HENRY'S Shorthand School
Ottawa, Ont.

No School in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers, should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

T. B. Testing Abandoned In Chesterville District

All persons interested in the T.B. testing of cattle being laid aside in this district, for some time at least, will be pleased to hear that a delegation from the Live Stock Association waited on the member for Grenville-Dundas on Monday last and he assured them that no testing will be done in this district until the Government is asked for it, and even then there will have to be a large majority in favour of the test.—Com.

Chesterville Night in Ottawa

Chesterville hockey fans, more particularly the admirers of Johnny Sorrell, are likely to attend en masse the Ottawa-Detroit game in the Auditorium at the capital tonight, when, if plans do not miscarry, the home-town folks will present to the only Chesterville boy who has made good in the big league, a purse of other souvenir in token of appreciation of the success he has made in the fastest game in the world.

Morewood Women's Institute

The regular monthly meeting of the Morewood Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ward Bilow on Tuesday, November 11th. The meeting was opened with the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer. The minutes were read and adopted and the roll called to which twenty members and one visitor responded. A committee was appointed to arrange for a play. A letter was read by the secretary asking for a bale of clothing for children in the north country. Roll call for the next meeting is a question dawer. Mrs. B. Hutchinson favoured with a solo. Mrs. Sheppard and her mother, Mrs. E. Fetterly of Russell, gave a demonstration of paper flowers. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Bilow, being moved by Mrs. A. Carlyle and seconded by Mrs. J. Shaver, for the delicious lunch which was served. Next meeting at Mrs. J. W. Bogart's.

High School Commencement Best For Some Years

Last Friday night the annual High school commencement was held in the Music Hall when one of the best entertainment ever put on by the local school was presented to a capacity crowd which attended in spite of the heavy fog which covered the countryside making travelling extremely hazardous. Preceding the concert the High school orchestra entertained the gathering with popular selections.

Shortly after eight o'clock the chairman, Mr. E. B. Lynch, who was acting in substitution for Dr. D. C. Seymour, chairman of the Board, who was unable to attend through illness, gave a short address in which he reviewed the success of the school for the past year.

The first item of the programme was a drill by Form I pupils, six boys and six girls, which was well executed, showing careful training and faithful practice. It consisted of a number of exercises with tennis racquets and marching, with the boys and girls on opposite sides of a tennis net.

A new feature was provided when Rev. R. E. Newman presented tho diplomas to the graduating class who were gathered on the stage. Mr. Newman gave a very stirring address to the pupils, inspiring them to greater efforts to obtain fuller success in the calling they might choose as their life-work.

After two orchestra selections, Rev. Fr. Staley presented the athletic medals following a brief address in which he stressed the importance of sports on the school curriculum, saying a healthy body is necessary for the best achievement in studies. He congratulated the following students who won the championships of their respective classes:—Sr. Girls — Miss Madge Campderros; Sr. Boys—Jack McAvoy; Jr. Girls—Miss Beulah Olsen; Jr. Boys—Alfred Merkley.

A darky wedding, or rather a near wedding, entitled "Mandy Spoils de Weddin'," followed which brought a good number of laughs when. with all the guests assembled and the ceremony proceeding splendidly, the parson (Ronnie Lynch) asked Rastus (Bus Hutt) for the ring, but Mandy (Jean Fulton) already had it on her finger as she said she was taking no chances on her prospective mate losing it However, Rastus managed to slip the ring off her finger and then refused to give it up. This broke up the affair with Mandy emphatically declaring "No ring, no weddin'," as she was just marrying to get the ring. The happiest man of the gathering was the parson, who had demanded his pay in advance.

Mr. W. Hamilton presented the academic medals, which he has donated for the past five years, to the following students who stood the highest in their forms:—Form I—Betty Bolster; Form II—Clarence Cross; Form III—Irene Allen. As Elsie Hewitt had approximately as high a standing as Miss Allan. Mr. Hamilton presented her with a similar medal.

Selections were given by the orchestra, after which Rev. A. H. Sproule presented Miss Barbara Cameron with the medal donated by the school board for the pupil obtaining the highest marks in Form IV.

The first act of the play "William Gets a New Degree" followed. William (Jack McAvoy) is a very studious young man who has, as Bob (Allan Tate) says, nearly all the letters of the alphabet after his name. William, however, lacks one degree—the art of keeping company with the ladies. He obtains a number of books on the subject from the library and is trying to acquire the much wanted knowledge from them when his up-to-date cousin, Miss Ruth (Miss Audrey Beckstead), discovers him. She undertakes to teach him the art with the aid of Bob who, incidentally, is attempting his hardest to win the affections of Ruth. He has a rival, Wallace Thorne (Dick Merkley), who seems to want to make love to every girl he meets, including Ruth's Irish maid (Miss Sarah Atlas). Miss Ruth lives with her aunt, Miss Linda (Miss Hilda Short), who is courted by an absent-minded professor (Leon Marcellus) who provided many amusing moments. William proceeds very rapidly with his lessons, meets a young lady, Miss Christine (Miss Irene Hamilton), whom he woos speedily, and has their engagement announced before Bob has been able to start Ruth his way. Bob and the maid have a talk about Wallace Thorne and she decides to tell Miss Ruth about him trying to kiss her on two of his visits to see Miss Ruth. When Wallace and Ruth announce their engagement the maid makes her announcement and Mr. Thorne passes out of the picture. Miss Linda and the professor announce their engagement and then Miss Ruth announces that she and Bob are betrothed. This play was in three acts and was exceptionally well presented, the actors portraying their characters faithfully and it would hardly be fair to single out any one for special mention.

After the first act, Miss Theressa Droppo rendered a lengthy humorous monologue in an excellent manner, responding to an encore. After the last act the cast took a curtain, and the orchestra led the crowd in the National Anthem.

