Stewart Nimmo, 20 Dies of Injuries Received in Auto Accident

Friends throughout the district were saddened to learn of the death of Stewart Nimmo, 20-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. Alex Nimmo, of Wingham, Ont., formerly of Chesterville and Morewood Presbyterian Churches, which occurred at the Bracebridge Memorial Hospital two weeks ago. Mr. Nimmo's death resulted from a car accident near Gravenhurst on Saturday, August 28th. His death followed that of John Campbell Hanna, who was instantly killed in the same crash.

During his confinement in the Bracebridge Hospital his parents were at his side, as was his sister (Margaret) Mrs. George Malcolm. Rev. and Mrs Nimmo hastened home from Pictou, N.S., to be at his bedside ,and his sister, who was scheduled to sail with her husband for Formosa on the day of the accident, received word in San Fransisco and flew home from there.

The body rested at the Currie Funeral Home. The funeral service was held on Saturday afternoon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The service was conducted by a long-standing friend of the family, Very Rev. C Ritchie Bell, B.A., B.D., of Montreal, assisted by local clergymen.

St. Luke's W.M.S., Finch Holds September Meeting At Brownlee Home

The September meeting of St. Luke's Presbyterian Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Brownlee, with 35 members present.

The president, Mrs. Hector Gillies, occupied the chair and Mrs. Alex MacDougall was secretary.

The Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. J. D. Shaver, who chose as the subject of her lesson "Echoes from the Psalms." This was followed with prayer by Mrs. Paul Valdemar.

The offering was taken by the treasurer, Mrs. Wm. MacMaster, and the roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture containing the word "Courage."

It was decided to postpone the Thankoffering meeting until December to enable the committee to try to secure Miss Beatrice Scott, a missionary on furlough from the Bhil Field in India, as guest speaker.

Address Heard

Miss Jean MacMillan, a member of the Mission Band, gave her address on the life of John Wilkie. Miss MacMillan is one of the speakers entering the W.M.S. public speaking contest.

Mrs. Lyle Shaver was welcomed at this meeting. Mrs. Shaver is press secretary for the Alberta W.M.S. Her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elburn Shaver.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction. Mrs. Hector Gillies moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Brownlee and the ladies who assisted her in serving lunch, Mrs. Valdemar, Mrs. J. L. Shaver, Mrs. D. A. Cameron and Mrs. Roy Rupert.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. C. Rupert.

CHESTERVILLE WINNERS

Mrs. Chas. Collingridge was a very lucky winner last evening at the Winchester Bingo. She copped the First Special Prize and walked away with a handsome $500 Northern Muskrat fur coat.

Mrs. Archie Coulthart, RR 3, will receive $120 next Wednesday night at Photo Nite at Community Theatre. Her name was called last night and she had attended the theatre on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Maxwell, manger of the theatre, will hand her the crisp green stuff upon receipt of her photograph. The contest is under way again this coming week with the starting figure at $100.

Car Does Dipsey-doodle into River Downhill Slide Causes Mishap

Friday last an automobile parked in the Post Office alleyway by mailman Hubert "Joe" Robinson slipped its anchor, took off down the slope and dived over the retaining wall into the roily waters of the Nation. When the car finally settled to the bottom, it was completely submerged. Only an occasional bubble rose to mark the watery resting place. No one was in the car.

The third car in the past two years to slide into the river did it again Friday morning about 9 o'clock. A 1951 model, driven by Hubert Robinson, was the victim.

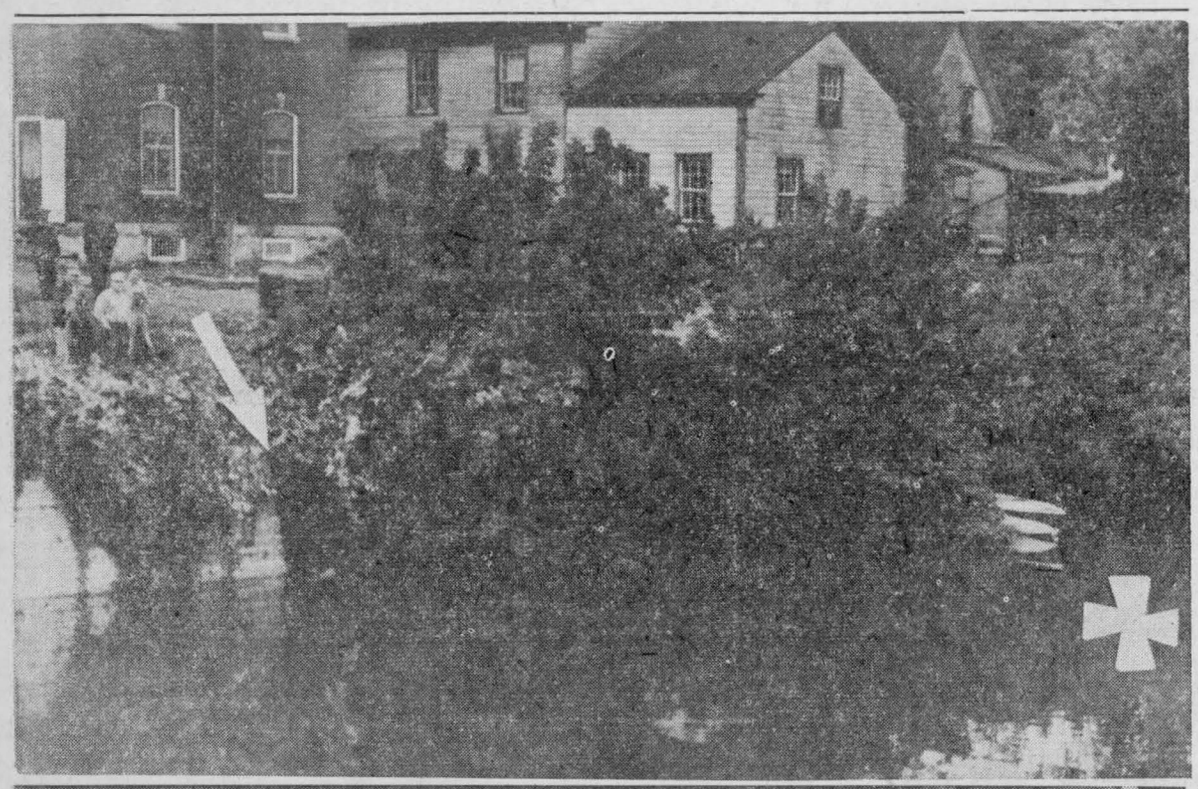

Robinson had pulled into the alley between the Post Office and Fulton Bros. store, a sloping roadway, left the car in gear and entered the office. Suddenly the car started to roll gently towards the river. When it was noticed, there was nothing to be done and the staff of the Post Office and "Joe" could only stand helpless.

