Sad Death of William C. Short.

After an absence of seventeen years, and not being heard from for over two years, word reached Mrs. William Short of the death of her son William C. Short, of Lander, Wyo., which occurred under sad circumstances. It seems he was herding sheep in Wyoming, and on the night of the 20th of Oct., 1906, his sheep left their sleeping ground and he went in search of them and lost his way in a snow storm or blizzard, and was found a couple of days afterward frozen to death. He was buried in Wyoming. Over two years have elapsed before his friends there could locate his relatives and get word to them. He was thirty-five years of age and unmarried. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother and four brothers, John, of Essex, Ont; Jas. and David, of Milberta, New Ont., and Thomas, of Dunbar, Ont

Hockey Player Committs Suicide.

From Pittsburg, Pa., comes the story of the sad suicide of a former Canadian hockey player, Frederick E. McQuaig, who originally lived in Iroquois, Ont. It seems that McQuaig, who was a medical student at Pittsburg College, became mentally deranged by overstudy. He left home for a walk on Nov. 17, and when in Schenley Park was seen to deliberately jump from a bridge to the bottom of a ravine, a distance of 120 feet. He died a few minutes after his body was found. McQuaig was twenty-seven years of age. He is survived by his aged mother, two sisters and one brother.

Crysler In Line.

At a very enthusiastic meeting held at Crysler one evening last week the Crysler Hockey club was organized, the election of officers resulting as follows:—

Honorary presidents J. A. O'Donnell, Joseph Benoit; president, Andrew Jardine; honorary vice-presidents, J. B Lafrance, J A. Quenvile, and M. Robert; vice presidents, Leo Racine, J. Page, and Leo Bishop; secretary- treasurer, J. B. Braithwaite; executive committee, Messrs, J. Coones, O. Landry, A. Lapage, A. Rattette and A. Lepage.

Keen interest is being taken by Crysler people in hockey matters, and the local team is out this year for first honors in the Northern Stormont league, which was recently formed. Crysler has one of the most up to-date rinks in Eastern Ontario, and although the team will be comprised entirely of young players, it is open to all changes.

Died In The West.

We regret to announce the death of of our late respected townsman, Lindsay J. Weegar, which occurred at Rosedale Ranch, Calgary, Alta., on the 21st Nov. 1908. Deceased, who had made his home in Alberta for the past six years enjoyed tne esteem and effection of all his neighbors and will be greatly missed, He leaves a sorrowing widow and family of five children; one daughter Pearl Marguerite and 4 boys, Adrian Earl, Percy Edward, Rupert Lindsay, Ira Maurice; Also a large circle of friends. An impressive funeral service was held by the Rev. Hodgins, Methodist minister of Airdrie. The pall bearers were Joseph Tyas, J. P., W. J. Church, F. Goodkey, John Brennan, Joseph H. Bishop, W. R. Ash. Beautiful wreaths were sent by Councillors Tyas and Jones.

The late gentleman, who had suffered with internal trouble for several months, showed the greatest fortitude and patience under suffering.

The end came peacefully amidst his devoted family and attached friends.

His father and brother, Ira Weegar, reside still at the old place where deceased was born besides whom three brothers and three sisters, still survive.

Led Constables In Race To Bog.

When the C. P. R. express from Montreal pulled in at Smith's Falls a few days ago a couple of C. P. R. constables were on hand to arrest a man who was riding the blind baggage, and of whom word had been sent ahead. He was not easily caught however. The moment he alighted from the train he apparently sized up the situation, and then began the greatest sprinting match Smith's Falls has seen in many a long day. Over the station platform, across lots, around corners, down streets and through fields went the pursued and his pursuers. The stranger easily led and had many laps to the good, but puffing and panting the C. P. R. men pushed after him. In the meantime word had been sent to Chief of Police Edwards for help and hastily jumping into a cab he too joined in the race. Excitement was at fever heat, and in the midst of it the fugitive eluded his pursuers. Nothing daunted however, the latter kept up the chase and struck into the swale, a boggy strip of land, about a mile out of town, in which direction he was last seen making for.

After a thorough search there the constables had about concluped to look elsewhere for their man when one of them spied a hat above the bulrushes, the owner of it appareutly having risen up to find his bearings again and then the game was up. The stranger was bundled into a cab rushed to the police station where he was held until his trial. He gave his name as H. C. Templeton and his address as Moutreal but that is all the account he would give of himself.

A Young Life Called Hence.

Friday forenoon of last week, Nov. 27th, 1908, the light went out in the young life of Katie Lillian, youngest daughter of Dr. M and Mrs. Brown, of Chesterville.

When quite young the deceased had whooping cough and from which she contracted other ailments which continued until her death. For a number of years she has spent the most of the time in her home, where every available comfort was given by her affectionate mother and medical treatment by her father and brother Dr. W. A. Brown.

At different periods it would seem almost impossible for her to recover, and in many cases it would prove fatal, but with such close attention the light would shine again and hopes revive, until about three weeks ago, when it seemed evident that her time in life was short. Katie had many warm friends who did not fail to visit her quite often, and who were always gladly welcomed by her. In her delicate condition she could not feel very joyous at times, but it seemed to be the height of her ambition to make everybody happy and especially at this season of the year, as Christmas presents seemed to be her hobby and of which her delicate white hands were the donors of many, and while she gave she loved to receive and the presents at Christmas time came in abundance to her.

The funeral, which was largely attended took place on Sunday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, service being conducted in the Methodist church by the Rev. A. E. Runnels, B. D., after which interment was made in the family plot in Maple Ridge cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Murray Casselman, Cecil Fulton, Harry Hummel, Charlie Huxtable, Ashton Merkley, Will Nash.

Among the floral tributes were a wreath from the family and cut flowers from Arthur Brown and family of Morrisburg; Miss Winegard, Miss Sarah Merkley, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Casselman and Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Whelehan.

Since our residence here many deaths have occurred in the family of Dr. and Mrs. Brown, and the RECORD, with a large circle of frlends, extend every sympathy to the bereaved, in being called upon to mourn the death of their youngest daughter, Katie Lillian.

Robinson—Merkley.

A very quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. Chester Merkley, Chesterville, on Wednesday, Dec. 2nd 1908, when his eldest daughter, Maude, was united in marriage to Fred Robinson of Sarnia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. E. Runnels, B. D.

The marriage tok oplace at 3 p. m. and was only witnessed by the immediate friends of the contracting parties

The bride was dressed in pale blue silk, with veil, and wore a wreath of cream sweet peas in her hair and carried cream roses.

She was attedded by her sister Iva, who looked charming in pink silk and carried pink roses, while the groom was ably assisted by Mr. George Scott, of Winchester. The wedding march was played by Miss E. Grace Casselman of Morrisburg.

The bridal party stood under an arch of evergreen's and the room and table were decorated with ferns and carnations. After the ceremony the company was served with a sumptuous dinner.

Mrs. Robinson received a number of beautiful as well as useful gifts. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold locket and chain, to the groomsman a gold pin set with an amethyst, and to the organist, a gold bracelet.

The bride's travelling suit was brown broadcloth with hat to match. The happy couple left on the evening train for Toronto, Sarnia and other points, carrying with them the best wishes of their many triends.

Chancellor Boyd at Toronto on Monday morning quashed the local option by-law recently passed by Stouffville, Ont., on the ground that the requisite three-fifths was not obtained.

MOVING WESTERN WHEAT

Splendid Record Being Made By the Railways This Year.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Up to date there has passed inspection at Winnipeg 40,400,000 bushels of wheat of the crop of 1908, or nearly 9,000,000 bushels more than had been inspected up to the end of December last year. Putting the exportable surplus of crop at 80,000,000 bushels, more than half of that surplus has already been inspected, and before navigation closes on the 5th of December the amount will have run over 45,000,000 bushels. In spite of the kicks that continue to come from the country as to car shortage, the west has already got out more wheat, considering the distance it has to travel, than any country has ever moved in the same period before.

Up to the end of September the average price to the farmer had run just about 85 cents per bushel for all grades. The average has not been made up since that time, but it has certainly been higher, rather than lower. Taking the average of wheat passed inspection at 85 cents to the farmer, there has been paid to them on the wheat crop of 1908, $34,340,000. It is interesting to note the record of the various roads, in the movement of the crop. Of the 43,973 cars inspected the C. P. R. handled 27,845, the C. N. R. 12,821, and the new G. T. P. made the splendid record of 924, and 2,383 went over the Great Northern to Duluth.

The Canadian Pacific holds the palm for the largest number of cars mover on such long hauls in the period of two and a half months, and evidence of the advantage of double tracking is fairly thrust in the face of every dealer of wheat.

The record of the G. T. P. for a new road is magnificent, for it must be remembered that not a car moved on that road in September. The record of nearly a thousand cars is for October and November alone.

IT IS VERY DANGEROUS OIL

Prof. Parker, of Manitoba University, Says It Is Worse Than Dynamite.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: "That oil, poured on a living fire, would be more dangerous than dynamite or nitro-glycerine used similarly."

Such was the startling statement of Professor Parker of Manitoba University, on Thursday, on the completion of tests of samples of oil obtained from the same source as that which resulted in fifteen deaths within a fortnight in the Province.

"This oil," said Professor Parker, "is extraordinary in some respects. I do not think that it was adulterated with gasoline, as has been suggested. I tried it for specific gravity, for flash point, and I distilled it fractionally. I believe that it contained a heavy percentage of naphtha, of low grade perhaps. Gasoline would distill off below 90 degrees, or even 70 degrees, and only 2 or 3 per cent. of this oil distilled off below 90 degrees. The portion of 47 per cent. distilled at between 90 and 130 degrees. Therefore I think it contained, not gasoline, but naphtha. The flash point was below what my machine will register. Investigation shows that the company charged with wholesaleing this oil has been importing naphtha largely."

W. H. MORTON STABBED.

Italian Laborer Thrusts Knife Into His Breast.

A despatch from Niagara Falls says: Following a dispute over wages, Joe Fread, an Italian laborer, committed a murderous assault on W. H. Morton at Stamford on Thursday afternoon. Morton is foreman of a gang of laborers who work on the roads in Stamford township, and was paying the men off on the conclusion of the job. Fread demanded more than had been agreed upon, and Morton refused to pay him. Fread walked away, but in a few minutes came back, and, without warning, stabbed Morton twice in the breast near the heart with a dirk knife, and ran off into the woods. The police, after a long chase, captured him. Morton is in a very critical condition.

SMALLPOX NEAR BROCKVILLE

Five Children Stricken — Thought it Was Chicken-pox.

A despatch from Brockville says: In the village of Lyn, five miles from Brockville, five cases of smallpox were diagnosed on Wednesday by Brockville's Medical Health Officer. The patients were children in four different houses, some of whom had almost recovered, while others were in the worst stages. It was generally believed that the children were suffering from chicken-pox, therefore no precautionary measures were taken.

GERMAN CATTLE AFFECTED.

Foot and Mouth Disease Epidemic in Several Districts.

A despatch from Berlin says: The foot and mouth disease is epidemic in several of the cattle districts of Germany.

LEAPED INTO CANAL.

Brantford Man Caught by Train on Bridge Took Chances.

A despatch from Brantford says: George Hanscombe, in crossing the trestle bridge over the canal on Thursday morning, was caught by the T., H. and B gravel train. Rather than be run down he plunged into the canal, from which he was later rescued without injury.