Barn Burned At Morewood On Monday Morning

Monday morning last fire, which was discovered in the barns of Mr. Howard Myers, near Morewood, caused their complete loss together with their contents. The Last Post was sounded by Elder Smirle.

Wreaths were placed on the monument by Mrs. James, Mrs. E. C. Fetterly, United Church Ladies' Aid Society, Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Society, High School, Public School, Women's Institute and Oddfellows.

Funeral of W. L. Lambkin Held in Ottawa

Noranda Northern News.—The funeral of W. L. Lambkin, who dropped dead in All Saints Anglican Church, Noranda, on Sunday morning, October 19th, took place in Ottawa on Thursday, October 23rd. He was laid to rest in the family plot at Beechwood cemetery following a private service which was conducted by the Rev. N. R. Burke, of St. John's Anglican church.

Mr. Lambkin was a former civil servant, being a member of the Senate staff for eighteen years. He served in the South African War and on his return was forced to retire through ill-health from office confinement, and seek out-of-doors employment. For a number of years he was very well known throughout many of the foothill cities of the Rockies, the Crow's Nest Pass towns and later prospected about Rouyn and Northern Ontario towns.

He was 59 years old and the youngest son of the late Sergt.-Major Thomas Lambkin, an Imperial Army officer.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Amelia MacMillan Lambkin, his daughter (of a former marriage) Irene Lambkin; a sister, Mrs. R. J. Ferguson, and a nephew, H. J. Lambkin, all of Ottawa.

Wild Goose Shot by Eskimo

A wild goose tagged and liberated in the fall of 1929 by Jack Miner, the famous Canadian naturalist of Kingsville, was shot on June 6th this year by an Eskimo named Kierlick about 20 miles northeast of Cape Dorset on the Hudson Strait. Advices regarding the shooting of the bird were only recently received by Mr. Miner in a letter from C. Russell, of the Hudson Bay Company at the Cape Dorset post. The letter, with bird tag enclosed, was posted on June 10, and came by way of Newfoundland.

Small Boy Is Hero

A large white rat, sunning him self in the middle of the sidewalk outside a candy store on Orillia's main street Friday, added confusion to the busy noon-hour rush. Young women screamed, old ladies clutched their skirts tightly, and gave the rodent a wide berth. Then the Pied Piper of Hamelin arrived in the form of a very small boy, who picked up the rat, put it in his pocket, and disappeared rapidly through a doorway.

News and Information For the Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Winter Fair Dates.

Nov. 19 to 27—Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, Toronto.

Dec. 1 to 5—Ottawa Winter Fair, Ottawa.

Dec. 8 to 11—Ontario Provincial Winter Fair, Guelph.

Royal Fair Opens.

This week marks the opening of the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, and everything points to the most interesting exhibition of agricultural produce and live stock in the fair's history, this in spite of conditions in many parts of Ontario which tended to retard a number of crops during the past season. Coming at this season of the year, representative farmers in large numbers from all parts of the province are expected to attend. The visit of the "Royal 500" party of farm boys and a similar party of farm girls will be a feature of the occasion. The fair continues from November 19th to 27th.

Should Clean Out Cistern.

During the warmer months of the year cistern water has a tendency to become foul, disagreeable and unhealthy. Various insects and the washings from roofs of houses, especially where birds are numerous, conspire to pollute cistern water. With the coming of the rainy season farmers will find it valuable to give the cistern a thorough cleansing in preparation for refilling with fall rains. Filters also should be taken apart or reconstructed, according to the type in use. The cistern should be closed in so that surface water, insects and small animals cannot get in. Purity of water in cisterns is a primary consideration.

Tribute to Women's Institutes.

"No money expended by the Province of Ontario is expended so wisely or does so mch work as the money expended on the Women's Institutes," declared Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, who was guest-speaker at the recent sixteenth annual convention. Paying tribute to the work done by the Institute, he expressed the belief that the $80,000 expended by the Government this year on the Women's Institutes would be increased. He added that he hoped some money would be spent on beautifying farm lands, emphasizing the important place taken by flowers, fruit trees and plain ordinary paint in making a farm into a home. He also expressed the wish that every rural home might enjoy the privilege of hydro. He saw no limit to the good work the Government might accomplish with the support of the Women's Institutes.

Winter Feed Situation.

There will be many barns without the usual supply of feed this coming winter. In the drought areas the cows are on full winter rations. The amount of feed that will be available for winter feeding is being reduced by just this much. One suggestion to meet the situation is that some herd culling will be in order. In most herds of ten or twelve cows there are two to four cows that are definitely known to be lower producers than their stable mates. If these were sold it would reduce the consumption of feed from 10 to 20 per cent. Another angle to the culling question is that the butcher would tend to reduce the surplus of dairy products that is exerting such a depressing effect on the market.

Weekly Crop Report.

Reports from various sections of Ontario indicate that field work is only fairly well advanced. Owing to the very dry weather in the east and rather heavy frosts in the west, ploughing has been retarded. Fall wheat is entering the winter in good condition, especially the fields that received sufficient moisture to develop good top. There is a continued demand for good stocker cattle, small pigs and sows, as farmers prefer to market their grain through live stock rather than put it on the market at present prices.

Improving Sheep in Dufferin.

The Dufferin county farmers are interested in sheep husbandry and recognize the value of purebred sires is evidenced by the fact that many have recently purchased purebred rams. On Nov. 4th, 19 registered ram lambs were distributed from Orangeville by Ralph C. Banbury, Dufferin agricultural representative. The rams were bought by the Federal and Provincial Live Stock Branches and sold at scrub lamb prices to breeders in the more important sheep producing counties. The difference between the cost and sale price is being made up by the Government. The majority of the lambs were of Oxford breed, but Shropshires, Leicesters, Hampshires, Lincolns, and Dorsets were represented. The buying of good quality breeding stock when prices are low is good buiness as the farmer will thus have a fine flock and be in a position to take full advantage when prices improve.

