Isn't she adorable?
Laurie McKeeman, 29, of Kemptville, delivered the region's first baby of 1995 on Monday morning at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital. The baby girl, who the parents still must name, weighed eight pounds, seven and a half ounces at the time of her birth.

First baby born, 9:57 a.m. Jan. 2

WINCHESTER—The first baby born at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital in 1995 still doesn't have a name at this point.

It could be Kya or Brenna, her mother Laurie McKeeman hasn't decided.

"I first wanted to see her before picking it out," she said, beaming with pride as she played with her baby's tiny pink fingers. "I wanted a unique name."

The 29-year-old Kemptville-area mother was still obviously exhausted Monday afternoon after going through her first delivery only hours before. Nevertheless, she seemed alert and calm, quietly lying in bed, sheltering her newest family member in the cradle of her arms.

Compared to other horror stories she'd heard, McKeeman said the delivery went quickly for a first time — although it was the most pain she'd ever experienced.

"It was hard at the end. I'm tired. But I think it went pretty good though."

McKeeman went into labor in the middle of the night on January 1st. She and her husband David rushed to Winchester after figuring out what was going on, arriving at the hospital around 2:30 a.m.

A new baby girl, weighing in at eight pounds, seven-and-a-half ounces, was delivered by Dr. Marilyn Crabtree the next morning at 9:57 a.m.

"My husband's tall: that's probably why she's so big," McKeeman said, pulling down on the baby's purple jump suit and white frilly blouse, borrowed from the hospital.

The couple had been preparing for this special moment for quite some time.

Married for six years already, they moved to the area in July, after David had been transferred to Kemptville from his job at the Saan Department Store in Orillia. The move was a home-coming of sorts; Laurie grew up in Athens, the couple had extended family members in the Midland area. The McKeemans expect plenty of company over the next few weeks.

"I'm sure they'll be lots of the family coming to see her," Laurie said.

The new mother said she didn't care if the new baby was a boy or a girl, "as long as it was healthy." She sort of expected it to be a girl, however, because that's what her friends kept telling her.

"It's that old wives tale, about the way it is carried."

Although it's hard to say at this point, McKeeman figures the newest family member looks more like her father. The baby hasn't opened her eyes much, so the mother hasn't been able to make out the color of her eyes.

In terms of future ambitions for her new daughter, Laurie said she has none specifically:

"Just to be happy," she said, stroking her baby's thick patch of dark black hair.

"She sure is precious."

20th Anniversary

Matilda Carnival ready to roll

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MATILDA—Believe it or not, but some people are actually praying for snow and colder weather.

They're the organizers of this year's Matilda Winter Carnival. If the region doesn't get some more traditional weather soon, several of the planned outdoor activities could bomb.

"We need some snow for the snowmobilers and for the ice to freeze for skating," said Cindy Peters, head of the Matilda Recreation Committee.

This being the 20th Anniversary of the annual week-long winter carnival, organizers have several special events planned. As usual, the Carnival kicks off with the annual Carnival Queen pageant, held this year at the Matilda Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m. on January 7.

After the traditional pancake brunch the next morning (from 10 a.m. - 1 p.m.), organizers plan to bring back the "Woodsmen's Competition," an annual tradition until just a few years back.

"We're trying to bring back for the 20th anniversary some of the older events that have been here and gone," Peters explained. "This was a popular event when we were all kids."

Among the events planned will be a cross-cutting sawing competition, as well as nail hammering and pole throwing. There also will be sleigh rides, games and skating for the kids, if the weather cooperates. The fun begins at 1:30 p.m. in Brinston Park.

On Monday, organizers have planned Country Entertainment, featuring both Line and Square Dancing. The fun begins at 7:30 p.m. at Matilda Hall. Tuesday's main feature is the Annual Talent Night, with prizes available for the winners. Unlike in past years, the singers, dancers and other entertainers must earn their prizes based on an assessment from three judges.

"It was getting to be pretty expensive," Peters said, explaining the change in policy from the days of giving prizes to all who participated. As usual, anyone can enter. Doors open at Matilda Hall at 7 p.m.

Wednesday afternoon will be the annual Social, with a fashion show the featured attraction this year, (with clothes provided by the Fashion Network). As with most events, admission is free, with donations to the recreation committee eagerly welcomed.

The big Bingo tournament this year is on Thursday, with doors opening at the Matilda Hall at 6 p.m. The grand prize is $1,000.

J. & F. Disco from Winchester will provide the entertainment for both the preteen and teen dances on Friday (from 6:30-8:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. - 12 p.m at the Matilda Hall). Admission is $2 for preteens, $3 for teens.

The big Snowmobile Rally is on Saturday, January 14, if there's any snow. Registration for the main feature takes place from 11 a.m.-1 p.m., with a buffet supper of ham, baked beans and potatoes following from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Featured entertainers include Mary Perry playing old country favorites in the early afternoon, then Grenville County Country and Bob Sprague after dinner (from 6:30-8:30). A dance featuring new country performers, "Leaving Kentucky" culminates the evening, (from 9 p.m.-1 p.m. at the Matilda Hall).

Tickets for the day's activities can be bought in a $12 package, or separately at $3 for the rally, $7 for the dinner and $5 for the dance.

For those with some energy left on Sunday, the recreation committee have organized the traditional sleigh ride afternoon at Ronnie Smail's house (from 1:30 p.m.-3:30 p.m.), There will be a $1 charge for the afternoon weiner roast.

To wrap up the week's activities, there will be the traditional Hymn Sing at the Hall that night, followed by the Ecumenical (non-denominational) Religious Service.

Besides the traditional events, the recreation committee will be selling 20th Anniversary sweat-shirts featuring the new carnival logo designed by Steve Laporte. The new mascot also should be ready on the scene sometime during the week. Designed by Seaway student Jaime Baldwin, it's described as a snowman with "three very large balls."

Another new feature is a Carnival button, which soon should be selling at all local stores for $2. Designed by registered nurse Jane Sachs, each will have its own individual number, making the person wearing it eligible for prizes during all the draws held that week. The button also will provide the person wearing it with a $1 discount at all the events requiring an admission during the week.

"It'll work much the same way as the Riverfest buttons in Brockville," Peters said, explaining where the recreation committee got the idea.

Two deaths in the area over holidays

MORRISBURG—The holiday season was a tragic one for the families and friends of two area men who died in two separate incidents last week.

Early Sunday morning, Kevin Cook, 19 of Brinston, was killed following a snowmobile accident just west of Hainsville.

At 2:30 a.m. Cook was snowmobiling in the area when the machine crashed into a fence and rolled over several times.

He was pronounced dead at the scene, which was in a field north of the Levere Road.

Last Friday night, Burton Webb, 54 of Morrisburg, was found dead in his automobile at 10:20 p.m.

Sargent Brehmer of the Morrisburg OPP detachment stated that no cause of death could be determined at the time, and they are waiting for results of the postmortem. The car was not running when Webb was found, and police say foul play is not suspected.

Community comes together

Outdoor rink almost ready

LAURIE DAY
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—With the help of about 30 pairs of hands, the boards went up at the site of the outdoor rink here Saturday.

"All we're waiting for now is snow," said the man with the plan to build this outdoor rink, Dave Tait. "As soon as we get a layer of snow, we can flood it."

And snow is what they got, about three inches of the white stuff over the New Year's holiday.

The Morrisburg Fire Department volunteered their pumper and Monday night, the first flood took place.

They hoped to flood every night this week and by the weekend, if the weather stays cold enough, it should be ready to skate on.