The rolling car, as if guided by some mischief-bent gremlin, swung to the right instead of continuing straight ahead. By doing so it missed a barrier of snow fence rolls and rolls of page wire that would have stopped a five-ton truck. Bouncing over an ash pile, the car found the way clear for a swan dive. It swooped over the eight-foot drop of the retaining wall, dropped the front end and landed on the top in the shallow water at the foot of the abutment. The impact was sufficient to crush in the metal top, and to send the vehicle bouncing over in a somersault that left it on its wheels again facing the wall in about ten feet of water. Air in the body kept the auto only partly submerged for a short while, then like the Inchcape bell, "it sank with a gurgling sound."

Rescue operations were started that afternoon.

Gord Lannin took on the job of fishing. He commandeered a boat and enlisted the aid of Garnet Liscumb, in a bathing suit, to hook a cable on the rear of the submerged car and turn it around into shallow water so a cable could be attached from the south bank of the stream. After a couple of cold swims on Liscumbs' part, the cable was attached and the car was eased across the river, until it finally emerged at the south-east side of the highway bridge. From there, it was only a matter of minutes to get the dripping vehicle up the bank and onto level land.

The dunking was the second bit of bad luck for Robinson in the week. The Sunday before his car caught fire and burned and the one that went into the river was owned by Doughty Motors, of Winchester, while his own was being repaired.

X MARKS THE SPOT IN THE UPPER PHOTO where the car of Hubert Robinson rested on the riverbottom after plunging over the abutment wall at the Post Office last Friday. The car pitched over the wall at the arrow, somersaulted and came to rest facing the abutment. Not even the radio aerial was above water when the car finally sank. In the bottom photo our camera caught the car the moment the tow cable tugged it to the surface near the south bank. Gord Lannin and Tommy Moran are keeping an anxious eye on the proceedings from the escorting rowboat. —Record Photos.

BIG POTATOES STILL GROW

Milton Barkley, of Dundela, came into the Record Office this morning with an addition to the potato saga. He had a basket of monsters. Five of them, weighed at Marcellus Meats, tipped the scales at just eleven pounds, three ounces. The largest spud measured nineteen and a half inches in girth. Mr. Barkley tells us he planted a 75-lb. bag of Cobblers and has harvested over 2,100 lbs. Quite a crop!

BACK ON SLOW TIME SATURDAY MIDNIGHT

The end of Fast Time will arrive on midnight of Saturday. At that time it will be necessary to turn the clocks back one hour if churchgoers intend to arrive on time. Train times will change also in some schedules. We will have the new schedules next week.

Park Skating Blacktop Used Cattle Make Show Despite Rain

Rain and more rain during the past week turned the Fair Grounds into a mud hole. As a result, the Chesterville and District Agricultural Society's twenty-third exhibition was sadly curtailed. The bright spot in the picture was provided with the availability of the black-top rink in Chesterville Community Centre Park. That was used and allowed a solid surface to show some of the cattle classes and the calf club demonstrations. All other classes were cancelled.

Red and White Day entries made the largest showing. Herds and cattle were exhibited by H. J. Kittle and Sons, Samuel S. Rose and Sons, Bruce Bros., H. J. Bruce and Sons and Wm. McRoberts and Sons. The black-top area was nearly filled with cattle ranged on all sides and spectators in among them. The show ring was improvised in the centre.

Senior Champion bull was shown by H. J. Kittle and Sons. In the female classes, the Senior Champion was exhibited by Wm. McRoberts and Sons. They also took the Reserve. Junior Get of Sire, Progeny of Dam, Graded Herd and Junior Herd were all won by S. S. Rose and Sons.

Holsteins were represented by the two herds of Basil and Dwight Dawley, of Winchester. B. Dawley had the Grand Champion Bull and the Grand Champion Female.

Golden Guernseys were represented by the herd of Colin MacGregor, Morewood. He was the sole entry in the classes.

The following winners are listed as received at this office by press time:

Car Washing—The Hard Way

The third car in two years has taken a dive into the Nation here in the village. Each time the wandering automobile plopped in at a point where there is no particular barrier at the foot of a slope or wall. To date there have not been any casualties; one swimming vehicle contained a small lad, but fortunately the water was not high enough in the car to endanger the boy's life.

The three points of danger seem to be at spots on the riverside in constant use by parked vehicles. Each one is on private property, although the public makes use of them. In each case a few simple precautions on the part of the car drivers would guarantee that an accident would not happen. The driveway at the Post Office, the scene of Friday's dunking, is a case in point. The auto that took the dive over the high wall was left with the gears engaged but the slope is too steep even for that precaution. A twist of the wheel to the curb would be good insurance.

The other spots that have figured in the news have their own particular hazards that could be easily avoided with more attention paid to the position of the parked car. At the Mill, the yard is large enough to afford plenty of parking without aiming for trouble by pointing the car downhill. At the grading station, the same holds true, and it would seem to be safer to parallel the open space to the river than drive in beside the building.

Stop logs or other barriers will prove of little value in stopping a ton and a half of rolling car. A very small measure of precaution on the part of the drivers will prove of much more benefit and may avert a tragedy.

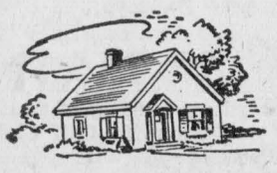

A Measure of Sportsmanship

We worked ourselves into a blue fury on Saturday last and that is an uncommon condition for us. In spite of reports to the contrary, our temper is usually quite mild and, we hope, reasonable.

