Stock Yards Had Narrow Escape.

The C. P. R. stock yards at Winchester a few days ago had a narrow escape from destruction by fire. A fire raging in Summers' Bush to the east almost reached the stock yards, but by trenching it was prevented from igniting the pens. A watch had to be kept on the yards for a couple of days.

Women's Institute.

The regular meeting of the Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon Oct. 28th at the home of Mrs. Harrison.

After the reading and approval of the minutes of last meeting a communication was read from the superintendent, Mr. Geo. H. Putman regarding the series of winter meetings and it was decided to ask for a speaker to be sent here at the time of the Farmer's Institute in January. A communication was also read from the Morrisburg Institute reporting enthusiastic meetings, and rapidly increasing membership and extending an invitation to the members of Chesterville Institute to attend their meeting on Dec. 3rd when the delegates from the Department are to be present.

The president called the attention of members to the organ of the Ontario Institutes, "The Home Journal" and urged each to become a subscriber. Those present agreed to make a special effort during the next month to obtain as many subscriptions as possible in order to take advantage of the offer of a free library of 25 books given with 60 subscriptions at the club rate of thirty cents.

There are many expressions of sorrow and regret owing to the death of one of the members of the Institute, Mrs. F. Shirkey, and a motion was passed instructing the secretary to send a letter of condolence to Mr. Shirkey and family.

Upon motion a letter was also to be sent Mrs. Jessie Allison, expressing the sympathy of the members with her in her recent bereavement.

Mrs. Samuel Smith then gave a demonstration in making tea biscuit and while these were in the oven the rest of the programme was proceeded with.

A most excellent paper was read by the Secretary, Mrs. W. A. Brown, on the subject of Books—"Wise ways to read wise books.' She divided books into two classes good books and bad books, but mentioned the latter only to condemn. The former were subdivided into (1) books for the hour, and (2) books for all time; the latter being the most important and expressing the best thoughts, the life message of the authors. These she went on to explain, are within the reach of all who desire by ratient labor to search for the authors measuring.

The following points were made in conclusion:

(1)—Every boy and girl should begin not later than at 12 years of age of own a library.

(2)—Select books that appeal to the best in you.

(3)—In newspapers read only the headlines of murders and other horrors but read carefully of recent discoveries in science, latest inventions and accounts of heroic deeds.

(4)—Do not read books red hot from the press, wait until the judgment of time and endurance has been passed.

(5)—Do not aim to read as many books as you can. Read a good book again and again and grow up the best it inspires in you

(6)—The book of books as a means of education is recognized by all scholars and teachers to be invaluable.

Mrs. Harrison then gave a short talk on "Waste in the kitchen," recommending highly several recipes for cakes without eggs, which were much appreciated by those who have to buy eggs at 25 and 30c a dozen.

Tea and coffee were then served by Miss Harrison and all had the privilege of tasting Mrs. Smith's biscuit, which were pronounced by all to be fine and warranted not to impair the digestion of the most delicate.

The meeting closed with the national Anthem.

Died After Lingering Illness.

Sarah A. Stallmeyer, wife of Mr. Francis Shirkey of this place passed away to her untimely end on Monday, Oct. 26th, 1908, aged 54 years 11 months, and 17 days.

About six months ago the deceased was seized with illness and a month later was taken to Montreal, where an operation was performed and a few weeks later was brought to her home where she has suffered untold agony until her death. Everything that could was done in medical skill and every care and comfort was supplied by her family, but all this was of no avail—she was called hence.

The funeral to k place from the family residence yesterday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock and proceeded to the church, where the Rev. A. E. Runnells, B. D., preached a very appropriate sermon, after which the remains were interred in Maple Ridge cemetery.

The deceased leaves to mourn her death, a husband, two daughters and one son, viz: Mabel, Gertrude and Horton Shirkey.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Frean Hummel, J. T. White, F. W. Shirkey, John Alford, W. H. Casselman and T. T. Shaw.

Killed By Train.

Richard Geraldie, a young man of Merrickville, was killed at Smith's Falls Friday night on the railroad. The unfortunate man was coming from Almonte on the 8.15 train and stepped off the train before it stopped hitting a switch at George street east, killing him instantly.

Isaiah Barkley Dead.

The death of Mr. Isaiah Barkley, an old and respected resident of Dunbar, occurred at his residence on Saturday morninn. It had always been his custom to rise first in the morning, but on Saturday he did not and his wife thought he was sleeping nicely and she would let him rest. When breakfast was ready she went to his room and tried to waken him but could not, and he was breathing very heavy. She hurried to a nearby neighbor and on their return found he had passed away to be with the silent majority.

The funeral took place from his late residence at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon to the Lutheran church, where services were conducted, after which the remains were interred in the Williamsburg cemetery.

The funeral was very largely attended showing the esteem in which the deceased was held in the community.

Ex-Chief of Smith's Falls.

After an illness extending over the past year, Mr. R. J. McGowan, one of the best known citizens of Smith's Falls, passed away at a hospital in Montreal late on Friday night. The deceased had been suffering almost a year with heart trouble and his death was not unexpected by his large circle of friends. For over 20 years Mr. McGowan was chief of police of Smith's Falls, and had served for three years as alderman. He leaves a wife, one son, R. J. V. McGowan, of Toronto; Miss Agnes of Montreal; and Miss Lillian, at home. The deceased was fifty years of age, and a member of the English church. In politics he was a staunch Conservative

Village Council.

A special meeting of the municipal council of the village of Chesterville was held on Oct. 23rd, for the purpose of receiving a petition in favor of local option.

Members all present.

Moved by T. J. McGee, seconded by Chas. Chambers, that the petition in favor of local option, signed by the required number of persons qualified to vote at the next municipal election be granted, and that the necessary by-law be submitted to the electors of the municipality on the date of the annual election of members of the municipal council.—Carried.

Moved by John Jordan, seconded by T. J. McGee, that the council now adjourn to meet at next regular night of meeting or call of the reeve.—Carried.

Heard Death Cry of Her Father.

Suddenly awakening from a deep sleep with the almost certain assurance that she had heard her father call her name in agonizing tones and then a few hours later to receive a telegram that he was dead, was the awful experience of Flora Catlin, the 20-year-old daughter of Louis N. Catlin, of Cardinal. Miss Catlin was visiting many miles from Cardinal. Deceased was employed as nightwatch on the Cleveland Canal work at Cardinal, and a fellow-workman entering the shanty before daylight found him alone in an unconscious condition. He lingered then for a few hours then passed away. Enquiry shows that the awakening of the daughter was coincidental with the death agonies of her father.

Over 2,000 tons of grass were burned at Burford, Ont.

An Evening With Tennyson.

The Epworth League held their monthly literary meeting on Tuesday, October 27th. After devotional exercises, led by the president, Mr. Harry Hummell gave a very complete paper on the life of Alfred, Lord Tennyson. Mrs. and Miss Munro then sang "Crossing the Bar." Mrs. W. A. Brown read "The Revenge." The president, Mr. Harry Merkley, told the story and read the latter part of "Enoch Arden. Rev. A. E. Runnells then gave a short address on "The Idylls of the King," telling in a most interesting way why they were written, and how the foundation of the poems had been laid centuries back in old legends. Miss Moad then sang "Too Late," taken from "The Passing of Arthur." The meeting closed, all feeling that it had been a very profitable and well spent evening.

CHAPTER I.

Night—a weird, fantastic night, one of tempestuous passion and benecficent calm; a night of Nature's contrasts. Now in wrathful haste the snell nor'wester sped across the grey hills of Galloway land and over the creamy crests of the surging Solway, and upon the winter wearied land the cloud galleons spattered their noisy fussillade of hail; now, responding to another mood, the wind ceased its ravings, the overhead packs melted away, and the moon of blustering, wayward March radiantly smiled upon the scene, her beams trailing to the shore along an avenue of liquid glory and dropping in silvery showers over hill and dale.

During one of these peaceful interludes a man emerged from the shelter of the square, squatly-framed tower, which crowns the How, monarch of Allerdale's long low line of grass-clad cliffs, and with steady, purposeful steps resumed the walk which the squall had interrupted. On reaching the point whence the hill dips down to meet its less ambitious brother, he paused, and, turning his back upon the lights of the town twinkling brightly in the hollow, he fixed his gaze upon the sea and greedily scanned its surface. A few minutes thus, and then he retraced his steps, and at the southern brink where the cliff sweeps dizzily to the bouldered beach, he renewed his scrutiny.

Under the cold, clear light of the moon the man etched against the night was revealed as one upon whom many years had laid their hands. Around the shoulders, slightly bent, an Inverness cape hung in fluttering folds, and upon the head o wide-awake hat was closely pressed, but not so closely as to capture all the frosted locks, and the breeze toyed merrily with sundry silken wisps, fragments of the glory crown set like a halo around the brows. It was a good face that looked out from under the hat's broad brim, blue-grey eyes, in which, behind the anxiety at present dwelling therein, it were easy to discern the presence of a soulful companion, the gentle tenderness of the man in whom the ego always ranks last; a mouth firmly set, yet rounding away at the corners in benevolent curves, cheeks seamed with furrows deeply graved, the graving being of the years and not of conduct ill-conceived; in brief, the face of a man who had lived a wholesome life, one whose feet had ever been upon the heights.

Such was Jacob Graham, the owner of ships, of ships that now rocked softly in the hill-screened harbor at the tail of the cliffs, of ships that tossed in frantic fear upon the riven, roaring waters, reaching from the drift-battered boulders down there upon the beach into the void of the ocean night.

From end to end of the eminence the old man plodded to and fro, to and fro, his gaze ever bent upon the sea, and an hour went by. Then muttering something about "home," he turned into a new course, but instead of striking along the path that takes you down into the town, he sought the lee side of the tower, glanced cautiously around to make sure that no other eyes pryed upon his action, removed his hat, sank upon his knees, and over his clasped hands reverently bent his head. And there, with the storm winds blustering around him, and the myriad voices of the sea booming in his ears, the shipowner poured out his soul in a petition for the safety of the sailors who sailed his ships.

"Thou'd have heard me just as well in my own room, Lord," he said, "but when Thy winds are loosed and Thy waters tossing in all their mighty strength, I like to get up here, a bit nearer to Thee and a bit nearer to them poor lads o' mine.

"Lord, do Thou take the tiller of every ship that's out yonder and steer it straight. The winds are Thine—dinna let them have their own way too far; the waters are Thine just to do whatever Thou carest with—keep them well in hand and help our sailors through all the perils of the night.

