Death of Jacob Eaman.

Mr Jacob Eaman, an old and much esteemed resident of the Township of Osnabruck, passed away on Saturday, October 6th, 1906, at his residence near Wales, aged 79 years. Mr. Eaman had never been ill until this summer. It is thought that the immediate cause of his death was a cold contracted at the recent fire in the village of Wales. He was highly respected by a wide circle of friends. He leaves a large family—three sons and seven daughters. The sons are Messrs. John, of Superior, Wis; Edgar, of the 2nd. con. of Osnabruck; and Oscar, at the homestead. The daughters—Mrs. George Gillard, Santa Cruz; Mrs. Chas. Gillard, Montreal; Mrs. John Raymond, Sheik's Island; Mrs. W. Adams, Lunenburg; Mrs. W. Poapst and Mrs. E. Poapst, Osnabruck Centre. Miss Ada Eaman at home. The funeral took place on Wednesday last, the service being held at St. Davids' church, Wales, Rev. C. O. Carson, M.A., officiating. The remains were interred in the Woodlands cemetery. The pall-bearers were Col. Bredin, Messrs. J. Adams, J. W. Manning, C. Markell, J. Moke and C. Baker. All the members of the family were present at the funeral. They have the sincere sympathy of the community.

Don't Use Greasy Liniments.

A century ago they were popular. To-day people want something easy to apply, certain in results, and above all, a clean liniment. When Nerviline is applied, aches and pain disappear as the pores absorb its soothing, healing properties. Nerviline penetrates to the core of the pain, eases instantly, and leaves no oily bad smelling behind. Good to take in, capital to rub on, and five times more powerful than any oily liniment. Don't fail to get a large 25c. bottle.

McCadden—Norton.

At 8 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 2nd, there was celebrated in the Roman Catholic church at Crysler, the marriage of Miss Bridget, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Norton, to Mr. John McCadden, both of Connaught.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick. The bride was attired in a pretty dress of blue silk, trimmed with white silk chiffon, and wore a white picture hat. Her going away dress was of navy blue venetia, trimmed with blue velvet. Miss Teressa Norton, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and was gowned in grey crepe chenille trimmed with all-over-lace, and hat to match. The groom was ably assisted by Mr. Michael Lynch.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple, accompanied by the groomsman and the bridesmaid, departed for Ottawa, returning by the evening train. The bridal party then repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where about 300 invited guests and a sumptuous repast awaited their arrival. The evening was joyfully spent in the usual way, excellent music being furnished by Mr. Chas. Millea.

The bride was the receipent of many handsome and costly presents.

The RECORD joins with a host of friends in wishing the married couple a happy and prosperous wedded life.

Mrs. Millea Dead.

After an illness of several months, Mrs. John Millea died on Sunday morning about 10 o'clock at her residence in town. The deceased was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and 27 years ago at Chicago, married Mr. John Millea of this place. They returned to Chesterville 23 years ago, and have since resided here. Besides a husband to mourn her loss, she leaves one son, Charlie. Mrs. Millea was 54 years of age.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning to St. Mary's Church, where High Mass was celebrated by Father Fleming, after which interment was made in the upper burying ground.

Mrs. Peter Bogart and daughter, Miss Alice Bogart, have returned to town to reside, after spending about four years in Oregon.

An Old Resident Dead.

The oldest resident of the village, we believe, passed away to her eternal home on Thursday evening last, at the advanced age of 99 years, in the person of Mrs. Richard Gibbons. The deceased has lived with her daughter, Mrs. Murphy, for a great number of years, and always seemed to enjoy life, never having hardly any sickness, and always able to be around.

The funeral took place on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock to the Roman Catholic Church, where Mass was celebrated by Father Fleming, after which all that was mortal, was placed in the tomb.

Fisher—Kennedy.

A quiet but charming marriage was celebrated at the house of Mr. A. Kennedy, J. P., Winchester, at 7.30 Tuesday morning, Oct. 2nd, 1906, in the presence of the immediate friends of the bride and groom. Miss Nina Kate Kennedy and Mr. S. W. Fisher, Phm. B, late of Vegreville, Alta. The bride and groom were unattended, the bride being given away by her father. She looked very sweet in pale green duchess satin, her hair radiant with white carnations. The wedding march was played in her usual excellent style by Miss Kate Irving, and the service then proceeded, conducted by Rev. S. W. Fisher, B. A., father of the bridegroom, assisted by Rev. Geo. Yule, B. A., pastor of St. Paul's church, and Rev. J. M. Kellock, M. A., brother in-law of the bride. The wedding breakfast was then served, the table being adorned with pink and white carnations. It was daintily served by Misses Annie Robinson and Kate Irving. The rain was the only disagreeable feature of the hour but could not dampen the spirits of the party, who after the breakfast, assembled on the lawn and stood for their photograph. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher left immediately after by the local express for a trip to Great Britain and the continent by the Allen liner, Victorian, a number of friends from the village coming despite the rain to shower the rice upon and convey good wishes to them. The very valuable presents and cheques attested the popularity of the young couple.

When the tip of a dog's nose is cold and moist, that dog is not sick. A feverish dry nose means sickness with a dog. And so with the human lips. Dry, cracked, and colorless lips mean feverishness, and are as well ill appearing. To have beautiful, pink, velvet-like lips, apply at bedtime a coating of Dr. Shoop's Green Salve. It will soften and heal any skin ailment. Get a free trial box, at our store and be convinced. Large nickel capped glass jars, 25 cents. Walter G. Bolster.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Three pair of eyes were turned toward Gem. She was well worth looking at, as she stood there beside the pausing wheel, with the thread of yarn suspended in her hand between the delicate forefinger and thumb, and with her large luminous dark eyes fixed upon the face of the speaker. Yes, look at Gem—a slight, elegant creature, whose form was perfect symmetry, whose every motion was perfect grace, whose small stately head was covered with shining jet-black ringlets that hung down each side and half shaded a bright young face of exceeding beauty—an oval face, with regular features, large, soft, dark-blue eyes, veiled with thick, long lashes, and arched over by slender, jet-black brows, and with roseate cheeks and crimson lips. This will do for a pen and ink sketch; but how can I picture the light, the life, the gleam and glow of that brilliant and beautiful countenance?

She wore a plain brown linsey dress, that perfectly fitted her symmetrical form; and this rustic suit was relieved by a little linen collar that clasped her throat, and a pair of little white linen cuffs that bound her wrists.

The setting was plain enough, but the gem was a very rich and rare jewel, whoever might be destined to wear it.

Only for an instant she stood thus, like a bright and beautiful image, and then she suddenly darted across the room, sunk down beside the old lady's chair, and, looking up into her face, said:

"Grandma! I know more of that awful tragedy than you think I do. Of course, in all these years, I have chanced to hear much from the talk of women and children seen in church or in school. And to-night I have heard too much from you, not now to be told more? What is all this mystery and horror connected with this anniversary of Hallow Eve? And—who am I?"

"You are my own darling child, Gem!" answered the old lady in a trembling voice.

"I know that I am your foster-child, but that is all I, or anyone else except you, seems to know about me! But you know who I am, grandma! Now tell me—who am I?" she pleaded, taking the withered old hands within her own, and gazing imploringly up into the kind old eyes that looked compassionately down on hers.

"You are my pet, and my darling, and my blessing, Gem! That is enough for you to know!" answered the old lady, still in a tremulous tone.

"Am I that prison-born child? Am I the daughter of that poor lady who was crucified and cast out among human creatures? Am I? Am I?" persisted the young girl, beseechingly, while Miss Tabby wept and Miss Libby moaned.

"Gem," said the aged woman, gravely, and sorrowfully pressing the maiden's hands, "Gem, I have been a good grandma to you?"

"Oh, you have! you have! answered the young girl, earnestly.

"And can you still trust me to be good to you, and true to your best interests?"

"Oh, yes, yes, yes! dear grandma!"

"Then, my own little one, trust me, by obeying me, when I tell you to ask me no questions about yourself; because I cannot answer them yet a while. Will you do so, my little Gem?"

"Yes, yes, I will! I will! But, dear granny, I know! I know! Although you are too tender to tell me, I know!"

"Know—what, Gem?" questioned Mrs. Winterose, in alarm.

"I know that some mystery and horror hung over my birth—hangs over my life! I have known this a long time. They call me 'Ingemisca;' that means, 'Bewail! Bewail!' Some one bewailed my birth, and bade me bewail it! Some one sung the refrain of a requiem at my baptism, as they do at the burial of others! And oh, grandma! to-night! to-night! in what has reached my ears, I have found a clew to the solving of my mystery!"

"Gem! Gem! if ever I have been kind to you, mind me now! Never think, never speak of these things again. Look on yourself as my child, and nothing more," urged the old lady with so much earnestness, and even pain, that her pet hastened to caress her, and to say:

"I will mind you as much as I can, best, dearest granny! I will never speak of this again until you give me leave."

"That is my darling girl! And now put away your wheel and come and sit down here, and let us have a pleasant talk after all this solemn nonsense. And when Joe comes in—— Where the mischief is that fellow, and why don't he come with the cones, I wonder? Anyhow, when he does come, I will send him down in the cellar for some nuts and apples, and we will have a little feast."

Gem set back her wheel, and came and took her seat on a stool at the old lady's feet.

"Gem," said Mrs. Winterose, passing her hand through the girl's dark curls, "my two daughters have been horrifying us by telling of some awful events that happened on certain long past Hallow Eves. But they have said nothing of the pleasant things that have happened on later Hallow Eves! They haven't said a word of that Hallow Eve when me and my Libby was a sitting in our cabin without provisions, and a-wondering where the money to buy them was to come from, and how long the agent would let us live there, seeing as we had no right, after my old man, who was the overseer, died, when in walks the agent himself, and offers of us a home rent free here, with the use of the garden, the orchard and the wood, with a small salary besides, if so be we would come here and live with Tabby, and help keep rats and thieves and rust and mould out of the old house. You may depend, Gem, as we jumped at the offer, and came here the very next day."

"That was all the kindness of my child! It didn't need nobody but me to do all that. But, my sweet angel, she wanted to provide for you and Libby, and to make us all comfortable and happy together," said Miss Tabby.

"Yes, I know. Heaven bless her, wherever she is! And that was a happy Hallow Eve. But the next one was even happier, Gem."

"Yes, dear grandma, I know," smiled the girl.

"Yes, for just one year from that time, when Hallow Eve came around again, I got up early in the morning, as I used to do then, as well as now, and I came down into this very room, and went through to that back door and into the back room, and opened the back porch door to let in the morning air, and there on the porch with the sun shining bright on the scarlet seed-pods of the rose vines all over the shed, there, like a cradle, stood a large wicker basket, with a two-year-old baby comfortably tucked up into it, and fast asleep."

"That was I," said the maiden.

"Yes, Gem, it was you. But just think of my astonishment when I found you there! I stared at you, and was as 'fraid to touch you at fust as if you'd been a bombshell to blow me up! I rubbed my eyes to see if I was awake. I crept up to you and shrank back from you ever so many times before I could venture to touch you. Then I saw a card tied to the handle of the basket. I took it off, put on my specks, and read this:

"'A Gem for Mrs. Winterose.'

"Then, my dear, I saw that somebody that wanted to get shet of a baby, had put it off on to me. And, Lord forgive me, I struck mad as a hop, and said I wouldn't have the brat, and would send it to the almshouse. But, lor! there is a power in helplessness compared to which the power of a monarch is all moonshine! And, however angry I might a felt at that minute with the unnatural monsters who I thought had dropped the baby there, why, I could no more a sent it to the almshouse than I could a smothered it in its basket," said the soft-hearted old dame, wiping away the tears that rose to her eyes at the very idea of such a piece of cruelty.

"So you took the little creature in?" smiled Gem.

"What else could I do? I was shivering with cold myself. Could I leave it out there? No. I took hold of the handle of the basket—which it was a large open clothes basket with a handle at each end, and very useful I have found it ever since to put the soiled clothes in — and I began to drag it through the door and through the back room into this very room. But he motion waked the baby up, and it opened the darkest blue eyes I ever had seen in my life, and looked at me as calm and quiet as if it had known me all my life, and then it opened its little rosy lips, and said:

"'Gamma!'

"Yes, my dear Gem, that was what you called me from the first, 'Gamma.' It went straight to my heart, Gem! And why? Because I was sixty years old then, and my hair was as white as it is now, and I never had a baby in the world to call me grandma; all because Tabby and Libby didn't marry as they ought to have done twenty years before that."

"'You're always hitting of us in the teeth about that, mother, as if it was our fault. As for me, I would have married fast enough if William Simpson hadn't a proved false," snivelled Miss Tabby.

"Bosh! there's as good fish in the sea as ever was got out of it," snapped the old lady.

"It was our fate," said the superstitious Miss Libby.

"You made your own fate," answered the inexorable old lady.

"So you adopted the poor little forsaken child," put in Gem, to stop the altercation between the mother and daughters.

"Yes, Gem, of course. But, oh! the day you were given to us was a day of jubilee! While I was lifting you out of the basket, lame-leg Joe came in to make the fire. When he saw me with a babe in my arms he let his wood fall, and lifted up his arms and opened his eyes in dumb amazement. And when I told him where I found it, he recovered his speech, and advised me to send it to the almshouse.

"'Joe!' I said, 'if ever you mention almshouses and babies in the same breath to me again you and I will have to part."

"Yet, poor old Joe spoke in your interests, grandma," said Gem.

"I know he did, dear, or he thought he did; but my real interest was to keep my Gem, for she has been the brightness of my life, and not only of mine, but of Tabby's and Libby's, poor childish old maids, and of Mopsy's and lame-leg Joe's."

"It is because we all love each other so much, and it is such a happiness to love," said Gem.

"We all loved you, my darling, from the very first. We could not help it! Ah! you should have seen what a sunbeam you were in our dull house that day and all days after that. When I took you out of the basket and set you upon your feet, you tottered all about the room, eagerly examining all that was new to you; the clip-bottom chairs, the turkey-wing fans, the peacock's feathers, even poor Joe's crooked leg. And me and Joe watched you in your little crimson dress, as one watches some bright-plumed bird hopping from twig to twig."

