UNITED CHURCH YOUTH CAMP DUNDAS-GRENVILLE PRESB'Y

The Board of Directors decided unanimously in a meeting at Mountain on April 12th to begin building operations on the camp site purchased by the Dundas- Grenville presbytery last year. A contract has been awarded to Mr. James Kelso, Hallville, to build a kitchen and dining hall under one roof, the building to be 24' x 60' with a fireplace in the centre of one end of the dining hall. It is estimated the structure will cost $2600, and will be completed by June 15th, in readiness for use this season.

At present only $900 of this amount is in sight and the directors are in immediate need of further funds to pay as they go for the addition of essential facilities and equipment.

The site, comprising approximately eighteen acres, is located in the township of South Gower in Grenville County, on the east side of the Rideau River, one mile south of Osgoode A well was drilled last fall on this property on the advice of the Ontario Department of Health. The cost of the site and the well has been fully paid through contributons from the charges in the presbytery.

SIMEON COUTLEE. FORMER RESIDENT HERE. DIES AT PORT COLBORNE

Simeon Coutlee, a former well and favorably known resident here, and a hockey star on Morrisburg's famous team of the 90's, died in Port Colborne in February, but friends here did not know of his death till this week. His death came following a heart attack.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emile Coutlee, former residents of Morrisburg, who passed away many years ago, he was born and educated here. During the enlargement of the Williamsburg Canal, he learned the trade of steam shovel operator and followed this trade till his retirement a few years ago.

He married the former Mary Christianin Morrisburg, but she predeceased him several years ago. He is survived by one son, Simeon of Toronto; two sisters, Misses Sarah and Doll of Port Colborne; and one brother Alexander of Tuscon, Ariz.

CITIZENS OF MORRISBURG AND SURROUNDING COMMUNITY:

The municipality of Morrisburg and surrounding community, sponsored by the Morrisburg Branch of the Women's Institute have adopted three British families, to whom parcels of food will be sent each month. Greater privations than endured during the war years, and even the past year, are now the daily life of the British housewife. Rations are cut, there are fewer points, fewer coupons, and some foods have disappeared entirely. This Personal Parcel Service was organized in November 1946 as a result of the visit to Canada of Lady Reading, chairman of the W.V.S. of Great Britain, telling us of 300,000 families in Great Britain who are greatly needing extra nourishment. These families have all been investigated by the W. V. S., and authenticated by the Medical Officer of Health of the District and their names are NOT on any other list, nor have they ever received a carton of food from overseas.

M. R. Seeley of the Seeley Drugless Health Clinic, offered the use of his rooms, even before the families had been officially adopted by the Women's Institute.

An appeal is now made to all citizens of Morrisburg and community to leave their donations at Seeley's Clinic anytime from Saturday, April 24th, to Saturday, May 1 (inclusive) If it is not convenient for you to deliver your donation in person, please telephone your grocer who will be pleased to deliver it to the Clinic. Donations of money are also needed to pay for the shipping charges. The following suggestions will help you in making your donations—please clip this article and keep it for future reference.

MONSEIGNEUR RHEAUME DIES AT WINNIPEG

Monseigneur A. D. Rheaume, 65, for many years rector of St. Edward's church in Winnipeg, died Monday in St. Boniface Hospital. He had rsided at 353 St. Mary's avenue.

Born at Lachine, Que., he passed his early years at Morrisburg, Ont., where his father was a government engineer.

Father Rheaume entered Ottawa university and then took philosophical and theological training at Grand Seminary in Montreal. He entered the priesthood Dec. 21, 1909, in St. Joseph's Church, Ottawa. After serving in various curacies, Father Rheaume came to Winnipeg in 1916 Need for priests in the west induced him to stay, and he moved to Portage la Prairie.

In 1922 he was recalled to St. Mary's Cathedral to replace Msgr. Blair, whom he later succeeded at St. Edward's. In 1933 he celebrated his silver jubilee marking 25 years in the priesthood, in conjunction with the silver jubilee of the parish of St. Edward's. At this time he was raised to the dignity of domestic prelate of the papal household, with the title of monseigneur, for his work in connection with the separate schools.

Marking Father Rheaume's 60th birthday in 1942 the parish priests of Winnipeg honored him for his long record of service to the archdiocese of Winnipeg.

Father Rheaume retired about two years ago due to ill health.

Among survivors is one sister, Miss Eugenie Rheaume of Ottawa.

Funeral service was held at 10 a. m. today (Friday) in St. Mary's Cathedral, Winnipeg.

SUNSET

The glory of the setting sun is ever new,
Yet surely this one is God's masterpiece.
Those bold brush-strokes of gold and rosy hue
Reflect an expert touch in every line and crease.

The sun sank slowly as if it were loth to go,
Or like gathering breath, ere at last it fell
Into space, like the end of a rainbow,
And over the breeze was wafted a soft "Farewell".

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor—The letter you published in last week's issue of "The Leader" attracted my attention. Assuredly we must all agree that more modern schools are needed in Morrisburg to cope with a modern curriculum, which should include manual training and ecomic classes. However, the final paragraph of this letter suggested that this new building should house high school students, while the present M.C.I. be given to public school children. With that I strongly disagree.

At present, the M.C.I. is far more modern than our really antiquated public school, which has no auditorium, no gymnasium, a dismal atmosphere, and few facilities needed to educate our younger children Yet the general opinion is that only high school students deserve the new buildings.

Consider for yourself the number of pupils who begin in Grade 1 in any one year; follow these same pupils through to fifth form in high school, see what percent of the beginners actually graduate! It would be somewhere around ten percent, I judge. Consequently, we conclude that the bulk of our citizens are educated in elementary schools, not in collegiates or high schools.

However, if a modern public school were built, with modern methods and modern teachers, these children, aged six to thirteen, would have their attitudes toward higher education prop erly directed. More of our children would like going to school, more would graduate and we would have a more intelligent nation.