"There's women down yonder in the town at'll never close their eyes; through all the hours of darkness they'll be listenin', listenin', listenin' till the yammering of the wind, an' their hearts 'll be away out yonder with the storm-tossed ships—dinna let loss be their portion as well as fear, may joy come back to them with the daybreak, to them an' the bit bairns that need their daddies just as we all need the love of our own Great Father—Thyself.

"Lord, hear the petition of an old man that's nearly done with storms and tempests, an' bring our lads back to port."

Utterly engrossed in his prayer, the shipowner failed to notice ere its end that he was no longer alone, that two other men had mounted the hill and might have hailed him had their inclination led that way. Each was attired in the distinctive garb of the coastguard service, and they were evidently out upon patrol duty. Screened as he was by the shadow of the tower, the old man might have escaped their notice had not the strenuous tones of his voice betrayed him, and even then the attitude of the newcomers as their eyes discovered him, had no suggestion of surprise in it, nothing but curiosity and a certain element of reverential awe.

Then, as the impassioned pleading fell upon their ears, the elder man glanced apprehensively at his comrade, and from him to the kneeling figure, and back again, and finally his back stiffened and he brought his hand to the salute.

Startled by the action, the younger coastguardsman looked at his colleague in amazement, and then, when its full significance had dawned upon him, his arm also jerked upwards, his palm straightened out upon his brow, and side by side, for a few seconds, the blue-coated guardians of the coast remained posed, in dumb fashion, doing honor to Jacob Graham and Jacob Graham's prayer.

"Whativver med thoo do that, Jim Fleming?" the younger man asked when they had passed out of earshot—they had tiptoed from the spot.

There was a long pause, and when Fleming at length replied his voice seemed to have lost something of its habitual harshness.

"I oalus do it, Tom," he said, "oalus. Theers nut seah many men that I'd touch me cap to, I could count 'em on me fingers, bit theer's nowt I wouldn't do to show my respect for Jacob Graham.

"You know, lad, I've found Jacob on his knees in a heap o' gales, an' ivvery time it's been alike, theer's been summat that wouldn't let me pass till I'd cum till t' salute. I feel just t' same wi' little childer; I'd like to touch till ivvery yan I meet. It mun be because they're honest.

"Mind, it's nut Jacob's prayer alone that mak's me do it. Prayer's a thing I rekon nowt on by itsel'. Theer's hafe a dozen shipowners doon in't toon yonder that'll pray like angels, an' all the time their ships are t' nastiest, cheapest, rottenest hulks on t' sea—they desarve nowt but hangin' for riskin' men's lives in them. Prayer—fra sec as them—fash! Bit wi' Jacob it's different. His ships are t' tightest craft afloat, theer's nut a mair contented set o' men on't watter than them that's sailin' Jacob's boats, an' ivvery voyage they ken that if they shouldn't cum back, their babbies 'll nut hev to cry for bread. It's on top o' that that Jacob prays.

"Bless you, lad, Jacob's face has more Gospel in it than t' finest sarmon ivver med up. You gang aboot your day's wark an' you git a skelp here, an' a clout theer, an' you find yoursel' tricked ower yonder, an' you gang your ways heame at neet feelin' that you'd nut give a brass fardin' for aw't' religion, an' churches an' prayer meetin's bundled togidder, an' then suddenly you run slap again Jacob Graham an' you see the soul of the man in his smile an' shining oot of ivvery furrow in his bonny white crooned face, an' you remember hoo he spends his life, an' bang, aw the doot an' misgivin' drops out o' ye like mud oot of a hopper. And noo you ken why ah saluted Jacob Graham on his knees by t' tower to neet."

Tom Bell nodded his head, and the men, who had by this time descended to the shore level, made the round of Curren Bay in contemplative silence.

CHAPTER II.

Puff—puff—puff!

Luxuriant clouds of fragrant smoke blown from nine churchwardens billowed through the room.

Puff—puff—puff!

Nine pairs of eyes roamed distressfully from the grate, where the coals flashed and sizzled as though in serision, to the flat white ceiling, whereon the shadows played their merry games, and back to the grate again.

Puff—puff—puff!

Even Jacob Graham, who had passed through the ordeal at least four times in his long life, began to have his doubts, and into the heart of wee David, stretched upon the rug at the feet of Cap'n Dan, there crept the terrible suggestion that the task was going to prove too much, and that the new ship would have to be launched unchristened and sail the seas a nameless vagabond. In that case he wondered whether she would be reduced to the indignity of a number, like a mere fishing smack or pilot boat.

Another critical look at Cap'n Dan, however, helped to reassure him. The squat, little man, with the clean-shaven, bulging cheeks and eyes, round as clam shells and almost as big as the biggest, manifested a certain measure of perplexity, but showed no fear of defeat, and David, his confidence restored, again nestled down upon the rug. The ship would have a name, in spite of all difficulties.

"Now," piped the Captain, as he helped himself to a new charge of Virginia from the golden elephant and a spill from the Benares vase, "we'd better heave all the useless truck overboard and have a clear deck. First of all, has the ship to have a Bible name like all the rest of the Graham boats, or——"

"No, no, Dan," Jacob interposed: "every ship I've got carries a prophet for a figurehead, and they're not all used up, the Bible's got enough left to furnish me with another one. A Bible name by all means—the only question is which one?"

"Then, then, that's all right," Cap'n Dan resumed. "Now we're getting our bearings, but before we head for port let's understand this—is it quite settled that we've t' stick till t' oald dispensation? I've got an idea myself that them there prophets have had things pretty much their own way, an' I'm thinking it's about time that t' apostles had a look in. What dy'e say, Jacob; how'd Mark do, eh?—he's a chap I've oalus had a bit of a liking for, because, not that I know much about it, but he's oalus struck me as being a nice modest sort of chap. You never hear half so much about Mark as about the rest of his watch, an' if that desn't show that he kept himself well in't background and never tried to get his name in't papers well dash my deadlights what does?"

"Mark be blowed, begging the gentleman's pardon, and yours as well, Cap'n Dan," a beetle browed son of the sea, Sam Hodgson by name, ferociously exclamation. "I'm t' same with names as with meast other things—I like plenty for my brass, an' Mark hasn't enough aboot it. Noo theer's these two," indicating the Bible, which lay open in his palm at the order of the books, "these two Thessalonians number one and number two, if their characters are o' reet, ye couldn't do better than tak' yan of them, they've a nice comfortable sound, and they'd mak' a grand show on a name-board."

Jacob Graham's eyes twinkled brightly whilst Cap'n Dan's expanded so enormously that David feared they would leap from his head, but this was the only manifestation of mirth that Sam Hodgson's suggestion evoked, for these seamen were gentlemen, and gentlemen may laugh with a man but never at him.

"Thank you kindly, Sam, for your suggestion," Jacob Graham remarked after a moment's thoughtful pause; "we'll keep it in mind. As for calling t' new ship after one of the apostles, it's a point on which I've always felt myself in a bit of a quandary, for I don't rightly know whether they'd like it. You see, when you fix on one of the prophets no one can make a mistake, it's as plain as a pikestaff who you mean; but when you come to the apostles it's different. Just plain Matthew, Mark, Luke, or John has no special application, any of them might stand for half a hundred tinpots unless you stick the Saint on, and that's a thing I can never fetch myself to. You see, they've never been consulted about this saint business. It's all very well to make a man into a lord while he's alive, but to clap a title on him after he's dead is a bit risky, especially if he's got any modesty about him—like Mark, for example, eh, Dan?—and that's the reason I've always fought shy of the apostles—I'm not sure they'd take kindly to being called saints down here. So, if you please, we'll stick to the prophets."

HE KNEW THE JUDGE.

A lawyer came into court drunk, when the judge said to him: "Sir, I am sorry to see you in a situation which is a disgrace to yourself and family, and the profession to which you belong."

This reproach elicited the following colloquy:

"Did your Honor speak to me?"

"I did sir. I said, sir, that in my opinion you disgraced yourself and family, the court and the profession, by your course of conduct."

"May i-i-it please your Honor, I have been an attorney in-in-in this c-court for 15 years, and permit me to say, your Honor, that this is the first correct opinion I ever knew you to give."

"Now," said the warder to the forger, who had just arrived at the prison, "we'll set you to work. What can you do best?" "Well, if you'll give me a week's practice on your signature, I'll sign your official papers for you," said the prisoner.

THE HOME-COMING OF CECIL CLIVE

"And, meantime," thundered Mr. Barth, "remember that it is my house, and that your place is on the other side of the door. Be off! I never want to see you again. You went away a beggar and you have come home a beggar. Be off! And if you ever attempt to cross the threshold again I'll have you turned out by the servants."

Cecil laughed. His uncle's brutality did not seem to affect him nearly so much as little Miss Holmes's kindness had done, and he went towards the door with gay feet.

"I'm going, uncle," he said; "don't lose your temper. Goodbye, all of you."

Miss Holmes sat in a corner, crying softly. He approached the girl, patted her gently on the shoulder, and then went from the room.

"A good riddance," said George.

"He's positively hateful," commented Mabel.

"Another moment and I'd have thrown him out," muttered Arthur, who was always very pugnacious when there was nobody to fight.

Mr. Barth, however, was silent. Obviously he was considering a weighty matter, and the outcome of his deliberations proved rather unpleasant for Miss Holmes. Clearing his throat, he said in a loud, judicial tone:—

"Miss Holmes, be good enough to attend to me."

The girl rose, and stood with her small hands clasped tightly together.

"For some years," said the dignified voice, "you have occupied a position in my household, and I have no reason to disapprove of you; but your conduct this morning makes it impossible for me to let you continue as governess to my two youngest children. Your sympathy with a penniless and reckless ne'er-do-well proves that you are not fit to have the training of young minds, and so, Miss Holmes, I will ask you to take a month's notice."

The girl did not seem to mind very much.

"I will go this very day," she said bravely.

"That is as you please," replied Mr. Barth, magnanimously, and feeling vaguely that he was doing a very noble action, "but perhaps it will be better."

* * * * * * *

"It will be a splendid thing for the neighborhood," observed Mr. Barth a few weeks later; "though I wonder why he selected our part of the country for his home."

He had been discussing with his family the news that had just reached Meadowhurst, to the effect that Mine McIlwraith had purchased the Hall and intended settling down there for some months.

"The man is enormously rich," remarked Mr. Barth. "And no doubt he will be correspondingly generous. If I can interest him in that scheme of mine for adding new plant to the works, it will mean a difference of thousands per annum to me."

Now, Mr. Barth did not believe in letting the grass grow under his feet, and that very day he sat down and wrote to Mr. McIlwraith, begging for an interview.