"How I wish I could remember that day, grandma.'

"You were too young; not more than two years old. But, oh! you should have seen the surprise and delight of Tabby and Libby, when, after they had made the beds upstairs they came down to help me to get breakfast. They were as silly over you as ever you saw children over a new pet kitten. I thought you would have been pulled to pieces between them, which was another sign they ought to have been married twenty years before."

"Oh, mother!" began Miss Tabby.

"Well, there! I won't say anything more about that. But the way they talked to you, Gem!"

"'What's your name, little one?' they asked.

"'Gem,' you answered.

"'Who's your mother, baby?'

"'Gamma,' you replied. You had only them two words, my darling—'Gem' and 'Gamma.'"

"Did you ever afterwards find out who I was, grandma?" inquired the girl.

"Maybe I did, and maybe I didn't, Gem. Anyway, there was no clew to your history there in that basket, Gem. There was heaps of baby clothes, nicely got up and marked 'In-gem-is-ca,' and there was a small bag of gold coins, amounting to just one hundred dollars. That was all. And now, didn't you give me your word never to ask me any questions about yourself?"

"I know I did, grandma, and I will keep my word; but, oh, grandma, I can't help thinking about it and suspecting who I am."

"Hush! hush! Gem! Put away such troublesome thoughts. I had rather see a little natural silliness than so much gravity in one so young as you are. Be a girl while girlhood lasts. The season is short enough. This is Hallow Eve. When I was young, it used to be a gay festival, and not the funeral feast my mournful daughters would make it. When I was young, the lads and lasses, on a Hallow Eve night, used to try spells to find out their sweethearts and lovers. And if ghosts walked then, they were merry sprites who only came to tell the youths and maidens whom they were to love and marry. Come, now, I'll teach you a sure spell. Here are some chestnuts," she said, rising and taking a little basket from the chimney-shelf, and emptying it into Gem's lap.

"What am I to do with these, grandma?" smiled the girl.

"You are to take half-a-dozen large ones, scratch on each the first letter in the name of some young man you know. Then on another, 'Str.' for stranger; on another 'Wid.' for widower; on the last one, a cross, for old maidenhood.

Smilingly Gem complied with the directions, and marked the chestnuts, while the old lady, with spectacles on nose, watched her carefully.

When they were all ready, Gem looked up, saying:

"Well, they are marked! Nine of them altogether."

"Now lay them in a row on the hot hearth, close to the coals, to roast."

"It is done," said Gem, after she had arranged them according to rule.

"Now, then, my dear, you must sit and watch them in perfect silence until they are roasted, when they will begin to pop; and the first one that pops will be your fate, whether it be one of the young men, or the widower, or the stranger, or whether it be the cross that stands for old maidenhood."

Smilingly Gem folded her hands, and composed herself to perfect silence and stillness.

While she watched her roasting chestnuts, the old lady watched her.

Each of these women, the ancient dame and the youthful maiden, was making herself silly to please the other. Mrs. Winterose, wishing to divert Gem from her troublesome thoughts, and Gem, willing to gratify her "grandma."

But the law of silence was not laid upon any one else but the trier of the spell. And Miss Tabby and Miss Libby chattered together like a pair of sister magpies for some minutes, when suddenly Miss Tabby exclaimed:

"Look out, Gem! Your chestnuts are beginning to crack; they will shoot you presently, if you don't mind."

The warning came too late. A blazing chestnut was suddenly shot from the hearth like a small bombshell, and struck Gem upon the right hand, inflicting a slight burn.

With a faint cry she sprang up and shook it off, and she sat down startled and trembling, for she was very delicate and very sensitive to pain.

"Never mind, never mind a little smarting! When I was young I would have been willing to have been scorched worse than that to have had such a powerful sign that some one loved me so fiercely as all that! Goodness! How he loves you, to be sure! and how quickly he is coming to see you! Come, pick up your chestnut, child, and see what mark it bears. Come, now! Is it Cromartie?" inquired the old lady, with an arch smile.

But the girl made no reply. She had picked up and blown out the blazing emblem that she had playfully made a messenger of fate, and she as gazing upon it. She remained pale and mute.

"Come, come; did you name it for that auburn-haired youth?" persisted the old lady.

"I named it for—the exile—the lady who was borne from the flooded prison that storm night; I named it for—my mother," answered the maiden in a low tone.

Silence like a panic fell upon the little party.

Mrs. Winterose was the first to break it.

"Gem! how dare you do such dreadful things?" she demanded, speaking more harshly than she had ever before spoken to her spoiled child.

"It's enough to break anybody's heart to hear her say that," whimpered Miss Tabby, wiping her eyes.

"And, oh! what a sign and an omen! If there's any truth in the spell, her mother—if so be she is her mother and is a living—her mother loves her better than any one in the world, and is a hurrying to see her now! For I never knew that to fail," said Miss Libby, clasping her hands and rolling up her eyes.

Gem turned and gazed at the last speaker, while a superstitious faith in the omen crept into her heart.

"There is nothing at all in it! I was only trying to amuse the poor child by the old love spell. I had no thought it would turn out this way," said Mrs. Winterose, glancing uneasily at Gem.

But Miss Tabby sighed, and Miss Libby shook her head, and Gem continued to look very grave.

"Well, I declare! I am out of all patience with Joe!" exclaimed the old lady, by way of changing the whole conversation. "It has been full forty minutes or more since I sent him after them cones! And now I am going to call him."

And, so saying, she went and opened the back door.

But she had no sooner done so, than she started with a cry of horror and fled back into the room.

And well she might!

Behind her came three men, bearing in their arms the mutilated and bleeding body of a third man!

Following them limped lame-legged Joe.

The affrighted women shrank back to the chimney corner, where they clung together in that dumb terror which is the deeper for its very silence.

"Now, don't you be scared, ladies," said Joe, soothingly. "Nobody ain't a-going to do you no harm. It is only some man as has been murdered out there."

"Murdered!" echoed Mrs. Winterose, in an awe-deepened tone.

"Another Hallow Eve murder!" groaned Miss Tabby, wringing her hands.

"It is doom!" muttered Miss Libby, solemnly.

Gem veiled her eyes and said nothing.

"Lay him down here on the floor, men, and let us take a look of him to see if we know him," said Joe, as he took a candle from the table.

The bearers laid their burden gently down.

Joe held the candle to the face of the murdered man.

Old Mrs. Winterose cautiously approached to view it.

"Good angels in heaven!" she exclaimed.

"Who is it, mother?" inquired her daughters, in terrified tones.

"Mr. Horace Blondelle!" she whispered.

JEWISH LANDOWNERS.

In Europe They Hold 248 Times as Much as They Did 40 Years Ago.

The anti-Jew faction in Russia declares that even with the present restrictions the Jews have managed to acquire a large portion of land, for which the following figures are quoted in the Jewish magazine, the Menorah:

"Within the Pale the real estate of the Jews advanced from 16,000 dessiatins in 1860 to 148,000 in 1870, 370,000 in 1880, 537,000 in 1890, and to 1,265,000 in 1900.

"In the kingdom of Poland the Jews held 16,000 dessiatins in 1860, 148,000 in 1810, 370,000 in 1880, 537,000 in 1890, and 1,265,000 in 1900.

"In European Russia outside the Pale Jewish landholdings is said to have increased 248 times in forty years in the following proportion: In 1860, 3,000 dessiatins; in 1870, 18,000 dessiatins; in 1880, 96,000 dessiatins; in 1890, 262,000 dessiatins, and in 1900, 745,000 dessiatnis."

According to these statistics the total holdings of the Jews throughout the Russian Empire, which only amounted to 70,000 dessiatins in 1860, reached in 1900 the high figure of 2,381,057 dessiatins, out of which the Jews own as their property 1,445,000 dessiatins, while the remaining 935,000 dessiatins are rented by them as tenants.

"Phew! talk about your paradoxes."

"What are you doing?"

"I'm footing up a running account to see how it stands."

"What? You marry my daughter?" thundered old Roxley. "You, a mere clerk——" "No, sir," replied young Myrtle, "not a clerk, but a gentleman now. I resigned my job the moment your daughter accepted me."

About the Farm

FERTILIZERS FOR WINTER WHEAT.

The fertilizers suitable for winter wheat will depend almost entirely on the nature of the soil and its constituents. In some instances farmyard manure will be superior to any other form of fertilizer. In other instances artificial fertilizers alone may be superior, and in yet other instances the best results will be obtained from applying both farmyard manure and commercial fertilizers.

Farmyard manure will usually give the best results on lands more or less sandy in character. These may produce an excellent sample of wheat, but unless stimulated by heavy manuring do not produce extraordinary yields. The proper manuring of such lands may greatly increase the crop, as they generally grow straw strong enough to sustain the head. Manure from the barnyard, on land which naturally grows ample straw, is quite liable to induce lodging, and this means reduced yields.

The mode of applying the manure will vary with climate and character of land. On land with a heavy subsoil, the best results will follow from applying the manure in the fresh form on fallow land before it is plowed. On light land and in a climate somewhat dry, the same plan will hold good, but on light land in a climate of considerable rainfall, it would probably be better to apply the manure after the first plowing and incorporate it not far from the surface by the use of the cultivator. In any event the manure should be in process of decay in the soil so that it can yield food for the wheat from the first.

Some persons still practice reducing the manure by piling it and then applying it as a dressing just before sowing the wheat. That is excellent for the wheat, but it is wasteful of plant food in the manure, so much of the nitrogen escapes during the process of fermentation.

COMMERCIAL FERTILIZERS.

The nature of the fertilizer to apply will depend on many conditions. So many that it will not be possible to discuss this part of the subject in a way at all comprehensive. These conditions include plant food in the land, nature of the soil, and the manner of preparing it. Usually the ingredient most wanted in soils sufficiently supplied with vegetable matter is phosphoric acid. But in some localities potash also is needed.

One of the fine features of farmyard manure is that it is a complete fertilizer, furnishing nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. On the other hand, if all three ingredients are not needed in the soil, in so far as they are not, there will be waste.

Phosphoric acid may usually be best applied as acid phosphate in growing winter wheat, as quick action is wanted. On many soils good results follow sowing the fertilizer at the same time as wheat with a suitable drill. Such an application with some nitrogen is favorable to good growth at the first, a result which is essential in the growing of any crop that is to produce large yields. Nitrogen may be applied in the spring to stimulate growth, and thus secure the desired yields. This method on light land, fairly well stocked with humus, may be made very effective.

To apply farm manure in moderate quantities and then supplement the manure with commercial fertilizers is usually the most satisfactory way of fertilizing lands so as to get extraordinary yield. The manure puts humus in the soil and furnishes a part of the fertility, and the commercial fertilizers may then be applied in a way that brings the needed equilibrium in fertility in the land. The action of commercial fertilizers is much more perfect in the presence of a sufficiency of vegetable matter in the soil. When thus applied, the waste of manure from levelling is reduced. Good results follow preparing the land in certain areas, in a certain way, without fertilizers. The process, meantime, seems to be purely a mechanical one. It consists in summer fallowing the land one year and growing winter wheat on it the next. The preparation consists in plowing once and then harrowing often enough to clean the land and to retain in it enough of moisture to start the wheat when it is sown in the fall.

In certain areas of the northwestern prairies, artificial fertilizers have frequently been disappointing. The reasons are not fully known. Even on worn land the mere supplying of the land with humus and cleaning seems to give it a new lease of producing power.

FARM NOTES.

Before you condemn your luck, or blame others for their shortcomings, examine your own knowledge and condition.

It is the seed that mostly exhausts the plant food from land. A grass crop that is allowed to produce seed, takes more from the soil in mineral matter than two crops cut for hay while the grass is young.

In recent years the manufacture of Portland cement has greatly increased, and a consequent reduction in price has brought that article within the reach of every farmer, so there is no longer any excuse for a man to feed hogs on the ground.

Much harm can be done with highly concentrated feeding stuffs. People must use judgment in regulating the quantity fed. Cotton-seed meal has the enormous amount of 47 per cent. of protein. It can be given safely only in very small does and mixed with other grains or meals.

The most valuable thing the farmer or his wife has is health. Bank stock counts for nothing by the side of it. Everything they can do to preserve their bodily vigor is so much added to the sum total of life. Sound health means happiness, comfort in the house and out-of-doors, and years full of enjoyment.

Better seed is the universal need of farming to-day. A very great improvement can be made in the farmer's yields by carefully grading the seed in a fanning mill, saving only the largest, heaviest and plumpest and the most mature kernels. This, however, is not sufficient for the progressive farmer. He wants to use a more intensive method, and get a correspondingly better grade and higher yield of grain.

There are off days on the farm, just as there are everywhere. Days when everything seems to go wrong; but sandwiched in between there are days that are as bright and as sunshiny as the fairest June morning. But loneliness is not here, kind friends of the city. That is only a fancy on your part, due to lack of positive knowledge. Every day on the farm is crowded full of things to employ the mind. I can tell you of men and women that have left the farm just because it was too strenuous for them. They felt the need of quiet and a chance to think. So they sold out and went away to the city to find rest. I feel certain that they made a mistake, for they did not know what they were doing when they made the change.

BOLD INVADERS.

There were some phases of country life with which the little city girl had as yet only one day's acquaintance, but the rights of property-owners and property-renters were firmly fixed in her mind.

"Mother!" she called, in evident excitement, the morning after the family had settled for the summer in Sunset View Cottage, "mother! Just come here and look! There are somebody's hens wiping their feet on our nice clean grass!"

MISSED HER VOCATION.

"What did your mother teach you, anyway, if you don't know how to sweep a room?"

"O, my mother thought I'd get married!"

HUNT FOR A MAN-EATER

A LUCKY SHOT WHICH LAID THE TIGRESS LOW.

The Genuine Man-eating Tigers are Rare and One is Seldom Killed.

Although there are tigers in considerable number in certain districts in India, there are fortunately few man-eaters. A man-eating tiger is not distinguished, as some would suppose, by his size or ferocity and led into this pernicious habit by sheer vice; he is no casuist, nor does he take to this dreadful means of livelihood from compulsion or necessity on account of age or infirmity. He is an ordinary tiger that has become a man eater from force of circumstance. Once a man eater always a man eater. Tigers in their natural state have an innate fear of man, and will not attack unless molested.