Furthermore, these small boys and girls should be helped acquire beautiful thoughts and natures with the help of beautiful surroundings at home and at school. But since many never reach the collegiate, should we not begin moulding their lives first in the public school? Isn't it a better carpenter who starts a house by first building a firm foundation, then making a cheerful home on top, rather than one who builds a weak foundation and concentrates on a heavy roof to keep out the rain? Perhaps we haven't fully realized that it is time we stopped giving our cast-off presents to the elementary schools, and instead concentrated on them before we put such a heavy roof on collegiates and colleges. Children of eight years old catch cold easily.

Synopsis

CHAPTER XXXVI: Weber acts mysteriously and Ellen becomes suspicious. She goes to the barn and frees Juanita.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Ellen watched the slim figure fade into the night. She slowly twisted an engagement ring from her finger.

"We're through, Clark," she whispered.

Slipping back into the house, she fou d her brother anxiously pacing the floor, worried over her long absence. But when she had told him the reason for it, he was so enraged that Ellen had trouble keeping him from stalking downstairs and having a showdown with Clark Weber then and there.

"But in the morning we'll have it out," he promised tightly, when he finally gave in. "Either he leaves this place, right away, or we do!

Downstairs the hinges of a door creaked. Ellen ran to the window, her hand clutching her throat.

"Clark's going to the barn!" she cried in alarm.

"Go get in bed!" Maxon ordered hastily. "And don't answer if he calls you."

He went to his own room. Ellen was scarcely beneath her blankets when the downstairs door was banged, to the accompaniment of fuming oaths, and Clark Weber came pounding up the stairs. His very steps indicated that he was like an enraged beast. Ellen waited with baited breath.

Fear-gripped Russ Bartle had made an agreement, on the spur of the moment, which he now regretted. He paced his office floor, cursing himself for promising to wipe out the Weber-Maxon mortgage if Clark Weber captured El Caballero Rojo.

"The fool might be just lucky enough to deliver the goods," he muttered, "and then I'd be out four thousand dollars! I've got to hedge out of that promise somehow."

But how to hedge without putting the first blemish on his reputation for being body and soul for the farmers he had imported? Bartle paced and planned until he was leg-weary and brain-fogged, and then at last a scheme formed in his brain. The only way—the perfect way.

He hurried to his desk, sat down and snatched up a pencil.

He worked another few minutes at the desk, then scurried about the large room collecting an assortment of things which he piled on a chair beside the door. When he went out, he carried a large tallow candle, a can of oil and an empty bean tin with the bottom punched full of holes.

Half an hour's ride brought him to the edge of the valley and from above he looked down on the buildings of Chris Pringle's farm.

Nothing stirred below him as Bartle watched. After a while he rode down into the valley, as close to the Pringle place as he dared, dismounted and stealthily advanced with candle, can and oil. Like a shadow he made for the long shed.

Bent double, Bartile wormed his way to the centre of the shed. He knelt, reached above him and dragged down a dry stalk. Crumpling the leaves, he made a little nest, soaked it with oil and placed the candle in the centre.

A match spluttered in his cupped hands. The candle wick smoldered a moment; then, as tallow melted, a spear-head of yellow light was born. To shield such a danger signal from any curious eyes, he carefully set the perforated tin over the candle.

He got up quickly, sprayed the oil about and dragged down more tobacco stalks. He left the building cautiously, then dashed to his horse, flung himself into the saddle and tore off toward Gold Creek. At the pace he held, he figured, he should be back in his office in about thirty-five minutes—just the length of time it would take the candle to burn down.

So the flame would touch the rim of the oil-soaked nest about its base.

Abruptly a chill shook Bartle, as unconsciously he pulled up his horse with a jerk. For from somewhere near had come the sudden weird cry of a mountain lion. It turned his blood cold.

Bartle snatched his quirt and flayed his horse without mercy. Snorting in pain and anger, the animal carried him on at breakneck speed.

At this galloping speed Russ Bartle returned to town. Storming into the jail he found Sheriff Lande, fully clothed, snoring on the bed.

"And what did you accomplish with all that riding?" Bartle demanded, waking him.

"Nothing much. This fellow Weber that I had locked up swears he saw El Caballero Rojo in the valley. Pete Haskell swears the same o tlaw popped into a cattlemen's meeting, and got away with a bullet wound."

"And while you're wasting time on the hunt, this outlaw pins this t my door with a dagger!"

Sheriff Lande snatched a scrap of paper from the banker's hand. He read crudely printed words:

"Well?" Bartle demanded. "What you going to do about it?"

"I don't believe El Caballero Rojo wrote it," said the sheriff flatly.

"I was on the landing at the head of the stairs above the bank when the door below rattled," Bartle snapped. "That was the dagger being driven in. And I got downstairs in time to fling open the door and see who had done it myself! It was your El Caballero Rojo—silver doodads, tooled gauntlets, scarlet neckerchief and all."

"But still not him," the sheriff said positively. "No man can make me believe that he's suddenly gone loco enough to gallivant around posting notices of what he intends to do."

Your Handwriting and You

By Alex S Arnott

Your Handwriting Versus The Forger

There is no accurate record of the number of forgeries committed in Ontario, but according to known facts, the forger does a lively business and never lacks new victims. The busines man and the public, generally seem ever ready to take a trimming and realize only too late that they have been the victims of a systematic fleecing routine.

Th forger always has two things in mind: getting his "take" and escaping justice. One, he is familiar with human nature and is trusting that his victims have poor memories. Two, he is betting a hundred to one that the average person could not positively identify his or her own handwriting. In these two assumptions, the forger makes an easy living at your expense. He relies mainly on your inability to recall definitely whether you made a business transaction or not, and hopes that you did not make a record of it. Poor memories and slipshod accounting on your part assist him in his trade.

