TIDEWATER ASSOCIATION PRESSING FOR SEAWAY

(The Globe)

Unswerving loyalty to the principle of a St. Lawrence waterway linking the Great Lakes to the Atlantic was expressed yesterday in a telegram to The Globe from George E. Hardy of Detroit on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association.

The communication was inspired by an editorial in Thursday's' Globe commenting upon a revived proposal in New York State for construction of a canal from Tonawanda to Lockport to Olcott, to compete with the Canadian Welland Canal. This project, it is feared by seaway advocates, might prejudice the success of the St. Lawrence-Atlantic scheme.

The telegram to The Globe read: "Your reference to St. Lawrence Seaway noted. Strong and persistent sentiment prevails throughout the major part of the United States—the part directly interested in favor of completing the seaway. The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association, comprising twenty-one States, will continue to sponsor the seaway until construction begins and ocean ships are coming into the Great Lakes. We want immediate action.'"

UNITED CHURCH HOLDS ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Last Sunday and Monday the United Church observed its Anniversary. The present Church was erected in 1880-81, and is thus fifty-four years old. At the morning service on Sunday, Rev. R.C. Tait of Chesterville was the special preacher. The church was filled, and the Choir gave exceptional service. It was assisted by Mrs. McKee, of Waddington. In the evening, the Minister, Rev. R.D. Smith, took charge, and his sermon topic was, "Looking Backward—Looking Forward."

The anniversary supper on Monday was attended by nearly 300 people, and a splendid meal was provided by the Ladies' Aid, under the presidency of Mrs. Geo. Clarke. Those present went to the Church Auditorium, and several hymns were sung. Rev. Mr. Burkholder brought greetings from the Presbyterian Church. The Choir contributed one number, Mrs. Epplett sang a solo, and Mrs. Gorrell contributed an organ solo. An illustrated lecture was given by Rev. H.B. Clarke of Kingston, Ontario, on his experiences in Siberia and Russia.

Mr. Smith expressed the thanks of the congregation to those who had taken part, and to the Ladies' Aid for the splendid supper they had provided.

All were agreed that this was one of the most successful Anniversaries held within recent years.

M. C. I. RUGBY TEAM AGAIN VICTORS

MISS A. E. GORMLEY

There passed suddenly away at her late residence, Montreal, on Friday Oct. 18th, 1935, Miss Agnes Ellen Gormley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Gormley, former residents of Morrisburg. The late Miss Gormley was in her 70th year.

The funeral service was held at the Church of the Ascension of our Lord, Westmount, on Monday morning, after which the remains were conveyed by C.N.R. to Morrisburg, where interment was made in St. Marys cemetery. Rev. Fr. R.J. Coyle conducted the service at the grave, where a large number of sorrowing friends of deceased had gathered to pay their last respects.

She is survived by one sister, Miss Kate Gormley of Montreal, who has the sympathy of many friends in Morrisburg, in her bereavement.

McQUAIG—HAMILTON

A quiet wedding ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hamilton, Dundela on Saturday morning, Oct. 19th at 11.30 o'clock, when their only daughter, Jennie Odessa, was united in marriage to Stanley William McQuaig, Hulbert. For the occasion, the rooms were beautifully decorated with ferns and other potted plants. Rev. S. Burman minister of Dundela United Church, officiated.

The bride was attended by Miss Bessie McQuaig, sister of the groom, and Mr. David Hamilton, brother of the bride was best man.

The bride wore a becoming dress of oak-brown, pebbly-weave crepe with long, loose sleeves, and soft revers of cut velvet

Miss McQuaig wore a blue crepe dress, tastefully trimmed with yellow. Mrs. Hamilton, mother of the bride, wore a printed silk dress with navy blue predominating and Mrs. McQuaig, mother of the groom wore a brown crepe dress.

Following the ceremony, dinner was served to the immediate relatives Mr. and Mrs. McQuaig then left on a motor trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. The bride travelled in a tailored wool suit of flecked blue and a black tree bark suede fur trimmed coat, with accessories to match.

On their return the young couple will reside in Hulbert.

DOCTOR GREATLY BENEFITTED AT LOCKE CLINIC

After suffering for 11 years from arthritis, Dr. J.M. Middleton of Mary, Louisiana, has been a wheel chair patient at the clinic of Dr. Locke for the past month. Dr. Middleton had suffered very severe attacks before succumbing to complete crippling. The last attack he exxperienced he spent nine months in bed. Following this, he was quite unable to walk even on crutches. After several treatments at the clinic of Dr. Locke, he is making fine progress towards recovery.

Dr. Midleton says, "I know the work of Dr. Locke is strictly scientific. He gives every opportunity for observation by all. In all his work I have seen he is being ethical. He has unusual ability and skill beyond the ordinary." He goes on to say that he is surprised at the failure of medical men to realize his value and the importance of his work. He has talked with large numbers of his patients and knows the great good Dr. Locke is doing.

SERIOUS TRAFFIC TANGLE

Seven people were injured and four cars badly wrecked in collisions which occurred on the Ottawa-Morrisburg highway just north of Winchester on Sunday night when vision of the drivers became obscured by dense fog combined with clouds of smoke from brush fires along the highway.

Only with the utmost precautions were motorists able to find their way along this portion of the highway, as it was impossible to see either ditch along the sides of the road and in some places the highway in front of the car was not visible to the driver. The first accident of serious proportions occurred when a light truck from Ottawa, driven by J. H. Wood, crashed into the rear end of a motor car driven by James J. McDonald of Ormond, near the Cloverdale School House. Mrs. James Wood, an occupant of the truck, was seriously injured and was rushed to a hospital in Ottawa by Dixon's ambulance. Mrs. Cecil Shay of Chesterville, who was holding her young baby on her lap at the time, was also injured by flying glass, but the baby was unharmed. Mrs. Shay's condition is not regarded as serious.

Samuel D. Billings, of Ottawa, and Mr. Wood, the other occupants of the truck, received bad bruises and minor cuts. Dr. Peter McLaughlin, of Winchester, attended them. Mr. McDonald, the drivevr of the car, his mother, Mrs. J. D. McDonald, were both badly shaken up in the collision, but their injuries are not serious. Both vehicles were badly damaged.

Another Accident.

Another accident happened at the same place about midnight when, a car driven by Raymond Summers of Winchester crashed into the rear end of a coupe from Cornwall, which had stopped on the highway, being unable to penetrate the fog and smoke. The coupe was hurled into the ditch, but its occupants, Warren Rothwell and Donald R. McLaren, two bankers from Cornwall, were uninjured. The coupe was badly damaged about the rear end. The car, driven by Mr. Summers, contained three other occupants, Mrs. Summers, Miss Eileen Melvin and Mr. Gordon Elliott.

All received minor cuts and bruises, while the front part of the car was completely wrecked. Trailing Mr. Sumers when the crash occurred was another car driven by Lloyd Rowat, of Winchester. He just managed to bring his machine to a stop in time to avoid hitting the car ahead of him.

Other Cars Ditched

Several other cars ran into the ditch along the highway during the night, but were not damaged and no injuries were suffered by their occupants. Constable Herbert Helmer of Winchester, and Traffic Officer Eugene Rose of Morrisburg, remained at the scene of the accidents for hours following the crashes, warning motorists of the danger ahead of them, but in spite of this precaution, motorists lost their way in the dense haze and some were unable to proceed. When Constable Helmer arrived on the scene, the fog and smoke were so bad that his car was forced into the ditch along with the others. The smoke at this point on the highway is caused from the burning of underbrush in a swamp between Winchester and Harmony and makes driving difficult during the day as well as at night.

When fog appears along with the smoke, driving is more hazardous and motorists are being warned to use every precaution when penetrating it. Police are investigating both accidents and it is not known yet whether any charges will be laid against the drivers of the cars or not.

THERE ARE GOOD DRIVERS, TOO!

The Toronto Telegram, which carries on a persistent and well-directed campaign against careless and reckless motorists, pays a tribute not undeserved to another class of driver in these words:

"But there is a motorist of another type which falls into none of these categories—one who is deserving of at least passing mention. It is the motorist who keeps his eyes on the road, is alert for any emergency, who adjusts his speed to the circumstances, who is not always in such a confounded hurry that he has to try to beat the amber light, who gives the other fellow his due share of the road, who doesn't dawdle in the middle of the highway, who doesn't stop across the pedestrian's path at an intersection, and who generally behaves himself as if he was a reasonable human being."

All of this is true. Great numbers of motorists drive with caution and discretion. They never have to explain things to the magisthate. More often than not they carry insurance, but their claims under it are infrequent. Many have driven for years without an accident of any sort, simply by taking reasonable precautions, by using common sense.

His accident record, or the lack of it, after all is the best test of a driver's skill. One man drives tens of thousands of miles and hasn't even a dented fender. The same amount of driving will find another car battered and dented, scratched and scraped, and it isn't credible that "the other fellow," is always to blame. The good driver watches out for bad drivers, goes on the assumption that nobody else knows or follows the rules of the road, and in that spirit usually he finds safety.—Ottawa Journal.

IN HUMBLE PLACES

The Fergus News Record, an Ontario weekly newspaper, reports that a lady who was judging "homemade" cakes at a fair in a town north of Fergus found a piece of cellophane sticking to the icing bearing part of the trade-mark of a well-known cake manufacturer, and "at the same show one exhibit of preserved fruit contained some which had been bought in cans and emptied into sealers to be exhibited."

Dear me! And here we had an idea that such things would only be done by the "fifty big shots" and other such nasty persons. Incidentally, the item illustrates the advances made in the canning industry. Canned fruit and vegetables now can stand right up to "the kind that mother used to make."—Edmonton Journal.

