Donald M. Fleming Addresses First Meeting, Canadian Club

The first dinner meeting of the Morrisburg and District Canadian Club for its 26th season was held last evening (Thursday) in the Club Rooms.

Guest speaker for the evening was Donald Fleming, K.C., M. P. for Toronto Eglinton. Mr. Fleming chose as his topic "Inside and Outside the Iron Curtain", and his large audience was very appreciative of his most interesting address. The speaker told of his experiences during the two months he spent in Europe one year ago slat fall while attending the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conferences. Most of his talk dealth with Greece and Germany.

The people of the Western democracies, he said, owe a great debt to, and could take a great lesson from the heroic stand of the Greek warriors who battled Naziism till resistance was no longer physically possible, and who have since the end of the late war, successfully battled Communism being fomented in their country. The Greeks, he said, were fully conscious of the considerable aid they have received from Canada during their trying times. In the event of any future wars between communist countries and the democratic nations, there could, he stated be no doubt of the outcome. The reason is that we have in our hands a spiritual weapon which is not to be found in any communist arsenal—our Christian faith.

The speaker of the evening was introduced by A. C. Casselman, K.C., M.P. for Grenville-Dundas and the appreciation of the club was expressed by R. H. Armstrong past president. Chairman was Dr. Will C. Davy who announced that the next meeting would be on May 10th.

The ladies of St. James Anglican Church provided a bountiful meal, and were thanked for their efforts by the speakers.

MORRISBURG MAN MISSES $90.00 AT FOTO-NITE

At last the name of a Morrisburg resident was called on Foto-Nite at the Cameo Theatre, but like those whose names had been called before he hadn't attended the show and he was poorer on Thursday morning by $85.00. The unlucky man this time was Mr. Graham Casselman of Morrisburg. This of course automatically ups the offer for next Wednesday's Foto-Nite to $90.00, so if your name is registered be sure to attend either next Tuesday or Wednesday. And if it is not registered, get that little item attended to now. Don't be late and sorry.

Now is also the time to register your child for the Most Beautiful Child Contest held on Wednesday nites in connection with Foto-Nite. This contest will go on as soon as a sufficient number of children are registered. Contact the Cameo Theatre for full details.

IMR. & MRS. WEIR HONOURED PRIOR TO DEPARTURE

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Weir, well-known Morrisburg residents were honored at a social evening held in St. James Hall last Thursday. They will be leaving here shortly for Barrie, Ont. Mr. Weir has for the past number of years been connected with the Department of Transport.

The evening was enjoyed at cards after which refreshments were served by the Women's Guild and the AYPA.

The rector, Rev. G. Oliver Davies, in a laudatory address paid tribute to the fine work and excellent co-operation of Mr. and Mrs. Weir and family, while they had been members of St. James' congregation and also during the time he had been in charge of St. Matthias' Church, Winchester, where the Weirs had worshipped before coming here. To Mrs. Weir he made a presentation of a beautiful sliver tray, and to Mr. Weir a leather billfold. On behalf of himself and the whole congregation, he wished them all blessings, health and happiness in their new home.

Other church officials and members of the congregation speaking of the excellent work and co-operation of Mr. and Mrs. Weir, were Alex Armstrong, people's warden, H. W. Graham, T. R. Parker and Mrs. S. G. Finnie.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Weir replied very feelingly to their friends of St. James, thanking them for their gifts and good wishes and expressing regret at their imminent departure.

Mrs. Alice Hanes

The funeral service for Mrs. Alice Hanes, one of this district's oldest and most favourably known residents was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Casselman on Saturday afternoon, with Rev. Gerald Fee, of Williamsburg United church officiating.

Mrs. Hanes' death occurred on Thursday afternoon, following several months of indifferent health. In spite of her advanced age, she was remarkably bright until the time of her death, enjoying the visits of her many friends.

The late Mrs. Hanes was born in Williamsburg Township November 2, 1851, a daughter of the late Peter Saddlemire and his wife Eliza Ann Beckstead, pioneer settlers of this township. Along with many others, they came to Canada following the Revolutionary War to make a new home. She was the last surviving member of a family of eight.

In 1879 she was married at Williamsburg to Donald Simon Hanes. They farmed for a time in Williamsburg, later going to Osnabruck, and after that to Matilda Township where her husband predeceased her in 1912 She made her home with her children from that time and for the past four years had been with her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Casselman.

She is survived by two sons, Allan Hanes and John Hanes, Iroquois; and three daughters, Mrs. Lucy Casselman, Mrs. Stanley Casselman and Mrs. Isaac Wilson, all of Morrisburg. There are also eight grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Rev. Mr. Fee, for the funeral, took his text from the 14th Chap. 14th Verse of Job. During the service, a favourite hymn of the deceased, "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder", was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Carmi Thompson and Mrs. Richard Thompson.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, all testifying to the high esteem in which this venerable lady was held.

