LXXXV, NO. 17. MORRISBURG, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 25th, 1947. $2.00 PER YEAR; SINGLE COPIES 5c

Mrs. A. F. Foster New President of Women's Institute

The Women's Institute met Thursday night for their annual meeting, with about fifty members present. After roll call and payment of dues, the Treasurer reported receipts for 1946 totalled $639.85, and expenses $538.92, with a total membership of 108. All conveners gave excellent reports on their year's work, showing a very successful year.

The president, Mrs. Kinkaid, on leaving the chair said in a few well chosen words how much she had enjoyed being president for the past 5 years, and had always felt that it was a great honour to be president of such a loyal group of women, and thanked all for the co-operation they had given to her.

A special mention was made of the secretary, Miss Marion Coligan, how she had helped so willingly in every way in the work in the Institute and asked all members to give the same support to the new president. Mrs. Kinkaid was then presented with a table lamp by Miss Coligan, while a suitable address was read by Mrs. Leavens. Mrs. Kinkaid expressed her thanks to the members.

Mrs. J. C. Casselman presided for the election of officers, the report of the slate of officers being presented by Mrs. Mac Robertson of the nominating committee, and the following officers being elected: president, Mrs A. F. Foster; 1st vice pres., Mrs. Hubert Casselman; 2nd vice president, Mrs. C. R. Hummell; 3rd vice pres., Mrs. W. S. L. Merrill; sec'y-treas., Miss Marion Coligan; asst. treas., Mrs. E. Leavens; press reporter, Mrs. Sam Casselman; pianist, Mrs. Hugh Shannette, Mrs. Earl Crober; auditors, Mrs. Albert Utman, Mrs. Geo. Clark; district director, Mrs. Lorne Kinkaid; directors, Mrs. Mac Robertson, Mrs. Fred Broder and Mrs. James Mallen.

Mrs. Casselman then welcomed the new President to the chair. Mrs. Foster very graciously thanked the members for electing her as president, and after a short discussion, the Institute decided to hold a Mother's Day Tea and Food Sale in the Agricultural Rooms on May 10th.

The three directors, Mrs. Earl Crober and Mrs. Hubert Casselman were nominated to attend the District Annual to be held at Williamsburg on May 15th. Mrs. Kinkaid thanked the nominating committee for their work and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, after which the refreshment committee served delicious sandwiches and cakes.

Daylight Saving Time Begins on Sunday

On Sunday, along with other district towns and cities, Morrisburg will go on daylight saving time, beginning immediately after midnight on Saturday. Last year there was some confusion as to whether the fast time was to be observed on Sunday or not

Church goers are advised that the services in all local churches this Sunday will be on D.S.T.

IN MEMORY OF MY DOG
(Contributed)

When I recall his eyes
So soft and brown,
Asking—one ear erect
The other down—
What would my pleasure be?
A romp? A walk?
Eyes that could read my thoughts;
Eyes that could talk;
When I recall th times
I'd face defeat,
Knowing, he'd come and sit
Close to my feet,
Not knowing why or where
My sorrow came;
Knowing, when I was sad,
He was the same;
Sharing my tears, my joy,
There at my side,
Giving his all, his love,
Until he died;
Tongue warm and wet, cold nose
That kissed my hand
You who have loved a dog
Will understand
How, when he went, I wished
The world would end.
I'd lost God's greatest gift:
A faithful friend.

Levere-McIntosh

A very pretty spring wedding was solemnized at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 19th at the Williamsburg United Church Manse, when Muriel Ruth, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant McIntosh became the bride of Lyall Shaver Levere, son of Mrs. Bella Levere and the late Mr. Archie Levere of Mountain. Rev. Gerald Fee officiated.

The young bride was prettily attired in a medium blue crepe dress with long peplum in front and gathered in small pleats at the shoulder. She wore a light blue flowered hat, black accessories and a corsage of Bettertime roses.

Mrs. George McIntosh was her sister's attendant wearing a becoming gown of deep rose, a corsage of talisman roses and matching accessories.

The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Cecil Levere.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A buffet luncheon was served to about 25 guests.

Later the young couple left by motor amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Toronto and other Western points.

For travelling the bride chose a pale blue dressmaker suit with black accessories. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Vancamp.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

There is an oldish lady in town whose birthday I try to remember. It falls on April 10. Before that day came around this year, instead of sending a card, I took her a bunch of daffodils and narcissi, which I had picked from our own garden. This year—what a difference! With the first green shoots only now just about a couple of inches above the ground it will be sometime yet before we can pick a bouquet of spring flowers. "But the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la—have nothing to do with the case"—it is clearly a matter for the weatherman.