GAMBLING ON A SURE THING

Montreal produce exchange now offers facilities for gambling in cheese "futures," although the gambling element is nominal, since the future of a cheese is almost certain to be stronger.—Windsor Star.

TAKES IT QUIETLY

Dr. Dafoe says the Dionne children have all lost weight, but he is not at all disturbed and says such things must be expected. It's well he looks at things that way. Most parents do considerable fussing when one child loses weight, but if they had five of them working at it they would go crazy.—Stratford Beacon Herald.

MUST HAVE ONE NEXT DOOR

A singer admits drowning his wife. If he made as great a nuisance of himself about the house—and the neighborhood—as some singers do, it is the wife who ought to have done the drowning.—Brockville Recorder.

WAR ATROCITIES

War atrocities at their worst and most atrocious were surely brought home yesterday to families, men, housewives and little children by the radio. Descriptives were used, the scenes painted horribly and all the trimmings were delivered to make women go pale and everybody shudder. Radio broadcasters seemed to outive each other to the point of hysteria in adding to the gruesomeness of the Italian bombing raid. Words did not suffice, expletives, were used and exaggerations adopted which could not be found in any reliable newspaper despatch. —St. Catharines Standard.

HARD TO BELIEVE

Johnny Chubb. of Mamainse, it is related, was fishing in one of the nearby streams that flow into Lake Superior when he heard a noise behind him. Turning he saw a wolf. Johnny was so surprised that he fell backwards into the stream and, supporting himself on his hands to keep his suit dry, was surprised to find he had lit on a beaver with one hand on a trout with the other. The matter was settled amicably by him tossing the wolf the trout. As it is now illegal to take beaver, the animal was returned to the water. The Mail & Empire won't believe this story, although an earnest effort has been made here to tone it down for general acceptance.—Soo Daily Star.

FATHER KNOWS

They're exhibiting a goose with four wings in Medicine Hat, Alberta, but what is needed in a bird—particularly in large families—is one with four legs.—Niagara Falls Review.

MORE FOR MOTORISTS

Motorists using the country roads at night report skunks are unusually common this year. It appears that "the pretty little white and black kittens" are not being trapped because the value of their skins is very low. Unless there are more cents for the skins there will be more scents for the motorists.—Elmira Signet.

DEFENDER OF THE PIPES

It is not often that the bag-pipes are under fire in a city which bears many impressions of the great pioneering race, whose history, achievements and aspirations are expressed in the tones of this instrument. In the last few days, however, a number of correspondents have complained in this newspaper that their serenity has been disturbed by the strains of the pibroch which they have likened to the squealings of totured pigs.

With this the Times does not agree. There is music in the bag-pipes, more, indeed, than there is in many compositions for other instruments, which are described as highly classical, but which are about as melodious to the ear as high-grade futurist art is to the eye. We would rather hear some lusty young Scot practising on the bag-pipes than some tyro producing howls and wails of agony practising on a saxophone or a trombone.

We have heard some critics of the bag-pipes who play no musical instruments at all make day and night hideous by instruments of torture of the first magnitude, namely, the horns of their motor cars. Raucously hoarse devoid of the slightest melodious note, they are by all odds the most objectionable of noise agencies to be found anywhere, and if they can be drowned out by the good bag-pipe player all power to the piper.—Victoria Times.

THE EMPIRE

CANADA LEADS

Which are the nations who are climbing most rapidly out of the depression? They are the British nations. Canada's trade leaped up 22 per cent last month. Inspiring news comes also from little New Zealand, where Mr. Coates, the Finance Minister, boldly states that the Dominion's economic problems are "largely solved." Cuts are being restored, emergency taxes reduced, pensions increased. On top of that Mr. Coates gives a new break to his countrymen. Population of New Zealand, 1,618,000; public works expenditure announced, £5,630,000. That means the inauguration of new boons and amenities for New Zealand at the rate of £3 10s a head.—London Daily Express.

WINGS OVER EMPIRE

More swiftly the world moves on wings. The time is now within measurable distance when travel will almost exclusively be by air. It is, therefore, not surprising that the former British Secretary of State for Air (the Marquess of Londonderry) should have declared in a recent speech that "our transport system fulfils a vital Imperial need." Upon the substantial framework of Imperial Airways' world-wide communications other and more elaborate plans are being devised. Lord Sempill plans to link the British Empire with a service of giant flying boats; Imperial Airways is considering a commercial service by flying boat between Great Britain and Canada; and existing services are being speeded up and duplicated. Prestige in the air is of paramount importance today. The race for supremacy goes hand in hand with technical invention and the expansion of services. It is the duty of the Dominions to co-operate closely with Great Britain. The European mind knows the value of aerial communications. It is taken for granted abroad that Governments must be willing to subsidise civil aviation; for no first-class Power can afford to lag behind in air development. People in the Dominions have fewer opportunities of noting the intensity of this development or its endless possibilities.—The Australasian.

"The difference between Communism and Fascism is a difference in stench."—Benjamin DeCasseres.

Forget War And The Elections And Talk Of Chicken Suppers

After reading the war news of the day and having tried to get the political battles fairly recorded it is well to come upon something which has within it a degree of goodness. That is why we pay heed at the moment to the increasing number of announcements of churches which are preparing to hold the annual chicken supper.

There have been some such things printed in this paper; in the weekly newspapers from the district there appear to be even more. Just a casual inspection resulted in finding eleven of these events heralded. And they were all printed in a friendly sort of way. The supper would take place first and after that a splendid entertainment had been arranged. The prices seem to run around 30 and 40 cents.

We suppose there must be a certain number of chickens marked for destruction right now in a good many farm yards. We don't suppose they would expect a man to hand over the pullets from his flock, at least it was never done that way on the tenth concession even if it was for the support of the church.

There was a feeling that a more seasoned and experienced bird could support the church perhaps better than some young thing that was getting to be fairly handy and regular at laying eggs when the prices were good. Perhaps that is a happy ending for a chicken's life. During other years she was faithful and then on toward the end she did what she could to support the work of the church. Yes, her children would be proud enough to make reference to such a career.

The wonder is how the ladies make those chicken suppers pay. Most people who go to them eat a great deal. They seem to have a certain acrobatic exuberance when they set to on the first helping; they anticipate that if they get through and look hungry some person will suggest they have some more. Never did we know a person to decline such a suggestion at a fowl supper in a church. There seems to be some sort of tonic in the air and it whets the appetite until its consuming possibilites are great like the national debt.

But we're glad the season is on us for chicken suppers. We rejoice. So many things seem to have been sliding and becoming uncertain that it is well to note the continued existence of something which anchors deep in the memories of days when there was peace in the world and honor among men. The annual chicken supper. Ah! Yes, thank you, we'll have another leg and a piece off the chest. We'll just put those bones on the edge of the plate.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Early Lambs

Feeding System Outlived — Winter Dairy Farmers Have Advantage

In view of the fact that a proper system of feeding is the principal essential of the successful raising of early lambs, particularly those for the market in the latter part of June and early July, the farmers who understand the basic principles of winter dairying will usually make a success of raising early lambs. A feeding ration that will produce abundance of milk, results in the production of early lambs that grow rapidly and finish for the market at an early age. Alfalfa or clover hay are essential as they are protein roughages. Corn silage, mangels or sugar beets are also valuable succulent feeds and besides keeping the ewe healthy they stimulate the milk flow. Ewes with lambs at foot also require a liberal allowance of grain usually not less than a pound daily and ewes with twin lambs often taking up to two pounds daily. Oats are a safe feed for milking ewes, and as this grain is most common on all farms it is generally recommended for ewes in milk.

A ewe flock raising early lambs under a system of feeding as suggested above will bring their lambs forward to the spring grass without set back. As a rule, lambs at the time the ewes are turned to grass will have learned to eat both grass will roughage, and, if the pasture field is accessible to the barn, it is advisable to make a creep for the lambs so that they can be fed grain while on the pasture. Grain feeding on pasture increases the rate of growth and development and makes it possible to market at an earlier date. As a rule June lambs are worth more by the pound than July lambs and July lambs are worth more than August lambs. So that a few bushels of grain fed to early lambs is invariably marketed as finished lamb well above current prices.

Finishing Poultry For The Market

The general purpose or heavy weight breeds of poultry are best suited for crate feeding and best results can be expected only when strong, vigorous, sturdy type birds are used. Since the markets demand a light colored skin, those feeds that tend to produce this should be favored. Fortunately home-grown grains are just what are needed. Oats, barley, buckwheat and wheat are all suitable and are best with sour milk. Excellent results may be obtained by the feeding of elevator screenings, and that unmarketable potatoes, fed in conjunction with home-grown grains, not only produce economical gains, but flesh of very highest quality.

Sir here is a simple preventative of common colds in the head. When you feel a cold coming on stoop and unlace your boots and lace them up again. I read this in a South African paper about two years ago, and have not had a cold since trying the experiment, although I have avoided many. The only people who are not cured by this method are those who think it too silly to be tried properly.—Letter in Daily Telegraph.

Canada's Sales to U.S. Show Sharp Increase

Increase Nearly Five Times as Fast as American Exports to Dominion—U.S. Purchases More From Canada Than Any Other Single Country, Analysis Reveals.

Washington.—United States imports from Canada increased nearly five times as fast as this country's sales to the Dominion in the first six months of 1933, but still were $28,000,000 short of parity, it is revealed in an analysis of U.S. foreign trade increased recently by the foreign trade division of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Canadian sales to the United States gained 28 per cent. over the first six months of last year, reaching a total of $130,105,000, the biggest figure since 1931, the analysis showed. They were larger than imports from any other nation, being twice as large as the United Kingdom total of $69,204,000, which itself represented a 21 per cent. gain over 1934.