The villagers, when news is brought in that a tiger has struck down one of their cattle and is now eating it hard by the village, will invariably go in a body to the spot, not so much with the noble intention of rescuing the unfortunate heifer, which they know from long experience must have had her neck broken at the tiger's first spring, but more with the hope of saving some of the veal. They take up a position near the spot and make a demonstration, the tiger slinks off into the scrub to wait until things become quiet again, and when he returns he finds his much-needed meal has been removed.

This may happen once or twice to the same tiger, but there comes a day when the tiger has learned his lesson and, instead of slinking away as before, merely retires to a coign of vantage near the "kill" to watch it and charges out when any of the villagers are bold enough to approach it, savagely mauling a few of them. This is when he tastes the human blood for the first time and the man eating habit may now be easily formed, says a correspondent of the London Field. To a hungry tiger man falls the easiest of prey. He has no scent and very defective eyesight at night, and he also confines himself to certain defined paths through the jungle. These peculiarities of man are soon recognized by a man eater, who becomes extraordinarily cunning. He knows well the scent of a solitary human foot on the quiet track through the forest or the sound of the tap of the woodman's axe that a certain meal will walk into his claws if he but keep out of sight.

CUNNING IS NEEDED.

Much ingenuity and perseverance is needed to bring a man to bay. Of the energetic sportsmen who pursue the tiger, few have had the good fortune to bag a genuine man eater. This lucky experience happened to me some years ago while out on a short holiday with a friend, fishing and shooting in the Central Provinces, where tigers are fairly numerous. But at the small village where we pitched our tent tigers were seldom seen, and man eaters had not troubled them for years. We had our camp on the river bank not far from the railway station, and news had been brought in that a tiger had killed and eaten an unfortunate woman that very afternoon near the main road about a mile away. We decided to start at once, as the sun was fast sinking, and, after a hurried meal, proceeded down the road accompanied by some half dozen of the villagers and led by their head man, a big burly fellow, who had brought the information. This scene of the tragedy was a spot where the road cut through a piece of thick scrub jungle and some torn red rags belonging to the unfortunate woman's clothing were pointed out to us on bushes by the side of the road. Having shown us the spot the men who accompanied us seemed to consider they had done all that was required of them, and took up a position on the road at a respectful distance.

The light was fast fading, and we entered the undergrowth with our rifles for fuller examination. The course the brute had taken was easy to follow from the strips of rags here and there on the bushes. About 20 yards in we found where he had made his meal and what was left of the corpse, but no sign of the man eater himself. We returned to the road where the villagers were, and had a consultation. Feeling that something ought to be done, we decided to sit in a couple of trees and watch for an hour or two, hoping against hope that the brute might be in the vicinity and would return to finish his meal. The head man and the villagers were instructed to go and come back in a couple of hours with a lamp to fetch us. This being quietly settled, we again entered the brush-wood and got up a couple of small trees that we selected near the corpse. The light was most uncertain; the corpse a few feet below me soon resolved itself into a shadowy knot of arms and legs, and was gradually lost sight of in the darkness.

The shadows were never in the same place two minutes together, and even if the brute had returned neither of us could possibly have seen sufficiently to have hit him in the gloom of the overhanging trees. This tension was maintained for about an hour. I could stand the strain no longer, and, calling out to my companion, he immediately agreed to the futility of continuing the watch. We scrambled out of our trees into the scrub, calling to one another the while to assist us in effecting a meeting. I, to add to my discomfort, accidentally trod upon the corpse while endeavoring to meet my friend. We ultimately got back to the road and made for camp. When about half way we heard a tremendous commotion ahead of us in the direction of the village.

A HASTY FLIGHT.

Lights were waving and men were shouting, and the general hubbub gave us the impression that the tiger had killed some one else in the village during our absence. But as we hurried on we discovered that the lights were coming down the road toward us, and that it was none other than the headman and a dozen villagers, each with a light of some sort come out as instructed to fetch us back; the yelling and shouting were merely to keep their spirits up. The absurdity of the situation at once appealed to us; simultaneously we made a dash for a suitable bush by the side of the road and concealed ourselves behind it. When the cavalcade was about on a level with us our united effort produced a roar that would have done credit to the music of the lion house at the Zoo at feeding time.

The effect of our howl was as laughable as it was startling. Every man seemed to drop his light or lamp and flee back down the road incontinently. The sudden darkness and silence were broken only by the quick shuffle and retreating footsteps. In the momentary confusion that prevailed I noticed the big figure of the headman, who was carrying a lighted torch, the long handle of which for the moment got mixed with his feet when he turned to start back in his flight.

On our arrival in camp shortly after we sent to enquire of the headman why he had not come out with a light to fetch us, as promised, and were told that he was just about to do so, when he heard of our return to camp. Of course, we knew better, but said nothing, as we required the best assistance from these men to continue the hunt in the morning. Before turning in for the night I arranged with my shikari to select a couple of the best available trackers from the local men to go with us to the kill and examine the jungle in the neighborhood the following morning before sunrise.

We were up betimes, my companion and a couple of trackers taking the dry bed of the river to look for signs of the tiger, my shikari accompanying me down the road, having previously agreed to make a detour through the forest and meet the others at a junction in the river about a mile down. I continued along the road until within a few hundred yards of the kill, when I left the road and entered the scrub, to look for tracks and to approach the corpse from the opposite side. Dawn was just breaking as we silently scaled some broken ground and rock behind; my shikari, who was slightly above me, to the left, suddenly crouched and pointed forward. I quickly changed my position to get a better view, but I was not quick enough. A tiger was already going away through the scrub beyond at a hard trot. I took a snapshot with my right barrel, but the brute disappeared before I could use my left. My disappointment was keen; the chance had come to me and I had lost it.

WOUND PROVED FATAL.

We returned to the road, where I despatched the shikari to the river to call my companion, and sat down to blow my tobacco, in utter disgust. They soon appeared, as they had heard the shot and made for my direction. We now joined forces and eagerly took up the trail. To my intense gratification and astonishment we found first one spot of blood and then another, and before we had gone a hundred yards in the scrub quite a patch of blood had been left on the ground where the brute had rested for a moment. My shot had evidently told, and my hope now was that the wound was mortal, that the district might be rid of such a dreadful pest. We proceeded very cautiously, skirting the outside of the scrub, tracking the tiger into the jungle along the river.

Here, however, we completely lost him, and it was not until about midday that we again got touch of him. Ascending a hill on chance, over a mile distant, we came upon an old woman gathering fuel, and, being questioned, she stated that early that morning, while bending down at her work, she heard a slight noise behind, and, turning saw a tiger passing close by her. The brute gave a low growl as he passed, but took no further notice of her. She had been greatly scared, but was able to inform us that the tiger was going very lame, and seemed to be covered with blood. The ground in this direction was very broken and the undergrowth almost impenetrable. We hunted high and low till the sun went down, but were forced to return to camp without success.

It was not until the following afternoon that the joyful news was brought to us that the brute had been found. A cattle keeper had noticed some vultures wheeling in the air over the jungle nearly three miles out, and on closer inspection found the tiger lying dead in a patch of high grass. Willing hands soon brought the carcass into camp. It was a full-grown tigress, in the pink of condition, and my bullet had broken a back leg and burst in her stomach.

ST. LAWRENCE ROUTE TO ENGLAND

It Was Once a Social Crime to Go Via Montreal.

The London Mail says: "It is not more than five years ago that a Canadian would almost unclass himself socially if he went to England by a Canadian steamer. New York must be the sailing point for all people with a social standing and a bank account. Only laboring people, ministers, students, artists, and those with a 'pass' sailed from Montreal or Quebec. Yet in five years we have changed all that.

"To-day there are four steamers running from the St. Lawrence to Liverpool which are equal in comfort to any steamers in the world of equal tonnage—12,000 to 14,500. Two of these, the Allan liners Victorian and Virginian, are turbiners, while two Canadian Pacific liners, the Empress of Ireland and the Empress of Britain, have the latest type of reciprocating engines. Each of these vessels can average seventeen knots, and can cover the distance between Quebec and Liverpool in seven days. The Virginian has made 432 knots in twenty-four hours, and the Empress of Britain on her first trip accomplished 452 knots. As the total distance is 2,810 knots, it will be seen that six days of favorable work should bring the vessel from one harbor to the other. With such a service as this it is not surprising that Canadians should be rapidly coming to the point where they do not think of going via New York between May and October."

"How long will my chop be, waiter?" "About five inches, sir."

THE POLICE OF LONDON

WALKING GUIDE-BOOKS TO POINTS OF INTEREST.

Salaries Paid the Men Who Guard the Greatest City in the World.

Tourists having occasion to enlist the services of London "constables," if only to inquire the way to some point of interest, find them, as a rule, intelligent and well posted. This is because only men of intelligence and good character are appointed. They get upon the rolls after passing a rigid civil service examination and producing incontrovertible certificates of character. Once appointed, the constable—as the London patrolman is called—is not dependent upon political favor. If he does his duty, he is sure of his position and a pension upon retirement. The discipline of the force is severe; to take money from a liquor dealer, even for a legitimate service, means instant dismissal.

The London police know the history of the city and the location of its famous places; they can direct one to the residence of a living celebrity or to a quaint nook immortalized by Dickens. And yet these men are wofully underpaid. Upon joining the force, the recruit must be content with and it is only after a considerable term of service that he receives his maximum wage of $460. The pay of New York patrolmen ranges from $900, at the beginning, to $1,400 a year. A New York roundsman gets $1,500; a sergeant, $2,000; a captain, $2,750, and the chief inspector, $5,000. Upon the London force, a sergeant, corresponding with a roundsman, gets $720; an inspector, corresponding with the New York sergeant, $1,730. Superintendents, corresponding with captains in the American metropolis, get $2,100, and the chief constable, or head of the force, receives $4,000. The difference between the pay of officers is not so great as between the men in the ranks on opposite sides of the ocean.

It costs London taxpayers $9,331,145 a year to maintain the police force, of which amount $7,251,065 is paid for salaries. Unwillingness to increase this tax, rather than lack of appreciation of services rendered, is the obstacle "Bobby" encounters in seeking larger compensation for his work. The latest published statistics of the strength of London's police force was 31 superintendents, 539 inspectors, 2,148 sergeants, and 14,129 constables or patrolmen. Five superintendents, 52 inspectors, 229 sergeants, and 1,627 constables were employed on special duties in connection with various government departments. The remainder of the force looked after public welfare in the usual manner.

Each member of the force is granted one day off each fortnight, so that one-fourteenth of the entire force is constantly on leave. Of course, a number of men are always away on sick leave in addition, the average number being 471 a day. The men of the force work

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

They guard the greatest city in the world. The district to be protected extends over a radius of 15 miles, from Charing Cross, and includes 699.42 sq. miles. This area is exclusive of the old section shown in the City of London proper, which consists of one square mile in the heart of the great gathering of humanity. It has a population of 26,897, and under the Lord Mayor has its own separate and complete city government and its own police. All the remainder of the metropolis is composed of twenty or more separate cities, each with its own mayor, representative councils and other municipal officials, but all together constituting that part commonly known as London. These different municipal communities, however, have no control over the police that guard their streets. The Metropolitan force, as it is called, is directed by the national government through the office of the home secretary. It is a thoroughly efficient and honest force. There are no police scandals. Drunkenness is punished by dismissal. Stringent rules regulate financial dealings between policemen and the public, so that "Bobby" promptly pays his debts. Not only is he prohibited from taking money from a saloonkeper, but he cannot borrow from the keeper of a public house. Visitors to London have noticed that most policemen accept tips. If you ask him how best to proceed to some point of interest and reward his courteously given information with a shilling, he will touch his helmet and thank you. Willingness to accept tips is scarcely surprising in men who may be compelled to support families on $460 a year. For more important service rendered voluntarily or in the discharge of duty there is a class of rewards, but the general practice in the force is to report to headquarters such rewards as have been given and secure permission to retain them. A constable or patrolman instrumental in saving life in a street accident, is expected to report the reward, if one is given. As a general thing the policeman is allowed to keep the reward; but he cannot receive anything from people in the community which he is employed to watch. In such cases he is supposed to be doing only his plain and paid duty.

GOOD SENSE AND TOLERATION

mark the conduct of the London policeman. These conservators of law and order are seen at their best in the management of holiday crowds, when there are jubilee processions or brilliant town shows and when unnecessary harshness or insolent orders might incite riots. The policemen do nothing to irritate a crowd that is disposed to be good natured. They look on and seldom give orders; when they do, it is done courteously and quietly. The police know the temper of a London crowd and seldom get out of harmony with it.

"Bobby" earns his slender pay by his alertness in preventing crime and his success in bringing offenders to justice. Fewer murders, in proportion to population, go unpunished in London probably than anywhere else in the civilized world; while other offences are held in check to a commendable degree, considering the vast territory of crowded humanity in which criminals may become lost. During 1904 the number of persons arrested in London for all offences was 126,530. Of these, 3,167 were convicted in the criminal courts, 101,428 were convicted by magistrates, 519 were acquitted and 21,347 were dismissed by magistrates. The proportion of felonies to each 1,000 of population was 2,693.. The value of property stolen decreased in 1904 over $140,000 from the figures of the previous year. A considerable sum, in the aggregate, was saved the public in the way of recovery of lost property. Found in public conveyances 52,131 articles were taken to headquarters to await claimants.

THE NUMBER OF FATAL ACCIDENTS

in the streets of London has decreased of recent years, notwithstanding the increase of population and in the number of visitors, both from the English provinces and from foreign countries. During 1904 the number of policemen injured while in the discharge of their duties reached 3,054. Of these, 346 were out of service longer than a week. For its size London is remarkably free from serious crime. There are pickpockets—students of the Fagan type—and sneak thieves in plenty; but the habit of meting out swift justice discourages greater crime. During 1901 there were reported from a population of over 6,000,000 people, only 24 murders. Sixteen of these murderers were tried, and nearly all convicted. Six accused persons committed suicide, one escaped, and the other, a woman, was not prosecuted, owing to the peculiar conditions of the case. In 1904 there were 20 murders reported. Twelve of these were arrested and 11 convcted. Altogether there were 20,372 charges of serious crime brought to the attention of the authorities. Of these 14,491 persons were arrested, and 10,380 were convicted.