"The fact that we are such near neighbors makes me bold to address you," he concluded. "And I believe that the scheme which I desire to propose to you would prove mutually advantageous."

By return of post he received a communication from the great man's secretary, asking him to call at the Hall on the following morning at eleven o'clock.

Delighted by this speedy reply, Mr. Barth went his way in the cheeriest of spirits, and on the next morning he buttoned himself up in his most dignified frock-coat and sallied forth to the Hall.

A resplendent man-servant ushered him into the great oaken library and asked him to sit down. A momen. later the door opened and another visitor entered. Mr. Barth jumped up in amazement.

"Halloa, George!" he exclaimed. "What on earth are you doing here?"

"I was just going to ask you the same question, dad," replied George, sulkily. "As a matter of fact, I have an appointment with old McIlwraith here at eleven."

"H'm! That's queer!" ommented Barth. "He told me to be at the house at the same hour."

Once again the door opened, and father and son started up, ready to make their obeisances to the golden calf as represented by Mr. Constantine McIlwraith, but to the supreme amazement of both of them they beheld Arthur and Mabel.

"Why, upon my word, this seems like a family party," spluttered Mr. Barth, wondering what was the meaning of this extraordinary meeting. "What brings you here?"

"We were asked to call at eleven," replied Arthur and Mabel in a breath.

Confidences followed slowly. It semeed that George had secretely written the millionaire asking for a position as secretary; that Arthur had begged him to find him an appointment as something in the City; and that Miss Mabel had actually been bold enough to inquire whether he desired a lady typist. Each had kept the application secret from the other, but now concealment was futile, and they all looked remarkably foolish—all except Mr. Barth, who preserved his august manner although he felt decidedly uncomfortable.

"It looks as though McIlwraith were going to make fools of us," said George, in an undertone. "These Colonial chaps have no manners."

"Shut up," growled his brother; "here he comes."

As he spoke the footsteps on the threshold approached the door, and it swung open slowly. Then, once again, amazement was imaged in the faces of them all, for there, standing before them, clothed in perfect garb and looking the very picture of health and prosperity, stood the prodigal, Cecil Clive.

"Good morning," he said. "Glad to see you all so punctual."

Mr. Barth rose and faced him nervously.

"Look here, my fine fellow!" he exclaimed; "how you have wormed your way into this house I don't know, but I suppose, with your usual cunning, you have contrived to get around Mr. McIlwraith. But we have come to see him, and not you. So be kind enough to go."

Cecil laughed.

"How long, uncle," he asked, "have you been in the habit of turning a man out of his own room?"

Barth stared at him wildly.

"What—what do you mean?" he gasped, whilst the others stood rigid, like graven images.

"I mean this: that the Hall and everything that is in the Hall is mine. I mean that Cecil Clive, the beggar, is dead, and that Constantine McIlwraith, the millionaire, has taken his place. I mean that when Cecil Clive was adopted by old McIlwraith and took his name his luck changed, and he won the gold for which he sought. I mean that he came back home dressed in rags to test you, to behold whether or not you would give him the cold shoulder—whether you were made of decent stuff or sordid material. I mean all this, uncle, and I mean something else. I mean to give you all five minutes to quit this house, and if ever any of you, except Mabel—who, because she is a woman, must be treated with some regard—show your faces here again, I'll have you turned out by my servants."

"Great Jove, my own words!" gasped Mr. Barth. "You have a good memory."

"Yes; I have a good memory, sir, and I never forget. I invited the lot of you here this morning so that I might reveal to you the truth and then say good-bye and packing."

He went to the door and held it open.

A slight, black-clothed figure came towards them. Lo, it was Miss Holmes, the little governess, and when Mr. Barth beheld her he flushed crimson.

"H'm! I can understand now why this person was ready to take your part," he sneered.

"Silence!" shouted Cecil. "If you dare to insinuate one word against her, I may forget that you are old enough to know better and send you out quicker than you came in. She knew, indeed! She knew nothing. She believed me to be the beggar that you also thought me to be, but she stood by me like the brick that she is. And when I heard that she had left your house I at once sought her out, told her the truth, and asked her to come here each day to aid me with my correspondence."

Mr. Barth snorted.

"Your secretary, eh?" he muttered.

"Yes, sir, my secretary at present—my wife that is to be."

Not another word was spoken. In grim silence the little family party descended the steps of the big house and turned their faces homewards. Mr. Barth was the first to break the solemn hush, but his words lacked their usual dignity.

"Well," he said, mournfully, "I'm hanged!"—London Tit-Bits.

THE END.

DID ALL HE COULD.

Although the mothers of Johnnie and Willie are warm friends, these boys are always fighting each other.

After a recent battle the victorious Johnnie was urged by his mother to go and make friends with his fallen foe. She even offered to give him a party if he would go over and invite Willie to come to that festivity.

After much urging Johnnie promised to do as his mother wished. So the party came off at the appointed time, and was violently enjoyed by all present. But Willie did not come.

"Now, Johnnie, did you invite him?" asked Johnnie's mother.

"Yes, I did! Yes, mother, I invited him!" answered Johnnie. "I invited him," he added, reflectively, "and I dared him to come."

About the Farm

THE HORSE TRADE.

The present aspect and outlook for demand and prices of horse stock, while not so bright as a couple of years ago, cannot be regarded as by any means discouraging to breeders or to those likely to have that class of stock for sale in the near future. Old and unsound horses are constantly passing off the scene, and acute ills to which horseflesh is liable annually carry off the usual quota, making room for the young stock coming forward to fill the depleted ranks. On the other hand, the opening up for settlement of new lands in many sections of the Dominion, and the construction of new railways and other public works, will constantly call for fresh supplies of horse power, while there is also a more or less steady home and export demand for horses of various classes, some for army purposes, some for high-class saddle and carriage use, and others for heavy-draft and general purposes. While farmers and others having a fancy for the lighter classes, and being fairly good judges of such types, and acquainted with the requirements of the market for such, may do well to devote their attention to the breeding of that class for first-class specimens of which highly-remunerative prices are generally available, farmers, as a rule, are on safer ground in breeding and raising the heavier classes of work horses, for which there is a more extensive and steady demand, and which may be raised and trained for their work with less expense, and are less likely to be depreciated in value or usefulness for their work by slight blemishes or partial unsoundness. The heavy-draft class can, also, as a rule, with judicious handling, be put to work at an earlier age than the lighter sorts, and the mares put to breeding younger, and may do a fair share of farm work while carrying or suckling their foals, and be no worse for such usage. There is every probability that the Western Provinces will furnish a large demand for work horses next spring, while saddle horses of desirable type are, and are likely to be, eagerly sought after, the supply of the latter being notably short. Those who have horses for sale will do well to give special attention to their care and fitting for [illegible] months, as flesh put on a work horse is generally a profitable investment when he is offered for sale, and fitting counts for much in the disposal of a saddle or carriage horse. And as hay and oats are more plentiful, and likely to be less expensive this year than last, the cost of preparing horses for sale should be comparatively less, so that those who have horses for sale, or who are disposed to speculate judiciously in such property, would appear to have a reasonably good prospect for a profitable business.

Meantime, farmers, it would appear, may safely continue to breed and raise a few colts each year, provided they produce good specimens of the classes most in demand, remembering that it costs no more to feed and raise a horse likely to sell for a high price than one less desirable, that will class as common.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Have you found out which are your poorest cows? If you have not, better do it now, and if they do not pay for feed and care, don't winter them.

To avoid heaves, cold in the head and other similar troubles in your horse, feed hay from a low manger and not from an overhead rack. Feed only good timothy or bright clover, and never musty hay of any sort.

The best cow in 1850 was the biggest "thief" in the dorve, ready to eat her own hay and steal the half-eaten lock from her weaker associate. The one toughed it through, and the other was skinned in April and her hide sold to buy groceries with. Now, the stable, the well-proportioned ration, the generous basket of ensilage, and the water distributed to each in the manger, make the underling cow the pride of the dairy and the profitable cow; while, by the other plan, the bully of the drove was the best cow, because she lived and the other died.

Come now, be honest. Do you know just what your cows are doing for you? Ten chances to one that there are some robber cows in your herd and you don't know it, because you have never kept any record of their milk yield, neither have you tested their milk as to butter fat content. It is just guess work with you. What would you think of the merchant in town that was content to handle goods year in and year out without knowing whether it was at a profit or loss? And yet that is exactly what the dairy farmer is doing who does not know each individual cow and what she is doing for him. Make up your mind to begin at once to find out what each cow is doing and weed out the unprofitable animals.

ENGLAND'S UNEMPLOYED

A WINTER OF GREAT DISTRESS IS PREDICTED.

Thousands Parade Streets and Serious Outbreaks are Certain to Come.

England is face to face with the most serious condition of unemployment in her history, and unless relief is provided on an unprecedented scale during the coming winter, bread riots may be expected in many of the principal cities, writes a London correspondent. Already the mutterings of discontent have been heard and in Glasgow, at least, bloodshed was only prevented a few days ago by the prompt action of the authorities in yielding to the demands of the workless men and starting relief works.

Unemployment has been growing in England for many years and about three years ago it reached such a point that Parliament passed a bill in a hurry, empowering local authorities to levy a tax for the purpose of providing work for their unemployed. The amount of the tax, however, is strictly limited and it must have the approval of the local govemnment board, the head of which is a member of the cabinet, before it may be levied. This met the situation

FOR THE TIME BEING.

The procession of unemployed disappeared from the streets, and in the parks and other public places groups of men could be seen doing a very little work for rather large pay provided by the taxpayers.

This year, however, the situation is so bad that the unemployed act has broken down. It is clearly evident already that the powers conferred on the local authorities under the act will be totally inadequate to relieve the immense number of unemployed workmen who are clamoring for work or food and whose numbers will be increased as the weather becomes more severe. The following are the approximate numbers of unemployed reported in some of the principal cities in the middle of September:

London	200,000
Leeds....	3,000
Liverpool	25,000
Glasgow	20,000
Bristol	2,000
Manchester	11,000
Belfast	10,000
Dundee	5,000
Sheffield	12,000
[illegible]	13,000

In a[illegible] to the [illegible] industrial town in the kingdom [illegible]s quota of unemployed and the number is being steadily increased. It is evident how little the making of new parks and roads can do to provide employment for this great army.

SOCIALISTS ARE BUSY.

The most dangerous feature of the situation is the bold attitude adopted by the leads of these idle men. Socialism has made great strides in England of recent years and the English workman is no longer contented "with that station of life to which God has called him." He no longer accepts starvation and cold as acts of God. He now demands the right to work and the right to live and if he is denied them he is developing a very ugly temper toward those whom he holds responsible for his plight.