Clean Up the Hen House.

Every hen house should be cleaned before putting in the pullet crop. A good thorough cleaning consists of removing the litter and all poultry house fixtures, such as hoppers, drinking fountains and the like, then flushing the ceiling, walls, dropping boards and floor, scraping loose any dirt that may have a tendency to stick. After the house has been thoroughly cleaned it is ready for a coat of whitewash. This will improve the appearance of your hen house, make it much lighter for the birds and at the same time help to kill parasites and diseases germs. A common practice is to add a pint of disinfectant to a gallon of whitewash. Clean, comfortable quarters for the pullets go a long way toward increased production during the winter months.

Will Buy Poultry on Grade.

As a result of a conference of leading wholesale buyers and representatives of the Federal and Provincial government, an agreement has been reached on the part of the buyers to recognize Government grades.

The agreement marks one of the most important developments in the poultry industry in many years. Just what this announcement means to the farmers of Canada is indicated by the fact that through the simple process of crate-feeding and properly finishing poultry for market, from 50 to 75 cents in market value may be added to the individual bird. A minimum differential at 3c per pound premium for all grades in the milk-fed class over the corresponding grades in the class selected is guaranteed by the buyers, and supplementing this will be definite and substantial price differentials between grades within classes, the differentials increasing substantially with each decrease in grade.

A significant feature of the situation is that for the first time on a province-wide basis the premium which the consumer readily pays for quality in poultry, is passed along to the original producer.

Feeding experts tell us that it costs less to put the last pound on a mature market bird than it does to raise the bird to maturity. It costs from 7c to 8c per pound to raise the bird to maturity, and from 3c to 6c per pound to crate feed and finish.

It is further stated that the average range bird may be expected without finishing to grade "Selected B" while by being crate-fed and finished, not only is it possible to increase weight approximately one pound, but what is more importaant, to raise the market grade tot "Milk-fed B" or "Milk-fed A." At current prices this means an added value per bird of around 75c.

This whole situation means that a premium will be paid for the better quality bird, and that there will be very little market demand for small, thin, and poorly-finished birds. Therefore, it behooves the poultry-raisers to make a special effort this year to crate feed, properly finish and properly kill all birds for market.

Father Charles Fallon, P.M.I., Ottawa; the staffs of St. Mary's Cathedral and Notre Dame church, Ogdensburg, N.Y.; Rev. Father Smith, Jesuit College, Toronto; Rev. Father Connerty, Redemptorist College, Maitland; Dean Hanby, Gananoque, and many others.

Rev. Father Fallon, of Ottawa, delivered an eloquent sermon during the course of which he made special references to the two fine edifices built in this diocese—at Finch and at Wolfe Island.

At one o'clock a banquet was tendered Rev. Father Fleming at a local hotel by the Catholic Women's League. The decorations were most effective and were carried out in the Papal colours, purple and gold.

P. K. Halpin presided as chairman, and short speeches were delivered by Archbisop O'Brien, Mayor F. W. Dubrule, and A. C. Casselman, M.P., to which Father Fleming responded.

Testifying to the high esteem in which he is held, many beautiful gifts were received by Father Fleming and during the afternoon a delegation of Kemptville parishioners visited him and presented him with an address and a purse of gold.

Must Also Give Butter To Have Bread Accepted

Isadore Wisotsky, a Brooklyn baker, had read much concerning the plight of hungry unemployed and resolved to do something about it. Charitably he baked 800 loaves of bread, loaded them in a wagon and set out to give them away.

He worked for two hours in what he had heard were the least opulent sections of Brooklyn. Urging his product upon one woman, he was met with the rejoinder: "What good is bread without butter?"

In the end Wisotsky gave it up. He drove back to his bakery with 450 loaves that he had been unable to dispose of.

The regular monthly meeting of St Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Archie Black on November 6th. At this meeting the Winchester W.M.S. were entertained.

The meeting opened by repeating the 23rd Psalm, followed by the singing of the Doxology The 103rd Psalm was read responsively. Short prayers were offered by the following ladies—Mrs. Baldrey, Mrs. Doering, Mrs. Barrie, and Miss Agnes Rae. After singing hymn 594, the president welcomed Mrs. Sproule to the society. The minutes of the October meeting were read and adopted.

Mrs. Doering gave a paper on the Rich Young Ruler which was inspiring and interesting. After singing hymn 399 the roll call was responded to by short prayers from the Glad Tidings. Business part of the meeting was then conducted. It was agreed that letters of condolence be sent to Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Garrow. This was moved by Mrs. Baldrey and seconded by Mrs. Bailey.

Miss Jamieson gave a reading from the Glad Tidings.

Mrs. W. Johnston, president of the Winchester society gave a paper on "The Kingdom of God and Missions." This was followed by a short talk by Mrs. Turner.

A duet, entitled "Thanksgiving" was rendered by Mrs. Black and Mrs. Cross accompanied by Miss Lila Weegar.

Mrs. Barrie and Mrs. Kinkade gave some suggestions regarding Mission Bands.

After the offering was received, Mrs. Doering invited the W.M.S. to her home for the December meeting.

After singing hymn 545 Mrs. Wilson led in prayer.

A vote of thanks was moved by Miss Irving on behalf of Winchester Auxiliary, seconded by Mrs. Johnston.

The meeting was closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

A dainty lunch was then served by the Chesterville W.M.S.

Of Course . . .

you can serve it hot

Most people want a hot breakfast dish for a cold day. Shredded Wheat is deliciously warming when eaten with hot milk. Crisp the biscuits in the oven and pour hot milk over them. The flavory shreds retain enough crispness to encourage thorough chewing—that's one reason it's so good for children. Delicious for any meal with fresh or stewed fruits.

