An old fashioned girl was one who made two hats and one husband last a life-time.

When it comes to climbing the ladder of success, many people have fallen arches.

The time now is when no one knows
Just when to shake his winter's clothes,
For if you wear them you feel bad,
And if you don't you wish you had.

It is announced that the Dominion Parliament may prorogue by the middle of May Some members will have to do less talking if that is to occur.

It's advice that's worth repeating, "Always work out of doors when using gasoline, and never strike a match or take a light near where gasoline is being used.

There are 46 normal schools in Canada in which teachers for the public schools are trained. Canada also has 152 institutions providing higher educational facilities.

Some people, too many people in fact can sneer more easily than they can smile, and they endeavor to keep in good practice. They always make pleasant company—to keep away from.

No one was ever known to bluff their way through the Pearly Gates, and no man who leads a double life need ever hope to keep his secret. People may libel your reputation, but not your character.

Willie was being measured for his first made to-order suit of clothes.
"Do you want the shoulders padded, my little man," inquired the tailor.
"Naw," said Willie, "pad the pants."

Dr. Lyman Beecher once prayed in public: "O Lord grant that we may not despise our rulers and grant that they may not act so that we can't help it" A prayer no less appropriate in these days.

"Husbands are verra like teeth," said an old Scotch lady. "They're mighty hard to get an' they're a deal of trouble all the time ye hae them, but they leave an awfu' blank ahint them when they're gone."

The only good our professional economists are proving is that they each have a different theory as to the cause and cure of trade depression, and the ordinary man may quote any one of them and think he has an authority.

As one lady said to another last Saturday morning after her husband had been at a Masonic Meeting the night before, "it's most provoking when a man only mutters in his sleep and you can't make out a word he says."

To outdo the editor who predicted a cold and wet summer, the Winchester Press predicts a very pleasant, not too hot, but a very enjoyable summer, and we claim to know as much about the matter as the other fellow.

A girl never made a greater mistake than when she used the lip stick to make her lips look like two slits of led on her face. If she thinks she is making herself attractive she is a bigger fool than she will ever know. The male who is attracted to a girl by such a device is not a real he-man.

At this time of the year there should be the seasonable number of odd jobs, repairs, alterations, painting, decorating, etc., that is undertaken now would provide many of the town's unemployed with a much-needed opportunity to earn some money and it is to be hoped that there will be a general response to this invitation to give a man a job.

It was a blessing there was snow on the ground last Sunday night. The thermometer dropped aimost to zero, and as Mr. F. Forsyth, Agricultural Representative, remarked, "When, at this time of the year, we have cold weather, we could not have it under more favorable conditions. The snow has protected the fall wheat and small seed; they have had protection when they required it."

After all is said and done it will be business as usual on Canadian farms as soon as spring opens and men can get on the land, The inherent urge to produce will then exert itself, and if the season is favourable there will be a big crop in Canada this year. Profits, or speaking more correctly, income from the 1932 crop will depend considerably on the attention paid to quality and economy of production.

"The altar cups that Spring fills,
For us, who shared from birth,
The faith of all the joyous things
That light the wakened earth.

Surely a heartening message has this season for each of us. If we are wise we shall learn to read our experience after the emblem and model of the seasons. No trouble is so heavy and no season so dark but that it has within itself the promise of some better time to come.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Ethel Leslie spent the week end with Mrs. Edgar Summers.

Mrs. John Scott of Winchester visited Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scoot a few days this week.

Mrs May Graham, of East Oxford, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. David Magee, of Cardinal, on Monday.

Mrs. Harold Droppo of Chesterville and Mrs Harvey Barkley and son, Gordon, of Morrisburg visited their parental home here the first of this week.

Mr. Donald Poole and Mr. William Price leave Friday for Picton where they have taken over the Baking business of Mr. Kellogg. All wish the boys good luck and prosperity.

Hannah Hamilton died at the home of her son at Williamsburg, Sam Hamilton, on March 25, at the age of 83 years.

Eliza Moorehead, 89 year old resident of Dixon's Corners, died at the home of her brother, William Moorehead, on Monday, March 21.

Abraham Sellick, 83-year-old resident of Kemptville district, died at his home on Friday last as a result of injuries received when he was bowled over by a hog and trampled by a cow on his farm.

David Johnston, a life-long resident of the township of Oxford and residing a short distance east of Oxford Station died Monday morning following an illness of some months. Deceased was in his 74th year and spent his entire life on the home steal where he died.

Coming into contact with the blade of a circular revolving at a high speed, Geo. S. McBride, of Dunbar, received a severe cut on his right hand last week, while sawing at the farm of a neighbour, Lloyd Barkley. Two of the cords of his fingers were severed by the blade.

In milk 305 days under official test in the R. O. P., the six-year-old Holstein cow, Mountain View Countess Mechthilde, bred by Allen H. Francis, Renfrew, Ont., and now owned by Howard E. Biccum, Winchester, has just been qualified with a production of 21,066 lbs. milk containing 863.75 lbs. butter.

Congratulations to Walter Loucks of Williamsburg, who was the lucky winner of the Electric Clock, offered by the Rogers One Hour Enamel Co., through their agent, Mr. L C. McIntosh, to the holder of the lucky ticket in their draw. Mrs. Mack Doherty, acting as judge, drew the lucky ticket from the ballot box.

ACCEPTED OTTAWA CALL

At the close of the morning service in the United Church on Sunday last, Rev. J. A. Waddell, who has been the pastor of the congregation for nearly nine years, announced that he had received a call from Western United Church, Ottawa, and had accepted the same, and expected to take charge ot the new appointment about the middle of May, subject to the will of the Presbytery which was to meet at Inkerman on the 13th.

The announcement, although not a complete surprise, was received with deep regret by the large majority of those present, for no pastor had ever won his way into the confidences and the affections of the people of Winchester and district as had Rev. Mr. Waddell

It was the third call from Western Church to Mr. Waddell, and although there were some eighteen applicants for that charge, Mr. Waddell was the unanimous choice, and Mr. Waddell was not himself an applicant for the Ottawa charge. Mr. Waddell was an applicant for a charge at London, Ont., and the choice had narrowed to him and one other, and was to be decided within a short time, but when the urgent call from Ottawa came, Mr. Waddell at once accepted and so notified his London friends Speaking in every day terms, it is doubtful if there are many who are the equal to Mr. Waddell as an all-rouud clergyman, a devoted christian and true gentleman. His sermons are always thought provoking and spiritu lly helpful and delivered with an earnestness that leaves no doubt as to the true conviction behind them. As a pastor he has few who can compare, and his tact, gentleness, sympathy and spiritual inspiration in the sick chamber has been a blessing and a comfort to many homes. In all branches of church work he gave the best that was in him, and with the young people he was guiding light and living example. Ever ready to answer a call to duty, he oftentimes taxed his strength to the breaking point. In Mrs. Waddell Mr. Waddell had a great help, for Mrs Waddell is not only a very earnest and devout christian woman, but a pastor's true wife. Not blessed with robust health, Mrs. Waddell has many times performed her duties as a pastor's wife when she should have remained quiet. Her always cheerful and kindly example was at all times a great source of helpfulness to those with whom she came in contact.

There is one comforting thought to many, and that is that Mr. and Mrs. Waddell are not going far away, and will no doubt be frequent visitors to Winchester where they will ever receive a hearty welcome.

While congratulations are due Mr. Waddell on his call to the city they will be accompanied by the sincere wish of his many friends that his work in his new charge may prove pleasant and a blessing

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Lennis Bronson, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bronson, of Kemptville, suffered a very painful injury Sunday afternoon when he was bitten in the face by a Boston bull terrier, owned by Dr. Joseph Milne, whose home is across the street from that of the Bronson's. Lennis had gone over to play with the Milne boys and after a short time decided to play with the dog for a while. The dog was tied at the side of the house. Harold Milne told Lennis not to bother the dog, but Lennis continued, thinking that he would receive a friendly welcome. Instead, the dog jumped and grabbed him by the upper lip tearing a nasty gash.

NEW FORD HERE SATURDAY

As will be noticed in Mr. R. A. Merkley's special Advertisement on the back page of this issue, the New Ford V-8 will be on exhibition in his Show Rooms at Winchester on Saturday of this week. Wherever shown, this new wonder of the automobile industry has been attracting large crowds, who describe the New Ford as one of rare beauty. You may see it for yourself on Saturday of this week and on Monday next.

MOTHERS' DAY

Send in your order for flowers now and be sure you get them early and fast for Mothers' Day. Send to J. L. Smith, Florist, Smiths Falls, or Phone 113, Smiths Falls. Take no chances on being disappointed. Send your order in now.

STREETS BADLY CUT

Owing to the soft weather of the past month some of the streets in Winchester have become badly cut by the traffic, and it will require consideracle grading to put them in proper repair. The material put on last summer had not been rolled and was early cut through in many places by the cars and other vehicles. The work of a grader will soon put then in proper shape when the weather permits.

HON. GEO. H. CHALLIES HERE FRIDAY EVENING

The Provincial Secretary, Hon. Geo. H. Challies member for Dundas, will meet the reeves and their councils for the County in conference at Hotel Winchester, to-morrow evening. Hon. Mr. Challies has called the conference to discuss municipal problems and the relation of the municipality to the Legislature, and in a sort of round table conference it is expected that ideas may be exchanged, suggestions given, and good result.

A BAD ROAD

If Hon. Leopold Macauley, Minister of Highways, could be induced to visit this section at the present time and drive from Winchester to Morrisburg, and particularly a few miles south of Winchester he would have a better idea why the deputation that waited on him last fall so fervently urged on him the necessity of extending the highway to at least the four corners or to the Nation. To-day it is just a horrible piece of road that is enough to ruin a car to drive over it, and a horse could not trot over with a load. Here's hoping that some extension may be made to the road this summer.

SEED CLEANING EQUIPMENT

The farming community will be pleased to learn that Messrs. Fennell & Wallace have improved their seed cleaning machine by the addition of a Carter Disc Grain Separator. By this addition they will be able to give excellent service in ways of cleaning seed grain. The machine is fully equipped with all the screens available, and is one of the best seed cleaning equipment in Ontario. When it is remembered that there only a few of these cleaning equipments in Eastern Ontario, the farmers of this and adjoining counties are especially favoured as they can have their seed cleaning done by a government inspected system at very low cost.

DELIGHTFUL SHOWER

A very delightful miscellaneous shower was given last evening at the home of Miss Helen Timmins in honor of the bride to-be, Miss Edna McLean. The hostesses, Miss Helen Timmins and Miss Stella O'Neill, received the guests. The bride-to-be was then given the seat of honor and the hostesses carried in a beautifully decorated basket and assisted in the unwrapping of the many beautiful gifts. Miss McLean then thanked her many friends for their good wishes and lovely gifts and invited them to visit her in her new home Home made candy was then served and the guests were asked to register in the beautifully decorated Bride's Book.

ST. PAUL'S L. A. S.

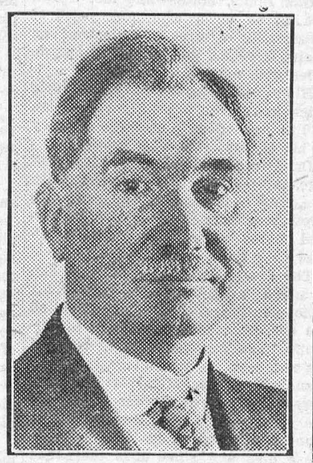
There was a large attendance of members at the regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society held at the home of Mrs. Frank Elliott. The President, Mrs Chester Robinson, conducted the opening exercises which were followed by the Roll call. Reports were presented by the Secretary, Miss Grace Irving and Mrs. Geo. Angus, the Treasurer. Plans for a number of activities were made, one being a Pan Cake Supper, to be held in the S. School Hall, on Thursday, April 14th. Meeting closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. The next meeting to be held in the S. School Hall. At the tea hour following the meeting Mrs. Elliottt and Mrs. Angus were the hostesses.