But, while U.S. sales to Canada rose only 5.8 per cent., tending to close the wide spread of a year ago, they still stood more than 15 per cent. above Dominion sales here. Their total was $158,529,000, representing, according to the analysis, "a healthy gain."

TOTAL TRADE

Total U.S.-Canadian trade in the first six months of the year was set at $288,634,000, taken to indicate the value of the full year's exchange will run more than $500,000,000.

While the analysis showed Canada as leading all nations in sales to this country, it revealed a close race between Canada and the United Kingdom for the position of this country's exports being 15.6 per cent. and 15.5 per cent.

The United Kingdom figure, however, represented a decline of 7 per cent. in purchases from the United States. This was in marked contrast to greatly increased sales of this country's goods to all other members of the British Empire: 41 per cent. to Australia; 23 per cent. to South Africa; 20 per cent. to India; 25 per cent. to New Zealand; 38 per cent. to Hong Kong; 49 per cent. to British West Africa and 27 per cent. to British Malaya.

Simliarly, U.S. imports from all leading countries of the Empire except Ceylon were larger than in 1934. The analysis notes that "the Empire includes our three leading suppliers, Canada, the United Kingdom and British Malaya." Regarding U.S. imports generally, it remarks that "an increase of 48 per cent was recorded for North America, due largely to heavy imports from Canada and Cuba."

MARKED GAIN

A marked gain was recorded in imports from British Malaya which totalled $68,799,000, or 29 per cent. above the 1934 figure. Only a negligible gain, 0.04, was shown in purchases from India. Imports from the Gold Coast, Nigeria and other British West Africa colonies advanced 59 per cent.; from Australia 58 per cent.; from New Zealand 100 per cent.; from Hong Kong 48 per cent, and from South Africa 10 per cent.

On United States foreign trade in general, the analysis revealed substantial increases in exports to North and South America and to Oceania, but brought out declines in trade with European countries, which at one time took four-fifths of all United States exports and now take only two-fifths, and a heavy loss in trade with China which amounted to 40 per cent. of last year's total.

The Chamber of Commerce analysis fails to break down totals of United States trade, either exports or imports, with various countries, but it emphasizes largely increased United States imports of commodities which Canada produces.

For one point, it brings out an "extraordinary increase" in imports of foodstuffs, which it attributes to the 1934 drought and higher domestic prices. It cites a gain of 117 per cent. over the first six months of 1934 in imports of wheat; a gain of 226 per cent. over 1934 on by-product wheat feeds; an increase of 11,462 per cent. in corn and a rise of 47,558 per cent. in imports of oats.

Similarly it reports rises of 356 per cent. in imports of cattle; 122 per cent. in imported meat products, mostly canned; 7,446 per cent. in butter.

Collected by the New Statesman and Nation:

I do not know to whom Sir Thomas was referring when he talked about savages, but in my opinion this term would be applicable to one who does not play the National Anthem before or after a performance. — The Mayor of Brighton in reply to Sir Thomas Beecham.

I am an Englishman of the deepest dye—Mr. F. W. Rickett reported on his arrival at Croydon.

Inflammable Litter Causes Many Blazes

Careless housekeeping in permitting the accumulation of inflammable litter and rubbish was responsible for 26,000 fires during the last three years in Canada.

The careless practice of dumping litter of all kinds in basements or unused rooms, or around buildings is not only a serious fire hazard but is unsanitary and disgracefully unsightly. It is a time honored saying that "Cleanines Is Next To Godlines."

Make an impression of your home and your place of business. Use the limit of your perception and reasoning powers to discover and eliminate all possible causes of fire just as you would in making an important businsess deal. It will pay you a handsome dividend in safety and saving.

A Few Don'ts To Prevent Fires

DON'T leave matches within the reach of children.

DON'T use wooden containers for ashes — use metal ones.

DON'T use gasoline and other inflamable materials for cleaning purposes, in the homes.

DON'T start fires in furnaces without first having the chimney cleaned.

DON'T smoke in bed or while lying down.

DON'T use coal oil to start fires in stoves or furnaces.

DON'T leave rubbish around in cellars — it may burn you out.

DON'T leave oily wastes or rags lying around — put them in metal containers.

DON'T fail to know where your closest fire alarm box is situated.

"In about fifty year or more, a grandfather will say to his granddaughter: 'I can remember when they had queer things in houses called windows!' "—H. G. Wells.

Colorful Collars Fashion Dictates

Here are some smart new ways to give your last year's dress that "new look."

For instance—add a dramatic tied collar of silver metal-cloth to a silk crepe or a velvet dress for cocktail and dinner wear.

Have velveteen collars galore — in new greens, scarlet-red, rusts, and purples for your everyday dresses.

Presto— A 'halter" of metal cloth, satin crepe or velvet will transform any dress to a complete disguise.

Style No. 3476 includes the three collars and halter illustrated. Pattern cuts in one size. Halter requires ¾ yard of 39-inch material. See pattern envelope for collar requirements.

HOW TO ORDER PATTERNS

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of pattern wanted. Enclose 15c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) and address your order to Wilson Pattern Service, 73 West Adelaide Street, Toronto.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

MY WISH

It is my wish to think one kindly thought,
To breathe one simple prayer each day I wake,
That I may add to those about me naught
That would their own life's burdens harder make.
If I but do one comfort-giving deed,
If I but speak aloud one word of cheer,
Perchance some soul, discouraged, sad, may heed,
And lose its sodden weight of doubt or fear.
What service to mankind can be more blessed?
It costs so little, and I gain so much
Each time I pass the sunshine to the rest,
I, too, am warmed by its gentle touch.

Young Man—Darling, I love you as no one ever loved before!

Young Widow—Humph! I can't see any difference.

Shortage of Ships Vimy Pilgrimage

Two Thousand Already Booked Passage — Railways Grant One Cent Per Mile Rate — Applications Pouring In.

Ottawa—Canadian Great War Veterans and their next-of-kin are taking no chances on being left behind when the special Pilgrimage Liners leave Montreal for Overseas in July next. Mr. Ben. Allen, Dominion Organizer for the Vimy and Battlefields Pilgrimage, who has just returned from England, France and Belgium, announced recently that reservations to date number 2,000 and expresses fear that thousands of Canadian war veterans and their next-of-kin may be disappointed in failure to obtain passages unless applications are filed immediately.

"We have just returned from meeting the steamship people," stated Mr. Allen, "and they have warned us that boats may not be available unless reservations are in early. It will be too late if a last few months' rush develops. Unless we can definitely state within the next few months what the number will be, there will be many returned men disappointed.

"Applications are coming in now at the rate of over one hundred per week, but with the authorization given us by the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to announce a flat rate of one-cent-per-mile to and from Montreal for every Pilgrim from his or her home address, we will be swamped with reservations that may fill up our ships."

Trappers Reveal Methods In New Fur Book

Some of Ontario's most successful trapping sets and pelt preparing methods are described by their originators in the new, 1935-36 issue of "The Dominion Trapper".

Although published by The Robert Simpson Eastern Limited, the real authors of this unusual newspaper are followers of the trapline, whose articles and hints to trappers make up the greatest portion of the contents. The illustrations are chiefly snapshots contributed by trappers and fur farmers, along with their suggestions on how to catch the wary fur bearer. In fact, a feature of this issue is a full-page devoted to photographs coming from the trapline.

A copy may be obtained free of charge by addressing the Raw Fur Marketing Department, Robert Simpson Eastern Limited, Toronto. Although the marketing service is limited to Ontario only, "The Dominion Trapper" will be sent gratis to anyone on request.

POULTRY SHOW BIG FEATURE

Royal Winter Fair Has First Class Display Assured

A first class poultry show is assured next month for the Royal Winter Fair and by present indications the numbers of entries may tax the 800-head accommodation to the utmost. Twenty-seven specialty clubs in poultry, pigeons, canaries, and cavies have registered up to date to hold their yearly club shows in the pens as part of and in connection with the eight-day Fair at the Royal Coliseum, and the list for these is not yet closed. Besides poultry proper the Royal Winter Fair includes shows of pigeons, water-fowl, cage birds, cavies and rabbits. In some of the classes numerous American entries are anticipated. Incidentally the total prize money amounts to over $10,000.

The clubs holding their club meets and shows during "The King's Year" are:

American Bantam Association, American Rose Comb White Leghorn Club, "Boosters' Club" — Leghorn Club of Canada, Brahma Breeders' Association, Canadian Barred Plymouth Rock Club, Canadian National Poultry Record Association, Dominion Bantam Association, Dominion White Wyandotte Association, National White Holland Turkey Club, National White Wyandotte Club, Ontario Approved Turkey Breeders' Association, Orpington Club of Canada, Rhode Island Red Club of America, Silver Wyandotte Club of Canada, United White Minorca Club, Canadian Pigeon Fanciers' Association, Canadian Jacobin Club, Canadian Magpie Club, Canadian National Tippler Association, Canadian Nun and Archangel Club, Canadian Pigmy Pouter Club, Canadian Tumbler Club, Racing Pigeon and Show Club, Canadian Cavy Association, Canadian and American Cavy Club, Canadian Fur Fanciers' Association, Dominion Roller Canary Association.

Four Hundred Thousand More Jobs

Wage-earners in Canada are finding more jobs.

You might not think so by watching relief rolls and costs, but if you would search out the good news, analyze the figures prepared and tabulated each month by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The bureau receives returns monthly from over 9,000 buiness firms which employ normally almost a million workers or about 45 per cent of the total industrial working force of Canada.