* * *

After all, it is not only the flowers that are backward. It was actually April 11 before we heard the swamp frogs singing—and according to the old saying, the frogs must be shut up three times before we can really look for spring. But it will get here—you'll see—that is if we wait long enough. The robins think so anyway. There are two of them making a nest somewhere near the house—I am not quite sure where yet — but every time I look out I see one and sometimes two cheery little redbreasts hopping around or calling back and forth to each other from adjacent tree tops. Yes, the birds and the beasts are surely getting their own variety of spring fever. One day last week as I set out for town three blue heron flew up from the creek near the road. I watched them as they winged their way over towards the bush and then, to my surprise, one of them landed while the other two half circled and flew on towards town. I wondered why they parted company. Could it be that one of them was a hen-bird and was being escorted to a place of safety by her two gentlemen friends or was the one just a young bird and not considered old enough for distant hunting grounds. Again it may have been she had a few chores to do at home and went back to get on with them. One thing I did discover — watching herons isn't exactly a good policy when one is driving and the road is full of bumps and pot-holes. I dropped into one hole so hard it was a wonder the springs survived.

* * *

And here is yet another sign of spring. It is the time of annual meetings. Last week was our Women's Institute Annual. Oh blessed event — how we look forward to it! Sounds rather as if I were referring to an expected birth in the neighbourhood, doesn't it? Maybe I am not too far out at that—certainly both can sometimes be described as painful long drawn out affairs! However, from now on it is our annual meeting to which I am referring. For some unknown reason I was put in as chairman for the election of officers. "Good grief," I thought to myself, "how am I going to make these women say 'yes'!" You know how it is—someone says "Oh no, I couldn't possibly do that!"—and then that negative attitude spreads like a prairie fire, and, like a prairie fire there is nothing left in its wake. However, on this occasion, except for a few bad moments at the beginning we got along all rght. One officer told me afterwards that I just rail-roaded the ladies into their jobs. Which of course was just a lot of nonsense—they were just good sports, that was all. After all, you can't railroad a woman into doing anything if she isn't so inclined. Of course the women eventually turned the tables on me so that I ended up with a convenorship myself—which the W.I. may yet live to regret. What do you think, Mrs. H.?

* * *

At this point I paused to go down for the mail—and to look for more signs of spring. I found our daily paper, a magazine and a receipted account . That was all—no fan mail this morning, much to my disappointment. I like my fan mail. By the way, "M. J. H.," thanks very much for the papers. It was nice of you to send them and I was also glad to get your letter. "Mrs. N. P.," you may be interested to know that I received a letter from a friend of mine last week whom I have always encouraged to write and now is meeting with some success. In fact one magazine to which she sent a short story suggested that she try her hand at writing a book. So that is just what she is doing. "W. G.", please don't think I have forgotten to answer your letter or that it in any way offended me The fact is it contained so much food for thought I wanted to take my time in answering it—and I still look forward to that pleasure.

By the way I didn't find any more signs of spring on my way for the mail—in fact when I got back to the house my first thought was to put another chunk of wood on the furnace.

TABLE TALKS

. . . The Lunch Box . . .

The spotlight has been turned on the school lunch box. Too often it has been found unattractive, unappetizing, and above all to be lacking in those foods, recommended by Canada's Food rules which are necessary to build healthy, virile bodies.

To overcome these deficiencies, many communities have inaugurated school lunch projects, with great success. The homemaker has learned the necessity of packing lunches, which are good to look at, good to eat and "good for her child". Through this medium, the child has also acquired proper eating habits.

To pack really good lunches day after day is a big task for the homemaker. It requires plenty of planning, particularly at this time of the year to give that needed variety. The home economists, Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have a few suggestions though which will simplify your work.

* * *

Plan a lunch box preparation centre in your kitchen. Store all canned and staple foods, also equipment required at this point.

Plan lunches for the next day when planning and preparing the day's meals. This makes possible the preparation of lunch foods while cooking other meals.

Sandwich fillings should be mixed the night before and stored in a cool place. Several fillings may be made from one base—such as with a cheese base vary the flavour with relishes, jellies or hard-cooked eggs.

Use fillings that will not soak the bread and do not allow them to run over the edge.

A variety of breads or quick breads add interest to the lunch box.

Wrap in waxed paper all foods not packed in covered containers.

Desserts such as baked custard and fruit gelatine may be packed in the custard cup in which they are baked or molded.

Put salads, creamed or scalloped dishes in a screw top jar.

To give added interest and variety slip in a few tid bits from time to time—such as candies, nuts, raisins, dates, or a wedge of cheese.

Be sure to serve raw, either a fruit or vegetable each day to provide something fresh and crisp.

Mock Chicken Spread

1 cup coarsely ground cooked pork or veal
½ cup chopped or shredded raw carrotts
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Yield: 1¾ cups.

Baked Bean Salad

2 cups baked beans
½ cup diced cooked beets
2 stalks celery, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle
1 tablespoon catsup
Boiled salad dressing to moisten

Mix lightly together and serve well chilled in lettuce cups. Serves five to six.

