CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

We spent an interesting morning at the kirk last Sunday. The place is comforting to go to, one hears some good sermons and the organ music resounds. Only last Sunday when the lady in charge of resounding poked a pedal for a peal, nothing happened. The electric organ seemed to have blown a tube.

Fortunately the choice of hymns was familiar, a couple of deep breaths made lions out of tenors and away the whole issue went a capela and everyone on his own. Wasn't bad, either, although an occasional "amen" wavered between up and down.

This business of depending on the magic of electricity is so commonplace, we almost forget about it. Here at the Castle, we are completely electrified. The drawbridge is even fitted with a photo electric cell. When friends arrive they are greeted with an automatic creak and groan and the portcullis lifts and lets them in. If there is a blue tint to the arrival, such as a Tory type, the whole thing sits mute and refuses to rise. It is tuned for red, not dead.

We use the invisible stuff to heat the place, we stir up laundry litter with it and we have done away with candles at last. Now light is provided by snapping a switch. All in all it is handy, this electricity, and every little while we are grateful to the George Davidson Electric Company that provides the district with power.

Most farms today are almost fully electrified and the farmers have discovered the need for auxiliary supplies of power. A neat arrangement is a tractor driven generator. It can be quickly hooked up and lo! the milker will run and he doesn't face the prospect of milking forty or fifty cows by hand. Even the little chickens can be kept a bit warm when the heat lamp goes off if a generator is handy.

It is a long time since this village was using Beach power. Then the lights were turned off at midnight. The source of power was a steam generator at Winchester. Besides in those days the late show went blank when the sun went down.

It is also a long time since the newspaper was run by an Irish motor. It was called Reilly and he came in every press day and cranked the big press by hand. Not fast, but real steady. Some sort of arrangement was cobbled up whereby his one-man-power was translated into about seven horses. We understand it sometimes took a bit of fuel to start the motor but in those days the FlynnMcCloskey fuelling stations were in operation and horsepower was dispensed at five cents a jolt.

The day is coming, we understand, when our gas buggies will be powered by electricity. No smell, no snort and no Hollywoods. The only thing to be heard on the highways then will be the tapping of studs or the gentle screams of excited womanhood. All one will have to do is plug in the device at night and by morning everything will be brimming with electrical octane. It will see man and his car make the complete return to the womb; the umbilical cord will become a necessity once again for existence.

Dominion elections called for June 25

Prime minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau waited only a short few minutes this week then called a general election. It will be held through-out Canada on June 25.

The new prime minister had been expected to make an annoucement regarding an election date. It was felt in many quarters the Liberal party would take the opportunity of riding the present wave of personal popularity of Trudeau. An election will demonstrate whether there is enough carryover from the Grit convention to make a majority government.

Dundas County will now be in a new riding. The combination of Stormont-Dundas came into being at the last redistribution of Federal ridings. This will be the first election for the new arrangement.

The Hon. Lucien Lamoureaux has been the sitting member for Stormont and has been the Speaker of the House.

Mrs A. Stewart heads W. I. at Morewood

The regular meeting of Morewood Women's Institute was held in the Senior Public School. Mrs K. Hillis, the president, opened the meeting with the Ode and Mary Stewart Collect.

Roll call was answered with the payment of membership fees. It was announced that Chesterville Women's Institute will sponsor a short course on "Women's Institute Procedures", to which all interested ladies are invited.

A report was given on the sewing done for Save the Children, and a number of articles of clothing were on display.

Two delegates were appointed to attend the district annual in Mountain on May 15. Mrs D. Runions gave a report of the district business meeting held recently.

Conveners of standing committees gave concise reports in each department.

The slate of officers for the year 1968-69 was presented by the nominating committee and is as follows: Past presidents, Mr H. Stewart, Mrs H. McConnell, Mrs K. Hillis; president, Mrs A. W. Ray Wilson, Kenmore discusses agriculture speaks to Rotary, Monday

W. Ray Wilson, Kenmore, a retired Holstein breeder, feels the next five years of farming are in for some remarkable changes. More, he thinks, than have taken place in the past 50 years. Mr Wilson was speaking at the regular meeting of Chesterville Rotary Club on Monday night. He was introduced by Dudley Craig and thanked by Eric Casselman.

