Patriotic Hymn.

FOR YOUNG CANADIANS.

Our own Dominion grand,
Our loved, our native land,
Of dazzling shores,
From old Atlantic broad,
To western borders, we land This brightland from our God; Him we adore.Where vast Pacific laves, The golden coast with waves,
Of dazzling shores;
There our Dominion stands,
And from her ocean strands, Echoes to sister lands
"God save our Queen."Then wait the lofty strain, Across that wide domain, O land sublime!
How grand thy landscapes rare,
And rich the treasures there;
Thy skies how wondrous fair,
As southern clime.Our fathers we revere, Who built their altars here,
With toil-worn hands;
Loyal to Britain's throne, Loyal to Province home,
We boast a nation grown, God bless the land!And may thy daughters fair, As choicest jewels wear Virtues serene.
E'en may they emulate, Though but in low estate,
That mother good and great, Victoria, Queen.Brave hearts, and brawny arms, Fearing not foe's alarms, God grant thy sons, Dark o'er our Canadian skies, Give rulers good and wise;
Make all hearts one.While we with laurels, crown Those who have won renown, On battle field,
Be it our highest aim Honor with peace to gain,
And still our rights maintain,
God be our shield.

Our Story.

IN A TUNNEL.

"That will do nicely," said Ruth May-hew, receiving her last package through the car window from Mr. Perkins on the platform."Write us how you get along, Ruth.
If your aunt can spare you a spell in the summer we'd be glad to see you him again. Oh, my! here's Miss Curtin with a bunch of posies from her garden. Hurry, hurry! you'll be late, shur's the world, Miss Curdin."Thus spoke the group at the depot in shrill chorus as the locomotive, every plate burnished and dazzling, had just commenced its journey, starting imparting a jerking wrench to the cars, and then the long snake of a train glided smoothly away."She takes it first-rate," commented Mr. Perkins, wiping his brow with a red bandana handkerchief.Then he climbed into his rusty carry-all, drawn by a meek, white horse; the others returned along the village street to assume their separate vocations and the event of the day was over. Ruth Mayhew had departed from the home of her youth, and the place would know her no more.The struggle had been a hard one, but she bore it well, as Mr. Perkins averred. She did not look once at the white house on the hill where death had robbed her of parents and shelter because even her fortitude could not be trusted to witness the Smalls moving in. What was before her? Life with Aunt Harriet in a close sick-chamber, slave of an invalid's caprices, and thankful for daily bread. Oh, the long dreary years, with nothing but old age in advance.She took out a small pocket mirror from her bag, and gazed pensively into its depths. The reflected image was by no means unattractive. She was not so young as she had once been, yet her features were good, her complexion fresh, her eyes clear, and her physique robust. Moreover she was carefully and becomingly attired, and her chignon was of the latest style. Nevertheless a sigh swelled up from her heart when she gazed in the glass, her thoughts in unreasonable dissatisfaction with her present appearance; still the past had had disappointments, and the future with Aunt Harriet was without promise. Away back in the vista of summers she beheld herself, a fanciful girl, building cloud-castles out of sunset glories. One spring-time was brighter and more fragrant than the rest; around it still bloomed flowers of regretful memories, blossoms without earthly resemblance in the cold bleak climate where Ruth lived, because sprung from the richest sources of humanity.A brave young missionary had urged a heedless girl to go with him to the hot countries among the heathen, andthe girl, to whom the world seemed a vast treasure-house lavish of gifts, had flouted her young missionary, and he had silently departed without complaint, to return no more. Then Ruth had shed tears in secret, bitterly remorseful tears, and turned her back capriciously on the well-to-do-farmers of her acquaintance."Got a cinder in your eye?" inquired a sharp voice in her traveller's ear.
The latter awoke from her reverie with a start, and turned to her questioner with a guilty blush suffusing her cheek. She, Ruth Mayhew, of middle age, caught looking in the glass!
Her interlocutor was a brisk, bright, little old lady in a faded shawl and antiquated bonnet of the coal scuttle pattern. She carried on her arm a black silk bag which seemed to contain unlimited stores of snuff and peppermint drops.Encircling her withered old throat was a necklace of beautiful gold beads delicately wrought. These beads, an heirloom in her family, descending to her through long generations, had been worn by her since early youth, and so much superstition is associated with such relics in the mind of the possessor, that the old lady would have dreaded immediate misfortune had she lost them. Such was her child-like faith in her fellow-creatures that she never dreamed of parting with her treasures."I can get it out as quick as wink, child," she continued eagerly, settling her spectacles, and spreading out a soft silk handkerchief, with the intention of applying it to Ruth's eye."No, thank you. It is nothing," said Ruth, hastily popping the glass back into a hiding-place.Thus foiled the old lady relapsed into silence, although she could not remain quiet very long. She jerked her head about with a sparrow like motion, and becoming absorbedly interested in Ruth, she peered at trimmings, even testing the quality of a ribbon furtively with a critical fore-finger and thumb. Age had chiselled wrinkles, innumerable fine lines, in the intelligent face, had whitened the scanty hair and robbed the sunken mouth of teeth, yet the vital forces seemed unimpaired.She was like a queer little grey bird hopping along to peck a crumb of information everywhere."I wonder who she is, and where she's got to," pondered the old lady, her busy brain having unsuccessfully twisted Ruth around the whirling wheel of minute investigation. Then she bobbed up abruptly, and skipped into the seat beside the object of interest with an apologetic, "Guess I'll change my place, if you don't mind, and get out of the draught from that window. Old folk have to be kinder keener about draughts."Miss Mayhew graciously assented, and her neighbor was delighted with the success of her stratagem."Live in these parts?" the small beady eyes twinkling all over her companion interrogatively.