Any good artist could copy the signature of another person after painstaking practice. But the forger does not fool the handwriting analyst who takes a scientific approach, and does not rely on memory or chance for signature identification. The analyst knows, through the use of instruments, if the signature is genuine or not.

One clue in identification, are the smooth even lines made in free flowing handwriting script as compared with the rough or corrugated edges of lines made by the attempt to forge the same writing. This is one of the positive differences between a genuine signature and a forged one.

As I have related in previous articles, you write according to the way you think and all your writing takes the form of mental activity. As we think, so do we write. The forger than has a decided handicap, since he cannot think exactly as you would, and must resort to artistic inclinations to complete his work in forging your signature. But his artistry is not good enough to follow the trend of thought which produces the pattern you make with your handwriting and that is where we have him.

When we compare your writing with the forged script, the forged shows irregularities which are absent in the genuine script.

Anyone wishing a more complete analysis please send self-addressed stamped envelope to Box B, room 421, 73 Adelaide St. West, Toronto. There is no charge for this service.

How Can I?

by A. Ashley

Q. How can I retain the flavor of spices?

A. Always keep spices in tightly-closed cans or boxes, as they will quickly lose their flavors if left in open receptacles.

Q. How can I measure molasses and keep it from sticking to the measuring cup?

A. Grease the cup lightly before measuring molasses, or dip it full of flour and then empty it. Either method will enable every drop of molasses to come out of the cup without sticking.

Q. How can I clean gold and silver articles?

A. By dipping a v cloth into cigar ashes and then scouring.

Q. How can I make use of lemon rinds?

A. Don't throw them away.. Place them in the dish water when washing greasy dishes and they will remove any fish and onion odors. They will also remove any marks from the dishes.

Q. How can I clean a vinegar bottle?

A. By putting a teaspoonful of lye into it, filling with water, allowing it to stand for a few days, then washing and rinsing very thoroughly.

Q. How can I remove a disagreeable odor from the kitchen?

A. By sprinkling ground cinnamon on top of the stove.

Broad Hint

The invitation to the anniversary party read, "And don't try to knock on the door when you arrive, just nudge it loudly with your shoe."

One of the recipients called up the sender and asked for an explanation of these curious instructions.

Came the answer: "We are presuming of course that your arms will be loaded with presents."

Sunday School Lesson

Zechariah Pleads for Righteousness.

Zechariah 1:1-4; 7:8-14; 8:16-17

Golden Text: Execute true judgment, and show mercy and compassion every man to his brother — Zechariah, 7:9.

Zechariah urged the people to continue with the building of the temple of Jerusalem, lest they displease God as their fathers had done. As God had exiled their fathers from the land when they turned away from Him, they, too, would be punished unless they were converted and followed God's way.

As leaders and people refused to hear the Prophet when he delivered God's warning and instruction, so God would not hear. He would not alter His decision that they be delivered into captivity. He would not prevent the destruction of Jerusalem.

The Chaldeans came against Judah like a whirlwind. Their victories were swift and the Jews were scattered as strangers in strange lands. While they were gone their land was left desolate for the seventy years of their captivity. God reserved it for their return which He had promised through the prophets.

In His purpose to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah, the Lord through Zechariah commanded: "These are the things that you must do". First — "Let every man tell the truth, in dealing with his neighbor." Second — "Let your decisions in courts be true and for the common good." Third — "Plot no evil in your hearts against another." Fourth — "Never give yourselves to any perjury" And why? "For all these are the things that I hate!"

If people were to follow Zechariah's message from God, the foundation for malicious gossip would be destroyed. Since God hates evil imaginations, false oaths, injustice, and lies, those who profess to love and serve Him must surely hate them also.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARMS

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Spring... we know what it is, of course. The time of year when there is new perennial growth; new planting, new seeding; tractors, frogs and robins; the time of which poets sing — "when a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love". The time when it is a mercy that that spring feeling, or something, calls the men outside to rake the yard or polish the car, for there is no place for them in the home — it being also the time for spring housecleaning.

Yes, actually we all know what spring means — I do too — but yet, just now, I was tempted to find out what definition my Oxford dictionary gave for the word. The description was very apt and applies to many activities. "Spring... jump from the ground" — yes, that is true of flowering bulbs, wheat, clover and rhubarb. "Sudden movement from rest — bring suddenly into action or view." Well, now, that surely applies to housecleaning at its best — or worst, depending on your point of view. Could it be that Messrs. Fowler and Fowler were married and spoke as men of experience when compiling their dictionary? Men, naturally, would think housecleaning was a "sudden movement from rest"! because they themselves are interrupted and disturbed by it. In winter, when routine work in the house runs along smoothly; meals appear on the table, well prepared and nicely served, that, to the masculine mind, indicates that very little work has been involved, and plenty of rest for the lady of the house has therefore been possible.

"Bring suddenly into action or view". That surely, could have no other meaning than what happens in a home when the housewife gets busy. If it were ot for housecleaning many things would be permanently lost especially when there are people around who put things away so carefully they never know where to find them afterwards. And their number is legion — and among their number is myself. But still, the lost things that are suddenly brought into view make spring a time of excitement and anticipation.

But oh dear, if we could just get on with the work without interruptions. But no, just as sure as extra work is in progress there are unlooked for hindrances. A matter of business that has to be attended to; invitations for this and that that cannot very well be refused; phone calls and more phone calls; and the chances are that one of the local organizations to which one belongs decides to cater for a banquet. You feel you just can't spare the time for it until you remember that probably ninety-nine per cent of the members feel exactly as you do. So you pitch in and do your bit — and then it's the end of the week and you look back, realizing how little you have accomplished. But then, if you are philisophical, you look forward and think — "Oh well, there's another week coming — surely there will be no hindrances next week? I can't think of anything that's likely to come up anyway."