The speaker described the trend to bigger farming units. He felt the small diversified operation as practiced today on many farms was on the way out. While the bigger units were not all the answers, he noted that more specialization would be needed to keep the smaller units on an economical basis.

A new member, Norman Harris, assistant manager of Nestle (Canada) Ltd. was inducted into membership of the club. The induction was performed by James Moonie.

President Glen Droppo presided as chairman and conducted the business of the club.

Reveal plan for cheese plant at Ingleside

Plans for the new Kraft Foods Ltd. plant at Ingeside have been announced in some detail, as well as the prospective dates for the commencement of the project and the opening of the plant for production.

The plant will occupy a site totalling 103 acres north-east of Ingleside and adjacent to County Road 18A. The latter will be the main route to the plant.

Construction is scheduled to start about June 10, and the plant should be in production by September 1, 1969. About one year will be required for the construction of the building.

The plant will contain about $3,000,000 worth of automatic equipment for the making of cheese, and will consume about 500,000 lbs. of milk daily at the start, all to be brought into a special receiving area by bulk tank trucks. In full production it is estimated the requirement will rise to a million lbs. a day.

The main building will measure 205 feet by 352 feet, with a small L shaped section projecting 52 feet. The receiving area will be 72 feet by 60 feet, three inches, and will adjoin the main structure.

A prominent feature of the new plant, and the one which will likely strike the eye of the visitor most forcibly, is a series of tanks which will handle the products of the plant during some phases of production. Three of these will hold up to 40,000 gallons, two will hold 30,000 gallons and three more 15,000 gallons.

The consultants on the new project are T. Pringle and Son, Ltd., Building and Industrial Consultants.

Ottawa Home Show biggest and best in 1968

This year's Ottawa Home Show is shaping up to be the biggest and best ever put on in Ottawa. More than one hundred fascinating exhibits, will present a spectrum of modern home comforts and beauty. Dates of the Home Show at Lansdowne Park are April 29 to May 4.

The theme of the fifth annual Ottawa Home Show is - At Home - In Our Second Century. It is designed to provide the public with an opportunity to see under one roof, the newest and most exciting advances in home inprovement, decoration and renovation, as well as construction materials and accessories.

The Home Builder's Association of Metropolitan Ottawa, who is sponsoring the show, expect to draw record numbers of visitors this year. When the show first opened its doors in nineteen sixty-three an attendance figure of ten thousand was achieved. By the time last year's 4th annual Home Show closed, more than twenty-five thousand interested spectators had filed through McElroy and Curl-O-Drome Buildings at Lansdowne Park.

Yet still more are expected this year to capture the latest ideas for homes, household planning, accessories, materials and fabrics, at what promises to be the most interesting event of the year for Ottawa and district homeowners and cottagers.

Mme Lucien Lamoureux to officially open Ottawa Home Show

It has just been announced by the Home Builder's Association of Metropolitan Ottawa that Madame Lucien Lamoureux, wife of the Speaker of the House of Commons, will officially open the Ottawa Home Show at Lansdowne Park, Monday, April 29 at 4 p.m.

While the builder is responsible for the construction of the house, it is the woman who makes the home - therefore it is appropriate that the Ottawa Home Show be opened by so distinguished a homemaker as Madame Lamoureux.

Born in Hull, Quebec, Madame Lamoureux has been fluently bilingual from early childhood. Receiving her formal education at the Normal School in Hull and the Sacred Heart Convent in Ottawa, later studied at the University of Ottawa School of Drama and was associated with theatre groups in Ottawa and Hull for many years.

Besides being the busy mother of four children, she has found time to be active with a number of charitable organizations and cultural societies in Ottawa and also in Cornwall, where the family has a permanent home.