"Yes, have you come far?"

"Far? I guess so! I left my dar-ter's home in Indiana day after yesterday. I've seen sights of things. My son-in-law Marthy's husband, is a lumber merchant out West. Yes the winter's been cold some. We had Bible classes and lectures and once there came a panorama of New York.
Jabez took me. I have you been there? most as good as seeing it for yourself, the panorama was. Come home alone?
Law, yes! Made my way right along as easy as could be. I stopped over at Montreal in Canada, at a great hotel and the clerk gave me a snug little room so I felt real to him. There's a big bridge—the Victoria Bridge they call it there. I see it. I've been a good piece on the Grand Trunk too."The old lady had traversed all this distance safely, enjoying every hour of the journey, and she was now turning her face homeward to a farm nestled among the hills."My son lives in the other side of the house and does all the chores about the farm. I take care of myself," she explained with the curious simplicity of a nature that confided all its private affairs to strangers, never dreaming of doubting that their interest equalled her own in discussing their personal history.Ruth's sympathy was aroused.
This sympathy cost her dear. Three hours later she was standing alone on the crowded platform of a large railway station, where crowded locomotives dashed frantically about, and anxious passengers vociferated loudly, with their own train disappearing in the distance, and a string of gold beads in her hand.It happened thus:— Ruth and her friend hobnobbed delightfully. The old lady was particularly pleased to discover that among the many good things prepared for the other's journey by friendly hands were crisp turn-overs, generous slices of dried apple and doughnuts.The train stopped at a station, and a young man strolled into the car. MissRuth's attention became instantly centered in him. It was not because of the beauty of his black mustache that she observed him, nor his gaily ringlets, flashy waistcoat and resplendent watch chain. It was simply because his evil snaky eye wandering carelessly over the passengers, pounced on the unconscious old lady: "You will bear some watching," thought the younger woman. Then she talked warningly of thieves and pickpockets, at which the old lady looked simply bewildered.The train rushed into a tunnel, a dark, chilly hole that seemed to open a yawning mouth, in itself stationary and soulless, to engulf life and motion. A tiny blue flame crackled; the old lady had lighted a bit of tallow candle, using her hand for a candlestick."I got scared in these tunnels," she said, and held the candle so that Ruth and herself were framed in a vivid radiance.The former keeping her eyes steadfastly fixed on the snaky young man seated behind, detected a stealthy movement of his hand towards the old lady's neck, where hung the family beads. A sudden draught (emanating from the snaky young man) fanned out the candle, a scuffle and a rush ensued amidst confused exclamations, and Miss Mayhew launched into active combat with the foe.

"Thieves!" she shrieked.