SUCCESSFUL SALE

A very successful and well attended Afternoon Tea and Home Cooking Sale was held on Saturday afternoon in the United Church S. S. Rooms under the auspices of the Women's Association. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. J. A. Waddell and the president, Mrs. R. A. Crowder. The cooking table was under the able convenorship of Mrs. R. L. Suffel and Mrs. F. F. Davidson, while Mrs. A. W. Sherwood and Mrs. Carl Rice had charge of the candy table. The finance committee under the leadership of Mrs. Milton Fennell most capably took charge of the tea room while six of the young ladies catered at the tables.

The ladies of the Association are very much indebted to the members of the High School Orchestra for the very fine program of music rendered by them during the afternoon. This added greatly to the success of the event.

TELLS OF THE BELLEVILLE SCHOOL FOR DEAF



Those who did not hear Mr. H. B. Fetterly, M. A., in the Town Hall last night missed an opportunity to learn of the great work being done for the deaf children of Ontario at the School for the Deaf at Belleville, of which Mr. Fetterly is Superintendent.

Major A. H. S. Adams, M. A., B. Sc., acted as Chairman, and in a few well chosen words, introduced the speaker of the evening, who was listened to with very close attention by those privileged to hear him.

Mr. Fetterly said he came under the auspices of the Loyal Orange Lodge, and told briefly of some of the aims of the Association. He mentioned especially the Ne Temere decrees and told how the Orange Association had taken the Tremblay case to the Privy Council. This was a case where the marriage of two Roman Catholics was annulled by the church contrary to the civil law of Canada. He also spoke of the efforts of the Roman Catholics to obtain a part of the school taxes of corporations for the Separate Schools, which are sectarian schools and therefore should not be allowed to share in such taxes.

He said the first attempt to care for deaf children in Ontario was in 1870 when an institution known as an asylum for the Deaf and Dumb was opened. It was operated by the same Department that operated the penitentiaries and was inspected by the same officials. In 1905 the institution was transferred to the Dept. of Education and renamed the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. In 1915 if was renamed again the School for the Deaf.

The first school for the deaf on the American continent was opened in New Hartford, Conn., in 1813, but Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, was the first to realize the need of teaching deaf children by some other method than the sign language, in use at that time.

Mr. Fetterly gave a detailed account of the methods used in the School at Belleville from the time the child entered, explaining the various steps taken in teaching the child to speak. Children who entered last September at 5 years of age can now say 15 words. There are at present 340 pupils coming from all parts of Ontario and representing many nationalities. The children are now permitted to attend service in the varions churches of the city, and also take an active part in different branches of sport.

Girls are taught domestic science and boys are given certain lines of vocational training. The question was asked "What if fire broke out during the night?" Attendants are on duty in each dormitory whose duty it is if the fire gong rings to arouse every child in his care. The older children help in getting the younger ones in line, then the doors are opened and they march out. The children get out in about 1½ minutes. The buildings are all fireproof so that fire hazard is practically absent. The fact that visitors are always welcome was stressed, and an invitation was extended to any who desired to see the work at the School.

Mr. W. J. Stewart, B. A., B. Paed., moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Fetterly for his instructive address, and Mr. H. A. Graham, Principal of the Public School, and Mr. A. Sweet, ex-M. L. A., seconded the motion.

The high school orchestra provided several selections, and Mrs. Howard Fetterly and Mr. Geo. Dixon gave a piano and violin duet. A vote of thanks was also given to the members of the local Orange Lodge who were instrumental in getting Mr. Fetterly to come here. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Roumanian Teachers Receive Higher Salaries Than Army

Bucharest, Roumania.—For what is believed to be the first time in history, the March budgetary allowance for the Ministry of Public Instruction in Roumania exceeded figures for the Ministry of War.

Hitherto when salaries of state employees have had to lag behind it has not been the soldiers and officers who went unpaid, but the teachers. The budget distribution figures for March recently announced by Mr. C. Argetoianu, Minister of Finance and Interior, allot 351,000,000 lei (about $20,000,000) to the teachers as against 330,000,000 lei to the army.

News Oddities

Man Commits Suicide By Swallowing Savings

Lyons, France.—Jean Coiffier, 42, attempted to commit suicide and take his money with him.

He succeeded in killing himself by swalowing his life savings which consisted of several 1,000, 100, 10 and 5 franc notes.

An autopsy was performed and the notes were recovered.

Lonely Heath Hen Bachelor To Be Provided With Mate

Oak Bluffs, Mass.—The last health hen in the world, after four years of presumably carefree bachelorhood on quaint Martha's Vineyard, is to be provided with a mate.

His bride will be a Wisconsin prairie chicken, the finest ornithologists can find in their effort to preserve as many of his characteristics as possible.

Dr. Alfred O. Cross of Bowdoin College, foremost authority on the heath hen, has consented to supervise the nuptials, which necessarily will be hurried because the mating season already has begun.

The heath hen—he is called a hen although a male—is the last of his once plentiful species wich inhabited the eastern coast from Maine to Virginia. The guns of hunters reduced his numbers to a small flock which found refuge on Martha's Vineyard. Forest fires there further destroyed the species until only three could be found on the island in 1917. Two of these died and since 1928 there has been but one heath hen left in the world. Natives have reported seeing him within the last week.

Only an ornithologist can tell the difference between a heath hen and a prairie chicken.

Deaf in Gotham Plug-In and Hear at Theatre

New York.—A row of seats for the deaf, wired from microphones hidden on the stage, has been installed at a local theatre.

The play-goer may plug-in his own instrument or rent one at the box office, adjust the ear-pieces and hear everything, the League for the Hard of Hearing, Inc., have announced.

Voting On Mountain Top

Of the thousands and thousands of polling booths which were used throughout the German Reich during the presidential election, there was one which occupied a unique position because of its altitude. This was the booth which had been established on the top of the Zugspitz Mountain, near the terminus of the recently constructed cog railway from Garmisch-Partenkirchen, at a height of over 8600 feet above sea level. Undoubtedly there were a number of people who, in order to make the ascent of the Zugspitz on the day of the presidential election (which like all election days in Germany, was on a Sunday) left Munich too early in the morning to go to the poll in the Bavarian capital, but who were thus afforded an opportunity of recording their vote amid the snow-covered peaks of Germany's loftiest mountain.

Fiddlesticks

It was at an orchestral concert, and after gazing for some time at the bass fiddle player a man in the stalls muttered, "He'll never do it; he'll never do it."

At length the title of the first number was announced, whereupon the mutterer continued his remark, louder each time.

This was too much for a man in the row in front, and eventually he turned and said, angrily, "Confound you and your mutterings, sir!"

"Well, he can't do it, I tell you. I'll bet you he can't!" was the reply.

"Can't do what?"

"Put that big fiddle under his chin."

DILIGENCE.

To live well in one's place in the world, adorning one's calling, however lonely, doing one's most prosaic work diligently and honestly, and dwelling in love and unselfishness with all men, is to live grandly. To fight well the battle with one's own lusts and tempers, and to be victorious in the midst of the temptations and provocations of daily life is to be a Christian hero.—J. R. Miller.

Plans to Industrialize Fishing

Santiago, Chile — Industrialization of the Chilean fishing business is proposed by Don Rene Glavarie, a naval engineer, who has requested the government to give him a concession covering the entire island of Santa Mario, off the coast, to establish a large fish hatchery.

Look Pleasant

No temperamental strawberry blonde was ever a more difficult camera subject than just a plain strawberry; and asking the peas to look pleasant is easier said than done.

The fragrant, steaming cup of coffee, exuding a delicate aroma in an advertisement, "probably had its picture taken several hundred times before being pronounced good enough for publication," Geraldine Sartain reports in the New York "World-Telegram."

"Took 600 shots to get it right," mourns Victor Keppler, advertising photographer, according to her account.

"Food is much more temperamental than any live model. As for strawberries—it's harder to get a perfect thirty-six strawberry than to find a natural platinum blonde. Why, I once picked through ten boxes of strawberries to find just six models."

What goes on behind the scenes in an advertising photographer's studio "is really startling. A glance at the picture of a sparkling glass of ginger ale, a dish of ice cream, a nice red tomato, a plate of sausages and scrambled eggs would never reveal the agonies the cameraman may have gone through to obtain that perfection of light and shadow," Miss Sartain assures us as she continues:

An advertising photographer's studio looks for all the world like a medieval torture chamber.

There's an alarming assemblage of metal containers shaped like torpedo tubes that hold rows of electric bulbs, batteries of steel-hooded arc lights, and metallic piping running around the ceiling to form a trolley for more movable lights.

When all these scorching lights, from thirty-five to fifty of them of around 10,000 watts collectively, are focused on the model saucer of broccoli or slice of layer cake, things just naturally happen to the contents—they start shrivelling or getting drippy. Icings fall away, and after every shot must be repaired.

If there are too many shots there isn't cake enough left.

Sausages have the meanest trick. They bleach to a dainty ecru shade, dry up and roll themselves into the counterpart of a slice of crisp fried bacon.

So to counteract their temperament, they are painted with oil just before the camera clicks.

Jelly loves to take on the consistency of golf balls, and as for silverware—it usually photographs black.

To overcome the darkness, the strongest lights imaginable must be used; then a worse problem presents itself.

The silver catches reflections of all the lights, of the paraphernalia around, even of the photographer's countenance.

Once an advertising photographer had to build a special room for a silver job—a room with a black velvet floor and walls hung with white Chinese silk.

The only opening was a tiny slit in the ceiling through which could blink the eye of the waiting camera.

But for a real trouble-maker, Miss Sartain invites us to consider ice cream.

The photographer pulled all his tricks, experimenting for days. Finally he hit upon the idea of "dry ice."

It was alternated, in layers, with ice cream in a sherbet glass, and wrapped in a towel for an hour, thereby freezing as solid as marble and notwithstanding the 212 degree Fahrenheit temperature of the lights for the few seconds necessary to have its features photographed for posterity.

Ginger-ale campaigns presented a grave problem.

Ice cubes in a glass look like nothing at all, pictured—just a blank.

But one of the best commercial photographers in New York discovered that a layer of hard coal placed in the back of the glass brings out lights and shadows, and outlines the striations in the ice. Now every ice cube in a glass that you see in a picture has been photographed that way.

Another difficult model was a white dish on a white tablecloth, filled with spinach. This was a problem of lighting, to bring out the different planes of white and to give the spinach character enough.

The commercial advertising cameraman has to build many sets, and he must keep as many theatrical props as the Shuberts.

"A great life we lead," any advertising photographer will tell you, "especially in the summer, when we have all these lamps on at terrific heat, working on all these cooling beverages that are so technically difficult to shoot."

Picture Postcard Originated in Germany

Berlin.—It is almost impossible to imagine what travelling would be without the picture post card. And yet it is only about half a century ago that this most pleasing way of communicating with one's friends was first introduced. Fey may know that the picture post card, just as the ordinary post card, originated in Germany. There are several versions as to why really was responsible. Some say it was a young etcher in Nuernberg, aged twenty, who published the first card of this kind on March 1, 1872, bearing a picture of his beautiful home town. That would be sixty years ago. Others pass the honor to Heinrich Lange, a printer in Goettingen, who, so the story goes, fifty years ago, asked Heinrich von Stephan, the progressive head of the German post, organizer of the world's postal union, for permission to publish picture post cards showing views of German towns. There is a version that the Nuenberg etcher and Heinrich Lange are identical persons.

HAPPINESS.

Happiness in life is usually found by the man who is looking for something else.—Henry Ford.