A few days ago a mob of 15,000 unemployed men in Glasgow, led by well-known Socialists and singing revolutionary songs, started on a midnight march from the centre of the town to the district inhabited by the wealthy citizens. Their avowed object was to call at lord Provost's house and force him to do something for their relief, but many of the orators, who harangued them before starting did not hesitate to advise them to raid

THE HOUSES OF THE RICH.

The procession was ridden down by mounted police and dispersed before it got half way, and if the police had not been able to deal with the mob, the King's Own Scottish Borderers were awaiting with bayonets fixed and rifles loaded at their barracks ready to be called on. Since the procession two Socialists have been sent to prison for advising the mob to use bombs of red pepper against the police and the lord provost has traveled post-haste to London to secure the consent of the local govemnment board to a plan for providing work on an extraordinary scale.

In Liverpool, a few days ago, 12,000 unemployed dock laborers marched to the city hall and demanded work. Their leaders did not hesitate to predict that if work or bread were not forthcoming they would loot the city. The mayor and councilors promised at once to appeal for power to relieve them and a truce was declared. Practically the same thing has occurred at Belfast where a large number of shipbuilders and linen workers are unemployed. Their leaders threatened, and the municipal authorities promised.

SUBSTITUTES FOR TOBACCO.

Some of Them are Very Injurious to the Health.

The Indians along the Alaska coast have a very curious substitute for tobacco, which is composed of wood shavings saturated with a strong solution of pepper. The practice, however, is extremely injurious, the strong fumes acting on the mouth and eyesight.

Among the farmers of the West it is no uncommon practice for them to smoke the leaves of tomato and potato plants. While these plants both contain a narcotic poison, the smoking of leaves in moderation is harmless. Excessive use, though, produces a heavy stupor, from which the smoker awakes with a terrible headache and a feeling of utter exhaustion. Insanity and suicide have often been caused by the immoderate use of these two weeds. Rhubarb, beet, and even garden sage leaves are all smoked by farmers, but are perhaps the least harmful substitutes for tobacco.

Indian hemp is smoked by nearly all classes in Jamaica with terrible results. It is supposed that this weed was used by the leaders of the Indian Mutiny to unbalance the minds of the Sepoys and to excite them into the terrible passions of raging mania which they exhibited during that campaign.

In Great Britain we hear of people who, unable to get the real article, procure substitutes of their own manufacture. Rustics in out of-the-way places in the British Isles largely use "coltsfoot tobacco." It is simply a powdered form of the leaves of the common coltsfoot, a plant found growing wild in chalky soil. The smoke causes no terrible after-effects, although [illegible] say that it is injurious to [illegible] Because this tobacco relieves [illegible] cult breathing, it is known [illegible] finest remedy on the earth [illegible] tarrh."

Among the least harmful of [illegible] stitutes for tobacco will be found dried holly leaves, the bark of the willow tree, and leaves of the stag's horn sumach, which are all smoked by the American Indians.

Quack—"So you prefer me to Dr. Pall?" Mrs. Mulligan—"Och, indade, doctor, dear; ye're a dale betther than the other ould humbug."

"You want me to tell you the whole truth?" asked the witness. "[illegible]inly," replied the judge. "[illegible]e whole truth about the plain[illegible]?" "Of course." "Might I ask [illegible]w long this Court expects to [illegible]?" "What difference does that [illegible]ake?" "It makes a lot of difference. I couldn't tell the whole truth about that scoundrel inside of a week, talking all the time."

Pastimes of Nan and Dan

"I DON'T believe you care one little bit, Dan, as to how my Halloween party will turn out," exclaimed Nan, half petulantly, half smilingly. "'Cause you haven't offered a teeny, weeny idea for making it altogether 'different'—and you know that's the only party I care to give."

"Oh, yes, I have, Nan," Dan replied; "and I have a scheme that I think you'll find rather attractive."

Here Dan went to his workbox and drew forth a little tray, upon which were several tiny articles.

"A tea set, as I live! And everything, teapot, cups, saucers and all, made from acorns! Dan, you're positively wonderful. But what has this to do with my party?"

Nan's big brother smiled. "Don't you see?" responded he. "I'm going to get you a number of acorns that are still soft, and you'll have an acorn party. Your guests will be provided with keen knives, and then they must make all the little fancy articles they possibly can from the acorns. The one who does the very best will receive this tea set for a prize."

"That will just be lovely!" cried Nan, jumping up and down in her glee.

It really was a good idea for a party. The girls and boys whom Nan invited enjoyed themselves hugely, and they had no end of fun. Some of the articles were so crude and looked too funny for anything; while others were made very, very skilfully. Baskets, necklaces, cradles, watch charms, earrings, pendants, rings, bracelets—'most everything they made.

OTHER ACORN MANUFACTURES

And when, at the close of the evening, the first prize was awarded, and lots of other acorn souvenirs which showed Dan's clever workmanship were distributed, the girls and boys voted it the most entertaining Halloween party they had ever attended.

DOG FRIEND OF WOMAN.

In Manchuria, Dogs are Given as Dowries.

Everywhere is the dog the friend of man, but in Manchuria he is more strictly the friend of woman. There the dowry of a young woman does not consist of hard cash as in Europe, but in a certain number of sleek dogs with thick or silken hair. The girl's status may almost be guessed by her wedding portion of dogs. If she receive six she is poor; if a dozen, her parents are in easy circumstances; and if twelve dozen it may be taken that she comes from a rich family. They are carefully fattened for their savory flesh, and their skins after death become coverlets, pelisses, vests for hunters, or bedside carpets which scarcely ever wear out. Even to its fur the devotion of the dog is warm and lasting.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Gossip About Some of the World's Prominent People.

The German Emperor is never without his revolver, and he is extremely skilful in the use of the weapon. It is inspected and freshly primed every morning, so as to make sure it is in perfect working order. Firmly convinced that he is going to die by the hand of an Anarchist—this fate having been prophesied for him long ago—he is determined to make a stern fight for his life, and to have, at any rate, the satisfaction, if he falls, of inflicting some injury upon his assailant.

Princess Louis of Battenberg shares with Lord Charles Beresford man in the Navy. He is a strict disciplinarian, but not a despot; and he is, perhaps, the best and most thoroughly up-to-date officer in the Royal Navy to-day. Everything new to science, so far as it affects his profession, he has at his fingers' ends. His knowledge of mechanics is that of a skilled expert, and many of his inventions and improvements are in daily use in the Navy at the present moment.

Apropos of the fact that the German Emperor has a well-equipped pottery, which brings him in £10,000 a year, it is interesting to note that the King of Wurtemberg owns two large hotels, which yield him a yearly income of some £8,000. The King of Saxony owns the famous porcelain factory at Meissen, and the Regent of Lippe Detmold runs a large model farm, from which he sells butter and milk and eggs. The King of Servia is said to own a barber's shop and an apothecary's shop, in addition to which he holds an agency for motor-cars.

To fresh air and exercise Mme. Patti attributes the preservation of her marvellous voice. "My golden rule in singing," she says, "is to spare myself until the voice is needed, and then never to give it all out. Put it in the bank. I do not push my voice for the pleasure of the moment. If you are prodigal of your powers at such times, the next time you wish to be generous you cannot. Fresh air and plenty of it is of vital importance to the singer. Every day that it is not too inclement I take from two and a half to three hours' exercise in the open air, driving and walking. To this regimen I attribute in great degree my good health and powers of endurance. There is nothing like fresh air and exercise for keeping the voice in good order."

Whereas absolute quietness and peaceful surrroundings are found to be essential when working by many of our best-known authors, Sir Gilbert Parker confesses that he can write anywhere. "There are times," he says, "when absolute silence is painful, and then a hand-organ under the window is a positive relief. Usually I write with comparative ease and facility, and if a thing does not seize me I drop it for a time. Once absorbed in a novel, and I can write under almost any circumstances. One of the concluding chapters of 'The Trail of the Sword' I wrote in a railway train; two chapters of 'The Translation of a Savage' I wrote between London and New York. Some of my short stories have been written among crowds of people; one was written at a railway-station when I was waiting for a train."

On the London streets there are 5,329 hansoms, 3,768 four-wheeled cabs, 2,281 horsed omnibuses, 1,509 motor-cabs, and 1,046 motor-omnibuses.

LIBERAL MAJORITY ABOUT 50

Returns Indicate 130 Liberals, 83 Conservatives and Two Independents. Six Contests to be Held at Later Date.

The Laurier Government was on Monday returned to power by a majority which will almost equal that which it possessed in the late parliament. The latest returns show a majority of fifty over the Conservatives, and as the postponed elections will probably result in the return of Government supporters the Premier will meet the House with a majority of about sixty. As he had about sixty-in the late House, the relative standing of the two parties is insignificant In fact, there has not been a general election in Canada since confederation which affected so slightly the standing and personnel of the parties. They both stand part.

Quebec appears to have given each party exactly the same vote it gave in 1904—52 to 11. Ontario changed its Liberal representation by one, from 39 to 38. Nova Scotia elected six Conservatives in place of one; New Brunswick eleven Liberals in place of seven, and Prince Edward Island three instead of one—making the martime Province representation, Liberal, 26; Conservative, 9 In the last Parliament it was Liberal, 25; Conservative 10. West of Lake Superior the parties appear to have split nearly even, our latest reports giving the Liberals 15 to the Conservatives 14. As all the poll have not yet been heard from thers may be changes, but not material ones.

The changes in the personnel of the parties are also insignificant. But one Liberal of prominence has been defeated—the Hon. Mr. Templeman, Minister of Inland Revenue, having apparently gone down by a small majority. On the Conservative side the changes are a little more pronounced Mr. Bergeron being defeated in Beauharnois, Mr. Fowler in Kings-Albert Mr. Bennet in East Simcoe, and Mr. Lefurgey in Queens.

On the whole the new house will practically be the old House.

Net Conservative gain 8. Government's net majority over all, 48. Majority over Conservatives 50.

There are seven deferred elections to be held—those in Gaspe and Chicoutimi-Saguenay, in Quebec; Prince Albert, in Saskatchewan; Comox-Atlin, Kootenay and Yale-Caribou, in British Columbia, and the Yukon.

These are at present all Government constituencies and it is safe to assume that they will increase the majority as given above. Should all of them return Liberal members, the Government's majority over the combined vote of the Conservatives and Independents will be an even 55 or 5 less than in the late Parliament.

Ladies' Aid Entertainment a Success.