Assuming this "sample" is still proportionately the same, what do we find? In short that there are now about 2,770,000 people back at work, a gain of 4 per cent. or 115,000 compared with the same month a year ago. Compared with the Autumn of 1932 this means employment at the present time for 460,000 more wage-earners.

Among the sixty different industrial groups which comprise these figures, two in particular stand out like mountain tops. One is silk firms; the other metal mining. For instance, silk plants are now employing 5 1-4 men for every one they employed in the so-called "normal" year, 1926. They have two men employed for every one in 1931.

And the new figures show that the "metal mines" — as apart from coal mining and non-metallic minerals—have now doubled their staffs as compared with the low point of the depression; are employing 23 per cent. more men than at this time a year ago, and reached a new record level of employment on Sept. 1.

Two important groups show smaller employment than at this time last year. Logging camps are seasonally quiet and employing 9 per cent. less than a year ago, but are looking forward to an active season in the bush for 1935-36. Construction is 6 per cent. less active than at this time a year ago, due to considerably less government work on the highways. Building and railway construction are ahead of this time last year.—Financial Post.

Fresh Lamb The Year Round

Is The Object Of The Newly Formed Canadian Lamb Committee

An appreciable benefit to the Canadian farmer-sheepbreeder is anticipated from the work being carried on by the recently organized Canadian Lamb Committee, which has undertaken to conduct a campaign to encourage the consumption of fresh Canadian lamb and to inform Canadian housewives of the economical and nutritive advantages and the year-round availability of this type of meat according to a statement just issued by the committee.

The committee consists of W. H. J. Tisdale, Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, chairman; R. W. Wade, Canadian Sheepbreeders' Association, secretary-treasurer; S. E. Todd, Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers, L. E. O'Neill Live Stock Commissioner, Ontario Department of Agriculture, and A. A. MacMillan, Associate Chief Live Stock Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, directors.

The object of the campaign, the statement continues, is to effect a more even balance between the production and the consumption of fresh lamb in Canada. Its work has been necessitated because within recent years the finishing and marketing methods of fresh Canadian lamb have been improved to such an extent that this meat may now be obtained at moderate prices during any month in the year.

The majority of housewives, however, are still apt to regard fresh lamb as somewhat of a seasonal luxury and are not fully aware of the continuous monthly movement of the farmer's product to the retail market, it is claimed in the statement. A great many housewives also do not appreciate the tremendous nutritive value of lamb and its suitability as a staple meat in the family diet, and the committee is confident that its efforts will be of substantial benefit to thousands of Canadian housewives as well as to thousands of Canadian farmers and sheepbreeders.

Community Action In Soil Control

Is Needed For A Maximum Degree Of Success

While individual effort is usually very effective in controlling soil drifting, and every farmer should adopt the best known control measures on his own farm, the most successful results, says the "Soil Drifting Control in the Prairie Provinces" bulletin issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, will undoubtedly follow The importance of this community action will be readily understood from the fact than an area of unhindered, drifting soil usually expands very rapidly. Moving particles of soil are not always brought to rest by collision with stationary soil particles, and in many cases the latter are caused to join in a general movement under the influence of high winds.

The most carefully planned and executed control measures may be entirely ruined if the soil has to withstand the combined action of wind and drifting soil from adjoining areas. These facts show the necessity for community action if a maximum degree of success in the control of soil drifting is to be obtained. While the control of drifting on any farm is primarily the concern of the individual farmer, his success may be aided or hampered by the action of his immediate neighbours.

In order to prevent losses to neighboring property by unprotected summerfallow, the Legislative Assembly of the province of Alberta passed an Act in 1935 known as the "Control of Soil Drifting Act." This Act carries certain penalties for failure to provide proper protection to adjacent property. No claim for damages may be made by any person, however, unless the claimant himself is complying with the Act in regard to soil drifting control measures. The Act comes into force on the 1st day of March, 1936.

Canadian Blue Grass Seed

The production of this seed in Canada is confined mainly to the counties of Haldimand, Norfolk, Brant and Welland in Ontario where it has been a cash crop for many years, fair crop of some 90,000 pounds is expected this year but the quality is said to be off due to discoloration and lack of plumpness.

Prices to growers have not yet been established due to uncertainty in the market. A fairly large crop of Kentucky blue grass in the States may prevent much export demand there for our seed. However, the domestic market should be able to absorb this year's production particularly as very little carry over from last year is reported. Prices paid growers for the short crop of 1934 ranged from 12 to 14c per pound.

Cheap Feeds for Finishing Poultry

In experiments in crate finishing of poultry, it has been found that buckwheat screenings, a byproduct from the grain elevators consisting largely of wild buckwheat and broken wheat with a small admixture of wild oats, flixseed and other weed seeds, give excellent results both as to quantity and quality of flesh. It was also shown in these experiments that small unmarketable potatoes may be used to advantage in crate feeding. Fed in conjunction with home-grown grains these potatoes gave as economical grains as corn and produced better colour and finer quality in skin and flesh. The potatoes may be fed either boiled or mashed, or raw and finely chopped, and mixed with the ground grain and milk.

The Potato Crop

Harvesting of the late potato crop commenced about the first of October and has been general since then. The crop suffered severly from drought and the failure to germinate of a considerable percentage of seed tubers, which had been affected by frost. Both acerage and yield per acre show decreases. The production is estimated at 12,682,000 bushels as compared with 19,716,000 bushels in 1934, representing a reduction of over seven million bushels. The acreage was decreased by 11 per cent., from 164,000 acres to 149,200 acres, and the yield per acre shows a drastic decline, being placed at 85 bushels per acre as against 120 bushels last year. Potatoes in the eastern provinces have also suffered from unfavorable weather conditions, reductions varying from 30 to 40 per cent.

The supply situation may be regarded as distinctly favouarble to growers in Ontario. Producers are marketing their crops slowly and preparing to store a greater proportion than usual in the hope of obtaining better prices later on.

Current Crop Reports

The Department's current crop report states that though the weather generally was colder in September than usual, late crops continued to develop satisfactorily. Less fall plowing was done than in the ordinary year, as farmers were kept busy threshing their heavy grain crops, and in a number of countries, the soil was too dry in the first half of the month to work easily. The acreage shown to fall wheat shows a sharp decrease from last year due to these same factors, and in Central and Eastern Ontario the disastrous amount of winter-killing experienced in the past two years further tended to restrict the area sown to this crop

Pastures are reported to be standing up well in most counties and milk flow continues at a level slightly above normal. The total hay crop amounts to 7,182,600 tons as compared with 4,286,500 tons in 1934. The yield of fodder corn is estimated at 9.8 tons per acre, considerably in excess of the yield of 9.2 tons a year ago and total production will amount to 3,173,300 tons as against 2,990,000 tons in 1934. In order to make use of the abundant supply of fodder available, farmers are planning to feed a considerable increased number o fstockers.

Climate and Sugar Beets

From the data collected during the past twenty years, a good general idea of where sugar beets can be grown successfully has been obtained. Of the two main factors considered, namely soil classification and climatic conditions, the latter appears to be the determining factor for both yield and sugar content. A cool wet spring prevents seed germination, and a poor stand is the result. A hot, dry summer retards growth, giving small roots and a yield, and a cold dull autumn, often with frosts before harvesting, prevents the proper maturing of the beets at a time when sugar formation is taking place. Thus, the ideal seasonal conditions are a warm spring with sufficient precipitation to ensure good seed germination, a growing season with plenty of rain and a mild open autumn with considerable sunshine. These conditions vary every year and explain why one district produces good beets of high sugar content one year and beets of poor quality the next. A dark loamy soil seems to be best for sugar beet growing. Beets are very susceptible to soil acidity and liming of the soil is necessary. It is now recognized that for best results plenty of phoric acid seems to be the most imtertilizer must be used and phos portant element.

The Bees Need Help

The honey-gathering season has ended and the bees are now preparing, in so far as they possibly can, for the coming winter. They will, however, need some assistance in order to survive the long, cold months that are ahead. During the summer months the bees worked feverishly to gather enough honey to sustain them through the following autumn, winter and spring. In most cases the amount far exceeded their requirements and the surplus has been taken from them. Unfortunately, there is a tendency on the part of many beekeepers to take from the bees an unfair proportion of their stores thus placing them in danger of starvation before new supplies can be obtained the following year. To pack bees away for winter without an adequate food supply is to court disaster. It is far bbetter to find living colonies with a surplus of food in the spring than it is to find colonies dead or depleted through starvation. During the autumn months, the colonies are producing a large force of young bees that must survive the winter and continue the activity of the colony next spring. For this purpose a large food supply is needed. Should the supply be insufficient brood production is curtailed or stopped entirely, thus weakening the colony when strength is of extreme importance. After brood rearing normally ceases the consumption of food is greatly reduced but does not cease entirely. At the end of September, or early in October, every colony should have at least forty pounds of well capped honey or sugar syrup for winter use. Any deficiency in this amount must be made up by giving combs of sealed honey or an equal amount of refined sugar made into syrup. Bees also require protection during the winter months and as they are unable to provide this for themselves it must be supplied by the beekeeper. Protection can be given by either packing the bees in well insulated packing cases or moving the apiary into a well constructed cellar or dugout.

PRESBYTERIAL IN VENTNOR MEETING

The western section of the Dundas Grenville Presbyterial of the United Church held the annual meeting in Ventnor United Church on Wednesday in two sessions, with Mrs. F. B. Newman of Spencerville, president, in charge.