Relics on Two Continents Attributed to the Vikings

Ships, Jewels, Rune Stones and Even a Cathedral Appear to Trace the Course of the Norsemen

The recent discovery of a Viking cache of gems on the Swedish island of Gothland in the Baltic Sea, directs attention to other relics dug up during the present century that appear to trace the activities of these sea wanderers of a thousand years ago. These discoveries have been made for the most part in the Scandinavian countries, and in Iceland and Greenland. Ruins have also been revealed on the North American continent suggesting that the Norsemen propelled their great galleys far to the west, but authority is divided as to the Viking origin of these remains.

In the Historical Museum in Oslo, Norway, three Viking ships are displayed. One, found at Oseberg in 1903, was evidently a pleasure yacht owned by a woman of noble rank, and used as her sepulchre. The ship was apparently hauled high and dry into a hollow place, then roofed over and covered with earth, peat and stones. Two skeletons, both of women, were found on board.

In 1925 an expedition under Dr. Paul Norland made some interesting discoveries of Viking relics in Greenland. Most important were the ruins of a cathedral and a Bishop's palace, which boasted a main building 150 feet long containing a large banquet hall. The out-houses must have been large enough to accommodate 100 cows, besides horses, pigs, etc., and to have room for a smithy. The cathedral was evidently ninety feet long, with several chapels attached. It was built of sandstone quarried near the settlement at Igaliko. This was evidently the colony ruled by Eric the Red.

In 1931 Dr. Knud Rasmussen, Danish explorer, discovered in Ekjoldungen Fjord, Greenland, the 1,000-year-old ruins of a house which was not of Eskimo origin, and which was believed to have been built by the Vikings.

The question as to whether the Norsemen discovered America, and if they did, how far they went into the country, has been debated for many years. Similarities have been found between ancient civilizations in America and Norse culture, mounds have been ascribed to the Norsemen, and runic writings and names have been traced to Norse origins; but although it is probable that the Norsemen reached America, no proof of their having penetrated the country for any distance has been found.

Ancient ruins on Sculpin Island, twenty miles off Nain, Labrador, were discovered in 1926 by Commander Donald B. MacMillan, and believed by him to be the remains of a Norse settlement.

King George's New Cairn Terrier

King George's recent acquisition of a dog, to replace the one which died a year ago, relieves the royal parrot of the responsibility of being the only pet in the royal household.

The new puppy, like his predecessor, is a Cairn terrier and is six months old. Like Snip, he immediately became devoted to the King, although he is reported to be somewhat stand-offish toward all others in the palace. Snip, it will be remembered, was inconsolable when his royal master was ill in 1928 and stood a twenty-four hour watch daily outside the monarch's bedroom door.

Snip's death in April, last year, left Charlotte, the wise and gray old parrot, as the King's only house pet, although the royal stables boast a number of excellent race-horses.

Outside the animal pets of the household there is, however, one other who offers further proof of King George's amiability. This is the Princess Elizabeth, to whom, it is whispered, his Majesty is just "grandpa."

New Zealand Establishing Dental Clinics in Schools

New Zealand has a system of school dental clinics—begun in 1920—which are established on application when the cost of premises and certain maintenance expenses are guaranteed by responsible local organizations. The teeth of all children in the entering classes are examined, and any needed treatment is given if the parents consent. Re-examinations and necessary treatments are given at intervals of six months. At the present time about 60,000 children in 130 schools are being cared for. An important feature of the system is the employment of women nurses who have received a two-year course in dental hygiene in the Wollington training school.

Canal Traffic at 8-Year Low As 358 Vessels Are Transited

Balboa, C.Z.—Panama Canal traffic for February, 1932, fell to a new low since February, 1923. Last month 358 vessels made the transit of the canal, paying $1,647,797.06 in tolls, an average of 12.34 daily transits paying an average of $58,820.59 daily. In February 1923, a total of 326 ships made the transit, paying $1,423,954.21 in tolls.

"You say you have played Hamlet?"

"Yes."

"How long?"

"Well, I've played it as long as an hour and a half once or twice."

SORROW.

After a certain age, when the character is formed, there are two things which can greatly affect it—sorrow and responsibility. If one could weigh the motive power that affects the mind, it would be found that one ounce of responsibility laid upon a man has more effect in determining his conduct, and even his character, than tons of good advice, lay or clerical, or hundredweights even of good example.—Sir Arthur Helps.

ONE THOUGHT.

"Don't you go an' get sorry for yerself. That's one thing I can't stand in nobody. There's always lots of other folks you kin be sorry for 'stid of yerself. Ain't you proud you ain't got a hairlip? Why, that one thought is enough to keep me from ever gittin' sorry for myself."—Mrs. Wiggs in "Lovey Mary."

GENIUS.

It takes a very true man to be a fitting companion for a woman of genius, but not a very great one.

When a strong brain is weighed against a true heart, it seems to me like balancing a bubble against a wedge of gold.

This is Edward Spink, the hatter of Love Lane, who makes the queer leather lids for Billingsgate fish porters. His London shop is over 250 years old.

GIVING.

Acquire the giving habit. Give intelligently, freely, liberally. Give money, books, merchandise, counsel, sympathy, and inspiration. Give something every day. Cultivate the giving habit as you do the saving habit. Give out of the fulness of your heart, not with expectation of return or gratitude, but because it is right to give. There is no greater joy in life than to render happiness to others by means of intelligent giving.

Never before in the world has there been so much generous, sympathetic and unselfish service. It is the spirit of the supreme giver, the Christ who gave His life that men might know the way to the Father. You owe it to your highest self to give every day as you are able.

The Christmas spirit and sense of service should not be only for one day in the year, but a perennial and perpetual expression of the love in your heart. If the spiritual good cheer of Christmas Day were generally manifested throughout the year, it would transform mankind.

Love is still the greatest thing in the world, and the world grows better in proportion that love increases. Do not wait for others to practice the golden rule, but diligently apply it in your own daily life. Like the stars that are beautiful because of what they are, and not because of what they do, so can you make your life a beneficient influence to others by developing a continual spirit of Christmas within your mind and heart. —Grenville Kleiser.

MISERLINESS.

Through every stage and revolution of life the miser remains invariably the same; or if any difference, it is only this, that as he advances into the shade of a long evening, he clings closer and closer to the object of his idolatory; and while every other passion lies dead and blasted in his heart, his desire for more pelf increases with renewed eagerness, and he holds by a sinking world with an agonising grasp, till he drops into the earth with the increased curses of wretchedness on his head, without the tribute of a tear from child or parent, or any inscription on his memory but that he lived to counteract the distributive justice of Providence, and died without hope or title to a blessed immortality.—W. B. Kirwan.

Peace Promoter

"Sports are proving to be one of the best promoters of good and friendly relations between the people of the world," Chancellor Bruening wrote to the Federal Committee of Athletics recently. "Sports appeal to the masses and devote themselves primarily to the youth, the bearer of the future. The Oympic Games have grown into a festival of peace among the youth of the entire world. I am happy that the German youth will participate in the Olympic Games in Los Angeles in 1932 and will weave new and strengthen old ties with the youth of the United States."

Fresh and Fragrant—Always
"SALADA"
GREEN TEA
"Fresh from the Gardens" 259

Early spring is the proper time to set out most new shrubbery, roses, ornamental and fruit trees, climbing vines and other things purchased to make the grounds about the house attractive. These should be bought from the nearest reputable source of supply so that they may be planted as soon as possible. In elanning this part of the garden it is important to secure plants that are suitable to Canadian conditions and if satisfactory results are to be secured it is essential that good stock is bought. One will find a wide range of prices quoted, just as in any other line, but here again as always, good plants, well grown, hardy and true to name cannot be sold at the lowest figure. Unless the plant is in prime condition, with plenty of green bark, moist pliable roots and large live buds, it will have little chance, and if it lives at all a whole year will be lost in getting it started. After all, the actual cost of the nursery material is a mere bagatelle compared with the satisfaction which may be achieved. On arrival of the new plants, they should be planted immediately in moist soil, but if this is not possible, dig a shallow trench and "heel in" by covering roots firmly with soil. All shrubs, rose bushes, trees, and vines should have tops pruned back and they should be set in permanent quarters a trie deeper than they were planted in the nursery bed. Give the roots plenty of room, spreading them loosely about the hole, then cover with good garden soil, throw in a pail of water, fill in the remainder of the hole and press soil down firmly. In the case of trees and such single stem plants as lilacs, provide some support against the wind in the form of a stout stake and tie with soft twine or raffia. If the soil is oor it is a good thing to add some good garden loam and also an occasional application of commercial fertilizer dissolved in water.

IN PLANTING SHRUBBERY AND ROSES.

WHEN SOIL IS FIT TO WORK.

When this old earth really begins to warm up in the spring the normal person who traces his ancestry back to a farmer before the ape feels an impulse to get out and dig and while the modernist frowns on repression of any kind the experienced gardener advises extreme caution at this time. If the earth is too wet there is grave danger of a nasty cold, not to mention dire consequences to the soil itself. Too early working will cause the latter to pack down hard and it may require a whole summer of constant digging and raking to get it back into its old crumbly self again. There is a simple test. If the soil crumbles after a little is squeezed in the hand or if it does not muddy the boots, it is safe to go ahead, but if it compacts into a ball, it is best to satisfy the spring craving with a good walk or a game of golf.

GRAFTING AND TRAINING.

Grafting is not a difficult operation. The main thing is to get a portion of the inner bark of the scion, or twig being grafted onto the tree exactly opposite and tight up against the inner bark of the limb of the tree, so that the two may grow together. When working on a big limb it is best to take two or three twigs and insert them around the edge of the sawed-off portion with the two inner barks in close contact. Later on when growth has well started remove all but one twig. After putting together, tie tightly with raffia or some soft twine and cover all around the joint with grafting wax. It is advisable to get some good Government bulletin on this subject before attempting the work. By grafting one can repair a tree which rabbits or mice have girdled and which would die without this treatment and can put a complete new top on a broken down tree or one of a non-desirable variety. Grafting and training opens up interesting possibilities to the gardener. One apple can be made to fill the lace of three ordinary trees if an early variety like the Yellow Transarent, or Astrachan, a good early cooker like the Duchess and a fine winter apple such as the McIntosh are all grown on the same trunk. By careful pruning and training shrubs and trees may be made to assume weird shapes or almost as ornamental as the hardwoods usually planted for this purpose. One may make bushy trees of climbing roses by only allowing a single stem trained to a stake and then encouraging this to branch by cutting it off when it reaches a certain height. In Japan by judicious pruning and withholding of fertilizer and water pines and oaks of very dwarfed proportions are grown in pails and tubs.

No Windows in New Museums

Most modern museums are now built entirely without windows. Daylight, even when filtered through glass, has such intensity that it has been labeled "the greatest enemy" of public exhibits. It causes many specimens to deteriorate by fading.

No product in the world has as great a turnover as chewing-gum.

FASHION HINT

"How to make my old short skirts conform to the new length was a problem to me until I hit on this plan I dropped the hems; and as the part that had been turned under was darker than the rest, I redyed the entire dress, after having bleached the goods, following directions in the Diamond Dyes package.

"I used Diamond Dyes for the redyeing, of course. I have dyed many things with these wonderful colors. They have saved me many dollars and have never failed to give perfect results—smooth, even colors—fast to wear and washing. Friends think my things are new when I redye or tint them with Diamond Dyes. They do give the most gorgeous colors!"

When You
CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Aspirin tablets when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, they will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Aspirin is harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Aspirin tablets are ready with quick relief—and always work. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

THE PASSING OF MARCH

By Robert Burns Wilson

The braggart March stood in the season's door
With his broad shoulders blocking up the way,
Shaking the snow-flakes from the cloak he wore,
And from the fringes of his kirtle gray.
Near by him April stood with tearful face,
With violets in her hands, and in her hair
Pale, wild anemones; the fragrant lace
Half-parted from her breast, which seemed like fair
Dawn-tinted mountain snow, smooth-drifted there.