JUDGE MACCALLUM DEAD.

Passed Away at Gore Bay, Manitoulin Island.

A despatch from Gore Bay, Manitoulin, says: Judge Archibald MacCallum, formerly a Toronto newspaper man and a prominent political worker, died here on Thursday of pneumonia. Judge MacCallum leaves a widow and a family of young children.

Two prisoners named Brooks and Mallory escaped from Lindsay jail on Saturday.

During October 500 cases of typhoid were reported to the Provincial Board of Health.

WAR IN BALKANS IMMINENT

The Trouble Is Now Believed to Have Come to a Head.

A despatch from London says: Friday has been a day of uneasiness and even alarm. Various reports, all seeming to harmonize with each other, created a belief that the Balkan trouble had come to a head, and that war was very near. The general interpretation of the withdrawal of Marquis Pallavicinni, the Austrian Ambassador at Constantinople, as a disguised ultimatum to Turkey, Russia's unfavorable reply to the Austrian note concerning a conference, the reported definite conclusion of an alliance between Turkey, Montenegro and Servia, the alleged clash of an Austrian column with a Servian guerilla band, the rumored increase of troops in Bosnia, and a fresh concernation at Semin, opposite Belgrade, where it was asserted a plot to murder an Austrian Minister had been discovered, were the principal causes of the excitement. These, added to the universal exasperation caused by the Turkish boycott caused declines at the bourses of Vienna and Budapest, which were partly checked by a hasty official announcement denying some of the rumors, especially the fight between Austrians and Servians.

The position was in no wise bettered when it was learned that the Government had confiscated four Vienna newspapers for reporting the movements of troops particularly at Semlin.

It is impossible to say how far the day's alarm was justified, but nothing can be definitely ascertained to show that the situation is really worse than it has been for the last few days. Nevertheless the uneasiness is general, and the outlook is very obscure. It is stated in diplomatic quarters that the gravest difficulties lie in the direction of an Austrian-Russian disagreement, and the probability of an alliance between Turkey, Montenegro and Servia.

TWO TRAIN HANDS INJURED.

An Eastbound Freight Crashes into Another at Siding.

A despatch from Peterboro says: As a result of a collision between two freight trains at Bethany, about 12 miles west of here, at 7 o'clock on Monday night, two of the engine crew of one train were severely injured, seven cars were piled up, an engine was badly damaged, and the line was effectively blocked to traffic. The injured men are Engineer Kirby, of West Toronto, badly cut about the head, and Brakeman Ervin, also of West Toronto, compound fracture of the leg.

ENDED LIFE WITH SHOTGUN.

Ridgetown Man Pulled Trigger With a Ramrod.

A despatch from Chatham says: Daniel Mowbray, who lives near Ridgetown, committed suicide on Monday morning. Mr. Mowbray, who lived with his sister, Mrs. Stewart, had suffered greatly during his life and lately had been very melancholy. Monday morning he took a muzzle-loading shotgun into the orchard and placed it under a cherry tree. He then placed his temple at the muzzle and used the ramrod to pull the trigger. The charge entered his head and caused instantaneous death.

STEEL WORKS MAY CLOSE

Lack of Orders Reported at Sault Ste. Marie.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie says: It is learned from a reliable source that the steel plant of the Algoma Steel Company will probably close next week because of lack of orders. The demand for steel is not as heavy in Canada as it was expected it would be. Whether the recent deal in the Lake Superior Corporation has anything to do with the conditions at present was not learned. The move will throw 1,500 men out of employment.

BLACKLEG IN ESSEX.

Contagious Form of Cattle Disease Has Broken Out.

A despatch from Windsor says: Blackleg, a highly contagious form of cattle disease, has made its appearance in Rochester Township, Essex County, and some fourteen or fifteen head among whom the disease has already been discovered, will have to be slaughtered at once.

6 ADULTERATED COAL OIL.

Sample at Neepawa Made up of Naphtha and Gasoline.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: A sample of coal oil on sale at Neepawa was analyzed here on Monday and found to contain absolutely no kerosene at all. It was a combination of naphtha and gasoline, and had a flash point below fifty.

HER LIFE FOR A DOG.

Mrs. Tony Ververan, of Hamilton, Killed by a Car.

A despatch from Hamilton: says: In an attempt to save her dog from injury by a Radial car on Sunday evening about 5 o'clock Mrs. Tony Ververanan, Whitfield avenue, lost her own life. She and her husband were walking along the tracks near Irondale, and hearing a car approach, they stepped aside out of danger. The dog remained on the track, and as it was in danger of being struck, Mrs. Ververanan ran on the track to save it. As she bent forward to pick it up the corner of the car struck her on the head knocking her senseless. The car was stopped, and she was taken to the City Hospital, where the doctors operated on her. Her skull was too badly fractured for surgical aid to be of any benefit, and she died about an hour later.

ST. JEROME'S DAMAGED.

Berlin Students Work Hard to Save New Buildings.

A despatch from Berlin says: Fire did $35,000 damage to St. Jerome's College early on Sunday morning, destroying the oldest of the college buildings, which was used as a notiviate chapel, dormitory and society hall. Several billiard tables, a piano, an organ and other valuable furniture were destroyed, as well as practically all the clothing of 12 students who slept there. The volunteer brigade of students had streams playing on the flames before the arrival of the city brigade.

Jessie Wilkinson, said to be an expert forger, was arrested at Winnipeg on Saturday.

Police Magistrate Moore of Kenora has been suspended by the Government.

INDIA'S UNREST INCREASING

Attempt on the Lives of Englishmen Almost of Daily Occurrence.

A despatch from Calcutta says: The situation in India has not shown such a menace of serious uprisings as it does to-day for many years past. Attacks and attempts on the lives of Englishmen, officials and civilians are of almost daily occurrence. Lord Minto, the Viceroy of India, returned here on Wednesday from the north, cutting short his excursion in this territory for the purpose of considering measures to cope with the native disaffection, which the authorities have been forced to recognize as alarmingly on the increase.

On Wednesday night a Bengali made an unsuccessful attempt to kill Public Prosecutor Hume with a bomb in a railroad carriage, near Agurpara. There were three other Europeans in the carriage at the same time. None was injured. Last Monday night District Supt. of Police Clough was murdered by a native at Lyallpur. The native approached the superintendent while he was asleep and cut open his head with a spade.

The native, named Chownhury, who on November 7 made an attempt here upon the life of Sir Andrew Henderson Fraser, the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal, on Wednesday pleaded guilty and was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The police are taking remarkable precautions to safeguard Lord Minto, and this is regarded as most significant.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Young Montreal Man Burned in Clothes-Cleaning Shop.

A despatch from Montreal says: A young man named Lagamiere was burned to death on Friday afternoon as a result of an explosion of gasoline. He was engaged in cleaning a suit of clothes in a tailor shop on Berthelet street, when the gasoline he was using became ignited, and in a second the fire caught in the big tank of gasoline, which exploded. The building was wrecked, and Lagamiere was badly injured by the explosion. Before the firemen could arrive the building was a mass of flames, and the young man's escape was cut off. After the flames were subdued his charred body was found in the ruins. Lagamiere was twenty years of age.

A HUNDRED DROWNED.

Coasting Steamer Went Down off the Philippines.

A despatch from Manila says: The coasting steamer Ponting, carrying a large number of laborers from Narvaian to the ricefields in Pangasinan province, struck a rock and sank on Thursday night during a storm, off the town of San Fernando, in Union province. It is estimated that a hundred of the passengers and crew of the Ponting were drowned. The steamer Viscaya rescued 55. A patrol of constabulary, which was established immediately after the accident, picked up fifteen bodies, and many were coming ashore. It is not known whether any Americans or Europeans were aboard the wrecked steamer.

138 MINERS DEAD.

Explosion in Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal Mine.

A despatch from Pittsburg, Pa., says: Twenty-five bodies, all but two of them horribly mutilated, and several dismembered, were taken on Sunday from the mine of the Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal Co., at Marianna, where an explosion occurred on Saturday. Officials of the company who said on Saturday night that over 125 had been killed, on Sunday night admit that 138 men went down the shaft to work on Saturday morning. According to miners and others familiar with the number of men generally employed in the mine, the death list will exceed the company's estimate by at least 50.

SIX MEN SUFFOCATED.

Were Working in Salt Mine on Outskirts of Detroit.

A despatch from Detroit says: Six men were suffocated to death on Saturday afternoon in the Village of Oakwood, on the western outskirts of Detroit. They were at work 500 feet down in a shaft being sunk for a salt mine, when the canvas tube which supplied them with air became clogged, and the shaft filled with gas. Four bodies have been recovered.

79 RESULTED FATALLY.

241 Employes Victims of Accidents During October.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Industrial accidents occurring to 241 individual work people in Canada during the month of October, 1908, were reported to the Department of Labor. Of these, 79 were fatal and 162 resulted in serious injuries. In addition, two fatal accidents were reported as having taken place prior to the beginning of the month, information not having been received by the department before October, 1908. The number of fatal accidents reported in October, 1908, was 23 less than in the previous month and 61 less than in October, 1907. The number of non-fatal accidents reported in October, 1908, was eight more than in the preceding month and 144 less than in October, 1907.

PARDON CAME TOO LATE.

Death of Capt. N. F. Harbottle From Cancer.

A despatch from Edmonton says: Captain N. F. Harbottle, the defaulting collector of inland revenue here, who was serving a two-year sentence, died suddenly in the penitentiary on Friday morning from cancer of the stomach. He had been operated upon and never rallied. A peculiarly sad feature of the case was the fact that one hour after his death a pardon arrived from Ottawa, which had been granted by order in Council after the precarious condition of his health was made known to the Government. Capt. Harbottle leaves a wife and four children.

LICENSING BILL REJECTED

New British Measure Buried by 272 to 96 Votes.

A despatch from London says: The House of Lords on Friday rejected, in accordance with their resolution of Nov. 24, the Government's Licensing Bill at the second reading by 272 to 96 votes. The Liberal party has for the past two months regarded this as the inevitable fate of the bill. They will, however, during the next general election campaign, use this as one of their many reasons for ending the House of Lords. They set forth, furthermore, that the bill, being a revenue measure, is outside the jurisdiction of the House of Lords.

RUN DOWN BY TRAIN.

Mrs. Gowdy and Granddaughter Seriously Injured.

A despatch from Welland says: On Thursday afternoon Mrs. William Gowdy of Buffalo, accompanied by her grandadughter, Merion Hatt, six years old, were run down by a Grand Trunk frieight train backing on them at the depot here. Both received serious injuries. Two doctors are in attendance. It is hoped the injuries may not prove fatal. The crossing is very dangerous, and many narrow escapes have occurred.

OPIUM IN THE PENITENTIARY

Tailor Instructor Has Been Suspended Pending Investigation.

A despatch from Kingston says: The tailor instructor of the penitentiary is under suspicion pending an investigation into the finding in one of his rooms in the institution a quantity of opium, tobacco, money and two watches purchased at Eaton's in Toronto. The suspended official denies all knowledge as to how these materials found their way into his department. The discovery was made by the prison authorities that opium and tobacco were being used, and a prisoner gave information as to where the material was coming from. Two prisoners under the instructor were using the drug, and one of them is now in the prison hospital. How the stuff got into the storeroom no one can tell. Some years ago a large quantity of stolen goods were found under the floor of the architect's room at the prison, but he knew nothing about the matter. Some prisoners were suspected of hiding the stuff, and there is no doubt the present case is a piece of convict sleight-of-hand work. Inspector Dawson will investigate.