The reason for the outburst was a blatant piece of unsportsmanlike action on the Rideau and we figured on the short end of the deal. The sum of the matter was the peculiar attitude of three gents from a town some forty miles to the west of us who calmly usurped the writer's lovingly-built duck hide the first day of the season and fouled up said hunter's day in no uncertain manner.

The personal angle of the thing only points up a feeling of frustration that many hunters and others feel each year at about this time. The attitude of so many people towards the game and sport of this country leaves a dirty taste in the mouths of those who try to obey the laws and abide by the rules. Open the seasons and a flood of gun-happy, thoughtless game hogs pour out on our fields and streams and bring anything but praise to the pursuits.

We hate to think the same attitude is carried off the fields and rivers to everyday life. Recognization of right and wrong and good and bad and living with the other fellow means a large measure of give and take. Those that take only and feel no compunction to give, for our book, are not good citizens. If they call it their right to be unmannerly and stupid in the use of our natural resources, what is their attitude in their working and leisure contacts at home?

Light Along The Way

The successful sale of certain types of modern books and the widespread demand for psychiatric treatment, make clear that fear and worry are well known companions of many lives in our day. It is, admittedly, very difficult to be completely free of worry and perhaps not even desirable, since concern for the Right is one of our best motives. But the worry which is characteristic of our age is not so altruistic, and therefore is suggestive of a lack of faith since cares do not hang heavily upon those who have faith sufficient for their needs.

Fear is the absence of faith. When we honestly ask ourselves what it is we are afraid of we discover that many of the things which worry us may never come to pass, and that the rest are really of no importance.

In his First Inaugural Address the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt used these meaningful words: "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." To those who live in the Christian faith this is true. We are in God's hands and, as Jesus said, since we are the most loved of His creatures He will never let us out of His presence. That is what matters, all that matters! Men may break our bones, or take our possessions, or do any of a number of terrible things, but what have we to fear? We are still in God's hands, for that no man can disturb.

Jesus discussed this with His followers long ago. They were disheartened, discouraged, afraid of the outcome of things. He said: "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." (Luke 12: 32). He told them to overcome their fear by setting their minds and hearts on the only thing of value—that treasure which God alone can give and which is beyond the reach of thieves or the damaging forces of this world. In this way they could rise above fear and be free of the entangling meshes of worry. Such freedom is an expression of a sufficient faith.

Dr. William Mason, the English New Testament scholar, wrote: "Faith in God . . . means a trust so absolute that earthly guarantees of well-being are needless . . ." If our faith is what it should be we will be afraid of nothing, and we will not be frantically seeking help at every turn of life's road for the difficulties which we must pass through. It is our privilege to set before the world the calm reassurance that has ever marked the lives of those who have believed in Jesus Christ. The first of His words we must heed are these: "Fear not . . ."

Lawyer: "You say you want to get a divorce on the grounds that your husband is careless about his appearance?"

Client: "Yes, he hasn't shown up in nearly two years."

Mr. St. Laurent's Direct Challenge

(The Ottawa Citizen)

The challenge which Prime Minister St. Laurent has thrown to Quebec's Premier Duplessis had to come sooner or later; the wonder perhaps is that it did not come earlier. For the Union Nationale leader has been steadily sowing the seeds of disunity under the guise of becoming a protector of rights that are not in danger and a redressor of non-existent wrongs.

Mr. St. Laurent chooses to disinguish between the Quebec premier and the fanatic, hard core of "nationalists" whose cause he espouses. The latter, in Mr. St. Laurent's opinion, are sincere in their ultimate aim to establish a separate state, whereas "the National Union leader raises the cry of provincial autonomy to try to cover up the inefficiencies of his own administration—not because he sincerely believes the future or the freedom of the province of Quebec is any danger because Ottawa might pay a subsidy to a Quebec university" (or a grant toward construction ofthe Trans-Canada highway within Quebec).

The honesty and efficiency of Mr. Duplessis' administration is a matter for the people of Quebec themselves, but the road down which the premier is trying to lead his province is of concern to all Canadians. It is the road not to "autonomy"—of which Quebec already enjoys as much as any other province—but to separatism. Sooner or later this issue had to be made clear, and Mr. St. Laurent has done it now. Only a St. Laurent, as a Laurier or an Ernest Lapointe before him, speaking the tongue of the majority in the province, could have put the case so bluntly and unequivocally.

Only time can tell what the political effects of the Prime Minister's open assault would be. In the past, he has shown an uncanny ability to win substantial support from Canadians in other provinces besides his own. Yet he makes few if any campaign promises. When leading his party for the first time in a general election, he dismayed some of the professionals by this curious technique, and by his proclivity for giving little chats to schoolchildren—who had no votes. After two experiences of the St. Laurent campaign technique, the professionals don't worry so much.

Some, however, are now saying that Saturday's tough speech at the Reform Club is going to cost the federal Liberals seats in Quebec. Perhaps, but who will be the beneficiary? Will it be Mr. Drew, who can only make gains in that province by posing as a champion of the "nationalists," suspect in every other part of Canada? Or will it rather be a new bloc of Quebecfirsters, having no more truck with the federal Conservatives than with the Liberals? This, if any change does come about, appears more likely. On the other hand, Mr. St. Laurent, who has often shown that he understands thoroughly the temper of his own people, may emerge from the coming contest as unscarred as ever. This seems the most likely outcome of all.

Dental Decay

From the outside civilization may look like a garden of roses, but there are thorns on the roses. Alcoholism, for example, is peculiar to advanced civilization. So is polio. But the most costly and most recurrently painful of the thorns in the rose garden is dental disease.

Tooth decay is rare among savages. Farther back in the evolutionary scale, when teeth were weapons of combat, it would have been fatal. A carnivorous quadruped with decayed or missing teeth stands as much survival as a popsicle in a Turkish bath.

QUESTION:

"All my life I have had trouble with my teeth. I believe every tooth in my head has had to be drilled and fielled at least once, and some more than once. I am not a heavy eater of sweets, although I do eat my share of candies, cakes, etc. What puzzles me is that my cousin who lives on my block eats as much candy as I do, seldom brushes his teeth, and yet has had only two fillings in 35 years to my knowledge. Is it possible that sweets arent' the answer to what causes tooth decay?"