She on the blusterer's arm laid one white hand,
But he would none of her soft blandishment,
Yet did she plead with tears none might withstand,
For even the fiercest hearts at last relent.
And he, at last, in ruffian tenderness,
With one swift, crushing kiss her lips did greet.
Ah, poor starved heart!—for that one rude caress,
She cast her violets underneath his feet.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

ODDS AND ENDS

SINCE I last touched this subject, I have noticed in the big daily newspapers that no fewer than twenty-five deaths have occurred from "heart disease" in one great metropolis of the middle-west.

Men—all of them. And none of them over sixty years old. All of them big, two-fisted, bull-necked fellows. . . . Some of them were personal acquaintances of mine. They were go-getters, if you please; the city and state sustained a distinct loss when each died. There's a lesson here for all but the heedless.

The skinny, lanky, dyspeptic, plunderbund artist of the big town may go crazy, but he doesn't die of "heart disease." Had you ever noticed that? The fellow that "spits up" once in awhile, and is afraid to eat much. It's the fellow that weighs from 190 up, whose "heart" gets him like a shot; the fellow that carves the canvas-back, and tops it off with a hot chaser; that doesn't have time to dine till the day is done—the big, forceful he-man of business.

Lessons — lessons — to the observing. Over-fueling at wrong hours. The big feed just before the night of rest. Breakfast and noon lunch negligible in quantity and bolted—swallowed whole! The rush back to business—no time for eating or digesting properly, until that office closes at six. The road to "tubbiness," blood-pressure, rotten arteries, "heart disease" at 50 or thereabout.

Better be a "skinny" with a bundle of nerves and a cow-horn stomach, in the mad chase for the dollar. Then, you can at least avert the heart disease benediction, the over-stuffed wares of the mortician, the tall marble shaft,—all these, till you really want to die and have it over with.

"DO YOU REMEMBER"

By Thomas Haynes Bayly

Do you remember when you heard
My lips breathe love's first faltering word?
You do, sweet—don't you?
When, having wandered all the day,
Linked arm in arm, I dared to say,
"You'll love me—won't you?"

And when you blushed and could not speak,
I fondly kissed your glowing cheek,
Did that affront you?
Oh, surely not—your eye expressed
No wrath—but said, perhaps in jest,
"You'll love me—won't you?"

I'm sure my eyes replied, "I will."
And you believe that promise still,
You do, sweet—don't you?
Yes, yes! when age has made our eyes
Unfit for questions or replies,
You'll love me—won't you?

THE CALL OF ABRAM
Genesis 12:1-9
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Since much of the record is omitted necessarily in this course, you should read the intervening Scripture. For example, the Flood and the Ark of Noah figure in the interim and again the earth is widely peopled. From the sin of Adam and Eve God, in His love, laid out a plan of redemption and now the time had arrived to begin to develop it. The aftermath of the flood showed that such a punishment would not turn people from their sins. God now purposes to provide a Redeemer in time from among a race that He would especially choose and bless. The beginning of the Hebrew nation started with this call of Abram. In fact it began when Terah, the father, was called from Ur of the Chaldees, but the cavalcade stopped in Mesopotamia and no further progress was made until Abram was directed to take his immediate family, his nephew Lot, and their possessions, and proceed to Canaan.

Here was an adventure in faith that is to be classed with the greatest expeditions in all history. It was a trek of at least 300 miles under most adverse conditions. Full encouragement was given, however, in the vision with its attendant promises.

Places in Palestine that are familiar to every student now are named. One camping place was at Shechem, where the modern traveler can still have a drink from the well of Abraham. This was the writer's privilege in 1924. Bethel is also named, and we come to it again in this quarter when we journey to Haran with Jacob. At both stopping places Abraham established an altar and worshipped God. He had foun taht Jehovah was just as much there as in the countries whence he came. And here the covenant was renewed, with the former injunction, recorded in the Golden Text, "Be thou a blessing," Genesis 12:2.

The Way of Life

By BRUCE BARTON

Losses

On a gloomy day I met a New York man who seemed almost happy.

A friend asked him: "How's the market?"

"Haven't the slightest ide..."

The questioner was astonished. "Don't you own stocks and bonds?"

"Sure I do," my man replied. "But I know the things I own can't disappear. I know, also, that I have no chance of selling them at a decent price in this market. Therefore, why should I torture myself by watching them every day and figuring out how much they have depreciated?"

The other looked at him as if he were a traitor to the serious ideals of American finance. Whereupon my friend uttered an important truth.

"The trouble with these fellows in Wall Street is that they have taken their losses fifteen times a day for two years," he said. "Think of it, fifteen times seven hundred. What a loss that makes. Nobody can stand a loss like that. If they'd put away their lead pencils; if they'd quit figuring on the back of envelopes and the margins of newspapers, and forget the whole thing, they would be much better off. Taking your loss fifteen times a day doesn't get you anywhere. It uses up brain cells and nervous energy that might be used for progress."

Every one of us who has any heart at all has had his heart wrung in the past few months. We help as far as we can, but there are so many we can not help. So many men who want to work for whom there is no work!

To these victims of the depression, and especially to the old who have been wiped out and lack the strength or the time to make a fresh start, our deepest sympathy goes out.

But there has been a lot of whining on the part of men who have no excuse to whine.

I have been reading Emerson's diaries. His railroad bonds went sour in the panic of 1857. He refers to his losses just once. His house burned down, and his diary records: "House burned," and goes on to more important things.

Such men give us renewed respect for the human race, and America has her full share of them.

But I am weary of the boys who tell me how much they would have had if they had sold everything in the summer of 1929—the back-of-the-envelope lads who take their losses fifteen times a day.

1 pint of cream sauce
2 egg yolks
nutmeg
salt and cayenne pepper
4 tablespoonfuls of cooking sherry

Make the cream sauce, and add a dash of cayenne, salt to taste, a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, and add the tuna fish broken into pieces with a fork. Cook until very hot, add the sherry and serve at once. Cooking sherry may be purchased at any good grocery.

If you have no shelf in the kitchen for cook books and books on housekeeping, do try to have such a helpful aid as soon as possible. The handy man can make such a shelf, or maybe the handy woman can, but, if neither of them is able to use tools, try buying a small shelf or set of shelves at a hardware store, or in the housefurnishing department in a department store. These may be purchased for less than a dollar, and will save innumerable steps, and the books being so near at hand, the culinary tempo will have a sudden but lasting rise.

Has the family income been cut to the extent that it is not possible for the children to have the things they have been used to,—must the amount of their spending money be reduced? Have you tried calling a family "confab", and talking it over, telling not only the mother how finances stand, but the children as well? Explain the cause and the necessity for retrenchments, and see if they all, the children especially, will not help and do it with cheerfulness and zest. It gives the children a feeling of being part of the family, and teaches a lesson which would be hard to equal.

THE BURDEN OF TAXATION

That the people of Canada, and of every other country for that matter, are alive to the fact that taxes have become a burden, and that the burden has grown to such proportions, and become so heavy, that they find they must seek and secure relief somehow and somewhere, is only too evident. They do not reflect that they are themselves, in a very large measure, responsible for the burden that is weighing them down, nor do they reflect on what brought about their present condition. All they want is relief of some kind, from some source, in some way, and for that relief they look to their governments.. That the men who are in power to-day fully realize the gravity of the situation, we believe, and that they are endeavouring by every means within their power to lighten the burden that is bearing so heavily, especially on the rural sections, there is no doubt.

When in trouble, blame the other fellow is human, and so long as the tax-burdened public can extract some satisfaction out of trying to shift their responsibility by "blaming the other fellow," there is not much hope for permanent reform.

The people of Canada are in no way responsible for the great world war. They are not responsible for the revolution in Russia nor the existence of the present Soviet system in that country. They are not responsible for the discontent in India nor the war between Japan and China. But we, as a country, are more or less effected by what is taken place in all those countries, and they certainly have, and are having, a very noticeable effect on our commercial and economical condition.

If, because of conditions in other parts of the world, Canada is exporting less lumber, less wheat, less cheese, less fruits, and other Canadian products, we cannot place the blame on our governments but on world-wide conditions.

But there are conditions over which the Canadian people have control, and for which our governments are responsible, and if we as a people could for a time but forget politics, and get behind the men who are sincerely and at great personal sacrifice trying to pilot this ship of state safely through the shallow waters of trade depression, instead of putting fresh obstacles in the way, instead of stirring up discontent and distrust, if we would render what assisitance and what advice we could, and show our trust in their sincerity and their ability, much more would be accomplished toward restoring public confidence.

Most certainly there are wrongs that must be corrected, and, as between the nations, there must be between the capitalists, the financial institutions, the governments and the people. a better understanding and the removing of the debt burden from the shoulders of those most oppressed.

IN TIMES OF DEPRESSION

"There's something about these thrifty times which makes me feel rich" says one farm woman aftre listening to several mournful comments on world depression. "With it all we have a place to eat, a comfortable house to live in and fuel enough to keep warm, the children are in school; we are all well, and have enough work to keep us from getting lazy." Another says "In chastening times like this we take stock of our advantages and are more appreciative than in prosperous times. We learn to stand by one another and to have more sympathy and understanding."

Again "We learn more courage and endurance and are more willing to work and give service for the money we get. We were jazzing along at too rapid a pace. We needed this sobering influence."

And further, the people are being brought nearer together, with those who are not in need having a real consciousness of the problem of the humbler strata of society. And, with this consciousness, it will mean that they will never again be as careless about the poor, having been given an insight of their actual requirements to maintain them as good citizens of our country.

OUR PARTY SYSTEM

"The economical wave has brought forth renewed suggestions for the amalgamation of the Maritime Provinces and of the Prairie Provinces. A writer in MacLean's Magazine goes so far as to advocate doing away with Provincial Legislatures altogether, and being content with one central government. This is what that shrewd old statesman, Sir John Macdonald, declared to be the "the best, the cheapest, the strongest and the most vigorous form of government" for Canada. True. But when Sir John A. couldn't persuade the Provinces to adopt it at confederation, there is little hope of anybody else succeeding now. What would be an improvement would be the abandonment of party government in Provincial affairs. There is no principle dividing the parties in the Legislature. It is merely a case of which party can outbid the other. This is the root of much of our present trouble. Each party is trying to think up some new form of extravagance. But the pendulum is now swinging the other way, and the party that makes the largest promises of economy will have the best chance in the next election. With so little rational common sense does our democratic party system work." —Orillia Packet and Times.

CHEERING THEM ALONG

The Acton Free Press tells of an incident when a college baseball team played a rival college and lost the championship. The boys felt very sore and dreaded to face their fellow students on their return, because of the defeat. Imagine their surprise when they arrived back to be greeted by a big crowd of cheering students, headed by a band. As they explained afterwards, the boys had played their best, and done their utmost to retain the championship. And having done their best, it was nothing to their discredit to have lost. They put up the best fight they could, and should not be humiliated because they had not been victorious. One can imagine what that reception and greeting meant to the boys of that baseball team. But how true it is that the crowd is always too ready to cheer for the victors and deride the losers. When one you know is doing his best to fight a secret sin, or overcome a financial burden, or raise himself out of a difficult situation, and while fighting his best, feels that only defeat is before him, what do you think a word of encouragement and cheer would do for that person. As the Free Press very truly points out: "There are always bands to meet the fellows who come home victorious. These university students who turned out to give a rousing welcome to a defeated team, however, were in the right. It is the friend who has failed who needs our help and encouragement. When some one you know has encountered defeat, and is crushed, shamed and possibly embittered, that is the time for the band to play."