Following the service, the body was placed in the vault at Williamsburg to await burial later at Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Among those from a distance attending the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Casselman of Kemptville; Miss Greta and Eva MacLean, Miss Ruth Thomas, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright, Florida; Mrs. Winnifred Casselman and Miss Shirley Casselman, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barkley and Mrs. Chas. ## BORROWING CAN BE VERY GOOD BUSINESS

If you want to make your farm more productive, more profitable, you amy be well advised to borrow money. If the purpose of the loan is sound, your borrowing can be very good business.

For instance, you may need a new plough, a new tractor or a new barn ....you may want to repair or modernize your farmhouse or other buildings....you may want to install an electric or heating system or improve your present one.

For these and a score of other purposes, a B of M farm improvement loan may be the answer to your need If you want to make your farm a better farm, why not call on Mr. MacLuckie, manager of the Bank of Montreal, and discuss your plans with him in confidence. His farming customers are borrowing money at very low cost and repaying it over extended periods.

THE FARM FRONT
by John Russell

The Spring cleanup season is here again, and it's time for burning dried grass, leaves, trash, brush and all the other odds and ends that gather around a place during the winter. But before you start, give a thought to this—HOW MANY PEOPLE WILL MEET DEATH BECAUSE OF SUCH CLEAN-UPS?

I haven't the full statistics for Canada, or the United States either. But I did see recently that last spring, in the State of Iowa alone, no less than fifteen people met death through these Spring bonfires; also, that most of such victims were children under ten years old, or adults over sixty.

To get the trash burned up without undue risk of life or limb, it will pay to follow these simple rules.

ONE: Don't leave bonfires or brush fires unattended.

TWO: Burn trash or rubbish in covered wire enclosures, or in incinerators.

THREE: Start open fires ONLY in the center of large cleared areas.

FOUR: Keep your fires small by adding only small amounts of trash at a time.

FIVE: Don't start grass or rubbish fires on a windy day.

SIX: Don't start bonfires late in the day, or around mealtime, when you can't be there to watch them.

SEVEN: Never use coal oil, gasoline, or any other inflammable liquid either to start a fire or to help keep it going.

EIGHT: Always stand on the upwind side of a fire. If your clothing should happen to catch fire, DON'T START TO RUN. Instead, roll on the ground and keep your head upwind. A blanket, sack or coat may be used to smother flames.

And now, something of interest—I hope—to those of you who raise chickens. Last year, out in the middle west, demonstration flock owners were divided into two groups; those that crowded chicks by allowing less than half a square foot per chick up to eight weeks old, and those who allowed that much or more.

The crowded group averaged 15 per cent mortality; the uncrowded group lost only 6 per cent. Cost of production in the first group was 39½ cents a pound; in the second it was only 31 cents. Comment is unnecessary; the facts speak for themselves.

If your chicks show a tendency to pile or crowd at night, your brooder house may be to blame. W. R. Whitfield, writing in Wallaces Farmer, has some worthwhile comments and suggestions regarding this.

Improper temperature conditions cause most crowding or piling. The trouble usually shows up when chicks are from a few weeks old up to roosting time. And the dangerous time of day is about sundown, or when chicks no longer can see to eat.

If all your brooder house windows are in the south wall, you are more likely to have crowding trouble. The old-fashioned string of south windows make that side of the house cooler and keep it lighted longer. The light encourages chicks to collect near the windows for late-in-the-day eating. Then the coolness causes them to pile up when darkness falls.

The trouble is worse under warm-room brooder conditions—when oil or coal brooders are used.

Crowding doesn't often happen with electric brooding, probably because lights usually are used with that kind of brooder. The brooder light seems to cut down on crowding, even when housing conditions aren't so good.

Piling seldom is reported in a brooder house which has the right number of windows in the right places. In one up-to-date experimental brooder house, for instance, there is just one window in each of three walls—east, south, west. That means there is little difference in either light or temperature over the entire floor area.

So chicks don't crowd to one side to eat just before sundown. They're scattered over the house to finish their eating; so when darkness comes they can sense the hover's heat and find their way back to a warm spot for their night's sleep.

If you have piling-up trouble because your brooder house is old-fashioned, you can fix things up in a hurry. Just remove all but one window on the south side (and cover roof windows), then add one to both east and west walls. Your house will be a lot safer for brooding in any kind of weather.

If you're suspicious of this idea, try this test: Cover the extra south windows with cardboard. If you have four, five or six windows on the south, cover the middle ones and leave just those on each end in use. If that improves the situation—as it probably will—then you can go ahead with a mor permanent rearrangement of windows.

Present Iowa State College recommendations call for not more than one window for each 10 linear feet of wall space in brooder houses.

At the church children's party: Oh, Vicar, will you sing your song to the children now, or shall we let them enjoy themselves for another half-hour?

Look, No Hands—Tony Rocca, one of the grunt-and-groan set's more versatile performers, disdains the use of commonplace headlocks and toeholds, preferring to flatten his opponent with an indelicate flying kick to the jaw. Victim of the unorthodox treatment in this match is Ali Baba, who would have done better with the aid of his Forty Thieves—he lost the bout.