No, you may not know of anything — now — but interruptions will come, you can be sure of that. And if they do, what then? It isn't really the hindrances that count, is it? — only how we deal with them, and whether we let them get us down. Why try to do anything in a given length of time or start on a strenuous job when over-tired? The chances are a cat-nap, followed by a cup of tea, would do much to mend frazzled nerves and give you a better start. After all, in England, there is very little that a cup of tea can't cure! Who knows, it may be those cups of tea, at the right time and place, made all the difference in helping England do her share in winning the war.

Well, that's that! Now I'll get this typed, and after that a cup of tea, and then I'll be ready to wade into a pot of paint once more — unless, of course, there are interruptions!

Alberta Indians Giving Up Horses

The large herds of horses formerly maintained on the Indian Reserves of Southern Alberta are rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Most of them are finding their way to processing plants at Swift Current and Edmonton where they are transformed into meat rations for hungry Europe.

This signifies a quiet revolution in Indian customs. Before white settlement began in the west, the whole life of the Blackfoot tribes centered around their horses. On horseback they rode to war or hunted the buffalo which were their principal source of food—and a man's wealth was estimated by the number of animals he owned.

But in recent years the younger Indians have been taking an increasing interest in scientific farming. Many of them are raising purebred cattle while others have broken up their land and are growing wheat. Some of them even own and use a full set of power-driven implements. And so the horses have become more or less of a nuisance and there is a growing tendency to sell them off.

Soap-Makings

Any fat may be used in making soap, but the most important of animal oils used are tallow and grease for toilet soap; vegetable oils, cotton seed and coconut for marine soap; palm and castor for transparent soap; and olive oil for toilet and textile soap. Low grade soaps (brown) are made from bone fat, kitchen grease and low grade tallow.

Some Notes From The Farm Front

Items of Interest to Our Rural Readers

By John Russell

In the United States great concern is being shown regarding the rapid falling off in the number of live stock, said to amount to something like fifteen per cent in the past four years.

This should be of real interest to Canadian stock raisers as showing the modern trend. Some department of Agriculture officials south of the border are reported as wanting to advise farmers to start rebuilding their breeding-stock right away, but are held back from doing so by "top policy" makers who still want to put the emphasis on grain production.

However, several of the great State agricultural colleges are already telling farmers to hang on to their breeding stock.

Some time next Fall apple growers are due to receive a lot of free, but still very valuable publicity for their product.

Walt Disney's big feature picture "Melody Time" will star Johnny Appleseed, the almost legendary character who went about the country planting appleseeds here and there, and to whom millions of apple-lovers owe a deep debt of gratitude. "The Apple Song", sung by Dennis Day, is expected to have folks not only humming the tune but also craving and buying more apples.

Low-quality hay used to mulch a block of 25-year-old Northern Spy apple trees was found to bring results worth many times the costs, in experiments conducted over a 7-year period.

Starting the very first year the mulch was applied, yields increased by 6 bushels per tree, and have averaged that much increase each year since. The hay not only saves moisture but acts as a fertilizer. In the experiment a quarter-ton of hay was put around each tree to start with, then added to as it decomposed. About a quarter-ton every three years is about the right amount to be added.

On the farms of Canada, and especially Eastern Canada, there are probably millions of acres that are too wet for profitable cultivation.

Yet, property drained, such wetlands often yield huge crops. More than that, when put into production they help "take the load" off a farm's poorer, steeper lands, which may be allowed to lie fallow for a time, or planted with trees.

But whether the tile or open-cut method is used, proper drainage is an exacting operation, requiring both knowledge and skill, as it must leave sufficient water on the land, but not either too much or too little. But as many have found out, when properly done it can really pay.

A quarter century ago 120 eggs a year was considered pretty fair production for a hen. Today, with modern methods of breeding and feeding, the average throughout the country is probably around three dozen eggs a year better than that.

However, there is still plenty of room for improvement before general egg production approaches the mark set by a hen called "Miss Massachusetts" back in 1944. She laid 351 eggs in just 357 days; and what is more, each dozen of those eggs scored perfectly for size, weighing 26 ounces or better.

Back in prewar days there were 38,000 Ontario acres in sugar beets. Because of labor and price control difficulties, totals dropped so greatly that the entire industry in this Province was threatened. But at a meeting held in Chatham recently, with representatives of both the growers and manufacturers present, it was decided to make a real joint effort to save it; and with more labor and labor-saving machinery available, the future should offer fewer difficulties for the Ontario beet grower.

Muffins — Mixed The Pastry Way

Blueberry Variety

Try this new way of mixing muffins. It's the same idea as mixing shortening and flour for pie or tea biscuits. It's quick—no shortening to melt—and the results are perfect.

½ cup shortening
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 cup blueberries

Cut shortening into sifted dry ingredients with pastry blender. Use a light, quick mixing motion. The mixture should look like coarse crumbs before the liquid is added.

Spoon a "well" in the center of the dry ingredients. Combine well-beaten egg, milk and well-drained canned or frozen blueberries; pour into well at once and mix just until dry ingredients are moistened. Batter still will be lumpy.

Dip batter into greased muffin pans, using two spoons. Don't overstir the batter by scooping to the bottom of the bowl for each spoonful. Fill each muffin pan a little over half full. Bake in hot oven (450°) 20 to 25 minutes or until muffins are a shiny, golden brown. Serve hot with a big pat of butter. This recipe makes 12 medium-sized muffins.

Long Bob

Along with ankle socks, saddle shoes, Sloppy-Joe sweaters and the inevitable string of pearls, the swinging shoulder length hair style of teen-agers is out—"but definitely."

According to fashion experts in a recent style show in Toronto, the former "Swoon Kid" will take to ladylike clothes and short hair styles this spring.

CHANGE of LIFE?