New Minister Will Open Ottawa Winter Fair

Formal announcement was made by W. J. Bell, of Kemptville, president of the Ottawa Winter Fair that Hon. T. L. Kennedy, the new Ontario Minister of Agriculture, would officiate at the opening of the 28th annual Winter Agricultural Exhibition to be held in the big Coliseum at Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, from December 1 to 5, inclusive. This will be the first pubic appearance of the new minister and much interest will be aroused in his presence at the show.

Hon. Mr. Kennedy is a veteran of the Ontario Legislature, having represented Peel County for many years. He is also well and favourably known as a farmer and horseman while he is also prominent in the military life of the Doimnion, holding the rank of colonel. Hon. Mr. Kennedy will be accompanied on his official visit to Ottawa by J. B. Fairbairn, the new Provincial Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and a conference with the agricultural representatives of the various counties in Eastern Ontario will be held during the Fair.

The Ottawa Winter Fair is being held under the distinguished patronage of His Exiellency, the Governor-General, who, incidentally, will be making his last appearance at this show before returning to England. Special attractions have been arranged for each day, including spectacular events for the evening Horse Show. Music will be provided by the crack band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards.

Hospital For Sick Children

(Country Branch, Thistledown)

December, 1930.

Dear Mr. Editor:

As a friend of affiicted little folks, you will learn with satisfaction that through the benevolence of its supporters the Hospital for Sick Children was enabled to increase its service considerably during the past year. In that period its cots were occupied by nearly 7,000 small patients, most of whom were restored, or are well upon the way to recovery now. An enormous amount of good is being accomplished for Ontario's many "Sick Kids," and by passing this information along to the good-hearted people your newspaper serves, you will interest them and at the same time be instrumental in promoting the continuance of this humane service. It is a gigantic undertaking and the hospital needs every bit of help it can get.

Please note the following official figures for the year which ended September 30, 1930, indicating the magnitude and rapid expansion of this mission of mercy. Total number of cot patients in year, 6,970, an increase of 377 over the previous year; actual number of patient days, 132,718, an increase of 11,301; average days' stay of all patients, 19. These figures include the wonderful country hospital at Thistledown, where the year's total of patient days was 36,876 and the daily average 101. In addition to this, the out-patient department, at the main hospital, had 58,705 attendances within the year, the largest number of patients treated in a single day being 317.

The little sufferers who are ministered to in the Hospital for Sick Children come from all over the Province of Ontario. Through this magnificent institution for healing, the very poor child has an equal advantage with the very rich in securing the benefit of the finest known medical and surgical skill. There are no strings to admittance of the child requiring hospital care. Race, creed, or circumstances in life make no difference. It is a great Mother Charity. Every year the trustees have to see that a very large deficit is provided for and they rely on kind people to help.

Wee babes, bigger ones, toddlers, kindergarteners, up to early 'teen age boys and girls, some stricken with disease, others deformed, crippled or maimed, make up the continuous large population of the Hospital for Sick Children, which has been in operation for 55 years. The annual appeal for funds is always made at the approach of the Christmas season as a most appropriate time to urge the claims of such a cause, when all lovers of little children would like to contribute. The Hospital for Sick Children does not share in the funds of the Toronto Federation for Community Service, because it serves the whole province. Donations from the generous persons in your territory are earnestly solicited. Faithfully yours,

IRVING E. ROBERTSON,
Chairman of Appeal Committee.

Mr. Fern Raney, of Ottawa spent a short time here last week visiting relatives.

The Misses Hilda and Helen Barkley made a trip to tne Capital last Saturday.

At a meeting of the teachers and officers of the United church it was arranged to hold the annual Christmas entertainment on Tuesday, December 23rd. Watch the Record for further announcement.

Mrs. Celia Lawrence, from Louisville, N. Y., is at present visiting her daughter, Mrs. Oscar Beckstead.

The extensive repairs done to the cheese factory here this summer were completed last week with the placing of a cement foundation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carruthers spent Thanksgiving with the latter's parents at Blanche, Que.

A well attended meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Armstrong.

Rev. and Mrs. Morrison, A. N. Barkley, M. E. Beckstead and Hugh Shaw attended a meeting of Presbytery at Spencerville last Tuesday.

Rev. A. M. Russell, of Williamsburg, occupied the pulpit here last Sunday evening, preaching a very excellent sermon.

The usual preaching service next Sunday at eleven o'clock. Come, U. R. Welcome.

A clergyman, announcing the result of a special collection, said: "I am glad to say the total reached fifteen pounds and three halfpence. I am forced to the conclusion," he said with a smile, "that there is a man from Aberdeen holidayiing in our midst." Ye're wrong, sair," came a broad voice from the rear pews: "there's three o' us."

Sonny: "Oh, I say, Dad, can you tell me what differencethere is between a hill and a pill.

Father: "Well, my boy, I hardly knew what to say. Perhaps it is because a hil is bi and a pillTHTT cause a hill is tall and big, and a pill is round and little."

Sonny: "No, Dad, you're miles out this time. It's because a hill is hard to get up, and a pill is hard to get down!"

The Tuberculin Test

To the Chesterville Live Stock Association:

I wish to call your attention to a rumer whoch has come to my ears in regards to the T. B. test. I recall having been visited by two of your representatives last fall to join their Live Stock Association, and assist them in looking after the interests of the farmers. On asking what their object was, they said "toreceive better prices for the Farmers' Products," leaving no impression whatever behind them that they were trying to put down the T. B. test.

My herd of thoroughbred Holsteins has been tested for over ten years and I am surprised at the irgnorance of the farmers who stand in their own light by working against the test, which has proven to me to work out both financially and beneficially.