Last Wednesday, Tait, and helpers Barry VanAllen, Craig Cullen, Leo Lafortune, and Ken McPherson were on site in the rain for over nine hours as they put the posts in the ground for the 60'x100' skating area.

"That was the hardest part of the whole thing," said Tait. "We hit the old foundation from the houses that were here before the Seaway went through. We had to go through all that old cement."

But they got their posts in, and were ready for the boards on Saturday.

The members of the Lions Club were out in full force, as were a handful of Legion members and other hands of the community.

"We've had tremendous amounts of help," noted Tait. "But I'm not really surprised about that because this town is really good for doing things for the good of the community"

"But if it weren't for the Lions Club, this project wouldn't have gotten off the ground," he added. They have been a great help."

"I think the outdoor rink is a great idea," said Jack Barkley, Lions Club president. "The fact that Dave wanted to take the initiative and build this project shows great determination on his part, and great community effort."

"I think a lot of kids will use it, and it may even bring the community closer together," he added.

The Lions Club and Legion both donated $500 for the purchase of the boards and posts, which they purchased for rock-bottom prices from Black Lumber.

"Black's slashed their prices for us so we could get what we needed from them with the amount of money we had donated from the local businesses and individuals," said Tait. "It's been a real community effort."

So much so, that the boys on site wouldn't let Tait do to much of the manual labor on Saturday. "I'm just kind of standing around today," he laughed.

As soon as the rink is ready to skate on, Tait says he wants to make up a schedule of some sort so the people who will be using it will be able to do so without any problems.

"There is no charge to use the facility, but I'd like to get some kind of order made so people who want to skate can do so at certain times, and those who want to play hockey can use it too."

"I just hope that people will respect what we've done to bring this rink to the area. And people who will be using it will do so at their own risk."

"Eventually, we'd like to pave it and use it year-round," he added. "I think it will be great for the community and for those who can't afford to play hockey or skate here in Morrisburg, I hope they will come out and enjoy the outdoor rink."

A helping hand
Lions Club member Roy Gummeson (left) and president Jack Barkley (right) help to put hinges on the door at the outdoor rink Saturday. With the help of numerous community members, and spearheaded by David Tait, the p... was erected within the week, and presently, it's in the process of being flooded for use, hopefully, by this week...

OETIO taken over by International Branch

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—The Operating Engineers Training Institute of Ontario could be back in business within the next few weeks.

At least that's the latest rumors concerning the future of the Morrisburg-based training centre, following news of the International Union of Operating Engineer's takeover of Local 793, which controls the OETIO.

For now at least, neither the new leadership controlling Local 793, nor the union's representatives in Morrisburg, are prepared to affix a precise return date for those laid off. But sources close to the union leadership believe a scaled-down operation might be up and running as early as mid-January.

"When I have something that's not hearsay, or gossip, I'll let you know," said OETIO Supervisor of Training Kingsley Cole, in a recent telephone interview.

Last week, the American-based IUOE seized control of Local 793, after it became clear the "very survival of the local as a functioning entity" was at stake. In a letter sent to 8,000 heavy equipment operators within the union ranks, international president Frank Hanley said internal pressure by some local executive board members, combined with the union's deteriorating financial position, compelled head office to intervene.

"It is clear that the normal processes of union government have proven inadequate to address the difficult situation the local faces," Hanley said in a letter reprinted in the Toronto Star. "Failure to act immediately will result in further breakdowns in the local's democratic procedures — with resulting irreparable harm to the membership."

For three days prior to the IUOE seizure, protesters had picketed the local's office in East York demanding the resignation of the 12-member local executive. President Jim Anderson did resign, but business manager Richard Kennedy and some of the other executives have retained their positions as business agents who service and negotiate contracts, despite losing their positions on the board of directors. Edgar Doull, the union's Canadian director, and an unidentified senior executive have taken over management of the local until the union holds both a new election, and a series of meetings to determine if there are grounds for continuing of trusteeship.

What the union's political maneuvering will mean for Morrisburg still hasn't been settled, Cole said.

"They're still working on all that. I can't tell you much more than that. We're temporarily closed down to restructure."

A skeleton staff including Cole and one secretary continue to work indefinitely out of the Morrisburg office. They'll remain at the OETIO facility until they're instructed otherwise.

As a member of union himself, Cole said he was relieved to hear some progress being made.

"It's good news that the union is starting to sort out all its problems. But it's all part of the same issue. We're tenants in Local 793's building. Anything which happens to Local 793 affects training."

Meanwhile, Doull told Toronto reporters recently that he believed the local was capable of refinancing itself and would not need additional equity from the international union to stay alive.

Besides a multi-million debt to an Ottawa-based contracting company, Local 793 owes the Canadian Bank of Commerce more than $11 million, plus mortgages on both a non-profit apartment building in Toronto and the training centre.

MPP Cleary blasts NDP for Courtaulds Fibres issue

CORNWALL—The NDP government continues "delaying and dodging" former employees of Courtaulds Fibres and Freudenberg NonWovens, who still haven't received their Program for Older Worker Adjustment (POWA) benefits.

Or so says MPP John Cleary, upon hearing the news that Labor Minister Shirley Coppen will be out of the country and now unavailable to meet with workers until January 16 at the earliest. In a particularly scathing press release, the Cornwall MPP vented his frustrations.

"For two weeks, the Minister's office has been stalling my request that she avail herself for just a half hour to review the status of POWA for the former workers of Courtaulds and Freudenberg NonWovens. Today her office revealed for the first time that Minister Coppen will be vacationing until the middle of January."

"The Minister's staff has promised to try to set something up as quickly as the Minister returns from holidays during the week of january 16, but even that won't be confirmed until the new year. I am truly disappointed in the minister's behaviour. Ms. Coppen is stalling on the POWA negotiations and refusing to meet with the people affected. Now she has put older workers on hold for another month while she vacations out of the country."

Jointly administered by the federal and provincial governments, POWA assists long-service older workers between the ages of 55 and 64 who have little or no prospects for re-employment following a major permanent layoff.

The former employees of Freudenberg NonWoven & Courtaulds Fibres applied to POWA shortly after being laid off in 1992. They expected to receive news of eligibility by March 1994, after their unemployment insurance exhausted.

To date, Coppen has not agreed to meet with the workers, and Ministry staff say negotiations are still ongoing. Prior to Coppen's appointment as labor minister this fall, Cleary dealt with former Labor Minister Bob Mackenzie on releasing POWA funds to area older workers.

Annual Luncheon

WILLIAMSBURG—the fourth Annual Christmas luncheon, which included children's entertainment, was held on Wednesday, Dec. 21, 1994, at the Park Lane Seniors' Support Centre in Williamsburg.

Christmas specials were also held at the Diner's clubs in Morrisburg, Iroquois and Matilda.

The Centre's draw, organized by the craft group, was held in Williamsburg. The winners were as follows: first prize, an afghan, by Doris Hill, of Williamsburg; second prize, a quilted tote bag, Edith Baker of Morewood; third prize, a baby afghan, by Ruth Hogaboam of Williamsburg.

The money raised was used by the craft ladies to buy various items for the centre.

Testerink Construction wins bid

Morrisburg docks under repair

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—Those who find themselves shivering in the cold first thing in the morning while getting out to their cars should go have a talk with Deputy Reeve Dirk Testerink and his brother John.

They'll tell you what cold really feels like.

Last week, the two local contractors began disassembling parts of the crumbling 30-year-old Morrisburg dock.