Are you going through the functional 'middle age' period peculiar to women (38 to 52 yrs.)? Does this make you suffer from hot flashes, feel so nervous, high-strung, tired? Then DO try Lydia E. Pinkham's vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. Pinkham's Compound also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect!

The Smooth Dancer Rates More Cut-Ins

To be a popular dancer, scarcely able to circle the floor without a cut-in—that's every girl's dream! Why not make it come true?

What makes a girl fun to dance with, anyway? Perfect rhythm, of course, plus feather-lightness and responsiveness to every step and turn. A large order, but you can fill it if you have balance.

Balance means carrying your weight evenly over the balls of your feet. In stepping backward, for instance, keep your weight on the ball of the forward foot until your stepping foot is in place, ready to share the weight. Also, swing from the hip and reach back as far as possible with the toe. Chopping off those backward steps is just inviting your partner to tread on your toes.

To be a good dancer you must be able to do the waltz, rumba, samba, tango, fox trot and lindy with equal ease. Our Reader Service booklet No. 37 teaches the latest steps by means of footprint diagrams and actual photos. The author is one of the country's well-known instructors. Get your copy today!

Send THIRTY CENTS (in coins) for "How to Do the Latest Dance Steps" to Reader Service, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St., West, Toronto. Print name, address, booklet title and No. 37.

"Look! Light as a Feather- That's Calumet's Double Action"

IT'S TRUE! Women everywhere are discovering that Calumet's double action assures greater baking success. Muffins, fine-textured as cake . . . fluffy, melt-in-your-mouth biscuits . . . feather-light cakes — Calumet's double action protects their lightness, all the way.

First — in the mixing bowl, myriads of tiny, even-sized bubbles are formed when liquid is added. Then — in the oven, new even-sized bubbles continue to raise the mixture, holding it high, light and even. Try Calumet! Follow directions on the tin for any recipe.

So tender, so flavorful, these

SPICY RAISIN MUFFINS

- 2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt

Two very pleasant and profitable meetings were held by the ladies of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the W. M. S. at the home of Mrs. Roy Schell on Friday evening with thirteen members and three visitors present.

Mrs. Schell gave a very interesting paper on "The Worl to Christ we bring through Teaching" which was followed by a short discussion and Scripture readings taken by members of the Society.

The president, Mrs. Sam Casselman took over the business part of the meeting with Roll Call and reading of minutes. After very satisfactory reports from the various committees it was decided to bring in Self Denial Offering on April 18th. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Howald and a very pleasant social half hour was enjoyed by all.

On Tuesday evening, April 12th, the Willing Workers met at the home of Mrs. Grant Black with a fine attendance. The hymn "Faith of Our Fathers" was sung and Mrs. Roy Schell gave a very instructive paper on the same subject, also a short quiz contest, Mrs. Earl Phillips winning the prize. Mrs. Grant Black, the president, conducted the business part of the meeting with Roll Call & reading of minutes and fine reports from the committees. Little Miss Carol Ann Cancillo delighted all with a beautiful solo "Beautiful Saviour".

After some discussion the meeting closed with Prayer and Benediction by the Pastor and a social half hour.

THE FARM ACCOUNT BOOK AND INCOME TAX GUIDE SAVES FARMERS TIME, TROUBLE AND MONEY

SAVES YOU TIME—You will find that a few minutes a week keeps your Farm Account Book up-to-date. The first 15 pages of your new Farm Account Book tell a straight story about what is required from farmers. Your problems are dealt with in question and answer form and an index refers you quickly to the section you want. The pages and columns for accounts are numbered to correspond with the items on the Income Tax Return form itself. You can make an accurate record of all farm dealings as you go along.

If You Haven't Received Your Copy, Get It Now— FREE AT YOUR POST OFFICE

SAVES MONEY BY SHOWING YOU HOW—Every farmer legally is entitled to deductions for a wide variety of expenses. Your Farm Account Book has 12 pages devoted to columns for these. You are reminded of items which otherwise you might forget. Depreciation, a big factor, is covered on 75 named articles in common farm use.

You are shown how to establish claims for a Basic Herd and make a Three-Year-Average of your returns. This latter gives you the advantage of the lowest possible tax and it may be dated back to 1946. These are direct money-saving advantages entirely to your benefit.

THE THREE YEAR AVERAGE

You can't lose if you take advantage of this. Two things are necessary to average your income over the three year period ending December 31, 1948. First your 1947 return MUST BE FILED ON TIME—that is, by April 30, 1948. Then when you file your 1948 return in 1949 you may make application to average your income for 1946-1947-1948. This averaging of income continues yearly so that in each year you are taxed only on the average of each three year period.

REMEMBER — HALF CULTIVATED LAND YIELDS A POOR CROP—HALF KEPT ACCOUNTS GIVE POOR RESULTS TOO

Last year Canadian farmers—and there are nearly a million of them—produced over $2,000,000,000 in farm produce of all kinds. No other single industry approaches agriculture in volume of production. And as in every other business—even the smallest—every farmer must file an account of his transactions with the Department of National Revenue to qualify for the many tax exemptions which are allowed.

HANDS AT WORK...

LEARNING AERO ENGINE AND AIRFRAME MECHANICS

ONTARIO'S products are desired and purchased by people all over the world and the capacity to produce such goods largely determines the economic welfare of every man, woman and child within her borders. Because the sale of every article produced in Ontario brings valuable dollars into this Province, we all are more assured of job security . . . and we and our children can have more of the better things in life. To produce such goods in sufficient quantities, skilled labour is vital. That is why every single one of us should be glad that war veterans are constantly being trained to provide the skilled hands so needed by industry. Veterans receive ON THE JOB training under expert instructors in our Ontario factories.