The entertainment held in Foster's Hall last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, Chesterville, was, as was expected, a success in every particular. The evening proved rather inclement, and no doubt kept a number from a distance from attending. Harold Jarvis is too well known in this place for an criticism. He has appeared here on several occasions, and each succeeding visit only placed him in the higher estimation of the music-loving public. Last evening was no exception to the rule. Miss Mabel Sweet, elocutionist, of Winchester, gave several selections, which were well received. Miss Sweet is no stranger to a Chesterville audience, having appeared here several times, and her ability as an elocutionist is well known. Mrs. Wilson, soprano, of this place, appeared to good effect, and her numbers were well received Mrs. Wilson, although only being a recent resident of this place, has sang in the Methodist Church several times to good effect. Other numbers on the program which received a hearty applause were the piano duetts of the Misses Fisher and Foster, and the Misses Ball and Sullivan.

The accompanist of the evening was Mrs. T. Nash, of Ottawa. It is only necessary to mention her name—the rest is widely known in this district.

The Ladies' Aid are to be congratulated in their attempt to put on such a high-class entertainment, and if the financial part is not too succssful, the public received the benefit.

Broder Wins In Dundas.

Since our last issue election day has come and gone and now the people will have to be content for another four years. Although Dundas is pretty Conservative the Liberals put up a game fight. During the day quite a lot of money was bet on the result of the county, but it was not conceded by either party that Mr. Broder would have such a majority as the following figures show:—

Instantly Killed at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 26.—Edward Bostridge, the 18 year-old son of Charles A. Bostridge, met death last evening on an electric pole on the corner of Centre and Union streets. In a spirit of fun he started to climb the pole and grasped the guy wire above the "cut-out." He received a shock that must have killed him instantly. His companions carried him into a house and soon after he was removed to the General Hospital, where doctors worked over him for two hours, but of no avail. Coroner Mundell decided an inquest was unnecessary.

The death occurred in the Brockville Hospital on Saturday of Mr. Robert Willis, a well-known resident of Kemptville. The deceased had been ill for several months and a couple of weeks ago he was taken to the above institution for treatment but nothing could be done to save his life. The late Mr. Willis was born in Montague and when a young man moved to North Gower, where he carried on a furniture and undertaking business for a number of years He was 65 years of age. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, who is a sister of Mr. Charles Coglan, Smith's Falls, and three daughters and two sons, namely: Miss Belle, trained nurse, of Ottawa; Mrs. Wm. McDonald, of Kemptville; Mrs. Wm. Swift, of Montreal; Charles Willis, of Portire, Mich., and William, of Brockville. He was a member of the Church of England.

Arbuthnot—Markell.

The marriage took place on Wednesday at the Northfield Methodist church of Sadie L. Markell, only daughter of Mr. Geo. Markell, to Wm. Arbuthnot. Just at twelve o'clock the bride entered the church on her father's arm, while Miss McMillan of Grantley played the wedding march. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of cream tamoline silk, made in princess, trimmed with applique, and wore a veil and orange blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Arbuthnot left on the six o'clock train for Montreal. The bride's travelling suit was of brown chevoit, brown velvet hat to match with large cream plume. On their return they will reside in Northfield. They carry with them the best wishes of their many friends. The bridesmaid, Miss Hessie Markell of Newington wore pale blue silk trimmed with cream insertion. Mr. Walter Arbuthnot, brother of the groom acted as best man. After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. W. J. Beamish, of Newington, the guests went to the home of the bride's parents, where a tastily prepared dinner was served. The bride received a large number of presents, denoting the esteem in which she was held.

Mr. Robert Melvin Dead.

The death of Mr. Robert Melvin occurred at Hamilton at midnight on October 17, 1908, at the ripe age of 80 years. In company with Mr. Wegenast, managing director, and Mr. Clement, first vice-president of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, Waterloo, Ont., of which he was president, Mr. Melvin had been during the week on a trip to New York in the interests of the company, and on the way home, on the afternoon of Saturday, the 17th inst., he took ill on the train as it was nearing Hamilton, and was not able to continue his journey home. He was conveyed to the Waldorf Hotel, Hamilton, but gradually became weaker and died at 11 o'clock the same evening, from heart failure.

Previous to his retirement from business in 1871, Mr Melvin was for 22 years a successful hardware merchant, founder, and agricultural implement manufacturer in Guelph, to whose council he was elected in 1859. He afterwards was the first reeve, elected by the people, and held that position for two years. In 1875, he became mayor, retaining his seat for two years. He retired from municipal office in 1878. He was one of the first directors of the Mercantile fire insurance Company of Waterloo, and served in that capacity for 20 years. He was president of the Guelph Board of Trade, a member of the Board of Health, and a director of the Guelph General Hospital. Among other financial enterprises with which he was connected may be mentioned the Guelph & Ontario Investment & Savings Society, one of the most successful institutions of its kind in the country, and of which he was president for many years. Mr. Melvin was better and more widely known by his connection with the Mutual Life of Canada, in whose success he took a deep concern. He was one of its provisional policyholders, and from the infancy of the company manifested an active interest in its prosperity. Upon the adjournment of the first annual meeting he was appointed by board a director of the company, and served continuously on the board until his death. He was elected vice-president in 1871, and upon the death of the first president, Mr. I. E. Bowman, in 1897, Mr. Melvin succeeded to the presidency, in which position he he has served the company with ability. He was a man of broad and progressive judgment and matured experience, and, in the investment of the company's funds, as well as in other respects during the past thirty-eight years, rendered invaluable services to the compauy.

Gallinger—Alguire.

A very pretty house wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Gallinger at Gallingertown, on Oct. 14th when their sister Miss Dianna Gallinger, was united in marriage to Mr. George Alguire, of Harrison's Corners. As the hour 6 o'clock arrived the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her brother to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Celia Bryan. The bride wore a handsome suit of navy blue broadcloth, with ecru net blouse over white silk. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Alguire, daughter of the groom looked charming in Blue suit and blouse of white silk organdie over white silk. Mr. Reuben Gallinger was groomsman. Rev. T. C. Cassidy, Aultsville, tied the nuptial knot. After the congratulations the bridal party led the way to the dining room where a dainty wedding supper was laid. The table decorations were in green and white and the house throughout was tastefully decorated with evergreens and roses. Later in the evening an address was read by Mr. Jas. Bryan and a handsome Oak Rocker was presented by Messrs. Wm. Neil and Jack McConnell on behalf of the people of Gallingertown. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Aguire will reside at Harrison's Corners.

ManyDown With Pleurisy,

Doctors say the country is full of it. First comes a chill, then cold develops—the Inflamation grows—you can't draw a long breath—lungs and sides get sore and pleurisy sets in. A good home-cure consists in taking twenty drops of Nerviline every four hours. Supplement this by vigorously rubbing the sides and chest with Nerviline, and when warmth and circulation are established, put a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the aching spot. Nerviline treatment is always successful in colds, neuralgia, and pleurisy. Try it yourself.

Hart, R. Hanes and C. Daley.

Brakesman Meets Terrible Accident.

John A. McDermott, a C. P. R. brakesman, met with a horrible accident, which will in all probabilty prove fatal early yesterday morning near Myrtle. His train had stopped and he had gone ahead for a light. The train started and he waited for it. After the locomotive had passed he attempted to jump on the first car of the train. In some way he missed his footing and fell both legs falling under the wheels. He was run over by the twenty-six cars in the train. When found he was unconscious and both legs were badly crushed. He was brought on the train to West Toronto, from which place he was removed to the Western Hospital. There it was said that he was in a precarious condition.

McDermott's home is at 180 East Dundas Street, West Toronto. He is a married man of twenty-six years of age and has two young children. He has been employed with the Canadian Pacific Railway for about a year, and before that was a conducter on the Toronto street railway.

Crushed Under Horse.

On the farm of L. Stanley, of Metcalfe, a lad named Sydney Plummer was instantly killed. He was driving a horse attached to a cart, and in passing through a gate the vehicle caught the post and upset. The horse was thrown and the boy, falling under it, had his life crushed out before assistance arrived.

What Causes "Nerves."

Most people say worry—they are wrong—the Cause is in the blood which is thin and lacks nutriment. To cure "Nerves" more blood, sinew and flesh are required You get these quickly by taking Ferrozone. No bringer is so certain, no nerve strengthener more potent, no system, tonic so well adapted to the wants of the run-down, nervous or sleepless. Let Ferrozone build you up, let it fill you with vim, energy and surplus vigor. It has done this for thousands.

RHEUMATISM RECIPE.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable though simple and harmless prescription, which any one ean easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparil'a, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Given a Rousing Reception.

Ottawa, October 27.—Ottawa Liberals to-night welcomed home Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who arrived from Quebec at 11 o'clock. It was not known until late in the evening that the Premier was coming up to-night, and the fact that he was to arrive was announced by dodgers circulated in both languages.

By the time the train pulled in at the Union Depot the streets were thronged for blocks with cabs and 'buses, many of them bearing transparencies commemorative of the Liberal victory.

As Sir Wilfrid alighted from the train he was greeted by the officers of the Ottawa Reform Association, headed by President F. M. Journeaux.

After an exchange of congratulations a procession was formed from the car Lady Laurier, escorted by Senator Belcourt, passed first through the long aisle of citizens, and following them came the Prime Minister, linked arm in arm with his running mate in Ottawa, Mr Hal. McGiverin. Hon Mr. Broderur was also in the party, which was given a rousing reception

A procession was immediately formed, several thousand citizens participating in the demonstration, and the Premier was escorted to his home with much fireworks, cheering and music from several bands.

FRANCIS SHIRKEY.

Ttray Bullet Hits Engineer.

Some careless hunter nearly caused a fatality on Lake St. Francis on Friday. The tug Glyde was anchored about a dozen miles below Lancaster owing to the dense fog, and a stray bullet passed through the arm of the engineer, J. Dorien, who was standing in the door of his engine-room.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. Correct any constipation by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

FROZEN TO DEATH IN STORM

The Blizzard Was Bad for Men and Sheep in the West

A despatch from Medicine Hat, Alta., says: Terrible stories of suffering are coming in from the ranches following the recent storm, which was unprecedented in fury or in the period of the fall at which it swept the country. One death is known to have occurred in the country away to the south of here, and many are feared, as the herders were caught absolutely without warning away on the prairies. One man whose death is reported was Donald Cameron, herder on Alex. Shaw's sheep ranch near Cypress Hills. He had with him as companion an assistant named D. Fraser. They were in charge of a large band of sheep on Monday afternoon when the storm broke on them. They were unable to locate the camp, and had to abandon the sheep. Cameron became exhausted on the way, and Fraser assisted him for fifteen hours, practically carrying him a great deal of the time. Finally Cameron could go no farther, and urged his companion to abandon him, as therein lay the only hope for his safety. Fraser heroically refused to leave him, and stayed until Cameron died. He then pushed on in search of shelter, and finally reached the D. D. B. ranch more dead than alive, having been 60 hours exposed to the bitter storm, without food or sleep. A relief party started out and found the body of Cameron where he had dropped and died. Three thousand sheep were drifted into many inland lakes, and only three hundred were saved. The report of the death of Cameron was made by Witchell, whose ranch is located sixty miles south of here. He had a desperate ride, and was in the saddle from Wednesday until Saturday night.