Facing sub-degree weather, with a fierce wind howling off the bitterly-cold St. Lawrence River, the deputy reeve and his brother patiently hammered out the rotted sections along the dock's edge in preparation for the installation of a new skirt and deck. The Testerinks figure the job will take most of the rest of the month, although it could be longer depending on what actually needs to be done.

After the contractors finish tearing out all the old boards, consultants from McNeely Engineering of Cornwall will be coming in to look everything over and check if any additional structural work is required.

"Some places are good, some places not so good," said Dirk Testerink, pointing to spots along the dock's edge where the rock foundation had shifted during last year's particularly severe winter.

The contractors want to complete the job before the spring run-off. Working in the summer might have been more comfortable, but the water would have have been too high for them to have proper access to the dock's foundation.

The Testerinks earned the job after submitting a bid of $28,000 plus G.S.T. Dismissing criticisms that the work might represent a conflict of interest, the deputy reeve pointed out he and his brother won the bid fairly after a closed tendering process.

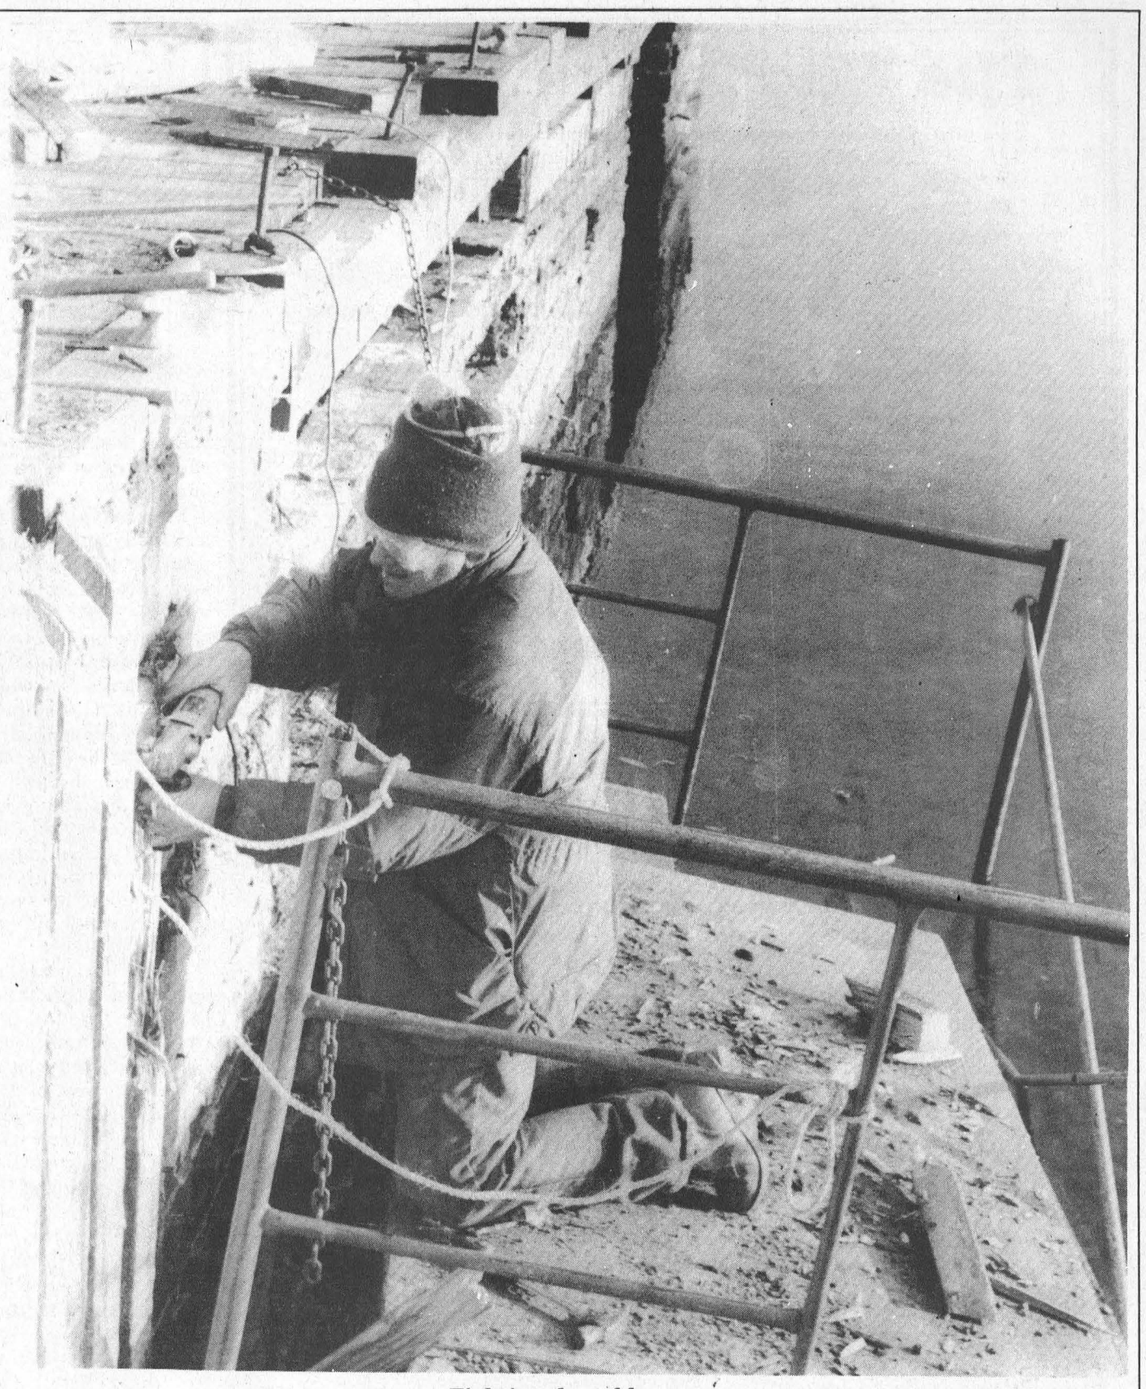
"We were the only local contractor to submit a bid. The other three bids came from out of town."

Last summer, the village secured a $15,000 grant from the Ministry, after persistent lobbying from Reeve Gord McGregor through MP Bob Kilger's office. It took more than a year of negotiations to receive the commitment because of a dispute over jurisdiction. Under the terms of a lease agreement between the village and the federal government, council is responsible for minor repairs at the dock, and the Ministry of Fisheries and Oceans is to pick up major expenditures such as structural repairs. The required work falls some where in the middle.

"All we're doing right now is changing the deck," Testerink said. "We're not building new cribs. It's fairly basic."

The Testerinks will try straightening the warped dock with extra timbers as they attach the new face boards. The work being done right now should keep the docks functioning for the next decade. After that time, the docks may need to be completely replaced, at an estimated cost of $200,000-$300,000.

In the meantime, McGregor continues to press the Ministry to establish a permanent funding program for dock repairs. Both the timber shorewell and the concrete shorewell must be stabilized within the next few years at an additional cost of $100,000-150,000.



Fighting the cold

Local construction worker John Testerink (pictured above), along his brother Dirk, a contractor and the village deputy reeve, have the undesirable job of hammering out the old rotten boards on the Morrisburg dock and replacing them before the spring thaw. The brothers won the job after submitting the lowest bid in the tendering process.

SLPC to lease closed parks

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—The St. Lawrence Parks Commission and the province have reached agreement on a plan to pursue leasing of two closed parks to the public sector.