"POWER RESOURCES BEING EXHAUSTED"

(Toronto Globe, April 12)

On the Dominion rests the development of navigation on the St. Lawrence, and on the Provinces the development of power, but costs of works beneficial to both must be shared equitably, Hon. George H. Challies Provincial Secretary. told the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Society of Cost Accountants at a dinner in the Royal York last night. Mr. Challies replaced Hon. W. A. Dunlop. Provincial Treasurer, whose illness prevented him addressing the accountants on "Government Financing."

In a review of the the history of the St. Lawrence and the benefits to Ontario of a completed waterway, Mr. Challies explained the responsibility of Ottawa and the Provinces to the project and defended this Province's purchases of powe from Quebec on the grounds that it was not likely that 'our power resources can last more than twenty to twenty-five years."

"We hear a lot of loose talk about our power resources," he declared, "but few of us realize how these resources are being exhausted."

He disagreed, he said, with any proposal 'to make power pay for the costs of navigation," and declared that "if it ever comes to an issue in Ontario, I, as the representative of a constituency that faces the St. Lawrence, will make it my first concern to see that power bears only its own cost of the whole works."

Mr. Challies reviewed also the history of representations between Canada and the United States on the international stretch of the waterway project, and, strongly advocating its completion, pointed out that "Toronto can be made as near to Liverpool as New York is to that English seaport."

Walter M. Lane was announced as the new President of the Toronto Branch of the society, and a prize shield for the highest membership was awarded the branch by Harvey E. Guilfoyle, Executive of the Dominion Society. Kris Mapp was Chairman.

WYATT-FOLKARD

A wedding ceremony of interest and charm was solemnized in the Presbyterian Manse, Vernon, on Wednesday April 6, at 3 p. m., when Violet Wyatt, only daughter of John A Wyatt, was united in marriage to Arthur Folkard, oldest son of Geo. Folkard. Rev. J. M. Kellock officiated.

The bridal party stood before a banking of ferns and lilies. The bride was attended by Miss Jean Wyatt as bridesmaid with Mr. Leslie Folkard as groomsman. The bride was lovely in a beige coloured dress of georgette and radium lace. Her hat, shoes and gloves were black. The bridesmaid was in a smartly designed dress of brown crepe. At the close of the ceremony the party went to the bride's home where a wedding supper was served, after which the young couple left on a motor trip.

In 1931 a total of 151 canning establishments in Canada canned or packed 5,960, 388 cases of vegetables, of which 2,045 858 were tomatoes; 1,356,879 were corn; 1.118, 790 peas and the remainder beans, asparagus, spinach, etc. The pack of fruits was 734 531 cases, the leeders being peas, peaches and raspberries.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

I am twenty-five cents,
I am not on speaking terms with the butcher,
I am too small to buy a quart of ice cream
I am not large enough to purchase a box of candy,
I cannot be exchanged for a gallon of gasoline,
I am too small to buy a ticket to a movie,
I am hardly fit for a tip. But—believe me,
When I go to church on Sunday I am considered SOME MONEY.

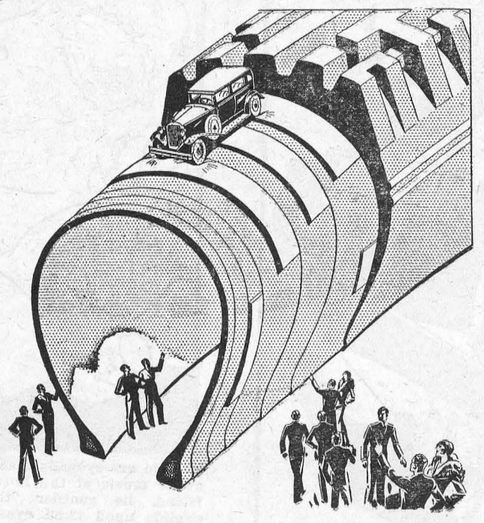
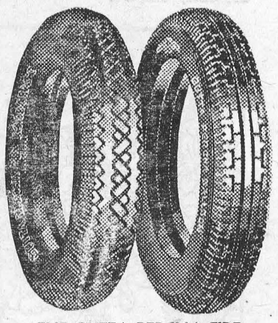
Cushions of GUM RUBBER



LOOK at the picture above. It is a view of a Gutta Percha Tire cut away to show you the Gum Cushions — broad pads of pure gum rubber built in between the layers of cord fabric. See the three of them under the tread where the tire gets the most bumps. See them in the sidewalls where they absorb the flexing strain and reinforce the bead. These Gum Cushions run the entire circumference of the tire—there are seven of them in each Gutta Percha and Roadcraft Tire, three at the tread and four in the walls. Only Gutta Percha Tires have this amazing feature — Gum Cushions — yet Gutta Percha Tires cost no more than you have been paying for ordinary tires. Extra value from the first day on—buy Gutta Percha Tires.



THE GUTTA PERCHA TIRE
In addition to Gum Cushions the Gutta Percha Tire shown above has the Resisto Tread, rubber impregnated cord fabric, reinforced side walls, extra tread width—all extra values.

THE ROADCRAFT
The Gutta Percha Roadcraft Tires have the exclusive Gum Cushion feature and the tough Resisto Tread, and are exceptional value at a lower price.

WINCHESTER SPRINGS M. I. L

The regular meeting of the Mutual Improvement League was held in the church hall on Wednesday evening. The President, Mrs. Joe Steele opened the meeting by use of hymn 220, "What a Fellowship." The Lord's Prayer was then repeated in unison Then a short address was given by Mr. Joe Webb which was greatly enjoyed. A duet was then sung by Mr. Morley Bailey and Mr. Cecil Casselman. This brought the devotional part to a close.

Those taking part in the Missionary program were Mr. Than Holmes, Mr. H Potter, Mrs. R. Alison and Mrs. C Thompson. Then the League was favored with a duet by Miss Mary Bailey and Mrs. O. Casselman. Rev. Mr. Morrison lead in prayer, and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

On Sunday, April 24th, the members of the Mutual Improvement League are taking charge of the evening service to be held in the United Church.

Rae, Winchester. Rev. A. E. Oliver officiated The bride, who was unattended, was lovely in a georgette gown of Skipper blue with hand made flowers in cream and wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley. For travelling, Mrs. Rae was attired in Independent blue crepe dress with coat to match trimmed with fox. She carried purse and gloves of neutral shade kid and wore hat of blue chip straw. Mr. and Mrs. Rae left by motor for Toronto and other parts. On their return they will reside in Winchester district,

HALLVILLE EUCHRE, DANCE

Under the convenorship of Mrs. J. A. Troy, a very successful euchre and dance was held in the community hall at Hallville when more than 200 persons were present.

Cards were played at 35 tables, and Mr. Ed. Bush was in charge of the progressive eucher. The prizes were won by Mrs. Lea Nue of Vernon and Mr. William Ellis of South Mountain.

Following the card game refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed Those in charge of the dance program were Mr. George Martin, Mr. John Mullen and Mr. William Wylie.

The guests were received by Mrs. J. A. Troy, assisted by the president, Mrs. H. Barry. An interesting feature of the evening was one of the guests playing at the head table who was in his 88th year. He was Mr. John Cooper and he enjoyed the party thoroughly.

WEATHER PROVERBS

Here are some reliable proverbs which foretell the kinds of seasons and crops we can expect, "Year of snow, fruit will grow." This proverb is scientifically sound, says Doctor Humphries, for when we have a cold winter with a blanket of snow continually covering the ground, there is no chance for unseasonable growth. On the other hand alternate cold and warm spells ruin crops which gives a scientific basis for, "If you see the grass in January, lock your grain in a granery." It is well known that a thunder storm in the early spring is usually followed by cold weather. This cold spell will prevent the buds from growing too early. This is why "Thunder in March betokens a fruitful year."

THE UNITED CHURCH

The book of Ruth and some lessons we may learn from it was the subject chosen by Rev. J A. Waddell for his Sunday morning service. He said this book is a memorable piece of literature emphasizing the superiority of character as exemplified in Boaz and Ruth. He showed that difficult experiences come to try us and make us stronger and to lead us to the unfailing Source of help Good works, he said, have a real place in the religious life. There is a very real connection between faith and works. Nothing is more beautiful than kindness. It brightens and sweetens the lives of others. This book also teaches the necessity of being steadily minded. There is no escape from personal decision. The pastor's wish was that we would reveal these noble characteristics in our lives.

The evening text was in Amos 4:12. The pastor spoke of Amos being a great prophet and a lover of nature. He said if the life is right there will be no fear of death. He referred to Edith Cavell in this respect. Speaking of the influence of good people in a town or community, reference was made to Sodom which God would not have destroyed had there been even ten righteous persons there. Before judging others we should look within, at our own heart, and see if the truth we hear is not meant for us, rather than for the other fellow. At the close of the morning service, Rev. J. A. Waddell intimated his early departure in acceptance of a call to Western United Church, Otawa. His many friends regret losing him from this Church and the community

IF I'DA

Sometimes I think how different I might be fixed today
If I'da done a lot of things in just the other way—
If I'da sold, a year ago, instead of buying more—
If I'da taken one sandwich instead of three or four—
If I'da parked six inches more beyond plug—
If I'da known the floor was waxed beneath that little rug—
If I'da quit before I played that last disastrous game—
If I'da burned that letter from—well, never mind her name—
If I'da purchased tax-free bonds like some smart people did—
If I'da thought I'd have to play that flukey "psychic" bid—
If I'da had that tooth fixed up before it got so tender—
If I'da sewed the button that fastens my suspender—
Oh, yes, I know my wayward past discloses lots of flaws,
But yet, perhaps I'm happier the way it is, because
If I'da done a lot of things in just the other way
I wouldn't have a single thing to cry about today.

"I got here just in time"

Tom Walker's wife was taken ill so suddenly that there was no time to take her in to town, so Tom hurried to the telephone and called the doctor.

The doctor was out on his calls, but Tom finally located him at a neighbor's on the next concession and he came right over.

"It's pleurisy", the doctor told Tom. "She'll be all right, but I got here just in time. It's lucky you have a telephone."

The Way of Life
By BRUCE BARTON

WE RICH

A young man, who is vice-president of a New York bank, told me that he dined recently at a fashionable resort.

"All the other guests were very rich," he said. "They were older people, many of them retired. They were shaking in their boots. They are afraid there will be a social upheaval and that their money will be taken away."

I told him I thought these people had a right to worry.

"The social order will not be over-turned," I said, "nor will people like your friends be stripped of their possessions. But I do believe that, when this depression is over, the rich will be poorer and the poor will have a degree of comfort and security that they have never possessed before. And this will be better for everybody."

In saying this, I am taking a position which is contrary to my own selfish interests, for, while I am not and never shall be rich, I have an income that is much above the average. If taxes are higher, mine will go up with the rest.

But shouldn't they? What have I done to deserve as much as I get out of life?

You may answer: "You have worked hard. You have been ambitious and intelligent. Any man who will apply himself in this country can do well."

This is not a complete answer. To be sure, I have worked. But where did I work the hardest? On a farm one summer (I still ache when I think about it). And in Montana in a construction camp. The hours, in each case, were more than twelve a day, and at night we were too weary for anything but bed.

On my farm my income was one dollar a day; in the construction camp it was sixty-five dollars a month.

If I have increased my income it is not because I have worked harder but because I happened to get out of these tough jobs into one that is much easier and much better paid.

If I have used intelligence, it is not greatly to my credit. I happened to have been born into a home of culture. I was sent to college, and my expenses were paid.

Many rich people, who are worried for fear they will have to bear a larger burden in the future, have had all these advantages, plus the added advantage of inherited wealth. When they grumble they give me a pain.

Surely, we who have had the best luck in this country are going to be wise enough to recognize it and to assume cheerfully our full share of the load.

