On Friday, June 23rd, at 7:30 p.m., the Grade Eight Graduation Exercises were held at Iroquois Public School. The following is a list of the Graduates:

The programme started with "O Canada" and Scott Payne and Kim Brown introduced the class with a humorous Who's Who.

Mr. M. N. Hutchison, Superintendent of Schools, addressed the Graduates. Mr. Lorne Mellan, Area Trustee, made the presentation of the Diplomas. Impressions of School Life was done by Kevin Fader. Susan Merkley thanked the Staff for their patience and hard work throughout the years to make their graduation possible.

Judy Balint presented Mrs. Gail Telford with a gift as she is leaving next year. She wished her the best in the years ahead and expressed the class' appreciation for her time and work in the past year.

Mr. Shaw, Principal of the school, spoke to the parents and the graduates, and outlined the highlights of the school year. Coffee and cookies were served at the end of the evening to round out a very successful night.

Knox P.Y.P.S. present report before congregation

Members of the Knox P.Y.P.S. and their leader, Miss Anne Yee, presented a dialogue-sermon on a recent training experience, at the morning worship service of Knox Presbyterian Church, Sunday, June 25th. A large attendance of members was swelled by the annual church-parade of the Moonlight Chapter of the Iroquois Order of the Eastern Star.

Having attended a Youth Seminar at the Deaconess Training College in Toronto, the weekend of June 16-18, Misses Gail Smollett, Renee Barnhardt, Anne Yee and Messrs. Jeff Martell and Gary Lockhart presented an admirable dialogue-sermon on their experiences at the Seminar and relative to the issues surrounding Christian Education in the Church today in relationship to the Christian Mission. The Rev. John Hibbs Pastor, was the panel director.

During the service, Mrs. Irene Haldane, Worthy Matron, and Mr. Donald Hare, Worthy Patron of the Order of the Eastern Star, read the Scripture Lessons for the day, and the Knox Senior Choir sang the stirring spiritual, "Steal Away".

Combined Services with the Iroquois United Church commence in the Knox sanctuary on Sunday, July 2nd, with the Rev. W. Brian Gee, officiating for the month of July during the Rev. Hibbs' absence on vacation leave. Combined choirs, lay readers, ushers and receptionists have been arranged for the summer months between the two congregations, and a special sermon-series on the Ten Commandments, entitled, "God's Yes to Life".

Visitors this summer most cordially welcome!

Wedding Announcement

Mrs. Mary Hill Fox, of Maitland, is pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of her only daughter, Karen Leslie Fox, to Mr. Kenneth Howard Kirkby, eldest son of Mr. & Mrs. Kenneth Kirkby, Iroquois.

Ceremony to take place in St. James Anglican Church, Maitland, in August.

Kindergarten Congratulations

The Kindergarten of St. Mary's Separate School received their "Bachelor of Nursery Rhymes" on Monday, June 19th before their proud parents, school friends and teacher, Mrs. Eleanor Allison. Each child, attired in their mortar-board and collar, received from Sister Leonard, their principal, a "Graduation" diploma which marks the completion and success of their year in Kindergarten. The children began the afternoon by displaying their singing and dancing talents in "The Tale of Peter Rabbit", followed by the Graduation. Tea and a beautifully decorated Graduation cake was then served by the Kindergarten to their parents. Best of luck to the Kindergarten!

United-Presbyterian Summer of '72

As in the past, the congregations of Knox Presbyterian Church and Iroquois United Church will join together again this summer for combined worship. However, there is a difference, as their efforts are taking on a more ordered form, under the theme "The Summer of '72". This is a ten week program, and will center around sermons based on the Ten Commandments, the responsibilities to be shared by the two ministers and their lay people.

During July, Rev. Brian Gee will conduct worship in Knox Presbyterian Church, and during August, Rev. John Hibbs will conduct worship in the United Church. The tenth Sunday, September 3rd, will see both ministers sharing leadership in worship in the United Church. The hour of worship for all Sundays is 9:00 a.m.

An added feature for "The Summer of '72" is a sharing of ushering duties, the choir selections, and the reading of the Scriptures by laymen, with personnel drawn equally from both congregations.

In all, this is a team effort, in the hope that "The Summer of '72" for people of both churches will be a time of creative fellowship.

In Hospital

Wilfred Hagarty, who has been a patient in St. Vincent De Paul Hospital, Brockville, for the past three weeks, underwent surgery last Friday morning.

Anyone looking skyward a week ago Saturday would have seen the most spectacular display of Northern Lights in recent months, for several hours they filled the whole sky.

It's that time again....

If it happened only once a summer, the story would still be an all too familiar one. A family goes to their cottage or favourite beach for a week-end of fun and relaxation.

After unpacking and changing into their swim suits, they head down to the water's edge.

The children are all playing together on shore. The parents close their eyes to enjoy the sun, and fall asleep. Suddenly they're awakened by the shouts of other people. They see lifeguards combing the water for signs of an unattended child who suddenly disappeared. Sometimes a life is saved. Sometimes a life is tragically lost. But by that time it is far too late to think about water safety measures which could have prevented the child's disappearance in the first place.