Sour Milk Gingerbread

½ cup mild-flavored fat
2 eggs
2/3 cup sugar
½ cup molasses
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 ¼ cups sifted pastry flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk

Cream fat until fluffy; gradually cream in sugar. Add beaten eggs and molasses and beat well. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add alternately with sour milk, combining lightly. Bake in moderately slow oven, 325 deg. F. 50 to 55 minutes. Makes gingerbread 8 x 8 x 2½ inches.

School Days

Junior came home from school after the third day thoroughly disgusted and declared that he wouldn't go back. Mother, troubled, questioned him about the cause of his displeasure.

"Well," declared he, "I don't know how to read and write and they won't let me talk, so what's the use in going?"

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By BARRY MURKAR

I think it was George Bernard Shaw who said that a woman's tears are the Salt of the Earth. How true, how true. He might have added that when woman pulls the act of the flushed eyeballs, it sends most men, even the tough ones scurrying under the veranada. And this little introduction takes us into another story.

"What are you doing tomorrow night?" asked Susie over the phone.

"Going fishing."

"Can I come?" asked the voice at the other end.

"No, you'll fall in and anyway, women are only in the way."

The sound of soft sobbing, trickled over the line. I weakened fast.

"Do you really want to go?"

"Yes, Barry, and I won't be in the way, honest. I'll bring some sandwiches and some cokes."

"Okay, I'll pick you up at seven."

* * *

It was getting dark the next evening as we started down through the bush, following a small stream. Susie carried the lunch and I played the flashlight on the water. It was quiet and long lines of moonlight played through the openings in the branches over our heads. Suddenly I jabbed into the water. There was a splash.

"Missed him," I groaned. We moved along a little farther. Susie walked behind, not saying a word.

An hour later we had seven fish in the basket.

"Gosh I'm hungry," said Susie. "let's stop and have lunch."

"Just wait until we get up a little farther and then we'll quit," I replied.

"What's that?" asked Susie. pointing to a tiny light, playing back and forth through the trees up ahead.

"Yipe'," I gulped. "Game wardens, let's make dust." We scrambled along the edge of the stream. "Don't fall in now, whatever you do," I called over my shoulder.

* * *

We fell over logs and crawled through underbrush. There was a steep bank on our left and the stream on our right.

"There's a log up here somewhere," I whispered, "we can cross there and cut through the bush on the other side of them."

The light was coming closer and the voices of two men carried through the cool night air.

"Here it is, you cross over first. Give me the light and I'll shine it on the log."

Susie stepped gingerly across not making a sound. When she reached the other side I tossed the light across. Grabbing our equipment, I stepped out on the log.

"Hey you, wait a minute," roared a deep voice from behind me.

"Jeepers," I yelled, slipped and fell into five feet of ice cold water. My heavy boots pulled me completely under for a moment. I reached up through the water and felt a hand. It pulled and I came with it. Opening my eyes, I looked into the face of a man wearing a hat with a badge that plainly said —Game Warden.

"This way you dope," shrieked Susie. I turned and lunged back across the stream, stumbled up the bank and we headed through the bush as hard as we could go. A crashing of broken twigs and underbrush followed us a short distance and was lost.

Up at the far end of the bush we fell on the ground, panting and exhausted. Soon my teeth were chattering.

"I'll get a fire going," offered Susie and try to get you warmed up. In a few moments, my clothes we're steaming from the heat and Susie was stuffing warm sandwiches in my mouth. We trudged home, tired, without our equipment and our seven fish.

To make the night complete, pop had gone off to bed and locked the door. As Susie turned and headed for her house, she called out: "I don't think I'll take you fishing again. You get in the way and you fall in."

"Huh," I grunted, "some people think they're mighty smart."

"What happened to you?" asked pop as he opened the door, letting the light fall on a drowned rat. As if he didn't know.

"Fishing, bah! Women, bah! Game Wardens, bah." I growled and headed for bed without answering him.

Britons Must Stay at Home

About a million British people would like to take a sea voyage, but they won't be able to for an indefinite period, writes J. F. A. Frost in the London Daily Telegraph. The reason: ships requisitioned by the Government during the war haven't been all turned back to owners; those that have been returned aren't ready for service yet or are being held up by fuel shortages. Britons will stay home.

An editorial approves the order allowing British and American firms now to import German goods. It says such a lifting of restrictions is good because any increase in German exports, which will help to pay for imports of goods, will reduce the burden on the British taxpayer.

Carrier Pigeons Replace Telephone

Few men are less concerned about a telephone strike than Howard Ackerman, a mechanic, because: (1) He uses carrier pigeons to communicate with his wife and (2) he doesn't have a telephone anyway.

Mr. Ackerman frequently takes to his work at the Todd Shipyards in Brooklyn, N.Y., a few of the 20 pigeons he keeps in the backyard of his Queens home. They can make the six-mile flight home in 10 minutes, with any messages Mr. Ackerman might wish to send.

"I can tell my wife, Mabel, when I'll be home, what to have for supper—things like that," Mr. Ackerman told a reporter.

The mechanic likes to take birds along on trips out of town, too.