"Oh, murder!" gasped the old lady, first receiving a blow over the head that crushed her bonnet awry, and then feeling as if a great many shawls had tumbled over her."What is the matter?" echoed on all sides in the terrible darkness."Oh, oh!" screamed Ruth again.
"The wretch! The scamp! Help me to hold him. He is twisting my hand horribly.""Let me go," growled the snaky young man, and giving himself a serpentine screw, adroitly avoided the nervous clutch of his captor's fingers."He's gone! Do catch him!" she panted.The wildest commotion ensued.
Everybody else feeling that it devolved upon each as men and brothers to do something, and succeeding only in creating inextinguishable confusion. None of the passengers had the vaguest idea of what had happened. Each man grappled with his neighbor suspecting him of some deadly villainy in that obscure night."I have got him," cried a cheerful voice from the door, proceeding from a stout and valiant traveller, who, indeed, held in an iron grip a slender, whirling form that indignantly rebelled against his assault. But when light dawned to a comforting brightness found the stout gentleman was found to hold captive an innocent and much injured newspaper and pop corn boy, who had entered the car just in the nick of time to be made prisoner, while the thief slipped noiselessly away vanish forever. Then each passenger was morally certain that the thief had crept past him while he was pursuing the respectable gentleman opposite and the newboy was surest of all that he had been propelled into their midst by some unseen power on the platform.The inevitable result of so much excitement was a chilling doubt if Miss Mayhew's alarm had not been only a woman's scare after all."Look at her for yourselves," she said, indignantly, reading skepticism on every side.The old lady's appearance was certainly dilapidated and battered, while her beautiful beads were lying in her lap. Ruth replaced them preparatory to her getting out at the crowded terminus where she changed cars.The old lady fluttered away almost before the train had stopped, and when she had gone five minutes Miss May-hew rattled the beads on the floor with a sudden crash. The thief had weakened the clasp in his efforts to secure them. Something must be done. In vain she appealed to selfish men; they were not going to lose their places.
Much good but vague advice was vol-untered about keeping the necklace until she could forward it some time, which she cut short with a decisive, "I will go myself."The emergency required prompt action, and she was equal to the emergency. Without a moment's hesitation she rushed out."How long do we stop," she inquired of a brakeman, who exhaled hot oil from his very countenance.

"Twenty minutes," he replied.

Where, oh, where will that brakeman go when he dies? Was his conscience deadened as well as his outer ear by the din of his life; or did he view with indifference the possibility of any future state being worse than the pandemonium of his present existence? Our traveller was immediately beset by a crowd of clamorous hackmen, driving her out of her wits.
Escaping them she fell in with a crowd of babies and dusty parents.
How many tender innocents she upsetin her haste, thus increasing the general uproar, Ruth never knew.Everywhere a blockade of baggage, trucks and struggling humanity—all were in a hurry for the fear of being left behind. The bewildered woman could not approach within ear-shot of the perspiring ticket-master whose suffused, face glared vengefully through his pigeon hole as he snapped short the incoherent questions of distracted passengers. If she only knew where the old lady had gone."Where is the Locust Valley?" she asked of a baggage man.The baggage man, rested his great hands on his hips, thrust a quid of tobacco into his cheek, stared at his questioner, and said,

"He's?"

Miss Ruth repeated her question with the energy of despair."Where do you want to go?" inquired the baggage man, wearily.And then it became a painfully evident fact that where Miss Mayhew wanted to go to and where she was going were two widely sundered matters, for she beheld her train in motion. To rush toward it, to signal blindly—as if the insensate monster would stop—to be held back from jumping on board in a gentlemanly fashion, and then to be left gazing blankly into space—that was her experience. A voice came back on the wind:

"I will keep your things for you."

To inveigh bitterly against the de-ceitfulness of brakemen was an impulse which our unfortunate lady checked with true dignity of character."I will find the old lady at all events," she decided, even though she should prove the proverbial needle in that haystack of a depot."There were so many trains looking exactly alike, and apparently headed in the same direction, with their engines prancing aimlessly up and down.
Oh, the satisfaction of at length beholding a familiar old face, spectacles on nose, beaming behind a window.
Miss Mayhew dashed frantically forward, waving the necklace aloft.The old lady started, felt instinctively at her throat, and began to fumble no less frantically at the closed sash.
Varnish and springs defied her. Horrors! The train after dawdling any length of time, at this inauspicious moment concluded to move. It was a pleasant sight to see Miss Mayhew racing along the platform casting dignity to the winds, and the old lady on the verge of apoplexy within the car in her efforts to raise the window.
How the people stared to be sure!
But Miss Mayhew did not care. She was long past personal sensitiveness; and when the sash finally yielded, just as she reached the extreme edge of the platform, she threw in the beads, and retiring, seated herself on a carpet bag to wait for her. Her courage completely failed her; the weak, silly feminine sobs would come.A gentleman approached to claim the carpet bag. He was tall, bronzed and bearded, and he wore a scarf about his throat of some curious Eastern fabric. Miss Mayhew, the tension of excitement having snapped, was left as weak as an infant. Her pocket had been out, and her portemonnaie was gone. Had she, in securing her companion's safety, fallen a victim to the snaky young man herself? She now rose making some confused apology for the condition of her late throne the carpet-bag.

LETTING THEMSELVES DOWN.