More than fifty women's organizations and associations will be represented at the official opening ceremonies to give added strength to the woman's touch at this year's Ottawa Home Show.

Colin MacGregor, Morewood honoured by Guernsey Assoc.

Colin A. MacGregor, founder of Glen Haven Farms east of Morewood was honoured recently by the Canadian Guernsey Association. He was made an honourary life member. This honour is bestowed on both active and former members of the Association who have made a major contribution to the development and promotion of the breed.

Mr MacGregor is still active as secretary of the Eastern Ontario Guernsey Club. During his active years with the herd he developed some outstanding animals including one three generation Gold Star cow family.

The herd and farms are now owned and operated by son Malcolm MacGregor. He has handled the farms for the past 14 years.

Trudeau fields makeshift team

Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinetmaking shows evidence of hasty workmanship, observes the Ottawa Citizen. His new-old government cannot be designed to last more than a few weeks—perhaps through a general election campaign.

Nevertheless it has some strong features which may form a solid base for a permanent admistration later on—assuming the Liberals are returned to power.

Mr Trudeau deserves credit for assigning Mitchell Sharp to external affairs and Edgar Benson to finance. These are two extremely able ministers on whom, obviously, the new prime minister intends to rely.

His appointment of the veteran Paul Martin to the post of government leader in the Senate shows a touch of intelligent and sympathetic respect for an elder comrade. It is a pity that Mr Mr Martin could not be persuaded to accept Mr Trudeau's own justice portfolio, where his smooth talents could be put to work in seeking a constitutional accommodation with Quebec. For the time being, Mr Trudeau will have to carry that load himself.

Industry Minister Charles Drury looks overworked with his new tripartite responsibility for the departments of industry, defence production, and trade and commerce. This must be a temporary appointment made necessary by the last-minute refusal of Robert Winters to accept the job.

Mr Trudeau has both paid political debts and recognized useful talent in bringing John Munro, Donald Macdonald and his personal friend, Gerard Pelletier, into the cabinet as ministers without portfolio. They merit assignment to specific departmental duties in the first cabinet reshuffle.

The rest of the Trudeau cabinet is indistinguishable from the Pearson ministry that preceded it — which is to say that much reconstruction remains to be done.

It looks as though the new prime minister intends to let this temporary, transitional group of ministers carry the government through an early election campaign.

If that indeed is his intention, and the electorate favours him with victory, he will then have a major job of reorganization before facing Parliament.

High priced liquor

Some interesting figures appertaining to liquor costs in Canada were published recently. In view of recent rises in the excise tax on liquor, states the Kingston Whig-Standard, the average citizen should be fascinated by the way the various taxes compare with the profits of the distillers.

An average bottle of liquor (type not specified) works out to a share of $0.79 to the distiller. The federal excise tax is $1.57 and the federal sales tax $0.27. Then there is the mark-up of the government liquor store, which comes to no less than $2.04, plus the provincial sales tax of $0.24.

The total is $4.91: share to the distiller — 79c. The share to the Dominion and provincial governments — $4.12, or 84 per cent of the total.

According to Jan de Lint, who does research for the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Foundation, the government arranges the excise tax in a meaningless and discriminating way. Beer, wine and spirits all contain alcohol. Wine containing a gallon of absolute alcohol is taxed $4.20. The amount of beer containing a gallon of alcohol is taxed $8. But the amount of hard liquor containing the same gallon of alcohol is taxed $26.50. This makes people think that drinking beer and wine is somehow less harmful. But what would happen to consumption if all three forms of liquor were taxed in exactly the same way?

A side question is, why does the government try harder to discourage drinkers of hard liquor than those who drink wine or beer? Then, of course, comes the usual query: why don't governments stop moralizing about drinking and treat all forms of alcohol as they do any other commodity, since, these taxes do not act as a deterrent? We all know the answer to that one: Governments have always been hypocritical about this matter and are not going to give up a good thing once they get their hands on it.