I hope in the future my name shall be silenced in this respect. If not, I shall take further proceedings if my name has been used in any way "against" the T. B. test. I demand my name to be taken off their list at once.

I am one who will stand behind the veterinary in the T. B. test.

If Everyone Spent $20

A St. Thomas business man admits that he hears a lot of twaddle over the radio, but once in a while he gets a good idea.

The other night he heard a speaker say that if every person whose salary or pay has not been cut, whose income has not been reduced, would go out tomorrow and spend $20 in goods or articles that he has use for, the shelves of every store in the country would be almost bare. And orders from storekeepers would keep factories running full time and keep railroads busy. Everybody would be working again.

Mathematicians and economists will likely disagree over this statement and its possible results, but there is no denying the fact that the idea is sound.

That is shown by the attitude of several large concerns in the United States where, as in Canada, declining prices have been playing the part of trouble-maker, undermining confidenc, hindering trade activity and adding to unemployment.

Farewell to Algebra

Within a short time, it is predicted algebra and geometry will disappear from school courses—and good riddance! In California, the two subjects ere long will not be required for entrance to state universities—and children will have more time to devote to real knowledge. Algebra, euclid, and such technical things merely remain in school curricula because, traditionally, they are part of the martyrdom through which children must pass. To 999 children out of 1,000 they are useless; they are, in most cases, never used after the child is graduated. If the child adopts a profession calling for the use of algebra and euclid, he could learn them, just as he learns engineering and chemical analysis. But making them a part of a general course is ridiculous.—Vancouver Sun.

Unrelenting Father Asks Full Penalty for Son

Pleading guilty to the theft of 15 crate-fed roosters from Lloyd Mournaham, of East Luther township, Wilson Cunningham, a 21-year-old farmer of the same locality, was sentenced to one month in the county jail, a fine of $25 and all costs, by Magistrate Hugh Falconer of Orangeville.

Just before sentence was passed, the boy's father, W. C. Cunningham, a former reeve of the township, stepped forward and addressed the magistrate. The elder Cunnningham said he did not want any sympathy shown to his son and was glad the lad had been caught. He was guilty and deserved to be punished. He considered the maximum penalty of the court a mere drop in the bucket to eternity.

Nowadays, according to Mr. Cunningham, there were far too many entertainments and too much "gadding about the country in autos." It requires a lot of money to keep going these days and the youth of the country can't stand it.

The father paid the fine and costs and also paid the farmer who lost the roosters, the total bill amounting to $88.

The boy was taken to jail with a parting word from his father to come home as soon as he was released, and that he hoped the lesson would last him for the rest of his life.

She (at athletic meeting): "Where's your angry farmers?"

He (baffled): "Why—what angry farmers?"

"Didn't you say we would see the cross-country men?"

Labour Opportunities Increase When Plants Opened

OTTAWA, November 19.—Canada is assured of the expansion of present industries and the addition of scores of new plants, either of Canadian institutions or branches of British and American factories; this is the view of the situation and the outlook expressed by Hon. Senator Robertson, Minister of Labour.

Already new plants are assured and present industries, especially textile, are working increased hours and employing more hands. A prominent Ottawa broker is acting for one Scotch and five American firms desiring to establish branches here, while the acting Prime Minister, the Department of Trade and Commerce, and the National Revenue Department are receiving letters from other firms that will establish here. It is believed that by this time next year there will be established in Canada or in the course of establishment 50 or more new branch factories of British and American concerns.

Of a score of letters from various industries, Senator Robertson, to illustrate the industrial revival, has made a summary of several. Most of these letters were sent voluntarily by manufacturers.

Fertilizer Prices Reduced.

National Fertilizers, Limited, state they are pleased to advise that the price on all brands of national fertilizers are approximately $2 per ton lower than they were a year ago. They state the chief reason for this reduction is due to the fact that the Canadian Government seeking ways and means of relieving unemployment and of promoting the purchase and sale of "Made-in-Canada" goods, is protecting the fertilizer industry by imposing a duty of ten per cent on all fertilizers imported, which increases their tonnage to such an extent that they are warranted in making these reductions in prices.

The Monarch Knitting Company, of Dunnville, Ont., states that in September it added 32 employees to its staff and started operating full time instead of four days a week. It further states that in the past two weeks it has secured a hosiery order which would have gone to the United States if tariff changes had not been made. As a result of this order, the company is immediately starting 26 knitting machines. This order will keep these machines busy for a period of five months. These machines, it is stated, have been standing idle for a year. The situation would be still further improved if it was not for the limitations imposed by the provisions of the French treaty, this company claims, and urges further consideration of this matter.

Textile Improvement.

The Dominion Textile Company Limited, under date of October 22, by a table showing the percentage of possible loom hours run in its plants for each week beginning Septmber 6 to October 18, indicates improvement in that industry. The table is as follows:

September 6	50.73 per cent
September 13	58.83 per cent
September 30	62.40 per cent
September 27	64.61 per cent
October 4	69.34 per cent
October 11	74.72 per cent
October 18	81.86 per cent

The net result is that from Sept. 6 to Oct. 18, a period of seven weeks, the possible loom hours' run increased from 50.73 per cent to 81.86 per cent.

Courtaulds, Canada, Limited, at Cornwall, is extending its plant and is at present building a new factory 150 feet wide by 450 feet long and by July of next year expects to employ at least 300 to 400 additional persons. The company states that at the present time it is working up to the limit, recently has taken on from 60 to 70 girls, and that some 200 men are employed in the construction of the plant extension.

The Cobourg Dyeing Company expects expansion of its business and is increasing its floor space by some 5,000 square feet, and installing a quantity of machinery costing between $15,000 and $20,000.