Our cotemporary of last week, smarting under the ignominious failure of the Cross Petition, and sensible of the odium incurred by the malicious attempt at revenge on Mr. Cook, seeks to palliate and modify the affair in these words:

"At the time the petition was filed against the return of Mr. Broder, he and his friends deemed it advisable to enter a cross-petition, with a view to showing up the conduct of Mr. Cook and his friends at the last contest, and to which party they were farthest from the narrow path of the law. At the time of trial, Mr. Broder tried to have the counter-petition choked off, on some technicality, but failed. He succeeded, however, in convincing the Judge that no matters could be gone into except those affecting the candidate personally. The case being thus narrowed down, there was no disposition to disqualify Mr. Cook."

Now if the readers of the Courier consider Mr. Broder and his followers so egregiously ignorant as to believe that a petition, seeking to disqualify the defeated candidate, for personal acts, would give them the right to investigate the conduct of any one and every one else whom they might choose to bring up, they are at perfect liberty to so regard them, although such an opinion is anything but complimentary to Mr. Andrew Broder. For ourselves, we regard it, not as the result of ignorance, but of deliberate malice, all the more galling to them now, since it has proved impotent for harm to the object of their resentment. This is proved conclusively by their unwarranted attempt to inquire into matters connected with the two or three preceding elections. That there was no disposition to disqualify Mr. Cook," those may believe who can. Perhaps some of those who have forgotten the threats of the Courier for weeks past, and who were not privileged to witness their efforts in Court, may possibly believe the assertion—but our imagination or credulity will not permit us to accept such a fabulous statement. Since the utter fizzle of the attempt has subjected the authors of it to popular indignation, an effort is made to assume a high moral tone, and to base their conduct on other than the real motives, and the assurance is given that it was only intended "to enable the public to judge as to which party strayed farthest from the narrow path of the law." Well this has been shown, and pretty decidedly too, and Mr. Broder, to use that very favorite phrase of our cotemporary, has been "invited to step down and out." That he has escaped as well as he has, is due to the compassion and forbearance of the very men who have been styled his "persecutors," for had an appeal been made, as His Worship all but invited, to a full court, most assuredly would Mr. Broder's treating of electors have been sufficient to disqualify him. This fate, he has escaped only by a narrow chance, and the less Mr. Broder's purity and honesty is prated about, the less ridiculous will he appear.

Y. M. M. A. EXCURSION.

The excursion on the "Alexandra" last Friday, under the auspices of the Young Men's Methodist Association of Iroquois, to the "Thousand Islands," was a very pleasant and successful one. That it was not a complete success was only prevented by the unforeseen delay of the Steamer by a breakage in the Beauharnois Canal. As a consequence of some five hours delay, a number who intended to accompany the excursion, returned home. The Alexandra reached the Morrisburg wharf about half past twelve, and after taking on a goodly number of passengers, put off up the river. Just at the "set" at the head of the Rapide du Plat, the current proved too much for the Steamer, and she drifted, back although contesting the ground (or the water) inch by inch. It was only after the third trial, and when all the passengers had been sent to the stern, that the ascent was achieved. Much amusement was occasioned, on approaching Iroquois, by the ludicrous manner of the salute by the hands at the Steam Factory on the Point. Two of the men mounted the roof of the Engine Room to work the whistle. One put his hat over the top of the whistle and the other pulled the valve, hurling the hat many feet in the air, at the same time giving vent to a most lugubrious whistle. The repetition of this performance caused a great deal of mirth.

Arrived at the Iroquois wharf, a large crowd was awaiting the boat, and speedily filled up most of the available space. Owing to the difficulty of surmounting the Rapide du Plat, it was not thought advisable to attempt the Galops, and the trip was made through the Canal to a point above the Rapid. It is scarcely necessary to refer to the beautiful scenery of the River, for although frequently described, it has to be seen to be realized. Suffice it to say that the weather was all that could be desired and the scenery, what it always is at this season of the year, at its best. Owing to the delay in starting, the Excursion did not extend further than ten or twelve miles above Brockville, and the return was begun introduced in this country by royal proclamation; the Quebec Act of 1774 annulled this proclamation, but perpetuated the English criminal law. Under the authority of the Constitutional Act of 1791, the Upper Canada Parliament introduced the English law. Trial by Jury stands side by side with the law quoted by Mr. Bethune, in point of time as to its introduction here, and whatever may be said about the one as being old, may equally be urged against the other. We always supposed that age was to be respected, and the older a law was without having been challenged, the more fixed it became. But according to the Morrisburg Courier, when a law has been on our Statute books about a hundred years, it loses its virtue and becomes obsolete. According to such a mode of reasoning, that noble old bulwark of English liberty, that boon that every Briton, from that time to this, has prized as one of his inestimable treasures, the Magna Charta, now about six hundred and sixty years old, has, through extreme age, become valueless and a thing of no account. But as we said before those of the Tory school who claim to enjoy a monopoly of patriotism, also claim the privilege of saying (and on occasion, doing) things, that if done by any one else would be branded by them as disloyal or treasonable, and so we suppose they must be allowed to have their little say when any of these laws and their practice do not completely accord.