Hints for the Home
by Nancy Hart

Grapefruit Salad Dressing

1 cup salad oil, 1/3 cup grapefruit juice, ¾ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ½ teaspoon sugar. Mix all ingredients and shake in a covered bottle until thick.

The taste and character of such flavorings as lemon, almond, orange, are accented and heightened when combined with a few drops of vanilla.

Frozen Custard

Four eggs, one pint of cream, one pint of milk, half pound of sugar, two ounces of chocolate. Put the milk over the fire in a double boiler; add the chocolate, grated. Beat the eggs and sugar together until light, add them to the hot milk, cook one minute, take from the fire, add the cream, and a teaspoon of vanilla. When cold, freeze. This makes a frozen custard.

Cranberry Juice Cocktail

3 cups water
1 cup cranberries
¾ cup sugar

Pick over and wash cranberries. Add water. Let cranberries cook until they burst, then strain. Next bring juice to boiling point, add sugar, and cook two minutes longer. Then chill and serve ice cold in beverage glasses.

Fig Pudding

Soak two and a quarter cups of breadcrumbs in a third of a cup of milk. Chop a cup of figs and a half cup of suet together, add three well beaten eggs, a cup of brown sugar and the softened breadcrumbs, with a half teaspoon of salt. Steam in a buttered mould for three and three-quarters hours. Serve with hard sauce, lemon sauce or egg sauce.

When You Ice Cake

To make a cake level on the top so that it is a perfect shape for icing, make a hole in the center of the cake about half an inch deep and two or three inches in diameter before it is cooked. When ready the top will be perfectly flat and level

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

PRACTICAL POINTERS

There are certain kinds of food that are considered absolutely necessary in maintaining health and strength within the human body; these should be well kept in mind, and never neglected. The humble egg rank among the first and most important.

The egg in itself, contains the necessary food-elements to set its own vitellus aflame with life, and nourish the embryo chick until it is able to walk, eat, and breathe for itself—a most wonderful process; I know of nothing in nature more interesting. Everything needed for the young bird is housed within the egg-shell, for the life-germ awakened by the gentle heat of the mother's body. And those needed things are elemental factors in the process of growth.

How valuable the egg as a food for humanity! An authority from which I derive much that is practical, states that every human being needs one or two eggs daily. The expectant mother certainly should have two eggs daily; even children should have one, at all ages younger than puberty.

I recall a visit from a famous Frenchman, a while after the big war; he ate six eggs at a meal, quite often, when he was in New York. And, why not? The egg is an essential food for muscle, nerve and brain. May I admit that, I myself, often eat three eggs, properly prepared—for breakfast.

Eggs and milk in daily ration. Add to these a full glass of orange juice—and you have a trio of values that can't be beat! But one devilled egg just at social dinners, or, one hard-boiled one with lettuce, isn't "eggs" at all. I mean two or three soft eggs daily.

One little orange on odd mornings—just as well do without. The same with starveling milk; three or four glasses of whole milk daily is what I mean.

How often a neighbor discovers something that "broke up" his cold in record time. He at once becomes a walking apostle of that remedy. Within a week, perhaps, a half-dozen of his acquaintances are taking the same thing. It matters not whether it is a nostrum or a regular prescription—it gets into promiscuous use very quickly.

Once I prescribed for an old man who had ulcer of the stomach; he told me two weeks later, that he had furnished at least four of his neighbors with that same prescription! It is a very pernicious, not to say dangerous thing, to recommend medicines for people who have not been duly examined by a competent physician,—although the motives are of a kind, helpful spirit.

You see, no two people are alike, even with the same disease. Two cases of influenza may demand entirely different remedies. What would be indicated for one, might be dangerous for another. No two hearts are exactly alike. The same medicine, if it's medicine at all, acts differently with different individuals; these are truths.

The custom of buying stock remedies for "colds" is one of the most reckless—especially those advertised to "cure a cold in one day." Anything that works that fast is most surely dangerous.

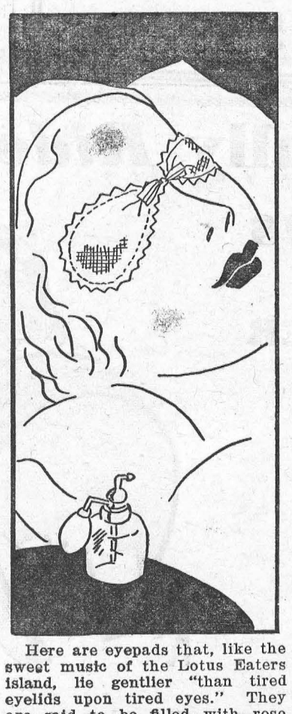
Just imagine a factory turning out suits of clothes—all the same size and length and color—and urging our people to buy them,—but it would not be dangerous like medicine.

The Spring's Newest Styles and Fashions

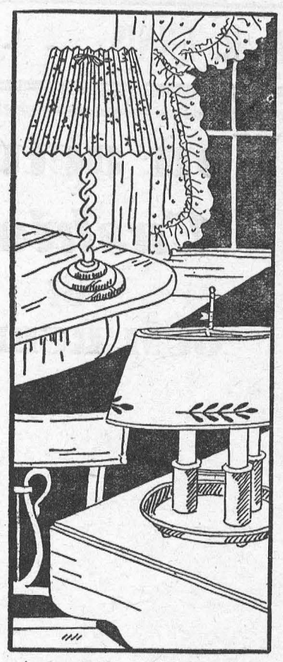
Italian pottery makers have given us housewives and homemakers a new plaything! It's as much fun as playing with blocks to arrange these little diamond shaped flower containers into various shapes. You can use one or a dozen and there are endless ways of placing them. Also, the pottery comes in various colors which can be used in the making up of container units. The pots come in various shapes as well as the diamond shape sketched.

Gray and black wool made into beret and scarf, short buttoned pigskin gloves in white, and black gilly walking shoes belong to the country suit of fine wool tweed. Hat and scarf are embroidered in basket design, the gloves are hand sewn and the gillys are punched and unlined.

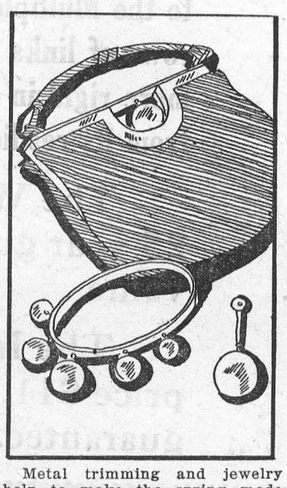
A knitted straw hat trimmed with a bit of a feather, and blue; a blue kid bag with unusual handle and catch in one; blue kid gloves and ties to match make a smart ensemble for spring. Worn with russet or green or yellow, blue accessories are very smart. The bag is stitched into squares with white. Gloves and shoes are also stitched.



Here are eyepads that, like the sweet music of the Lotus Eaters island, lie gentlier "than tired eyelids upon tired eyes." They are said to be filled with rose petals and sweet essences known to science which are brought out by dipping the pads into hot water. Another aid to weary eyes is the eye atomizer which can spray your favorite healing lotion in a soothing mist.



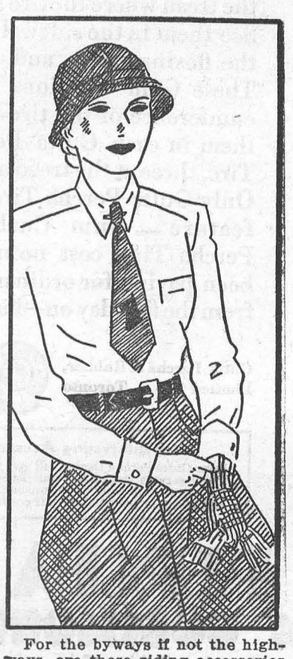
A spool lamp stick, a pleated chintz shade and a simple English cottage setting made a pleasant harmony of decoration. Rubbed wood and ruffly curtains are all "in the picture" with this type of lamp. If you are inclined to more formal interiors, the French tole lamp with its decorated parchment shade recalls the backgrounds of the early empire.



Metal trimming and jewelry help to make the spring mode bright. There are so many motifs it is easy to pick out an interesting ensemble. Sketched is a pouch bag with metal top and ball catch. With this, the bracelet, with its graduated balls, and an earring of the same pattern make attractive accessories.

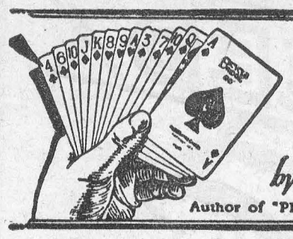
You can wear your bow at the front or back and be equally smart either way. The rough straw affair at the top of the picture is a glorified beret. It is black with white ribbon for trimming. The small cloche at the bottom of the picture places its bow at the side back. The hat is blue straw with band and bow of felt in matching color.

A jacket of printed silk is a smart way to brighten up your wardrobe, for prints are smartest when combined with plain materials. The jacket sketched ties on at the neckline and waist, giving it more the look of a blouse than jacket. Small cape and wide puffed sleeves are new details.



For the byways if not the highways, are these riding accessories which are smart for informal country wear. The hat is stitched and of wool fabric; shirt, broadcloth; tie, silk, embroidered; leather belt and knitted string gloves. You will feel very smart with these accessories and your nag will respect you.

Skyscraper vases are a new and charming idea for the home. There is much to be said in favor of this arrangement of high and low grouping of vases in one unit. The problem of short and long stems is solved at once and we have the charm of contrasting flower forms without loosing the effect of the single group.



How to play Bridge AUCTION and CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 17

The other night a friend of mine asked me: "What's the best way to learn how to play a good game of Auction or Contract?" and I replied: "Learn to profit by your mistakes." That's the secret of improvement and the only one that is of any value. No matter how much a teacher may tell you or how many books you read you will never improve your game unless you learn by your mistakes. Don't make the same mistake twice and you will soon become a fine player. The ones who make the same mistakes over and over again are the hopeless players. Don't be afraid to ask questions. If you do something wrong, ask some good player what you should have done. Write to the editor and, if your question is one of general interest, it will be published in these articles.

The following hands represent problems of bidding that have confused readers of these articles and are now given as a test of your knowledge of bidding. If your analyses agree with those given below, you are a pretty good bidder. If they do not, compare your analyses with the writer's and try to find out your mistakes.

Solutions to Last Week's Problems

Hand No. 1

Y
A B
Z

Hearts—A
Clubs—9, 7, 6, 5, 3, 2
Diamonds—A, 8, 7, 2
Spades—A, 2

No score, rubber game. What should Z, as dealer, bid with the foregoing hand?

Solution: At Auction with this hand Z should bid one club. The hand contains three aces and, therefore, proper values for a sound no trump; but the distribution is bad for that bid. The six-card club suit, even without top honors, offers the best attacking bid of the hand and so must be the best bid. The only other possible bid with this hand is one diamond an that is doubtful because of the shortness of the suit and its weakness in top honors.

At Contract, the hand should be passed, despite the three aces. Partner will try for game with a fair hand and the weakness in the club suit, if bid, may cause disaster. The penalties, when one is vulnerable, are too heavy to justify bidding this type of hand.

Hand No. 2

Hearts—J, 10, 8, 3, 2
Clubs—J, 7, 3
Diamonds——9,5
Spades—K, 6, 5

A B
Z

No score, first game. Z dealt, bid one no trump and A passed. What should Y now bid with the foregoing hand either at Auction or at Contract?

Solution: Y should pass either at Auction or at Contract. This hand is a fine example of the type of hand containing a five-card major suit that does not justify a take out.

Hand No. 3

Hearts—8, 2
Clubs—J, 9, 8, 2
Diamonds—10, 2
Spades—A, 7, 6, 5, 2

A B
Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no trump and A passed. What should Y now bid with the foregoing hand either at Auction or at Contract?