VETERAN HUNTER LOOKING FOR OPAL FIND

John Prosper Ralston, old, leathery, and nearly broke after earning and losing fortunes searching for opals from Alaska to Australia, hopes to make one more big strike in the rugged West Kootenay district of British Columbia.

Now 76, his face seamed from endless prospecting in jungle, desert and frozen tundra, he believes he is near the biggest payoff of all.

He says "there is the greatest potentiality for finding opals that I have ever seen" in the wild, wooded Ymir area 20 miles south of the city of Nelson, B.C.

"Here I am a Canadian who has travelled the world, and I find more potentialities right here than anywhere else."

He first achieved fame in New South Wales, Australia, where he found a fortune in the shimmering coloured stones.

They called him the "Opal King."

"Lots of times I have had $100,000," he says.

His search, however, did not start and end in Australia.

In British Guiana—now Guyana—he narrowly escaped plunging down a 750-foot waterfall. He once crossed the Alaska Panhandle on foot while looking for the stones and says the "only country I've never been to is India."

While travelling the Trans-Siberian Express, he lost a fortune in opals that formed part of a travelling exhibition.

It was probably his opal exhibition as much as his travels that gave John Ralston his reputation.

CONTROLLING CRABGRASS AN EARLY SPRING CHORE

The bugbear in most Ontario lawns is that perennial problem, crabgrass. Horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food tell us the best time to gain control over this menace is in early spring before it germinates.

Crabgrass seedlings can be observed first in the lawn in late May or early June. Where long grass is thin they may be dispersed through it, but generally crabgrass develops in quantity in small bare patches. Pre-emergence control must be started well before this germination period if success is to be attained. Application of pre-emergence herbicides after germination has taken place is completely useless.

A number of chemicals on the market will give satisfactory pre-emergence control for crabgrass. Applications of Zytron, Dacthal, Bandane or Betasan may be made in the early part of May to prevent crabgrass seeds from germinating.

The recommended rate is approximately 15 pounds active ingredients per acre (about ½ lb. per 1,000 square feet). Always consult the manufacturer's directions for quantities required to treat your lawn. Care must be taken in application of the products as they are often lethal to many flowering garden plants.

EARLY CORN HYBRIDS NEED EARLY SEEDING

Early planting of early corn hybrids is one of the cheapest and easiest ways of increasing corn yields, says Dr L. Kennenberg, Crop Science Department, Ontario Agricultural College. Seeding corn in the early part of May is best because tests have shown htat a bushel of yield is lost for each day's delay in seeding after May 15.

However, if corn is to be planted on light land, seeding should not be done before May 7, since light soils warm up faster and the growing point will reach above the soil surface earlier. Late frosts then may cause damage.

The growing point of the plant remains beneath the surface longer in heavy soils. Leaves may be killed completely but the plant will survive as long as the growing point is not damaged.

When planting early, increase seeding rates by 10 percent, Dr Kannenberg says. Treatment with a fungicide is a must, since in cool, wet soils the seeds take longer to sprout and will have a greater chance of being injured.

Early hybrids are a must in areas where there are 2,700 heat units or less. Farmers in other areas should also consider early hybrids for earlier harvesting and better conditions.

Yields of early hybrids can be at a par with the full-season hybrids, Dr Kannenberg points out. But, he says, higher populations per acre may be necessary to keep the yields up. An increase of another 10 percent is recommended.

A disadvantage, and one of the reasons the entire acreage should not be put into early hybrids, is that the plants tend to go down unless they are harvested as soon as they are reasonbly dry.

Farmers are therefore warned to begin with only a portion of their corn production in early hybrids. Use of the hybrids means some adjustment in harvesting operations, since the season begins earlier in the year. Try a few acres, says Kannenberg, and see how they fit. Expand your acreage as it fits into your operation.