SPORTS-&
by A Sixbit Critic

A favorite occupation of baseball and hockey fans, when they have nothing better to do and sometimes when they have, is picking the order of finish before the season begins. Most of us are satisfied to pick the teams we think will finish on top or, at the most, those that will be first, second and third.

However, there are some real sporting bugs who go right down the line from first to eighth—in baseball, that it. And if you imagine this is an easy thing to do we might say that the odds against predicting the exact order of finish in either major league are 40,400 to 1. The odds against picking both of them correctly 1,625,702,400.

(If you doubt the correctness of either of the above figures, get out your slide rule and dope it out yourself—or else put in a beef to Arthur Daley of The New York Times, from whom we swiped them.) * * *

All this serves as notice that we are about to make our annual National and American League predictions, and if they come to you a little bit late we apologize and hope you'll be able to catch up on any sleep you may have lost awaiting them. We shall not try and pick more than one in each loop, finding it hard enough to get two into the correct slots, let alone a dozen or more. (Last year we picked Boston Red Sox and Brooklyn Dodgers, but had the first mentioned knocked off in a last-minute photo finish, as some of you may recall.) * * *

In the American League our sentimental choice would be either the Philadelphia Athletics or the Detroit Tigers; and when we first began peering into our much battered crystal ball, it appeared as though the latter must get the call. But the more we studied the respective strengths of the respectice clubs, the more it looked as though we would have to settle, once again, for the Boston Red Sox.

On paper they looked invincible, in spite of the sneaking feeling that some of their key men show a slight tendency to choke up when the chips are down and the going tough. In fact if they should happen to get away to a good start—something they have failed to do in the past seasons—they might win the Junior League by as far as that proverbial strong country boy can throw the proverbial red apple.

Yes, as we said before, we had definitely decided on Mr. McCarthy's Red Sox. And then—and then—we happened to read about some doings which kicked our carefully compounded dope every whichway, and then some.

These doings concerned a gentleman of the name of Joseph DiMaggio, who will be 36 years of old age come November—which is plenty of age to be carrying on one's shoulders in big league circles. In addition, Mr. DiMaggio has been so troubled with aching gams that it was uncertain that he would even get to the barrier in this season's race. So here are just a couple of things which that poor over-aged cripple did in his first Yankee Stadium appearance—an Exhibition game with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"In the fifth inning he raced some 100 feet and robbed Brooklyn's Roy Campanella of a triple, and possibly of an inside-the-park-homer, with the most amazing catch witnessed in the Stadium since DiMaggio's job on a drive by Hank Greenburg a decade ago. —DiMag, stationed in dead center, broke toward his right when Campanella's bat contacted the ball. It was 100 to 1 and no takers that the blow would be for extra bases. But DiMaggio never gave up. With characteristic grace he headed for the bleacher fence in left-center some thirty or forty feet short of the 457-foot sign. Joe, going like the wind, his back to home plate, stuck out his gloved hand and made the catch."

That should have been enough for a fugitive from the hospital, but not for Joe. "The cheers, which were deafening, had hardly died away when DiMaggio came up to the plate a minute or two later and, after working Roe to a 3-and-2 count, propelled a terrific drive into the lower left field stands. The ball landed about twenty rows up and, needless to report, the reception which accompanied his leisurely trot around the paths was at least equal to the one he got for his incredible catch."

Well, when we read those lines—and we only wish we had been there instead of trying to find excuses for not starting to do a little gardening—we smashed the crystal ball, chucked out the tea-leaves, and started over. We know that the New York Yankees don't figure to beat the Boston Red Sox; or, for that matter, to much more than squeeze past Philadelphia Athletics for third place. We know that they pulled a miracle last season, and that miracles, like lightning, seldom strike twice in the same place. Still—they're our pick. We're going to hunt up a nice liberal bookie and invest all our worldly wealth on the New York Yankees to take the American League pennant. And if they shouldn't chance to come through—well, we'll just charge the two dollars up to sentiment.

What about the National League, you say? Well, if the Brooklyn Dodgers don't win by at least ten to fifteen games, there just isn't any justice. They should outclass all the others by so much that the race might be all over by July the Fourth. Philadelphia Phils might be second, and St. Louis Cardinals are third. But the Dodgers appear to be the biggest cinch to appear in sports since the days of Man O'War. He was the horse, you might remember, who once appeared to be home free, and finished second to a thing called Upset.

Lost Liberty

Much human suffering is due to the failure of early diagnosis—and this is no less true in economics and politics than in medicine. Early symptoms go unheeded. They may pass; they may mean any one of many things; they do not substantially impair—these are typical human reactions to early warnings.

But it is a fact that for countless millions of people, liberty has been lost—lost for the rest of their lives and perhaps for the lives of their children. These people have often failed to recognize the early symptoms. The promises of statism, of more government intervention, of more planning, are alluring.