Solution: At Auction, Y should bid two spades. It is just over the requirements, as Hand No. 2 is slightly under them, to justify a take-out of partner's no trump. The fact that the hand contains two doubletons is really the deciding factor.

At Contract the hand should be passed. The hand does not justify any further bidding by partner, and he should not be encouraged to try for game by a two-spade bid.

Hand No. 4

Hearts—A, [illegible], Q, 4
Clubs—J, 10, 9, 4, 3, 2
Diamonds—7
Spades—A, 4

A B
Z

Hearts—10, 9, 5, 2
Clubs—A, K, Q, 7
Diamonds—9, 6, 3
Spades—Q, 6

No score, rubber game. Clubs are trumps and Z is playing the hand. A opens the king of diamonds and all follow suit. He then leads the trey of spades. How should Z play the hand so that he can make game no matter how the remaining cards are distributed?

Solution: This hand is a problem in "stripping," that is, taking out all suits except two and then throwing opponents in the lead. When this has been done, one opponent is forced to lead the remaining plain suit to his disadvantage or one of the two missing plain suits and thus allow one hand to trump and the other to discard. At trick No. 2 Z should win the trick in Y's hand with the ace of spades and lead a low club, winning in his own hand with the queen. Z should then lead the six of diamonds and trump in Y's hand with the ten of clubs. Y should then lead a low club and win in Z's hand with the king. The lead of Z's last diamond should be trumped in Y's hand with the nine of clubs. The lead of the ace king of hearts to determine the distribution of that suit should now be made, followed by a low club, which Z will win with the ace. The cards now held by Z and Y are as follows:

Hearts—Q, 4
Clubs—J
Diamonds—none
Spades—4

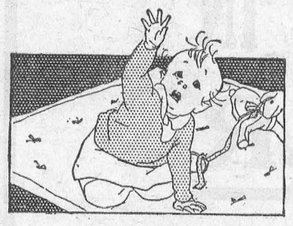
A. B
Z

Hearts—10, 9
Clubs—7
Diamonds—none
Spades—Q

Z should now lead the queen of spades. This trick must be won by A or B depending on the location of the king. Suppose A wins the trick. If he leads a heart, Z can let the heart run up to his nine spot, if A has shown up with four hearts. If neither A nor B hos four hearts, they must drop. If A leads a diamond or a spade, Z can trump in one hand and discard a heart in the other.

Suppose B wins the trick with the king of spades. He also must lead a heart and, if he originally held four hearts, Z must win two heart tricks. If B leads a diamond or spade, he gives Z a discard of a heart in one hand and a trump in the other. Therefore, Y Z must make game in clubs for it has been shown that A B can only win one diamond and one spade trick, irrespective of the distribution of the remaining cards.



BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause

When your baby fusses, tosses and seems unable to sleep restfully, look for one common cause, doctors say. Constipation. To get rid quickly of the accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It is so mild and gentle you can give it to a young infant to relieve colic. Yet it is as effective for older children. Castoria's regulative help will bring relaxed comfort and restful sleep to your baby. Keep a bottle on hand. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Ice Dikes Proposed To Reclaim Isles

Engineer Claims Cost and Time Reduced by Freezing Method

Berlin—A scheme for constructing dams, breakwaters, levees and dikes with ice, at a fraction of the usual building cost and in much shorter time, has been advanced by Dr. A. Gerke, engineer, of Waldenburg, Silesia. He says his method also offers greater possibilities for quick temporary repairs of present structures.

Dr. Gerke's scheme is simple. He would run a network of ammonia pipes across the stream, or into the water which he wished to divert, and fill them with a freezing mixture, forming an ice block of the required dimensions and form. The method is not altogether new. It has been used in mining in various forms for sixty years, being applied to shut off flooded veins, or to close crevices, which could then be bored through to reach the pay-dirt otherwise shut off by water.

But Dr. Gerke proposes much wider possibilities. By use of a series of his ammonia-pipe networks he believes it would be possible to strengthen weak points along the levees of a river during high water, on short notice. Sea dikes and breakwaters could be frozen at strategic points at little cost, while the series of small islands on Germany's north coast could be joined and thousands of acres of land behind the new ice walls could be reclaimed, he declares.

Finally, Dr. Gerke believes his scheme would be much more practicable for construction of floating islands in the sea for trans-Atlantic airplane hangers, than the America proposal for steel islands. He especially emphasized the cheapness and quickness of repairing an ice dam as compared to steel, cement or stone structure.

"It's the little things that count."

"Right you are; a small ace will take a big fat king."

Calcium Cyanide for Groundhogs

The Groundhog is an expensive pest, causing considerable damage to meadow land and grain fields. A teaspoonful of Calcium Cyanide placed well down in a Groundhog hole, will generate a deadly gas, that puts any Groundhogs that are within reach to sleep forever. After the Calcium Cyanide is placed in the hole, the upper end is plugged with sod and soil to keep the gas in, and to keep other animals out. All the Groundhog holes in the district should be treated, as these animals migrate from place to place, digging new hole where ever their fancy takes them. Every Groundhog hole means an unsightly hole in the meadow, with stones and sub soil thrown up in such a way as to cause damage to implements during haying and harvest. Give them their dose of Calcium Cyanide in early May, when the holes are easy to find, and the new crop of Groundhogs is not yet in sight.

Women of Russia recently celebrated an international woman's day for a couple of hours, after which they went back to clean out the stable and guide the plow.

Bad Attacks of Flu

E. M. Ward Finds Wonderful Pick-Me-Up in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Brings Wonderful Vitality.

"I have had attacks of the 'flu' frequently since 1919, and sometimes very bad attacks, but always when on the road to recovery I take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I find them a wonderful pick-me-up."

So writes E. M. Ward, Saskatoon, Sask., who further states: "I would recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from that rundown, listless feeling. I have taken the Pills on many occasions, and they seem to tone up my blood wonderfully. I have been anaemic for years, and find that, when I get rundown, after taking several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the color comes back to my cheeks and I have wonderful vitality."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills rebuild health by creating new blood and increasing the red blood cells which restore the wasted tissues and revitalize the exhausted system. They remove the cause of rundown or nervous conditions. Try them. At your druggist's, 50c a package. 271

Youthful China Refuses Shackles

By Hou Tchou, in La Nouvelle Revue Francaise, Paris.

"To have in youth the maturity of age," is a saying in China. Youth is the springtime of life, and in the organization of social life, the young are like a contingent of new cells that will renew the worn-out tissues. Let us then be young, with out the errors of youth, and the better to be the germs of life, let us observe the following rules:

1. Be free men, not slaves. Ours is the age of civil, religious and financial freedom. Women have freed themselves from the yoke of men. Human dignity demands that we be free.

2. Be men of progress. Not to advance is but to recede, is an ancient proverb. We Chinese are awaking after twenty centuries of lethargy. We dare not rest any longer on our ancient prestige.

3. Let us become brethren in the great fraternity of man. Formerly the prosperity of nations depended solely on their own internal organization. Today it depends only partly on that, and on its external relations for the other part.

4. Let us have actions, not words. Life, that is the most sacred of all things. To live indeed—that is the great problem of man. Let us realize that even though many of our laws and morals have descended to us from our ancestors. If they are no longer of any practical use, they are valueless, and ought to be done away with.

On the twenty-fourth day of November, I received a telegram at Pekin announcing the death of my mother. To save time I had the funeral notices printed in the city, and left the next day for home.

In these notices I omitted all the usual expressions, as: "for the punishment of my sins," etc., with which mourning relatives ordinarily announced the death of a relative. Nor did I say that I "was weeping tears of blood," and "my heart was bowed with grief." If those things were not true, why should I say them? In short, simple words I sent the word to my friends and acquaintances. I added, in defiance of all custom, that the family would not receive gifts of paper money to be burned for the use of the dead.

It goes without saying that I did not invite any of the magicians. Nor would I have anything to do with the manufacturers of paper and wooden images of horses and men that are so frequently used at funerals in my country. Even in the outward expressions of sorrow, I dared supress everything false and foolish. I paid for no special mourners, either men or women. We of the family wept naturally, as is becoming and right. Nor would I have any of the long funeral services. To be perfectly orthodox, a service of this kind should last at least two or three hours. Sometimes it took two hours to read the genealogical tree alone, and for this the priest was given a piece of white linen and a meal To all objections I replied that it was all untrue and a sham, and I would not have it at my mother's grave.

In the matter of mourning, too, I ran counter to all custom. It happened that the next summer was a very hot one. I could not bear the weight of my wide linen robes. I was bathed in perspiration the whole time. Finally I bought for myself a light silk suit, and laid aside my mourning. When they asked me what rites I followed, I replied that I was following the oldest rites in Chinese history for, indeed, it is written in the "mutations" that there shall be no fixed period of mourning. The truth is, these old customs of life do not fit in with those of modern life.

Let us tell you of another of our old customs that is not only foolish, but terribly cruel.

"Papa, papa, I am dying of hunger. It is four days since you gave me anything to eat. Surely you do not really mean to let me die." Thus wept and pleaded a young girl of fourteen from behind a hermitically sealed door, while out in the corridor her father kept guard over the hapless prisoner. Occasionally wearied with her cries, he rose and approached the door and replied: "Hush, child, do not act so wildly. When the news of the death of your fiance came, did I not take a vow that you would follow him to his grave, and thus prove yourself the model wife, whom all coming generations may look up to and revere. Hanging, poison, or other means of suicide are methods of which at your age you are not capable, therefore I have determined that you shall simply die of hunger. It is the most glorious thing in all the world. Our ancestors will be honored, and we, your family, will become famous. Yet, when I show you this pathway to glory, you reproach me. Is not that very unreasonable?"

The days wore on and her piteous pleading brought a plea for mercy from her mother. "For six days she has eaten nothing. I beg of you, add but a little opium to a few drops of wine, and let her die in peace."

"Impossible woman! I have notified the mandarin that my daughter is committing suicide, and when she is breathing her last, he will come to bless her. If he should detect the opium upon her breath, all my work would be undone."

And thus the child was allowed to die. The mandarin came at the last moment, and blessed her, and while he was regaled with a feast in a nearby room, she breathed her last. Her mother died of grief the same day.

This thing has been done so often in China, but it must die out. We of young China must see to it that the honor of our nation is no longer besmirched with such horrors.

All over the world the question of women's freedom is engrossing the thoughts of men. Yet we must hasten slowly. Every reaction effervesces in the beginning, but later it settles in reality. In my country the need for change is great. The following are a few of the changes we must make at all cost:

1. All schools, primary, sacondary, and university should be as free to women as to men.

2. In marriage, woman should be free to choose the man she loves.

3. There should be complete liberty in the choice of a career.

4. In finances, the right of personal property should be the same for a woman as for a man.

A brief glance at some of our special professions may prove of interest.

Our clockmakers first of all repair clocks and watches. In late years they have added the repair of pianos, phonographs, spectacles and firearms. They receive two meals a day, and work from 7 a.m. till 4 p.m. Since their work is tiring to the eyes they may stop at intervals for a smoke or a short rest. Besides their food, they receive from 5 to 15 dollars per month.

Our decorators make paper shrouds for the dead or crowns or decorations for the living. There is an apprenticeship of three years, in which there is food but no money. If the apprentice is clever, and employed on any special task, half the money he earns goes to him, and the other half to his master.

The engravers are a very special class, and are not allowed to cry their wares on the street, for that would demean the profession. They receive as part pay two meals a day, one of which must include wheat and the other rice. The apprenticeship is three years.

The masons include a great variety of professions. They have one great feast a year, in which they pay their respects to their patron, Lou-Pan. A mason is not allowed to work except under the laws of his own corporation, and if he dies penniless, he is buried at public expense.

Besides these, we have our jinriksha drivers, our water-bearers. Winter and summer our vendors of hot tea are on the streets. China is peculiar, but it is my country, and dear to my heart.