This training, provided through the co-operation of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, the Federal Department of Labour and the Ontario Department of Education, starts veterans off on the road to skilled craftsmanship. Taught to use their hands in general aero engine and airframe work, both on military and civilian aircraft, these veterans may qualify for a Department of Transport license, authorizing them to declare aircraft airworthy. In aircraft manufacturing plants and on flying fields throughout Ontario, these newly-skilled veterans will have the opportunity to apply their talents and training. Their efforts will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and will contribute to the welfare and happiness of all her citizens.

AERO ENGINE MECHANICS

H. Parry, 25, of Oshawa, Ontario, a Canadian Army veteran, is shown making an adjustment to the engine of a Cub Trainer. Students work on various types of aircraft ranging from the Cub Trainer to multiple engine military aircraft. Many veterans, trained as ground crew specialists during the war, have chosen to take post-war training in this occupation for which they are particularly suited. For them the transition to peace-time employment has been easier.

The Tiny Plot

It is eally ama ing the results in satisfaction and beauty one can get from a tiny plot of flowers. And they will not take much work either. A little digging and a few packets of seed or boxes of started plants are all that are needed. If one has more time it can be enlarged, and as one's interest grows more frills can be added.

The quick-growing annuals can be useful, as ground covers in front of shrubs and around the base of roses and lilies.

Some, like ageratum and sweet alyssum, make trim edgings for formal beds. Others, like certain the petunias and the California poppies, give charmingly informal effects. In the perennial borders they can be used to fill space left bare after spring bulbs, or to provide all-summer effects around early bloomers such as the Oriental poppy, bleeding heart, or peony.

Not Too Many Colors

If your garden is small, it is best not to have too many colors. A long border is prettiest if the masses of color shade into one another in drifts. Avoid a spotty effect. Don't forget the value of occasional white — especially if you enjoy evenings in the garden. If you want to attract hummingbirds and those beautiful great night moths, plant for fragrance as well. Nicotiana will draw them. Cosmos is a favorite with the little goldfinches.

Try Experiments

It is always exciting, also, to raise something entirely different or new each year, or to experiment in some new field. A "blue garden" or a garden border planted for evening enjoyment is fun to work out. A new variety of an old favorite might be included each year. Getting acquainted with an annual not previously in your garden — for instance, do you know the spicy, fragrant annual dianthus? — add a new flower-friend each summer to your social list.

Teeming Millions Of China and India

We are accustomed to hearing the expression "China's swarming millions," but few Canadians have any exact knowledge of what that actually means in numbers. The Chinese national census bureau of the Ministry of the Interior has computed the total population of the country for the second half of 1947 as 462,798,093. There is a predominance of females 241,913,638, as against 220,884,455 males. The total number of families in China is estimated to be 86,637,312. Nanking, the national capital, has a population of 1,034,995, while among the large special municipalities, Shanghai ranks first with 4,300,630.

But India, too, has its "swarming millions," and the 1941 population of that country is given as 388,997,935, with 2,108,891 of them in Calcutta, the largest city. This total population included those of the dominions of India and Pakistan combined.

If the Western world is interested in the political and economic future of these two vast countries, it is largely because the combined populations of them is the stupendous total of 851,796,028.

Three Minutes of Fiction Fun

SHORT STORY

Waiting For Something

By TED M. RIDER

Uncle Jan twisted in his wicker chair on the front porch when he heard Carol's heels clicking swiftly on the sidewalk. Bax Hammond towered one step behind her and was pretty mad because the thin scar on his cheek looked twisted under the blazing light of the street lamp.

Then the storm broke. "What's gotten into your niece, Jan? Yesterday, she insisted on buying her own ticket to the barn dance. Tonight, she paid her own way into the movies. Now, I ask you—"

Bax paused to settle his blue eyes indignantly on Carol's bowed red head, but said in a very bored tone, "Girls are becoming pretty independent nowadaws, aren't they Uncle Jan?"

"Well, for the luvva Pete!" Bax gasped explosively. "We're engaged aren't we, Carol? And you'll be dependent on me for the rest of your life, won't you? Why, that's taken for granted, and that's the way I want it!"

"Oh, you do? Well, thanks for lettin me know that, Mr. Boss Hammond. Now I'll tell you something. Here's your ring back."

She jerked the sparkling diamond from her finger and shoved it into the stunned young man's palm, then slammed through the screen door with a speed that made Unle Jan blink.

"Bax why didn't you and Carol get hitched right after your army discharge?"

"How could I marry her, then, Jan? I was stone broke and had to start my automobile agency on a flyer. And you know how things went. First, I couldn't get any stock. Then, my garage burned down and I had to start from scratch again. We're through!"

Uncle Jan stopped his departure by quickly asking for a match. He had to untangle things someway. Why, Carol had always wanted to marry Bax. Even two years ago she'd come right out and asked if marriage wasn't a partnership where each person shared rain or shine as it came.

Bax hadn't wanted her when things were going bad for him, so she was wondering why he wanted her now when he was a success. After five long years of waiting, fear had replaced confidence, and her sudden desire to be independent was nothing but a cover-up to hide that fear. Maybe she was fearful that P . just considered her another step up the ladder for himself, something to be bossed around because he was paying the bills. She wanted proof of his love.

Suddenly, he had an idea for a cure. It would be a pretty drastic one but it would show them how much they really cared for each other.

He turned to the door and bellowed. "Did you say Carol won't marry you because of that bullet scar on your cheek, Bax? Well, that's something to think about."

In a second, the screen door flew open and Carol stood there, her hand on his shoulder and her heart in her eyes staring down at Bax's white strained face. He'd taken the remark seriously, and Uncle Jan felt suddenly frightened. If Carol didn't handle things right, now . . .

"Bax," she said, simply, "your scar stands for everything fine; for duty, loyalty, sacrifice—for everything fine I love in you."

Her hands rose to tremble on the muscles ridging his jaw grimly. Then, as he stiffened, she stood on tip-toe and kissed the scar.