Fortunately many Canadians do think about water safety, and the story of their summer is fulfilled and safe as well.

For 26 years the Red Cross Water Safety Service has helped Canadians stay alive with water safety. The rules are simple. But they can help keep your family safe.

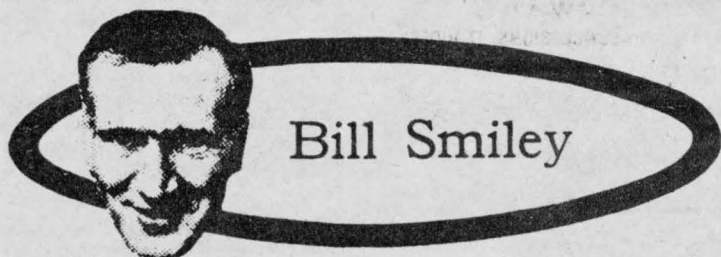

Supervise and educate your children. If they can't swim, contact your local Red Cross Water Safety Service and enquire about local swimming programs.

Even if your children do swim, always keep them in sight. If you know where they are and what they're doing, you can make sure they play safe.

Swim only in supervised areas and at times when the beach is supervised by professional lifeguards. In unfamiliar waters, debris or sudden drop-offs which you can't see can hurt you.

Always swim with a buddy. If trouble should occur, someone will be there to help.

So enjoy the water this summer, and stay alive with Red Cross Water Safety.

IT'S CALLED OPTING OUT!

by Bill Smiley

Occasionally, in the desert of wars and deaths and fires and strikes in the newspapers, one comes across something that is like a cool drink of water.

I had that experience this very morning. The story concerned Gene MacLellan. The name won't be familiar to most of my square old readers, but will be to my younger ones, if I have any.

MacLellan is a Canadian song-writer who has made it big in the music world. One of his songs, Snowbird, became a million-record seller for singer Anne Murray. That led to a wave of song successes, which in turn led to an avalanche of royalty cheques.

Well, dear reader, and you'd better take a deep breath at this point, MacLellan is quitting. No, he hasn't broken his guitar arm. He hasn't had a heart attack. He hasn't had a shattering emotional experience. He is dropping out because he is making too much money and does not want the pressure of responsibilities it caused.

He is giving up his interest in a company set up to handle his affairs, and has asked that the royalties be used in part to help young performers.

He has abandoned the farm he bought in P.E.I., and given away most of his possessions. He and his wife left with no definite plans, "probably" to hitchhike through Europe.

Canadian Press quotes MacLellan: "I don't know what I'll do. I don't know when or if I'll come back." Isn't that a refreshing little story? I envy him, and many others caught in the material treadmill will too, I'm sure.

Of course, I'm not naive enough to compare him to Diogenes, who lived in a barrel and owned nothing but a drinking bowl. Some of those royalties will still find their way into MacLellan's pocket, and he won't be begging in the streets.

But I admire a man, or woman, who can turn his or her back on the whole thing and walk away.

More and more of our young people are doing it, some for the worst of reasons, some for the best.

Some opt out because they've decided to let George do it. They deliberately become bums, have no scruples whatever about begging, stealing, accepting welfare. They are dirty, promiscuous, malodorous and blasphemous. But often highly intelligent.

On the other side of the coin are the young people who get off the boat for different reasons. At some point they take a clear-eyed look at their parents, at the lives they themselves are living, and decide, "This is not for me."

This second group tends to be idealistic. They want to create. They want to make a life-style that doesn't depend on status and the buck. They will work extremely hard for something they think is worth doing. They're almost invariably gentle, tolerant and reasonably clean. They are not bums, but seekers after something they don't see in our society. They use the same four-letter words the other group uses, but unselfconsciously. They are not blasphemous, but in a strange way, religious.

Friends of ours have a son, Mike. His parents despaired of him. He had a fantastic I.Q., but kept flunking in high school because he was bored silly. Never did finish school. Bummed around, worked a bit, quit. Then he became a Bahai. He is at present pioneering the faith, as they call it, at Baker Lake in the Northwest Territories, among the Eskimos.

He's happy, working hard, and wants to get some more schooling so that he can go back and teach Eskimo children. His parents are proud of him.

Here was a lad, charming, witty, handsome. He had every opportunity to go to university, and would have made a mark in society. He chose otherwise, but may be making a bigger mark, in the long run.

Our own son has done pretty much the same sort of thing. He too, if you'll pardon it, is charming, witty and handsome. He has a great musical talent. He is highly intelligent. After a couple of goes at university, he quit. He had his wild times and bad times. Now he too is a Bahai. He doesn't have a degree, but he can talk rings around most university professors, in French or English.

He works at a tough job, second chef in a restaurant, to support himself. He had a chance to be a bartender for more money, but serving liquor is against his principles. He planned to go to Frobisher to pioneer the faith. Then he thought there were enough "missionaries" there and made a deliberate decision to attempt to spread the faith in the east end of Montreal.