Following months of negotiations with the SLPC, the NDP government reluctantly agreed with a proposal to lease out Charlottenburgh and Raison River Parks to interested parties.

"The reopening of these parks will create employment, increase economic activity and boost tourism in Eastern Ontario," said Minister of Culture, Tourism and Recreation Anne Swarbick in a brief press release. "A healthy and expanding tourism industry is a key component of the government's renewal strategy."

While the news wasn't exactly unexpected, it did come more than a few months later than expected. For months, local MPPs Noble Villeneuve (PC, SD&G and East Grenville) and John Cleary (Liberal, Cornwall), had lobbied for the government to back down on what they considered was "ideological rigidity against private sector involvement" in the tourism industry.

The Ministry and the SPLC have received several private sector inquiries over the years, but few have met with much success thus far. Osnabruck Township took control of Farran Park a few years back, and a private operator has been leasing Grenville Park near Prescott since 1991. Both have proven to be quite successful.

Charlottenburgh Park, located east of Cornwall on the banks of the St. Lawrence River, closed in 1990, and Raison River Park, just west of Lancaster, closed in 1993, as part of the SPLC's revitalization and rationalization plan. The original park closings put dozens of unioned employees out of work. In past interviews, Ministerial representatives from Swarbick's office said any ownership transfers would have to include provisions protecting the workers laid off. No word was mentioned in the press release on whether the Ministry was prepared to bend on that provision.

Commission Chairman Gary Clarke said the SPLC board of directors were "enthusiastic" about the announcement.

"Charlottenburgh Township and the Commission have been working together towards this goal for several years. We are looking forward to receiving many exciting proposals and pursuing new tourism opportunities."

Proposals to operate these parks will be advertised publically some time in early January. The successful bidder and operating lease will require approval from both the Commission and province.

In past interviews on the issue, SPLC General manager Frank Shaw said the Commission would be looking for proposal which would mesh, but not compete, with tourism operations already running. The SPLC originally closed the parks because they were unprofitable. Potential private sector bidders should have a detailed budgetary plan in place, and be prepared to invest for the long term.

The SLPC is an agency of the Ontario Ministry of Culture, Tourism and Recreation. Presently, it operates 12 campground and day-use area parks, Fort Henry, Upper Canada Village, a marina, a golf course and a migratory bird sanctuary.

Another property, the former Brown's Bay campground just west of Brockville, still remains idle after being closed earlier this decade.

Driver not injured in deer-vehicle accident

INGLESIDE—A driver and his two female passengers were not injured Thursday night when the 1994 GMC Tracker hit a deer near here.

Michael Bailey, 25, of Morrisburg was going home from a night of shopping in Cornwall with his mother and his girlfriend, Rite, when the incident occurred.

"Rite saw the deer first," said Bailey, who is a reporter at the Iroquois Chieftain. "My first instict was to speed up and try to get around it. I was only doing about 85 km/h when I hit it."

Apparently, the startled animal ran into Bailey's path and damaged the vehicle's front quarter panel and bumber, driver-side door and rear bumber.

"I didn't think the damage was too severe," said Bailey, "But it turns out it's $2,600."

After he hit the animal, Bailey pulled over to the side of the road.

"I thought I killed it. I was going to pull it off the road by its antlers, but the thing just got up and ran away."

No charges were laid in the incident.

Alzheimer Awareness Month

It's probably the scariest, most devastating disease imaginable. Yet there is no known cause or cure.

About one quarter of a million Canadians suffer from Alzheimer Disease, a degenerative brain disorder that destroys vital brain cells and occurs most often in adults over 65.

The disease begins with subtle behavioral changes. Eventually it steals the person's ability to understand, remember, think, communicate and perform even simple tasks, leaving the person completely dependent.

Each year, the police receive hundreds of calls from distressed family members looking for loved ones who have wandered away from home in a state of confusion. Some may wander only around the block. Others find themselves miles away from home, in a disoriented state, unable to ask for help, and sometimes unable to remember their names.

Experts believe wandering happens for a variety of reasons. For some, it may be a reaction to a drug, or a particular room, while for others it is an outlet for frustration. Individuals suffering from Alzheimers wander in search for something familiar — a family home, or old work place, or a person from the past. In the end, some wandering episodes end with a safe return, but others tragically end in death.

January is Alzheimer Awareness month. This year, local representatives of the Alzheimer society wish to bring to public attention a Wandering Registry Program they're trying to establish through the RCMP. The new program would enable families to register descriptive information about their loved ones on a national database. Police forces across Canada would then have access to this information in the event of a disappearance. The program is currently awaiting final approval from government regarding funding. Steve Rudin, Executive Director of Alzheimer Canada, said he's optimistic the program will be up and running early in the new year.

"With such a great need and the assurance that this program will save lives and money, we remain hopeful that funding will be approved for 1995."

Presently, the average police search involves 100 officers, costing the police hundreds of hours in searching time and money. A Wandering Persons Registry would provide quick and capable assistance before the registrant can come to harm, Rudin said.

By raising public awareness through education programs and increased health care staff training, the society also hopes to cut back on the opportunity for such wandering episodes. Other future goals include providing further support and encouragement into Alzheimer research and related conditions. Canadians already spend $3.5 billion a year to provide institutional care for persons with Alzheimer Disease and related dimentias. As the "baby boom" generation ages, the prevalence of Alzheimer Disease will skyrocket, experts believe, and by the year 2030, an estimated three-quarters of a million Canadians could be afflicted. —MvR

Good Advice - even for 1995

At the approach of another year, when we have supposedly reviewed our own personal record during the past 12 months, we commend the following advice to readers. By an unknown author, it dates from the 17th century, and is said to have been found in a Boston church. The advice, we submit, is just as sound today as when it was written so many hundreds of years ago.

"Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender, be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly, and listen to others, even the dull and the ignorant; they too have their story. Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexatious to the spirit. If you compare yourself to others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment, it is perennial as the grass. Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imagining. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Therefore, be at peace with God, whatever you conceive him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life, keep peace with your soul. With all its shame, its drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy."

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Laurie Day

1985

The first baby born at Winchester District Memorial Hospital was Ashley Kathryn Tuttle, daughter of Isabel and James Tuttle of Riverside Heights. She was born at 9:44 a.m. and tipped the scales at 7lbs. 12 1/2 ounces.

The revival of a shorter, less costly and more participatory Old Home Week, to be held in conjunction with the village's 125th anniversary celebrations, was to be discussed at the annual meeting of the Morrisburg Old Home Week Inc. on January 3rd. Tentative plans to stage the event over the July 1st weekend were being tossed around, and acting committee chairman Glen Cunningham said public support from various community groups was needed to avoid the problems which plagued previous celebrations.

A $1,000 donation from an anonymous contributor propelled Rev. Wallace MacKinnon into the ranks of one of the few selected recipients of the prestigious Paul Harris Fellow. The 70-year-old Presbyterian Church minister and past president of the Ingleside/Osnabruck Rotary Club, was presented the award by the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International in December of 1984 in honor of his outstanding contribution to working towards a better understanding and friendly relations among countries.

Those who chose to drive when they knew they probably shouldn't have, and didn't get stopped for a road-side alcohol level test, may have felt smug they beat the system. But this time around, many holiday travelers appeared to avoid the risk of an impaired driving charge or a 12-hour licence suspension with moderation or alternative transportation. The OPP at Morrisburg, Winchester and Long Sault each reported charging only one driver with excessive blood-alcohol levels. Over 325 vehicles were checked.