Presenting this record to the public, the members of London's police force think they should be better paid for their services.

CARPENTER OF THE ORIENT.

His Skill in Using Bolo—How the Filipino Has Adopted Foreign Tools.

Throughout the Oriental countries generally the superiority of the carpenter in the skilled labor class is marked and the rule has held good in the Filipines, certainly until very recently. The untutored Filipino carpenter knows but one tool, the bolo. It is simply a knife with a blade about 15 inches long, 3 inches wide and one-eighth of an inch thick, single edged. It serves as a plane, hatchet, chisel and hammer, and with it the native carpenter, left to himself, will build an entire house, not of the native variety merely, but in accordance with the design characteristic of foreign houses in the Philippines, which are frequently quite elaborate in construction and finish.

The Filipnio carpenter has now been compelled to adopt the nail first among modern auxiliaries of the trade, and, unless otherwise provided, the blunt back of his bolo, one-eighth of an inch wide, is made to serve as a hammer face with much better success than would be supposed. In his original cult the nail plays no part and all attachments between members of a structure are made with bamboo strips or rattan. Nearly all the native houses, and many foreign, are even now built in this way, and apparently the only serious defect as compared with nailing is the time consumed in the construction. The native carpenter has much difficulty in mastering the operation of foreign tools at first, and it is necessary always to guard against a return to his loved bolo.

It is rarely more difficult, and is generally less so, to teach an absolute novice, if he be of the same natural intelligence, the use of modern tools of carpentry than an artisan wedded to the use of the bolo. This probably acounts for the rapidity with which other craftsmen, such as machinists, masons, etc., have overcome the early lead of the carpenters. They were unhandicapped by predilection of any binding sort unless we except earth and rock excavation.

The native method of rock excavation is to build a fire to heat the rock. Then cold water is thrown on and the cracked stone removed when the process is repeated. This process, as it does not imply practice in the use of a certain tool, is readily discarded by the native for the drilling and blasting method. They quickly learn the use of mining hammer and bar drill and the best of the natives will get out as much as the average white workman. On earth excavation there is reluctance in adopting one of the white man's tools, his shovel, chiefly because of injurious effects on the soles of bare brown feet.

As a machinist the native shows decided aptitude, but fails in steadiness as a general rule. Otherwise he displays, as do also the carpenter and the mason, the deep rooted fault of wastefulness of materials. So great is this fault now that the saving to the employer in cheap wages as compared with those paid to white workmen is oftentimes swallowed up in waste of materials. This is but another manifestation of immaturity which may perhaps be rectified wholly or in large part by suitable manual training at an early age.

TRY NO EXPERIMENTS.

Meeting a negro, a Southern man asked him how he was getting on. The negro assumed a troubled look, and said:

"So far's physicality goes, I'm all right; but sure I do have ma troubles wif ma wife."

"Well, Sam, I'm sorry to hear that. What seems to be the matter?"

"She thinks money grows on trees, I reckon. All de time she keeps pesterin' me foh pinch o' change. If it ain't a dollah it's a half or a quarter she wants."

"What on earth does she do with the money?"

"I dunno. Ain't nevah give her none yet."

CURIOSITIES OF DIET.

Strange Things That Serve Man for Food in Many Lands.

Man's gastronomic predilections do not cease at beast and bird and fish; the reptile and insect world contribute their quota to his heterogeneous table, says Chamber's Journal.

The turtle is the cornerstone of even an aldermanic banquet, and it is not surprising that the land tortoise is used as food wherever he is found. Lizards of all sorts and sizes are eaten in Asia, Africa, America and Australia, and what is the crocodile or alligator but a lizard of a larger growth?

In Egypt and along the great rivers of other parts of Africa, South America and southern Asia the ungainly reptile is devoured with relish. Europeans do not take kindly to it as an article of diet, although they try it out of curiosity.

One would think the line might well be drawn at snakes. But because of that evil reputation gained just after the dawn of the creation the reptile cannot be allowed to shirk his obligations. The Chinaman utilizes snakes for sustenance and for medicine, and he is kept in countenance by the Indians of America, the negroes of Africa, the Malaysians and the Japanese. Coming nearer home, the Italians favor a dish of viper jelly, and the late Frank Buckland, whose zoological enthusiasm knew no bounds, assured us that boaconstrictor tasted like veal.

Frogs are eaten from East to West, from China to the United States. The French were the first to serve the frog up at table, but the Yankees run them a close second. Who knows but that some day the British will further cement the entente cordiale by adopting the Gallic taste for the hopping amphibian?

Snails, slimy and repulsive, are looked upon with loathing by the average Briton. But in France, Switzerland, the south of Europe and the United States any sentimental repugnance is not allowed to weigh against the undoubted nutritive qualities of the land mollusk. The snails are collected by women and children and are then placed in enclosures to feed upon selected vegetable food to impart to them the requisite flavor.

John the Baptist lived on locusts and wild honey, and innumerable people regale themselves on the same food today. African races are the chief eaters of locusts, a diet that shortens the span of life to two score years. When famine stalks the land the Arab grinds to powder the dried insects he has stored, and with flour bakes it into bread. Honey is in cosmopolitan favor, but the Cingalese eat bees to add fragrance to the breath.

In Brazil, the East Indies, Mexico and among the Indians of North America ants are largely consumed, as are the larger termites of Africa, and naturally the Chinese will not miss their turn with the insect.

There is no accounting for tastes and consequently one is content with baldly stating that in New Caledonia particularly large spiders, and in Brazil eighteen inch long centipedes, are greatly enjoyed. When the cook inadvertently sends up a boiled caterpillar with the vegetables John Bull says things "of sorts." Let him take heart of grace, for caterpillars, large and small, are eagerly eaten in many regions, as are silkworms in Madagascar and Ceylon.

WOMAN RULED THE TOWN.

The Population Was Enslaved by Her Cookery.

Never has the marriage of a reigning queen aroused more interest and enthusiasm among her subjects than did the wedding recently of Miss Emma Sheppard, of the town of Florence, South Dakota. She was Florence's only woman resident.

Florence is a newly founded and rapidly rising town, owing its existence to the extension of a branch of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad. Its situation in the centre of a region rich in undeveloped resources offered such prospects that it attracted a rush of enterprising westerners, with the result that the town acquired a population before it had streets and houses—but, with the single exception of Miss Sheppard, an extirely male population.

She followed the rush to the new city in the hope of establishing a prosperous school, but owing to the total lack of pupils or the likelihood of getting them, circumstances soon compelled her to make some more effective appeal to the needs of the community. Happily, her educational equipment included a course of cookery and domestic economy in a western college, and she established a restaurant.

From the moment she served the first meal the entire population, which had hitherto been subsisting on make-shift camp fire cookery, became her abject slaves, and within a month she was dictator and lawgiver of the community. She used her power firmly and wisely, and all disputes were submitted to her arbitration, which the loser cheerfully accepted, lest he should go hungry. She levied taxes for public purposes, directed the public works, made and enforced laws and regulations, and became in fact, by virtue of her cookery, the magistrte, mayor, and absolute queen of the town.

Naturally from the first there was the keenest competition for the hand of so powerful a princess, but a young engineer named Austin was finally the lucky winner.

He had been courting the girl for a long time. It happened on Sunday night after church. They were sitting on the sofa, and she looked with ineffable tenderness into his noble blue eyes. "Tom," she murmured, with a tremor in her voice, "didn't you tell me once you would be willing to do any act of heroism for my sake?" "Yes, Mary, and I gladly reiterate that statement now," he replied, in confident tones. "No noble Roman of old was fired with a loftier ambition, a braver resolution, than I." "Well, Tom, I want you to do something really heroic for me." "Speak, darling! What is it?" "Ask me to be your wife. We've been fooling long enough."

FOSSILS AND GOLD.

In Alaska the bones, and often the entire bodies, of extinct animals, such as the mammoth, the mastodon, the reindeer and the bison, are found most abundantly in the layers of soil directly above the gold-bearing gravels. So intimate is this association between fossil animal remains and the auriferous deposits that Monsieur Obalski, who lately explored Alaska, says that the fossils serve the prospectors as indexes of the metallic richness of the soil. In ancient times both the gold and the bones and bodies of the animals were deposited at the bottoms of valleys by the action of rivers and smaller streams, many of which have now disappeared. Consequently the appearance of fossils is an almost certain indication that gold will be found in the neighborhood. The cabins of many miners are ornamented with huge tusks and antlers unearthed in the diggings.

"What do you mean, sir," said an infuriated man in the crowd, "by sticking your umbrella in my eye?" "Oh, no," replied the cheerful offender, "you're mistaken, I assure you." "Mistaken!" he roared. "Do you mean to say that I don't know when my eye is hurt? Why, hang it, sir, I saw you do it. How the dickens can I be mistaken?" "I assure you that you are, nevertheless," was the easy rejoinder. "You may know when your eye is hurt, but you don't know my umbrella. This is one I borrowed."

High School Centennial.

The Cornwall High School Board are preparing for the celebration of the centennial of that educational institution, which traces its history back a hundred years, to the days when the late Bishop Strachan, (afterwards of Toronto,) established the school which afterwards became the Cornwall Grammar School, and later the High School. Some of the most prominent men in Canada were educated at the Cornwall Grammar School. The High School building has been recently enlarged, at the expense of about thirteen thousand dollars, and it will be formally opened on Wednesday, Oct. 24, by Hon. J. P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, and the Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education. It is expected that several other prominent Canadians will also be present. On the two following days, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 25 and 26, the Stormont Teachers' Association will hold their annual convention in Cornwall, and on the opening day they will be addressed by the Hon. Dr. Pyne. The programme promises to be an exceptionally good one this year and a very large gathering of teachers is expected.

Brockville Girl Missing.

Brockville, Oct. 11.—Mrs. James Dickson, a resident of this town, has been making inquiries of the police as to the whereabouts of her step-daughter, Lizzie Dickson, aged sixteen. The girl had been working at the home of W. H. Brightman, King street east, returning to her own home nights. On Monday morning after breakfast she went to Mr. Brightman's, and between 10 and 11 o'clock that day put on her clothes and walked out without saying a word to anyone. A diligent search has been made by the police, but up to the present no trace has been found of the girl.

A Sad Bereavement.

Mr. Samuel Cline, an old and highly respected resident of Eamer's Corners, passed away on Wednesday, Oct. 3rd, 1906, after a short illness. The deceased who was in his 76th year, enjoyed good health up to a few weeks ago. He was greatly affected by the death of his daughter, which occurred on the 23rd of September. He was a son of the late Michael Cline, and was born at Eamer's Corners. He is survived by four sons and three daughters: James Cline, Cornwall; Samuel Cline and Mrs. Thompson, Chesterville; Albert Cline, Sarnac Lake, N. Y.; Mrs. Thompson, Roxborough township; Ernest Cline, Montreal; Michael Cline and Miss Rebecca Cline, at home. The family have the most sincere sympathy of the community in this their second sad bereavement in the course of a few weeks. The funeral took place Friday afternoon to Trinity church and thence to Woodlawn cemetery.

Preventics, as the name implies, prevent all colds and grippe when "taken at the sneeze stage."

Preventics are toothsome candy tablets. Preventics dissipate all colds quickly, and taken early, when you first feel that a cold is coming, they check and prevent them. Preventics are thoroughly safe for children, and as effectual for adults. Sold and recommended in 5 cent and 25 cent boxes by Walter G. Bolster.

Newspaper Law.

1—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law), when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office and state the reason for it not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2—If any person order his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3—Any person who takes a paper from the postoffice, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed for it or not, is responsible for the pay.

4—If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publishers continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. The process is upon the ground that a man must pay for that he uses.

Counties' Council.

OCTOBER SESSION.

(From Cornwall Freeholder)

The October session of the Counties' Council opened at Cornwall on Monday evening, the following members being present:—

J. F. Cass, Winchester, Warden; Wm. Gallinger, E. O'Callaghan, Cornwall town; Jas. L. Groves, P. J. McDonell, Cornwall Township; Jas. Begg, D. H. McDiarmid, Roxborough; H. McMillan, J. D. McInnis, Finch; A. T. Shayer, Osnabruck; M. J. Casselman, Ed. Walsh, Williamsburg; W. Hamilton, Winchester; J. M. Christie, M. Kavanaugh, Mountain; Jas. Collison, W. G. Smyth, Matilda; H. A. Cameron, A. R. McBain, Charlottenburgh; Alpin Grant, John A. McDougall, Lancaster; J. R. McCuaig, D. A. McArthur, Lochiel; A. D. McRae, M. McRae, Kenyon.

The following correspondence was read and referred to various committees.

A letter from Matthew Wilson, K. C., Chatham, acknowledging receipt of appreciation of his services expressed by the Council at the June session of the successful outcome of the McOuat litigation.

A letter from the secretary of Hon. J. P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, acknowledging receipt of copy of resolution on the subject of the formation of a Municipal and Railway Board.

A letter from James Leitch, K.C., chairman of the Railway and Municipal Board, acknowledging with thanks the receipt of copy of resolution passed at the June session, congratulating him upon his appointment.

A letter from James Leitch, K. C., acknowledging the receipt of copy of resolution of appreciation of his services, in the McOuat lawsuit, and thanking the council for same.

A letter from H. A. Johnstone of Hainesville, enclosing his team pedlar's license for six months, which he had ceased to use since disposing of his business, and asked to be allowed a pro rata refund of fees.

A letter from James R. Simpson, clerk of Finch village, calling attention to the dangerous condition of the planking on the bridge over the Payne river in the said village, which bridge is devolved on the council for maintenance since the incorporation of the village.

A certified copy from W. Dingwall, clerk of Assizes of the Grand Jurors report at the recent fall assizes.

A letter from John D. McInnes, giving a report of his inspection of the Village of Finch bridge and what is necessary to be done to put the bridge in good repair.