I can't see much future in trying to convert to Bahai any substantial number of French-Canadian Catholics. But Hugh has a peace and serenity and a simplicity of life that one can only envy. He doesn't want any "things", just enough to keep alive and keep covered. I wish I were twenty years younger.

SPACESHIPS AND SANDWICHES

"Okay, we've landed, now let's get out and look at this old moon!"

My two small boys are at it again. Today, the old gray stump is a spaceship. Tomorrow it may be a fort or a castle. More practically, at lunchtime it's a picnic table.

Right now the side yard is my sons' world. Behind a picket fence, they roam the seas and sky in imagination, the sound of their voices reassuring me of their safety.

It won't always be this way. Someday, they'll leave the back yard forever, swashbuckling through a world of schools and camps, friends and parties.

How strange it will be—not to guide their every footstep. Where am I to get the courage? Fortunately, I can answer my own question. I have my church, and so do my boys. As a source of great goodness, it will guide them all their days.

Why Fish Don't Need Sun Glasses

Sun glasses may bring comfort to fishermen on bright days, but what can fish do about brilliant light? Unlike mammals and birds, fish lack eyelids to close, and they certainly don't have sun glasses. Nor can they contract or expand the irises of their eyes to compensate for light conditions.

The fact that fish usually prefer shade is an indication that direct sunlight bothers them. This helps explain why during summer, when the sun's rays strike water at a more direct angle, the best fishing usually occurs in early morning, late evening, or at night.

Studies by fishing expert Red Fisher at Mercury outboards, indicate there is a relationship between the amount of sunlight penetrating the water, and the way fish behave. By understanding how fish react to sunlight, anglers can change their methods to suit conditions and have more success.

Early in the year fish seek shade under docks, bridges, overhanging banks, around large rocks and in similar places, all generally in shallow water. As a lake's water warms fish will move deeper where sunlight is diffused. How far down depends in part upon oxygen content. Remember that bass school in deep holes during the hottest part of day in summer.

Another factor the Mercury fishing expert found important in selecting where to fish on bright days is the wind. Wave-chopped water breaks up the sun's penetration, scattering and diffusing the brilliant light. Fish, even minnows, choose times such as this to come nearer the surface. Cloudy, windy summer days are often good times to fish in shallow water.

New Directions in Housing

Great changes have occurred since 1938 when the National Housing Act was first passed and Central Mortgage and Housing (CMHC) was created. Initially, modest assistance was given to home builders but the role of CMHC has progressively expanded. Its insured loans of up to ninety-five per cent of approved value with repayment spread out over as many as forty years, coupled with direct loans in localities where commercial lenders do not operate provided good housing for millions of Canadians. Increasingly, it has assumed the obligation of providing decent housing for those not able to pay for it by concentration on low rental housing and senior citizens' housing. The result has been that in the last four years, more than two billion dollars has been expended for low rental housing - much larger than the amount spent in all the previous post-war years on such projects.

Some Disappointments

Not all CMHC programs have succeeded. One lamentable failure was the inability to stimulate municipalities and provincial governments to participate in land assembly schemes financed as to seventy-five per cent by CMHC which, where they have operated, have greatly reduced the cost of land. Urban renewal, upon which high hopes were fixed in the mid-sixties, has now been terminated because experience has demonstrated its results are inadequate and socially counter-productive. The idea of bulldozing down whole sections of a city has been shown not only to be economically wasteful but largely destructive of the poor community intended to be benefitted.

Creation of New Financial Markets for Housing

The new policies take two forms. First, the Residential Mortgage Financing Act is directed at the mobilization of the immense funds which will be required to provide the estimated forty-one billion dollars necessary for housing in the next decade. New financing institutions are being created, particularly a kind of central mortgage bank which will create a mortgage market and improve the ability of the mortgage sector to compete for funds in capital markets.

New Concepts

The National Housing Act is being reshaped to provide new and sensible approaches to our housing and urban planning problems. They recognize facts which have become plain to all of us. Old houses can frequently be rehabilitated at less cost and with greater benefits to the occupants and our cities in general than the alternative of tearing down the old and building replacement housing. The social needs of Canada are not always served by grouping people of low income together in huge public housing projects and in accentuating differences in the social structure. In the long run, there are advantages in providing modest assistance to low income families to enable them to bring dilapidated housing up to standards and to take on responsibilities as owners of houses rather than require continued reliance on public housing projects which, by every standard, are more expensive to administer. The new programs will harness the instinct for "self help" for those receiving benefits.