COMPULSORY VOTING.

This matter is again attracting considerable notice in view of the assumed intention of Mr. Bethune, the member for Stormont, to introduce a measure on the subject at the next session of the Ontario Legislature. Mr. Bethune's clever abilities, and his extensive experience in the working of our election laws, gained by a large practice in election trials, will give weight to the opinions he may advance, and secure support to legislation he may seek to initiate in this direction. And legislation that will still further reduce and discourage bribery in election contests will have the support of all who wish well to our Province. Under the present state of things, bribing a man to stay at home on polling days is about the most practical mode of bribery. The man who will sell his vote, will also sell the purchaser of it if occasion serve, and those who are disposed to corrupt acts know this, and hence direct their efforts to keeping electors from the polls, because they can thus tell whether their compact has been kept or not. But make it compulsory on electors to cast their ballots, and an effectual blow is struck against buying votes. It has been objected that this might interfere with a voter's conscientious scruples, since he might be opposed to both candidates, but this is only a seeming objection, since the voter in such an emergency has the privilege of casting a blank ballot. That there are numerous cases that will have to be provided for carefully to prevent hardship or injury, there is no doubt. Unavoidable absence from home, sickness of the voter himself, or his family, pressing emergencies of business, distance in thinly settled parts, from the polling place, physical disabilities of age, and a host of other things will need to be anticipated, and exemption provided. This may be a work of difficulty but not of insuperable difficulty, and we see no reason why this necessary addition to our election laws should not be made.

about sunset. A very rapid and delightful run was made down the River, and the Steamer reached Iroquois about eleven p. m. All parties expressed themselves highly pleased with the trip, and we have been informed that the financial results were very gratifying, over $105 having been netted.

The passengers from Morrisburg were pleased to find the staunch little "Kendrick" awaiting their arrival to convey them home. And now began the most exciting and pleasing part of the whole trip, the running of the Rapide du Plat in the "Kendrick." The stout little steamer bowed, ducked, and rose and plunged, in a manner truly exhilarating, and all united in saying "give us the Kendrick to run the rapids in!"

Great credit is due the young men of Iroquois for the successful planning and carrying out of what the Brockville people called a "mammoth excursion."

Brockville.

(From the Recorder.)

A barn was blown down by the gale at Mallorytown on Thursday.

We regret to learn that Mr. Geo. Tennant, of Mallorytown, had a quantity of cordwood and saw logs burned in the woods near Mcintosh's Mills on Sunday last. The fire originated by some person building a fire in a clearing.

Mr. Botsford is repairing the old M. E. Church, Buel street, changing a portion of it into a substantial dwelling, the remainder to be used as a grocery store. When completed it will present a neat appearance.

"Heavy Fog."—Yesterday morning three young men hired a boat, and having provided themselves with all necessary articles (soap, towels, &c.), started for the "Old Man's Island" for the purpose of having a bath. When about half way to the Island they got lost, (whether it was owing to the thick fog that prevailed at the time, or to the strength of the "fog," we cannot say) and after rowing about for an hour and a half found themselves in Morrisburg bay. Turning around, they made another attempt to reach the Island, and again got lost, landing on the Canadian side, two miles below Brockville, about half-past nine, with a very bad headache.

Cornwall.

(From the Gazette.)

Lieut. Governor Macdonald arrived at Caledonia Springs on Wednesday, along with his son. They remain till Monday.

The voting for the Matting Factory by-law last Monday was unanimous, but we much fear from inquiries we made in Montreal yesterday, that Cornwall has heard the loss of the Pacific and of Mr. F. H. Miller, whose sojourn at Boston is likely to be more prolonged than we could wish.

Maskinonge weighing 12, 15, 17 and 43 lbs. were caught last week in the Salmon River near its junction with the St. Lawrence.

We learn just as we go to press that Messrs McGillivray and Rayside have both retired from the contest in Glenarry, and that the battle will be fought out between Messrs. McNab and McMillan. It is a pity this result was not arrived at when the convention sat at Alexandria last week, but with the hearty co-operation of the very respectable representatives of the townships present on that occasion, thirty of whom cast their votes in Mr. McNab's favor, and we hope not uncertain support of Messrs. Grant, Rayside and McGillivray all of whom profess attachment to the Liberal party and to Liberal principles, there should be no difficulty in returning Mr. McNab by a triumphant majority.