A letter from A W Campbell, Commissioner of Highways, in reply to clerk's letter giving the information as to manner of taking vote and the adoption of system of counties' roads under the act for the Improvement of Public Highways.

A letter from J J Payne, clerk of Matilda township, enclosing a certified copy of resolution of the Township Council to investigate into the construction of a dam in the Nation River below Chesterville, and to take steps to have the same removed

A letter from B U Armstrong, Controller of the Post Office Department, Ottawa, acknowledging the receipt of memorial asking for better mail service on the O & N Y Railway. He stated that same would be inquired into.

A letter from F Warren, tendering his resignation as Counties' Councillor for Osnabruck, Division No. 5, Stormont, necessitated by his being obliged to make an assignment for the benefit of his creditors in consequence of having been burned out.

A letter from R A Pringle, M P, acknowledging the receipt of a copy of memorial re mail service on the C & N Y and promising to do his utmost to have the the service improved.

Before adjourning the Warden impressed upon the Council the necessity of disposing of all business pending and clearing up the slate as far as possible, as this was the last session of the Counties' Council under the County Council Act now in operation 10 years, He hoped that all the business would be wound up with the exception of the Counties bridges under construction.

On the Council reassembling on Tuesday morning a letter was read from J R Cartwright, Deputy Attorney-General, stating that in the absence of Attorney-General Foy, no definite reply could be given in reply to the clerk's letter re the Stewart estate and the proposed Counties' House of Refuge, until his return.

A letter was read from George M. Carlyle and other ratepayers of Mountain township, asking the Council to erect a winter bridge over the Castor River at lot 19, 12th concession, where the same crosses the boundary between Mountain and Osgoode townships.

A letter was read from William J Mullin of Matilda township, asking the Counties' Council to endorse the petition to the Minister of Agriculture, from farmers of Matilda and Williamsburg, who have recently suffered severe to cattle, horses and hogs by anthrax. The petition asked for partial compensation by the Government for the losses sustained.

An informal discussion was started by Mr McInnes as to the disposition to be made of the dredge Dundas. He advocated immediate action. This led to a free expression of opinion by several members, and the general opinion was that the dredge should not be sold or parted with, but should remain securely tied up till the McOuat appeal to the Supreme Court is disposed of.

On Wednesday morning the clerk was instructed to have two copies of the printed proceedings of council bound in book form for convenient reference.

At the afternoon session the report of the committee on communications was read and adopted.

The report of Edward Walsh the commissioner on the Winchester Springs bridge, was read and passed without amendment. It stated that the work was well under way, the old bridge having been removed to another site to be used as a temporary crossing. The cost of removal was $45.25.

The report of the Finance Committee was read by the chairman, Capt J A McDougal, and referred to the committee of the whole, which recommended its adoption after some explanations by the treasurer as to counties rates outstanding and as to the correctness of liabilities as shown in the report. The report showed the Counties' finances to stand as follows:—

|---|---|
| Liabilities. | |
| Counties bridges and debentures | $25,017 71 |
| Notes under discount and interest | 12,000 00 |

| Total | $3,286 73 |

The report of the sub committee to investigate and report on the probable cost of a House os Refuge was read and referred to the House of Refuge Committee by the Committee of the Whole. It stated that on July 24 the sub-committee had visited Iroquois and inspected a site on Mrs Brouse's farm, which can be secured at $55 per acre, the Village of Iroquois offering free water for an unstated time. Other places were visited but the price asked was much higher.

The committee estimated the cost of the proposed House of Refuge as follows: — Land, $5,500 to $7,000; main building, $20,000; furniture, $2,000; stock and implements, $1,500; sundries, $2,000; total $31,000 to $32,500.

The report was considered in Committee of the Whole, when a three months hoist was given to it.

It was recommended that a vote be taken of the freeholders in all municipalities at the elections on the question "Are you in favor of a County Road System?"

That the laying of a concrete floor on the Chesterville bridge be indefinitely deferred, and repainting the steel work be deferred until the January session.

The Finance Committee recommended payment of $180 be made to Mr Allen of Brockville, architect, for the plan of the proposed House of Refuge.

Specialists in the Treatment of Nervous, Blood, Private and Sexual Diseases of Men and Women. 25 Years in Detroit.
No Names used without Written Consent. Cures Guaranteed.

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are annually swept to a premature grave through early abuse or later excesses. Chas. Anderson was one of the victims, but was rescued in time. He says: "I learned an evil habit. A change soon came over me. I could feel it; my friends noticed it. I became nervous, despondent, gloomy, had no ambition, easily tired, evil forebodings, poor circulation, pimples on face, back weak, dreams and drains at night, tired and weak mornings, burning sensation. To make matters worse, I became reckless and contracted a blood disease. I tried many doctors and medical firms—all failed till Drs. Kennedy & Kergan took my case. In one week I felt better, and in a few weeks was entirely cured. They are the only reliable and honest Specialists in the country."

READER—We guarantee to cure you or no pay. You run no risk. We have a reputation and business at stake. Beware of frauds and impostors. We will pay $1,000 for any case we take that our NEW METHOD TREATMENT will not cure.

We treat and cure Nervous Debility, Varicocele, Stricture, Weak Parts, Kidney and Bladder Diseases. Consultation free. Books free. Call or write for Question List for Home Treatment.

WHY STAY RHEUMATIC?

Nothing Short of Folly When Cure is Guaranteed With Ferrozone.

Rheumatism can't be cured so long as your system is weak and run down.

You must first build up and get strength to fight off the disease.

Ferrozone cures because it builds up, because it renews the blood and dissolves the uric acid and the poisons that cause rheumatism.

It is proved right here that Ferrozone does cure.

Col. H. M. Russ, of Edwards, St. Lawrence Co., one of the fine old heroes of the Civil War, was completely restored by Ferrozone. Read his statement:

"I couldn't get around without a cane, and then only with difficulty.

"Rheumatism took complete control of my limbs.

"The suffering was more intense than hardships on the battlefield.

"When my doctor had done his best I got Ferrozone.

"Then came a quick change.

"Ferrozone gave me comfort at once, eased the pain and took the stiffness out of my muscles.

"I am well to-day. Ferrozone cured me completely. I can jump and run like I did forty years ago."

Be sensible about your case. If your present medicine is useless, give it up.

Don't experiment again. Ferrozone is known on all sides to be a cure that does cure. Why not get a supply to-day. The sooner you begin Ferrozone the quicker you'll get well. Price 50c per box or six for $2.50 at all dealers.

STICKS IN THE STOMACH.

Feeling That Often Comes to People With Weak Digestion.

A poor sufferer from indigestion once said that his stomach felt as though it was filled with sticks and as though some of them were on fire and burning him up inside.

When the stomach and the organs of digestion and nutrition are weakened and do not act properly, the symptoms of ill-health that follow are many and varied. There is often a feeling of heaviness in the stomach, there is distress and nervousness, diziness, nausea, nervous and sick headache, inability to sleep well, pains in the side and limbs, specks before the eyes and a general peevish, irritable condition.

All these troubles are the direct result of indigestion. Cure this by strengthening the stomach and digestive system with Mi o-na stomach tablets and your symptoms of ill-health will vanish before the morning sun; life will be joyous, and digestion will be so natural that you will forget you have a stomach.

Mi o-na stomach tablets cost but 50c. a box and are sold under an absolute guarantee that they will be successful in every case where used according to directions or money will be refunded. For sale by all dealers. The R. T. Booth Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

AULTSVILLE.

A very sad accident occurred at James Hall's on Wednesday of last week. Messrs. Gallinger Bros. and Geo. Hall bought a threshing machine. They started running it in Gallinger Bros.' barn to break in their horses and the next day moved it to Hall's barn. In cleaning up the floor some struck in front of the cylinder. Arthur Gallinger put his hand in to remove the straw, when the teeth caught his mitten. His arm was drawn in and badly lacerated. Dr. Brown of Aultsville, and Dr. Casselman of Morrisburg, dressed the wound and hoped to save his hand, but it was so badly crushed that on the following Tuesday they were obliged to take the arm off about four inches from the elbow. Dr. Wm. Brown of Chesterville, assisted in the operation.

A Horse's Discovery.

Oh dear, oh dear, I'm coming pray,
Can't you help a poor cripple on his way?
I'm lame and sore, and sick all o'er,
And just because my feet are sore.

I've been burnt and cut, pared and pricked,
Without knowledge into the quick;
They rub my shoulder to ease my pain,
And doctor me elsewhere in vain.

To-day, to-day the man I have found.
And I want it known for miles around;
For now I am well as you can see,
For it was C. Craig that has just shod me.

Now I've changed my complaining tune,
No more I fret, no more I groan.
For I've been examined well this day,
And I'm glad C. Craig has come this way.

Advt.

Obituary.

Mr. Hiram Slater, one of the oldest and most respected residents of Mountain township, died at his home near Inkerman on the 3rd inst. He was in his 76th year, and some time ago suffered from a stroke of paralysis. In politics the deceased was a staunch conservative, and in religion a Methodist. The funeral, which was a large one, was held at the Methodist church, Inkerman, on Friday, the remains afterwards being interred in the family plot in Knight cemetery.

Three Times Out Quite Enough.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Just a few lines in your valuable paper. On the 3rd inst., Berwick lacrosse team were to have played Morewood team in your town, but were informed at the last moment that Morewood could not play. This accounts for there being no lacrosse match that day, and we understand that quite a number of visitors, and sports as well, expressed their disappointment and disgust at such treatment; and we, as a lacrosse club, join with them in their denunciations. We do certainly allow that unforeseen circumstances will crop up sometimes, which might and would perhaps, prevent any team from keeping their appointment, but this is not the case so far as the Morewood team is concerned.

We have met those people and have given them matches, and were to have had them returned. On two particular occasions we were promised return matches; had billed the neighboring towns, and were allowed to go on,—expecting the match to be played. But at almost the last minute we were informed that Morewood could not play. It being too late for us to secure another team, on both occassions we were forced to take down our bills and suffer the disappointment, just as if we had been the cause of the whole thing. Now, Mr. Editor, we don't feel like carrying blame for the continued failure of others. we being prepared to play according to the bills every time. This we think is sufficient that a deserving public may really know where the blame lies.

But we wish to say to our friends and the lovers of the game as well, that on account of such treatment we are through playing lacrosse with the Morewood team, for sport or marbles. But will meet them on the field to play, (after they having put up sufficient money, which we will cover with a like amount,) the winners to take all. It is not Mr. Editor, that we are desirous of bringing to a keen edged phase of existence, what should be friendly local sport. But remembering the past, we make up our minds that three times is quite enough, also that this has come to be a case of put up or shut up.

Fifty Years of Sunday School Progress.

The initial steps looking to the beginning of Interdenominational Sunday School work in Ontario, were taken in July 1856. The convention which was the outcome, was held in Kingston, February 11, 12, 13, 1857. A second convention was not held until 1855, but ever since this date, which has come to be regarded as that from which the Ontario Sunday School Association dates its birth, active operations having been carried on under its auspices. Taking cognizance of the date of the first gathering practically fifty years ago the Ontario Association, on the invitation of the citizens of Kingston, will hold their forty-first annual convention in that city on October 23rd, 24th and 25th.

Unsolicited Testimony.

Here is the unsolicited testimony of Mrs. C. A. Martin, of Granville, N.Y., concerning Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women. We have her consent to publish her letter. It reads as follows:

I feel that I should tell you what wonders Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets have done for me. I had been running down, getting thin in flesh, and losing appetite for the past year, and though doctor's advice was sought and different remedies were used, there seemed to be no improvement. At length a friend who had received great benefit from Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets, advised me to try this remedy. I did so. In less than a week I began to see good effects. My appetite returned, my nerves began to get steady, my aches and pains began to leave me. I commenced to take on flesh, and I felt that I was being rapidly restored to health. At this moment I feel I am a new woman.

We want you to notice that the above letter proves our claims for Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets in two particulars.

First, that they will restore health after other remedies and even physicians have failed. Mrs. Martin had tried both.

Second, that improvement begins at once. Mrs. Martin saw good effects within a week.

If you are suffering from a run-down condition, or any weakness peculiar to your sex, you, too, can be made well and strong by these tablets.

Take them one week and note the improvement in your feelings and general health.

Don't think because the drug cures for headache do not make your heart palpitate, dull your nerves or upset your stomach just when you take them, that they are not hurting you, for they are.

The magazine "Health" speaks truly when it says: "Every dose of such drugs is at the expense of vitality, and sooner or later the penalty for outraging nature will be exacted."

You can avoid this penalty and cure your headaches just as quickly by taking the vegetable cure, Zutoo.

THE HOLY RUSSIAN CAUSE

"Go Ahead, Brothers; Death to the Rebels and Hebrews."

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: M. Dubrovin, President of the Union of Russian People, made a remarkable address at Odessa on Wednesday. He spoke to a band of 300 armed members of the union who had carried him on their shoulders to the railroad station on his departure for Kiev, and said:

"In the name of our beloved Emperor I bless you. The holy Russian cause is the extermination of rebels. You know who they are and where to find them. Clear the Russian soil of them. The Russian people want neither constitutions nor Parliaments, but orthodoxy and autocracy. Go ahead, brothers; death to the rebels and Hebrews."

After M. Dubrovin's train had left the band of 300 rushed down the principal streets of the city, shouting "Death to the rebels!" "Death to the Hebrews!" All shops were at once closed and the Hebrew population was in a condition of panic and terror throughout the night. The tactful measures taken by the prefect, however, prevented further disturbances.

It was announced on Wednesday afternoon that Captain Koreneff, commander of Fort Constantine, on the mainland near Cronstadt, whom the mutineers during the uprising of August 1 succeeded in wounding while attempting to capture the bridge connecting the fort with the island, will be tried by a court-martial, charged with inactivity in the performance of his duties. Nine more officers of the fortress artillery have resigned.

DISCIPLINE WAS LAX.