THE PANGS OF SCIATICA

Can Be Cured by the Fair Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Fierce darting pains. Pains like red hot needles being driven through the flesh—in the thigh, perhaps down the legs to the ankles—that's sciatica. None but the victim can realize the torture of this trouble. But the sufferer need not grow discouraged for there is a cure in Dr. William's Pink Pills. These Pills enrich the blood, feed the starved sciatic nerve and thus drives out the pain. Mrs. Joseph L. Brown, Wilmot, N. S., was a victim of sciatica and found a cure in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—"For a year I was laid up with sciatica from my side to my foot. What I suffered was at times awful. I could not touch my foot to the floor and had to hobble about with a cane. My right leg was drawn up, and I never expected to have the use of it again. I was attended by our family doctor, and tried several other remedies, but with no benefit, and I felt very much discouraged. One day I read of the cure of a similar sufferer through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. I got six boxes, and by the time I had taken them I was completely cured, and have not had the slightest twinge of the trouble since. I am therefore, a very enthusiastic friend of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and recommend them to all who are similarly troubled."

There is no mystery about the cures Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make. They act upon the blood, enriching and purifying it, and in this way feed the nerves an ' reach the root of the disease. That is why they cure such common ailments as anaemia, pimples and eczema, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, paralysis, and the irregularities in health of growing girls and women. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE PAY-SHEET OF KINGS

THE PAY-SHEET OF KINGS.

WANTS A "RISE."

His Income of $4,500,000 is Not Considered Excessive for His Majesty.

The German Emperor as King of ussia wants to have his salary sed. At present he receives rom the State $650,000 as German Emperor and $3,852,770 as King of Prussia. The last increase, which amounted to $750,000, was made in 1889, in the second year of his reign. In spite of this, however, he is actually getting $1,950,000 less than the old Kings of Prussia annually received.

An income exceeding $4,500,000 is not a despicable sum even for Kaiser William, but those who know say it is not excessive, considering that there are no allowances to other members of the Royal Family, and that very little comes from the Royal domains.

The Kaiser has several hundred uniforms, and his tailor's bill runs into pretty tall figures. He has complete uniforms of all the Prussian regiments—horse, foot, and artillery—besides the regiments of the lesser States, and those of which he holds honorary rank in foreign countries. Every appointment is perfect, from the shoulder knots, which cost more than the uniform itself, to jewelled accoutrements fit for

AN ORIENTAL AUTOCRAT.

When he travels it is always in much pomp and ceremony and accompanied by a large retinue. Hence his official revenue is not enough to keep him. In addition to the up-keep of his fifty-two castles, palaces, and country houses, and innumerable farms and forests, is expected to maintain the Roy- theatres at Berlin, Hanover, and assel, and must also foot the bills or the Royal concerts.

The Kaiser is very lucky, however, in the way of legacies from wealthy subjects. Only a few years ago Herr Wilhelm Hildebrand left him an estate worth $375,000 and $750,000 in hard cash; a gift matched by that of a West Prussian landowner, who gave him a 5,000-acre estate as an earnest of greater possessions to come at the donor's death. Then there was the $500,000 bestowed upon him by Baroness Oppenheim-Cohn, and the $2,500,000 placed at his disposal by Herr Henckel von Donnermarch in 1905. "To him that hath shall be given."

With reference to the Kaiser's demand for increased pay, it may be mentioned that King Edward gets $2,350,000 for his own use, while each member of the British Royal Family receives various grants which exceed $500,000 per annum. Besides his official salary King Edward has

A LARGE PRIVATE PURSE.

The Kaiser is by no means the best-paid monarch in Europe. The Emperor of Austria outdistances him with his salary of $4,700,000, which sum is derived from the two portions of his monarchy.

The best-paid monarch in Europe is the Czar of Russia. The State Treasury pays out $7,500,000 per annum for the needs of the Imperial House. In addition the reigning Empress and the Dowager Empress each have an allowance of $100,000 a year. Every child born to the Czar receives from birth to the age of twenty-one nearly $20,000 a year, while the heir to the throne receives annually, in addition to maintenance of palaces, $50,000. Daughters receive a dowry of $500,000 when they marry.

Contrasted with these generous grants the salaries of rulers of smaller countries seem beggarly in proportion. The King of Italy has $3,200,000 a year, but the King of Greece only receives $20,000. This sum is so inadequate to keep up his position that Great Britain, France and Russia each pay him $20,000 a year. The French President has a salary and allowance of $240,000, whilst the President of the United States has to make both ends meet on $50,000. And yet, with all their enormous incomes, some of these great potentiaries of the earth are not half so happy as many a man with $300 a year.—London Tit-Bits.

DELICATE CHILDREN MADE WELL AND STRONG

The little ones are frail. Their hold upon life is slight. At the very first symptoms of trouble Baby's Own Tablets should be given. This medicine cures colic, sour stomach, indigestion, diarrhoea, constipation, teething troubles and other minor ailments. It is equally good for the new born babe as the well grown child. Mothers have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs. Cressman, New Hamburg, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach trouble and constipation with marked success. I feel that my little ones are safe when I have a box of Tablets in the house." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Colonel Fizzletop was under the painful necessity of administering a severe castigation to his son Johnny. After he had completed his labors, he said sternly to the suffering victim:—"Now, tell me why I punished you?" "That's it," sobbed Johnny; "you nearly pound the life out of me, and now you don't know why you did it."

RECOGNIZED HIM.

Blinks, after inviting his friend Jinks, who has just returned from abroad, to dinner, is telling him what a fine memory his little son Bobby has.

"And do you suppose he will remember me?" said Jinks.

"Remember you? Why, he remembers every face that he ever saw."

An hour later they enter the house, and after Jinks has shaken hands with Mrs. Blinks. he calls Bobby over to him.

"And do you remember me, my little man?"

"Course I do. You're the same feller that pa brought home last summer, and ma was so wild about it that she didn't speak to pa for a whole week."

YOU NEED FEAR IT NO LONGER

GRAVEL WARDED OFF AND CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Manitoba Man Tells How His Urinary Troubles Vanished Before the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

Hamrlik, Man., Nov. 30 (Special)—Probably there is no disease to which man is heir that causes such a general dread as Gravel, or Stone in the Bladder. The frightful pains it brings and the terrible operations it necessitates causes a shudder of apprehension whenever it is mentioned. But there is really no reason why any man or woman should fear Gravel. It is purely and simply a Kidney disease, and as such can be either cured or guarded against by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Take the case of Mr. Calvin R. Snyder, well known here. He says:—

"In the spring of 1907 I was almost laid up from a lame back and was also troubled with excessive urination. I got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and used them with satisfactory results. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best Kidney medicine I ever heard of."

If you follow Mr. Snyder's example and use Dodd's Kidney Pills for slight urinary disorders, you will never be troubled with Gravel. If you have Gravel, Dodd's Kidney Pil's will cure it.

THE CHART DIDN'T SHOW IT.

There is no occasion which presents such terrible advantage to the practical joker as that of a sea voyage, and there is none on which his jocosities become more unbearable. The following incident embodies one of his most ambitious efforts.

When we were in the middle of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the nearest coast was 200 miles away, a Yankee quietly remarked:—

"Wal, I guess we are quite close to land now. It ain't more'n three-quarters of a mile away, nohow."

Personally we took no interest in facts of this nature, and were content to sit and believe, but many excited travellers dashed out of the smoking-room to have a look at the long-hoped-for continent. They presently came back in the worst of tempers, saying that the charts and all other authorities declared the land to be at least 200 miles away, and that there was certainly none in sight.

"Wal, I didn't say the shore," returned the champion joker. "I guess there's land right under us, not three-quarters of a mile away."

A Requisite for the Rancher.—On the cattle ranges of the West, where men and stock are far from doctors and apothecaries, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is kept on hand by the intelligent as a ready made medicine, not only for many human ills, but as a horse and cattle medicine of surpassing merit. A horse and cattle rancher will find matters greatly simplified by using this Oil.

"Yes," remarked Mrs. Malaprop-Partington, "we had a lovely time in Venice. There are no cabs there, you know, because the streets are all full of water. One hires a chandelier and he rows you about in a dongola."

MOTHERS!

Give the Children a Chance.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 103, Windsor, Ont,, will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

RENEW YOUR YOUTH.

Never before has the struggle for social and commercial success been so keen as in our own day, and to the victor and the vanquished alike comes a time when nerves and body cry for rest. Nature and science have combined to produce an environment where tired men and women may renew their youth. On the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway System, at St. Catharines, Ontario, is situated "The Welland," where the ills of life are alleviated by bathing in the Saline Springs of the "St. Catharines Well," under proper medical supervision and attendance. Apply to J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

In Nature's Storehouse There are Cures.—Medical experiments have shown conclusively that there are medicinal virtues in even ordinary plants growing up around us which give them a value that cannot be estimated. It is held by some that Nature provides a cure for every disease which neglect and ignorance have visited upon man. However, this may be, it is well known that Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, distilled from roots and herbs, are a sovereign remedy in curing all disorders of the digestion.

Every time a man refuses to hear what we have to say, we are usually conceited enough to declare that he "won't listen to reason."

There are two kinds of small boys—bad boys and sick ones.

Often what appear to be the most trivial occurrences of life prove to be the most momentous. Many are disposed to regard a cold as a slight thing, deserving of little consideration, and this neglect often results in most serious ailments entailing years of suffering. Drive out colds and coughs with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the recognized remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

STOPS AND POINTS.

Punctuation Originated in the Third Century.

Punctuation by means of stops and points, so as to indicate the meaning of sentences and assist the reader to a proper enunciation, is ascribed originally to Aristophanes, a grammarian of Alexandria, Egypt, who lived in the third century B.C. Whatever his system may have been, it was subsequently neglected and forgotten, but was reintroduced by Charlemange, the various stops and symbols being designed by Warnefried and Alcuin.

The present system of punctuation was introduced in the latter part of the fifteenth century by Aldus Manutius, a Venetian printer, who was responsible for our full stop, colon, semicolon, comma, marks of interrogation and exclamation, parenthis and dash, hyphen, apostrophe and quotation marks. These were subsequently copied by other printers, until their use became universal.

Most ancient languages were innocent of any system of punctuation. In many early manuscripts the letters are placed at equal distances apart, with no connecting link between, even in the matter of spacing, an arrangement which must have rendered reading at sight somewhat difficult.

A Cure for Costiveness.—Costiveness comes from the refusal of the excretory organs to perform their duties regularly from contributing causes usually disordered digestion. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, prepared on scientifis principles, are so compounded that certain ingredients in them pass through the stomach and act upon the bowels so as to remove their torpor and arouse them to proper action. Many thousands are prepared to bear testimony to their power in this respect.

Guest—"Waiter, take back this beef-steak. It isn't cooked enough." Waiter—"I thought you said you wanted it underdone, sir?" Guest—"Underdone! Why, it's so raw you can hear it bellow."

We Must Go from heated rooms to the cold outer air, and the change sets us coughing. Curing winter colds is not hard if you take Allen's Lung Balsam. A neglected cold is troublesome and dangerous.