The Cornwall Freeholder Printing and Publishing Company, under the Presidency of Mr. Edward McGillivray of Ottawa, with a capital of $5,000, is talked of on the streets. New presses, new type, new staff, and all the necessary auxiliaries for turning out a daily paper are being procured. Truly Cornwall is becoming a city very fast.

We had a pleasant rainfall on Thursday, which has given a delightful freshness to vegetation but the farmers are wishing for a steady downpour for twenty four hours to bring on potatoes and roots.

The sale of horses belonging to the Wagner estate (in liquidation) came off on Thursday in the "Commercial" yard. "Lola Montes" fetched $149, her sister "Lola" $150, and a yearling Sheridan colt $94. Mr. C. Archibald, M. P., was the purchaser.

The Fraserfield estate was sold by auction yesterday to Mr. Bowen, of Morrisburg, for $20,000.

A Scrap From History.

[From the Liberal.]

Conservatives are now disposed to place great value on whatever comes from Sir Francis Hincks. This being so, we quote a brief sentence from him. When the Reformers obtained power after the Union, they naturally enough—other things being equal—preferred their own political friends in the disposal of patronage to their opponents. Then, as now, the Tories were shocked thereat. When they had power, then, as ever since, they made it an invariable rule to prefer their friends; but it was equally their habit then, as now, to bitterly rebuke Reformers for doing the same. Sir Francis (then plain Mr.) Hincks, on being subjected to such Tory criticism at that time, replied:—

"How absurd it is for the Canadian Tories, who, when in power, acted 'most strictly on the principle of never giving offices to their opponents, to come forward now to condemn their own practice.' History reprints itself; and the same complaint being urged in 1875, we meet it with Mr. Hincks's words of 1844."

Notice to Ploughmen.

The Board of Agriculture have divided Ontario into four Districts for the purpose of holding ploughing matches. District No. 1 will comprise the Province from Kingston to Cornwall and North to Ottawa. The Committee of management, consisting of Ira Morgan, A. McNab and A. Wilson will meet at the St. Lawrence Hall, Brockville, July 9th, at noon, for the purpose of making the final arrangements for the Match, which will be held in Elizabethtown, should sufficient entries be received to warrant them in proceeding. The prize amount to $400 and should attract some of the best ploughmen in Central Canada. Intending competitors must notify B. Lovrin, Addison, not later than June the 25th. At the meeting, July 9th, the President and Secretary of each Agricultural Society in the District are expected to be present.

BARNUM'S BALLOON.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE ADVENTURERS.

Pictou, June 24.—Prof. Donaldson, with Barnum's balloon and the members of the Toronto press, were picked up in Lake Ontario 3:30 this morning, five miles from land, opposite Point Peter light-house, Prince Edward Co. They were picked up by Capt. Minaker of the schooner Flying Scud, after a great deal of trouble, and sent ashore in the yawl, landing at Point Peter light-house, where their wants were cheerfully attended to. The balloon and its crew were brought to Pictou this afternoon. They appear to have suffered great hardships, having been in the water four hours clinging to the basket of the balloon, which was being dragged through the water at a fearful pace.

Professor Donaldson says of the 125 balloon ascensions he has made, this one was attended with the greatest danger of any. They all leave by steamer Rochester to-night en route for Toronto. The balloon is all right having sustained no damage.

The following received by telegraph shows in few but telling words what the adventurers had to endure, and how they escaped.

Pictou, June 24.—After a long and tedious voyage we have arrived safe at this town. For over ten hours we were on the lake, most of the time immersed up to the edge of the basket. We were rescued at 3:30 this morning by a boat put out from the schooner Flying Scud, of South Bay. We are all safe, but were much inconvenienced by wet and exposure.

Attempted Suicide.

A young man named H. J. McMartin, a salesman we believe in the firm of J. E. Mallin & Co. of Montreal, who arrived here from that city by train on Tuesday evening last, was shortly after his arrival here, put under arrest by order of the Police Magistrate, who received a telegram from Montreal requesting him to do so. Shortly after his arrest, and while in his bedroom in the Ottawa Hotel, he proceeded to the wash-stand to wash himself, but before doing so he put his hand in his pocket to remove a revolver from it, and while in the act of doing so, as he says, the revolver discharged, the ball entering his head, but not dangerously wounding him. Constable Eligh, who was in the room with him at the time, immediately gave the alarm. Drs. Algrue and Pringle were sent for and they dressed the wound. From the circumstances connected with the matter many were led to think that he had made an attempt to take his own life, but he avers that the discharge of the revolver was purely accidental. It appears that he was Treasurer of some society in Montreal, and having left that city with the intention, it was thought by members of the society, of not returning, and having the funds of the society in his possession, his arrest was ordered. Parties interested in the matter arrived from Montreal the next morning when the whole thing was settled and McMartin discharged.—Frederator.