The Paton Manufacturing Company of Sherbrooke, Que., under date of October 17, states that since the bringing down of the emergency tariff measures it has increased the help in its spinning departments by 250 hands, and made a payroll increase of $3,000 a week. The weaving and finishing departments are beginning to receive yarn in quantity so that the company will expand them by 50 or more hands of the higher-priced labour type, which will bring a further increase in its payroll of approximately $1,500 a week. The company is already taking on numerous learners on the day force and expects soon to have a proficient night force engaged in the spinning department. It states that the tariff measures have certainly given it confidence to look forward to an expansion of its mechanical equipment and the employment of still more Canadian workmen.

The Carl Stohn Company of Canada, Limited, Granby, Que., under date of October 16, advised that they are erecting 26,000 square feet of plant, that they have at present in operation 56 looms, and the building under construction will eventually hold 220 looms, 100 of which will be in operation in a short period. They are employing 85 hands at present, which force will be increased to between 200 and 250.

Celanese Plant Growing.

The Canadian Celanese, Limited, at Drummondville, Que., is increasing its plant by an expenditure of over $2,000,000 to give employment to 3,000 additional persons, and only a few days ago A. Schwartz, representing this most important industry, extended an invitation to the Minister of Labour, or any of his colleagues, to visit Drummondville, Que., to see the expansion that is actually going on.

Grouts, Limited, of St. Catharines, Ont., textile manufacturers, advise that they have started up ten per cent of the machinery which had been standing idle and are building a 20 per cent addition to their plant, which they hope to have running some time in January.

The George Hirst and Company, Limited, of Batley, England, have purchased the Hawthorn Mills at Carleton Place, Ont., which have been standing idle for the past three years. They already had delivered in Canada a large consignment of weaving machinery, expect to open the mill by December 1, and will ultimately employ upwards of 300 operatives. As this plant will produce classes of goods never heretofore manufactured in Canada ,it has been necessary for the Department of Immigration, with the approval of the Department of Labour, to authorize the importation of a small number of skilled workmen to supervise operations and train Canadians to man this plant.

The Renfrew Woollen Mills advise, under date of October 28, that the re-opening of their mills is the result of the recent tariff changes, and it is expected when operating to capacity, there will be from 150 to 200 employees engaged.

The Harris Woollen Mills at Rockwood, Ont., after being closed for some four years, have been re-opened, according to information received from that company dated October 21, creating in that community a new payroll of approximately $60,000 per year, which had during recent years been wholly lost.

No Fortune Teller.

A well-known citizen of Chicago was so smart that he was able to write to several of his friends six weeks before his death stating accurately the day on which he would die.

Not to be outdone, two others residing near New York duplicated this feat.

We neglected to state at the start that each of the three had been convicted of murder in the first degree and a kindly judge had given them the desired information.

A Race With A Flood

The Sumpscott Valley Railroad—people called it the Valley Road for short—is an electric line that connects Ayresboro, where the great cotton mills are, with Summerfield, seven miles below. For the first two miles below Ayresboro the electric railway borders the northern bank of the Sumpscott, but at Smith's sawmill it crosses the river on a bridge just below the dam, and continues on the southern bank. The bridge below the dam was of wood until a flood made room for the present iron structure.

Charlie Clark's father was the superintendent of the Valley Road, and Charie took a lively interest in it. He lived at Summerfield, but went upriver every day to the academy at Ayresboro. He was supposed to study on the cars, but in such circumstances a twelve-year-old boy of high spirits and an inquiring mind finds time to become acquainted with the conductors, motormen, and with such facts as that No. 11 is a hard car to make time on, and that No. 14 is the easiest running car in the barn.

Sometimes, on the level stretch of track below the bridge, where there were no houses and few stops, the motormen let him run the car until they reached the long descending grade outside Summersfield. That, of course, was against all rules, but exceptions are easily made in favour of the "super's" son. Charlie soon became fairly expert in managing the car.

"I'm going to be a superintendent myself, someday," he informed Big Jack Floyd, the driver with whom he generally made the afternoon trip, "and of course the super ought to know just how to run a car."

The old power station of the company was at Ayresboro, but they were building a new one down river, about a mile above Summersfield, in a wild spot, where the river brawled over stones and ledges through a narrow gorge. There the dam had been laid the year before and now, in the middle of March, the walls of the power house were completed, and workmen under the direction of the superintendent were putting in the dyamos.

For several days it had been raining hard; the air had been unseasonably warm; the ice in the Sumpscott had broken up, and the river was roaring at freshet pitch over its stony bed. It had submerged the new dam, and the yellow spray from the torrent there splashed against the brick walls of the power house. Ice cakes, tree trunks and débris of every description were hurrying down to the sea.

The superintendent, at work on the new downriver power house, looked at the flood with some anxiety. "It's pretty high, but I don't think it will rise any farther. We must get that No. 2 dynamo set up tonight at all events."

And so, when the grey day grew to dusk, half a dozen electricians were busily at work in the power house, and Charlie's father was with them. He had told his wife in Charlie's hearing that he should not return home until the next morning.

Charlie had been delayed at the academy that afternoon by a rehearsal for the prize speaking, and when it was over he found that he had missed his car; so he made his way to the home of his Uncle Robert and had supper there.

"It's a bad night, Charlie," his aunt said. "Hadn't you better stay with us tonight?"

"Thank you very much, auntie, but I guess I'll take the seven-o'clock home with Jack Floyd. Mother might be anxious. The telephone wire's down, so I couldn't let her know."

Charlie was soon jolting and rattling on his way downriver to Summerfield. Looking out of the window of the car, he could see the broad reaches of the stream, filled with broken ice, hastening onward almost as fast as he. On the front platform Jack Floyd's broad back loomed up, clad in glistening rubber.

"Looks bad, Charlie," said the conductor. "They say the Smith's dam is likely to go out. If it does, the bridge will be carried away. It may not be safe for us to cross it."