The struggle for security through government action is a struggle to avoid risks and uncertainties. But government can make our lives free from risk only if it has the power and authority to control our actions. With the responsibility we impose upon government must go the power to implement that responsibility. This is elemental.

The struggle between controlism and socialism on the one hand, and individualism and liberalism on the other, is one in which each of us must make his individual choice—a choice which, fortunately, is still ours to make.

—From "Socialism in America."

WE ARE THE CLASS OF '50

Many among us are War Veterans—some with family responsibilities not always associated with the younger graduate.

We know that a university degree will not in itself guarantee success. It must be backed up with hard work. But, whether or not we have acquired a particular knowledge of direct interest to employers in any particular industry, we still suggest our degree is a good reference, for we have at least proven ourselves to the extent of obtaining it.

Graduates are available from all types of courses this year.

If you can employ a graduate, or offer summer employment to an undergraduate, please 'phone or write the Executive and Professional Officer at your nearest NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT SERVICE office, NOW.

HANDS IN TRAINING:..FOR ONTARIO·

Learning Business Practice

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of office workers to become proficient in typing, filing, shorthand and secretarial work, will mean greater business efficiency—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

PERSONNEL CHANGES AT B of M. BRANCH AT WALES, ONT.

Robie Davison

Milton Rayner

The Bank of Montreal has recently announced the appointment of Milton Rayner, accountant at its Leamington office for the past four years, as manager of the bank's Wales branch. He succeeds Robie S. Davison, manger there for the past four and a half years, who takes charge of the B of M's Walkerton office.

Mr. Rayner, a native of Edrans, Man., began his career with the B of M at Unity, Sask., and later served at several branches in that province. In Ontario, he has worked at branches at Hamilton, Kitchener and Simcoe, and in 1946 was appointed accountant at the bank's Leamington office.

Keenly interested in community affairs, Mr. Rayner served as treasurer of the Red Shield Drive while in Leamington.

His predecessor, Mr. Davison joined the bank in Halifax, and later served at branches in Moncton, N.B., Montreal and Toronto. In 1935 he became accountant at the bank's Bloor and Bay streets office in Toronto, and held a similar post at St. Thomas, before going to Wales as manager in 1945.

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

You do not need a half acre of land to grow flowers! One of the most enthusiastic gardeners I know applies her talents successfully to four window boxes, two hanging baskets and a few old lard pails. The lack of suitable location for annual and perennial beds in no way curbs her desire for bright color at the front of the house. No one can pass that way without noticing the beauty of these miniature "gardens".

It's catching, too! Just since she moved there three years ago others have been paying more attention to the beauty of their property. Soon the whole district will reflect a brighter, more cheerful appearance.

Double Its Worth

Are you an auction sale fan? I could be after the fun I had when I stopped to see why all the cars were parked around a farm house down Oshawa way. I found myself caught in a surging crowd and evidently nodded my head at the wrong time only to find myself the owner of a small square table! Thank goodness the auctioneer didn't have a lumber wagon under his gavel! However, it gave me an opportunity to try out an idea seen in a magazine. Now there are two half tables, each performing valiant service, one in the upper and one in the lower hallway. It worked so well I'm passing the idea along to you.

Gay Bottles

Nothing can add color to a window ledge or shelf like gayly decorated bottles. I have often admired their odd shapes and sizes in other people's homes, but never thought of making them. Just last week I saw a large collection displayed in the window of a small village store and learned from the proprietor that he made his own. After one easy lesson I'm right in the business myself!

It was March 24, 1936. A packed Montreal Forum watched Detroit Red Wings meet Montreal Maroons in their first N.H.L. playoff game. The players—every one Canadian-born—kept 9,500 fans tense through three scoreless periods.

The clock ticked on . . . through four more periods. Then, at the 116th minute of overtime, the weary Red Wings rushed. A shout burst from the crowd as 30 seconds later—at 2.25 a.m.—Wings tallied the single goal of the N.H.L.'s longest game.

CHAPTER TWO

Marked for Murder

There was a tense, uneasy silence in the ranch house. Men looked at one another askance. More than one pair of eyes was watching Webb Winters.

"You and Bob rode home together, Webb," said Joe Blake, "as far as the forks of the trail. You was the last man to see Bob Anderson alive. If I was you, I'd keep that information away from the sheriff. It might sound different to the law than it does to us that knows you and Bob was good friends. A jury, now, might think somethin' different. If I was you, I'd forget I rode along that trail with a man who was found murdered."

Webb's jaw muscles tightened. His lips were tight, white. His narrowed eyes looked at Joe Blake, at Tex, at the others. He saw suspicion written on the faces of more than one of these men. Three thousand dollars was a lot of money to them. Those papers, delivered to Ab Abbott, would bring a good price. And Webb Winters had been the man who had ridden a lonely trail with Bob Anderson.

"If any man here thinks I killed Bob Anderson," said Webb Winters, "let him come out and say so."

None of them had seen the door open. None of them, in that tense moment, noticed the man standing in the doorway. All of them stared guiltily as Sheriff Hank Roberts spoke:

"Didn't know you had company, Webb."