When he still stood like a granite statue and Carol started to cry, Uncle Jan roared in high dudgeon, "You going to wait five more years to kiss her back, you dumb galoot?? That's why she busted the engagement. When a guy makes a girl wait that long she wants something besides words to prove he loves her. Get it?"

One Way of Relaxing After a Hard Day's Work—Something new in the National Film Board's rural program is a picture, of Scottish origin, showng how a young couple—with the assistance of neighbors—overcame the problem of crowded living quarters and the necessity of healthful relaxation.

"After Six O'Clock"

"After Six O'Clock" is the story of a venture started by a young couple in Scotland. They lived in an apartment, and, although they were happy, they had their troubles too.

Their chief trouble was noise—noise emanating from the next-door apartment of a young trumpet-playing enthusiast, who practised his art both night and day.

They attempted to reason with the trumpet-fiend, but to no avail. "You have your right to silence," he said, in effect, "but I also have my right to make noise with my trumpet." There seemed to be no solution to the problem.

The young couple pondered the matter, and began to see that both parties had their rights. But where could they practise these rights without bothering their neighbours? Then the idea came to them—an idea which is as applicable in Canada as it is in Scotland. Why not make a community centre, where everybody could make the best use of their talents in their spare time?

A bit dubious as to the reception their idea would get, they began to approach their fellow citizens cautiously. But their fears had no basis in fact. It soon appeared that many other citizens of the community held the same ideas. The minister of the local church, the town school authorities, and many other community groups expressed their interest in the project.

Soon a citizen's committee was formed, and a financial target decided upon, and attained through various promotional stunts. In short order the committee located a suitable building. The members cleaned it up, painted it, and were soon plunged into such activities as sewing, amateur drama, folk dancing, sketching, children's games—and trumpet playing.

Historic Floating Bridge Must Go

One of the few floating bridges still in existence in Canada is about to give way to a more modern structure.

Ever since 1870 it has been saving travellers a nine mile detour around Lake Chemong, just northwest of Peterborough. The more adventurous type of traveller will be sorry to see it go, as negotiating the mile-long bridge—considered the longest of its type in the world—was often a thrilling experience.

Quite often a motorist, driving across with windows open, would get a drenching when a wave smashed against the car; and passengers could often be seen walking behind during the crossing, just in case.

With an overall width of 20 feet, the bridge had a double-floored centre strip only about 14 feet wide. This wasn't sufficient for 2-way traffic so this strip had half a dozen "pullout" places for cars to pass one another. Total load limit was five tons, and even when an ordinary passenger car travelled the bridge water would squirt through the floor boards as the bridge sank under the weight.

In Fall and Spring the bridge became a twisted tangle of timber and ice. Winds buffeted the structure and either sank portions of it under the heavy ice or tore whole sections loose. When this happened, bridge-tenders had to chase the wayward sections up and down the lake.

Largest City

Which is the world's largest city? London? "In population, right (though New York is a close runner-up). But in area, the correct answer is Kiruna, an iron ore town in Swedish Lapland, north of the Arctic Circle.

Although this city has only 18,000 inhabitants, its area is 18 times that of Greater New York.

Despite this distinction, people of far flung Kiruna probably envy New Yorkers one superlative (while it lasts) — the world's longest subway ride for a nickel.

Fire Chief Rescues Eleven Month old Baby

WINS DOW AWARD

ROBERT DEY of Pembroke, Ont

performs gallant deed although wrists slashed by broken window

It wasn't the sight of angry flames enveloping her two-storey home that filled Mrs. Anderson's heart with terror. It was the thought of her 11-month-old baby boy — trapped alone in that blazing inferno! For a second or two she stood rooted to the ground . . . and then a scream from inside the house brought her back to reality. Three times, in spite of neighbours' protests, she tried to reach her baby. But she had to give up . . . her face and hair singed by the flames.

DEY ENTERS THROUGH WINDOW

By this time firemen were battling the blaze and Chief Robert Dey was attempting to force his way into the house. Finally he smashed a window and crawled through. Although both his wrists had been cut by the broken glass he fought his way into the blazing living room and managed to find the little boy. Then, choking from the dense smoke and terrific heat, he made his way back to the window and soon had the youngster safe in his mother's arms.

We are proud to recognize publicly the gallantry and outstanding bravery of Fire Chief Robert Dey of Pembroke, Ontario, through the presentation of The Dow Award.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. Winners are selected by the Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers.

Desperately, Mrs Anderson tried to enter the burning house. After three attempts, her hair and face singed, she realized that she must give up.

Stumbling through the dense smoke from room to room, Chief Dey finally found the child. Then, with the terrified boy in his arms, he fought his way back to the window.

Revolutionary Phonograph Plays Records Vertically—It is claimed that this newly developed phonograph pictured above will completely revolutionize the playing of recorded music. Its most novel feature is that records are played in a vertical position. They are never turned or dropped. In addition, it holds 200 selections ready for instant playing and will automatically find any record in the library, plays either one or both sides and return it to storage without anyone's touching any of the recordings, pick-up arm or mechanism. The machine furnishes more than 14 hours of continuous music without ever repeating a single selection. A timer starts it playng at any time desired and ends the program at a predetermined time.

Sports – And One Thing or Another

By FRANK MANN HARRIS

("A Sixbit Critic")

Professional hockey players, and the newspaper writers whose task it is to report every move of these heroes on behalf of a palpitating public, frequently have a lot of idle time to kill between games and practise sessions. This is especially the case when a team is in some strange city for several days on account of a Stanley Cup series or some such.

Some of them put in most of this spare time engaged in card games of a fairly mild innocuous variety. Others will wander out to see the sights of the town—although this particular pastime is said not to be nearly as popular as formerly, now that a player's moral and social behavior is of almost as great interest to his employers as his scoring ability. But the chief means of time-assassination is just to sit around and talk about—of all things!—hockey.