GOOD CORMS, GOOD SOIL MAKE GLADIOLI THRIVE

It's time to plant gladioli for summer blooms, say horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

Gladioli can be grown successfully on a wide range of soil types provided that the underdrainage is adequate. Where the fertility level is low, apply a 5-20-20 fertilizer, or one of similar ration at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds per 1,000 square feet.

Do not plant in the same ground as last year if another suitable location can be found. This helps prevent a build-up of soil-borne diseases. Also avoid planting diseased corms.

Gladioli thrive best when planted in open sunny locations. Planting depth should be four inches for the large corms and slightly shallower for the smaller sizes. The large corms flower first and are followed according to size. Therefore, if one has corms of different sizes a succession of blooms can be obtained throughout the summer. If late blooms are required some large corms may be held for planting in mid to late June.

Planting different varieties also increases the length of the flowering season and gives more colour.

PLASTIC PLUMBING MAY SAVE ON HOUSING

Vinyl plumbing systems which could save about $300 on the cost of the average house are predicted for many Canadian homes by 1972.

A spokesman for a leading Canadian plastics manufacturer says the vinyl plumbing systems will also be superior to conventional metal installations and may be used for the rehabilitation of older residential buildings.

He says a recent pilot project where a 60-year-old multi-family apartment building was completely re-equipped with rigid vinyl plumbing clearly demonstrated how plastics now make plumbing rehabilitation practical in older residential buildngs.

In the project, a four-storey apartment building in Ohio, a rigid vinyl PVC (polyvinylchloride) was used for the drain, waste and vent system and hi-temp Geon vinyl (GPVC) was used for hot and cold water lines.

"The vinyl materials proved easier to install and were 30 per cent less costly than conventional metal piping, Mr Bailey said.

"Vinyl, being more flexible than metal, readily accommodates irregularities in framing," he says. "Its light weight makes it easier to handle, joints are solvent-welded in a jiffy and conventional joining tools and torches are unnecessary."

The uses of plastic materials in the building industry has multiplied fantastically in the past few years and cites items now accepted as commonplace such as vinyl windows and sashes, rain gutters, flooring, building facia, eaves and louvres.

A recent article in a Canadian trade journal tells how plastic house siding and snap-on vinyl cladding is now a reality.

Habitat at Expo '67 was an excellent example of the many uses that can be founded for plastics in housing. There the bathrooms have tubs, washbasins and toilets all moulded, along with the floor, into a single unit.

Ontario Hydro paid more than $6.5 million to federal and provincial governments in 1965 for the use of water from rivers to generate power at its hydro-electric plants.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In regard to the column in which you dealt with the question: "Is marijuana dangerous?" you quoted Dr Edward Litin of Mayo's, Dr Zigmond Lebensohn of Washington, D.C., and Dr Philip Solomon of Harvard. You described these gentlemen as three of the country's most distinguished psychiatrists. Will you tell me please the names of the publications in which their statements appeared and the dates?

Also, is marijuana more dangerous than alcohol? Thank you. —C.R.H. of Jueau, Alaska.

Dear C.R.H.: The statements of the three psychiatrists which appeared in my column were not taken from publications. They were made directly to me.

In response to your question "Is marijuana more dangerous than alcohol?" — you may as well ask me if scarlet fever is more dangerous than diphtheria. My answer is: Who needs either one? There is no valid comparison between alcohol and marijuana. One is a depressant, the other a hallucinogenic. Both are drugs and carry with them their own peculiar set of problems and dangers.

Some individuals have been known to use marijuana for many years and suffer no ill effects. The same can be said for alcohol. Ditto — driving 110 miles an hour. It doesn't always lead to tragedy, but why take the chance? For those who believe marijuana is harmless I would like to point out that 90% of all known heroin addicts began with marijuana.

Blotting out reality and anaesthetizing oneself against discomfort, with booze, pills or drugs is not, in my opinion, a sensible approach to life's stresses and tensions. Numbing the brain may provide temporary insulation and even a brief period of euphoria but in the end we must face our problems and resolve them or they will overwhelm us.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday there was a major crisis at our house. We were all set to take an 80-mile drive to visit relatives and our four-year-old daughter couldn't find her "bankie." This is what she calls her faded, shredded baby blanket — or what's left of it.