A picture of Mr. Roger Belanger, director of the Eastern Region of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, appeared on the front page of the Morrisburg Leader's January 3rd edition as he presented a certificate in recognition of Mr. A. Carson Baker's 25 years of loyal service to the Government of Canada. Carson, a resident of Morrisburg, was presented the honor on December 16th of the previous year.

In Junior B Hockey action, the Morrisburg Lions were half a point ahead of Winchester in the standings. Unfortunately, it was at the bottom of the ladder. Cornwall was in the lead with 35 points, followed by Cardinal with 32. The team had just added three players to their roster. From last year's club and to participate in the upcoming weekend's games were Gerry Zeron, Dale Swerdfeger and Doug McNairn.

There were 150 people who were fed a turkey dinner at Seaway District High School in honor of the Christmas season.

The St. Lawrence Parks Commission announced that the parks were open for family winter recreation. Marked and groomed trails in Crysler Maple Sugar Bush were ready for cross country skiers, and snowmobilers. Toboggan runs were being enjoyed on the Memorial Mound. Horse-drawn sleigh rides on the weekends were being offered at Upper Canada Village.

Delage's House of Gifts was offering a half-price sale on all boxed Christmas cards, paper, bows, serviettes, tablecloths, coaster, cups and candles.

The January 8th issue of The Leader reported St. John's Lutheran Church, Riverside Heights, was the scene of the impressive service of blessing Sunday, December 27th. The Pastor, Rev. F.L. Howald blessed the oil painting of the old St. John's Lutheran Church by the St. Lawrence River as it was before it was demolished by the Seaway Development project.

Many friends at Morrisburg and throughout the area learned with deep regret of the sudden death of Rev. J. Maxwell Allan, a former pastor of Morrisburg United Church.

At the inaugural meeting of the Morrisburg Council held in the chambers of the Civic Building, Reeve Fred. A. Hill and councillors C.F. McInnis, Dr. D.M. Robertson, Malcolm Wilson and Arnold Payment were sworn into office by clerk Lloyd D. Barkley.

At the Dominion, 19-ounce packages of Duncan Hines cake mixes were 49¢ and bananas were selling for 10¢ a pound.

The Morrisburg Combines were in first place in the Ottawa - St. Lawrence Hockey League. They held a very slim edge over the Hull Volants.

At Brinston's Allied Food Market hamburg was three pounds for $1 and lettuce was two heads for 25¢.

January specials at Bert's Beauty Salon featured regular priced $10 perms on sale for $8.

Headlines in the January 7th issue of The Leader read: Ontario Government to construct office building in Morrisburg. Construction of an office building to house Government offices, which would be located in connection with St. Lawrence development, was to begin immediately according to information contained in a letter from Premier Leslie M. Frost to Reeve George E. Beavers of Morrisburg.

Battle of Rogue River starring Geroge Montgomery was playing at the Cameo Theatre and the Picadilly in Williamsburg was showing Living it up with Jerry Lewis.

Melvin A. Barkley, one of Morrisburg's oldest and most respected residents, died at his home on William Street, January 2rd. Most of his 92 years had been spent in Williamsburg Township and almost to the end, he could recall many things of interest he had seen there as well as things heard from his parents and grandparents, U.E. Loyalists on both sides.

At the Dominion, California Sunkist navel oranges were 39¢ a dozen, and celery was 19¢ a bunch.

The January 5th issue of The Leader reported D.K. Stewart, manager of the Bank of Montreal for five years and four years previous to that, manager at Willamsburg, had been transferred to a branch in Hamilton. His post was to be taken over by Mr. J.C. Wood.

Mrs. Arthur Coligan had received word that her husband, Pilot Officer Arthur Coligan, had been commissioned to that rank from Warrant Officer. The commission was won on Christmas day.

Ontario Premier, Drew, commenting on Governor Thomas Dewey's statement that New York, Canada and Ontario should proceed with that St. Lawrence waterway and power project, said Ontario was very anxious to have the development proceed at the earliest possible date.

Through the kindness of Mrs. M.W. Locke, who provided horses and a sleigh, a party of about 20 young people in Williamsburg greatly enjoyed a sleigh drive. On their return, they took part in a happy evening of dancing and games at the home of Misses Marie and Barbara Hess. The gathering was in the nature of a surprise to Miss Barbara Hess, the occasion being in honor of her 18th birthday and also as a farewell prior to her leaving for Toronto where she had accepted a position.

Arthur Flynn announced that his law office was moved to the ground floor of the Marsh building on Main Street where he would be carrying on business as usual.

After the Christmas and New Year holidays, the public school reopened with Mr. K.T. Farrell of South Mountain, as principal, succeeding Mrs. Grant Cougar, who tendered her resignation at the close of the year, and Ms. M.E. Swerdfeger as assistant in the Williamsburg School.

At Morley's Store, cottage rolls were 40¢ a pound and Brookfield cream cheese was 22¢ for a half pound package.

The January 4th issue of The Leader reported that the local ferry executive deserved the confidence and unanimous support of the citizens of the Village of Morrisburg and its council in their endeavor to change the present location of the new dock. In order to give Morrisburg a permanent connecting link with the United States, it was felt necessary that the ferry remain the fastest and best equipped on the international section of the St. Lawrence River. During the past five years, every promise made by Geroge D. Howith, the energetic vice-president of the line had been fulfilled, with the result that an all-year, five-minute service from 6 a.m. until midnight was available. But competition now demanded that Morrisburg must have a similar approach to that of the Cornwall bridge, which was right on No. 2 highway and thereby safeguard the future of her ferry service from other cities, which were making a bid to divert tourists from Morisburg to the detriment of every citizen of the village. In the proposed new site, the ferry would have perfect landing facilities and thus avoid delays and consequent loss of business which would be bound to occur at the centre crib, and thereby mitigate against Morrisburg being used extensively as an international port.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Jarvis celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary January 1st.

Myrna Loy and George Brent were starring in Stamboul Quest at the Cameo Theatre.

At McLean's market, leg of lamb was 21¢ a pound and round steak was 15¢ a pound.

The start of the New Year found a new order in force in Canadian penitentiaries. Convicts from then on were to receive a small payment for their labor, provided their general behavior was satisfactory to the wardens.

Enjoying the snow

Merchants report sales up

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

Morrisburg—An improved economy, and weather conducive to travel, contributed to a generally favorable Christmas shopping season among retailers here.

Many local merchants are reporting sales ranging from slightly improved over last year to 10 per cent higher in some cases.

"We had a tremendous season. It was an exceptional Christmas due to the weather which was the main reason for our success. In fact, the whole year was exceptional," manager of the Biway store, Jeff Kennedy commented.

Kennedy estimated an improvement of 10 per cent over last year, attributing the increase to mild weather which enabled shoppers of all ages, including the elderly to access the store.

Biway is the largest discount store on the St. Lawrence between Brockville and Cornwall, with the exception of Giant Tiger in the Town of Prescott.

"It was very good, probably a little better than last year," Manager of Canadian Tire in Williamsburg Anne Marie Dawley said. "We would like to have had winter sooner. That was the only thing that could have affected us. But sales were up over last year. And as far as the Christmas gifts, it went well."

Mild weather in November contributed to a delay in Christmas shopping for a number of customers here as at some other stores.

Canadian Tire was one of several retail businesses who hired additional staff (six students in all) to handle the extra business over the holiday season.

Co-owner of Pokey's Place Bill Ewing said sales were very good, up approximately one-third over last year. "Everything pretty well went in Christmas inventory."