The Roebuck W.M.S. took charge of the morning devotions, with Mrs. Wesley MacLean and Mrs. John Lawrence contributing. Mrs. Gilbert Peterson of Spencerville acted as secretary. The following appointments were made: Secretary, Mrs. Hugh Adams of Johnstown; courtesy committee, Mrs. Theodore King of Crystal Rock and Mrs. H. B. Johnston of Shanley. The 1936 presidents of Ventnor and Prescott were appointed to act as nominating committee for next year. Mrs. Russell Irving of Ventnor welcomed the guests in a cordial manner, there being about 150 present. Mrs. Hugh Adams of Johnstown replied.

Splendid reports were received from the following auxiliaries: Circles C.G.I.T. groups, Mission Bands and Baby Bands; Crystal Rock, Cardinal Johnstown, Maynard, Pittston, Mainsville, Prescott, Roebuck, Shanly, Spencerville and Ventnor. The reports showed that much work had been done by the societies including numerous emergency bales of clothing sent in Canada; regular bales of new and second-hand clothing for the mission schools, and the giving of life memberships.

During the year Miss Helen Earl of Kispiox, B.C., missionary among the Indians and Miss Edna Brown, missionary nurse, both from this district, addressed many of the societies in the section.

The report of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference branch convention, held in Quebec City, was given by Mrs.E. H. Mills of Crystal Rock and Mrs. Merrill Foster, presbyterial officers. At noon the Ventnor ladies served dinner in the church hall.

The afternoon session opened with Mrs. (Rev.) D. N. Cobourn of Prescott conducting the worship service. followed by an address by the presbyterial president, Mrs. A. B. Allison of Morewood. She emphasized the fact that in this tenth anniversary year, their finances, membership and subscriptions to publications should increase ten per cent. A rally to take place in Kemptville on November 6th with the officer of 1935 on the platform was announced. The Winchester society will present a missionary pageant. This really will be the concluding anniversary celebration.

Mrs. W. S. L. Merrill of Morrsburg, presbyterial treasurer delivered an address on the financial situation and urged all societies to meet their allocation. Mrs. James Murdock of Hainsville, conference branch president, gave an illustrated address on the "Machinery of the Work of the W.M.S." Mrs. T. King reported for the courtesy committee and an invitation was extended and accepted to hold the next sectional meeting at Johnstown.

Mrs. Harold Riddell presided at the organ for the hymn singing and a vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. S. J. Tripp and Rev. W. P. Wornell of Spencerville, with Mrs. H. W. Fairbairn as accompanist.

Special recognition was made of Mrs. Melisha Adams of Ventnor who has been a member of the Ventnor W.M.S. for the past 72 years. Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones of Cardinal conducted the closing exercises with Abraham Newman of Crystal Rock pronouncing benediction.

AGED IROQUOIS COUPLE MARRIED 66 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. George Durant celebrated their sixty-sixth wedding anniversary at their home, Iroquois, this week. The couple, who live very quietly, were greatly surprised when their only daughter, Mrs. E. Slieter and her husband of Cardinal, arrived with a large turkey, and "all that goes with it". Just at the dinner hour, about twenty guests arrived from Vankleek Hill and Massena.

Many callers of their home town made short visits during the afternoon, Mrs. Durant, formerly Lydia Ault, receiving in a brown lace dress with touches of white lace.

The Durants have been residents of Iroquois for the past sixteen years. Mr. Durant has reached the age of 88, while his wife is two years younger.

CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

On October 7th, 1910, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Algire were united in marriage, Rev. L.M. McCreary, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Morrisburg, officiating.

On Monday evening, October 7th, 1935, in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, Mr. and Mrs Algire entertained their neighbours and friends at their home in the sixth concession of Williamsburg. The rooms were prettily decorated with autumn blooms. The six o'clock dinner table was centered with a beautiful three-tier wedding cake decorated with a miniature bride and groom. Miss Alice Loucks and Mrs. M. Doherty poured tea, and assisting in the serving at the dinner table were: Mrs. M. Doherty, Mrs. Edwin Whitteker and Miss Alice Loucks. A toast proposed by Mr. R. Boyd was responded to by the groom.

During the evening the presentation of many beautiful silver gifts was made by Mrs. Frank Whitteker on behalf of all present. Mr. Algire, on behalf of himself and his wife, thanked their many friends for the many beautiful gifts and their thoughtfulness.

Mrs. Algire was formerly Miss Isabel Boyd of Scotland, while Mr. Algire is a son of Mrs. Algire and the late Mr. Ernest Algire. They have a family of four sons and one daughter: Herbert, Harold, Lawrence and Charles Algire, and Miss Edna Algire.

Among the guests at the reception were: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clark of South Mountain; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Clark, all of Ottawa.

REMODELED FOR SCHOOL WEAR

Style Details That Help Home Dressmaker Economize

Each season offers certain distinctive fashion details that help the home dressmaker, provided she has the ingenuity to adapt these features to her particular sewing needs. Just now one's attention is called to the practical advantages of shirrings and pleats—especially in the work of remodeling. Both of these dressmaking details, so emphasized at the moment, have the pleasant quality of concealing unwanted seams in an ornamental way, while their expanding possibilities recommend them to anyone who is remodeling clothes for growing girls. Shirring is especially obliging, as iti admits of a fabric being pieced horizontally — the seams concealed in the evenly placed rows of gathers — and also vertically, as the piecing will be hidden in the fulness below the lines of shirring.

Hubby—I'm glad you only want $5 to go shopping with today. What are you going to get with it?

The GREEN GHOST

by Stuart Martin

SYNOPSIS

Maud Barron awakes with a premonition of disaster. She hears padding footsteps. Rushing into her father's study she finds him dead.

Dr. Sidney Foster, a friend, is joined by Detective "One Eye" Uttock, a mulatto, who has never lost a man.

Maud Barron and Hughes return to England. Dr. Foster gives Maud his address in case of need. He receives a telegram informing him "The Ghost" has reappeared.

"Oh, I didn't know you were here, Elsie said.

She had taken off her white dress and was clad in a long, flowing robe held round her waist by a broad sash. It was a black robe, but the sash was yellow and stood out sharply, and Foster saw that the robe was richly embroidered with Japanese flowers of silk.

"Do you mind if I come in?" she asked. "I have been with Maud for a bit. She can't sleep, but she insisted that I went to bed. And I don't want to go to bed. I can't sleep either. I often come up here and look out when I can't rest."

"If I gave you something—"

"No, I never take drugs, thanks, doctor."

"I daresay you are wise there."

"Sometimes I play a game with myself on the green," she continued, with a motion towards the table, "but tonight I don't feel like it. You are sure you don't mind me coming up?"

"Not at all. I was just thinking of going down to my room, but I think you ought to rest also, or lie down."

She was not the joyous, care-free creature who had danced in the drawing room, and he saw that her face was lacking the enthusiasm she had then shown.

"I suppose it is the late hours of the profession that have made it difficult for me to go to bed early," she said soberly. "For years it was the small hours before I turned in. Late to bed and late to rise. What were you looking out of the window for? Watching anything "

"No. Merely looking."

She advanced until she stood beside him, and leaned her elbow on the window sash.

"Does night ever make you sad, doctor "

"No, it hasn't that effect on me."

"It makes me melancholy here. I miss the rush and gaiety of the profession, the late suppers, and the whirl of existence. Ah, well, when everything is settled, I may go back to the old life again. How I love it! I love anything with movement and energy. Change and change. I must have change, or I'd stagnate and die."

She turned a pale face to him, and her deep eyes, that were limpid and profound, scanned his face. She might have been a draped statue, so still was her frame, and Sidney Foster thought that she would have made a fine statue indeed. The perfume which she always used penetrated the air and made the atmosphere strangely delightful.

"Do you think the ghost will come tonight?" she asked suddenly.

"I don't know. If it came you would perhaps not believe it was a ghost."

"Are you sure it is one?"

"I don't know. If it is Voodooism —but, then, I don't know. I have been wondering if it was this thing that I thought I saw tonight in the wood when I frightened you."

"I did not see it then," she murmured. "But if it came now I would believe. I wonder if it is because of it that we can't sleep."

"Tut, tut. You are not to work yourself up like that, or you'll be in bed too—"

"And you will have two patients then, eh? That will keep you busy, I bet."

She turned towards the window. Dr. Foster walked over to the gas fire and lit it, yawning as he did so.

"If you'll excuse me," he said, "I think I'll get down to my room. I've put the fire on for you if you want to stay for a bit—"

"Doctor Foster, come here"

"What is it?"

"Come here!"

He strode over to the window. She seized his arm and drew him towards her, so that her head was within a few inches of his. Her finger stabbed across the roof of the house towards the edge of the woods.

"Do you see anything glimmering over there?"

He stared intently. Yes, he saw something, and his heart beat a rapid tattoo as he gazed. Was it the ghost coming again, twice in one evening?

"I saw it glimmer a moment ago," she whispered. "Over by the big beech. What do you think?"

He held his breath and watched. Her hand still gripped his arm. He felt her trembling with excitement.

"Hadn't we better put out the lights in case?" she breathed. "I want to see it. Oh, I want to see it!"

"You are not afraid?" he asked eagerly.

"No, you are here. Put out the lights. Do."

He tiptoed across the room and snapped out the lights, but kept the fire burning. Then he returned to her side.

"The fire doesn't matter," he said. "It could not be seen. We are too high up."

"Hush," she whispered, and her arm held his close to her.

Down by the wood the faint glow of a moving something became more distinct. It appeared and disappeared at intervals, but it moved constantly forward towards Shirley.

A thrill swept over Foster and was communicated to the woman beside him. She turned her eyes and looked into his, and he wondered at the strange gleam that shone in her face.

"It is coming!" she murmured. "It is coming. Look!"