Terrible Accident at Brantford.

A SCHOOL IN RUINS OVER THE PUPILS.

Brantford, June 25.—A fearful thunder storm passed over this town yesterday, causing damage to property, and loss of life. The Town Hall, a new building, in the basement of which school was held, was blown down, and nine children and their teacher buried in the ruins. When the sad news became known, hundreds gathered at the spot, and commenced the work of rescue. All escaped uninjured except Charles Wilson, who was cut and burned about the head; Herbert Cockerline, head badly crushed; S. J. Kilpatrick, injured in the back. These three will probably recover. Alexander Wood, when taken out, was dead. Several buildings in town were unroofed or partially blown down.

Utica, N. Y., June 26.—Ordo Davis, a farmer residing near Gray, in Herkimer County, was found with his head nearly cut off in his barn on Thursday, a. m. His son, the wife, and wife's sister, and her son, have been put under arrest to await the action of the Coroner's jury.

A sword fish weighing 450 pounds is reported to have been captured at Waubesa, in the neighborhood of Orillia, an inland Ontario village.—This must surely be a whale!

WEST ELGIN ELECTION.—We intimated that on a scrutiny of votes in West Elgin, Mr. Hodgins, Q. C. of Toronto, had been declared to have a majority of six over Mr. Munroe, the Tory who was last January returned as elected for the Riding. Now we are enabled to announce that Mr. Munroe has abandoned all claim to the seat, and that Mr. Hodgins is again M. P. for the constituency, a title he should have worn since the day of polling. The case was tried before a barrister, sitting by delegated authority, and his inquiries in the matter not only resulted in the unearthing of practices such as would have voided Mr. Munroe's election, but very probably disqualified him. One of his agents, Duncan McKillop, was adjudged guilty of bribery and placed under the ban of the law. While the Riding and the new member are to be congratulated upon the result of the scrutiny the latter especially worthy of praise, for his political opponents did not so much as breathe a single imputation against his conduct during the campaign—not a solitary charge was preferred. Surely of all the contests so far called pure, none of them has the degree attaching to West Elgin or its representative, who is a staunch Reformer and a gentleman of undoubted legislative ability. The gain is a clear one to the Government, and will count two on a division.—Hamilton Times.

EVERYBODY SAYS So.—That is all who have used the article themselves or witnessed its effects when used by others; all such, and they only fit to judge, are unanimous in the opinion that "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" is superior to anything of the kind heretofore or at present in use for coughs, colds, thick wind, and all diseases which affect the wind of horses. As a condition medicine it has no equal; there is nothing in it which can injure a horse whether sick or well—nor need the horse be kept from working while using it; it is just the article which all who own horses require, and which they should have constantly on hand. LADIES & GENTLEMEN, Jacques Cartier Bank.

STARTLING REVELATIONS—HOW THE JACQUES CARTIER BANK WAS RUINED—"CUMPTIDITY" AND CRIMINALITY.

(From the Montreal Star.)

The facts connected with the collapse of the Jacques Cartier Bank are of the most startling description and although every possible means has been resorted to (some by no means honorable) for the purpose of concealment, we are in a position after much labour and trouble to give the too confiding shareholders and the public such information as must lead to very active measures being taken to preserve the shareholders' interests from complete destruction. No bank that has ever been established in this city commenced under better or fairer auspices than this one, and so long as it was managed in a straight-forward and honest manner it was eminently successful. For thirteen years past it has invariably paid 8 per cent. per annum dividend to its shareholders, and when, after such success, it has all of a sudden gone down before a temporary disturbance in the money market, the presumption is that there must have been "something rotten in the State of Denmark." This presumption, we are pained to state, is well founded, and in all the history of stupidity and wrong-doing on the part of directors and cashiers of banks there is not a worse case on record than that we are prepared to expose. In the examination which our "special commissioner" has made of the affairs of the bank, he has reason to believe that up to one year ago it was carried on with a just regard to honor and honesty, and that in December last it had a surplus, after paying the dividend, of at least $300,000. Whether the dispensing of the usual official audit the past year by the directors opened the door to the abstraction of the large sums, which have gone out of the coffers of the bank we are not prepared to say, but that the money disappeared in hundreds of thousands since the last audit there remains not the shadow of a doubt.

THE DIRECTORATE.