New Programs

The new programs were developed after close consultation with provincial and municipal governments and include:

- Neighbourhood Improvement Program (NIP) providing a system of federal government loans and grants for planning, land acquisition and development activities for urban neighbourhood rehabilitation;
- Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP) matching federal and provincial grants plus federal loans for home owners and landlords for rehabilitation of sub-standard, low income housing;

- Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) providing federal low-cost loans geared to income and matching federal provincial grants to permit low income families to become home owners as an alternative to public housing;

- Land Assembly Program providing extended measures for provinces and municipalities for assembly of land for a wide range of uses associated with residential development which will facilitate larger scale land banking for long-term planning and the development of new communities;

- Housing Sponsored by Non-Profit Corporations providing up to one hundred per cent financing for senior citizen, family and other special purpose housing projects;

- Co-operative Housing Associations to be expanded and assisted as vehicles for the assisted home purchase and rehabilitation grants and loans programs;

- Expanded Housing Research and community planning and greater CMHC involvement in experimental housing projects and the provision of

"starter" funds to individuals or groups planning low income housing projects. Provincial Government Co-operation

These programs are not limited to our big cities but will apply to all communities where need exists. What is of paramount importance is that the major projects will require provincial government support and participation and the governments must agree on planning and priorities.

Today, in general, Canadians are better housed than they have ever been. We are building homes in record numbers - at the rate of 250,000 per year, substantially in excess of the target set by the Economic Council of Canada on the basis of projected demand. But the need of all sections of the population has not been met and not enough has been done to assist urban planning. The new proposals, which will commit $457,000,000. in the first year, are designed to spread the opportunity for better housing to all Canadians and to contribute to the preservation and the formation of better communities.

Knox Presbyterian Women hold closing outing

Fourteen members of the Knox Presbyterian Women's Evening Auxiliary held their closing meeting for the summer months with an outing to the Flamingo Restaurant in Cornwall on Monday evening. The Rev. John Hibbs was guest of the group.

A sumptuous dinner was enjoyed at the restaurant, following which a short business meeting was held, with plans being made for the wedding-reception to be held on June 30th in the church-hall, and members being delegated their assignments. A treasurer's report was given by Miss A. Yee, following which the group made a donation to the work of the Seaway Community Services "summer camp" program, as well as agree to the making/purchasing of 30 dozen of cookies for the camp. Members were also appointed to look after Nursery Class responsibilities during the months of July and August and in joint arrangement with the Iroquois United Church Women, both groups sharing a member each for these classes during combined worship in both congregations.

A vote of appreciation was extended to those who provided transportation for the evening, Miss A. Yee, Mrs. M. Ward, and the Rev. Hibbs. The next regular meeting of the Presbyterian Women will be held on Monday evening, September 25th, in the church-hall.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Jay Hitsman, who passed away June 30, 1971.

He is gone, but not forgotten. And as dawns another year, For our lonely hours of thinking, Thoughts of him are always near. Days of sadness will come o'er us, Many think the wound is healed, But they little know the sorrow, That lies in the heart concealed.

Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Muriel, Rex and Bonnie Keeler.

In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Jay Hitsman, who left us on June 30th, 1971.

We often sit and think of him When we are alone.

For memory is the only friend, That grief can call its own. Like ivy on the withered oak, When other things decay, Our love for him will still be green And never fade away.

Always remembered and sadly missed by daughter Blanche Lewis, John and family.

SAYS

OVEREATING — NO CONSOLATION

Though there is no magic trick which will solve your personal weight control problem or that of some member of your family, there are some basic principles you can follow which can be classed as a "Magic Formula."

I think the greatest single problem that defeats most people trying to control their weight is hunger — hunger so great that they often go on an eating binge and put their weight right back on.

When the hunger syndrome strikes, men and women sometimes become depressed and negative in their attitude and begin to rationalize that it's not worthwhile. And before they know it they're eating their heads off again.

The reason some people eat a great deal need not only be to satisfy a large appetite: many people eat for non-physical reasons. This is a habit that's acquired in childhood as parents offer food as a consolation or reward.

Dr. Bryant J. Cratty, one of the world's leading psychologists, points out that people can generally be separated into two categories: reducer or augmenter. This means that in discomfort or task areas people either reduce the problem or augment (increase) the difficulty. People in the latter group usually say "Oh, I'll never be able to do that" or "This is going to be too hard."

By identifying your type, you realize that you can make your weight control problem a lot tougher than it really is — or you can reduce the problem by your thinking and your attitude. The more you downgrade the problem, the more you accept it cheerfully and before you know it, you've dealt with it.

In my programme for weight watchers, I've developed a participation approach for helping overweight people. You are given an eating programme and when your determination grows weak there's someone there to help you.

But if you're losing weight on your own, you should prepare a list of food and drink which will come to your rescue when you are in the mood to blow it all.

Put these life savers to work for you now. They might not solve all your problems but they will help you with your weight control problem.