ANSWER:

Sweets in themselves do not couse tooth decay, but they are essential to the bacteria which are primarily responsible for it. The bacteria in the mouth thrive on high loncentrations of sugar which they convert into destructive acids. This is the reason that tooth decay is almost unkown among primitive people who do not know how to refine sugar. The concentrations of sugar in natural fruits are too low to do any harm, though dried figs and dates are exceptions.

As for your cousin, he is probably one of those people who was fortunate enough to be born with non-susceptible teeth. Heredity may have something to do with this. Dental research will be able to claim a major victory when it comes up with the full answer to the question of why some teeth are naturally less susceptible to decay than others. The morphology or shape of the tooth appears to be an important factor. Susceptible teeth have more pits and striations in them than non-suscptible teeth.

In the meanwhile it is known that fluorine, in proper quantities, can make growing teeth non-susceptible to decay. This chemical incorporates itself into the enamel of young teeth and makes them resistant to acid-etching. The time will come, in the not-too-far future, when the public water supplies of all civilized communities will be "fluoridated," and if it is any consolation to you, your grandchildren will probably not have to undergo the suffering and expense you have had to endure.

Since you are past the age when fluorine can have any effect on your teeth, your best bet for prevention of further decay would be severe restriction of sugar consumption, plus a regimen of tooth brushing as soon as possible after eating, to remove carbohydrate debris. Dental laboratories are now investigating tooth pastes which will make a direct attack on the bacteria which turn sugar into acid. If those bacteria can be eliminated from the mouth there can be no tooth decay. This is something you can look forward to.

IT PAYS TO PAMPER FEET

In summer you try to get out life all the fun and relaxation that season alone can offer. To many places your feet must take you, and the fun you have is certainly up to your feet. Seethat they are comfortable on long hikes, family picnics, dancing and other summer frolics.

First make a foot bath of lukewarm water and rich, billowing suds of mild soap that's suitable for babies' skin. Let your feet soak in it for a few minutes then scrub your toes and heels with a nail brush.

For a refreshing rinse, pour first hot, then cold water over your feet. Do this several times. It will be cooling and soothing.

On particularly humid days, you can give your feet more elaborate treatments. For instance, try splashing ice-cold cologne (that you can keep in your refrigerator) over your feet.

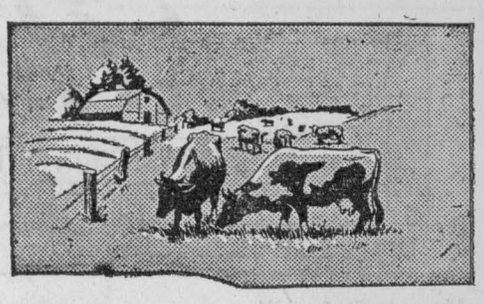

Or ,after you've had your footbath, soak a pair of clean, white socks in witch hazel and ice, wring them out and pull them on. Lie down with your feet elevated for a few minutes and they will feel like new.

"That he's 23, single and has a good job."

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

Of course the sights and the scenery are always interesting when I get a few miles from home but for me the most exciting angle of travelling is meeting different people. They're much more entertaining than the landscape and twice as unpredictable.

I think it was at Brampton that a well-dressed, middle aged couple got on the Stratford train and chose the seat directly in front of me. He was a meek, quiet gentleman interested only in getting to where he was going. She was the all-too-familiar variety of woman who can talk incessently without being rewound.

Before they got seated she began an oral campaign to presuade him to take a seat by himself. There was plenty of room, she argued, and he might as well be sitting next to a window too. He was quite unimpressed. "You know you might as well sit alone," she babbled, "for we never talk on the train anyway." I had considerable difficulty suppressing my laughter —but I managed. And the gentleman took his seat beside his wife just as he had planned in the first place.

Well, wonders never cease and as soon as that train gave the first shunt the chattering lady clammed up completely much to my amazement and to her husband's satisfaction.

We went through some beautiful country with rolling hills and green and yellow fields interlaced with brown dirt roads and satiny, wide, paved ones. We saw many of the lovely farmsteads with their evergreen windbreaks which seemed as much a part of them as the house and barns. We went through little villages and country crossroads and on and on. But the lady never opened her mouth. It was a miracle.

Finally on our right a dry, brown field came into view. Twenty or more cows stood on top of a sun-burned hill where there obviously wasnt' enough grass to go around. The lady's sense of pity was aroused. She could keep silent no longer.

"You'd think that farmer wouldn't leave those cows in that field," she remarked, turning towards her husband. "There isn't a bite on it for them to eat, poor things. Why wouldn't he let them eat in there?" she questioned as she pointed to a beautiful, fresh field of alfalfa that was about a foot high and a mass of lovely, purple flowers.

Then the light of knowledge dawned upon her. "Oh," she said disappointedly, "I suppose they they wouldnt' eat that. Thats all thistles."

The lady I met in Stratford Park was a very interesting companion. As an opening remark I mentioned the beauty of the place. "Yes," she said, "I've travelled a lot and I've found few spots that are prettier."

Immediately I remembered Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People." So, taking my cue from that notable gentleman, I shot right back, "How interesting! Where have you been?"

So she began to tell me. Last year she had taken a bus trip to California. She just travelled in the daytime and stayed all night wherever darkness overtook her. If she liked the place she remained for a day or two to see the sights. She described San Fransisco which had deeply impressed her. She told of the Grand Canyon and of Los Angeles and the things she saw there. I marvelled as she talked. It was rare for a woman of her years (I assumed she was about 65) to have travelled across the continent alone and to have enjoyed it so much.

eYar before last, she went on, she had gone to Vancouver. And she described the beauties of the Rockies. Then she'd taken a boat trip up the west coast to Alaska. She'd loved every minute of it too.

Before she'd gone on a tour

Calling All Sportsmen

* O.W.A.A.