"That large man thinks himself a pretty important personage in this place, doesn't he?" asked the stranger. "Important?" exclaimed the native. "Why, if you tell him we're having fine weather here, he swells up as if he thought he made it."

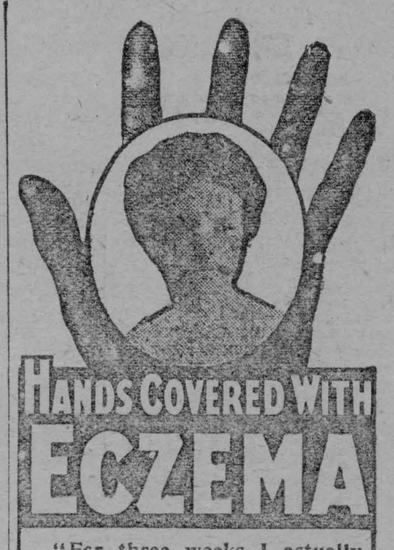
A little BOVRIL in the gravy is an improvement with roasts of all kinds.

BOVRIL IS LIQUID LIFE



"For three weeks I actually had to be fed like one feeds a baby, because my hands and arms were so covered with eczema that they had to be bound up all the time."

That is the experience of Miss Violet M. McSorley, of 75, Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie. She adds: "I could not hold spoon nor fork. From finger tips to elbows the dreaded disease spread, my finger nails came off and my flesh was one raw mass. The itching and the pain were almost excruciating. I had three months of this torture and at one time amputation was discussed."

"Zam-Buk alone saved my hands and arms. I persevered with it and in the end had my reward. To-day, I am cured completely of every trace of the dreaded eczema, and I fervently hope that sufferers from skin disease may know of my case and the miracle Zam-Buk has worked."

Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, piles, cracked hands, cold sores, chapped places, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for same price. You are warned against dangerous substitutes sometimes offered as "just as good."

Address and Presentation to Rev. Stewart.

On Monday evening, Nov. 30th, the members and adherents of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches of Morewood, met in the Foresters' Hall there to bid farewell to Rev D. Stewart, who left on Wednesday for his new field of labor at Alexandria, Ont. The gathering was of a very pleasant, informal kind, and, despite the unfavorable weather a large crowd was present, for, during Mr. Stewart's sojourn in Morewood he has made many warm friends who regret his dep rture. Refreshments were served by the ladies, after which Mr. Robt. Fraser called the meeting to order, and, after asking Rev. Stewart to come forward, read the following address:—

Dear Mr. Stewart:

We, the members and adherents of the Morewood congregation, take this opportunity of meeting together with you before your departure from among us, to another part of God's vineyard. We wish to express our appreciation of your ministerial services which, we trust, has been productive of much permanent good. Also, in times of trouble and sickness, whether it existed in the Presbyterian or Methodist congregation, you were ever ready to render any assistance in your power, and to impart counsel and instruction to their spiritual necessities. That it may be the same in your new field of labor and that your ministrations may be owned and blessed of God, is the wish and prayer of your friends and well wishers in our own congregation, and our Methodist friends also unite with us in the same. We further ask you to accept this purse as a small token of our esteem for you.

Signed on behalf of the elders, managing committee and congregations.

Wm. Moffatt,
Jas. Smirle,
Rodney Marsellis,
John G. Smirle,
Dan McGregor,
Robt. Fraser,
Ernest Faulkner,
Chas. Smith.

Mr. Wm. Moffatt then presented the purse to Mr. Stewart, who made a very appreciative reply. He thanked his friends for the kind words spoken of him, as well as for their kindness to him during the past five years, and expressed a desire that they, although separated, should not lose sight of each other. He also wished the congregation every possible success in securing a new pastor.

Rev. A. E. Hagar was then called upon, and spoke briefly in words expressive of his regard of Mr. Stewart and of his regret at his departure.

The meeting was brought to a close by singing "God be with you till we meet again." Rev. Stewart also received a beautiful Bible on Sunday from the pupils of the Sunday School.

ASKS US TO PRINT.

To relieve the worst forms of Rheumatism, take a teaspoonful of the following mixture after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

These harmless ingredients can be obtained from our home druggists, and are easily mixed by shaking them well in a b ttle. Relief is generally felt from the first few doses.

This prescription forces the clogged-up, inactive kidneys to filter and strain from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, which causes rheumatism.

As Rheumatism is not only the most painful and torturous disease, but dangerous to life, this simple recipe will no doubt be greatly valued by many sufferers here at home, who should at once prepare the mixture to get this relief.

It is said that a person who would take this prescription regularly, a dose or two daily, or even a few times a week, would never have serious Kidney or Urinary disorders or Rheumatism.

Cut this out and preserve it. Good Rheumatism prescriptions which really relieve are scarce, indeed, and when you need it, you want it badly.

Was Dragged by Engine.

Wm. Whitten, a G.T.R. fireman, of Brockville, fell from the tender of his engine two miles west of Cornwall Thursday night. He was in the act of placing out the lamps and had a miraculous escape from being run over by the long train. His clothing caught on the engineer's truck and there he was pulled along until Engineer Dowell heard his cries and stopped the train. He was cut and terribly burned by the friction of the wheels, but will recover.

Fire broke out at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in a shack at Glen Ross occupied by E. Gamble, work- on the Trent Canal. His child rned to death, and Mrs. Gamble burned in trying to rescue

Resolution of Condolence.

At a joint meeting of the Quarterly Official Board and the Board of Trustees of the Methodist Church, in conference assembled, it was unanimously Resolved: that we, the members of the Quarterly Official Board and the Trustees of the Methodist Church in Chesterville. having learned with deepest regret of the death of brother R. D. Fuiton, desire to express our sincere sympathy with his bereaved family, and our appreciation of the great loss to the church in the removal of one, who for so many years assisted in guiding its deliberations, and upholding its integrity. As a member of these boards his presence and wise counsel were always greatly appreciated. The pastor was always sure of his sympathy and hearty cooperation in every feature of the work of the church. Not the least to miss his pleasant service and hearty manner, will be those he called upon for so many years to take their contributions towards the finances of the church. His own liberality and kindly manner of presenting it's work and it's claims, was a great incentive to those who perhaps had not so broad a view of the claims of the kingdom as he possessed. In the sessions of these boards his presence was like a ray of sunshine, and if ever debate waved warm, or any of the brethren were too tenacious of their opinions, his sallies of humor and pleasant statement of the facts, were sure to restore peace and harmony.

We feel to-day that a great gap has been left in our ranks; that a pillar of the church has been removed, and while we bow in submission to the will of the great Head of the Church in our sorrow, for the loss of one so universally esteemed and beloved we can but pray that his mantle may fall upon his sons, and that instead of one there may be numbers ready and willing to stand in the breach and bear the burdens which he has laid down. In his translation a good citizen, a noble father, a kind husband, and, we believe, a sincere Christian has changed the earth life for the Heavenly life—a good man has triumphed in the faith.

A Frightful Death.

Is one from suffocation and sometimes follows a bad attack of Asthma. The old fashioned remedies may relieve, but never cure. Best results come from Catarrhozone which cures Asthma after hope is abandoned. It's because Catarrhozone kills the Asthma germ that it cures Choking spells and labored breathing are relieved, suffocating sensations and loss of breath are cured. Every trace of Asthma is driven from the system, and even old chronics experience immediate relief and lasting cure. Equally good for bronchitis, Throat Trouble and Catarrh. Sold by all dealers in 25c. and $1.00 sizes. Get Catarrhozone to day it does cure.

Drainage Case.

One of the most important drainage cases dealt with for years in Eastern Ontario was that which opened up at Prescott yesterday between the township of Edwardsburg and the township of Matilda. A great part of Eastern Ontario is drained by the Nation river. The heights of land come comparatively close to the St. Lawrence and Rideau rivers, and all between is drained by the Nation river, which empties into the Ottawa. It has low banks and sluggish current. The township of Edwardsburg has prepared an extensive drainage scheme, the water to run into the Nation river, and Matilda township is objecting as it claims the river already overflows its banks in spring to a very damaging extent, and by artificial drainage into the river the damage to the township below would be much greater, All the townships along the banks of the Nation river to the Ottawa river will be affected by the decision. On one hand, if the artificial drainage into the Nation River is prevented in Edwardsburg township, it would be prevented in all the other townships where townships farther down objected; while if it is allowed, all the other townships will want artificial drainage to reclaim swamp lands. Should this be done there would be great floodings and probably necessitate expensive government work on the Nation river. The case came up before Drainage Referee Henderson.

The bell is from the celebrated Bell Foundry of Meneeley & Co., Watervliet, N.Y., and weighs 2,300 lbs. It will be consecrated by Archbishop Gauthier at Christmas, and then placed in the tower of the church. The bell's name is "Carthagh," from the patron of the church, and founder of the great monastic school of Lisinore, Ireland, in the seventh century.

The Kingston Whig says: "Saturday, Nov. 21st, the Feast of the Presentation, is a day that will be long remembered by eight young candidates for the religious life, who pronounced their first vows as members of the Sisterhod at the Church of Our Mother of Sorrows at House of Providence on that day. To them it will stand forth as being the greatest and perhaps most eventful day of their lives, leaving, as they do, the world and it's attractions behind them, and entering on a life work in the service of God as Sisters of Charity, and they take on themselves responsibilities which preclude all other matters." Miss Coyne, of Chesterville, was one of the candidates. She will be known in religion as Sister M. Dorothy. The ceremony was performed by Archbishop Gauthier, assisted by the local clergy, and at the conclusion the usual benediction was given to all present.

Memorial To Barbara Heck.

The design for the memorial monument for Barbara Heck, the founder of Methodism on the American continent, to be erected at her grave in the little Blue Church Cemetery on the banks of the St. Lawrence River below Brockville has been decided upon. It will be of Barre granite and consists of a shaft with a carved cap and base. It will be about twenty feet in height and will contain a bust medallion of Barbara Heck carved into the face of the shaft and there will also be an inscription and brief history of Barbara Heck's life.

The matter is in the hands of international commission of Methodist clergymen and laymen and the funds are being subscribed on both sides of the line. It is expected to erect the memorial for about $3,000 and that it will be ready for unveiling next summer.

ARE YOM WEAK AFTER SICKNESS?

Later on It Will Be Harder To Get Strong Than To-day. What Are You Doing To Get Well?

A case in point is well exemplified in the following letter from Mrs. V. J. Wilder, wife of a well known citizen of Pittsfield, who writes: "I had a nervous disorder that completely prostrated me. I couldn't sleep, and would lay and toss about all night, arising in the morning more tired than ever, head heavy, eyes dull, and every bone and muscle aching I tried to get along without calling in a doctor, but was finally driven to it. He treated men tor some time, but with no perceptible improvement in my health Someone recommended Ferrozone. The change it effected in my system was noticeable almost instantly. I gradually took on flesh. The all-gone feeling left me. In less than six weeks I was fully recovered from what looked to me like an everlasting sickness. I will always recommend Ferrozone feeling with sincerity that it is an honest, powerful, health-giving tonic."

Try Ferrozone to day!

The nourishment and vital energy it supplies is wonderful.

Ferrozone makes you feel better at once it's good for women, for children—just the thing for everybody seeking better health. Sold by all dealers, 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50.

AULTSVILLE.