THE YEAR'S WHEAT CROP

The Prairie Provinces Produced 95,818,000 Bushels.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Ontario's wheat yield for this year, according to reports received by the Agricultural Department correspondents in all parts of the Province, is estimated at 17,264,000 bushels, an average of 21 bushels per acre. The oat crop is estimated at 108,794,000 bushels, an average of 35 bushels per acre. The barley crop, 21,570,000 bushels, an average of 29 bushels per acre. The hay and clover crop 5,329,000 tons, an average of 1½ tons per acre.

The total wheat crop of Manitoba is estimated at 51,748,000 bushels, an average of 17½ bushels per acre. Saskatchewan's wheat crop is placed at 35,940,000 bushels, an average of 15 bushels per acre. Alberta's wheat crop is estimated at 8,130,000 bushels, an average of 30 bushels per acre. For oat crop the estimated total yields are: Manitoba, 50,267,000 bushels, or 38 per acre; Saskatchewan, 29,763,000 bushels, or 32 per acre; Alberta, 25,451,000 bushels, or 49 per acre.

MATHESON FIRE-SWEPT.

New Ontario Town Almost Wiped Off the Map.

A despatch from North Bay says: The new town of Matheson on the T. & N. O. Railway, originally called McDougall's Chutes, was visited by fire on Thursday night, and the town is virtually wiped out. Flames were first discovered about 10 o'clock in the Abitibi Hotel, and spreading rapidly, quickly leaped to adjoining buildings, which, the town being without fire appliances of any kind, quickly burned. Buildings with living rooms overheal were soon licked up by the leaping flames. A bucket brigade was formed, and worked manfully between the river close by and the burning buildings, but little could be done to check the flames. The buildings were mainly of frame construction and covered with tarpaper. W. James was injured, but not seriously. The T. & N. O. Railway station escaped the flames.

COAL MINES MAY CLOSE.

No Water for Steam or Washing in Southern Illinois.

A despatch from Chicago says: Unless there is a rainfall soon in the southern part of Illinois the coal mines will have to shut down for want of water for making steam and for operating their coal-washing machinery, according to coal traffic officials of the Burlington, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, and Illinois Central roads. Scarcely any rain has fallen in Franklin and Williamson counties, where most of the coal mines are located, since last May, they say, and many of the mines already have been forced to shut down.

WHEELS CRUSHED HIS HEAD.

Merrickville Man Killed in Yards at Smith's Falls.

A despatch from Smith's Falls says: Richmond Ambrose Geraldi, aged 20, was instantly killed in the C. P. R. yards here on Friday night. It is supposed he stepped off the 8.25 train before it stopped, and striking a switch post, was hurled back on the track, the wheels passing over his head. He had been on a visit to his grandmother in Almonte and was returning to Merrickville, where he was employed in Watchorn's woollen mill.

STEAMER IROQUOIS BURNED.

Ran on a Rock Near Spanish Mills in a Fog.

A despatch from Little Current says: The mail steamer Iroquois, from Little Current to Cutler, went on a rock on Saturday morning near Spanish Mills while running nearly full speed in the fog and smoke. She listed over until the promenade deck was under water. The cook stove and lantern upset and set fire to the boat. The Charlton's tug Fraser, which was a boom near by, heard the cry of distress and came and took the passengers and crew aboard and taken to the lifeboats. The mail of mail was all that was saved. The passengers lost their baggage and the crew everything they had on board. The steamer was a strong, seaworthy boat and belonged to T C. Simms, Little Current.

MOTHER AND SON PERISH.

A Shocking Fire Accident at Winnipeg on Saturday.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: A terrible accident, which resulted in two deaths, occurred on Saturday morning, when Mrs. I. Holmes attempted to light a fire with coal oil. The can exploded, igniting her clothing. Her only son, a lad about twelve years of age, rushed to her assistance, and in an heroic attempt to save his mother was fatally burned himself. Both died later in the hospital.

SMOKE-POISONING.

Death of Mrs. T. M. Scott in Port Arthur Hospital.

A despatch from Port Arthur says: The terrible forest fires in this vicinity have been responsible for at least one death, though it occurred under somewhat remarkable circumstances. The victim is Mrs. T. M. Scott, who died in the hospital on Friday from smoke-poisoning as the result of her system becoming saturated with smoke at her home, where she was surrounded by fire for several weeks.

THREE YEARS FOR $10.

Brockville Thief, With a Bad Record, Gets Heavy Sentence.

A despatch from Brockville says: Ambrose Godkin, aged 25, was on Wednesday sentenced by Judge McDonald to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary for the theft of $10. He has a bad record.

Gas buoys at Bar Point and opposite Sarnia, recently installed, have been carried away.

Thomas Kelly & Sons of Winnipeg have been awarded the contract for the new car shops at Winnipeg in connection with the G. T. P. terminal.

LAURIER ONCE AGAIN

Latest Returns Give Liberals a Majority of 39 Seats.

With 211 Constituencies Reported Grits Have 125 and Conservatives 86—Ontario Showed Total Gain of Two Ridings—New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Western Provinces Are Surprised.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—It is four more years of Laurier. Probably in the general result the public were not surprised, but the good guessers in arriving at their total figures were a long way out in many instances.

At midnight there were 125 Liberals and 86 Conservatives elected. Seven constituencies will vote later.

The surprises were Ontario, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and the west.

Ontario was expected to give a much larger majority to the Conservative party. The majority in the old House was eight, and the Conservatives confidently expected it would exceed 20, some even predicting as many as 40 to the good. But Mr. Borden's followers from Ontario has been increased by two only.

Among the Conservative gains in Ontario were Centre York, North Grey, Parry Sound, North Ontario, West Hamilton, South Bruce, East Peterboro, but they made losses in North Waterloo, Brantford, Stormont, Prince Edward, South Ontario, East Simcoe and North Perth. No one had any idea that Alex. Maclaren would lose his seat for North Perth. The Perths were to be "solid for Borden," but both went Liberal, and the Simcoes were likewise in the Borden column until the returns began to come in, when Mr. Bennett, the "stormy petrel," was found to have lost his place in the House.

The Conservative leader has two seats to sit in, for he was also elected in Carleton. As Carleton is a Conservative hive, he will likely decide to sit for Halifax.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has also too many seats, having been elected for Ottawa as well as Quebec East

SOMETHING OF A FARM.

Mr. E. Burke, of Gainsboro', Sask., Makes Sale of Wheat.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Sixty thousand bushels of wheat is the immense crop of E. Burke of Gainsboro', Sask., one of the bonanza farms of the west, and one of the largest individual farmers in the entire world. All graded Nos. 1 and 2. He was in the city on Friday and disposed of twenty-three thousand bushels.

LIKE THORNS IN THE FLESH

the Sharp Twinges and Tortures of Rheumatism---Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a Certain Cure.

The twinges and the tortures of rheumatism are not due to cold, damp weather as so many people imagine. Rheumatism comes from poisonous acid in the blood. The pains may be started by cold weather, damp weather or by keen winds. There is only one way to cure rheumatism. It must be treated through the blood. All the liniments and rubbing, and so-called electrical treatment in the world will not cure rheumatism. The acid that causes the disease must be driven out of the blood and the blood enriched and purified. It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, red blood that they have cured thousands of cases of rheumatism after all other treatment had failed. As a proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do even in the most severe cases of rheumatism, the case of Mr. David Carrol, a well known furniture dealer of Picton, N. S., may be cited. Mr. Carroll says:—"I have been a most severe sufferer from rheumatism, and in the hope that some other poor sufferer may find relief from my experience I gladly write you of the benefit I have received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The trouble started in my shoulders and down my sides and at times I was quite unable to raise my arm. I was attended by a doctor, but as I did not appear to be getting any better I sent for a so-called electric belt for which I paid $40.00. It did not do me any good and then I tried another remedy, but without any better results. A friend asked me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got three boxes, by the time I had used them all I found the stiffness and pain less severe, and I got another half dozen boxes. When I had taken these every symptom of the trouble had disappeared and in the two years that have had no re- believe there equal to Dr. Pink Pills for curing this painful trouble, and I have recommended the Pills to others who have been benefitted by their use."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only cure rheumatism, but all the other diseases due to poor watery blood, such as anaemia, indigestion, nervous disorders, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, paralysis, and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood, with their headaches, backaches, side aches and attendant miseries. Only the genuine Pills can do this and you should see that the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," is on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CZARINA A SAD FIGURE.

Wife of Russia's Ruler is Embodiment of Melancholy.

The Czarina is certainly one of the saddest figures in the Russian world. Her face has melancholy written upon it—melancholy and resignation. Brought up in the narrow atmosphere which surrounded her mother, the Princess Alice, she had a youth full of depressing incidents. She was taught to be extremely frugal, to content herself with a few shillings a week as pocket-money, to examine into the possible results of all her actions and to find a reason for all she did. This scrupulousness led to an immense amount of hesitation as to the change required in her religion when she married the present Czar, and she was miserably unhappy when the change took place. The Czar begged her to marry him long before she would consent. He used to follow her about in his patient way whenever she stayed with her sister, the Grand Duchess Serge, and steadfastly refused to accept her "No" for an answer. Now, however, she has become more Russian than many Russians. She has superstitions and dreams, and this melancholy characteristic, even in her girlhood, has deepened until her life is one long sadness.

INDISPENSIBLE TO MOTHERS.

"I am satisfied that Baby's Own Tablets are indispensible to mothers," says Mrs. Abraham Boucher, Pierreville Mills, Que., and she adds:—"Before using the Tablets my baby was cross, peevish and not thriving well; but the Tablets have worked a great change and my little one is well and happy." This is the verdict of all mothers who have used these Tablets. And better still, mothers have the guarantee of a government analyst that Baby's Own Tablets are absolutely safe — that they contain not one particle of opium or poisonous soothing

DEMANDS OF TURKISH WOMEN

Want Home Life as It Obtains in Other Countries.