Webb's tongue wet his dry lips. He forced a lame sort of grin.

"Howdy, Hank. Joe and Tex and some of the boys dropped around to see about givin' Bob a proper plantin'. Glad you come over. Put up your horse."

"I will, Webb, much obliged. It got kinda gloomy over at Bob's. Two of Blake's cowboys is over there settin' up with the corpse. There was a few things I wanted to ask you about, so I rode over."

Sheriff Hank Roberts left the cabin as quietly as he had come. The members of the Scissor-Bill Pool looked uneasily at one another. Then Joe Blake spoke:

"We better be driftin' along. So-long, Webb. And hell, nobody here is accusin' you of anything. See you at the funeral tomorrow."

They left Webb there in his cabin. None of them had any desire to stay and talk to the keen-eyed old sheriff from Rimrock who had walked in on them so quietly.

Webb Winters knew that old Hank Roberts had heard him when he had hurled his challenge at the others. He poured himself a cup of coffee and stood there in the lighted doorway as the others rode away into the night. The sky was filled with broken clouds through which a pale moon rode.

Then Sheriff Hank Roberts came back from the barn. Webb put more wood in the stove. The old peace officer sat down in the chair that Joe Blake had been using. Webb handed him a cup of coffee and put tobacco within the sheriff's reach.

"I reckon," said Webb abruptly, "that you heard what I was tellin' 'em, Sheriff."

"Set down, son. Take the weight off your feet. Me and you are goin' to have a pow-wow. A little medicine talk. Light your tobacco."

Webb took the other chair and rolled a cigarette. The sheriff sipped his black coffee. They smoked a while without saying a word. Webb was still white hot inside because of the veiled accusation of Joe Blake and the others.

"Who organized the Scissor-Bill Pool, Webb?" the sheriff asked abruptly.

"I reckon you can lay it onto me and Bob. We had to gather our cattle in the fall and brand our calves in the spring. None of us had many cattle and the only way to work the range was to make up a pool round-up, which we did."

"Likewise, it protected you against the Triangle outfit."

"That's right."

"And the Scissor-Bill Pool aims to start a war on account of Bob Anderson's murder?"

"Not knowin', I couldn't say, Sheriff."

"You'd better get this straight, son. There's goin' to be no range war if I kin help it. Even if I have to put the men of the Pool and every Triangle man under a peace bond. You fellers seem to forget that there's a law in this country."

"Then why didn't that law ketch the man that shot Ed Young in the back a few months ago? Why don't your law lay a hand on the men that murdered Bob Anderson?" Webb's tone was bitter.

"I'm doin' the best I know how, son. Takes time. Accusin' a man of murder is an almighty serious charge. Got to go careful. Webb, which trail did you use comin' home?"

"You mean when I come tonight?"

"Yes."

"I cut across the lower end of Bob's horse pasture, takin' a short-cut Bob and I used a lot. It cuts off about three miles."

"Mind lettin' me have a look at your gun?"

There was a puzzled expression in the cowboy's eyes as he took his six-shooter from the waistband of his overalls and handed it, butt foremost, to the law officer.

The sheriff examined it carefully, then looked at Webb.

"This gun has been fired lately."

"This afternoon. I emptied it at a coyote. If you're hintin' that I killed Bob Anderson . . ."

"Keep your shirt on, son. I ain't accusin' you of anything. But I took that same short-cut, comin' here tonight. There's a dead man alongside the trail. A Triangle cowboy. The same cowboy you had a fight with in town about two weeks ago. I recognized him, right off. I remember the fight you'd had with him because he was usin' tough language in Mae's restaurant. You run him out of town and told him he'd git worse than just a beatin' up if he ever showed up again in the restaurant."

"Well, what about it?"

"So far as the sign shows, Webb, you're the only man that took the short-cut tonight. Your gun barrel is powder-marked."

"Therefore, I killed the gent?"

"No jury would convict a man on such slim evidence." He handed Webb back the gun and picked up his coffee cup.

"That man was killed by Bob Anderson, Webb. Keep your gun."

They were burying Bob Anderson at the little Rimrock graveyard. All the members of the Scissor-Bill Pool were there. Webb was there with Mae. It was drizzling rain and everybody had on slickers. A dismal, dreary day. Saddled horses stood, bridle reins dropped. Buggy teams were tied to the fence. Nearly all the women stayed in their buggies.

No Trouble At All—Mrs. Joyce Chapman, 18, of Oroville, smiles at her infant son which she bore while listening to her radio at home. She said that after the birth, which was completely painless, she wrapped the infant in a mackinaw and walked a mile to the mine where her husband works. He took the mother and child to the hospital, where both are doing fine.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

by Gwendoline P. Clarke

There were no Easter bunnies around here last week but there were lenty of calves. The first one, a heifer, arrived uneventfully during the middle of the night but the mother was one of these unnatural females who refuses to recognize her off-spring. In cow language that means the mother would not lick her calf after it was born—a usual procedure—and unless you are used to cattle you have no idea what a difference that makes to the appearance of a calf. The caressing touch of the mother's tongue is as beneficial to the calf as beauty parlour treatment to a glamorous blonde.