Feverish?

"My baby's cheeks and hands were so hot," writes Mrs. Bernard Breen, Enterprise, Ont., "I was frightened. I gave him a Baby's Own Tablet at noon and by after supper he was all better." Effective for colds, colic, teething. Absolutely safe. See certificate in each 25c package. 236

Flies and More Flies

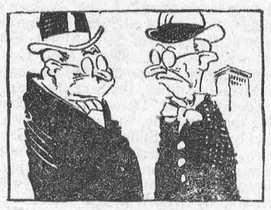
Flies breed in places that are favorable to them. The greater the quantity of manure and filth about the premises, the greater the number of flies. Material that will supply heat and moisture for fly egg hatching and food for the young maggots, is an essential link in fly production. Remove the manure from the stables and yards as soon as possible and stack if possible at considerable distance from the buildings and pasture field, A few ounces of borax may be scattered through the manure each day, as a preventative to the development of the fly larvae.

The following is recommended as a very good fly spray,—Four quarts of coal tar dip, four quarts of fish oil, three quarts of coal oil, three quarts of whale oil, one and half quarts of oil of tar, three pounds of laundry soap.

To prepare, dissolve the soap in warm water, add the other material and mix thoroughly, then add enough water to make up to 30 gallons.

Spray the cows twice a day, once in the morning after milking, and milk has been removed from the barn, and once in the early evening.

The above quantities will be enough for a herd of 40 cows for one month.



Optimist—"The things we fear most never happen."

Pessimist—"Yes, but we generally get something just as bad."

Quit Yer Kickin'

Stop yer kickin' 'bout the times,
Get a hustle on you,
Skirmish 'round and grab the dimes
If the dollars shun you;
Croakin' never bought a dress
Growlin' isn't in it,
Fix yer peepers on success,
Then go in and win it;
Times is gettin' good again,
Try to help them all you kin.

Stop yer kickin', get a hold
Of the wheel and turn it,
You can never handle gold
'Less you try to earn it;
Brush the cobwebs from yer eyes,
Stop yer dern repinin',
And you'll notice that yer skies
Allus'll be shinin';
If you hain't the nerve to try,
Sneak away somewhere and die.

Apparently no girl of to-day plans to remain married long enough to "get into a rut," or let any man become a positive habit with her.

Clarence — "They've lovely mushrooms in this hotel. What do you say we get some?"

Agnes May—"Don't bother. We can use the parlor when we get home."

Too many people think themselves broad-minded when they are merely too lazy to form an opinion. No one loves a quitter, but the acquitters seem to be fairly popular. Much may be forgiven the man who pays his bills. A movie star was married the other night for only the second time. A man is not necessarily in love when he tumbles for a girl, but when he falls so hard he can't stop going, that's the test.

Hungarian Vinters Feed Wine to Country Pigs

Budapest.—Nothing speaks more eloquently of the hard fate that has this year befallen the Hungarian wine industry than the fact that in several parts of the country pigs are being fed on wine of good quality. It is reparted that his improves the appetite of pigs and the vineyard owners prefer to give their stocks of wine to the porkers rather than sell it at the ridiculous price of ¾ cent a liter. They hope to recover the expense of tilling their vineyards from pork and bacon. The vineyard owner to make a profit must obtain at least 20 cents a liter for his wine.

Of the eight million inhabitants of Hungary, at least 600,000 are vineyard owners, and this hitherto prosperous class is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Seal Fishing Excellent on Lower St. Lawrence

Quebec.—Reports received by the Department of Colonization, Game and Fisheries from the lower St. Lawrence on the north shore, show that the seal fishing for December and January has been exceedingly good, between eight and ten thousand seals have been caught by the fishermen considerably greater than the catch for the same months a year ago.

ACID STOMACH

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. Harmless, and tasteless, and yet its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, once you learn how quickly this method acts. Be sure to get the genuine.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth paste that safeguards against acid mouth. (Made in Canada.)

ENJOYABLE EVENING

The Progressive Euchre and Smoker held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of Winchester Branch of the Canadian Legion, proved to be a very enjoyable event. The attendance was not as la ge as it would have been, had the weather been more favourable, but there were thirteen tables in operation, and a great deal of pleasure accompanied the games. First prize was won by Mr. Douglas Gemeroy and second prize by Mr. Russell Crowder. It is the earnest wish of all who were present on this occasion that the Legion will hold another similar event in the near future.

50th ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John Scott, of Winchester, were pleasantly surprised on Monday, April 4th, when their family and friends gathered at their home to congratulate them and extend to them their best wishes, the occasion being their fiftieth anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott were married at Berwick where they resided until twenty-seven years ago, when they moved to Melvin Settlement and about sev n years ago moved to Winchesser. There has been many changes since they were bride and groom fifty years ago. They are enjoying good health. After a sumptuous dinner enjoyed by all and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Scott many more years of happy wedded life all departed to their homes.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. Edgar Merkley of Cass Bridge, accompanied by threee others, had been on a visit to his brother, Mr. Wm. Merkley, just west of Iroquois on Sunday last. He was on what is known as the old, or lower road, and to get to the highway there is a somewhat steep incline. He had just turned onto the highway when a big car, coming east, containing five persons, crashed into him, and the two cars were thrown against the guard fence. The impact smashed four posts and broke the cable, and it was only a miracle that both cars were not precipitated into the canal. None of the occupants were very seriously injured. Any who were injured were looked after by the doctor at Iroquois. Mr. Merkley had his two sisters with him at the time. He is now home and about as usual, but had a very narrow escape.

SAD ACCIDENT—YOUNG MAN LOSES LIFE

A very sad accident occurred on Sunday last when a young man named Gordon Billings, Mountain Township, lost his life. He and his brother, Albert, and another young man named Delbert Woods, started out in a buggy for a swale back of what is known as the Walker farm, about five miles north west of Winchester Gordon had a shot gun between his legs, with the muzzle pressing against his abdomen. It is said that as he reached pick up the whip, his clothes caught the trigger of the gun that was loaded with shot, and he received the full charge, it making a terrible wound. His companion quickly rushed him to where medical assistance could be had. Dr. McLaughlin was summoned but the young man lived only a short time. He was a half brother of Sam and Joe Billings, Winchester, and the funeral took place from the home of the latter on Tuesday morning, the service being held in the United Church by Rev. Mr. Waddell. No inquest will be held.

GOOD OLD DAYS

Brandon Sun: In "the good old days" that too many love to talk about, grandfather walked behind a plow, grandmother sprained her back over a washtub, a visit to town came about once a month, homes were dimly lighted by smoky kerosene lamps, mail was secured not oftener than once a week, neighbors were seen only on Sundays, then only if you went to church, a telegram sent everybody in the house to trembling, the only music was pumped out of a melodeon or listened to when the Swiss bellringers came to town, farm wives went insane because of loniiness, a trip of twenty miles was an excursion, to be taken to a hospital was a disgrace, neighborhood, neighborhood epidemics had to run their course, boys and girls had to drink copious draughts of sassafras tea every spring to thin their blood, boys had to wear their fathers' cutdown pants, and calico dresses were handed down the female line. And so on and so forth

Now we have the telephone, the radio, daily mail delivery, automobiles, tractors, combines, riding plows, electric light and power, bathrooms, movies, airplanes, television, daily newspapers, good and bad magazines, equal suffrage, prohibition, gangsters, paved highways, tariffs, crooners, columnists, crossword puzzles, cutout pictures, and so on and so forth.

ST. PAUL'S W. M. S.

The April meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Church was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Edgerton, where the president, Mrs. Geo. Wilson, presided. Reports were presented by Mrs. R. Empey, the Secretary, and Mrs. Edgerton, the Treasurer. In conducting the devotions, the president was assisted by Mrs. A. Suffell and Mrs. Geo. Colburn. Mrs. Edgerton and her group had charge of the program. An enjoyable vocal solo "What a Saviour," was contributed by Mrs. Walter Moffatt, accompanied by Miss Mary Empey. The Home Helpers report was given by Mrs. Coburn and Mrs. Kinkaid and the Envelope System introduced in place of the mite box Final arrangements for the Brockville Presbyterial were made, to be held in St. Paul's Church on May 11th. An inspiring Bible Reading was given by Mrs. Edgerton on "The Life of Jesus." Japan and Korea was the Mission Study given by Mrs. W D. Turner, who referred much to the work and life of the late Dr. Caroline McDonald. The members listened with a great deal of interest to Mrs. Turner's address. The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Wm. Johnson and the hostess entertained with refreshments.

THE NATION FLOOD

Not in years has the Nation River been in flood to a greater extent than this Spring. While there is no ice to block the passage of the water the late rains have so flooded the river that at Cass Bridge the flood extends miles to the South and East. The old road is covered, homes and barns surrounded by water, and the latter reached by boats so that the cattle may be fed. While the flood had at one place come across the new high way below the new bridge and Winchester Springs, no great damage has been done and cars are able to travel through. The view of the flooded district from the cement bridge is a very interesting one, for, as far as the eye can reach in one direction the earth is covered by the flood water, and trees and barns stand out in their lonesomeness and isolation. Up in Matilda the flood covers many acres, but so far as the Press can learn no serious damage has resulted. Unless there comes more rain the flood will rapidly subside.

Owing to the prompt and effective work of Mr. Joe Robinson, the road supt., and his assistants, in protecting a portion of the new road south of the bridge against the flood, thousands of dollars were undoubtedly saved the government, for had that road once started to wear away, it would have made sad havoc of a couple of miles of it. It was a case where prompt action was necessary, and Mr. Robinson and his assistants, in long rubber boots, waded in and did the trick.

KINDLY WORDS

A former Winchester Clergyman, now living in the West, in renewing his subscription to the P ess for 1932, writes, "Your editorials have helped me a great deal, and I have used and re-used many of them in my work, and the people have appreciated them very much." Those are very kindly words and we are just human enough to appreciate them, particularly knowing their source. It never hurts to speak kindly of even a feeble effort in a right direction.

BROUSE-DEEKS

At the United Church parsonage, Morrisburg, on Tuesday, April 5th, at 7.30 p. m., the marriage took place of Miss Eleanor F. Deeks, daughter of Deputy-Reeve Alfred Deeks and Mrs. Deeks, of river front east Matilda, and Jacob C. (Mack) Brouse, of Iroquois. The Rev. Dr. Donald McRae officiated.

The bride, looking very pretty, was gowned in black chiffon velvet, ermine trimmed, and with hat to match. She was attended by Mrs. M. H. Tousaw, of Iroquois, while Mr. Tousaw supported the groom.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Brouse left on a trip to Toronto, and on their return will reside in Iroquois.

HE WAS UP TO DATE

Two parsons, so the story goes, attending a conference, had beds in the same room One was a young man; the other was old. They began their devotions simultaneously, but the older man was off his knees and into bed in a twinkling. The younger man's prayer was long. When he rose, he felt called on to chide the older man for the brevity of his prayer. The old man's reply was both blunt and rebuking—"I keep prayed up, young man. I keep prayed up!"

There's a point in this story for those who employ advertising to sell their goods and service. It is, Keep continual contact, by the agency of published advertising, with those from whom you want business.

The registration of automobiles in Canada for 1931 shows that there were not as many in use as in 1930. The registration according to the Provinces was as follows:

	1930	1931
Alberta	100 695	93,816
British Columbia	97,586	96,498
Manitoba	78,330	74 670
New Brunswick	34 517	33 374
Nova Scotia	42,567	43,192
Ontario	558,734	553,960
Prince Edward Island	7 350	7,719
Quebec	176 165	175 167
Saskatchewan	126 899	106,900

What the registration for 1932 will be remains to be seen. The car is both a necessity and a luxury, and it is difficult to give up something of this nature. The people will not until they are obliged.