Keep Your Powder Dry

How long sporting ammunition will retain its efficiency after leaving the factory is an often asked question when shooters get together and yet the answer involves a simple procedure to which the average sportsman pays but little attention. The length of time in which sporting ammunition will retain its normal ballistic characteristics depends, in a large measure, on how it was stored. Properly stored, ammunition like it is turned out today will retain its effectiveness indefinitely, but high temperatures and excessive humidity will cause it to deteriorate to a certain extent. During hot and muggy weather it is only a reasonable precaution for those who have ammunition supplies on hand to use good judgement in the selection of a storage place.

Ammunition failures are very often the result of improper storage after leaving the factory. Favourable storage conditions mean cool, dry storage, away from heating plants, boilers, stoves, radiators, steam pipes and out of the direct rays of the sun. For the shooter, the most favourable spot at home would be a cool, dry cellar or locker, cabinet or wardrobe in the coolest, driest part of the house. It should not be stored in a detached garage located in the sun or be carried constantly in a car that is usually parked in the sun. High temperatures are generated in both places and neither is suitable for storing ammunition.

On returning from a shoot or hunt, any unused ammunition should be removed from the car immediately. Loads should be taken from a wet hunting coat promptly, wiped off well and stood each separately to dry out thoroughly before putting them back into the permanent storage place. It is a known fact that shot gun gun shells which are stored in a car for any length of time during the summer months will likely suffer from some drying out of the powder which in turn can often be responsible for uncomfortable recoil.

Watch that Muzzle

With the opening of the hunting season within the next few days and at the risk of this column becoming a sermon, I'm going to run over quickly the ten commandments of gun safety. In actuality the number of hunting or gun accidents in relation to the number of participating sportsmen is small and the number would be still less if everyone handling a gun this fall would read and re-read these common sense rules of safety and then conduct himself accordingly.

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.
2. Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use, must always be unloaded and taken down or have the actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble. Keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.
7. Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately be-

St. Lawrence Valley Officials See Hydro Models

SOME SEVENTY REEVES, councillors and clerks of the St. Lawrence Valley areas to be affected by the construction of the new power development met on August 17th at Ontario Hydro's A. W. Manby Service Centre near Toronto to discuss plans and study models concerning rehabilitation proposals for communities in the area. The Morrisburg group is shown with the Hon. George H. Challies, First Vice-Chairman, Ontario Hydro, as they study proposals for rehabilitating Morrisburg. Left to right: Mr. Challies, Reeve. Geo. Beavers, J. A. Edgerton, M. D. Wilson, H. B. Duval, W. Gray, councillors, also G. Tindall, Art Laurin and Robert H. Saunders, Chairman, Ontario Hydro.

Avonmore Fair Has Large Live Stock Entries Weather, Exhibits, Entertainment Adds to Success

Some 2,800 persons took advantage of the break in the unfavourable weather conditions of the past month to attend the closing day, Wednesday last, of Avonmore Fair, sponsored by the Roxborough Agricultural Society. The day was generally enjoyed. The only complaint came from those who got good shoes soiled on the muddy grounds.

The fair measured up to its reputation as being one of the best in Eastern Ontario. The live stock exhibits were much larger than last year. Holsteins, Ayrshires and Jerseys were in abundance. Leading Ayrshire exhibitors were Roy Simmons, Finch, Samuel Rose and Sons, Mountain, and W. M. Campbell, Avonmore. Holstein exhibitors included Blake Nephew and F. C. Eligh, Finch, J. B. Ferguson, of Wales, and Basil Dawley and D. Dawley, Winchester.

The Jersey show featured two exhibitors—J. J. McKenzie, Finch, and Angus McDermid, Berwick.

Entries in the 4-H Calf Club Achievement Days reached and all-time record. Fifty boys and girls were present from the clubs of Avonmore, Cornwall Centre and Sandringham club. All of them exhibited Holstein calves.

The horse show was excellent. Leading prize winners were Earl Droppo, Finch, Lawrence Shane, of Winchester Springs, Ernest Morrison, Manotick, Stanley Hunter, of Hawkesbury, Foster Lagrove, Berwick.

Entries in the sheep, swine and poultry classes were also good.

Horse Races Held

Despite the heavy rains of Monday and Tuesday which threatened the cancellation of the horse races, this very popular feature of the Avonmore Fair for many years again on Wednesday thrilled hundreds. The track was in good condition. There was a large entry for the three classes—the free-for-all, the 2.18 class and the 2.25 class.

Entertainment was provided on the platform on the grounds by Jeff and Tess, popular artists from the United States; highland dances by Miss Gloria Bowman, North Lunenburg, and bagpipe music.

Mrs. D. Ernest Cooke, Lachute, Que., wo nthe $10 prize for the person guessing closest to the actual number of paid admissions to the fair. The prize is donated annually by one of the fair's honourary presidents, Julius Miller, of Cornwall.

The ladies of the three local churches had booths on the grounds and they reported that they had a good day. This applied also to all the other concessions on the fair grounds.

The Lumor shows, which had rides and sideshow attractions on the grounds, did a good business.

An exhibit in the main agricultural hall which attracted much attention was a collection of stuffed animals and birds, placed there by Percy Marjerrison, Maxville.

The Salvation Army, Cornwall, held their annual tag day at the fair. It was directed by Captain Miller.

Many farmers were particularly interested in the fine displays of farm implements which were on the grounds.

Softball Game

As a climax to the day many remained over in Avonmore until the evening to see the playoff softball game between Avonmore and Newington which resulted in the Avonmore Aces winning the game by a narrow margin of 2-1 and receiving the league championship trophy from Jack Armstrong, Crysler, president of the Northern Stormont Softball League.

Others attended the dance in the I.O.O.F. hall later in the evening.

Watch Out for Children Travel Expert Warns

More school children are killed in motor vehicle and pedestrian accidents each year in Canada than there are die as a result of the next nine major causes of childhood death put together, Carol Lane, nationally known travel expert reported recently.

In a special message to the motorists of Canada on the opening week of school, Miss Lane appealed to everyone who possesses a driver's license to conduct his own campaign to reduce motor accident fatalities and injuries among our youth.

The most dangerous hours of the day, according to the travel authority, are between 8-9 a.m. and 3 to 5 p.m. when children are going to and from school or leaving playground areas.