Two days later while milking was in progress Partner looked at Spotty and figured "her time had come"—or at least it was not far distant. So Spotty was put into a stall by herself and left alone. Later that night Bob went down to the barn and when he came back Partner inquired—"Is the cow all right?"

"Yes," answered Bob, "Spotty's all right, except that she has twin calves!"

And was Spotty ever proud of her babies! Nothing wrong with the mother-instinct there. Spotty's only trouble was how to divide her attention between the two calves—that is, if she could tell one from another. They are almost identical—and both as spotted as a leopard—being of the Ayrshire variety.

Now of course the arrival of twin calves is nothing very wonderful—triplets are a bit more unusual, but we'll settle for twins around here. What made this occasion particularly interesting lay in the fact that the mother of our new calves was herself a twin; and the grandmother had twins twice. Moreover, in each case the twins were heifers—and thereby hangs a tale. It is the tale—or family history—that makes my story. The first time calves arraived at Ginger Farm an old-timer advised Partner to veal them. "Don't ever keep twin heifer calves," he said, "you'll never get any calves from them, no matter how long you keep them. It just won't happen, that's all."

Well, on that first occasion Mr. Old-Timer was right, because one calf was undersized and not worth keeping; the other was extra big and although we kept her until she was over three years old she never did have a calf. So eventually she went to the stockyards and I haven't a doubt in the world she made excellent beef.

Then the same cow had twins again—a nice, average-size pair of heifer calves—and we kept them. Mr. Old-Timer shook his head again—"You'll rue the day" he mourned. But one of those twins is the mother of our newest arrivals, so you see our twin calves are proof positive of the falsity of that old-fashioned superstition—that a heifer that is born a twin will never produce a calf.

Well, the weather is still front page news. Frost, cold winds, snow in many places . . . and Easter! We had everything but the snow. Daughter was home for the long week-end, and as she left Toronto while it was still quite mild she brought only a light weight top coat with her. I wonder how many other week-enders were caught the same way. Now we are back to normal again—no more homecomers in the house, so there is no temptation to sit up talking to the small hours; and no more hockey broadcasts to keep one keyed up to fever pitch. Now the Maple Leafs are out of the running we can retire to our beds at a respectable hour and build up a little reserve energy against the spring rush . . . if that time ever comes! But, oh dear! soon there will be daylight saving time to contend with—and that will upset our schedule again. However, with no hydro shortage to worry about, DST shouldn't be quite such a farce as it was last year. That was a time to remember. As if we could forget ! !

Spring is also the time for new styles in toggery—and how I wish some one would get the idea that COLOURED shirts are the only smart thing for men to wear. White shirts . . . how I hate them! Not the look of them, of course, just the washing and ironing. Wash them by themselves; hang them by themselves; iron them so carefully—and yet every time I find a smudge somewhere; or a scorch mark, or a wrinkle in the collar. Men's while shirts are enough to blight a woman's life . . . there should be a law against them.

Well, that's all for this time, friends. I must go now and iron a shirt . . . a white shirt . . . and for the second time!

HOW CAN I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I test the purity of butter?

A. Place a small amount of butter in a teaspoon and hold it over a flame If butter is pure, it will foam quietly and boil. If impure, it will crackle and sputter as it becomes heated.

Q. How can I stop a small leak in a pan, bucket or tub?

A. Turn the receptacie upside down, cover the leak with a little powdered sulphur, heat an old knife blade until it is very hot, and spread the sulphur around the leak.

Q. How can I help sick gold fish?

A. If the gold fish are ill, the chances are that they are overfed, or their bowl has not been kept clean. Overfeeding or lack of fresh water will soon kill them.

Q. How can I overcome the unpleasantness of taking medicine?

When medicine is unpleasant to take, try placing a bit of alum in the mouth for a moment before taking the medicine. It will usually overcome any unpleasantness.

ANNE HIRST
Your Family Counselor

"I've been married 11 years to a man I used to love. But lately he is so hard to get along with that I'm about ready to pack up and go.

"Nothing I do is ever quite right. He complains about my housekeeping, though I'm much better than I used to be—and instead of helping, he keeps me picking up after him all the time.

"He criticizes the way I talk, and look, and act. Yet if I get a new dress, he just grumbles and asks what it cost. My education is better than his, and I'm just as pleasant as he will let me be. I have loads of friends, though he has few.

"He won't go to church with me. He never takes me out unless I nag him—and when we do go, he is such a show-off that he embarrasses me.

"He pays the bills, and is generous. He doesn't drink or gamble.

"If I had only a little appreciation, I'd be so happy! (Sometimes I think he'd be better off with just a housekeeper) . . . I don't want to leave, but how can I make our marriage like it used to be

"ON THE VERGE."