Owner of Pier 31, Tom Morrow said sales were somewhat better than in 1993, but not quite up to expectation. "I'm pleased. It's a step in the right direction."

"But we hoped it would be better than it was with the increase in the economy," he added.

Owner of Edie's House of Fashion, Tom's wife Karen Morrow was unavailable for comment, but sales here were also better than last year, Morrow reported. "Although they were still not as good as hoped for, according to the economy and news reports." Such reports are often taken into account when ordering inventory.

At the Cook's Corner, a bulk food store which carries Christmas baking items business was level with last year, and Lynn Irven, co-owner commented: "We're not down from last year, although we're not up."

While Ottawa retailers were reporting an increase of five per cent, Irven couldn't boast such a gain. "If it's up, it's very little. But it's nice to break even."

Sales were brisk in December, although mild weather may have adversely affected the baking business in November. "It was too nice a fall. People talked about Christmas like it was far away, then the crunch was on," she said.

And manager of Casselman's Shoe Store Ginette Smith remarked business was steady. "There were quite a few people out. Everyone looked cheerful."

According to supervisor Wendy Johnson there was a slight decline of five per cent in sales over last year, and Smith noticed business was a little slower on Christmas Eve, "But the weather was nicer."

Favorable weather conditions make easier access to the larger shopping centers. Casselman's fared quite well with sales of Christmas inventory, despite the adverse impact of a break-in and theft in mid-December.

Hazardous conditions

WILLIAMSBURG—Winter brings with it not just colder weather, but sometimes also hazardous conditions.

Senior citizens especially may find it difficult to complete minor repair jobs around the house this time of year. they may not be sure who to call for help with small repair jobs.

This year, the Park Lane Seniors' Support Centre and nor Dun Seniors' Support Centre are offering a Home Maintenance program to assist the older adults, and those with disabilities. through the "Section 25 Program" with the Canada Employment Centre, and the Three United Counties, Henry Lalonde, has been hired to complete repair jobs in Dundas County.

Lalonde has just completed an Energy-Efficiency Tune-Up Course. He has carpentry experience and his own tools available. He can paint a room, repair a porch, attach hand rails in bathrooms, etc. No job is too small.

There is no cost for the labor, but clients are required to purchase the necessary supplies and material. A donation to the Seniors' Centre is also appreciated.

Any Senior Citizen or Disabled Adult in Dundas County can contact Nancy Gibson at 774-6109 or Janet Levere at 535-2924. Make arrangements now to finish up the odd jobs in the new year.

Ault Island residents demand township road paving

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

AULT ISLAND—Not only is the grass greener on the other side, but the roads apparently are better as well.

Ault Island residents living on the Osnabruck Township side of the tiny riverside community are more than a little upset about the quality of their roads as compared to their neighbors in Williamsburg Township.

So incensed is John Hickman, the new president of the Ault Island Community Association, about the situation, he's made a personal pledge to attend every township meeting he can so council doesn't forget about him and his neighbors.

"This new council is well aware of the concerns of the association," Hickman said in a recent interview. "I think — at least I hope — we'll see some results."

Of particular concern is Wilbruck Road. The Ault Island Association first petitioned to have the road upgraded in 1972, at that time to the father of present road superintendent Larry Ezard. To this day, the road still remains unpaved, Hickman said.

"Here we are in 1994 (now 1995) — and we're still waiting to have the work done. There's such a vast difference in the Williamsburg and Osnabruck Township way of doing things."

Although the two townships jointly maintain the island's entranceway, Hickman said the Williamsburg side has received much better attention over the years. Their roads were paved five or six years ago; their roads are ploughed much more regularly in the winter.

"The population density is much greater on the Osnabruck side. We have far more permanent residents. On the island there are 65 waterfront lots. Osnabruck has 50. There are 15 in Williamsburg. Osnabruck Township has been almost negligent in the way they've been taking care of the roads."

At the all-candidates meeting in November, defeated Osnabruck Reeve Gordon Ross promised Ault Island residents the Wilbruck Road "would be considered along with all others" during road budget deliberations. He added, however, that the township had other priorities as well.

It was a message Hickman said he is tired of hearing.

"Reeve Ross was not cooperative with us at all. In fact, he was downright belligerent to us at times.... I think he considered Ault Island like an outpost — that we were foreigners — out of towners. Hopefully that's changed."

The former reeve wasn't available for comment. But the new council, headed by Reeve Jim Bancroft, recently spent a full day on a road tour throughout the township to assess future priorities. A public disclosure is expected soon.

One problem facing Ault Island residents, Hickman freely admits, is image. Many of the property owners keep cottages on the island. A number of Osnabruck township residents feel the island owners are overly demanding and spoiled — and wealthy enough to pave their own roads.

Hickman disputes these kinds of arguments.

"I personally pay $3,000 a year in taxes. For that, I get nothing from the township. No sidewalks. No paved roads. No lights. No sewers. Nothing for our tax dollars. The gravel is in very bad shape. It's dangerous."

Hickman moved to the island permanently in 1992, after commuting back and forth to his cottage on the site for years. He and almost every other resident on the island have signed a petition urging council to establish a road upgrade agenda. If the township can't pave the road now, the association demands to know at least when it would happen.

Subdivision agreement

Buried beneath all the bantering back and forth between the Ault Island Community Association and township council is an old subdivision agreement signed between the sitting council in the late 1980s and an Ottawa-based developer, Bill Buchanan.

During the real estate market boom of the previous decade, Buchanan approached council with an ambitious scheme to develop somewhere between 60-120 major waterfront access lots of about two acres in size. Despite a huge uproar from local residents at the time, the developer eventually cleared all the necessary hurdles. Council apparently attached a conditional string to their approval to avoid what could have been a serious backlash from island residents. As Hickman and the association came to understand the agreement, the contractor was to pave the road when half the subdivision had been completed, or three years after the signing date of 1988.

But only one house was built before the recession hit. And the road was never paved.

Clerk Betty deHaan said she couldn't confirm or deny whether or not such an agreement existed between the township and the contractor. She wasn't a part of the process which put together the original document, and wasn't entirely comfortable discussing the contents of something she hadn't read. The actual subdivision agreement is buried in amongst hundreds of other papers, she added.

But the clerk did confirm that the township ran into other legal problems with Buchanan besides not paving the road. Over the past several years, the contractor built up a serious personal debt in back taxes. Last summer, a court ordered him to pay the Township somewhere between $50,000-100,000 he owed in property taxes. Apparently, he hasn't been able to obtain building permits or sell individual lots because the township has clogged up property transfers with legal stipulations.

Hickman said council's financial arrangements with the contractor are of no concern to him or any of the other ratepayers. What matters is getting the road paved, not blaming one side or the other.

The Ault Island Community Association leader would like to see council take ownership of Buchanan lots in lieu of a letter of credit. Hickman said he and his neighbors have resigned themselves to the fact that the subdivision exists and the lots have been divided. Now's the time to get on with it.

"We were all worried about the saturation point on the island — at what point especially the wells would begin deteriorating. It was all a matter of posturing before the approval. We're long past that now. We still want the road paved."

Among other bones of contention, the association also is demanding council reestablish guard rails along the side of the road instead of the markers there now. Alth the Ministry of transp tion said the guard r weren't "legally necessa Hickman said council h "moral responsibility" to them back up.

"It's unsafe right now. guard rails kept deer off causeway."

Lions lose two more: only two points from basement

MORRISBURG—Standing watching the game Wednesday night, one could only hope that the Morrisburg Junior B Lions would be able to put away the win.