Mrs. Amos Hollister, a highly respected resident of Osnabruck Township, passed away at her home on Friday, Nov. 13th. The deceased was a member of St. Paul's Church, Aultsville. She leaves three sons and four daughters, Malcolm, Albert and Cory Hollister; Mrs, H. W. Brooks, Boston, Mass., Mrs. David Barnard, Lidstone, Man., Misses Alma and Minerva Hollister. The funeral took place on Sunday, the service being conducted by Rev. Mr. Homer. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Shaver, Reuben Pruner, Robert Donally, Michael Burton, Laban Barkley, George Jackson. The Members of the family were all present except Mrs. Barnard. A very large cortege followed the remains to their last resting place, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of the community. A little over two years ago the father was laid away.

A Progressive Publication

The special Thanksgiving number of the "Canadian Pictorial," recently received, shows in addition to its wealth of beautiful harvest pictures and other fine photogravures, several new and interesting features which are to be continued with other attractions in the enlarged and improved Christmas Number, in course of preparation. One of these is a complete story, a second is a series of "Old Favourite Songs" words and music complete, which will appear in each issue. Remarkable as has been the popularity of this splendid publication, the public are assured that the best is yet to come. Every issue of this Monthly "Art portfolio" would form a capital Souvenir to send to friends abroad. None better. (10c a copy, $1.00 a year; The Pictorial Publishing Co., 142 St. Peter St., Montreal.)

Are You A Dyspeptic.

Nine people out of ten suffer from dyspepsia and don't know it. Half the pale checks, poor appetite and sleepless nights are the direct result of dyspepsia. The cause lies in failure of the stomach and the kidneys are clogged, and unable to do their work. Nothing puts vigor into those organs so fast as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They tone up the whole diffestive system, regulate and strengthen the stomach, absolutely cure dyspepsia. Simple to take and sure to cure,—better try Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs C. S. Nesbitt and family deeply sympathize with them in the loss of their infant son, Harold Fraser, who died on Sunday aged 9 months. The funeral took place on Tuesday, being conducted by Rev. Dr. Maclean, assisted by Rev. H. O. Poyser. Among those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nesbitt, of Winchester; Mrs. H. B. Fetterly, of Cornwall; and Miss Lella Nesbitt, sister of deceased, who is attending the Cornwall High School.

The death of Mr. W. H. Campbell, which occurred on the 19th instant, removes a much esteemed resident of Roxborough from our midst. The deceased had been ailing for some time. He took a trip West this year for the benefit of his health, but the change made no improvement in his condition. The late Mr. Campbell was a Liberal in politics He was a devout member of the Presbyterian Church. He is survived by his wife and a son and daughter by adoption, Mr Herbert Campbell, of Medicine Hat, and Mrs. Collin McIntyre, of Vancouver, B. C. The funeral on Monday last was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. H. N. McLean, assisted by Rev. Mr. Poyser, Avonmore, and Rev. Mr. Minnie, of Newington. The pallbearers were Messrs. David and Duncan Campbell; Hugh and Angus Campbell, North Branch; Joseph Grey Cornwall; and D. F. Campbell. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved.

Church Wrangle In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—Trouble which for some months has been brewing in St. John's Germah Lutheran Church here, has come to an exciting climax by one faction locking the doors against the pastor and by the other side appealing to the civil courts for an injunction. The pastor is the Rev. Frederick Beers, who was appointed the first of this year by the mission board, and the trouble in the first place started in connection with a class for German children, which he conducts on Saturdays. Charges were made to the Synod committee in August, but the committee exonerated the minister and called on the congregation to live in harmony. But the dissensions continued, and this week the church was barricaded and the faction opposed to the pastor sent him notice to vacate the parsonage and discontinue preaching and using the church. No congregational meeting has been held, and so the pastor and those who favor him have appealed for an interim, injunction to prevent the church being closed.

Municipal Enterprise.

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 26.—The report on the operation of the Brockville municipal-owned light and power plant for the past year, made public to day, shows a net profit of $1,525. Besides the working expenses, which unounted to $32,267, there was paid out of the revenue, interest to the sum of $5,086, and the debenture debt reduced $7,014. The total revenue was $51,083. The net profit for eight years was $9,977.

Oronhyatekha Estate.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—Chancellor Boyd this morning directed the Union Trust company to pay to Mrs. Natalie Oronhyatekha the balance of the $5,550 agreed to be paid to her by Mrs. Theresa Oranhyatekha in consideration of her abandonment of all claims against the estate of the late Dr. Ackland Oronhyatekha. Both ladies were wives of the deceased. He had lived apart from Mrs. Natalie for some years, when he secured a divorce from her in South Dakota without her knowledge. The payment of the money to Mrs. Natalie was opposed by Mr. J. M. Donovan of Sioux Falls, who claimed to have a solicitor's lien for $2,218.50, and secured an order from the United States courts ordering the Union Trust company to him. Messrs. T. and J. Joseph of New York, solicitors also claimed half the $5,550. Chancellor Boyd ruled that foreign counsel had no liens and that the Union Trust company might ignore the order of the United States courts.

An Express Order Swindle.

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 28 —Another express money order swindle has been discovered here. On November 7 the Dominion Express Company received a telephone message saying a traveller from Thomas Bros., brush manufacturers, would call for a money order book, and a few minutes later a man presented an order on a Thos. Bros.' stationery blank, and with their name signed. The book, valued at $2,500, was issued. Now it is found to be a forgery. The company has no clue to the swindler.

Surgery to Save Life of Tree.

Cornwall boasts a landmark in a particularly ancient and stately elm tree which stands in front of the Colquhoun residence on East First street. There is only one in the vicinity its equal in size, and that has partially succumbed to old age and the elements.

Cornwall feels a personal pride in the magnificent Colquhoun tree, and strangers are invariably invited to admire it and marvel at its enormous proportions. With a diameter of over six feet at the base of the trunk. Its spreading arms cover a large area. In full leaf in the summer or with the delicate tracery of its smaller branches outlined against the wintry sky, it is equally beautiful. The oldest inhabitant can see no change in its size, and expert tree ologists estimate its age at over 400 years; perhaps it was a sapling when Columbus discovered America.

While this tree keeps its age well, signs of disintegration have begun to appear. A few weeks since in a heavy gale a huge split was noticed which bid fair to destroy it altogether. As a precaution, heavy iron chains were wound around the principal branches. and securely fastened but this was only a temporary measure A few days ago a tidy bit of tree surgery was performed by Louis McCormick. Bands of heavy iron were forged and clamped around the branches, and to these were attached long iron rods, each provided with a turnbuckle, by means of which great pressure was exerted, and the rifts closed up as far as possible. To all appearances the old tree is good for another century; at any rate, no one now living will likely see its finish. As the old song has it:

"And so flourish he, a hale greentree,
When a thousand years are gone."

Visited The Pope First.

London, Nov. 30.—The Canadian Associated Press correspondent at Rome wires that the Pope received in private audience Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture for Canada, who was presented by Mgr. Emard, Bishop of Valleyfield. Some comment has been caused by the fact that Mr. Fisher, after asking for a private audience from King Victor Emanuel, waited on the Pope before being received by his Majesty. This is contrary to usage, owing to the relations between the Quirinal and the Vatican.

...ULLIED KING

...SOME UNCONVEN-...AL PHYSICIANS.

Great Old-Time Doctors Who Were No Respecters of Persons.

"Pray, Sir Richard, may I eat a muffin?" a lady patient once asked the great Dr. Jebb, who was almost as famed for his rudeness as for his medical skill.

"Yes, madam; 'tis the very best thing you can take."

"Oh, dear Sir Richard, I am glad of that. The other day you said it was the worst thing in the world for me."

"Good, Madam. I said so last Tuesday. This isn't Tuesday, is it?"

This was not precisely a polite answer, but it was courtesy itself compared with the retort of Sir Richard to another patient who asked him, "And what may I eat, doctor?"

"Oh, anything you like," came the gruff answer, for Jebb was in one of his worst moods. "Try grass; that's the food asses prefer."

It was the same physician, too, who once contemptuously advised a lady patient to eat boiled turnips.

"But, doctor," the lady replied, "I simply cannot bear boiled turnips."

"Then, madam, you must have a remarkably vitiated appetite."

Dr. Radcliffe, another great old-time physician, was no respecter of persons, and could be just as rude to a king as to a carpenter. Once when King William showed him his ankles swollen with dropsy, Radcliffe exclaimed, "I wouldn't have your Majesty's legs for the three kingdoms;" and on another occasion, when the King failed to carry out

he had given, Radcliffe said, angrily, "You seem to forget, sir, that in this case it is for me to command and for you to obey."

Dr. Abernethy's often quoted advice to an indolent bon vivant, "Live on sixpence a day—and earn it, sir," had at least sound sense to redeem its rudeness; but there is little to be said in defence of an answer a Court physician once sent to the Princess Anne. The Princess, being taken ill, sent an urgent summons to the doctor to attend her; but the man of medicine was engaged in disposing of a bottle of wine in a tavern and declined to budge.

A little later a second messenger arrived with a still more urgent summons; whereupon the doctor, upon whom the wine had begun to take effect, sent back this message:

"Tell Her Royal Highness that her distemper is nothing but the vapors. She's in as good a state of health as any woman breathing—only she can't make up her mind to believe it."

A story is told of a quite unintentional rudeness on the part of a Dr. Freind which had an amusing sequel. Freind was one day summoned to attend a lady of high rank, but, having drunk not wisely, all he could do when he entered the sick-room was to exclaim in confusion, as he realized his condition, "Drunk—drunk—drunk," before stumbling out of the room.

Fortunately for him his unconscious diagnosis was the correct one; for on the following day, when he was sadly debating what apology he should send to his distinguished patient for presenting himself to her in such a condition, he received a note from the lady enclosing and begging him not to reveal to anyone the state in which he had found her.

Not infrequently these rude physicians of past generations met their match. Once when a noble patient remonstrated with Dr. Jebb on his unnecessary brusqueness, the doctor gruffly replied, "Oh, that's my way!"

"Oh, is it?" answered his lordship, as he pointed to the door. "Very well; and now may I beg you to make that your way."

"I had heard of your rudeness before I came, sir," a lady once said indignantly to Abernethy, "but was scarcely prepared for such treatment. What am I to do with this?" holding out the prescription.

"Anything you like," snapped the great surgeon. "Put it in the fire, if you please."

In a moment the prescription was reduced to ashes and the lady had bowed herself of the room.

In another case a lady scored equally, although in a different way, over the rough, if good natured, Scotsman. One day she entered his surgery and, without a word, showed him an injured finger. Abernethy dressed the wound in silence and the lady put down his fee and walked out, not a single word having been uttered by surgeon or patient. A few days later she called again and offered her finger for inspection.

"Better?" growled the surgeon.

"Better," answered the lady, and that was all that passed between them. Again and again she came, and the same two words sufficed; at last she showed him the finger free from bandages.

"Well?" queried Abernethy.

"Well," exclaimed his patient.

"'Pon my word," exclaimed the surgeon, conquered at last, "you are the most sensible woman I ever met in my life."—London Answers.

IVORY FROM SIBERIA.

Skeletons of Mastodons Found in Rivers and Swamps.