An idea of the lax discipline prevailing at Sveaborg fortress may be formed from the fact that the officers allowed the agitators who organized the mutiny to live in the barracks wih the soldiers and distribute revolutionary proclamations. The sedition which permeates the whole fortress artillery, as well as the engineers and other special branches of the service is considered to be mainly due to the license allowed the agitators. The military authorities consider that these branches of the army are wholly unreliable, but they think that the cavalry and light artillery can be depended upon, and that the revolutionary propaganda has made comparitively slight progress among the infantry regiments.

Continued naval mutinies are regarded by the commissions as being unavoidable under the present conditions. Even wearers of the St. George's Cross, which is conferred, like the British Victoria Cross, for acts of extreme bravery and devotion to duty, are affected. One of these was condemned to death recently at St. Petersburg for disobedience of orders and striking an officer.

After a long investigation Colonel Semanovski of the Rostoff Grenadiers, which mutinied in December last, has been relieved of duty and will be tried by court-martial on the charge of laxity in maintaining discipline in the regiment.

DEATH FOR TERRORISTS.

A despatch from Lodz, Russian Poland, says: Five terrorists, sentenced to death by drum-head court-martial, were hanged here on Wednesday.

The employees of the street railroads, the school teachers and the newspaper employees have joined the men in all the factories who went on strike on Tuesday against trials by drumhead court-martial.

At Bendzin on Tuesday five socialists were tried by drumhead court-martial and shot for armed resistance to arrest.

BANDITS' BULLETS FATAL.

A despatch from Warsaw, Russian Poland, says: John Gadomski, editor of The Gazeta Polska, and the most prominent of the Polish newspapermen, who was shot by bandits on Tuesday evening, died on Wednesday.

MILITARY CONSCRIPTION.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: The Social Democrats have assumed the direction of the organized movement for the refusal to perform military service, which the Constitutional Democrats at their convention at Helsingfors decided to avoid. At a secret and largely attended meeting of the Central Committee of the Social Democrats at St. Petersburg on Thursday it was decided to begin the work immediately among conscripts of 1906, who were notified to appear for enrollment, and endeavor to induce them to refuse to join the colors. The presses of the Revolutionists are printing thousands of the Social Democrats' proclamation, and an organized effort will be made to reach every man on this year's list of conscripts.

POST OFFICE LOOTED.

Burglars Get Postal Notes and Stamps Near Brockville.

A despatch from Brockville says: Some time during Saturday night the general store and post-office at Rockspring, owned by P. J. Latimer, was broken into and between $50 and $60 worth of postal notes purloined, also $25 in stamps, and $20 in cash.

25 ARE DEAD, 200 ENTOMBED.

Terrible Explosion In a British Coal Mine.

A despatch from Durham, England, says: As a result of an explosion in the Wingate colliery near here at about midnight on Sunday, 25 miners have been killed and 200 are entombed temporarily. The cause is supposed to have been fire-damp. The explosion was one of terrific force, and in Wingate Town many windows were broken. Immediately the news of the disaster became known crowds of half-clad persons were rushing towards the mine and there were heart-rending scenes at the mouth of the pit among those whose loved ones were below. The first report represented the disaster to be worse than subsequently was found to be the case. At daylight signals had been exchanged with the bottom seam, where a majority of the men were entombed, to the effect that they were safe, and with this message a sense of relief passed over the crowd of anxious relatives waiting at the mouth. As the morning advanced the bodies of dead men slowly were brought up. The first dead to appear were mostly old men, who had been employed as shifters and stonemen. The work of rescue was continued throughout the day. Eighty men were brought out alive. Many of these, however, were in a critical condition and unconscious. Later, supplies of coffee and sandwiches were passed in to those still entombed. At a late hour Monday night, to the joy of their relatives, four men were brought up from the lower seam, where the deaths had occurred. These men had been reckoned among the dead. Although they were exhausted they probably will recover.

DEAD OF EXPOSURE.

Gruesome Discovery on the Shore of Essex County.

A despatch from Windsor says: Sitting upright in a small duck boat, stark and stiff in death, the bodies of Stephen Stuart and Mrs. Mary Cadwell, his sister-in-law, aged 35 years, of Detroit, were discovered in a clump of bullrushes at Fighting Island, near the Canadian shore on Monday. The couple had been missing since last Friday, when they went out for a short fishing trip, expecting to return home in time for dinner. The heavy wind and rainstorm blew the tiny vessel out of its course, and it is supposed the occupants perished from cold and exposure. There are one or two suspicious circumstances in connection with the case, however, and a post-mortem examination has been ordered to settle definitely the cause of death.

VICTIM OF STRIKE RIOT.

One of the Detectives Wounded at Buckingham is Dead.

A despatch from Buckingham Que., says: Detective Warner, who was so horribly wounded in the battle with the striking mill men, died at 3 o'clock on Monday morning. Dr. Fontaine, of Maniwaki, who arrived here on Monday morning to supersede the local coroner, Dr. Rodrigue, was accused of complicity with the strikers. A warrant is out for his arrest, which, however, will not take effect until after the inquest. At Buckingham Junction, about three miles away, one of the detectives, Fournier by name, while on his way on Sunday to church, was ordered off the Cotes property. He refused at first, and was forcibly removed.

OTTAWA CITY TO BE SUED.

Damages Through Fall of Hotel Walls Will be Sought.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The city has been formally notified by other victims of the Gilmour wall collapse on Oct. 9 that damages for injuries sustained will be sought. The suitors are Ottawa Electric Railway Company, car wrecked and other property injured; Thomas McCabe, 178 Clarence Street; William Campbell, Hintonburg, and H. Lynch, 74 Berthwood Avenue, bodily injuries. The notices claim the injuries have been caused by the municipality having negligently and improperly allowed the wall of the Gilmour Hotel to stand in an unsafe condition.

THE HINDOO INVASION.

Number Entering Canada Since First of Year is 1,490.

A despatch from Ottawa says: According to advices which reached the Department of Trade and Commerce on Monday the total number of East Indians who have arrived in British Columbia since the first of January is 1,490. Mr. MacPherson, M.P., who came to Ottawa two or three weeks ago to enter protest against Hindoo immigration, stated on his return to Vancouver, he was authorized to announce that next session legislation would be introduced by the Government into the House of Commons for the purpose of restricting the immigration of Hindoos.

MET DEATH AT CROSSING.

Wealthy Elgin Farmer Struck While Driving at Yarmouth.

A despatch from St. Thomas says: Thomas Penhale, aged 80, a wealthy retired farmer, was fatally injured while driving across the M.C.R. crossing at Yarmouth Centre on Monday evening. He was struck by the C.P.R. express. The horse was killed and he was hurled some distance. When he was picked up he was found to be suffering from terrible injuries and was brought to the Amasa Wood Hospital, dying a few minutes after his arrival.

Count Witte declares emphatically that he would never undertake the direction of Russian finances.

The Lebaudy airship has been sent from Paris to Chalais, Department of Charent, where it will be employed as a school balloon to train crews for France's aerial war flotilla.

TYPHOID STILL INCREASING.

Doctors and Householders Fail to Report Cases.

A despatch from Toronto says: Further reports have been received by the Provincial Board of Health from local health officers, which go to show that typhoid fever has been more prevalent throughout the older parts of the province than was anticipated. In 11 cities and towns outside of Toronto, comprising a population of 50,000, reports indicate that there have been 103 cases of typhoid and six deaths. The cause of such a large proportion is contended by the board to be neglect on the part of the physicians and householders to report the cases to the local health officers. Instances where an undesirable condition of affairs existed are known of in connection with boarding houses where the landlady had nursed the patient and at the same time cooked the food. According to law there is a fine imposed on those householders and physicians who neglect to report.

FEAR FREIGHT BLOCKADE.

Too Much Wheat to Handle and Now Coal is Wanted.

A despatch from Chicago says: The congestion of freight traffic has increased so fast within the last few days that railway officials fear they are soon to face a blockade. Conditions on the eastern roads, which have not only to handle the business which they originate but have the crops of the west pouring upon them for export, are naturally the worst, but those on the western lines also are rapidly becoming extremely serious.

With the approach of winter the movement of coal has grown heavier, aggregating the congested conditions which already existed, and traffic men say that they do not know what they will do for cars when the year's enormous crop of corn is ready for market, as it will be now in a short time. A line belonging to one of the big eastern systems on Tuesday had orders for 4,235 cars which it could not fill.

BIG BLAZE AT BRANTFORD.

Starch Works Badly Damaged by the Flames.

A despatch from Brantford says: The Brantford Starch Works, situated about a mile from the city, were the scene of a big blaze on Friday night. The outbreak, which first occurred at about 9 o'clock, was due to combustion, caused it is supposed, through a piece of metal passing through the grinders. The main building, a three-storey brick structure, in which is the drying kilns machinery, was entirely destroyed. The passage leading to the store room was also completely destroyed. The damage to the main building is estimated at $25,000, and that in the vat department at about $16,000, a total of about $40,000. About fifty hands are thrown out of employment. In 1902 the factory was burned down under similar circumstances.

LICENSED TO CUT TIMBER.

Government Will Receive About $230,000 From Rainy River District.

A despatch from Toronto says: A number of parties have secured the right to cut timber on a number of berths advertised by the Department of Lands and Mines. The tenderers will pay about $230,000 in bonuses alone—more or less, according to the timber cut. Most of the timber will be cut for ties, and on this a bonus of five cents additional to bonuses will be paid by the contractors. For other purposes, the dues will be $2 per thousand feet, board measure. The extra-bonus scheme is a new one, the former method having been to pay a lump bonus. The berths are all situated in the Rainy River District, north of the C.P.R. A number of berths are not yet sold. In Barr township an expert ranger is making an estimate of the proportion of red and white pine. The question of which tender is the highest depends upon the result of his measurement.

ATTACKED CONSTABLE.

A Desperate Fight in a C. N. R. Bunk House.

A despatch from Port Arthur says: In a desperate fight at the C. N. R. bunk house at Port Arthur on Tuesday evening Robert Newcombe, C. N. R. constable, suffered severe injuries. A man named John Donovan, slightly intoxicated, started the disturbance in a house, and was called to order by the constable. Together with several companions, they set upon him, knocking him to the ground, where they kicked and pounded him. His arm was also broken at the elbow. Donovan and his colleagues have been arrested.

CATTLE HAD LUMP JAW.

Winnipeg Confiscated and Cremated Twelve.

A despatch from Winnipeg says. The City Veterinary visited the C. P. R. stock yards on Wednesday, and after inspecting the cattle intended for the local abattoirs condemned and confiscated twelve animals suffering from lump jaw. He had them killed and cremated. Large numbers of these animals are coming in at present in shipments from the ranges, and the authorities have to be very vigilant.

THE WHEAT MOVEMENT.

C. P. R. Receipts Nearly Nineteen Million Bushels.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: The total wheat receipts on the C. P. R. up to date this season amount to 18,863,000 bushels, and 1,123,000 bushels of other grains have been marketed. Thursday's receipts were:—Wheat, 495,000 bushels; other grains, 37,000 bushels. On the corresponding day last year 650,000 bushels of wheat and 48,000 bushels of other grains were marketed.

The total amount of grain received up to this time last year was 12,698,000 bushels of wheat and 623,000 bushels of other grains.

1,500 PERISH BY FLAMES

Awful Scenes Enacted at Wharf at Hong-Kong.

A despatch from Hong Kong says: The steamship Hankow burned at her wharf here early on Sunday morning and 1,500 souls that were penned in the steerage lost their lives. Most of the crew leaped overboard and thus escaped death. The steerage passengers, most of whom were women and small children, were unable to reach the upper deck, as the flames spread to the companionways before the alarm was sounded.

The Hankow carried 2,000 Chinese passengers, men, women and children and seven Europeans, and a cargo, including 300 bales of matting, 560 bales of raw silk, and 400 bales of waste silk. The vessel arrived from Canton at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning, and was shortly afterwards moored at the wharf.

The chief officer reported to Capt. Branch that the ship was afire. The captain then directed the chief engineer to turn on the water through the fire hose. This was impossible, for the reason that within five minutes after the alarm was given the Hankow was ablaze fore and aft. Capt. Branch then awakened the European passengers, who were rushed down the gangway, the ladies in their night clothes.

The crew was compelled to leave the ship, which by this time was a veritable furnace. The Chinese steerage passengers were thrown into a frightful panic. Horrifying shrieks and cries to save their lives were heard, but it was impossible, owing to the inflammable nature of the cargo.

Hundreds were burned to death and many others jumped into the harbor and were drowned.

Responding to signals, the British cruiser Flora and the naval dockyard despatched contingents of engines and assistance. The land and floating brigades of firemen made herculean efforts to extinguish the flames, which leaped to a height of over 60 feet.

ONLY A SHELL LEFT.

The British steamer Pow An, which was berthed at the same wharf, was towed out to save her from destruction. A neighboring pier 100 yards distant was burned to the water's edge. Governor Nathan, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, arrived at the scene at 4.15 a.m. Governor Nathan suggested scuttling the ship, but the suggestion was found impracticable.

The fire was brought under control at 6 a.m., at which time only the shell and hull of the Hankow remained. The gruesome work of recovering the dead was then begun. The fire fighters have already recovered 75 corpses. Many of them were huddled together and only singed, while others were incinerated beyond recognition. Of the cargo 200 bales of raw silk were saved, but badly damaged by water. The remainder was totally destroyed.

There are many theories as to the cause of the fire. The first is that the fire was caused by the overturning of the lantern of a Chinese boarding-house runner who came aboard seeking customers. The second was that an opium smoker accidentally set fire to the matting; the third is that it was caused by the crossing of an electric wire. A fourth theory, and one that is considered the most probable, is that the fire was incendiary, and was an outgrowth of a boycott against British river boats.

PRAIRIE LINES READY.

Expect to Have Track Laid in Time to Move Next Year's Crop.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Over 50 per cent. of the grading between Portage la Prairie and Saskatoon, on the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been completed, and 30 per cent. is finished between Saskatoon and Edmonton, 600 miles. It is expected that the grading on all the lines west of Winnipeg will be finished this month. The work of laying the steel will be proceeded with in the spring, and the officials who have charge of the construction work hope to have all the prairie lines ready for operation in time to help with the transportation of next year's wheat crop. Survey parties are now at work locating a number of branchlines out of Yorkton, one of which it is said will run to Regina, and the other to Hudson's Bay.