One of the most difficult questions which will have to be solved by new Turkey is that of the future of Turkish women. It has already given rise to considerable discussion, and will sooner or later become a national question.

For many years among the better classes there has been a steady movement toward emancipation, and the old Turkish life has practically disappeared in all the houses of the educated people. The change came with education, as the daughters of the house were trained by foreign governesses. They began to read foreign literature and papers, and brought up their children better than themselves, with the result that no family of any consequence keeps up the old Turkish customs in their entirety. Thus very few modern Turks have more than one wife, the life in their houses is quite European, including their dress, mode of living, food, etc. Only out-of-doors do they wear the veil as before.

But the women want more; they want to institute home life, and many have done so already. They also desire to receive visitors without restriction, and adopt more becoming dress in public. The educated Turks have no objection to this, provided the change is not too quick, as they also have mixed in foreign society and feel the want of ladies in Turkish society. If it remained with this class alone the change would come rapidly, but there are the common classes and the country people, who cannot understand it, and can never imagine any change by which their women folk should be anything else than what they have been for centuries.

And it is noteworthy that in the provinces that whenever reactionaries have tried to start a movement against the constitution they have always declared that one of the first objects of the constitution would be the complete emancipation of the women and their going about unveiled, and this has never failed to excite the people, as was the case at Medina, where the stiuation was saved by the arrival of a number of troops and the arrest of the agitators. This is the reason Prince Sabah ed Din in his speech last week, specially spoke to women, counseling prudence and moderation.

ENOUGH TO WAKE THEM.

"It's wonderful," said Dubley, "how wide awake the Japanese have become in recent years."

"Oh, it's not so wonderful," replied the observant man, "when you consider that they have an earthquake every night or so in their country."

In the Autumn Rheumatism is so general that all our readers so suffering will be glad to hear that a letter addressed to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., will be to their advantage. Write to-day.

DISAGREEABLE DIFFERENCE.

"Why is a gun like a cat?" asked the conundrum fiend.

"I dunno," replied the victim.

"Because they both go off."

"But there's a difference."

"What is it?"

"The cat comes back."

It is an Officer of the Law of Health.—When called in to attend a disturbance it searches out the hiding-place of pain, and like a guardian of the peace, lays hands upon it and says, "I arrest you." Resistance is useless, as the law of health imposes a sentence of perpetual banishment on pain, and Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was originated to enforce that sentence.

As a pleasant-faced woman passed the corner Harris touched his hat to her and remarked to his companion:— "Ah, my boy, I owe a great deal to that woman." "Your mother?" was the query. "No; my landlady."

Regarded as one of the most potent compounds ever introduced with which to combat all summer complaints and inflamation of the bowels, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial has won for itself a reputation that no other cordial for the purpose can aspire to. For young and old suffering from these complaints it is the best medicine that can be procured.

PEARLS OF TRUTH.

Being sensitive is easier than being sensible.

Trouble soon fades away and dies if neglected.

He who sees no good in others has no good in himself.

Money may buy a house, but it cannot purchase a home.

Even if you are short, it's no good making a long-face over it.

Aim high, if you would succeed, but be sure your gun is loaded.

How often is "conscience" merely another name for "cowardice"?

In a world full of roses, why be continually looking out for the h girl may make a lover , but only a wise woman her husband a lover.

WHAT NEGLECT DID FOR HIM

JAS. E. BRANT SUFFERED TORMENTS FROM KIDNEY DISEASES.

Then He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Became a Well Man — His Experience a Lesson for You.

Athabasca Landing, Alta., Oct. 26 (Special).—That Kidney Disease, neglected in its earlier stages, leads to the most terrible suffering, if not death itself, and that the one sure cure for it in all stages is Dodd's Kidney Pills, is the experience of Mr. James E. Brant, a farmer residing near here.

Mr. Brant contracted Kidney Disease, when a young man, from a strain, and like hosts of others, neglected it, expecting it to go away itself.

But it kept gradually growing worse, till after thirty years of increasing suffering the climax came, and he found himself so crippled that at times he could not turn in bed, and for two weeks at a time it was impossible for him to rise from a chair without putting his hands on his knees.

He could not button his clothes. He was troubled with Lumbago, Gravel and Backache, and tried medicines for each and all of them without getting relief, till good luck turned him to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills started at the cause of his troubles and cured his Kidneys. With cured Kidneys his other troubles speedily disappeared, and to-day he is a well man.

If you cure your Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills you will never have Lumbago, Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Dropsy or Bright's Disease.

MURDERED 20 WIVES.

Cruel Annam Emperor Condemned to Perpetual Exile.

Than Thai, King, or, as he is sometimes called, Emperor of Annam, the most fantastically cruel monarch of modern times, has been condemned to perpetual exile in Algeria by the French Government.

Than Thai murdered twenty of his pretty little wives with tortures of inconceivable cruelty and horror.

Annam is a large country of scuth-eastern Asia, which is under a French protectorate. France permits the native Emperor to rule his own country absolutely in internal affairs except where French interests are specially concerned. Thus it happened that the Emperor was at liberty to carry on murder and torture in his harem for many weeks before anybody ventured to interfere.

Finally the French authorities broke into the Emperor's palace, which he had turned into a morass of blood, and seized the crazy monarch. That was nearly two years ago. Since then the Emperor has been kept under restraint and close observation.

It will be noticed in the Singer Sewing Machine Company's advertisement that there are three addresses at the bottom of the announcement. Any one writing will please address them at the nearest one of the three places to his post office.

NOT RESPONSIBLE.

HUNTING WILD HORSES.

Favorite Sport in New South Wales —Breaking the Animals.

Whether "brumby" is a survival of the aboriginal name for a wild horse or a corruption of "unbranded" appears to be a question which philologists have left undecided, but brumby hunting is still a favorite sport in New South Wales, says the London Standard.

Districts like the Clarence and Stephens and Manning River watershed are still the home of numerous droves of brumbies, and hunting them is declared to be a very exhilarating pastime. The first step taken is to stake out a corral and make all secure except a narrow entrance, which can subsequently be gated. On either side of the entrance and projecting from it funnelwise a "booby fence" is prepared.

To the simple minded brumby it presumably looks like a stockade, and pieces of fluttering cotton make it look impregnable. When this is ready the young bloods, well mounted, gallop out and round up the wild horses, driving them with shouts and much loud snapping of stock whips toward the mouth of the funnel.

In a group of brumbies there is always a leader, and when once the hunters have got the leader for the corral they are pretty certain of the rest of the drove. The fluttering cotton rags of the sham fence are sufficient to deter the brumbies from breaking through the flimsy barriers, and in less time than it takes to tell the wild horses are safely corralled and the big gate shut on them.

Then they are left for four and twenty hours without food and water to reflect on the situation, and after that they can be broken in without much difficulty.

A MAGISTRATE INVESTIGATES ZAM-BUK.

Says It is a Wonderful Healer and Does More Than is Claimed For It.

No household remedy in existence has won such glowing tributes from people in high places as has Zam-Buk. Mr. Roger F. Perry, Justice of the Peace for British Columbia, tested this famous balm, and this is what he says of it:

"The Pavilion,
Goldfields, B. C.

"To the Zam-Buk Co.,

"Gentlemen,—After a very fair trial I have proved Zam-Buk eminently satisfactory. In my case it cured a skin rash of five years standing which no doctor had been able to do any good for.

"I would certainly encourage any person to keep Zam-Buk in their home. It truly does even more than you claim for it. For my own part I would not now be without it in the house. I am, very truly, (Sig[illegible] of Roger F. Perry,

"Justice of the Peace for B. C."

Zam-Buk differs from ordinary salves and embrocations, for while these mostly contain animal oils and fats, Zam-Buk is purely herbal. It soothes and heals cuts, sores, ulcers, eruptions, boils, eczema, chafing sores, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes for $2.50.

MOST APPROPRIATE.

"How did that fellow fare when he started to fish for compliments?"

"He got the hook."

"FERROVIM" IS A GENTLE STIMULANT to the stomach, thereby aiding digestion. As a tonic for patients recovering from fevers and all diseases lowering the vitality, it is without a rival. At all drug and general stores.

Most of the stone marbels used by boys are made in Germany, where the refuse of the marble and agate quarries is utilized for this purpose.

Ill fitting boots and shoes cause corns. Holloway's Corn Cure is the article to use. Get a bottle at once and cure your corns.

The best time to eat an apple for medicinal purposes is just before going to bed.

Any person who drinks 25c tea and once tastes 30c "Salada" will see that it is not only finer in flavor, but that as one pound makes many more cups, it is economical to use.

HOW HE WAS BOUNDED.

"Do you know your orders, sentry?" asked an Irish officer of the soldier on guard-duty.

"Yes, sor," was the prompt reply.

"Know the points of the compass?" continued the officer.

"Yes, sor."

"If you face the rising sun, your left hand would be on the north of you, and your right hand to the south of you. What would be behind you?"

"The knapsack, sor."

"Depressing sort of day, this," said the guest at the small hotel, sitting down to breakfast. "Yes, sir," said the waiter. "Even the milk, you will notice, has got the blues badly."

Singer Talks

10. The Difference Between Poor and Good Cabinet Work

¶ It is a fact not generally known that very few sewing machine manufacturers produce their own cabinet work. This is a distinct industry in itself.

¶ The Singer Company owns and operates the largest and best equipped factory in the world, exclusively devoted to the production of the highest grade sewing machine cabinet work.

¶ Only the finest woods procurable are used. To insure the proper selection of these woods, a corps of expert wood rangers is employed, whose duty it is to purchase individual trees, the grain and growth of which entitle them to use in Singer cabinet work.

¶ This is why Singer cabinet work, besides being the most durable, is also the most beautiful,—the Singer process brings out all the richness and natural beauty of the wood.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER — FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS

I am a woman.
I know a woman's sufferings.
I have found a cure.

I will mail, free of charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about the cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home, without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any docter. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for all female weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER," with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Painful ond Irregular Menstruation in young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all woman's diseases and makes women strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address: MRS. M. SUMMERS, Box 103, Windsor, Ont.

Prevent Disorder.—At the first symptoms of internal disorder, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be resorted to immediately. Two or three of these salutary pellets, taken before going to bed, followed by doses of one or two pills for two or three nights in succession, will serve as a preventive of attacks of dyspepsia and all the discomforts which follow in the train of that fell disorder. The means are simple when the way is known.

Out of Roumania's 6,000,000 inhabitants, only one in three can read and write.