During such gab-fests somebody is almost bound to start picking All-time All-star teams; and some weird and wonderful combinations of past and present hockey standouts are evolved. One of those we best recall was put together by a sports writer who shall remain nameless, but whose most strenuous feat of personal athletic endeavor was chalking a pool-cue.

On this occasion everybody present was asked to jot down on a piece of paper the names of his mythical All-Star team — the idea being, if we remember aright, that the one judged to have made the best selection was to have the privilege of buying the next round. Of soda-pop, naturally. And when it came time to read them off it was discovered that this chap had written down the following — Howie Morenz; "Dutch" Nighbor; Fred Taylor; Eddie Shore; Lionel Conacher — just the five names.

"Hey there," somebody yelled, "you've forgotten to pick out any goaltender." "Brother" was the unruffled reply, "with a bunch like that I'd do the goaltending myself — an what's more I wouldn't even bother to put on pads!

If the Hamilton Tigers should drop out of the Big Four—as seems to be their present intention—a whole lot of old-time color will be missing from that football loop, and their action will be regretted, especially by those who remember them in the days of their greatness. Some of our earliest sports memories recall Autumn jaunts to the Ambitious City, and the roars of a football-crazy crowd yelling for the Tigers to "Eat 'Em Raw."

* * *

But we suppose it's just another case of "When little boys play with big boys it's seldom the big fellows who get hurt." Upper-bracket football is strictly a dollar-and cents proposition nowadays—although this is hotly denied by some of those behind it—and Hamilton just cannot hope to rake in sufficient money to put Tigers on a par with Argonauts and Alouettes in the search for talent.

Ottawa is in a slightly different position—as it is rumored that down there in the shade of Parliament Hill there are always nice positions—" hours 12 to 1 with 60 minutes off for lunch"—for a hard-hitting middle wing or fleet-footed halfback, and that these help to make up for comparatively small box-office receipts.

But of such matters we cannot speak with any authority. All we know for certain is that we shall be sincerely sorry to see the Hamilton Tigers pass out of the League. Nor do we mind predicting that there will come a day when the other t will regret that they weren't just a trifle more generous in helping ease their financial load by cutting them in just a trifle deeper on away-from home gates.

The conditioning of athletes is a business for experts nowadays, as everybody knows. Meeting our old friend Bill Kelly—now an official on Ontario race tracks—the other day brought back memories of the only time we were ever attempted in an amateur way, to assist in such doings.

After several years absence from the saddle, Kelly had been asked to ride in a certain Steeplechase; and wishing to sweat off some of the accumulated suet he invited us to spend the night at his house, then come out with him for an early morning run. "We'll get up at four in the morning, run about five miles, then come back and have breakfast."

* * *

After what seemed like about 30 minutes in the hay the alarm went off; and with many groans and much mutual sympathy we donned sweaters and shorts and emerged into the cold grey dawn. Our path led up along toward Riverdale Park; and as we passed the fire hall the clock bonged the half-hour. Looking up we saw that it was half-past three! Somebody—we each blamed the other—had set the clock for an hour early.

Nothing daunted we plodded on, down the steep hill leading into The Park which—as some of you will no doubt recall—houses Toronto's Zoo. After a few moments the path started to lead upward, and breath seemed harder to get. Cage after cage of animals we passed, but in nary a one of them could we notice a single sign of life.

Suddenly Kelley pulled to a halt, a very serious expression on his face. "Over there," he said, pointing, "are the zebras. Over there a cageful of monkeys. In that cage, the lions. In that one, Heaven knows what. All dumb animals — yet all with sense enough to be sleeping their heads off, while we're out here running ourselves to death. Doesn't seem sensible, does it?"

"It certainly doesn't," we panted in reply. "Let's go home and get back to bed." And since then all our participation in athletic conditioning has been strictly from the sidelines — and after the sun was well up in the skies too.

Brazil Needs Many Canadian Products

Despite Brazil's current shortage of dollar exchange, that country offers excellent market opportunities to the Canadian exporter, Canada's principal sales to Brazil consist of wheat and other grains, paper and paper products, and machinery. There are possibilities for expansion, particularly in the last group, in view of Brazil's great need arising from increasing industrialization and the necessity for replacement of obsolete machinery, which could not be effected due to the scarcity of supplies during the war years. Perhaps Brazil's most urgent postwar requirements are for better transportation facilities, involving the purchase of ships, aircraft, locomotives and rolling stock, buses, trucks, passenger cars and spare parts. The latest list of essential imports, to which Brazil will give priority in the issue of foreign exchange, includes in addition, agricultural machinery and implements, tools, metals, industrial chemicals, pharmaceuticals and pigments.

LOCAL BOY LEAVES CANADA

Better financial appreciation of service, and the realization by U. S. capitalists of the marked ability of Canadian engineers, continues to swell the tide of our university graduates flowing to the nation South of us.

Frederick W. Barlow, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Barlow of this town has accepted a position with the Neville Chemical Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., and commences his duties on May 1st.

Fred was head of the Hose Dept., of Dominion Rubber of Montreal, with which company he has been associated for past four and one-half years. His experience since graduating from the U. of T. in '39 has been in the fields of paint, food processing analyst at the Dept. of Public Works Ottawa and rubber, so he is well fitted for the position of chemical engineer for the Pittsburg firm. The salary he is to receive is 25 percent larger than he is receiving at the present time from Canadian industry. We wish Fred continued success.

DO TO OTHERS AS YOU WOULD . . .

Did it ever occur to you that having good neighbors is one of the joys of life? And that to enjoy the friendship of good neighbors, you, too, must be one? Living in close contact with our fellow men, we must take a friendly interest in them if we are to be happy. Neighborliness is simply treating the other fellow as you would have him treat you. And good neighbors make "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.