Members and descendants assemble

There assembled again at the Canadian Legion Hall, Cardinal, some 70 members and descendants of the Jacob and Elizabeth clan, together with several representatives of other Merkley families. Mr. Gilbert Merkley, together with his wife and family, led the group as MC. He presented the group with a very lovely crest surmounted by the "LION" to be used at our yearly gatherings. Mr. Frank Merkley of Williamsburg said grace at a sumptuous noon dinner. A good number of American members in attendance made it a happy occasion for all. The younger groups were happy to enjoy the lovely lawns and waters of the grand old St. Lawrence. Minutes of last year's meeting, read by Mrs. Ernest Merkley, showed that we had enjoyed a happy, healthy year. A moment's silence was observed in memory of those who had passed to higher fellowship. Two 94 year old boys were present: Mr. Ernest Merkley of Winchester and Mr. Willie Merkley of Chesterville. The youngest, a 2 year old little lady, was given a souvenir silver coin. It was moved, seconded and agreed that we assemble again next year - at the same time, same place.

Knox Presbyterian W.M.S.

The June meeting of Knox Presbyterian church W.M.S. Auxiliary was held in the church hall with the President, Mrs. Marie Mearns presiding. A hymn and prayer by Miss Daisey Mackenzie followed. The responsive scripture reading was taken from Luke 19, verses 11-26. Miss Nina McCowan introduced the study.

The film "World I live In" was shown by Miss Mackenzie and she spoke on the study period which was very interesting. Mrs. Perry read Psalm 96, 1-13 and a hymn closed the portion of the study.

The minutes were read following the study period by Mrs. Perry, followed by the treasurer's report by Miss McCowan. Final plans for Presbytery dinner and plans and dates were set for the fall Thanksgiving in October. This was the last meeting until September 19. Mrs. Mearns closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Linda Barkley hostess to U.C.W.

Mrs. Linda Barkley was hostess to the U.C.W. of White Church on Monday evening, June 19th.

Having charge of the program, Mrs. Barkley opened the worship with hymn 490 "I am Thine O Lord" followed by the responsive reading of Psalm 700.

The study period consisted of two very interesting readings "The Call to Serve in the Church" taken from the book "Your Faith and Your Life Work" by Elmer C. Millian, and one from the book "God Be in My Life".

Mrs. Barkley closed the programme with prayer. Mrs. Carol Thompson was appointed to buy the items requested for the overseas relief Bale.

The collection amounted to $2.15. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A large number of the May Calendar receipts have been received. The response has been most outstanding. The Women of White Church wish to extend their thanks to all for their donations.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. The hostess served a lovely lunch and a social hour brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

AN OUTDOORS BOY

Terry will soon be five. It may not be possible to find adopting parents for this handsome youngster before his birthday, but it will be wonderful if he can be settled in a permanent home in time to start kindergarten in September.

Tall and slim, Terry has curly, light brown hair, big blue eyes and olive skin. His background is black (West Indian) and white.

Terry is in excellent health but he has met most of his milestones later than average. His speech is not yet up to his age level, which is frustrating both for Terry and for people who are trying to understand him.

This active boy loves to play outdoors, especially riding his tricycle. He enjoys the company of other children, though he sometimes finds it hard to share toys. He is always concerned about his own possessions — a new pair of shoes has to go to bed with him so he will be certain they will be there in the morning.

Here is a laddie who needs a loving, understanding family where both parents will want to spend a lot of time with him. They should be able to overlook limited information on his background, and to accept the fact that he will probably be a slow learner. There should be no other children close to him in age.

To inquire about adopting Terry, please write to Today's Child, Box 888, Station K, Toronto. For general adoption information, write your Children's Aid Society.

Tom Warren presented a plaque in memory of Rowena Warren to the Ladies Auxiliary of Iroquois Branch 370 at the June meeting. Ladies Auxiliary President Norma Delegarde accepted the plaque and Branch 370 vice-president Ken Easter assisted in the presentation. The plaque will be used for a memorial list of deceased members.

H.E. Biccum Re-Elected Chairman Dundas County Advisory Board

Mr. H. E. Biccum of Winchester was re-elected Chairman of the Dundas County Advisory Board at his twenty-first annual meeting which was held in Chesterville on Wednesday, June 7. Reporting the progress made by The Canadian National Institute for the Blind during the past year, Mr. Biccum expressed particular pleasure that the CNIB has obtained and put into use a van that will visit smaller communities particularly in Northern Ontario, bringing eye care to thousands of people who might otherwise find this difficult to obtain.

The guest speaker, Mr. L. D. Maiden, Program Consultant, Special Education for Region 10 (Ottawa Region), gave a very informative talk on changes in educational methods, i.e. open concept schools, new teaching approaches and the merit of departure from the old grade percentage system. He also spoke of the improved methods for teaching handicapped children, as well as their integration into regular schools rather than special schools. It was Mr. Maiden's conviction that when possible and practical, the integration and association of all students was preferable to separation. He combined his talk with interesting visual audience participation tests to accentuate his points.

Entertainment was provided by musicians from the North Dundas Orchestra and Mr. Everett Rush, baritone of Cornwall accompanied by Mr. George Patrick. Dinner was served by the Chesterville Women's Institute. Arrangements for the evening were under the direction of Mrs. Eric Casselman of Chesterville.