With just 12 seconds left in the game, Morrisburg held a 6-4 lead. You would assume that the win was a sure thing.

Never assume anything–especially those so-called sure things!

Char-Lan fired two point-blank markers and forced the game into overtime. Five minutes later, the teams were still tied at six, and a shootout was inevitable.

Char-Lan won the shootout, 3-2.

"Unbelievable!" Coach John Morrow could only shake his head in disbelief. "Unbelievable!"

A scoreless first period made the boys dig a little deeper for that extra something in the second.

Morrisburg closed off the second frame with a 3-2 lead. Tim Waldroff, Chad Duguay and Mike McAllister did the scoring.

Jamie Herrington replied for Char-Lan with just 13 seconds left in the second and he later tied the score at three apiece early in the final period.

Rob Curren put the Rebels on the board with the team's first goal of the period.

Morrisburg's Francis Briere sank the go-ahead marker at 14:54 of the second, and McAllister and Chad White converged on a great passing play to put the Lions up 5-3 with their short-handed goal.

But Char-Lan made the game interesting when Matt Reid closed the gap with 4:25 left in the game.

At the 1:25 mark, the Rebels called a time-out, and later pulled their goal tender with just 42 seconds remaining.

Here's where it got interesting.

Opting for the extra skater didn't turn out as well as expected, as McAllister intercepted a pass in the Lions end and fired a long bomber that tipped into the net from alongside the Char-Lan bench.

That resulted in a shot to McAllister's head by one of the Char-Lan players who was sitting on the bench, and McAllister went down after the retaliation smash.

After McAllister shook the cobwebs out of his head and was ushered off the ice, Morrisburg went back to work trying to run down the clock as the home team held a 6-4 edge with 30 seconds remaining.

Curren, Reid and Terry O'Farrell each took advantage of the situation as Char-Lan won the shootout.

Following the game, the Lions management shuffled the lineup in what they hope will be a good move for the team.

Morrisburg outshot Winchester 25-15 after the first period and led 1-0 on Chad White's marker at 8:37.

In the second, the Lions took a 2-1 lead with Chad Duguay and Mike McAllister doing the damage on the veteran Winchester net minder, Dale Wilson.

Newcomer, Corey Payment was stoned, and Duguay hit the goal post.

Following the game, the Lions management shuffled the lineup in what they hope will be a good move for the team.

Morrisburg outshot Winchester 25-15 after the first period and led 1-0 on Chad White's marker at 8:37.

In the second, the Lions took a 2-1 lead with Chad Duguay and Mike McAllister doing the damage on the veteran Winchester net minder, Dale Wilson.

Newcomer, Corey Payment another quick goal at 17:49 sparked the Hawks on their quest for the win.

Tied at four apiece, Jeff Hyndman gave the Lions the go-ahead marker at 17:12 on a nice set-up by Payment and White.

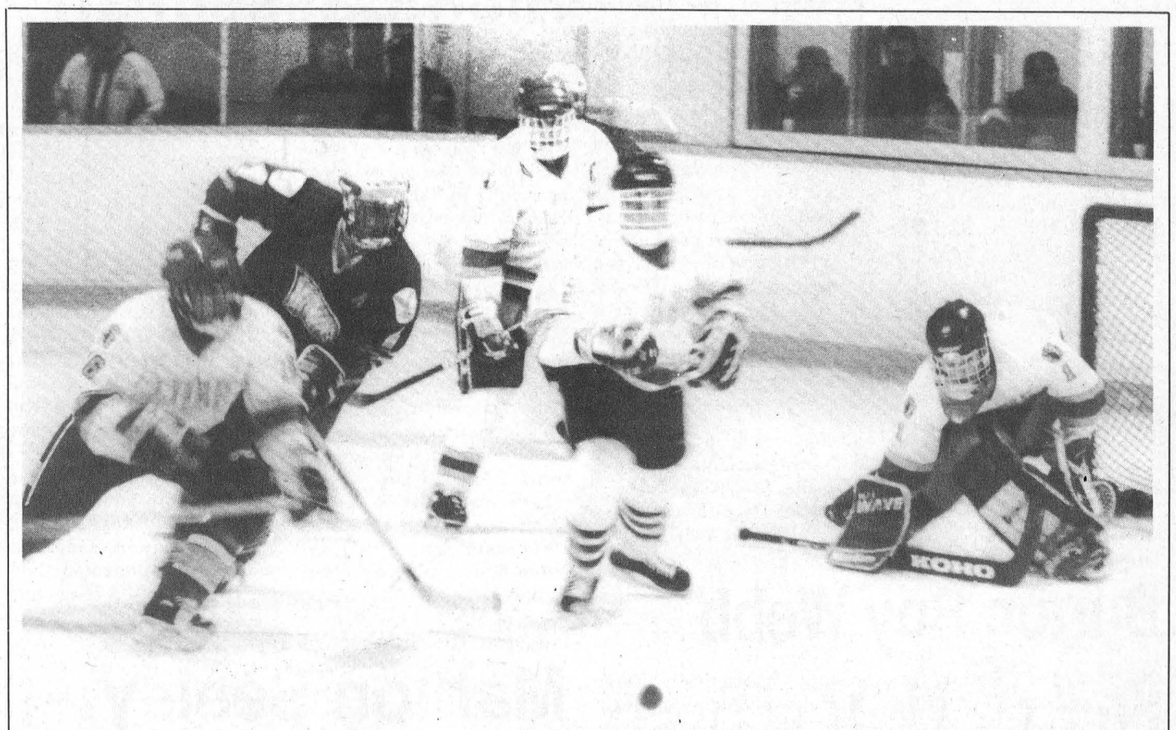
At 14:49, the Hawks tied the score again as Craig Halpenny flipped one over the stick of Sayeau after a heated scramble at the net.

It wasn't until 5:23 that Winchester was able to get by Sayeau with the winner.

A few minutes later, Morrisburg used the extra skater to try and push one more in the crease, and it worked—or so they thought. It was a no-goal situation, according to the referee, and Morrisburg had to watch this win dwindle away.

Morrisburg outshot the home town Hawks 15-9 in the second period, but in the third they were bettered, 12-9.

On Friday, January 6th, the Lions are in Alexandria, and Sunday they host Kemptville.



At Winchester...
Things were just as bad Friday night, as the Lions lost a 5-4 rally at Winchester. They were looking a little more at home however, with the addition of Corey Payment to the lineup.

With 12 seconds showing, Char-Lan's Kilbourne finally got by the young Morrisburg net minder, Troy Sayeau, after three different players took their turn at from in front of the crease.

Another face-off went in favor of Char-Lan and Barry Kilbourne's point-blank shot from the blue line with six seconds remaining forced the game into overtime.

Both goal tenders were in relentless in the extra period, but the pressure got to the Morrisburg netman in the shootout that followed a flawless fourth.

Sending their five best goal scorers, Morrisburg's McAllister and White were the only two successful point getters in the shootout, as Briere

They traded veteran net minder, Denis Villeneuve, for two Rebel forwards: Corey Payment, and Pete St. Jean.

Villeneuve, who has been with the Morrisburg Lions for the past five years, has seen them through three division titles, and has been a key individual in the crease as well as on the bench, will certainly be missed by his teammates and friends in Morrisburg. According to the coach, Villeneuve was a little disappointed in the transaction, but he is looking forward to playing with the Rebels.

Morrisburg in Winchester

The Lions were in Winchester Friday where they suffered a disappointing 5-4 loss, after controlling the first two periods of the game.

assisted his way onto the point chart with two helpers.