"What a lark!" exclaimed Charlie. Then he stopped in dismay. "My father! My father's in the power house bossing the men. If the dam goes they will all be caught and drowned! Oh, do something quick!"

The conductor stood with his mouth open for a moment. "If we can cross the bridge at Smith's," he said to Charlie after he had recovered from his dismay, "we may get down in time to warn the men!"

Then he flung open the front door of the car and said, "Jack, the super and the gang are working in the new power house—Charlie, here, says so. If the dam at Smith's goes all of a sudden,—and them not expecting it,—they'll be caught like rats in a trap."

Big Jack instantly gave faithful old No. 14 more "juice," the speed increased, the car swayed around curves and the trolley overhead buzzed like a swarming of bees.

The few passengers who had boarded the car at Ayresboro had left it before it stopped at Smith's. There an agitated group of men with lanterns surrounded the car. "It's no good. You can't cross the bridge!" the cried. "The dam will go any minute. It's cracking already, and the ice and logs jammed above it will take the bridge sure!"

The roar of the angry waters nearly drowned their voices, and a fierce gust of wind blew Charlie almost off his feet But he was heedless of the wild elements. In his mind's eye he saw his father and the men, unconscious of danger, at work in the power house.

"Oh, Jack!" he cried. "Please go on! We've got to get to father and the men!"

"I'd try, Charlie," Floyd replied, "but it would be of no use. Even if the car did get across, the bridge will go soon, and that will snap the wire. Can't run without power."

He was interrupted by a shout: "There it goes!" and everyone rushed up the bank to witness the catastrophe. But it was a false alarm. The strong fabric of the dam still resisted the tremendous strain.

Charlie, left to himself and his thoughts, suddenly came to a resolve: he would try to save his father! The chance was only a slender one, but a chance is a chance Springing upon the front platform, he kicked loose the ratchet that held the brake and turned on the power.

Instantly No. 14 ran for the bridge. Faster! A hurricane of wind and rain and spray almost blinded the boy. He heard shouts behind him, but did not heed them. The next moment No. 14 was rumbling over the planks.

Charlie dared not look up the stream toward the huge face of the torrent that threatened to crush him. He imagined that he heard the dam cracking under the flood, and he turned the power lever as far as it would go. Faster and faster! What if that wall of water behind the dam should roll down now? But it was only half a minute before the car was across the bridge.

Charlie looked back. The dam was still holding, and every second gained was a reprieve.

For half a mile the track was an upgrade. Then came the level, and then the long incline. One advantage that the boy would have in a race against the flood was that the road ran in a nearly straight line, while the river bed wound in several long bends. But of course if the bridge should go, the power would go with it, and the car would stop. But at present No. 14 was speeding along gloriously. It was a bad "rail," as motormen say, but the wheels never slipped once.

At last the car came to the long level stretch and flew faster than ever. Still its lights burned steadily. At the occasional turnouts Charlie did not slacken his pace, but sent the car pounding ahead at full speed It was a marvel that No. 14 kept the rails.

Bleak and bitter was the lonely road. In the intervals of the gale the growling of the river sounded menacing Not aware that his hands were white with cold and that he was drenched to the skin, Charlie stood at his post and peered anxiously ahead.

At last he drew near the long downgrade to Summerfield. He could already see the great elm that marked the spot where the motormen "shut off the juice." If he could only pass that before losing power! But he could not. In an instant the electric lights of the car went out, and the peculiar rattle of the motors told him that the power was gone.

Charlie screamed, and twisted his lever helplessly. He knew that the dam was gone, and that a terrible fury of water was roaring after him at race-horse speed. But in the very midst of his blackest despair came a ray of hope. Perhaps the momentum of the car would carry it over the brow of the hill.

Running through the car to the rear platform, Charlie caught the wet trolley rope, pulled it down hand over hand, and tied it to the brass rail of the dasher. That lessened the friction a little. Back he flew to the front platform. The speed was slacking, but the big tree was close at hand.

He ran breathlessly to the rear again, and, jumping to the ground, pushed with all his strength. Perhaps those few pounds of additional energy won the day. Just as No. 14 was coming to a standstill, Charlie gave one desperate heave, and then—oh, joy!—he felt the speed increase. Still pushing, he went from a slow walk to a fast, and then to a trot. Swinging himself aboard, he seized the brake handle; he was in control of the car again.

But the race was far from won. The power house was two miles away. While Charlie was covering that distance, the raging flood would have to cover only five miles of twisting river.

The car, now fairly launched on the down-grade, rushed over a high causeway overlooking the Sumpscott far below. Above the increasing roar of the wheels Charlie heard a dull booming behind him. The water was coming with apalling speed.

Unchecked by the brakes, the car swooped down the hill. Its wild plunges almost threw Charlie from the platform. One second he saw a buggy in his path; the next he was past it, with only a few inches to spare, and heard the cry of the frightened driver far behind him.

Sweeping round a curve, he saw the lights of Summerfield glittering in the distance.

Here the river made a wide bend, whereas the car line ran straight. The new power house was not far ahead, and Charlie intently watched his landmarks. Two long houses flashed by, and then the boy applied the brakes with all his force. He threw his full weight again the handle, and soon No. 14 was sliding more slowly over the wet rails.

As he passed a high bluff, Charlie made a flying leap into the dark and fell sprawling in the mud. Down, down, flew the car as he picked himself up and rushed toward a flight of temporary stairs that wound down the bank of the river. It was pitch dark, but he went three steps at a time.

Mr Clark was studying a plan and the men were working busily when they heard outside a shrill boyish cry: "Father! Father!"

"Why, bless me! It's Charlie!" the superintendent exclaimed.

"Oh, father, come up, quick! It's a flood—the dam is gone, and it's coming! Quick!' '

They understood instantly. The men dropped their tools and ran for their lives. Up the shaky stairs they clambered, helter-skelter, and never stopped until, out of breath, they reached the top of the bluff. Last of all came the superintendent. He held in his arms a drpping, muddy bundle, from which a white face looked up into his own.