He was looking with all his power. The faint glow became brighter. It became a glimmer, then it took form and shape. Though they were high up they could see that it was the face of a monster; but the features were still indistinguishable. It moved closer to the house. Now it had left the shadow of the trees and was crossing the lawn. For a moment it seemed to hesitate and remained hanging motionless in the middle of the grassy space. If only it moved nearer they would have a view close enough to satisfy them in truth.

What The Tourist Wants

Some tourist attractions are permanent, others occasional. Tourists just have to be reasonable about it and discover what is what and when. They may sit on the verandah of almost any large hotel in India any day and see the mango tree trick done; but they will never see the rope trick performed unless they are quite a shade less than strictly sober, and probably not then. Moreover, they may roam the country for months before catching sight of an elephant, a tiger or a cobra, even where they are reputed to live, and do live.

It is a pity when tourists feel they have been disappointed and deceived. It is a temptation too; it would be so easy in Canada to have a few Indians always handy in feathers and war paint solely in order not to disappoint visitors. Then the tourists would be deceived, but they would feel that they had not been. Life is very complicated. — Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

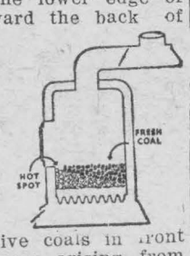
"TOSSING on a few shovelsful" is the common way of refueling a furnace, but it is not the proper way, nor is it the way to obtain the most economical heat. Try this method next time you find it necessary to refuel:

First, shake the fuel bed gently, until you can see the first red glow in the ashpit. Don't shake the fire roughly or allow red coals to fall through the grates. Then take a shovel, or hoe, and pull a mound of live coals to the front of your furnace fire-box, just inside the fire door. Do not disturb the layer of ash under the live coals.

Now you have a fire bed sloping downward, from the lower edge of the fire door, toward the back of your furnace. Into the hollow formed by this slope, put the fresh charge of coal — shoveling it in carefully toward the back of the furnace, leaving a mound of live coals in front near the fire door. These live coals in front will ignite the gases arising from the contact of the fresh coal with the hot coal, and will cause them to burn without odor.



Next remove the ashes from the ashpit, and reset the dampers. The Turn Damper in the smoke pipe should be as nearly closed as possible; the Check Damper should be closed; the Ashpit Damper should be open. It is also advisable to open the slide in the fire-door slightly — about the width of a wooden match stick. (2)

Woman Makes 14,000 Mile Pilgrimage To Son's Grave

Darwin, Northern Australia. — A Lancashire woman has just made a pilgrimage of 14,000 miles to see the grave of her son.

She is Mrs. Emily Clapp, aged 62. Her son, Constable Arthur Clapp, of the Northern Territory Police, was fatally injured in a shooting accident in 1927 and was buried at Katherine, 200 miles inland from Darwin.

After her son's death Mrs. Clapp resolved that she would visit his grave.

"I felt I could not rest until I had travelled to Australia to see his grave," she said when she arrived in Darwin. "It took a long time to make the necessary inquiries and save the money, but now I am almost there."

A WEEKLY TONIC

by Dr. M. M. Lappin

A WIDOW'S DILEMMA

My heart always goes out to a woman who is bereft of her husband and is left with the task of bringing up young children alone. The gallantry with which some women have faced such a task, and the success they have made of it, can only invoke one's admiration. I have a letter this week from a widow who is in a dilemma. Let me quote a part of her letter:

"My husband died nine years ago and left me with two children — a girl and a boy. My boy is now seventeen and is finishing high school My girl is almost twenty and has a good job. They are both good children and have been very considerate of me, but something seems to have come over my daughter in the past year or so. She is not what you would call bad. She has become very fond of dancing and wants to be out every night. She is keeping company, particularly with men, that makes me anxious about her future. If I remonstrate with her she tells me I am too old fashioned. I have a strong suspicion that some of those she runs around with are too fond of drink. I am really worried. Can you help me in my diemma?"

This letter is obviously from a woman who sincerely desires the best for her daughter, and to that end she has tried to do her best. Of course she is facing a situation that many mothers have to face, but I sometimes wonder if, in such circumstances, a mother's fear are not apt to be unduly exaggerated. Mark you, I appreciate the feelings of a mother in a case like this and I think I can quite understand her problem. There is a tendency for the world to take more notice of a young woman's misconduct than it does of a young man's misconduct. Somehow we seem to associate the sowing of wild oats with young men and look for that sort of thing in them. I do not know why we should do that, but do it, and the fact that we do is apt, perhaps, to make mothers a little bit more sensitive regarding the conduct of their daughters.

A young women, like the one concerned here, needs to be handled carefully. To adopt an unsympathetic and scolding attitude toward her may do more to drive her along the wrong path than anything else. After all, she is not yet twenty and she is just at that age when she is going through that experience which psychologists call "the period of stress and storm", and her present conduct may be nothing more than her reaction to those changes which are taking place within her. Perhaps she will settle down soon herself and see the wisdom of taking things in moderation without your having to do anything about it.

But I fancy that you are too anxious to wait for things to take their normal course. Probably you even feel that if she is not checked now there can be no telling where she will land. And, in a sense, you may be right. What this girl needs is wise direction. I would advise you to have a straight heart to heart talk with her. Watch for an opportune moment and then open up with the conversation quietly. Try to show your love and your thought for her in your conversation. I mean, of course, more in the tone and manner of your speech than in the words you use. If you begin to talk to her in "deary deary" terms she will almost certainly resent it. Point out that there is nothing wrong in wanting to have a little pleasure and that you are quite willing that she should have it. But make clear to her also that over-indulgence in anything is always bad for one and that, in the ultimate, the highest values in life are not material, but mental, moral, and spiritual.

I am sure that if this mother will only adopt the right attitude toward her daughter and have a real honest-to-goodness heart to heart talk with her, she will find her daughter to be a fairly sensible girl.

QUICK BREADS SECRET OF A GOOD HOSTESS

Secret of how to be a popular mother or hostess: "Become expert at making quick-breads, especially muffins and waffles!"

You simply can't miss, if you have mastered the art of biscuits in their many varieties, corn breads, nut breads, muffins and waffles, because not only is their popularity enormous and sure, but they can be adapted to any informal meal, at any hour, to any group, on any occasion. Be sure, though, that you make plenty!

The real emergency gem is the muffin. If you once master just one, good, standard recipe, the particular kind of muffin you select for any occasion depends only on the contents of your cabinet or pantry shelves.

In mixing muffins, special care must be taken to avoid over-stirring, because it ruins them. A few seconds of over-heating makes them come up in peaks and full of air holes. A good muffin batter should look lumpy —that's the way it will bake smooth.

Waffles always seem a little more festive, because there is sociability connected with baking them right at the table, or smoking hot from the stove right onto plates in the kitchen at midnight! Ever notice how they always draw a crowd when baked in a restaurant window? They may also be the basis of a meal, served with creamed chicken or little pork sausages.

Proper care of the waffle mold (the new name for "iron") is one of the essentials for good waffle-making. Batter must not be allowed to burn on—keep it scraped off with a steel-wire brush. Batter will stick if the mold is too cool or too hot. And for greasing, use a non-salty fat!

Standard Muffin Recipe

2 cups flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup milk and 2 tablespoons melted shortening.

METHOD: Sift dry ingredients together; beat egg until foamy, add milk and fat; immediately combine two mixtures and mix quickly. Bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven 425 degrees Fahrenheit for 25 minutes.

Date and Cheese

Add 1 cup chopped dates or 3-4 cup grated cheese to the dry ingredients of the Standard Recipe.

Cornmeal Muffins

¼ cup butter, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 1 cup cornmeal, 4 teaspoons baking powder and ½ tablespoon salt.

Cream the butter. Add sugar, then eggs, beaten without separating until light-colored and thick. Into this stir, alternately the milk, flour and cornmeal, sifted with the baking powder and salt. Beat thoroughly and bake about 20 minutes in hot, well-buttered gem pans.

Bran Muffins

2 cups flour, 1 cup bran, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 egg yolk, well beaten, ½ cup raisins, chopped, ½ cup prunes, cooked and chopped, ¼ cup butter melted, 1 egg white, beaten stiff.

Sift dry ingredients reserving a little flour to dredge fruit. Add milk to egg yolk which has been well beaten. Add to dry ingredients. Add fruit and melted shortening and cut into egg white which has been beaten stiff. Bake about 25 minutes in buttered rings in a 400 Fahrenheit oven.

Cherry Muffins

¼ cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup drained cherries or blueberries.

Mix ingredients as for cake. Beat thoroughly. Add cherries last. Bake in greased muffin tins or in paper baking cups set into muffin pans, in hot oven (425 Fahrenheit) for 25 minutes. If blueberries (canned at this time of year) are used instead of cherries, add ½ cup flour, extra.

Pecan Muffins

1-3 cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 3-4 cup pecan meats, broken up.

Follow directions for mixing given in other recipes. Stir in nut-meats last. Bake.

Standard Waffle Recipe

Two cups flour, half teaspoon salt, two eggs separated, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, 1½ cups milk, four tablespoons melted bacon fat.

Method: Sift dry ingredients. Beat egg yolks, add milk and bacon fat (not hot) and combine with dry ingredients. Fold in beaten egg whites and bake in hot waffle iron.

Jam Waffles

Add half cup strawberry or raspberry jam to above recipe before folding the egg whites.

Chocolate Waffles

Two cups flour, half cup sugar, two eggs, two squares unsweetened chocolate, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, 1½ cups milk, half cup shortening, half cup finer chopped nuts.

Method: Sift dry ingredients. Separate eggs. Beat yolks and add milk. Stir into dry ingredients. Melt chocolate with the shortening. Add to batter with the nut meats. Fold in beaten egg whites. Bake on hot iron.

Note: If batter appears too stiff, add a little more milk.