Says Rheumatic Pain Runs in her Family

But Safeguards Health With Kruschen

Many people seem to think, because a complaint runs in the family, that there is little they can do about it. On the contrary, all the more reason for taking steps to avoid it. Especially if that complaint is rheumatic pain. Read how one woman keeps free from it:—

"Rheumatic pain runs in my family. My father suffered very badly with it. I have been taking Kruschen Salts, off and on, for about seven years, a little morning dose, in my first cup of tea. Kruschen is a great help in keeping rheumatic pain out of my shoulders. My general health is very good. I am 57 and can do a day's work with anyone. I would not be without Kruschen."—(Mrs.) A.B.S.

The whole secret of Kruschen is in its action upon the organs of elimination. Kruschen helps these organs to remove from the body the acid deposits which give rise to rheumatic pain. So try the morning dose of Kruschen for the next month or so. For rheumatic pain, take half to one teaspoonful in hot water first thing in the morning. Two sizes: 25c and 75c at your drug store.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER XIII: McCale goes to Vallaincourt's apartment to search it. There he encounters Shari Lynn. He tells her that Vallaincourt has been shot.

CHAPTER XIV

"You followed him?"

She hesitated a moment, a look of doubt coming over her face, as if she were not sure of saying the right thing. That pause made a lot of difference in McCale's calculations.

"He was a long way ahead of me. There was another dame coming up over the Hill Road that meets the path he was on at the gate by the Bigelow house."

"You're sure of that, Miss Lynn? Remember, you may be making a dangerous accusation."

Rage flared up in her. She jumped up.

"Dangerous accusation," she screamed. "I should say it was. She killed him — that little blue-blood. Killed him. I tell you I saw her. He's dead. Dead!"

He crossed to her quickly, shaking her by the shoulders.

"Take it easy. You're in a spot yourself. Whoever it was that met Vallaincourt at that gate had on a green suit or dress."

Angrily she brushed his hands from her arms, faced him.

"I know that she had on a green suit. I saw it. But I was a long way off, I tell you. You're not getting me for this just because I'm wearing this green thing. I wouldn't have killed Curt. God, I loved him. I loved him."

* * *

McCale left Shari Lynn slumped on the couch. He knew it was useless to talk to her any more. She wouldn't be of any help, so he left the apartment.

It was nine-fifteen when the buzzer in McCale's outer office announced a late caller. Rocky Bjorkland stirred his huge bulk from the chair by the sputtering fire. He cocked a quizzical eyebrow at McCale.

"The clammy hand of my psychic control tells me that is the Law," he grunted.

"Our friend, the lieutenant, no doubt," McCale said, reaching automatically into a cabinet for a bottle of Scotch and soda siphon which were always part and parcel of every visit by Barton Donlevy.

"How are you, Bart?" said McCale to the man who towered in the doorway.

"Ready to take you over the hurdles for sneaking out on me this afternoon." Donlevy's smile belied his growl.

Donlevy threw his hat and coat on a nearby chest, and settled himself comfortably in a big red leather chair facing his host.

"I'm not really sore," he began. "I only wondered why you took a powder when you and Adelaide Bigelow were practically the only eye witnesses to this ghastly business. It dawned on me very soon when I found no keys on the corpse that you'd gone to Vallaincourt's apartment to steal a march on me. Was that nice?" He raised an eyebrow facetiously.

"Not nice, but necessary from my point of view. I've got second look before—after your squad has fine-toothed a place — and there's never been a hairpin left for us fellows."

"What exactly did you find from being first this time?"

"Nary a clue. The place was as clean as a bone. Beyond getting a good idea of what the lad who lived there was like, there wasn't a false whisker for my trouble."

"The setup he had was quite revealing, wasn't it? Pure Hollywood—half DeMille, half Dorothy Draper. Very Suggestive. Is that all you have found?"

"I found a woman."

McCale watched the quick interest flash across Donlevy's eyes before he controlled it, before he said casually, "I would call that a clue, Duke."

"Well?" he questioned.

"Shari Lynn, the chanteuse at present of the Latin Quarter and The Abbey."

"Umm—I've heard of her."

McCale went on, then, to tell of his encounter with the night club singer.

"You think, then," the lieutenant queried, "that there was an old affair between them? Something in your telling it makes me feel you are convinced that it was not too recent—something flaring up again after a long time."

McCale nodded. "I'm sure of it," he said. "I'm sure you'll find that they may even have been man and wife at one time—that they have never been out of touch with each other for long."

* * *

Donlevy digested this. "Then?"

"Oh sure. Lynn was back there after any letters of hers that Vallaincourt may have kept. I don't think there were any there, however. There wasn't even a stray phone number chalked on the bathroom wall."

"It was exactly as if the place had been cleaned of everything by the boy himself. Kind of disappointing, what?"

"There is the possibility of a safe deposit box at some bank."

"That's been checked. He had a small balance at a downtown bank, but no box of any kind."

McCale hunched himself over his glass for a minute, musing.