"My boy! My brave boy!" was all that he could say.

Three minutes later the dreadful contorted wall of water and cakes of ice, logs and wreckage thundered through the gorge. It plucked at great trees and tore them up by the roots; it rolled great boulders as chips; it struck the power house and battered it for a moment. Then the structure collapsed and vanished as if it had been built of soluble sugar blocks. At that place was the culminating might of the torrent. Below the ravine it spread out, expending its violence on the meadows and did no harm to the town.

"Father," said Charlie, as he sat before the open fire that night, toasting his toes, "I guess I broke the rules of the company by running away with No. 14. Must I go to prison?"

"Not this time," answered his father, smiling. "In view of the fact that this is your first offence, the directors will over look it. I am sure.

COMFORTS

Most undesirable things have at least one or two points in their favour. The comfort, or pacifier, has not one redeeming feature which may be put forward to balance any bad and undesirable qualities which it possesses.

To begin with, it does not even do what its name implies. It does not comfort or pacify the baby. Crying is stopped for a time, because the baby always stops crying when he gets what he wants, and he does want his comfort when he has been used to one.

Some parents think that because the baby cries for the comfort it should be given him, as he apparently knows what he wants. But do they give him everything he cries and reaches for, or do they discriminate in what they give him because they know more than the baby does about what is good for him?

The constant sucking of the comfort makes the child irritable and tends to upset him. It quiets him for a few minutes, because he gets what he wants, but after that it only irritates him.

A serious result of the use of the comfort is the deformity of the mouth that results if the habit is continued. The bones of the baby's body are comparatively soft and rather easily moulded. The continued sucking of the comfort forces the bones around the mouth into an abnormal shape. Projecting teeth are among the mouth deformities that follow.

The most serious conditions that result from the use of the comfort are due to the introduction of disease germs into the mouth of the child. It is impossible to keep a comfort clean. To do so would mean that it should be boiled every time it is used, just as the feeding bottles and nipples are boiled after they are used. The comfort is moist and, as it hangs from the child's neck, it comes into contact with many articles; the result is that it is soiled by the many things which it touches.

The use of the comfort is simply a bad habit which may do the child permanent harm by deforming the month and the one which is, no doubt, a real factor in the spread of disease.

There is no reason why a baby should be constantly sucking at something. The comfort does not help to keep the baby healthy. If the child is irritable, there is something wrong which should be properly dealt with, and most certainly the proper way to relieve him is not by sticking something into his mouth.

Not so many years ago, every baby was rocked in a cradle and put into long clothes that prevented him from kicking out his legs and having the exercise he needed. The rocking cradle and the long clothes have passed into disuse, and the sooner the comfort goes the same way, the better it will be for the baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Eslie Gray, of the Boyne district, visited Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gray the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wylie visited Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Baker recently.

Mrs. Henry Johnston and son Hubert, visited the former's sister, Mrs. Jas. Rae.

Mr. and Mrs. John Millar, of Inkerman, were guests of the latter's brother, Mr. Geo. A. Merkley.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Crowder visited the latter's mother, Mrs. Francis.

Miss Marion Gray, of Ottawa, visited her grandmother over the week end.

Several relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Merkley to say good-bye to Mr. Robert Webb, who left Saturday on the Montclair for his home in Newmarket, England, after an absence of three years in Canada, all of that time being spent at the Merkley home. The evening was spent in games, music, and visiting. Just before lunch, Mr. Webb was called forward and presented with a Book of Remembrances and an address read by Miss Jamieson, and a fountain pen presented by Mr. Lloyd Merkley. Mr. Webb made a suitable reply, saying how very much he liked Canada and especially the people of this vicinity and he appreciated all the kindness bestowed on him in the Merkley home, he being a stranger in a strange land. It made him sad to leave such good friends but he was looking forward to seeing his parents and they were waiting to receive their only child back home. All joined in singing "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow," after which a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and not long after the guests left for home with thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Merkley and a good-bye and good luck and safe journey to Mr. Webb.

GRIDDLE CAKES AND OATMEAL COOKIES

By Etta Bitta Pye

During cold weather our bodies need heavier food so that those internal engines may be enabled to keep us warm. Here are two recipes for good old-fashioned dishes prepared in a new-fashioned way:

Griddle Cakes

1 cup special cake flour, sifted
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup thick sour milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon melted butter or other shortening.

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt, and sift again. Combine egg and milk and add to flour gradually, stirring constantly. Beat until smooth. Add shortening. Bake on hot, well-greased griddle. Serve hot with butter and syrup. Makes 12 griddle cakes.

Oatmeal Cookies.

1½ cups special cake flour, sifted
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sifted brown sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1¾ cups oatmeal
1-3 cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and spices, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream well. Add egg. Add oatmeal and flour alternately with milk, mixing well. Drop by teaspoons on greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 18 to 20 minutes. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

Spare Those Trees

With plans under discussion for the widening of some Canadian highways, the question of sparing trees that line and beautify the roads has been raised. Tree lovers all over the country have voiced objection to any scheme that would mean the removal of trees in great numbers. The job of planting trees and making boulevards along Canadian highways has been indepently and enthusiastically accepted by groups of people in many sections. Not more than a year ago Elgin county Ontario, residents undertook the planting of saplings, completing a seven-mile stretch in a single day. If the widening of highways means destruction of trees, the work of tree planters has gone for nought. An example of how trees can be injured by the advance of modern institutions can be seen in Huron and other Ontario counties where, apparently, little thought was given the saving of trees when power line construction was under way. When roads are widened, some plan should be developed to prevent destruction of the fine old maples and elms of which Canadian provinces are proud.
