say, but they chose the 7th line of Ramsay. They heard of a child seen there. To their delight they discovered little barefooted prints on the sand revealed by the auto lamps and these they fol lowed past the old lead mines to the cross-road to the 8th line at Mr. McNeely's. Here they were lost. Going along that road for a mile the lights discovered the foot prints again to their great joy. While they were slowing up and stooping over to verify the marks the voice of a farmer on the 8th line shouted. "What are you looking for? What do you want?" "A lost child," cried Jack through the impenetrable gloom. "You will find her back there at McGregor's," answered the unseen man. Now at Mr. McGregor's a cow lay sick in the field, and Mr. McGregor, with his lantern, had come ont to see it prior to retiring. His hair almost stood up on end when his light revealed a little child lying on the grass alongside. This was late in the evening and the spot four miles from Carleton Place. The child in her bare feet had travelled that long distance, going ahead without any purpose and without crying—just on and on till she wandered into the pasture where a cow offered her the closest approach to a symbol of human kindness. Mr. McGregor telephoned his find to town but no one he spoke to could give him light. The Messrs. McLaren greatly enjoyed the pursuit as it offered them the sensations of sleuth and imparted consequence and climax to the expedition.

Bareback Gowns

A lady in a decollete gown berated the Bolsheviks at a dinner in Washington.

"Why," she cried the latest news from Russia is that these curs are selling the very clothes off the women's backs.

Senator Johnston of California looked around the table with a smile. All the ladies gowns were decollete. In the back this decolletage was especially marked.

"The Bolsheviks," he said wouldn't find much to sell at a fashionable American dinner party, would they?"

The End

"I just got fired."

"What for?"

"For good."

Many Miracles at Templemore

Templemore, County Tipperary, Ireland, Aug. 29.—Tens of thousands of the faithful are still flocking to this small Tipperary town to gain religious and physical balm from the wonder-working statues belonging to James Walsh, the former Cistercian novitiate, who has conferred upon Templemore a fame that is exceeded only by Lourdes.

The statues have been placed in a flower-bedecked yard on the premises of Timothy Dwan, Walsh's uncle. The yard overlooks the market place and Battery Park. Here thousands of the afflicted gather, bearing crucifixes and rosaries.

While waiting for admission to the yard by twos and threes, the whole congregation, as though moved by a single devout impulse, periodically sinks silently to its kneee and, with twitching lips, offers praver to the Virgin Mary, imploring her to vouchsafe a continuance of the miraculous healing.

Moving through the throng are men and women who claim to have been mysteriously cured by the saint's intervention. Dan Egan, the local harness-maker, is striding about like a fit, sound man, after being crippled for five years with sciatic rheumatism.

A milliner, almost crazed by nervous disorders, was cured after a magic crucifix was laid on her brow. The most wonderful case is that of Martin Monahan. His story has gone throughout Ireland, and is bringing people here in every conceivable kind of conveyances from Fords to the backs of asses. Monahan was discharged from the army two years ago, suffering from a broken left knee.

"When I heard of the miracles, he tells the story, "I limped across the square to the house. Walsh took me up the stairs and lifted me up to the crucifix. It was bleeding He rubbed my bare knee against it. I was in great pain. He prayed over me and ordered me to pray. We left the room together. Then before I left the house I felt a sudden shock. All pain left me. I ran quickly back to my home. I was not lame. I have not been lame since."

Edward Gleeson, a young soldier who was blinded, was admitted Thursday. He was seated at a table. A woman held a crucifix over his eyes. The others in the room sank to their knees and prayed. After a few moments of prayer Gleeson began to see dimly. He did not recover the normal use of his eyes.

A peasant woman walked fifty miles with an imbecile son 13 years old. She touched his head to the statue of the Virgin. Mrs. Dwan offered a prayer. The couple went away. On their way home they met other pilgrims coming in. To these the mother related that her son's mind was clearing.

Walsh, whose visits started the pilgrimages, is a frail youth. He has convincing sincerity and seems one manifestly destined to a religious vocation.

"As I lay in bed one night," he tells his story, "I saw a dazzling object in the darkness. It was shaped like a comm nion particle. The letters I. H. S. stood out distinctly in the centre."

Thereafter, he related, the Virgin frequently appeared to him, sometimes at his house and sometimes beside the road

The pilgrims to the place of miracles are from all stations in life, business and professional men, as well as peasants. Almost every describable human ailment is represented, from warts and chronic tuberculosis to club foot.

Every inch of space in the town has been converted into lodgings for the cure seeking pilgrims.

The pilgrims are not all disabled. Many are youths imbued with a religious and patriotic exaltation. They come to Templemore to invoke divine and saintly aid in the fight for Irish independence.

"Saddle of mutton you said sir and so it is."

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reached the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result. Unless the the inflamation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will destroyed for ever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system,