"It becomes very confusing, then. For he must have got rid of everything last night or today. Before"—he stared unwinkingly at the rim of his glass—"just before he went to his death."

* * *

Duke McCale paused in front of the big man, Donlevy. The gray-haired police inspector looked up at him and said, "I suppose in return for your information you want to be brought up to date."

"That's only fair," McCale smiled.

Donlevy had never once let him down in a matter of this kind, though he covered it always with an air of assumed ill grace.

"Here it is, then, for what it's worth," he said. "There was, in the Bigelow house at the time of the murder, besides Adelaide Bigelow and yourself, the cook, an upstairs maid, and the Butler, King. The cook was preparing dinner. The maid, Kitty Shane, was hanging around the kitchen. They're out, obviously. No motive, no opportunity. King was fixing a tray of hors d'oeuvres for the usual cocktail hour. He's out for the same reason. None of them saw or heard a thing until the prolonged ringing of the bell."

* * *

"About five minutes after the cruising car got there, I arrived. It was then about twenty minutes since Vallaincourt had been shot. Shortly after that, the family began to wander in and I questioned them in the order of their appearance. Sybil and Stephen, the son, came in together. She said she had walked from the church across the Gardens, stopping at Shackley's drugstore for cigarettes. She had chatted a few minutes with the clerk, whom she knew. She met Stephen as she came out of the store. He had been wandering along Charles street, just killing time, he said. Likes to walk in the rain—that sort of thing."

* * *

"There's a jangled lad for you," McCale waggled a finger. "Neurotic. Worried about his wife. Was probably out hunting her up, wherever she was."

"Sybil is no calm, strong pioneer woman either. Collapsed like a balloon at the news. You'd think Vallaincourt was her own chee-ild to hear her rave."

COSY AS MOTHER'S POUCH—ALMOST

"Chickie" eight-month-old kangaroo is a pretty lonely little fellow since he lost his mother and Bronx, N.Y., zoo attendants are doing their best to cheer him up. For their first step they placed him inside an old sweat shirt—with only the animal's head sticking out—making it feel as warm and soft as the mother's pouch (top-photo). Then, Jim Coder, the kangaroo's personal attendant, was assigned to give "Chickie" ample saucers of milk (lower photo). At last reports the youngster was coming around to a happy frame of mind again.

Spring Fever

Nature's own remedy is recommended by the medical profession for "Spring Fever." The tonic is simply compounded of lots of vegetables and fruits, plenty of water, and milk, adequate sleep and as much fresh air as one can get.

This, say the authorities, is much to be preferred to the old-fashioned Spring tonic of sulphur and molasses.

Cupboard Space Makes A Home!

Open the cupboard, Hubbard! That's what happened five or six years ago when a housing shortage began to grip Canada. And ever since then, people have cried out for more cupboards as they doubled up with the in-laws and strangers.

Manual training classes in Ontario Technical schools are devising new ways of making more cupboard space in the home as their contribution to the Home exhibits at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, it is reported. The students are concocting ideas for new-type cupboards and experimenting with ways of concealing storage space to provide more comfort and tidiness in cramped housing quarters.

Kate Aitken, in charge of Home exhibits, says that students from the manual training classes will be Johnny-on-the spot at the C.N.E., demonstrating their accomplishments. This means that amateur carpenters may talk over their individual storage problems with the students and pick up dozens of new ideas for their own homes.

No Excuse For Hunting Accidents

With one suggestion made by Ontario hunters to the fish and Game Committee of the Legislature, there is bound to be fairly general agreement, says the Windsor Star. From the Kawartha district comes a recommendation that anyone causing a fatal accident should suffer cancellations of his license for life.

If this seems to be a harsh penalty, consider the fact that there is not one of these mishaps in which negligence does not figure to a greater or less extent. There is simply no excuse for shooting a man in mistake for an animal, or for the unintentional discharge of a shotgun or rifle. Anyone guilty of such carelessness is not a fit person to carry arms in the woods.

The Glory and Decay of a Nation

1 Kings 3:5-9; 4:29-30, 34; 5:15-17; 11:6-8, 11.

Golden Text.—Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding — Proverbs 3:5.

The national glory and decay of Israel were associated with the glory and decay of one man—King Solomon, man of wisdom, temple builder, consolidator of the kingdom. At the height of his glory decay began to set in.

In almost every field in which strength and character count one will find innumerable instances where some man who died was really indispensable, and failure and decay ensued because no one arose to take his place.

* * *

The sort of strength and character that Solomon represented in his early career was indispensable to a strong and stable kingdom. The outward glory lasted while Solomon lived, but decay began when Israel departed from the principles of his early reign.

The way was already laid for the rebellion and division that quickly came in Israel following his death.

The story of the rise and fall of the Kingdom of Israel is instructive and full of guidance and warning for our own times.

The opening chapters of the First Book of Kings tell of bitter enmities and violent deaths perpetrated in feuds, rivalries, and hatreds. It would be a mistake to assume that feuds, rivalries, and hatreds are not found in the modern world.