Siberia furnishes a large quantity of ivory to the markets of the world, but the production of it belongs to another age and to a species of animal that does not now exist. The ivory is cut from the tusks of mastodons, whose skeletons are found frozen in masses of ice or buried in the mud of Siberian rivers and swamps. The northern portion of the country abounds in extensive bogs, which are called urmans. In these are found the tusks of the mastodon, from which it is inferred that these animals lost their lives by venturing upon a surface that would not bear their weight. Of this region and its products Dr. Charles Wenyon writes:

"Even to wild animals these urmans are forbidden ground. The nimble stepping, broad-hoofed reindeer can sometimes cross them safely in the summer time, but most other large animals attempting to do so would be quickly engulfed, and this may be a partial explanation of the remains of mammoth and rhinoceros, which are so abundant and so widely diffused through these northern marsh lands of Siberia.

"In many cases the remains are so fresh and well preserved with their dark shaggy hair and under wool of reddish brown, their tufted ears and long curved tusks, that all the aborigines and even some of the Russian settlers persist in the belief that they are specimens of animals which still live, burrowing underground like moles, and which die the instant they are admitted to the light.

"Tusks which have been long or repeatedly exposed to the air are brittle and unserviceable, but those which have remained buried in the ice retain the qualities of recent ivory, and are a valuable article of merchandise. There is a great market for these mammoth tusks at Yakutsk, on the Lena, from which they find their way to the workshops of European Russia, and even to the ivory carvers of Canton.

Dickman's Den

THERE was ever so much to do at Carmoustie, near Dundee, Scotland, where Roy Mortimer was spending a few weeks with his Aunt Abigail. A golf course lay by the sea, extending over grassy reaches. And, then, it was very interesting, indeed, to walk among the sandhills, which were covered with fine yellow sand blown by the wind into little wavelets and sand billows. And among tufts of reeds sea-gulls made their nests—little holes in the sand, over which the birds flew, screaming warningly when people came too near the nests. Sometimes, too, the gulls were disturbed by the target practice of the volunteers at Barry. Roy found on the sand a 40-pound shell, and very heavy it was to carry home, too.

But most enjoyable of all was a trip along the coast among caves and cliffs. Those at Arbroath were especially fascinating. Under the guidance of his cousin, Emma, who had often explored these cavernous recesses, he was shown Mason's Cave, after having examined the rock called the Devil's Head. At the end of this cave, which ran back about 100 yards, there was a bubbling spring of clear, cold water.

"Suppose we lunch here," suggested Roy, setting down the lunch basket, which by this time had grown unusually heavy, and handing his cousin a drink from a silver cup.

"There's a cave nearby that is much nicer," replied Emma.

So they trudged to Dickman's Den. A little channel from the sea ran up to it, by which, Emma said, the smugglers in the past used to bring their goods illegally to land, under the very noses of the coast guardsmen.

Having enjoyed luncheon, the two started for the entrance of the cave. As soon as they stepped outside they observed that the rain clouds looked very threatening.

"We're going to have rain within a few moments," predicted Emma, "but I don't believe it will last long. Suppose we spend a little time in the cave until the storm blows over."

In the meantime the wind had risen and the waves now began to beat against the rocks and cliffs with some violence. Shortly the rain fell and the boy and girl were only too glad to retire to the shelter offered by the cave.

It soon began to grow very tiresome, however. Roy strolled toward the rear of the cave. Stooping, he picked up a fragment of stone and flung it carelessly toward the wall. To his great surprise, the stone, instead of rebounding, seemed to have gone right through the wall. Roy walked quickly toward the spot at which he had aimed. Here he found, by lighting a match, which lit up the dark, gloomy walls, that a tiny round door seemed to have been let into the rock. It must have rotted because of great age, inasmuch as the stone had crashed through it so readily.

"Come on; let's see what this place is!" cried he, excitedly, to his cousin. With a large rock he succeeded in battering in the rest of the door, effecting a large enough entrance. From the apartment beyond there came such a rush of evil-smelling gas that the boy and girl were almost overcome. Roy wisely took some paper from the lunch basket, and, after lighting it, tossed it into the secret chamber.

When it was safe for them to venture in, they crawled through the little door, finding themselves in a room apparently cleft from the solid rock, about eight feet square and seven feet high.

All at once Roy discovered, by means of the lighted paper which he carried, an old chest in one corner. It was a matter of only a few moments for him to drag it out through the door into the main cave. Again the large rock was utilized to break in the lid. Although rather difficult, this was at last accomplished.

Then, exposed to the eyes of the astonished boy and girl were all manner of rich silks and fabrics, carefully bundled and wrapped in oiled silks.

Delighted with their discovery, they took some of the goods, putting the chest back where they had found it, and started for home, now that it had stopped raining.

"I'll bet the things were left by smugglers!" declared Roy. And so said the guardsmen when Roy showed them the samples of the goods contained in the chest and reported where the rest of the goods were.

Of course, the chest of silks was confiscated by the government, but Roy and Emma felt more than repaid by their adventure and by the compliments of the coast guardsmen.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS' FEUDS

Bush Vendetta That Is the Cause of Many Crimes.

Miss Young, of the South Sea Island Evangelical Mission, who has recently returned to Brisbane, Australia, after four months among Solomon Island natives, has many interesting things to relate as to their customs, says the London Standard. Native murders, it appears, are of frequent occurrence, but a great many are the result of feuds between different tribes.

Two Christian boys belonging to the mission at Malo were brutally done to death, and another Christian native at Fiu was also murdered. The crimes were unprovoked, but were committed because the islanders believed in having a life for a life. If a man belonging to a tribe is killed by another tribe there is no peace until the death is avenged, and it generally happens that the most inoffensive man in the offending tribe falls a victim. The native who was killed at Fiu left the mission station accompanied by a child to visit his garden some distance away. The bushmen came down, chatted with him, and they ate food together. Then the bushmen suddenly turned on him and killed him to avenge a murder committed by his tribe some time previously.

On another occasion, at Onepelu, the head station of the mission, a native came and associated with the Christian boys and shortly before daylight one morning this man secured an axe, struck a Christian boy on the head and ran away. The injured boy was attended by a woman missionary and subsequently recovered.

Miss Young adds that a young Kanaka of about 18 years was recently brought from an adjoining island, but it was found necessary to send him away to another station. It appears that some years ago the tribe from which the boy was taken had murdered a man belonging to a bush tribe near the station. How the natives got to know the boy was there is a mystery, but nevertheless it became known. One day a native who had not been near the mission station for a year suddenly made his appearance. The boy was carefully watched and at night slept in a room occupied by a missionary, but he became so terrified that it was necessary to send him elsewhere.

Miss Young says that the authorities are doing all they can to prevent the importation of rifles and ammunition, but for all that the bushmen become possessed of rifles. some of the firearms are of a very old pattern. They are certainly not supplied by white traders, who are too much concerned about their own safety to supply the natives with weapons of destruction. It is alleged that some of the boys ship to New Guinea and while there buy rifles and ammunition. It has happened that some of the boys when searched have had ammunition in their possession.

A woman can always tell from the way her husband shakes down the furnace whether or not he's in good humor.

NOT FASTIDIOUS.

"Every bit of food on this table," said the serving lady to Lamson, as he sat down to eat at the church supper, "was cooked by your wife."

"Oh, I don't mind," rejoined Lamson, faintly; "I'm not a bit hungry, anyway!"

JINGLING JOHNSON—HE PLUNGES FULL TILT INTO PHRENOLOGY

Love Kept Its Faith;

Or, The Girl With the Nut Brown Hair and Dreamy Eyes.

Only half convinced, the boy hesitatingly obeyed, but in the course of days he became to accept Dan's explanation as one of his rights, and when, in the after time, the old skipper raised the question of repairs, and demonstrating why this vessel should go to the grid and that have a new set of sails, and one of the grey heads be put on the pension list, he gave his consent to the expenditure with a dignity which drove old Dan to a flourish of his handkerchief and a prodigious blast of his nose.

Only at these brief intervals, however, did the boy dwell in the kingdom of the man. Figures and freights done with the long Castle Connell would be shouldered, and together they would thread the maze of the woods until they reached the madcap river, where the silvery salmon were lurking and the white trout were on the feed in shoals, or else the sea would call, and aboard the harbor tug, they would pilot one of David's brigs towards Galloway's fearsome Mull.

Finally, this at least in the early days of Dan's guardianship, there was a visit to a spotless bedroom, where a tired boy snuggled between the whitest of white sheets, the grip of boyish arms about the old man's neck, a kiss that might have satisfied a father's heart, an exchange of benedictions. "God bless you, Davie, my laddie," "God bless you, Cap'n Dan." Then away back through the night to his lonely home, his big, round face aglow with joy, his great, kindly heart over-running with content.

Piloted only by the skipper, David might have been trusted to a safe navigation of the rock-beset seas of youth; but lest Dan should fail or David by chance get away from the course, there was Bella to watch and control; she of the rasping tongue that rarely wounded, the eyes keen for a sorrow or a sin as for a speck of dust, the hands that would never rest; Bella, who in the night time, long before Dan had sighted Ballast Brow, would tip-toe up the broad stairs, and peer round the door, so that she might have the only acceptable evidence of the boy's slumber; she who, through all the wakeful time, gave her first thought and her best to the boy, and grudged the hours claimed by the night for sleep, because they stilled her fingers and took something from him.

So the new life opened for the lad who had neither kith nor kin, the last of his line; so the hours of summer serenely sped, healing the wound, turning grief into a memory, filling up the void; and through them all Miss Manesty waited in her home, between the black-faced hill of Barf and Bassenthwaites' reedy fringe, waited until the heather was aflame on the fells, and then descended upon David's home.

The manner of the meeting was charged with certain volcanic elements, distrbuting, confusing. Returning from a visit to the harbor, Davie burst into the parlor with mischief in his mind, for he meant to give Bella a shock by the revelation of an ascent to the crosstrees, and scandalize her by a show of tar on hands and clothes; but instead of Bella, a stranger rose to his call a lady who had silvery hair and a deep-lined face, yet carried herself stiff and straight as a maiden of seventeen, one whose eyes, grey and deep set, were terribly searching, yet filled with a smile at sight of him. Her lips met firmly, and when she spoke they bit her words off sharp at the end, but in her voice he discovered that which showed she wished him well.

There was also a second stranger in the room, he noticed. A maiden, whose years he found before the day closed kept company with his own, one with hazel eyes and nut brown tresses, long and wild, such as the sun loves to play among.

Awkwardly, he backed towards the door, colliding violently with Cap'n Dan as he reached it.

"Avast there, my laddie!" the Captain roared, and then, "beg your pardon, ma'am——why, if it isn't——"

Bowing and bobbing merrily, as a ten-ton yawl in a gale, the little skipper crossed the floor, and shook Miss Manesty by the hand, and after that valiantly endeavored to assure her of a welcome; but the effort was not a success, and Dan was not in the least offended but on the contrary relieved when she waved him aside and called for David.

Shyly the boy advanced, holding out his hand, but instead of taking it, Miss Manesty led him by the shoulder towards the window, and there subjected him to an embarrassing scrutiny.

"Um," she remarked at length, the old strain; there's no mistaking it; your father will never be dead while you're alive."

"D'ye know me?" she continued. "Ever heard of Nanny Manesty? I thought not. I knew your father, David, and I liked him." The boy's heart went out with a bound to the quaint old lady. "I liked him because he was straight, and if you try hard enough, there's a chance that I'll like you as well. Shake hands."

David smiled and held out his hand, but in time remembered the tarry ropes.