Creamed Chicken
(For Waffles)

Two tablespoons butter, 1½ cups chicken stock, two cups chopped cooked chicken, ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour, two tablespoons green pepper, one egg yolk, salt and pepper to taste.

Method: Melt butter, blend in flour, add chicken stock and green pepper (pepper is optional) and cook about 7 minutes. Stir in chicken. Beat up egg yolk, add milk and stir into chicken mixture. Cook two minutes. Season. Prepare waffles by standard recipe. Use a half for each serving. Pour chicken mixture over it and garnish with a curl made of a narrow strip of pimiento.

HOT WATER

Before breaking an egg for poaching place it in boiling water for about half a minute. The yolk will then be less likely to mingle with the white.

Before peeling tomatoes plunge them first in boiling water and then in cold. The skins may then be removed easily.

When new bread has to be sliced the knife blade should be dipped frequently in a jug of boiling water. This prevents it from sticking to the moist bread.

Oranges that are to be sliced for a fruit salad should be left in boiling water for about five minutes before they are peeled. The white pulp may then be more easily and cleanly stripped off.

To prevent sausages from bursting while they are being fried dip them first in boiling water.

When butter and sugar have to be creamed together, place the bowl in a larger bowl of hot water for a few minutes and beat the mixture. Remove the bowl from the hot water before the butter becomes oily.

Jars of honey, syrup, oil, or oily preparations of any kind may be more thoroughly and quickly emptied if they are first allowed to stand in hot water for a few minutes.

GOOD FALL DISHES

Veal cutlets with stuffed sweet peppers is a delightful dish for an October dinner. Serve it with a salad of tomato stuffed with a vegetable aspic and finish the meal with a frozen dessert.

Veal with Stuffed Peppers

Four veal cutlets, 1 egg, cracker crumbs, 2 large sweet green peppers, ½ cup cooked lima beans, 4 tablespoons tiny cooked onions, ½ cup corn cut from cob, ½ cup diced cooked beets, 4 tablespoons Hollandaise sauce or melted butter.

Have the butcher cut veal steak in slices 3-4 inch thick. Trim meat in neat pieces for individual serving. Or "cutlets" may be used. Roll meat in crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon cold water and roll again in crumbs. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and saute a rich brown on both sides in hot fat in a frying pan. Reduce heat, cover closely and cook slowly for 1 hour. Place on a hot platter and on each cutlet put half a pepper filled with combination of vegetables. Pour the sauce or melted butter over each stuffed pepper and serve at once. The peppers are prepared by cutting in halves lengthwise and removing seeds. Then simmer for eight minutes in boiling water. Drain and fill with vegetable.

Eggplant Italienne is a good dish to serve with a leg of lamb or it makes a splendid main luncheon dish for the family.

Eggplant Italienne

Two small eggplants, 2 hard cooked eggs, ½ cup diced cheese, 1 cup tomato sauce.

Pare eggplants and cut in slices. Sprinkle each slice with salt and pile on a plate, one above the other. Cover with weighted plate and let stand two hours. Saute in butter and line a shallow baking dish with half the slices. Cover with eggs cut in slices, over eggs sprinkle the cheese and pour over tomato sauce. Cover with remaining eggplant and bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

To make tomato sauce cook 1½ cups diced tomatoes with onion, celery leaves, parsley, carrot and three or four whole cloves. Season with salt and pepper and a little sugar and cook until very soft. Rub through a sieve. Thicken with two tablespoons butter blended with 1½ tablespoons flour.

VINEGAR AIDS

The vinegar bottle is inclined to lead a double—no, multiple—life in the household. It preserves, adds flavor, serves as a cleanser, is a beautifying aid, and appears in so many guises that it almost loses its identity.

Warm vinegar removes heat marks and stains from mahogany. It acts as a polish, when rubbed on the wood as well. Lacquer finishes respond quickly to vinegar cleaning, though the surface is dulled a little and must be brought back to a polish with an oil.

Paint brushes which have hardened may be softened again in vinegar. Simmer them in boiling vinegar for half an hour, then wash thoroughly in soap suds. This treatment is only for brushes whose bristles are set in rubber. Those with glued bristles would lose them as the glue melted in the heat.

Stove polish moistened with vinegar has a deeper black than when water is used. For fire grates and that centre strip on the range, the vinegar-moistened polish stays black longer than when water is used.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON IV — October 27

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST (INTERNATIONAL TEMPERANCE LESSON)—Daniel 5 : 1-3-. PRINT Daniel 5 : 17-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink a brawler: And whosoever erreth thereby is not wise. —Proverbs 20 : 1.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time — The particular events of this chapter occurred in the last year of Belshazzar's reign, i.e., B.C. 538.

Place—The king's palace in the city of Babylon.

"Then Daniel answered and said before the king, Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give thy rewards to another; nevertheless I will read the writing unto the king, and make known to him the interpretation." Daniel rejected the gift and the distinction promised to avoid, as a divinely enlightened seer, every appearance of self-interest in the presence of such a king, and to show to the cold water, leaving the hair really clean and beautifully fluffy.

On washday, vinegar has its place in "setting" colors. New things that have not been washed before may be soaked in a weak solution of vinegar and salt, while a few spoons of vinegar added to the rinsing water helps to keep colored clothes from streaking.

Black lace should be washed in vinegar and water, about 2 tablespoons of vinegar to two cups of water. Then it should be rinsed in cold coffee and stretched on a padded board to dry, with each point of edging pinned to place. If it is to be ironed, lay it over a woollen pad, cover with thin woollen material and press gently while still damp.

A little vinegar in the water helps a poached egg to retain a symmetrical shape. If a boiled egg is cracked, the white will not escape into the water if a little vinegar is added.

Boiled fish should always be cooked with a dash of vinegar in the liquid. This keeps the flesh firm and white.

Cheese wrapped in a cloth wrung out of vinegar will not dry out and become mouldy. Pantry shelves wiped with vinegar during hot weather are cooled and of refreshing odor.

White wine vinegar is a clear, colorless liquid used most commonly to give acidity of flavor. Cider vinegar is a light amber color, and has a peculiar tang which makes it a favorite for many kinds of pickles. The two may be used interchangeably in recipes. Tarragon vinegar is a spiced vinegar used less frequently for salad dressings and other piquant mixtures.

Curtain rings and hooks that have grown rusty with age, recapture the glow of youth if boiled for a time in vinegar, then polished while still hot. Vinegar and salt will polish stained brass bowls.

A vinegar rinse is the last word in luxury for the hair. After the tresses are washed, and the rinsing fairly well completed, a few tablespoons of vinegar are added to the rinsing water. The vinegar removes the last trace of soapy residue, and rinses out itself in the final dash of king and his high officers of state that he was not determined by a regard to earthly advantage, and would unhesitatingly declare the truth, whether it might be pleasing or displeasing to the king.

"O thou king, the Most High God gave Nebuchadnezzar thy father the kingdom, and greatness, and glory, and majesty:" 19. "And because of the greatness that he gave him, all the peoples, nations, and languages trembled and feared before him: whom he would he slew, and whom he would he kept alive; and whom he would he raised up, and whom he would he put down." How fearlessly, how clearly, how penetratingly, Daniel recalls to the mind of this sensual king the career of his grandfather Nebuchadnezzar, and especially the humiliating experiences which this greater man endured, which, in themselves, should have kept Belshazzar from the pride and arrogance which so visibly marked his life, particularly at this hour!

"But when his heart was lifted up, and his spirit was hardened so that he dealt proudly, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and they took his glory from him: And he was driven from the sons of men, and his heart was made like the beasts', and his dwelling was with the wild asses; he was fed with grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven; until he knew that the Most High God ruleth in the kingdom of men, and that he setteth up over it whomsoever he will.', (See 4 : 29.) "And thou his son, O Belshazzar, hast not humbled thy heart, though thou knewest all this." In the phrase, though thou knewest all this, it is implied that, notwithstanding his knowledge of the matter, Belshazzar did not avoid that which heightened his culpability.

"But hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven; and they have brought the vessels of his house before thee, and thou and thy lords, thy wives and thy concubines, have drunk wine from them; and thou hast praised the gods of silver and gold, of brass, iron, wood, and stone, which see not, nor hear, nor know; and the God in whose hand thy breath is, and whose are all thy ways, hast thou not glorified." 24. "Then was the part of the hand sent from before him, and this writing was inscribed.' Belshazzar, and all his lords, and wives, and concubines, had committed more than one sin that night. They had given themselves over to unbridled indulgence in the things of the flesh; they were traitors to their own city, in that they were not placing themselves under stern discipline, when the siege of Bablyon so greatly demanded such absolute sobriety; but, most of all, they had mocked the true God of Israel.

"And this is the writing that was inscribed: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN." The literal translation of these four words would be: Numbered, numbered, weighed, and divisions.

"This is the interpretation of the thing: MENE; God hath numbered thy kingdom, and brought it to an end." God hath numbered means that God had fixed the number of Belshazzar's days, i.e., the days of his reign, beyond which they could not possibly be extended.

"TEKEL; thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting." See Job 31 : 6; Ps. 62 : 9. God Almighty has a special pair of balances before him weighting and filling up until your life also is numbered and finished.

"PERES; thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians." Upharsin is the noun plural of the word of which peres is the participle. The first means division; the second, literally, divided. The meaning is not that the kingdom was to be divided into two parts, the one part given to the Medes and the other to the Persians, but that the kingdom was to be divided into pieces. It was to be despoiled by the Medes and Persians.

Staying Married

(Letter In New York Times)

York Times: Having recently celebrated my thirtieth wedding anniversary, I offer a few suggestions on how to stay married to one man or one woman.