* * *

In fact, we have been familiar with "purges" in some countries, but in democracies of the British and American type the reign of law and the function of law in maintaining the freedom of the individual have become well established. Rival leaders of groups and parties no longer resort to violence and the weapon of assassination.

If we can learn from ancient Israel, ancient Israel might have learned some things from us in our progress toward tolerance and freedom.

Youth Training

The wise approach to the problem of juvenile delinquency is based on the assumption that boys who get into trouble are boys who have nothing else to do. It is a wise parent who encourages his sons to put their hands to useful things, comments the Detroit News. He will go to some trouble to provide whatever they need to pursue the instinct of self-expression in the making of things. Countless men, so encouraged in youth, find that

If a "stitch in time can save nine" in mending, a physical check-up today can save one from real sickness later on, insist the doctors.

Everyone should have a physical check-up at least every six months.

SEE A SPECIALIST

The ancient oracle who declared that " a man is wise who admits that he knows nothing", is quoted by National Health Authorities at Ottawa in warning against self treatment.

Ignorance isn't weakness, it's wisdom, point out the doctors, and this applies particularly to such a highly specialized field as medicine. It is foolhardy for those without proper qualifications to attempt medical treatment. Yet, that is just what the people do when the neglect to obtain expert advice for ailments, and practise self-medication.

To Mark 60th Wedding Anniversary

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Saddlemire, near Williamsburg, will be the scene tomorrow (April 26) of a very happy event when the members of their family gather to celebrate with them the 60th anniversary of their marriage.

It was on April 26th, 1887 that Miss Minnie Casselman, daughter of the late William Casselman and his wife Sarah Ann Casselman, became the bride of Stanley Saddlemire, son of the late Amos Saddlemire and his wife, Lucy Deeks, all of Williamsburg Township.

The ceremony was performed by the late Rev. E. Bayne, minister of the Presbyterian Church, at the Presbyterian Manse in Morrisburg. Following their marriage the couple took up residence at the farm home where Mr. Saddlemire brought his bride sixty years ago and where they still reside.

During those years they have made an impressive and enduring contribution to the life of the community, their home always being the centre of social activities, and kind hospitality. Mr. and Mrs. Saddlemire have been, during their married life, devoted and faithful members of the Williamsburg United Church and in all branches of its work, they have always taken an active part.

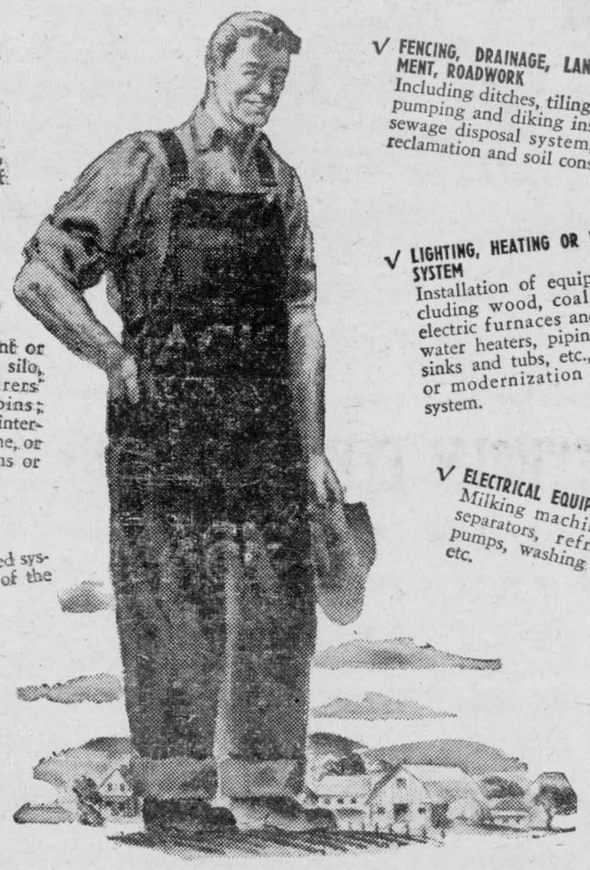

Although both have passed the 80 year mark in their ages, they are enjoying comparatively good health.

Their family consists of two sons and two daughters: Howard on the homestead; Dalton on the adjoining farm; Mrs. Frank Merkley of Williamsburg and Mrs. Gordon Render of Brockville. There are fourteen grandchildren and seven great grand children.

They have already been the recipients of many gifts and messages of congratulations and best wishes. The Leader joins with their many other friends in extending good wishes on this important date to Mr. and Mrs. Saddlemre and in wishing also for them many more years of health, happiness, and an enjoyment of the cherished place they occupy in the life of their community.

AN ODD MANIA, BUT...

Breaking windows is an odd and expensive mania that most sane people manage to control. Breaking insulators on Hydro poles, or shattering street lights, is an even more costly pastime that an astonishing number of boys and men fail to curb.