The nominating committee report was presented by Mrs. Lorne Kinkaid of Morrisburg. The officers for the coming year are President - Mr. Howard E. Biccum, Secretary - Mrs. J. Bower Potter and Treasurer - Mr. John Foster.

Root Maggots And Your Garden

Root maggots can be a very destructive group of insects for some of Ontario's crops. Professor H. W. Coble, Department of Environmental Biology, University of Guelph, outlines some of the facts about this group which includes the cabbage maggot, the onion maggot, seed-corn maggot and others.

The appearance and habits of these insects are similar. In fact, says Professor Coble, they are difficult to tell apart. However, each species is particular about its host plant. The onion maggot develops only on onions. The cabbage maggot attacks cabbage, cauliflower, turnips, and radishes as well as weeds of the mustard family. Seed maggots attack large seeds such as corn, beans, peas, cucurbits, potato sets, and newly-set tobacco.

The life cycles of the insects are similar. All spend the winter as pupae in the soil, close to the roots or seeds where they developed the year before. The adult flies - gray flies a little smaller than the house fly - start to emerge the first week in May. Then they lay their eggs beside the host plant. The tiny maggots hatch in a few days or they may remain by the plant for a longer period during cold periods in May. Upon hatching, the maggots immediately work down into the soil and rasp their way into the root or germinating seed. The effects vary. The onion maggot will destroy one or more younger plants. A moderate to heavy infestation of the cabbage maggot will kill cabbage and cauliflower. Seed maggots will cause "bald heads" in emerging beans. And germinating corn may be destroyed by a combination of injury plus rots in the damaged area.

Chemical control of the maggots was hampered by developed resistance to the now-illegal aldrin and similar insecticides. Organophosphorus and carbamate insecticides are now used to control them. However, says Professor Coble, since each crop is grown differently, the methods and rates of application and formulation of material vary from crop to crop. For precise instructions, obtain Publication 363, 1972 Vegetable Production Recommendations; Publication 296, 1972 Field Crop Recommendations; or Publication 298, 1972 Tobacco Production Recommendations, available from local offices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

Travel Councillors at Upper Canada Village

40 Travel councillors visited Upper Canada Village and were entertained at a buffet luncheon by Ontario Parks Authorities under direction of Gerald W. Arthurs, Public Relations officer. These councillors, many of them students employed at information centres in Ontario, Quebec and U. S. A., were a portion of a group of eighty, enjoying a four-day, 1000-mile orientation tour of Canada's Capital region and Eastern Ontario. They had spent two days in Ottawa and those from the northern areas were visiting our area while these familiar with the south were enjoying a northern trip. The tour was organized by the Ontario Ministry of Industry and Tourism and Canada's Capital Visitors and Convention Bureau. The object of the project was to familiarize these key people with the tourist attractions in Eastern Ontario.

Bernard V. Bedore, Regional Supervisor of the Ontario Ministry of Industry and Tourism said, "Our objective is to provide the councillors with a background of information. These folks are, in many situations, the initial personal contact with our visitors. It is essential that they be in a position to provide effective service to the travelling public".

Councillors on the tour represented tourism organizations in Quebec, New York State, the Ontario Tourism Department, Major Oil Company Tour Services, Chambers of Commerce in Eastern Ontario and the Ottawa Bureau. Glen Moore, Executive vice-president of Canada's Capital Visitors and Convention Bureau said, "Our plan is to have people from Cornwall visit Pembroke and vice versa". In view of the fact that 80 percent of the visitor traffic is automobile, we are pleased to have personnel from Ontario Motor League and other departments on the tour. This can have long-range effects on tourism to the entire region.

At the Upper Canada Village luncheon, Ronald Johnson, local Information Officer for the Parks Commission, outlined features of the Village and gave brochures. Present were: Reid Garth, supervisor for the area with the Ministry of Industry and Tourism; Alderman Charles St. Germain, President, Lower Ottawa Valley Regional Tourist Council and Sam Hill of Cornwall, Ministry of Industry and Tourism.

OFF THE CUFF

By Charles Edwards

It's that time of year again when mothers, in addition to their regular duties, take on the role of playground supervisor, warden, chauffeur and nurse. If the last day of school is greeted with enthusiasm by the kids, it is greeted with an equal amount of apprehension by their mother. This year the debate about the actual date of school closing had all the ear marks of a horse race or a lottery. There were three choices the eager mother could put her money on.

First, there was the 23rd of June - the earliest that the little people had been set free in years. It's hard to figure just who started that story around, but before it got too far, another story went the rounds that the magic date was the 27th. Then it was changed to the 29th amid cries of grants and provincial assistance. Whatever the outcome, by the time this is printed, the whole thing will be history, if that's the stuff of which history is made.

The actual date that school officially ends is of little consequence in any case. Anybody who ever went to school can testify to the fact that there is little in the way of book learning that happens after about the 15th of June. Those last 2 weeks are just thrown in to test the mettle of the teachers. These are the days that separate the men from the boys, so to speak, in the teaching profession.