The directors, Messrs. Victor Hudson, Nazaire Villeneuve, J. B. Beauregard, Andre Lapierre, P. M. Galarneau, John L. Cassidy and L. J. Beliveau, have been in the constant habit of holding semi-weekly meetings in the bank, and at these meetings Mr. H. Cotte, the cashier, has laid a statement of loans, discounts, advances, &c., before them, as is usual in all banks, for the consideration and approval of the directors.

COOKED ACCOUNTS.

The first ugly and startling feature has now to be told. These statements and returns, the greater part of the directors charge, were "cooked" for them, and large loans to Gauthier & Mayrand were never included in the semi-weekly statements—in fact, they were studiously concealed from the directors, as a body, at their meetings. The first intimation which some of the directors had of these large advances only came when the bottom of the safe was reached and there was no longer any plunder to lay hands on.

BROTHER-IN-LAW GRABBERS.

Gauthier and Mayrand, the wholesale grocers—a firm of no great standing in the city—appears, were the first of the grabbers who commenced hauling off the funds of the bank, and they kept hauling until they wound up with the nice little sum of $168,000. This sum is wholly on notes, and probably the $68,000 may be recovered, as about that amount bears good endorsement, but for the balance there is little hope of recovering it. The secret of this wholesale plunder rests on the fact that Mayrand is the brother-in-law of Cotte, and the directors allege they were ignorant of the whole proceeding, the Cashier taking care as they state to conceal the whole matter. On Friday last Mayrand's firm "put up the shutters," on hearing which, Mr. Cotte went down, and Mayrand being absent, had the place opened. On Mayrand's return he again stopped business, and Cotte subsequently had it resumed. It has since suspended.

A DIRECTOR'S DEALINGS.

We must now come to the action of Mr. Victor Hudson, one of the directors. It is well known that this gentleman is the head of the cotton factory at Hochelaga bearing his name. By some process which we forbear to characterize, about $100,000 has gone into the factory and amongst its friends. It has been given on notes also and without the knowledge of the directors, it is said, as a body. The Secretary of the Hudson Company alleges that only $100,000 has been received. We will leave it to the confiding shareholders to discover the exact amount, and hold Mr. Director Hudson to account for handing over the money which he was appointed a guardian on behalf of the shareholders of the bank to take care of and conserve.

N. C. RAILWAY.

The amount which the contractors of this railway received has been greatly underrated in our issue of Saturday last. The total amount which they owe the bank is over half-a-million dollars, and the greater part of this amount has also been studiously kept concealed from the directors' knowledge until the dénouement arrived. This immense amount has been ebbing out of the bank's coffers by degrees for some time past, and as may readily be guessed, this frightfully large advance on notes which were unobtainable, led conjointly with the "brother-in-law's" grabbing to the "bursting" of the bank. A prospect, however, appears of there being ultimately no loss in connection with the railway debt. The Provincial Government is coming to the rescue, it is expected, this week, and a probably exists that $300,000 may be obtained from this quarter towards retiring a part of the notes.

MR. F. MCNAMEE.

This gentleman must be exceedingly clever if he can convince the shareholders of the bank that he is not their debtor to a sum exceeding $100,000. If he has not been led to that amount out of the funds of the institution, then books and figures must lie. As Mr. McNamee is very liberal in dispensing his thousands for public objects, such as establishing patriot newspapers, we have no doubt he will feel called on promptly to discharge his liability to the widows and orphans who are shareholders in this unfortunate concern, and who are reduced to absolute ruin by the acts of its conductors.

GENERAL DEBTORS.

Ecclesiastical bodies have received about $250,000 in advance of notes, all first-class paper, and doubtless every dollar of which will be received. It is "strange but true" that the first in this city to refuse taking the notes of the defunct bank were the Sulpicians. The notes were offered in payment of rent at the Seminary, and promptly declined. This was before a whisper had leaked out among the general public. There are a great many small sums, from two to ten thousand dollars, which are deemed doubtful, but the great body of the late customers of the bank are well off, and fully capable of meeting with facility and ease their notes and balances on maturity.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgment of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and I have tried many remedies without any relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all."—J. M. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P. Q., writes, "I have been troubled with liver complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in case of cuts, wounds, etc., and think it is equally as good for horses as for man."—A. Maybree, Merchant, Wakefield, writes, "I have sold some hundreds of bottles of Electric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, 'One of the best medicines they have ever used.' It has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rusan, Township Percy, writes, "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Electric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Wakefield, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybree of this place induced me to try Electric Oil, and before one bottle was used, it was cured. It is a most remarkable medicine. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price, 25 cts. S. N.