PLEASE BEAR IN MIND that what is called a skin disease may be but a symptom of bad blood. In that case, Weaver's Cerate, externally applied, should be supplemented with Weaver's Syrup, taken daily.

If there's one thing a boy enjoys seeing more than a circus, it is a dog fight.

Do Not Delay.—When, through debilitated digestive organs, poison finds its way into the blood, the prime consideration is to get the poison out as rapidly and as thoroughly as possible. Delay may mean disaster. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a most valuable and effective medicine to assail the intruder with. They never fail. They go at once to the seat of the trouble and work a permanent cure.

Daring Gang Cracked Safe at St. Raphael.

Quebec, Oct. 26.—The branch of La Banque Provinciale at St. Raphael, county of Bellechasse, has been burglarized about 2 o'clock on Saturday morning, and $4,500 carried away. As St. Raphael is situated a long distance in rear of St. Charles station, and without any telegraphic communication, the news received here was of a very meager description. It appeared, however, that the burglars, eight in number, entered the bank and made three attempts to blow it up. The manager, Mr. J. H. Fiset, who resides over the bank, heard the burglars at work and went to a window to call for help, but as he made his appearance one of the burglars on guard fired at him, the bullet entering his left wrist. He naturally withdrew from the window.

A farmer residing opposite the bank also heard the noise and went out of his house with a gun, but the burglars ordered him to drop his arm, which he immediately did, as the criminals held up their revolvers. The men, who spoke English and were well dressed managed to escape.

St. Raphael is a good-sized parish and the transcontinental railway passes at a distance of about seven miles. The bank, it is stated, contained a quantity of money intended for the men's wages. Chief McCarthy, of the provincial police and several of his men left yesterday for the scene of the burglary, but will only return tomorrow. It is stated here tonight that one of the gang is supposed to be a resident of the parish, who has not been seen there since Friday last

THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Tells so Hard on the Stomach it Must Have Help

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country makes stomach troubles. Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Chesterville and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

So reliable is Mi-o-na that W. G. Bolster, with every 50 cent box he sells, gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy cures.

Frank Lawson is nominated for the presidency of the London Canadian club, and A. M. Holt for the secretaryship.

COUNTIES' COUNCIL.

October Session.

The Counties' Council for Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry met on Monday evening of last week at Cornwall.

All the members were present at the opening session except T. A. Bailey, G. L. Brown, R. Fraser, A. J. Kennedy and W. L. Redmond, who arrived later on.

The members are:—

E O'Callaghan, warden.
Cornwall—A. Denny.
Alexandria—D. A. McArthur.
Lancaster village—W. Brady.
Maxville—A. J. Kennedy.
Morrisburg—George L. Brown.
Chesterville—V. Robinson.

Lancaster township—F. D. McRae and J. A. McLennan.
Charlottenburg—Alpin McGregor and Colin Cambpell
Lochiel—J. W. McCuaig and J. B. Johnson.
Kenyon M. McRae and A. K. McDonald.

A number of communications were referred to appropriate committees.

Some of the important communications were:—

A letter from Mr. Barr, Ottawa, offering $600 for the dredge Dundas if accepted within a certain time.

From Mr. Cochrane, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, enclosing his judgment on the report on the disputed boundary road allowance between Mountain and Osgoode townships.

From the Deputy Minister of Education for Ontario, stating that monies levied for Model Schools would not be required, as the government had assumed all the expenses of the Model Schools this year.

The council then adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Tuesday.

The council resumed business at 10 a. m. on Tuesday.

On motion of James Martin and A. J. Shaver the clerk and treasurer were instructed to issue an auctioneer's license for Dundas county to John McAvoy of Newington, dated from March 14, 1900, in place of the licenses held by him for Winchester township (Dec 2. 1907) and Chesterville village (June 26, 1908.)

James Martin presented a petition from the township of Osnabruck, requesting the Lieutenant-Governor to authorize the sending of a government engineer to locate the south-eastern boundry of the township and plant posts or stone pillars wherever necessary to mark the same.

Referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

The council then adjourned [illegible] m., after the clerk had stated [illegible] had been requested to extend an invitation to the members to attend the supper at the Music Hall in aid of the Separate School Fund of the town of Cornwall.

At the afternoon session, after a long discussion on the proposed junk dealers' by-law, the report of the committee on communications was read by the chairman, J. D. McInnes, and adopted. This report recommended that no delegates be sent to the Canadian Conference of Charities and Correction, as the council did not feel like incurring the expense. It also recommended the passing and publication of the by-law regulating junk dealers, suggested by the committee.

Mr. Beckstead gave notice of a by-law to take the assessment of towns and villages between Feb. 1 and July 1 of each year.

Upon motion of J. F. Cass and J. D. McInnes the council accepted the invitation of the ladies in charge of the Separate School Fair, to attend in the Music Hall on Tuesday evening.

The report of the special committees appointed to consider and devise more equitable apportionment of the cost of building and maintaining counties bridges was read by the chairman, John McCuaig. It recommended that no action be taken, as it was believed that the Ontario Government would shortly initiate a measure to assume a proportion of the cost of the said bridges.

Wednesday.

On Wednesday morning the report of the Education Committee was read and adopted. It had two recommendations. The first was that High School Entrance Examination to be held at Dalkeith, and the second that the amounts levied by the several municipalities for Model Schools be refunded, as the Ontario government had assumed all expenses in connection therewith.

A by-law was passed regulating the licensing of junk dealers

When the by-law was read, objection was raised by Mr. Redmond that it would prohibit the sale of wrought iron to foundrymen, dealers in old stoves, etc., and thereby hamper trade.

The by law was passed.

The council then adjourned till 8 p m. to give the committees a chance to get busy.

On Wednesday evening the report of the Roads and Bridges Committee was read and adopted. Its recommendations in brief were as follows:

The payment of accounts amounting to $584 93

That the report of the sub committee appointed at the June session be adopted. They had visited the locality of the proposed county bridge, between Finch and Winchester towuships, and the sub-committee did not favor the adoption of the said counties' bridge, as was not located on the boundry line.

That the council endorse the petition of Osnabruck township, asking for a government engineer to locate the south-eastern boundary, the corner post of which was removed during the enlargement of the Cornwall canal. Osnabruck township to pay all expenses.

That the judgment of the Minister of Crown Lands, and plans of the proposed road allowance between Mountain and Osgoode townships be filed for future reference, the committee being of the opinion that application will require to be made by the townships interested to the commissioners mentioned in Sections 654, 655 and 656, Consolidated Municipalities Act, to determine which of the two road allowances, or what portion of the two, shall be disposed of before the construction of the two boundary bridges shall be proceeded with.

That the council co-operate with the Carleton County Council, in the building of a bridge over the Castore river, opposite lot 14, Mountain township; also over the McCall ditch, the former to be steel, with cement foundations, and the latter a concrete arch. Regarding the former a provision was made that the bridge would be heavy enough to carry a concrete floor it necessary. It was also decided that plans, etc., would be submitted at the January session, the bridges not be built till next summer.

The report of the Finance Committee recommended the payment of the following orders and accounts.—

Printing, advertising, etc....	$ 113 50
Education	1242 60
Registry offices	120.28
Division Court clerks and bailiffs.....	2 14
Administration of justice	87.85
Victoria Industrial School....	65.36
Postage, telephone, express..	45.63
Lunatic, refund account.....	49.20
Water, light and fuel.....	74 25
Roads and Bridges.....	774 09
Gaol and counties' buildings.	306.09
Nation river drainage.....	51.64
Total	$2933.23

Some of its other recommendations were as follows:—

That an auctioneer's license be given gratis to L. D. Bathurst, Glen Robertson who is a cripple.

That the Division Court sittings and list of the county officials and court officials be printed as heretofore, for distribution by the clerk of the peace, the expenses of the same not to exceed $3.

On Thursday a certified copy of a resolution passed by the council of Finch township was read, authorizing their representatives to have the bridge on the Winchester boundary, fifth concession assumed as a counties' bridge.

The report of the Finance Committee was read and adopted.

The supplementary report of the Roads and Bridges Committee, which was read and adopted, disclaimed any legal responsibility regarding the Finch Winchester boundary bridge, although they felt that in a measure the bridge answers the requirements of a county bridge.

They recommended that the communications be fyled.

The report of the Counties Property Committee was read and adopted. It endorsed the action of the clerk and chairman, James Martin, in selling the dredge Dundas for $530 to Mr. Barre of Ottawa, and suggested that the Ontario government be asked to give up their interest in the dredge—8 15 to the parties assessed for the drainage. The committee also recommended that the tender of A. J. McIntosh to supply coal at $6 44 per ton be accepted. Other tenders were W. C. McGuire, $6 70; J. E. Chevrior, $6.65; and A. F. Mulhern & Co, $6 44 They also endorsed several necessary repairs.

As all the other business was disposed of, the warden, E. O'Callaghan, vacated the chair, which was taken by Mr. Beckstead.

A resolution was then passed, on motion of J. D. McInnes and D. A. McArthur, expressing the appreciation of the members of the corteous and fair manner in which the warden had discharged his duties, and also the very efficient services of the clerk and treasurer.

After brief and complimentary remarks by the mover and seconder, F D. McNaughton, J. W. McLeod, A. Denny, T. Bailey, J. F. Cass and the chairman, the resolution was carried by a standing vote and was briefly replied to. The warden was invited to a banquet in his honor by the council, at the Hotel Duquette.

The banquet tendered the warden, E. O'Callaghan, at the Hotel Duquette, by the council, was a very pleasant function. A. Denny presided, with F. D. McNaughton in the vice-chair. The warden replied in feeling terms to the toast of the evening. Other speakers were J. F. Cass, J. D. McInnes, James Martin, J. McCuaig, J. W. McLeod and V Robinson. M. McRae sang a Gaelic song supported by most of the other "Macs" present.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Epidemic Influenza, Grippe, Catarrhal Troubles, Pneumonia Increasing.

A marked increase in troubles of the breathing organs is noted in many localities. If you will only have Hyomei at hand to use with the first attack of Cold in the Head, Pneumonia, Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Croup, in fact any respiratory affection, the trouble will be quickly overcome.

If the attack is neglected and become severe, speedy relief will come in most cases and a persistent use of Hyomei will cure.

The directions for using it vary, but the principle is always the same, that of destroying all the germs in the air you breathe and having it reach the air passages with dry medication from the Pine and Eucalyptus forests.

Remember that liquids or moisture is barred from the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs. It's the dry air of Hyomei that reaches the spot. W. G. Bolster guarantees it.