RENEW YOUR CHARMS

When you married your husband, you say, he was devoted and appreciative, flattering and helpful. (I wish I could print all your letter). You were good companions, had fun together.

What has happened?

A man who develops the annoying habit of criticizing everything his wife does, often feels at fault himself. So he protects that feeling by trying to be superior. This accounts for your husband "picking on" you.

When he shows off before other people, it is because he craves flattery and doesn't get it at home.

Your husband would enjoy taking you out if he felt at home with you, confident that you are proud of him, as he used to be proud of you.

I think you are expecting too much of him. He has his points, you know. He is honest and good. He has no vices. He is a helpful citizen in the community. He provides well for you.

Why don't you concentrate on his good qualities, and let him know how you appreciate them?

Flatter him a bit, tactfully. Make him feel he's really Somebody. Praise him for his virtues, and see how he expands. Your compliments will build up his prestige (which is what he needs) and will soften his attitude toward you, too. He will begin to see you as he did in the early years of your marriage, when you exercised all your charms to please him, and convinced him that he was the ONE MAN in the world for you.

Stop trying to make him over. Show him you like him as he is, —and tell him why.

You two can recapture that companionship you used to have, if you will take the trouble to do your part. Compare him with other husbands you know, and those unfortunate ones you read about in this column. I think you will realize how lucky you are.

Concentrate on the good qualities your husband has, and ignore the others. You can't change him, you know—but you can change your opinion of him. Anne Hirst will help, if you write her at Box 1,. 123. Eighteenth. Street,. New Toronto, Ontario.

In Could Happen In Your Home

The following incident, based on an actual happening, was reported recently by a well known safety specialist.

"What did you think of the discussion tonight, Mary?"

"Very good. I wish more people were concerned about accidents. But so few people get to these meetings to discuss how to live safely."

"Maybe you missed one point," Larry chuckled. "Remember the speaker said everybody needs preaching to about safety."

"Oh, I suppose that's right. But we haven't had an accident for years. Except the time Mother fell on the stairs last fall, and she's getting old."

"Nellie, just for the fun of it let's looks at our stairs when we get home. We'll check 'em with the check sheet we got tonight."

At home, Larry got out the check sheet. "Read off the items, Nellie," he said. "I'll check them."

"Isn't this rather silly, Larry? We know our stairs are safe. We walk on them every day, and Mother is the only one who has fallen on them."

"Aw, come on anyway. Let's check them just for fun."

"Well, all right. First item is: Stairs well lighted so each stair is easily seen."

Larry walked up the stairs, then walked part way up. "Okay."

Then: Hand rail sturdy and well constructed; at least two spindles to each step from the hand rail; carpeting well secured; landing at least three feet square.

"Larry, what does this one mean? 'The rise plus the run of each stair is 16 to 18 inches, with the run at least 8 inches'."

"The run is the step tread less the part that sticks out. The rise is the distance from the top of one step to the top of the next."

Larry started measuring. "These are 10-inch run and 7½-inch rise," he said. Then, at the first step above the landing, he asked, "Where did you mother fall?"

"Just above the landing as she was coming down."

"Nellie, your mother wasn't just clumsy with age. This step has an 8¼-inch rise and the first step below the landing has a 6¾-inch rise. It's a wonder more of us haven't fallen here. Come to think of it, I've stumbled many times going up these stairs."

Sure, it's important to clear stairs of trash, mops, brooms, etc. But it's just as important to make sure they're constructed safely and correctly. Larry and Nellie removed the hazard they found by raising the landing three-fourths of an inch.

Well-Dressed Man Pretty Corny

If Frank L. Teuton is followed by a pack of pecking pullets wherever he goes, he won't be surprised. He'll just chalk it up to his suit.

Because Teuton is sporting a neat suit made of corn. It looks like an ordinary tan gabardine, but it is 100 per cent corn fiber fabric. And his light grey hat is corny, too.

Teuton and his suit were the hit of the 38th annual Farm and Home Week program. The fiber from which the garment was made was developed by the Bureau of Agriculture and Industrial Chemistry.

"The new 100 per cent corn fiber fabric is moth-proof and mildew-proof," Teuton, who is head of the bureau's information division, explained.

The corn fiber is made from a protein called zein, which is actually a waste product of corn starch.

TABLE TALKS by Jane Andrews.

A highly popular United States magazine, in its latest issue, has a feature article regarding "The Most Talked About Woman in Canada."

This turns out to be—to no one's surprise—none other than Kate Aitken, whose multiplicity of interests, diversity of occupations and, most especially, apparently boundless store of energy, never fail to amaze all who ever come in contact with her.

With so much interest being shown in Mrs. Aitken, both here and throughout the world, I thought that this week I might pass on to you a few of her recipes. These were created earlier in her amazing career, when she was just beginning to make a name for herself as a food specialist, but I can assure you that they are none the worse for the passage of the years.

The SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren B.A., B.D.

AMOS TEACHES ABOUT WORSHIP

Amos 4:4; 5:4-9; 14-15, 21-24.