For the men: Don't form the idea in your early married years that your wife is merely a being to keep the machinery of your household going. Try to remember her birthdays and, if you are able, send her flowers occasionally. It works wonders towards making her an excellent cook. Greet her pleasantly when you come home from work, no matter how you may feel. Take her to a show at least once a week. Never make her feel that she is losing out in looks. Remember, a woman of 50 cannot look as she did at 20. In general make her feel that you appreciate her. You will be more than repaid.

For the women: Don't think that being married means you must not be careful of your appearance. Husbands are often the most critical men in the world. Learn to make gool coffee. Poor coffee has caused many divorces. That goes for biscuits, too. If any difficulties arise, reason them out sensibly instead of flying off the handle and uttering words you may regret. Don't expect your husband to remain the young lover you knew him to be during your courtship. Age makes us a little more serious. In short, make up your minds to be happy and contented and—you will be.

ANNA BLUMBERG.

Better Housing Conditions Make For Bigger Children

New York. — An unmistakable and not inconsiderable increase in the size of boys and girls in the past twenty years because of improved health conditions brought on by better housing points the way to the time when smaller houses and lightened labors will bring about a happier and more healthy environment, Dr. Francis Carter Wood, director of the Columbia University Intitute of Cancer research, said recently.

Future taxes will relegate people to simple existence in little houses, he asserted, and the university of the most important educational institutions in the world.

Ernest Shiach, a resident of South Gower, suffered a broken back on Monday night while cranking his car. Mr. Shiach had apparently left the car in gear, and when he stepped in front to crank it, it started to move forward. It is thought that in attempting to save himself, he put up his feet and the car doubled his body backwards, breaking his back. He was removed to the Ottawa Civic Hospital, where it was stated he is paralyzed from the waist down.

While making some adjustments to his tractor on Saturday last, Mr. Walter Whitteker, a farmer residing in Matilda Township, about two miles west of Williamsburg, met with a severe and painful accident when his clothing was caught in the machine. Before he could free himself, Mr. Whitteker's leg became entangled, and was badly mangled, the ligaments and cords being seriously injured. After receiving medical attention, he was rushed to Brockville General Hospital, where his condition is reported as still serious.

Mrs. C. Lumsdale-Carr, who for some years was organist and choir leader of Erskine Presbyterian Church, Ottawa, and for the past year organist and choir leader of Winchester United Church, was taken to Ottawa Civic Hospital Monday evening, after falling off a platform at the rear of the church. She suffered a fractured right shoulder, bruises and possible internal injuries. Mrs. Lumsdale-Carr was present at the church on the occasion of the special anniversary services. She was about to take a walk, and had just stepped on to the back platform when she slipped on some wet leaves, lost her balance, and fell of the platform.

The response, during the week, to the accounts we sent to our subscribers has been very gratifying. Several of our rural subscribers have come in and paid a year more than that for which they were billed. There are, however, several who, as usual, pay no attention to our reminders, and these include a large percentage of those who are in arrears for more than one year. Therefore, unless we hear from subscribers who are more than one year in arrears, within two weeks, we shall be compelled to do as we did in former years—ask someone else to complete the job of collecting these accounts. Though reluctant in this move, there appears to be no other way out, and the unfortunate part is that this action would throw an extra expense on the subscriber, as the accounts will be handed in at the regular arrears rate of $2.00 per year. We can see no reason why all of our subscribers in arrears would not take advantage of the $1.50 rate at which they have been billed.

LIBERAL PARTY TAKE OFFICE

The Mackenzie King Cabinet was sworn in on Wednesday night, as follows:

Prime Minister, President of the Privy Council and Secretary of State for External Affairs, Right Hon. W.L. Mackenzie King, Ottawa.

Minister of Mines, Immigration and Colonziation, Interior and Indian Affairs: Thomas A. Crerar, Winnipeg.

Minister of Justice: Ernest Lapointe, Quebec.

Minister of Public Works: P.J.A. Cardin, Sorel, Que.

Minister of Finance, Charles A. Dunning, Montreal.

Postmaster-General: J.C. Elliott, London, Ont.

Minister of Trade and Commerce: W.D. Euler, Kitchener, Ont.

Secretary of State: Fernand Rinfret, Montreal.

Minister of National Defence: Ian A. Mackenzie, Vancouver.

Minister of Pensions and National Health: C.G. Power, Quebec.

Minister of National Revenue: J.L. Ilsley, Kentville, N.S.

Minister of Fisheries: J.E. Michaud, Edmundston, N.B.

Minister of Labor: Norman McL. Rogers, Kingston, Ont.

Minister of Railways and Canals and Minister of Marine: Clarence D. Howe, Port Arthur, Ont.

Minister of Agriculture, vacant.

Minister without portfolio: Raoul Dandurand, Montreal.

Choosing for the occasion the eve of Thanksgiving, Right Hon. W.L. Mackenzie King took over the reins of a Liberal administration early Wednesday evening. Half an hour before, they had been surrendered by Right Hon. R.B. Bennett. His resignation carried with it the resignation of all his colleagues of the defeated Conservative ministry. Several hours later, the new Government took office, the Ministers being sworn in by E.J. Lemaire, C.M.G., in the presence of His Excellency the Administrator, Sir Lyman Duff. The Cabinet contains several figures new to it and to Parliament, but none who had not figured in the speculation. Neverthess, in the lineup there are some surprises and, as always happens at such a time, disappointment to some who entertained aspirations and put forward claims..

The ceremony of the outgoing of one Government and the incoming of another is nothing spectacular. Usage dictates certain procedure, behind closed doors, and all this was carried out with great precision. In the finalities of the process, Mr. Bennett and Mr. King did not meet though they had done so before. One had left when the other arrived.

The Cabinet Council, the Bennett Cabinet, had a final meeting at 3 o'clock, but did not transact business. They put in over an hour, however, sitting around and chatting. Then the meeting broke up and they came out, apparently taking in good spirit the turn of fortune which defeat entails.

HUNTING DATES ANNOUNCED

The official announcement of dates set this year when Ontario nimrods may hunt partridge, pheasant and quail, and the areas to be open, has been made by the Department of Game and Fisheries.

$200,000 HOSPITAL PROPOSED

Providing that a petition presented to the Counties Council, in session at Cornwall, is favorably considered, erection of a $200,000 turberculosis isolation hospital will be commenced there next spring.

The petition, signed by nearly 50 doctors throughout the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, was presented by Dr. J.A. Tallon, Cornwall, who, along with several other Cornwall doctors, expressed the necessity for a hospital of that nature in this district. Members of the Council would not comment on the petition or proposition with regard to the financing of the hospital, and referred the petition to the Finance Committee for report.

The open sesison of Council was addressed by Dr. G.C. Brink, of the Department of Health, Tuberculosis Division, who outlined the inroads tuberculosis has been making in this district, and pointed out that, of all cities and towns in Ontario Cornwall had the highest mortality rate, the result of tuberculosis. Of all the counties in Ontario, Glengarry had the highest death rate of any in this district, it was pointed out.

Dr. Brink maintained that the only reasonable way to end deaths from tuberculosis was to have early diagnosis and treatment. This, he claimed, was only possible through the erection of a hospital in this district.

An approved site has already been selected, and George E. Brennan, solicitor for the religious hospitallers of St. Joseph, Cornwall, spoke at some length on the proposed financing of the hospital. The religious hospitallers of St. Joseph are willing to invest $100,000 in the hospital, and it was suggested that the counties and the provincial government would each invest $50,000. The Hotel Dieu Sisters would operate and maintain the hospital, which would be primarily for patients from Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Prescott and Russell, each county contributing an equitable share toward the erection of the hospital.

SENSATIONAL BUT TRUE FILM STORY COMING TO CAMEO

Something decidedly new in the way of 100 pc. talking pictures is the film story of John Lee, "The Man They Could Not Hang," which is being shown at the Cameo Theatre, Morrisburg, for two nights, with daily matinees, commencing on Friday Nov. 1st, next. The story of John Lee is, to quote the Liberty Magazine, 'the most unusual in criminal history'. Convicted of murder, three attempts were made to hang him, but he survived them all, and had even, before going to the scaffold, prophetically outlined the failures. That he lived to hear another confess to the crime is but one more angle of this marvelous but absolutely true story, which will be shown with the original Tivoli Theatre, Toronto, prologue, introducing W. Leonard Howe, stage and screen star ) so long with Doug. Fairbanks, Sr., who recently revisited the scene of the crime, and will illustrate his inner knowledge talk with many shots of the actual places and people concerned in the crime, taken by himself personally. Although this attraction has played to $1.50 and higher admissions in Toronto and throughout the world, by special arrangement regular prices will prevail during this engagement.

MRS. T. W. AULT

Mrs. T.W. Ault died at her home in Cornwall on Tuesday, following a two-year illness, although she was able to be around the house until a few weeks ago.

Born in Brinston 74 years ago, her maiden name was Mary Jane Brinston, she being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brinston. The Brinston family were pioneers of the district, and from the family the village derived its name.

Mr. and Mrs. Ault resided in Brinston until 26 years ago, when they moved to Cornwall on Mr. Ault receiving the appointment of governor of the counties' jail. He retired from this position on October 1, 1934.

Mrs. Ault was a life member of the W.M.S. of Cornwall United Church, and was corresponding secretary of the society for years.

Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Harry J. Anderson, of New York City; two brothers, John, of Brinston, and Albert, of Winnipeg, and a half-brother, Alex Brinston, of Brinston.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon from her home in Cornwal, where service was conducted by Rev. T.A. Halpenny, D.D., at 1.30 o'clock. The body was then taken to Brinston for burial.