"Tut," cried Miss Manesty, rightly divining the cause of the retraction, "never mind the dirt; that'll wash off. Dirt's all right till it gets into a man's heart. Come along, shake hands, for your dad's sake. One of these days I'm hoping I'll be able to shake with you for your own sake—that depends on yourself.

"Now then, you can go and shake hands with Margery. Oh, she's no more afraid of dirt than I am. You should see her grubbing for ground bait and shinning up the Sleddlemere trees. And while Bella's making tea, I'll have a talk with Cap'n Dan."

The little skipper had meanwhile been working himself up into a consideration of great excitement, the outward and visible signs of this being an incessant twirling of his cap and an expression of his cheeks to a degree which had caused Margery no small amount of concern. Now at Miss Manesty's behest he seated himself on the edge of a chair by her side, and when she suggested wonder on his part as to the cause of her visit, he twirled his cap and stammered:

"Oh, no, ma'am—no wonder at all—not a bit of it—not a bit, nothing to wonder at."

A flicker of amusement passed over Miss Manesty's face, but as she cast about for another opening and Dan proceeded to fill up the interregnum by another irritating movement of his cap, her brow wrinkled minously. She had seen much of Cap'n Dan in the yesterdays, and she realized that conversation so violently punctuated was impossible. The cap must be got rid of.

"Where's your pipe, Cap'n?"

Down went the cap upon the floor; two hands went plump into the depths of two capacious pockets, one of them flourished a disreputable briar.

"That's right; now light up."

"Thank ye, Miss Manesty, thank ye, but I couldn't dream of——"

She reached a spill from the mantel-shelf, lit it at the grate, and passed it to him.

A column of pungent smoke coiled towards the ceiling.

"Now then, I'll explain why I've come here. I want to help you with the boy."

"The boy? You mean Davie?"

"Yes. I've had it in my mind to come ever since Jacob went; and if I'd thought that Bella and you weren't to be trusted, I'd have been here long ago; but I knew you both, and I guessed the laddie wouldn't want a stranger poking her fingers about his poor little sorrowing heart. If I was in trouble I'd want no comforters worrying me, and I've just been giving him time to get used to his loss. Now we'll try among us to put a bit of life into him and make him the man his father would have him be.

"For some things, the lad couldn't have been left in better hands; but I'll ask you plainly, Cap'n Dan,—would you like David to be such a man as yourself when he's grown up?"

"Lord deliver him, ma'am," Dan ejaculated, bouncing to his feet, "you don't think there's any chance of that!"

"And you wouldn't like him to have very many of Bella's ways?"

"Haul up, ma'am, haul up and let's go about on another tack. Who'd ever have dreamed there'd be such ugly breakers ahead?"

"Oh, it isn't all that bad yet. I only mean that if things go on as they've started, if he's boxed up through all his youth with just you two, there's a danger of David ending with a bit too much Cap'n Dan and a bit too much Bella Mackitterick in his make-up, and he'll be none the worse for a little variety in the mixture. So what d'ye say if I come into the partnership? Shall we make it, Cap'n Dan, for business—Bella for meat and drink and me for polish?"

"Faix, but it's a grand idea," Dan exultantly declared, all his nervousness gone. "Between the three of us we should learn him out a full-rigged, copper sheathed craft. Why"—Dan lay back in his chair, and admiringly regarded the old lady—"why you'll teach him the manners of an admiral."

"Manners." Miss Manesty repeated reflectively, an inflection of scorn in her tone—"ay, but they must be the real thing. I've never reckoned very much on those poor thread-bare tricks of speech and behaviour on which folk who should know better set such store. They're not a bad extra for a gentleman to have by him, but it's bad when they're mistaken for the whole of a gentleman's outfit, and when a woman depends most of all on her company graces, it's pitiful beyond speech. Manners make a mighty fuss about a crease in its coat and a speck of dust on its shoes, and all the time forgets that conduct can also have its creases and faith its specks. You know, Cap'n Dan, there are scores of farm folk about the fells who could no more uncover their heads to Margery and me than they could jump over Latrigg; but when they smile and pass the weather it like a glint of sunshine stealing into your heart, and—if trouble came we wouldn't need to ask their help.

"Those are the sort of manners I'd like to teach the laddie, to lift his heart to a woman when he raises his hat, to mean the thing he says as well as say it in the proper way; to care little about what people think, but much about the thing he does, seldom to dream of seeming a gentleman but always of being a man."

Launched upon one of her favorite themes, Miss Manesty would probably have treated Dan to a sermon of many points and abundant illustrations, but at this juncture Margery impetuously applied a period.

Her face aflush with excitement, her cheeks aglow, the child danced into the room and exclaimed:—

"Oh, do come and look, auntie; you never saw such a house as this, it's a wonderful place. Why, David has some real live idols, and a stuffed monkey, and a flying fish and chopsticks and lovely Japanese ivories, and some whalebone and shark's teeth, and——"

"Stop, stop, Miss Tempestuous!" Miss Manesty cried, clapping her hands to her ears in affected dismay; "it's not a house you mean, but a museum."

"Oh, better than a museum, auntie; a museum always belongs to somebody else, and you mustn't touch, but this is David's own."

"Well, there are a lot of furrin knick-knacks knocking about the house," Cap'n Dan interposed; "but nothing out of the ordinary. You'll find the same sort of thing in a hundred houses in Allerdale. You see, missy, we're all seafarin' folks, and our men bring a gay lock of funny things back with 'em. But bless you, we don't set so much value on 'em. I daresay that up at Bassenthwaite now you'll not see such like things in any quantity but here in Allerdale we've heathen gods an' tommyhawks an' birds o' paradise scattered all over the place -- consequently, we've come to look upon them as varra common pot. The main value they have is on account o' them that brought them; if it wasn't for that I'll warrant the women would never put up with them when they get to work aboot their dustin'. You should hear Bella yammerin' at such times."

Only half accepting the old sailor's testimony, Margery returned to David and his treasures, and a little later was discovered seated on the back of a crocodile from Africa, with the yellow jacket of a Chinese mandarin about her shoulders and a fearsome two-headed god from Rajputana in her lap, and by the spectacle even Bella, who deemed laughter in a house of mourning an unforgiveable offence, was betrayed into a smile.

As for David, the doors of life had suddenly been thrown wide, wide open, the prattle of a romantic child the golden key wherewith the miracle had been wrought.

For the first time in his life, moreover, he was realizing the joy of possession. Hitherto, his home had made little appeal to sentiment. The treasures it contained had, it is true, aroused his interest, because they stood for a life, wild, strange, barbarous—a life outside his own. But his father had never in his hearing made any boast of them; the men of the sea, who had made up the company roll, had passed them by as things not calling for notice, and so he had never discovered that his home was not as others—that it occuped a plane high above the commonplace, each of its rooms a treasure chamber.

But now Margery Manesty had exulted; into the mummies she had breathed the breath of life, the bones reclothed with flesh, she—this girl with the nut brown hair and the dreamy eyes—had done this and now the things whereat he had only mildly wondered, stood before him as riches of the golden orient and the crimson lands of the west—and they were his own. Oh, it was a glorious thing to have!

CATTLE ON HOLIDAY.

In West Australia some farmers send their cattle for about six weeks' holiday to the seaside each year. The change of air and food is said to be extremely beneficial to them. The grass on the coast is impregnated with saline, and has the effect of a tonic on the animals.

Patient—"Do you think raw oysters are healthy?" Physician—"I never knew of any to complain."

About the Farm

POULTRY POINTERS.

Mix some "brains" with the feed, and you will get better results than if you mix their feed carelessly. Carefulness in feeding is essential in any kind of stock. The amount of food given the laying hens, or the hens that should lay, is an important matter. No fixed amount can be given, but it must be governed by the judgment of the operator.

Remember, the poultry business is like any other enterprise. It starts small and grows big. If you start on a large scale to gain experience, losses will be harder felt and discouragement is likely to follow.

One of the main essentials of every poultry-house is that it must be kept dry. Damp houses cause diarrhoea, canker, sore eyes, rheumatism and other troubles that all animals, as well as poultry, are heir to. The best way to keep the house dry is to give it plenty of fresh air by opening the doors and windows during the day. Supply fresh litter often. Build the house on a high, dry spot.

A flock of lively chickens in an orchard will pick up thousands of insects, worms and the eggs that hatch them Scatter grain occasionally to encourage scratching.

One of the reasons why a small flock of hens does better than a large one is because table scraps form a large part of the small flock's rations, and they are an evenly balanced ration.

Crooked breastbones in chickens are caused by the heavy birds roosting on poles and fences. The bones of the young birds are soft and are turned to one side by pressing on the roosts.

AMPLE DIGESTIVE APPARATUS

A good deal of overdrawn argument is occasionally advanced to the effect that beef cattle cannot be economically raised and fed unless they be of the very low-set, compact, cubical beef type, and of a special-purpose beef breed. As a matter of fact, these models of type do not always prove the most profitable feeders. The big-barrelled steer frequently makes the best gains, and, while an excess of paunchiness means an extra proportion of cheap meat and offal, still the cattle feeder's interest demands a certain departure from the trim-bellied, lathe-like conformation which constitutes the butcher's or the packer's ideal. An experienced feeder remarked to us one day that he never liked to buy a steer that lacked a good middle. Other things being equal, the big-barrelled steer made the best use of his feed. Of course, he was not speaking of those pot-bellied runts which are walking barnyard evidence of insufficient nourishment on poor, bulky food, but of well-grown cattle that have been properly started out in life, and carried along in good thrift right up to the finishing stage.

TEACHING COLTS TO FOLLOW RIG.

Among the many devices contrived for teaching colts or horses to lead behind a rig, perhaps the simplest and one of the most effective is made by taking a long rope, or heavy plow line, and extending it through the halter ring over the back, having a loop as crupper. The rope can be doubled and one knot made about the middle of the back, and another further back, to form a crupper. By passing one end on each side of the neck through the halter ring, it will remain in place. When the colt pulls back, this rope (which should be tied to the axle or rear part of the wagon) tightens, and the rope device pulling under the tail brings him to his place. One or two pulls generally cures any tendency to rush back. The same treatment will cure a halter-puller in the stable.

FARM NOTES.

Certified milk is largely a matter of certified cleanliness, and there is nothing to hinder any dairyman from getting the habit.

No potato is popular which has deep eyes. Whatever its excellence in other respects, this defect makes it less saleable. There is not only a great loss in preparing such potatoes, but it is the most valuable part of the potato which is near the skin.

A banker said that many farmers were not as careful of their credit as they should be. The fact that the farmer was a fixture on his land to a great extent made merchants, manufacturers and agents more willing to trust him than men of most other classes; and the farmers often was anxious about meeting the obligations he assumed, and was also tempted to buy many things he could go without, simply because he could get a long credit.

The greatest obstacle to thorough farming is the habit of going over a large area of land for a small amount of produce, which habit has been engendered by cheap lands and large farms. Intensive farming is not something to be taken up and put into operation at once by anyone, any more than an education can be gained by attending a single term of school. It must be taken up or learned by degrees; and, more than this, it must pay from the start. The growing of large yields by an unlimited expenditure of manures and labor is more likely to be rightly called amateur farming than intensive farming.

GIFTS IN NOBLE CAUSES

MUNIFICENT DONATIONS IN AID OF CHARITY.