"If you're driving during those periods always remember to expect the unexpected," Miss Lane declared. "You can never predict a child's actions and it's best to be prepared for anything.'

Other cautions for motorists advocated by Miss Lane, Women's Travel Director of the Shell Oil Company of Canada, include:

Drive with extra care when you see children or when you're in a school zone or residential area where youngsters are likely to be playing or crossing the streets.

Watch out for bouncing balls, children on roller skates, scooters or bicycles. Always give the child the right of way. The time you lose may save the life of a boy or girl.

For parnets, Miss Lane suggested that they explain to their children the importance of obeying traffic signs and police officers.

"Impress on your children the necessity of crossing the streets only at crosswalks," she said. "Tell them to wait on the curb until the way is clear.

"Don't let your youngsters play in the streets. If there is no playground in your area, get together with the school authorities or your neighbours and arrange for a safe place for the children to play.

"When we consider the shocking number of children who are so needlessly killed or injured in motor vehicle and pedestrian accidents, it should be clear to all of us that we have an individual responsibity to be doubly alert and careful when we're driving," Miss Lane said.

Big Help

"I didn't say my husband drinks like a fish, yer honour. I jest said his friends call him 'Bacon' 'cause they're always bringing him home!"

Conrad M. Whitteker Dies in Hospital

Conrad McIntosh Whitteker, of Williamsburg, passed away quietly in the Ottawa General Hospital following a brief illness.

Mr. Whitteker was a lifelong resident of the district. He was born on the family farm in Williamsburg Township on April 9, 1875, to Ellen A. McIntosh and H. Josiah Whitteker. Together with his brother, Henry Whitteker, he maintained the farm, specializing in purebred Ayrshire cattle, until their retirement some ten years ago. A great lover of sport and outdoor life, Mr. Whitteker was, until recently, an active member of the Kenmore Hunt Club.

Final Tribute Paid

Final tribute was paid by his many friends and relatives at the home of his sister, Mrs. R. R. Loucks, Williamsburg. The services at the house and the United Church were conducted by Rev. George Dunlop, who took as his text I Cor. 13:12. The congregation sang "Rock of Ages" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Mrs. Lorne Hogaboam and Gerald Adams sang ,as a duet, "Waiting on Jesus."

The graveside service was also conducted by Rev. Mr. Dunlop at Spruce Haven Cemetery, Brinston. The pall bearers were Walter Whitteker, Ora McIntosh, Raymond McIntosh, W. P. Henophy, Ward Casselman and Clifford Shannette.

In addition to his brother and sister, there are many nieces and nephews throughout the district to mourn his loss.

Winchester Spgs. W.M.S. Holds Meeting

The United Church Woman's Missionary Society met in the church hall, Winchester Springs, on Tuesday afternoon last. Mrs. Clarence Thompson opened with a hymn; Mrs. Aden Casselman led in prayer.

Mrs. Cecil McIntosh, secretary, read the minutes and 18 members answered the roll call. Correspondence was read from sick members. Mrs. Alvin Stele read a paper on Christian Stewardship entitled "The Left-over."

Group One, in charge of Mrs. Lloyd Allison, conducted the devotional period. Those taking part were Mrs. Irwin Casselman, Mrs. Irwin Holmes, Mrs. A. Steele. Mrs. Orren Casselman led in prayer.

The new study book, "The Church in India,' 'was introduced by Mrs. Harry Holmes.

Mrs. Thos. J. Keyes gave a reading.

The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer. The Group served refreshments.

Honeymoon: It's over when the groom says he's unworthy and the bride agrees.

HARD TIME TO GET IN JAIL

George Henderson was sentenced at Lorain, O., for three days on a driving-while-intoxicated ticket, following informal custom, he showed up the following day at the jail and asked admittance.

The jailer wouldn't let him in. Deputy Ambrose Kissell thumbed through his commitment orders and could find no mention of Henderson.

He suggested that the would-be prisoner go home.

But Henderson, who is a contractor and part-time preacher, had arranged his own schedule to make room for the three days in jail, and he was not to be stopped. He went to his attorney, who checked up and found that the commitment had been lost in the mail.

A telephone call from municipal court fixed things up. Henderson knocked on the jail again, and Kissell let him in and locked him up.

Henderson lost two hours in the process, however. The time he tried to get in didnt' count on his three-day sentence.

M-H-F Employees At Toronto Out on Strike

Friday midnight, September 10, 2,800 employees of the Toronto Plant of Massey-Harris-Ferguson went out on strike.

Chief issue in the walkout, which came when negotiations collapsed over a new contract, was the Company's refusal to grant the Union demand for a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour. Employee earnings since 1946 have risen by 98 cents an hour.

The Company claimed it could not agree to any action which would further increase the manufacturing costs of farm implements, in view of reduced earnings of farmers and present uncertain crop prospects. In a prepared statement it said it was not asking employees to accept reduced wages but merely to hold the line at present levels. Its wage costs since 1941 have increased by 173.9%.

A Board of Conciliation reported in July that employee's average hourly earnings in M-H-F plants of $1.77 were much ahead of all manufacturing in Ontario. It said it could not find any justification for a wage increase on any grounds.

Terms of settlement which kept wages at present levels were worked out with the assistance of the Ontario Minister of Labour on September 2nd and agreed upon by the Union Joint Bargaining Committee for all Canadian plants.

Employees in the M-H-F plant in Woodstock and the three plants in Brantford voted to accept the agreement on this basis and are continuing at work. Toronto plant employees took strike action.

Lynda shows typical little-girl interest in her mother's telephone call; that's 18-month-old Donna, perched in her high chair.

A bargain for Mrs. Renaud...

"When you have to do everything for two small children it's not easy to leave the house even for essential shopping," says Mrs. Bernard Renaud of 755 Desaulniers Blvd., St. Lambert, Que.

"I've really appreciated our telephone in the last few years. It means I can still pick up bargains I see in the paper and do my shopping in a matter of minutes . . . by telephone. So, my 'phone saves me money and gives me time to do other things that crowd my busy day. That's why I think one of the best bargains I ever bought was our telephone!"