The recipe is invariably the same from year to year. Take about 30 over excited kids who don't really want to come in from the outside in the morning anyway. Add an arithmetic or grammar review (it's always arithmetic or grammar - why not an art or phys. ed. review?) Then throw in a couple of recesses that always seem too short. Simmer the whole mess in 2 of the hottest weeks of summer. It could snow on the first of July, but it's always a safe bet that the last few weeks of school will be scorers. After the teachers have wrestled with little Billy and Sue in the heat at school all day, it's up to Mom and Dad to lure them to a steaming bedroom. Then it falls to mother to drag them out of bed in the morning for another day of school.

We can remember the days when the teachers "forgot" the bell and let recess linger for an extra five or ten minutes. We thought it was for the bene-

Task Force Announced

Education Minister Thomas Wells announced the formation of a Task Force to study the question of school closing dates and the length of the school year.

The action is the result of a decision by several school boards in the province to release elementary school students up to a week earlier than the June 30 legal closing date. On June 9 the province's school boards were notified that schools cannot be closed before June 30.

Mr. Wells said the 10-member Task Force will meet next month and submit a report which will aid in the development of a clear policy for the next school year.

Mr. Wells said that the conflict over the closing is an historical one between the secondary and elementary schools.

June has traditionally been largely a non-teaching month in the secondary schools to allow for examinations. Students who do not have to write exams have been allowed to leave school prior to the legal fit of the students, but in retrospect, they probably had their own best interests at heart. The sigh of relief that the teachers breathe on the last day of school is second only to the one that the mothers breathe on the day after Labour Day.

closing day. Elementary schools were never allowed to release students early.

Mr. Wells said that in recent years the traditional grade 13 examinations have been eliminated and other examination procedures have been modified. In addition, summer schools have expanded and the community use of schools has grown, which makes this an ideal time for a full review of the definition of the school year, he said.

Task Force chairman is Harry K. Fisher, Director of the Ministry's Supervisory Services Branch.

One of the members on the Task Force is Mr. Robert Howald, Morrisburg; Coordinator, Seaway District High School, Iroquois.

HOLIDAY IN HISTORY

UPPER CANADA VILLAGE

ONTARIO'S
LIVING HERITAGE

It is 1784-1867. You are there. A time machine has drawn you back into the 19th century, back to the days before Canada's Confederation. You will see the smithy, demonstrations of spinning and weaving, the Upper Canada mail coach clattering over the corduroy roads of yesterday. You will enjoy home-cooked meals in the 1850 surroundings of Willard's Hotel. History comes magically to life at Upper Canada Village. You will love it.

Close at hand are lush green parks, sandy beaches, marinas, fully equipped camping and trailer sites, an excellent golf course, riding stables and all sorts of outstanding recreational facilities. Come to Upper Canada Village and have a holiday in history. Upper Canada Village is just off the MacDonald Cartier Freeway (Highway 401).

Favorite Fish Foods

If you could list all the foods eaten by fish, the total would be in the thousands. But, there are some natural foods common to almost all waters that are of prime importance to fish. Knowing these, and recognizing them, can make your fishing more productive.

In addition to eating other fish, fish also consume great quantities of mollusks, worms, frogs, tadpoles, leeches, and untold numbers of terrestrial and aquatic insects. In addition, information from Red Fisher at Mercury outdoors shows that even small mammals and birds have fallen victim to large fish.

Probably the least understood of fish foods are the insects. Heading this list are the dragonflies. They are common around almost any body of water, and are fish foods in both the winged and nymph forms. An oddity is that some large nymph forms of dragonflies can capture small fish and eat them.

Damselflies are cousins of dragonflies. Fishermen often see them alighting on bits of wood or leaves floating on the water.

Mayflies, in both winged and nymph forms, are favorite fish foods. Trout anglers are known to stalk streams with great patience, waiting for a mayfly hatch. At times, they become so thick that driving on city streets at night can be dangerous, especially beneath street lights. Bodies of dead and dying mayflies become so numerous the streets become slick.

Other insect forms important as fish foods are the stonefly, water scorpion, water boatman, giant water bug and the hellgrammite. The latter, especially in larva form, are an important fish food. Bait anglers find them by turning stones, watching for the inch long, pincer-jawed larva and catching them by hand.

Another favorite method is to place a small-mesh net below the area to be searched, then turn over the rocks and let the current carry the hellgrammites to the net.

Near-Blind And Disabled Now Receive Talking Books

In the Kitchener, Ont. area, 60 people with a severe reading disability now have a service that allows them to listen to books.

The books are on cassette tapes which are delivered to the homes of the disabled for playback on home tape machine.

This kind of service has long been available to the sightless through the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. But a group of seven young people here are providing a similar service to the 60, who, while not blind, cannot read at all or very little because of some other disability.

The project began last winter under a federal government Local Initiatives Program grant and is being carried on this summer with an $8,990 grant from The Opportunities for Youth Program.

By fall, Bruno Diesner, one of the key workers, says the group hopes to have the service sufficiently advanced that the Kitchener public library, from where the service operates, can take it over.