Golden Text: But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a might stream.—Amos 5:24.

To-day's lesson begins with a fine touch of irony. Amos is saying in effect. "If you go to church, you can sin. If you go to church some more you may multiply your transgression, especially if you are generous in bringing your sacrifices and tithes." Of course he means nothing of the kind. You can't buy your way to heaven. "Hate the evil, and love the good and establish judgment in the gate.—I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies. Though ye offer me burnt offerings and your meat offerings I will not accept them.—But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream."

God hates hypocrisy. People who put on a show of being religious and yet are living contrary to the express commands of God as set forth in the Holy Scriptures are nauseating to Him. A seven-day week religion is the only kind that will pass muster with God.

If there is anyone who is smaller than a hypocrite, it is the man who tries to hide behind one. There are a few counterfeit ten dollar bills in circulation, but I do not despise all ten dollar bills. Because these are people who pose as Christians and yet live sinfully is not an argument against Christianity. But before you profess to be a Christian, be sure that Christ has come into your life and that you are living a life that is well-pleasing in His sight. We may ask ourselves the question of the song:

"Do we live so close to the Lord
to-day,
Passing to and fro on life's busy
way,
That the world in us can a likeness
see
To the man of Calvary?

As an open book they our lives
will read,
To our words and acts giving daily
heed;
Will they be attracted, or turn away
From the Christ we love to-day?

Chorus.
Can the world see Jesus in me?
Can the world see Jesus in you?
Does your love to Him ring true?
And your life and service, too?
Can the world see Jesus in you?"

---

Overheard: "Congratulations on the happiest day of your life." But I don't get married till tomorrow." "I know."

Love—More Deadly Than Drink

Love is seventeen times more deadly than drink, according to the latest Paris suicide statistics. For every person who ends his own life because of alcohol seventeen do so because their "affairs of the heart" have gone wrong.

Even so love is one of the least spectacular reasons why some French men and women decide that life is not worth living. A musician hanged himself because, following an operation, he was unable to carry the big drum in a local band.

A dress designer took poison because, at the age of forty, she was getting fat. A taxi-driver deliberately drove his vehicle into a river to demonstrate his indignation when an American walked away without tipping him.

Experts, juggling with statistics, have uncovered many interesting facts about suicide—some explainable, others not. Highest suicide rates in the world are found in Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, the Scandinavian countries, and Japan. The lowest are in Spain, Italy, and Ireland.

More people seem to commit suicide in May and June than at any other time of the year. The rate hits a low point in December.

Also, more people commit suicide in the morning, from 6 a.m. to noon, than at any other time of day.

Although tne suicide rate is highest among the Teutonic races, there is no indication that the desire to kill oneself is a racial characteristic, and therefore inherited. Rather, it is more reasonable to assume that suicide is a cultural characteristic.

In Japan, for instance, it is quite in order for a noble to kill himself by hari-kiri, which is probably the most painful form of suicide. There is absolutely no stigma attacked to the act. It is even a form of heroism, and may be done for such a trivial reason as a protest against government policy.

One important factor affecting the suicide rate is the existence of laws against it in certain countries.

In most of continental Europe there are no such laws. If you want to take your own life you are welcome to do so. But in Canada, the U.S.A. and most Empire countries you may be sent to prison if you fail in the attempt.

Sometimes the motives behind suicide are difficult to determine, but much is learned from the notes left behind by those who take their own life. These generally mention such things as ill-health, financial problems, drug addiction, pride, dishonour.

At the same time, however, curious paradoxes occur. There was the case of the man who was so terrified at the prospect of an impending appendictis operation that he shot himself.

Sometimes people who have a fear of high places will jump to their death. They become obsessed with the idea that safety lies on the street below or at bottom of a cliff, and choose the quickest way to get there. Some of the most baffling suicide cases have been traced to such a cause.

● Hot goodies come puffin' from your oven in quick time with new Fleischmann's Fast DRY Yeast! No more spoiled cakes of yeast! No more last-minute trips — this new form of Fleischmann's Yeast keeps in your cupboard! Order a month's supply.

HONEY-BUN RING

● Scald ¾ c. milk, ⅓ c. granulated sugar, 1½ tsps. salt and ¼ c. shortening; cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, measure into a large bowl ½ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 mins., THEN stir well.

Add cooled milk mixture and stir in 1 well-beaten egg and 1 tsp. grated lemon rind. Stir in 2 c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 2 c. (about) once-sifted bread flour. Knead on lightly-floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl and grease top of dough. Cover and set in warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough and roll out into an oblong about 9" wide and 24" long; loosen dough. Combine ½ c. lightly-packed brown sugar and ½ c. liquid honey; spread over dough and sprinkle with ¾ c. broken walnuts. Beginning at a long side, loosely roll up like a jelly roll. Lift carefully into a greased 8½" tube pan and join ends of dough to form a ring. Brush top with melted butter. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven, 375°, 45-50 minutes. Brush top with honey and sprinkle with chopped walnuts.