Mr. Stewart has been inspector for Dundas for 24 years.

He was introduced by Lorne Thompson and thanked by Mrs. Stuart Mattice.

Mr., Mrs. S. MacLean Mark Silver Wedding

White gladioli and silver and white decorations were used to decorate the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fetterly, of Winchester, when they held a dinner in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy MacLean, who celebrated their silver wedding anniversary September 14th. Mrs. MacLean was the former Annie Cinnimon, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Cinnimon. Mr. MacLean is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John MacLean.

Mr. and Mrs. MacLean were united in marriage by the late Rev. J. A. Waddell, of the Winchester United Church. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart, their wedding attendants, were also present at the dinner. After the dinner, the guests of honour were presented with a silver tea service by those present. Later in the evening the friends and neighbours gathered together and surprised Mr. and Mrs . MacLean by visiting them and presenting them with a silver coffee pot to match the tea service they had just been given. The presentation was made by Mrs. Walter Johnson. They also received a matching silver cake plate.

Avonmore Aces Capture League Cup

Avonmore Aces, members of the Northern Stormont Softball League, carried off the league championship by virtue of a 2_1 victory over Newington at a game played at Avonmore last Wednesday night. The game attracted a record attendance of fans.

Avonmore took the series four games to two.

At the end of the game, Jack Armstrong, Crysler, league president, presented the trophy, emblematic of league championship to Leslie Wert, captain of the Avonmore squad.

The Newington team got two hits off Avonmore's pitcher, Arthur MacRae. Mills got a double in the second inning and Jim Zeran a triple in the fourth. Pete Zeran got a walk in the sixth from MacRae.

Charles Rielly and Floyd Johnston got runs for Avonmore. Doug Mills brought in Newington's only run.

Lineups were as follows:

Avonmore—C. Reilly, F. Johnston, Allan MacRae, Arthur MacRae, Leslie Wert, Doug Robertson, Bernie Robertson, Arthur MacMillan, Keith Harris.

MODERN CONVENIENCES!

Water Commissioner Clark B. Knell did a double take when he spotted a fire hydrant in a residential district 40 feet back from the street. It was on the lawn between two houses.

When he learned the story of the hydrant at a recent Kitchener water commission meeting he said: "I wish Ihad kept my mouth shut."

The hydrant is a dummy, carved from wood, and placed for the convenience of neighbourhood dogs, he was told.

Marcel Pequegnat, water commission superintendent, said the hydrant was put there five or six years ago by the owner of one of the houses. It closely resembles the real thing and is painted the regulation red.

He said the hydrant was well away from the street line and so would not confuse firemen. The neighbourhood dogs have probably found it useful, he said.

Chesterville Trucker Involved In Labour Dispute

Spokesmen for the independent truckers taking part in a walk-out against Cole-man - Munro Ltd., Cornwall gravel firm hauling fill for construction of a road on Sheek Island in connection with St. Lawrence power project cofferdam construction, said Tuesday they would put their trucks back on the job for 60 cents a yard provided all truckers were taken back to work.

The independent truckers started walking off the job Saturday. Tuesday they claimed more than 30 truckers were involved in the walkout.

Thirteen trucks were lined up along a road north of Moulinette on uTesday afternoon leading to the pit from where the fill is being hauled.

The multi-million dollar St. Lawrence power project was experiencing its first labour trouble in the Cornwall district.

William Maylon, of Cornwall, and Nelson Laprade, of Chesterville, truck operators who talked to reporters as spokesmen for the group, said they would accept 60 cents a yard for hauling the earth provided all trucks were taken back on the job.

Both spokesmen said they would haul for this price until they could get organized.

Laurent Deslauriers, of Montreal, organizer for Local 106 of the Transport Drivers, Warehousemen and Helpers Union of America (AFL), an affiliate of the International Teamesters' Union, was with the truckers.

Mr. Laprade and Mr. Maylon said the truckers plan to hold an organization meeting in Cornwall.

The spokesmen said they had been hired to haul the fill at 45 cents a yard for a five-yard load. They declared they were losing money at this rate and began the walkout on Saturday.

The company increased the rate to 60 cents a load but refused to re-hire two of the truckers, Mr. Maylon and Mr. Laprade told reporters.

They said police visited the area yesterday but did nothing. The truckers' spokesmen both declared they were not blocking the road and were not stopping any trucks.

While reporters talked to the men at least two independent trucks drove by iwth loads while several company trucks also passed.

The truckers claimed it costs them "at least $27.50 daily" to operate while they said they only receive $25.

Cornwall Priest Killed In Car Crash

Rev. J. A. R. Rouleau, parish priest at St. Francis de Sales Parish, Cornwall, for the past 12 years, was killed instantly at 1.30 a.m. Friday when his automobile met in collision with a loaded transport on Highway 2 about six miles east of Cornwall. He was 56.

Father Rouleau. who was driving alone and returning from his cottage, suffered multiple injuries as the full force of the impact was felt on the drivers' side.

The accident occurred just east of Glen Walter on a slight rise. Father Rouleau's car was wrecked, while the Smith Transport careened into the south ditch although it did not overturn. The highway was wet and slippery from rain.

The transport, driven by Clarence Yeldon, Brockville, was eastbound while Father Rouleau was westbound.

Miller's ambulance was called to the scene and took Father Rouleau's body to Cornwall.

Father Rouleau was born at Bourget, Ont., a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Euclide Rouleau. He obtained his primary education at Bourget and attended Ottawa University and seminary.

He was ordained November 30, 1923, and served at Cornwall Nativity Parish, Crysler, Lancaster, Moose Creek and his present charge.

Survivors include four brothers and two sisters, Dr. B. J. Rouleau, J. E. Rouleau, Cornwall; Romeo Rouleau, Alexandria, and Rev. J. D. Rouleau, Glen Robertson; Madeleine Rouleau, Montreal, and Mrs. Ovila Lafleur (Florence), of Montreal.

Stormont District Schools Plan Inter-school Competitions

Attended by teachers of four district secondary schools of Stormont, a meeting of the Inter-School Rural Secondary Schools Association was held in Avonmore High School. Teachers were present from Aultsville, Avonmore, Finch and Maxville.