The main thing, he says, is to have a volunteer case worker for each of the disabled service users. The volunteer worker delivers and picks up tapes, knows the reading tastes of the disabled person and can advise him or her on the availability of "the talking books".

At the moment, only about one-quarter of these people receive volunteer assistance from the community. The project staff looks after the remainder.

Users, who range in age from 12 to 80, suffer a variety of disabilities. There are a handful of cerebral palsy cases, an ailment that inhibits mental and physical co-ordination, people recovering from strokes, and a quadriplegic, who cannot use either arms or legs and cannot turn the page of a book.

"Some of our people are incapable of reading anything" Diesner says. "Some can only read for two minutes or so and their eyes fail. Some can only read large print."

Most of the playback machines are supplied by the CNIB which is co-operating with the program, and a local service club which financed the purchase of 25 commercial machines with a $1,700 donation.

The basic "talking books" inventory comes courtesy of the CNIB. But a lot of their book records had to be taped by the project people to fit the commercial playback machines.

The project is building up a stable of volunteer readers who will tape additional material during the summer to build up the basic CNIB inventory, which includes about 1,000 book titles.

Depending on the results of a survey, this material may cover the more enduring magazine and newspaper stories and additional book titles.

"Most of our users have short attention spans and are best serviced by short books or those of a light nature", he said.

Diesner, 25, fell into the project this spring after emerging from the University of Waterloo with a masters degree in economics and slim job prospects.

But he remains career-oriented, looking on the project as "valuable experience" in a quest for a permanent job. He's learned "what it takes to run a formal organization".

He regards the project as an experiment in providing a special service to a group of people who had been missed by society.

A Message from the O.P.P.

- When you become a bicycle owner you become a driver.
Parents:
Bicycling popularity has increased - and so have bicycle accidents. Bicycling is a great fun sport for children and adults alike! But, as in all sports, the enjoyment derived is directly proportionate to proper performance which can only be achieved through proper training.
If you are thinking of buying a bicycle for your child, or if he already has one, we urge you to seriously read and consider the following facts:
- All bicyclists, (regardless of age), using public roads or streets are subject to the same traffic rules and regulations that govern motorists. Among the many things parents and children must realize is that a street is for traffic. It is not a playground. To acknowledge this is highly important to the safety of a bicyclist.
- Bicycles come in all shapes and sizes. Some are simple to operate; others are complicated. The right size and design for the child can only be determined by his height, skill and experience.

- Many bicycles are mistakenly purchased with the idea that the child will grow into the bicycle. If the child cannot touch the ground with the ball of his foot, while sitting on the bicycle, then the bicycle is too big for him.
- The number of bicycle accidents is increasing steadily. For the most part these accidents are caused by the youngsters' total ignorance of traffic rules and regulations, improper choice of bicycle size and design and a lack of understanding of the capabilities of the vehicle and of the maintenance required. Parents have the responsibility to decide when the child has the ability to safely cope with traffic while on a bicycle.
In this day of high traffic density in residential and rural areas, children must be alert to the dangers of improper action on public thoroughfares and to the ways of avoiding these dangers. Leaving your child's safety entirely in the hands of motorists is expecting a great deal of others; a less than comforting thought.
Too many people think of bicycles as toys. Don't buy your child a bicycle and send him or her out to play in traffic. Throughout the coming weeks, the Ontario Provincial Police will be passing on safety messages which will assist you, the parent, in ensuring the safety of your child while riding his or her bicycle.

Dollars and Good Sense

We all know how difficult it is to get through the average day without a car. It seems we are becoming more and more dependent on them. We also know that cars are pretty expensive to own and operate - these days, but do you know how much?
It costs the average driver about $1500 a year to own and operate a standard American made automobile with an eight cylinder engine, automatic transmission and power steering. For an American compact car, deduct about $300, for a European compact take off $700.
With the exception of most sports cars, your costs are largely determined by the size and weight of the car you buy. The heavier, roomier and more comfortable the family car is, the more it's going to cost. Weight also means you'll probably need more expensive power options on your car.
How can you save some of this hard earned money, and still have the convenience of a car at your disposal? Well, you could hang onto your car a little longer. Depreciation is greatest during the first year of your car's life, but it drops sharply during the next few years. Of course, repair costs start to rise after a few years, too.
The time to trade is when the costs of upkeep start to outpace the depreciation costs. This varies according to different cars, but it's usually pretty close to four years.
During those four years, you can save money by being a smart owner. Follow your car's warranty program and continue recommended maintenance after the warranty expires.

In driving, stay within reasonable speeds and avoid the sharp stops, starts and turns that cut into gasoline usage and tire life. Keep proper air pressure in your tires and use the recommended grade of gasoline.
Lastly, as I've stated in the past, if you finance the car's purchase price, shop around for the best buy from the many lenders who may be available to you. There are credit unions, banks, savings and loan associations and consumer loan firms, among others, that you should check with for best rates - and best service and terms.