DREADNOUGHT IS FAST.

Makes Twenty-two Knots on Her Trial Trip.

A despatch from Spithead, England, says: The battleship Dreadnought anchored here on Tuesday evening, after a full steam trial lasting eight hours, in which she reached a speed of twenty-two and one-quarter knots, the mean average being twenty-one and a half. Her horsepower which is nominally 23,000, went as high as 28,000. These results were achieved in the face of increased load resulting from preparations for a seagoing trip, which added two feet to her draught. The engines ran smoothly and with good reserve power, no forced draught being used. Complete absence of vibration was again recorded.

REVENUE INCREASING.

That for Nine Months Equals Collections for Last Year.

A despatch from Toronto says: The revenue of the Provincial Secretary's department this year is expected to reach $1,000,000. Last year it totalled $670,000. The increased revenue finds its cause in the number of things, principally in the high liquor license and the forcing of delinquents to pay for the maintenance of relatives in asylums. About $125,000 will be added to the provincial money pile as a result in the advance in license fees.

SHOVED FOOT INTO PRESS.

A Doukhobor Terribly Injured at Rosthern, Sask.

A despatch from Rosthern, Sask., says: With his left leg broken and the flesh from the back of the leg between the knee and ankle literally torn to shreds, Henry Podanilnikoff, a Doukhobor, was rescued from a hay pressing machine on Thursday morning west of the town. Instead of taking a fork he used his foot, pushing the limb in too far and it was caught in the machine.

EARTHQUAKES CONTINUE.

Sicily Still Suffers From Severe Shocks.

A despatch from Pelermo says: The earthquake shocks in Sicily continue, and are causing serious damage to dwellings and churches, some of which have fallen. Cacamo sustained particularly heavy damages, and the condition of the people of that town, Termini and Trabia is extremely distressing. They have been camped in the open air for weeks past. In the last five days more than one hundred shocks have been felt at Trabia.

Peter Veregin, the Doukhobor leader, is going back to Russia to see Count Tolstoi, and intends returning in the spring with a large party of immigrants.

BANK'S CAPITAL WIPED OUT.

The Ontario Bank Wrecker May be Apprehended.

A despatch from Toronto says: The losses sustained by the Ontario Bank owing to the speculations of General Manager McGill may total the paid-up capital of $1,500,000. Mr. McGill admits a shortage of one and a quarter millions. An expert is now conducting an investigation of the books. The general manager, so it is announced, has been submitting false returns to the directors for several years to cover up his speculations. He will in all probability be apprehended. A director of the Ontario Bank states that matters were in such a chaotic state it was really hard to say whether the shareholders would realize 25 per cent. on their stock or would be called upon to pay 25 per cent. or more. He had every reason to believe that the statement presented at the last annual meeting on June 19th had been so prepared as to deceive not only the directors, but the auditors. While there was not the slightest doubt of the culpability of the general manager, it was just a question as to what extent the directors could be held responsible for the acts of Mr. McGill. The director in question said it was a matter of the deepest regret that such a solid and promising institution should be wrecked by the speculative mania of its most trusted official. It was idle to speak of the general manager's operations as investments. They ran the gamut of some of the most speculative stocks on the New York market, and were even carried into the wheat pit at Chicago. Buying speculative issues on margin with a reckless if not criminal disregard for the funds entrusted to his care was a procedure which could not be condoned, and of which the Government authorities must take cognizance.

PATIENT JUMPS TO DEATH.

Tragic Affair at the Toronto General Hospital.

A despatch from Toronto says: Charles Gould, a typhoid fever patient at the General Hospital, jumped from a window of the ward in which he was confined early on Sunday morning and was killed. When taken in on Friday he was in a very weak and despondent condition. He underwent treatment, and was progressing as well as could be expected. While the attendant was out of his room for a few minutes on Sunday morning, however, he got out of bed, and climbing up eight feet to a window he jumped out, falling thirty feet to the ground. He died in a short time.

Gould was a teamster and had occupied a room at 44 Mercer Street previous to his leaving for the hospital. He was an Englishman new to the country, and the authorities at the hospital have as yet been unable to locate any of his friends.

MANGLED BY STREET CAR.

Five-year-old Son of Laborer Killed at Hull.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A shocking accident took place in Hull on Thursday morning on the street opposite Fortin and Gracelle's mica factory, when Horace Boulet, the little 5-year-old son of Mr. Joseph Boulet, laborer, living at 20 St. Joseph Street, was struck and instantly killed by car No. 14 on the Hull Electric Railway.

OTTAWA'S POPULATION.

Assessment Returns Show an Increase of 2,452 Over Last Year.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Assessment Commissioner on Friday handed out the figures of next year's assessment of the city. The present population of Ottawa is placed at 67,572, an increase of 2,452 over last year. The total assessment for 1907 is $41,200,060, an increase of $3,416,825.

A WOUND THAT MADE HISTORY.

There is a certain peppery old colonel who claims to have been wounded long years ago in the leg while serving his country in some petty little frontier fight. He is very proud of that wounded leg.

One afternoon, when he sat at his club nursing the injured leg, a fellow clubman of recent acquaintance, sympathetically asked:

"Lame, Colonel?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply, after an inexpressibly solemn pause, "I am lame."

"Been riding, sir?"

"No," this time with rebuking sternness, "I have not been riding."

"Ah, I trust it was not due to a fall, Colonel?"

"No!" came in tones of ferocity.

"Perhaps, then, you have sprained your ankle?"

With painful slowness the old fellow lifted his pet leg in both hands, set it carefully on the floor, rose deliberately from his chair, and, looking down upon the unfortunate questioner with mingled pity and wrath, burst forth in almost sublime rage:

"Go, sir, and read the history of your country, sir!"

RETALIATION.

"I'll g-get even w-with you, m-mamma," sobbed small Elsie, who had just been severely chastised.

"How?" queried her mother.

"When I g-grow up and h-have a l-little girl I'll beat the life out of h-her," answered Elsie.

REBUILDING OF 'FRISCO

THREE YEARS MAY SEE THE CITY ITSELF AGAIN.

Over 300,000 Men Now Engaged—Two Thousand Houses in Twelve Weeks.

A city is made by its traffic, and the growth of a state is dependent upon its natural resources, says a San Francisco letter. Commerce is not an accident, and neither trade nor population is drawn continuously to a city or a country by brag, however persistent. A strategic position, such as San Francisco occupies, command of a great natural gateway, with a country behind it imperial in area and incalculably rich and varied in the products of its soil, will compel growth inevitably.

The San Francisco Real Estate Circular, showing the real estate market for six months ending on June 30, 1906, records transactions for this period to the amount of $48,399,651, and that real estate in this city is not heavily in debt.

The real estate transfers during August were 1075, as against 974 for January.

REAL ESTATE EXPERTS

now say that within three years the burned district between Market and Vanness avenue will be rebuilt. The movement is going on from Vannes eastwardly, and westward from the downtown section. This is not a long time in which to cover a large area with substantial buildings. And while this heart of the city is being made of steel and cement work will be going on south of Market-street, and most of that great section will be reconstructed. The delay in pushing up the big class A structures is growing shorter as business and the insurance situations adjust themselves.

Meantime, no lot or block of property within the lines of the area indicated will represent a decreasing valuation for any length of time. In fact, real estate values have gone up in some blocks of the burned district, and are holding their own in most of the others.

There were employed in building and reconstruction work in this city on June 9 20,000 men. Those figures were obtained from the rosters of the unions. The number of mechanics and laborers on the rosters of the building crafts, and unclassified and unaffiliated, or working on permits pending application, was on Aug. 1, in round numbers, 30,000 men.

LABOR BENEFITS.

An eastern statistician, who has carefully surveyed the situation here, goes into elaborate calculations as to the sum that will be required to rebuild the city. He puts it at $409,000,000. It seems a sort of rough guess, but perhaps it is not too much to expect that some such vast sum will be spent on building in San Francisco within the coming decade. Whatever the total, labor will receive something like 40 per cent. of the whole.

This money returns almost at once into circulation and is felt in the volume of retail and other trade in the city.

San Francisco has been credited with exceptional courage in undertaking her own rehabilitation, doing business at the old stand and on her own capital. But while sentiment is involved—a passionate attachment to the city, its site, its climate and its cosmopolitan spirit—business sense is behind sentiment, and necessity pushes business sense. One-third of the city's population must be housed.

CONTRACT FOR HOUSES.

The chairman of the building committee of the relief corporation has closed a contract for 2,000 houses, 800 of two rooms and 1,200 of three rooms, all to be ready within twelve weeks from Sept. 1. Negotiations are going on with another contractor for a like number of cottages, and the necessary appropriations have been made to cover both contracts. The California ruins will be anticipated in large measure.

It is not definitely decided that the cost of the new Palace Hotel will approximate $3,000,000, with an additional allowance of $600,000 for furnishing. The architects who are preparing the preliminary plans have been instructed to provide 700 rooms, to duplicate the famous old court and arrange grills for both men and women.

The Alaskan Commercial Company has signed a contract for a class A steel building on the corner of California and Sansome. The cost is to be $500,000.

A concrete warehouse will be built by Timothy L. Hopkins at a cost of $420,000. An immense brick warehouse will also be in the same locality, and work on both is to begin shortly. The plans are now drawn.

FORTUNE IN THE CUP.

Who that is young and visionary or old and hopeful has not a secret weakness for fortune-telling? Many a woman long past youth's golden days still looks in her teacup for her fate. And the teacup is an oracle, say the wiseacres. Do you wish to know how many years will elapse before you will marry? Balance your spoon on the edge of your cup, first noting that it is perfectly dry. Fill another partly with tea, and, holding it above the balanced spoon, let the drops of tea gather to the tip of the spoon and gently fall into the bowl of the one below. Count the drops. Each drop means a long twelve month. Should a teastalk float in your cup, it means a sweetheart, and you must stir your tea rapidly round and round and then hold the spoon upright in the centre of the cup. If the "sweetheart" is attracted by the spoon and clings to it, you will shortly meet him; but if the teastalk goes to the side of the cup, you have lost him.

A doctor took it into his head to go rabbit shooting, and started out bright and early on a beautiful morning, fully armed for game. About four in the afternoon he returned, tired out and empty-handed, telling his wife he hadn't killed a thing, whereupon she remarked, triumphantly:—"I told you so," adding, in the next breath: "If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business you might have been more successful."

MAKES NEW BLOOD.

That is How Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure the Common Ailments of Life

Making new blood. That is just what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are always doing—actually making new blood. This new blood strengthens every organ in the body, and strikes straight at the root of anaemia, and the common ailments of life which have their origin in poor, weak, watery blood. Mrs. A. M. Seeley, of Stirling, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her fourteen year old sister, Miss Annie Sager, after other treatment had failed. She says: "For some years Annie had not been well. She would take spells of dizziness and headaches that would last for several days, and her whole body would become dry and hot as though she was burning up with fever. Her lips would swell until near the bursting point, and then when the fever would leave her the outer skin of the lips would peel off. She doctored with two different doctors, but they did not succeed in curing her, and the trouble seemed gradually to be growing worse. Then we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and under this treatment she has recovered her health. The headaches and dizziness have gone; her color is improved; her appetite better, and she has had no further attacks of the fever which baffled the doctors. We are greatly pleased with what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for her, and recommend them to other sufferers."

It was the rich red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make which cured Miss Sager. That is why these pills cure all common ailments like anaemia and debility, headaches and backaches, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance and the special ailments that prey on the health and happiness of girls and women of all ages. Get the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, with the full name on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NOISE AND HEALTH.

Eminent Physician Attacks One of Britain's Cherished Institutions.

"'Big Ben' is nothing but a relic of barbarism."

Such was the attack made upon one of Britain's most cherished institutions by Dr. Theo. B. Hyslop, senior physician to the Royal Hospital of Bridewell and Bethlehem at the Congress of Sanitary Inspectors at Blackpool recently.

Dr. Hyslop, however, only touched on Big Ben in passing. He classed it merely as one of the many noises which torture the town-dweller, and the subject of his speech was the effect of noises on health. The effect, it seems, is a very bad one indeed.

"The fact that town life under existing circumstances makes it impossible to obtain adequate brain rest goes far to cause the prevalence of insanity about which municipalities are so solicitous, and which, in my opinion, they could do so much to prevent," said Dr. Hyslop.

The influence of noise upon infant mortality, he continued was much more serious than was at present dreamed of. He had seen the growth of infants who lived in or near noisy streets greatly arrested, and their removal to quieter localities had enabled them to recover.

"The noises of clocks, bells, and chimes, such as Big Ben, are nothing but relics of barbarism—the baneful accompaniments of the night."

After Dr. Hyslop's speech the conference passed a resolution asking the Central Council of the association to bring the subject of noise before the County Councils.

Sir James Crichton Browne then said that he had lately been the victim of a bantam cock of amazingly indefatigable and exasperating habits.

"But," asked Dr. Hyslop, "have you ever heard a really good, healthy tom-cat—not a melancholic cat, but one really and properly in love? It can give points to any cock that ever crew."

CZARINA'S CHARM OF MANNER...

Beautiful, Graceful Woman, Whose Pictures Represent Her Poorly.

The general appearance of the Czarina may be fairly well known in this country, although fewer pictures have been published of her than of any other crowned head. But no picture that I had seen, writes Amalia Kussner Coudert in the Century, gave any idea of how she really looks, seen thus face to face.

Perhaps this may be for the reason that much of her beauty comes from exquisite coloring and that there is about her a subtle charm impossible to picture and difficult to describe. She is very tall and very slender, yet most finely proportioned. Her features are almost Greek in their regularity, and the natural expression of her face struck me at once as a singularly wistful and sweet sadness that never went quite away even when she smiled.

Her hair is strikingly beautiful and luxuriant, long, heavy, glossy and brown gold in color. Her eyes are large soft, lustrous gray blue, with long lashes, and I painted them cast down, as they nearly always are; for she is shy and hardly ever looks up without a blush.