An insulator or street light sits up so invitingly . . . and, to the uninformed seems such a small and insignificant piece of equipment that it presents a tempting target. Few people would break insulators or street lights if they understood the damage that can result.

A broken insulator can cause a short circuit and cut the service on a line. The homes, the factory, the hospital or the stores depending on that line are cut off from power until the insulator can be replaced. Housewives are inconvenienced. Factories can be stopped with possible pay losses to the workers. Human lives can be endangered, especially in a hospital.

Broken street lights imperil both foot and vehicle traffic, and create an invitation to crime.

To repair damaged insulators and replace broken street lights requires men, trucks and possibly miles of travel. It all adds up to a big price for a target . . . and Hydro consumers pay that price.

Please use your influence at every opportunity to prevent the deliberate or careless destruction of public property.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

The Last Frontier Vanishes...

TODAY mining and industry push forward to the Arctic Circle, as Canadian initiative develops the vast resources—the minerals, waterpower and oil—of the one-time wilderness.

New war-time transportation facilities ended the isolation of millions of square miles of the Northwest. The airplane brought the farthest corners of our country—inaccessible for centuries—within a day or two of the cities of the continent.

That northward expansion is typical of modern developments which are stimulating all Canadian activities today, creating new and greater opportunities in every field of endeavour.

Until the present century the story of Canada's North was an epic of exploration—from the days of Elizabethan seamen seeking the Northwest Passage and the old fur traders pushing into the wilderness, down to the Arctic journeys of Stefansson and Bernier and the Mountie patrols of our own time.

Greatest single factor in Northland development was the airplane. It made possible the most significant mining discovery in the North—when, at Great Bear Lake in 1930, pitchblende was found—the continent's only source of uranium, vital ingredient of the atom bomb.

The war brought new activity to the North, and the creation of great new lines of transportation and communication—the Alaska Highway and the famous Air Staging Routes—with landing fields and radio and meteorological stations established throughout the territory.

DAVID HENDERSON started his own business in Montreal when only 17, and displayed an energy and integrity in surmounting early difficulties which won him the friendship and support of his suppliers and bank manager. After achieving success as a jobber he commenced the manufacture of felt hat shapes in an old windowless building. Today his Beacon Products Inc., in its new up-to-date Valleyfield plant, is considered one of the most successful plants of its kind in Canada.

MR. HENDERSON says: "No other country offers such opportunities as does Canada to young men who have ideas and the determination to back them up. Here, if their plans are sound and they know their business, they will find plenty of help and encouragement and every assurance of success."

TO PROMOTE A FULLER REALIZATION
BY CANADIANS OF CANADA'S PRESENT GREATNESS

Public Schools BETRAYED by a "Weak and Vulnerable" Minister of Education

In our last ad. in this publication, we showed how the "Cornish Brief" demonstrated that the Drew Government's Appeasement policy is the worst "sell-out" to the R. C. Separate Schools that the Province of Ontario has ever experienced. The present Government has a "weak and vulnerable" Minister of Education.

A VERY DANGEROUS SITUATION

Dealing with the Appeasement Policies of past and present Ministers the Cornish Brief states, "The final decision is left with the Minister of Education. Unfortunately, this is a very dangerous situation, as almost all the infringements on the rights of the Public School have been due either to pressure of the Roman Catholic Church on an easily vulnerable Minister of Education, or what amounts to the same thing, the desire of a weak Minister of Education to curry favour with the Hierarchy when his party was getting in a "tight spot".

R. C. PRESSURE ON WEAKLING MINISTER

The Cornish Brief goes on to point out that suggested improvements are only temporary at best, with a weakling as Minister, because "The political pressure which has caused illegal practices to be winked at, which has caused school legislation to be passed which five-sixths of the population are opposed to—we say, that pressure shall begin all over again and continue to act slowly and steadily, restoring and intensifying the unsatisfactory conditions we have described."

MR. DREW KNOWS LAWS AND REGULATIONS ARE BEING BROKEN

"Such practices as nuns teaching in Public, Continuation and High Schools, the exhibitions of Catholic emblems on the walls of Public Schools, the use of Roman Catholic Prayers and studying Roman Catholic Catechism in Public Schools, the establishment of 'dummy' Roman Catholic Separate School Corporations without schools, the neglct to use the English language as the language of instruction in schools for French-speaking pupils, etc., are well known to the Minister and the officials of the Department of Education. The most of the information regarding them has been obtained from Public Official documents. For the most part, the officials are not to blame for these conditions."

MR. DREW IS NOT ABOVE THE LAW

"The Minister of Education has no power to break a law or violate a Regulation. In fact one of his chief duties is to administrate them properly".

"The only reason why a Minister of Education will break a Statute or violate a Regulation is because of political pressure and the hope of obtaining political support. Very frequently he would wish to find a way out, but lacks the courage."

We Will Gladly Send You Plans of How to Help Combat the Betrayal of Ontario's Public Schools.