Britain's Rich Men Give of Their Wealth to Many Funds.

Lord Mount Stephen's splendid donation of $1,000,000 to the King's Hospital Fund recalls Sir Ernest Cassel's gift of a similar amount to the King, to be employed in charitable purposes, and places him among those great philanthropists of whom we may regard George Peabody as the prototype. The latter's gift of $2,500,000 to ameliorate the condition of the London poor received Royal recognition in an autograph letter from her late Majesty Queen Victoria, accompanied by her miniature.

Eleven years later, in 1873, Mr. Holloway offered to erect, at a cost of $1,250,000, a sanatorium for the insane and hospitals for incurables and convalescents. The offer was accepted, and the asylum, erected at Egham, was opened by the Prince of Wales in 1885. In the higher education of women Mr. Holloway likewise showed much interest, giving $1,250,000 and promising another $500,000 towards the erection of a college for the purpose which was opened by the late Queen in 1886.

In 1889 Sir Edward Cecil Guinness, afterwards Lord Iveagh, gave $1,000,000 for the erection of dwellings in London for and $250,000 to be expended on a like scheme in Dublin. Nine years later he gave $1,250,000 to the Jenner Institute of Preventive Medicine, "for the purposes of the highest research in bacteriology and other forms of biology as bearing upon the causes, nature and treatment of disease."

In the Diamond Jubilee year University College Hospital was enriched to the extent of $600,000 by Sir John Blundell Maple; while Sir Thomas Lipton brought himself into enviable notice by placing $500,000 at the disposal of her present Majesty for the Alexandra Trust for supplying working people with cheap dinners. The following year Mr. Alfred Marriott left $1,250,000 to charities, and Mr. Edward Mackeson gave $500,000 for a like purpose.

In 1892 Mr. Berridge gave $760,000 to be expended in the cause of education; while nineteen years previously Sir Josiah Mason endowed, at a cost of $1,100,000 a college of practical science, of which the foundation-stone was laid by himself and Mr. Bright in 1875. But both of these benefactions, munificent though they were, were en-by that of Mr. Andrew Carnegie, who three years since gave under deed of trust $10,000,000 for the cause of education in Scotland.

During the past few years Mr. Carnegie has also expended upwards of $1,500,000 in founding and benefiting public libraries, in which connection the name of Mr. Passmore Edwards must not be omitted, that gentleman having disbursed something like $550,000 in similar endowments. In 1892 the magnificent Althrop library, the property of Earl Spencer, was privately sold to Mrs. Rylands, who presented it to the public library founded by her in Manchester in memory of her husband, Mr. John Rylands.

The artistic education of Liverpool possessed in its mayor, Mr. Andrew Walker, a most generous supporter; the Walker Art Gallery, which cost him over $150,000, was opened in 1877 by the Earl of Derby. Mr. W. H. Alexander expended over $500,000 in the cause of art, while the magnificent collection lately bequeathed to the nation by Baron Rothschild can be seen in the galleries of the British Museum.

HERTFORD HOUSE,

with its collection of pictures, armor, china and other art treasures of almost fabulous value, is a lasting memorial of the munificence of Lady Wallace; while the Tate Gallery perpetuates the generosity of Mr. Henry Tate, who, despite the Government's lukewarm response to his advances, did not rest until he had secured for the nation a priceless gallery of modern art, on which he not only spent $400,000, but endowed it with a collection of fifty-seven pictures, whereof the estimated value was nearly $450,000.

Dublin owes its thanks to Mr. Henry Roe, who gave $1,250,000 towards the restoration of Christ Church Cathedral; Sheffield is the fortunate possessor of the Ruskin Museum of Art, founded in 1881 by the late John Ruskin, than whom no more open-handed art patron and philanthropist ever lived; while the dwellers in Highgate have cause to bless Sir Sydney Waterlow, who gave the park, known under his name, to the London County Council for the perpetual use of dwellers in the Metropolis.—London Tit-Bits.

BIRDS' ACADEMY.

A man living at Bow, London, England, about six months ago started an "Academy of Music" for birds. He charges 75 cents to teach a bird three songs. There are three rooms with a phonograph in each, and the proprietor hangs his pupils in each room in turn. It usually takes about three weeks to teach the birds, and during the six months he has had only one failure.

It is calculated that New York is growing in size six times as fast as London

"I purchased a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and immediately commenced to improve. In all, I think I took 14 bottles, and my weight increased from 133 pounds to 184 pounds in less than six months. I know from personal results the efficacy of Scott's Emulsion."—FRED. R. STRONGMAN, 417 Bathurst St., London, Ont.

Let us send you a copy of Mr. Strongman's letter. He had a trying experience, had got run down built him up, as it has thousands of others.

The strengthening and flesh-producing properties of SCOTT'S EMULSION, are unequalled by any other preparation, and it's just as good for the thin, delicate child as for the adult. Be sure to get SCOTT'S. It's been the standard of the world for 35 years, and is worth many times the cost of the numerous imitations and substitutes.

CHRONIC CATARRH RELIEVED BY PE-RU-NA.

MRS. F. CARR.

MRS. F. CARR, Vineland, Ont., Can. writes:

"For several years I was afflicted with catarrh, which made life a burden. The coughing and hacking which accompanied the disease was terrible.

"The complaint finally extended to the stomach and I was in a wretched condition.

"I tried different remedies, and the best professional treatment all in vain.

"Finally, as a last resort, I tried Peruna upon the recommendation of my sister in Hamilton.

"I could see steady improvement and after using four bottles of that precious medicine I was feeling well again, my old trouble being completely a thing of the past.

"To-day I would not take one thousand dollars for what this grand medicine has done for me."

Peruna is a universally recognized catarrh remedy. It will remove catarrh in its most obstinate form.

Some Facts To Think About.

Mr. Editor—It may be that there are some in the community who do not quite understand what the words Local Option mean. Let us define—The word "Option" means—The right power, or liberty of chosing; the liberty to choose between two alternatives. The term Local Option, therefore means the right, power or liberty of the locality to choose between, a licensed liquor traffic or a locality freed from its blight, between light or darkness, lust or love, that which degrades or that which exalts, ruin or salvation.

Let us consider some reasons why we should vote for "Local Option, on Jan. 4th 1909: –

The time has come when the best men of our day have said "The Saloon must go." In the United States, the saloon is going at the rate of thirty a day. This means a tremenduous frontage for the Temperance cause. Eight thousand members left the bartenders Union during this year mostly because the bars over which they dispensed beer and whiskey were closed up.

The saloon has been abolished by law in two thirds of the territory of the United States.

On January 1st 1909 there will go into effect prohibiting legislation covering an area together with that already in force in the Southern district of a solid block 320 miles north and south by 720 miles east and west so that one may travel from the Mississippi to the Atlantic ocean and from the boundary of Tennessee to the Gulf of Mexico, without seeing a legalized saloon. Great Britain and Ireland could be set down over this space with 10,000 square miles of dry territory left as a border, whereas ten years ago 6,000,000 persons in that country lived in "no license" territory now 38,000,000 live in "no saloon" districts. That is six times the population of Canada nave said in the United States "The saloons must no".

Let us mention some of the direct benefits of the prohibition legislation and the results of closing the saloons. We quote from one of the highest authorities.

The destruction of the saloon has resulted in the doing away with much of the social evil, because there is a very close relationship between the saloon and the disorderly house.

In spite of the insistence of the saloon advocate, that if you kill the saloon you will kill the town, quite the opposite has come true. In spite of the loss of an immense sum of money which had previously been received from the saloon in the form of license fees the city or town has prospered, largely because of the great reduction in the cost of maintaining hospitals, insane asylum, jails, poor-houses, and other institutions which were necessary on account of the evil effects of beer and whisky drinking.

The following is a testimony from Kansas:

"On June 8, 1906, there were 256 saloons in Wyandotte County, Kansas, of which Kansas is the seat; there 200 gambling houses and more than 60 houses of evil repute. On July 3, all were closed. There have been none since. When the fight started delegations of business men said that to close the saloons would stop our growth, destroy business, deplete bank deposits, stop the erection of buildings, render houses vacant, increase taxation, reduce the price of real estate, cause people to go over to Kansas City, Missouri, to do their shopping and spend their money, and would ruin the town generally.

"The business men who had so many fears will now tell you they were mistaken. The abolition of liquor selling has been of decided benefit instead of injury to the business interests of the city. Bank deposits have increased more than two millions of dollars since the saloons were closed. More clerks have been hired to attend to mercantile business. A letter from the president of the largest bank in the city says that within one year after saloon closing his deposits increased $1,700,000. He testifies that a majority of business men are pleased with the results, with which a large majority of professional men and other intelligent citizens agree.

"The president of the Home City Bank writes that Mr. Atkinson, vice-president of a suburban bank in Armourdale says that business has increased 36 percent. A savings bank president writes that it's business has increased 50 per cent, and also that 75 per cent of the new customers are of the new class that formerly spent all their money for liquor. A real estate man of seventeen years' standing write: There are more houses, and good homes, and seeking investments than in any year since I have lived here.

"From July 1, 1906, to July 1, 1907, there was an increase of 200.7 per cent in building operations, the largest of any city in the Union. Three times as many laboring men bought homes in our town last year as ever before.

"The Police Judge says that day after day goes without a single arrest in this city of over 100,000 people; 50,000 people gathered at the carnival here, and there were only four arrests.

When we consider that the money that liquor cost in one year is great enough to give a university course to every young man and woman in Canada paying all expenses involved. Or it would pay the rent of a comfortable cottage for each family in Canada. It would rent one million cottages at $12.50 a month. It would furnish an annual pension fund of $150,000 for every family in Canada. Surely we should consider these facts. —Adv't.

Small-pox At London, Ont.

London, Ont., November 30.—The small-pox epidemic in this city is growing more serious, besides, the Collegiate Institute, which was closed today, it is likely a number of public schools will be closed shortly. Smallpox is very prevalent all around the city, and although every effort is being made to check it, new cases are being discovered every day.

Are Your Joints Lame?

Haven't you a weak spot, a place where cold and inflammation always settles? Whether it is in the neck, side, joints or limbs—the cure is simple—a good rub with Nerviline and then apply Nerviline Porous Plaster. These great rubefacients invariably cure strain, swelling, weakness and muscular pain. There is no mystery about this. Nerviline is the most penetrating liniment known—consequently it gets where the trouble really is. Nerviline Porous Plasters are great healers and draw out congestion. Be sure you get the genuine, substitutes can't do the work.

Lunatic Stole a Horse.

A patient named Jonn Marston escaped from the local asylum at Brockville and walking to Lyn, five miles away, found a horse and rig in the sheds of a hotel, which he appropriated. He was located at Delta, a distant part of the county, and arrested. Guards were sent to bring him back. Marston cunningly left the bridle and halter in the sheds at Lyn and stole another "headstall" from a farmer in the vicinity to make believe that the animal had pulled off its bridle and wandered away.

A school of forestry is to be instituted by the Quebec legislature.

Two Prisoners Made Escape.

Lindsay, Ont. Nov. 21.—Shortly after two o'clock yesterday afternoon great excitement was aroused among the officials at the county jail when it was discovered that Brooks and Mallory had succeeded in making their escape from custody. Brooks was sentenced a few days ago to eighteen months in the Central Prison for stealing and cruelly ill-using a horse, and he would shortly been transferred to his new home.