Yet, with all the Czarina's blushing shyness her bearing impressed me with a sense of something much deeper and graver than mere admiration for a beautiful, graceful woman. It is difficult to define just what this impression was, but it may be termed majesty, for lack of a subtler term; and the feling of it increased during the entire time that I was privileged to enter her presence, although no one could have been kinder or more simple in all that she said and did.

There was once a professor who never lost an opportunity to rebuke any bumptiousness on the part of his students. On one occasion, when he was taking leave of a certain graduate, he is reported to have said:—"Sir, your fellow-students think highly of you; I think highly of you; but sir, no one thinks more highly of you than you do yourself!"

ARE YOUR FEET GERMAN.

National characteristics are many and varied, and scientists are always discovering new things. The latest of these is feet. The French foot is narrow and long. The Spanish foot is small and elegantly curved—thanks to its Moorish blood. The Arab's foot is proverbial for its high arch. The Koran says that a stream of water can run under the true Arab's foot without touching it. The foot of the Scotch is high and thick; that of the Irish flat and square; the English short and fleshy. When Athens was in her zenith, the Grecian foot was the most perfectly formed and exactly proportioned of that of any of the human race. Swedes, Norwegians, and Germans have the largest feet, Americans the smallest. Russian toes are "webbed" to the first joint. Tartarian toes are all the same length.

ALL THE BEST CHANCES ARE—

With the worker who is thorough in small things as well as in large.

With the one who takes the thorns in his occupation with as good a grace as the roses.

With the man who never loses sight of his goal no matter what difficulties beset him.

With the employee who does not measure the quality and quantity of his work by the amount of his salary.

With the young man or young woman who is willing to do a little occasional extra work without pay and without grumbling.

With the courageous struggler who puts grit, determination, and will-power against his handicap, whatever it may be.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant to take; sure and effectual in destroying worms. Many have tried it with best results.

Minister mildly)—"I've been wanting to see you, Mr. Kurd, in regard to the quality of the milk which you are serving me." Milkman (uneasily)—"Yes, sir." Minister (very mildly)—"I only wanted to say, Mr. Kurd, that I use the milk for dietary purposes exclusively, and not for christening."

"FERROVIM" IS A GENTLE STIMULANT to the stomach, thereby aiding digestion. As a tonic for patients recovering from fevers and all diseases lowering the vitality, it is without a rival. At all drug and general stores.

Wifie: "Mrs. Neighbors threw a flat-iron at her husband last night because he accidentally sat down on her new bonnet. Now, I couldn't do a thing like that." Hubby: "You couldn't?" Wifie: "Of course not. I haven't any new bonnet."

"By Medicine Life May be Prolonged."—So wrote Shakespeare nearly three hundred years ago. It is so to-day. Medicine will prolong life, but be sure of the qualities of the medicine. Life is prolonged by keeping the body free from disease. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil used internally will cure coughs and colds, eradicate asthma, overcome croup and give strength to the respiratory organs. Give it a trial.

He—"So your husband has given up smoking? It requires a pretty strong will to accomplish that." She—"Well, I'd have you understand that I have a strong will."

PLEASE BEAR IN MIND that what is called a skin disease may be but a symptom of bad blood. In that case, Weaver's Cerate, externally applied, should be supplemented with Weaver's Syrup, taken daily.

Howell: "Rowell is always borrowing trouble." Powell: "He's the kind of fellow who, if he thought he was going to get fat, would go out and walk off the weight before he got it!"

They Drive Pimples Away.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

USEFUL HINTS.

Hang blankets in the sun constantly between the times of washing, for it whitens and purifies them besides raising the pile.

For duck stuffing take dry breadcrumbs, chopped sour apples, and boiled onions, seasoning the mixture with salt, pepper, sage and butter.

Removing Red Ink Stains.—Moisten the spots with strong alcohol acidulated with nitric acid. It is always desirable to make a blank experiment first, as all materials will not take the same treatment.

To brown flour put a thick layer of flour into a baking pan and place it in a hot oven. Watch this and stir with a spoon until the flour is nicely browned all through. When it becomes cold, put it into preserve jars and cover closely. This is splendid for thickening gravies and sauces.

For Inflammation of the Eyes.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

BABY LIFE AMONG THE INDIANS.

Given a reasonable chance for life, the Indian child is as happy, hopeful, ambitious, and playful as is the white child born under much happier circumstances. He is, too, quite as imitative, and, like his white cousin, he apes the ways and manners of his elders and mimics their occupations in his play. The infant Indian possesses rather more dignity than the ordinary white child. This is chiefly owing to the care he receives rather than to inherited sedateness. In his infancy he is strapped to a board or securely packed in an elongated basket woven for that purpose where he can neither kick nor squirm. He cries less than his white cousins, because he early learns that it is an unprofitable occupation. The Indian mother is very accommodating. If her infant wishes to cry she lets him do so. She does not, like the white mother, rush to the child when it begins to howl and try to pacify him. She lets him howl till he tires of it and ceases of his own accord. It is because crying brings them attention that most children cry. The young Indian does not get the attention, so he soon cuts out crying entirely. With crying, kicking, and squirming eliminated, there is really nothing left for him but to remain calm and look dignified. This is what he does as a rule.

Mrs. Nagget—"You don't love me as much as you used to." Mr. Nagget—"Think so?" Mrs. Nagget—"No; you used to say I was worth my weight in gold, and——" Mr. Nagget—"Well, you're not so stout as you used to be, you know."

UNIQUE.

"I married you, my dear, because you were different from other women."

"Flatterer! In what way was I different?"

"You said 'yes' when I proposed."

Cholera and all summer complaints are so quick in their action that the cold hand of death is upon the victims before they are aware that danger is near. If attacked do not delay in getting the proper medicine. Try a dose of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial, and you will get immediate relief. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to effect a cure.

Mrs. M'Duff—"This paper says that mice are attracted by music; but I don't believe it." M'Duff—"Why not?" Mrs. M'Duff—"Because I never see any mice around when I play the piano." M'Duff—"Well, that's no reason for doubting the paper's statement."

WE ARE ALL FAMILIAR with the deep, hoarse bark, grimly called "a grave-yard cough." Take Allen's Lung Balsam, a remedy for pulmonary trouble, highly recommended even in the earlier stages of Consumption.

SPECIALISTS' SMALL HEADS.

Brains of great men vary very much. It is found that men of encyclopaedic mind have large and heavy brains—Gladstone had to wear a very big hat—with an enormous bed of grey matter and numerous convolutions; on the other hand, men whose genius is concentrated upon one line of thought are of small brain, and, consequently have small heads. Newton, Byron, and Cromwell were in this class.

The Signs of Heart Trouble

You can Surely Secure Heart Health and Strength through Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

Heart weakness which can be dealt with at all is nerve weakness. Just as your hand trembles when its nerves are weak, when your heart nerves are weak your heart flutters and palpitates. Other signs are shortness of breath after slight exercise; fainting spells; pain or tenderness about the heart caused by irregular heart action; choking sensation as if the heart was in the throat; uneasy sensation in the chest, showing that the heart isn't working right; pain when you lie on one side—usually the left side, but frequently the right, painful and difficult breathing; smothered feeling. There is absolutely only one way to treat a weak heart. That is to bring back natural and permanent strength to its nerves. Can you imagine how anything else can be done? Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring back the strength to the heart nerves always. There is nothing in this remedy to stimulate; nothing that leads to reaction. The strength that it gives is natural and permanent. It is just the same strength as Nature gives to those who are well. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (Tablets or Liquid) creates strength which extends over the whole inside nerve system—it overcomes the cause of the trouble as well as the result. Sold by

EMPIRE ! EMPIRE ! EMPIRE !

The Empire Cream Separator outwears other Separators, lasts longer and requires fewer repairs, because—It's simpler in construction and—It is more carefully built. That has been the Experience of thousands and thousands of farmers who have used the Empire. Its easy to see why. Being so much simpler in construction it has fewer parts to get out of order. The bowl being so much lighter and there being so much less mechanism, there naturally is lessfriction and wear. It will pay you to consider these things.

Gentlemen:—I am using one of your EMPIRE Separators and am pleased to be able to recommend to all who intend to buy machines.

I can truly say that I have tried several methods of handling milk, and can recommend a separator to be far inadvance of all other moethds.

I can also say that I have tried several other makes of separators and prefer the EMPIRE to any of the others on account of it being easily cleaned, a close skimmer, and the lightest to operate. I am

OTTAWA MAN'S TRAGIC DEATH.

W. E. Stewart Drowned at Brockville—Missing Since Oct. 6.

Brockville, October 6—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of W. E. Stewart, an Ottawa man, has been cleared up by the finding of his body in the St. Lawrence at an early hour this morning. He left Ottawa on Saturday, October 6, with two men named Holman and Davis, to attend the Cornwall-Capital match at Cornwall. Missing their train for home in the evening, they came into Brockville, reaching here about midnight. Holman, was anxious to see a relative, a local man, who was on duty in No. 2 firehall. He went upstairs, leaving Stewart and Davis on the street in front of the fire-hall. When Holman and his acquaintance came down they found Davis, but Stewart was missing. A search failed to reveal his whereabouts. This morning two men found his body floating in the river, close to Dowie and company's brewery, about two blocks from No. 2 fire hall. It is supposed that on separating from his chums, Stewart walked off the dock in the darkness. The right side of the head and face was bruised, giving an appearance of an injury to the head which is thought to have been caused by a fall.

Stewart had no money and his watch indicated that it had stopped more than an hour after he had been at the fire hall. Relatives at Ottawa have been notified and the coroner opened an inquest, which has been adjourned. The deceased was identified by his name written on a piece of cloth on the lining of his coat.

Champion of Temperance.

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 12.—Richard Arnold, a direct descendant of Benedict Arnold, died yesterday at his home in Addison. He was one of the oldest residents of the district and spent his whole life in the Townships of Kitley and Elizabethtown. He wasindefatigable in his advocacy of temperance principles, and took an active part in securing the passage in these united counties of the Scott Act, just a little more than twenty years ago. His efforts towarts its enforcement drew upon him personally such bitter hostility that an attempt was made to blow up with dynamite the residence owned and occupied by him in Farmersville. He leaves a widow and five children.

Select Your Medicine With Care.

In debility and weakness medicine should be mild and far reaching. Many pills and purgatives are too harsh and drastic instead of curative. Excessive action is always followed by depression, and knowing this, Dr. Hamilton devised his pills of Mandrake and Butternut, so as to mildly increase liver and kidney activity, flush out the elementary canal, tone and regulate the bowels. Thus do Dr. Hamilton's Pills eliminate poisons from the body, restore clearness to the skin, bring strength and that sweet restorer of health, sleep. ### In Honor of Warden Cass.

The members of the Counties' Council, gave a dinner in honor of the warden, Mr. J. F. Cass, at the Hotel Duquette, on Wednesday of last week. Besides the members of the council, a number of prominent citizens of Cornwall were present, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The chair was occupied by Mr. E. O'Callaghan, and the vice-chair by Mr. James L. Groves. An excellent repast was served, and many toasts and happy speeches followed. After the health of His Majesty had been drunk, the chairman proposed "Our Guest," paying many compliments to the worthy warden, which were heartly endorsed by the company, who sang with great heartiness "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Cass made a very happy acknowledgment of the toast. The other toasts were: "The Judiciary," proposed by Mr. W. G. Smyth and responded to by Mr. G. F. Henderson, Drainage Referee for Eastern Ontario, and His Honor, Judge O'Reilly; "Our Municipal Institutions," proposed by Mr. R. A. Pringle, M. P., responded to by ex-Wardens A. D McRae, J. L. Groves, D. McDonald and M. J. Casselman, Mr. James Collison, Mayor Cavanagh and Couns, Fraid and Munro, of Cornwall; "Educational Institutions," responded to by Messrs. S. J. Keys, principal of the Cornwall Model School, and H. B. Fetterly, of the Cornwall High School staff, and D. Monroe, H. S. Trustee and Secretary of the Public School Board; "Banking Institutions," by Mr. Geo. F. Ellis, manager of the Sterling Bank; "The Ladies," by Capt. Hugh Cameron, Messrs. John D. McInnis, John M. Christie, and Dr. Steacy; "The Press," by the editor of the Standard; "Our Host and Hostess," by Mr. Duquette. Judge O'Reilly proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was passed with applause. The proceedings were brought to a close with "God Save the King," and "Auld Lang Syne."

The new Pure Food and Drug law will mark it on the label of every cough cure containing opium, chforolorm, or any other stupifying or poisonous drug. But it passes Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure as made for 20 years, entirely free. Dr. Shoop all along has bitterly opposed the use of all opiates or narcotics. Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is absolutely safe even for the youngest babe—and it cures, it does not simply suppress. Get a safe and reliable Cough Cure by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's, Let the law be your protection. We cheerfully recommend and sell it. Walter G. Bolster.

Banquet to Mr. Leitch, K. C.

A committee composed of the members of the legal profession and several prominent citizens of Cornwall, met in the office of Messrs. Maclennan, Cline and Maclennan, Thursday night and completed arrangements for a banquet in honor of Mr. James Leitch, K. C., recently appointed chairman of the Ontario Railway Commission, to be held at the Hotel Duquette, Cornwall, on the evening of October 25th. The Hon. J. P. Whitney is to be there on the 24th to take part in the formal opening of the High School, which was recently enlarged, and the next day has been selected for the banquet to Mr. Leitch, in order that the premier may be present.

CURED HER BOY OF PNEUMONIA

Newmarket Mother is loud in her Praises of the Great Consumption Preventative

"My son Laurence was taken down with Pneumonia," says Mrs. A. O. Fisher, of Newmarket, Ont. "Two doctors attended him. He lay for three months almost like a dead child. His lungs became so swollen, his heart was pressed over to the right side. Altogether I think we paid $140 to the doctors, and all the time he was getting worse. Then we commenced the Dr. Slocum treatment. The effect was wonderful. We saw a difference in two days. Our boy was soon strong and well."

Here is a positive proof that Psychine will cure Pneumonia. But why wait till Pneumonia comes. It always starts with a Cold. Cure the Cold and the Cold will never develop into Pneumonia, nor the Pneumonia into Consumption. The one sure way to clear out Cold, root and branch, and to build up the body so that the Cold won't come back is to use