CANADA'S TEXTILE INDUSTRY is not generally regarded as being anything very exciting. It is true that in normal peace-time years textiles led all other industries in employment and wages paid. But that means we are just a part of regular daily living in Canada. It makes us about as exciting as a kitchen table.

DURING THE WAR, Canada's hundreds of textile plants turned out millions of yards of urgently-needed supplies. Today we are working hard to catch up with the heavy and growing civilian demands of the post-war. We provide thousands of jobs to Canadian citizens at new high wage levels. True, these factors do not seem exciting but it is nice to know that we have a place in Canada's way of living. A kitchen table may not be exciting but it is important to the household.

SPOTS OF SPORTS

By FRANK MANN HARRIS
("A Sixbit Critic")

In this space recently we quoted a gentleman who is getting rather tired of trying to sponsor small-town hockey, and who gave some of his views as to what ails amateur hockey in general. In this connection it is rather interesting to note a statement from Mr. George Panter, President of the Ontario Hockey Association, a body that is widely self-heralded as the greatest amateur hockey organization in the world—or maybe that should be the universe.

* * *

Out in Winnipeg for the junior playoffs, Mr. Panter was greatly shocked at the mere suggestion that the poor, hard-worked Toronto St. Mikes should travel all the way to Edmonton for one game of that series. Matter of fact, he seems shocked that the St. Mikes should have to travel from their own cosy fireside at all. "It only serves a minority interest," says Mr. Panter. "The teams and players all want to travel east and play in Maple Leaf Gardens. They benefit financially by such an arrangement.

* * *

The President of this great AMATEUR association went on to say that the participating clubs stand to lose something like 25 G's by having the junior finals in Western Canada this year. He seems to overlook completely the fact that those western fans, whose loyal support throughout the season kept those teams going, just possibly rate a break once in a while, and deserve a chance to see their favorites in playoff action without having to travel halfway across a continent. Maybe Mr. Panter, in his touching zeal for the welfare of the M.L. Gardens, has forgotten that ordinary citizens cannot pick off railway tickets as painlessly as do Presidents who travel on an expense account.

* * *

Just as eels become accustomed to skinning, sports writers are supposed to get hardened to seeing their predictions go haywire. But for once we were really glad to see one of our prognostications go wide of the target, when the Brooklyn Dodgers finally decided to give Jackie Robinson a chance at the big show. Whether or not he's able to stick up there may depend, in a large measure, on the sort of co-operation he gets from his teammates—as an unpopular or unwanted player can be made to 'look bad' in scores of ways almost impossible to detect wth the naked eye. But Robinson has loads of natural ability—enough, perhaps, to overcome the handicap of playing out of his proper position; and thousands of Canadian fans, who admired not only his hitting and fielding but also the way he conducted himself in general, are pulling hard for him to make it.

At the present time of writing it looks as though there is a real possibility of a Canadian horse—Canadian-owned, that is—winning the Kaintucky Dubby, suh! Which recalls the last time, in fact the only time, that such a thing happened before. That was in 1919, when Sir Barton, owned by J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, and one of the few maidens ever to turn the trick, popped down in front of eleven other starters, paying off at odds of 13 to 5. (What a marvellous memory? What a handy record book!)

Only 3.6 per cent. of the land in Norway is under cultivation; the rest is unproductive or forest.

New Alloy Used In Watchmaking

If you have bought an Elgin watch since Jan. 1 of this year, you have a mainspring which, it is claimed, will not rust, is non-magnetic and will run from 2 to 6 hours longer without winding than other watches.

This is due to a new alloy called "Elgiloy" developed after 12 years of research by the Elgin National Watch Company. Called "the most important development in watches since jewelled bearings were introduced 243 years ago," Elgiloy is expected to have applications in many other fields. Razor blades, stainless cutlery, gunsprings and electronic appliances may all be improved by the new alloy.—Financial Post.

Plastic Air Cushion

Air cushion of fused plastic comes in translucent or bright opaque colors; folds to pocket or purse size and can be inflated easily by mouth. Makers claim use for picnics, spectator sports, boats and cars and for invalids.

Morrisburg to pay $2.50 More for Coal

With the announcement of increased prices for coal effective Wednesday, April 16th the reasons for the increased prices were explained today by local dealers.

Ever since coal has been under price control the Government paid a subsidy on all imported anthracite, but as the controls have been removed the dealer will no long er get the $2.13 per ton paid by the Government, it was explained. During the past 4 or 5 years business costs, which have increased greatly, have been absorbed by the coal dealers, because under the price control system, no increases in the price of coal were allowed.

In announcing a local price increase of $2.50 per ton the Morrisburg dealers feel that the extra .37 increase per ton is very small in comparison with the increase in other merchandise.

IN MEMORIAM

CASSELMAN—In loving memory of a dear son, Donald Casselman, who passed away April 24, 1943.
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget
But time so far has only proved
How much we miss you yet.
God gave us strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.