Mike McCabe replied for Winchester at 12:09 of the period.

However, the Lions fell apart in the third period after a controversial judgement call.

At 18:39 of the final period, Winchester counted number two, even though the puck hit the post.

"I could see it hit the post as plain as day," said Keith Robinson, who was standing behind the left corner of the net in which rookie sensation Sayeau was covering the crease. "It was not a goal!"

That was the turning point of the game.

A little rattled, the Lions tried to keep their cool, but

The Morrisburg Junior B Lions were stoned in a shootout as the CharLan Rebels posted a 6-5 win here last Wednesday night. The Lions are now only one loss from plummeting to the basement of the St. Lawrence Division.

Bantam B Lions tournament hampered by assault charges

LAURIE DAY
Leader staff

BROCKVILLE—An Invitational tournament turned hostile here last Tuesday night, during which a player from the Morrisburg Bantam B Lions was charged with assault causing bodily harm.

The Lions were up 3-1 against the host, Brockville, team at the end of the second period before all hell broke lose.

According to eye witnesses, the walkway near the Lions' bench was filled with Brockville midget players, who were waiting for their practice session following the tournament.

Throughout the first two periods of play, Barkley said that the midget-aged spectators were taunting the Morrisburg Bantams and they should be warned against it.

However, the swearing and the spitting only got worse, according to Barkley. As the Morrisburg players headed off the ice, the altercation took place.

"One of the midgets grabbed (one of the Lions) but he just brushed him off and ignored him," said one of the witnesses. "Then when the midget spit on him, (the Lion) did what he did to protect himself."

"I really don't know what started the fight," Barkley said.

The Brockville Recorder and Times newspaper sports writer, Jason Carroll, stated that "Barkley, who rebuffed approaches by at least one parent of a Brockville midget player after the game, had calmed down when he spoke to the media."

"Hell, I never opened my mouth," said Barkley. "I didn't get too excited about anything. The only thing I said was directed at the Bantam coach, and I asked him what was wrong (as Morrisburg led 3-1 after two periods of play) and if we were only team they had to play today," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, they (Brockville) hosted the tournament and had it set up that they didn't meet any of the tough teams. Two teams were out of the tournament before they played their second game!

"We just surprised the hell out of them when we won both our games and met up with them in the finals. It was the only tough game they had all day."

During the alleged altercation, witnesses said there was a pile-up of Morrisburg Bantams and Brockville Midgets, and it was some time later before anyone was able to put a stop to the battle off the ice, which apparently took place after the referee and linesmen had left the ice.

"I was standing at the end of the Morrisburg bench and I had to pull one of the guys off our guy," said another Morrisburg fan/parent.

Soon after, the police were called to control the scene, and as a result of incident, the Morrisburg player, a 15-year-old youth, was charged with assault.

President of the Morrisburg Minor Hockey Association, Bob Boivin, was at the Brockville Arena during the tournament. His son Brad plays on the team, but Bob was advised about not speaking to the press regarding the incident.

"I'd rather not say anything at this time," Boivin said. "There is a lot more going on than the assault charge against (the Bantam Lion)."

The youth charged in the assault will be going to court at Brockville January 31.

According to the Brockville Police Deputy Chief, Doug Labron, the incident is under further investigation.

"There's not much I can say really, other than the fact that a young offender was charged after an altercation at the arena," he said.

There is also an alleged incident that apparently happened in the parking lot after the game.

"One of our (Lions') parents was outside warming up the car and saw a few of the Morrisburg players coming outside, when a little red Honda Civic tried to run over our players," said a witness.

"Whoever was driving the car would rev up the motor and drive at our kids, then brake just before hitting them."

The matter is still under investigation at this time by Brockville City Police Sgt. Eric Serviss.

Barkley stated that the tournament was very competitive for his boys, as they won their previous two matches to meet up with Brockville in the final.

"It was a good tournament," said Barkley. "We had no trouble whatsoever with any of the Bantam teams there."

Results from Bantam action at Brockville

Last Tuesday, the Bantam B Lions were in Brockville for an Invitational Tournament that turned a bit nasty toward the end of play.

After winning their first two games, the Lions met up with the hosting Brockville team in the A finals.

However, between the second and third periods, an altercation broke out at the Lions bench involving midget-aged Brockville players and as a result, a 15-year-old Morrisburg boy was charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Police were called to the scene, and play resumed in the third period.

Brockville went on to win the tournament after scoring two goals late in the third which forced the overtime period.

Ian Miller got the winner in the extra frame to give the host team the 4-3 championship.

In Morrisburg's first game of the tournament, it took a shootout to decide a 1-0 win for the Lions. Jeremy Adams was named the player of the game after he netted the winning goal.

Brandon Cassell got the win in the crease.

In the Lions second encounter, they played Kingston where they won a 4-2 battle.

Mike DeJong, John Derouchie, Jeremy Adams and Brad Boivin with the empty-netter, had the goals in the win.

Assists in the upset were collected by Dan Goss, John Casselman, Rob Murphy and Jeremy Adams.

Jamie Barkley was named the game's MVP.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Dear Mom,
As you approach your 50th year
We all shall shed many a tear.
As we reminisce about a mother and wife
Who when she was younger was so full of life.
Now as you sit in your rocking chair
We notice the patches of grey in your hair.
Your ability to read has decreased quite a bit
And we don't dare suggest your glasses for fear of a fit.
That new set of teeth give you a sparkling grin
If only you could figure out how to keep them in Wouldn't it be nice to take a vacation
From all those cures for wrinkles and constipation.
The clothes you wear are a little more baggy
To accommodate those places that are droopy and saggy
But in spite of all the changes in you
We promise not to spread the news.
For not all women who reach 50 anymore
Can look like Joan Collins or Zsa Zsa Gabor.
–Love Robin, Shelley, Tracy and Steven 1p

Parkway to be open as long as possible

INGLESIDE—The Long Sault Parkway, which stretches from the Village of Ingleside to Long Sault, will be accessible to vehicles as long as weather conditions permit this winter, said Gabriele Thomas, a spokesperson from the St. Lawrence Parks Commission.

In a press release issued Wednesday, the media contact said driving access will be determined on a day-to-day basis. When road conditions deteriorate due to snowfall or ice accumulation, the Parkway will be closed as long as such conditions exist.

Thomas gave no indication why the SLPC, which manages the Parkway, is no longer able to maintain the 11 km causeway during the winter months. However, it's believed cost considerations were a major factor.

"People are still welcome to drive along the Parkway until inclement weather makes it necessary to close the gates in the interest of public safety," she said, encouraging visitors wishing to walk, ski, snowshoe or snowmobile to do so.

Williamsburg Seniors Christmas

WILLIAMSBURG—On Tuesday, December 22, 31 members and two visitors enjoyed a delightful Christmas dinner, at the Williamsburg Township Seniors meeting in the Municipal Building.

"O Canada" was sung, opening the meeting, after which president Hilda thanked everyone for their help, and read a Christmas verse, "Once in Royal David's City".

Sympathy was expressed to the Graham McPherson family and to Bill and Audrey Whitteker.

December birthdays were celebrated with the singing of "Happy Birthday". Correspondence was read and discussed, and a donation of $250 will be sent to the Canadian Cancer Society.

Ruth Casselman was in charge of the program with music provided by Thelma Bradford, readings by Ruth, Enid Dalrymple, Doris Hill, and Helen Cameron. There was card playing during the remainder of the afternoon. Thelma concluded the program with a sing-along enjoyed by all.