The meeting was convened by R. J. Miller, B.A., principal of Avonmore High School.

Harvey Carlton, B.A., principal of Maxville High School, was named chairman of the meeting and Miss Margaret Thom, Avonmore, was secretary.

Softball Series

It was decided the inter-school softball series would get underway with Finch girls' and boys' teams playing at the same time.

Other games of the series will be played as follows:

September 27, Avonmore at Finch; Aultsville at Maxville.

October 4th, Maxville at Finch.

In case of a tie, a sudden-death game will decide the championship.

Plans were made for the annual inter-school track and field day to be held in Avonmore on October 1st.

Dates of the hockey schedule will be decided later. It was annouced at the meeting that there will be no entry this year from the Aultsville school.

A new feature of the intermediate school programme this year will be the formation of a girls' volleyball league, the games schedule for which will run concurrently with the boys' hockey schedule.

Plans were made for the second annual inter-school public speaking contest to be held in Avonmore the first Friday in March. There will again be a French speaking contest.

Britons See The "Flying Bedstead"

Britain's "Flying Bedstead," a wingless 3½-ton wonder that takes off and lands vertically, "can be set down as gently as a cup of tea," says the man who has just flown it.

Ronald Shepherd, flying consultant to the Rolls Royce aero engine firm, described the craft to reporters at the big British aviation show at Farnborough.

"The whole thing stands on four tubular legs," he said. "It's two jet engines are held in a tubular construction and the pilot sits on top."

Existence of the experimental craft was disclosed by Supply Minister Duncan Sandys.

Shepherd said on its first flight the craft was tethered to the ground with strong wire ropes and lifted only five feet in the air.

Later it made several free flights up to 100 feet and more. It is held in the air by the downward rush of its jet streams. The jets can be deflected to make it move over the ground.

JELLY MAKING FOR THE INEXPERIENCED COOK

IF YOU HAVE ALWAYS BEEN AFRAID to tackle jelly making, forget your fears and get yourself a jelly-bag, a big stew kettle and some apples or grapes and dig right in.

Seriously speaking, though, jelly is not hard to make if you follow directions carefully and give it your undivided attention at the time when the juice is beginning to jelly.

How to Make Jelly

Look over the fruit carefully and remove the blossom ends and any decayed parts. It is not necessary to remove the skins. Most fruits need to be cooked before the juice can be extracted. Cook juicy fruits in a small amount of water. Such fruits as apples should be covered with water.

Cook the fruit until tender, turn into a jelly-bag and allow to drip overnight. Do not squeeze bag, for if you do so the jelly will be cloudy.

After the juice has dripped through the pulp may be returned to the preserving kettle, covered with water and heated gently in a simmering temperature for thirty minutes. Turn into jelly-bag and allow to drip through without squeezing. Keep this juice separate from the first as jelly made from the second will be cloudy.

The amount of sugar which you must add to the juice is very important. Many failures in jelly-making are caused by adding too much sugar, which will result in a sticky jelly. Such fruits as currants, underripe grapes, green gooseberries, and wild grapes are about the only fruits that require an equal measure of sugar. Two-thirds as much sugar as juice is a good proportion for most fruits.

Measure the juice and boil it rapidly for five minutes. Add the sugar and stir the juice until the sugar is dissolved. It is of no particular advantage to heat the sugar as it doesn't improve the quality of the jelly. Cook the juice very rapidly, to obtain a bright, clear jelly; long slow cooking gives a dull, dark jelly, inferior in texture.

Testing the jelly is important and should be done frequently in order to be able to remove it from the heat at the proper moment. Take a small amount of the juice in a spoon an d allow it to drop from the side of the spoon. When the drops flow together and fall from the spoon in a sheet or blob, the jelly is done and should be removed from the heat at once.

Pour into clean, hot glasses. When the jelly is cool and has set, cover with melted paraffin.

Better results will be obtained if not more than two quarts are made at one time.

A perfect jelly should be clear, bright and tender. When cut, it should have a clear surface and not stick to the knife and spoon. It should hold its shape when turned from the glass and should quiver without breaking.

Jelly can be made by the above method only when the fruit contains pectin, which is the substance which in combination with sugar and acids of the fruit juices, causes jellying. Pectin is contained in juices of the following fruits in quantities sufficient for jellying: Apples, crabapples, underripe grapes, currants and slightly underripe red raspberries. If you wish to make jelly from fruits other than those mentioned above, you must add commercial pectin which may be obtained bottled at your grocers'. Jelly made with the help of commercial pectin will not be as tender or have as good a flavour as that made without it, although you will have a larger quantity.

Grape Pie

3 cups blue grapes
1 cup sugar
2 level tsps. flour
½ tsp. grated lemon peel
2 tsps. grated orange peel

Separate skins from pulp of grapes. Heat pulp to boiling; press through sieve to remove seeds; add pulp to skins mixed with sugar, flour, orange and lemon peel. Fill pastry-lined pie pan. Adjust slashed top crust, or weave criss-cross top. Bake in hot oven.

Grape pies freeze well, but do not use criss-cross top and do not cut slits in top till just before baking.

Readers: Mrs. Graham would be glad to try and answer any questions readers may ask about cooking. Address all letters to "Everybody Eats," The Chesterville Record, Chesterville.

to Great Britain and the Continent. It was to have taken three months but she stayed four. She told of starting out alone in London in search of some fresh fruit and of realizing she had lost her way. Then she explained her difficulty when she couldn't recall the name of her hotel. She told of searching for souvenirs for her family. She was obviously having a wonderful time telling me about her travels and I was enjoying it too.

Right now, she continued, she'd sent for reservations for a Vagabond Cruise out of Montreal. The ship, it seems, takes freight and twelve passengers on a trip through the West Indies. The passengers travel in ease and comfort and have the opportunity to look around the ports of call while the ship unloads her cargo.

"I do hope I can get a reservation," she said, "For I want to travel all I can while I am able. I may not have too many years left to go. You see," she added, "I'll be 78 on my next birthday."

And I wondered how many of us would be starting off alone on a Vagabond Cruise when we are 78 years old.