Lenore has been dragging her "bankie everywhere since birth. She cannot go to sleep without it. I have to launder it when she is napping. You can imagine what it looks like after four years!

This morning we were all ready to go and Lenore was screaming for someone to find her "bankie." My husband said, "This has got to stop. You must put an end to the child's ridiculous dependency on that piece of rag!"

Just as we were closing the door, Lenore's older sister shouted, "I found it." The little girl's eyes popped open like saucers. She was such a happy child!

Now my husband is after me to take the blanket away from Lenore and make her "grow up." Should I?—Quandry.

Dear Quandry: No. The child's attachment to the blanket indicates that she is not completely comfortable as a four-year-old and she needs to go back to her baby days. So don't taken the "bankie" away. She will surrender it when she is ready. So far as I know, no bride ever took a bankie on a honeymoon.

Engineer reports --

Severe road damage in Counties

United Counties roads have experienced the worst spring break-up in six years, according to Counties engineer A. R. Ferguson.

He said Kenyon Township seems to have suffered the worst fate, with numerous hot-mix surfaces completely crumbling in the wake of travel and early thaws.

Previous to this spring, a hot-mix surface lay on County Road 29 east of Maxville. But break-up has resulted in gravel being placed over the broken surface until repaving sometime next year, according to the engineer. "The road obviously will need more base," the engineer said.

"County Road 21, south of Greenfield, is almost impassable. We are now spreading gravel until the road can be reconstructed," Mr Ferguson added.

The engineer added that County Road 2, north of Maxville near the Prescott County boundary, is also badly broken and repairs are being made.

Also scheduled for patch work or gravel covering are County Road 17 from Highway 31 to Elma; County Road 18 from Dixon's Corners to Williamsburg; and County Road 5, west of Winchester Springs.

"And these are certainly not all of them; in general, most county roads are in very bad condition. All we can do now is use cold-mix patching or gravel until new asphalt surfacing can be laid," concluded Mr Ferguson.

O.P.P. REPORT

O.P.P. officers in Dundas County last week patrolled 11,483 miles of highway and secondary roads in a total of 757 duty hours. During this patrol, 126 traffic charges were laid and 66 traffic warnings were issued.

Officers investigated six property damage and three personal injury accidents. Three persons suffered minor injuries. One of these accidents involved a school bus carrying 40 school children. It could have been serious, but luckily, none of the children were injured.

The Ontario Provincial Police and the Ontario Department of Transport spend a great deal of time in their efforts to educate both the drivers and the children in school bus safety. Articles related to this subject have been repeatedly published in almost every newspaper in this province, but people using the highways still do not exercise enough care or caution when driving in the vicinity of a school bus.

The school bus carries a priceless cargo, possibly even one of your own children. This seems an appropriate time to again mention a section from the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario. Section 94 (2) states: "where a school bus is stopped on a highway or part of a highway on which the maximum speed limit is greater than 35 miles per hour for the purpose of receiving or discharging school children, the driver of a vehicle, when overtaking a school bus on which the words 'do not pass when signals flashing' are marked and two red signal-lights are illuminated by intermittent flashes; and when meeting on such a highway, other than a highway with separate roadways, a school bus on the front of which two red signal-lights are illuminated with intermittent flashes, shall stop the vehicle before reaching the school bus and shall not proceed until the school bus resumes motion or the signal-lights are no longer operating." This section is included in the Highway Traffic Act for the protection of our children. Use it!

Officers also investigated a total of 37 other occurrences, including three minor thefts and one break and enter. Investigations into infractions of the Liquor Control Act resulted in 10 charges being laid under that statute. Three charges under the Criminal Code arose from an investigation into an alleged traffic accident. One person was charged for failing to produce proof that the vehicle he was operating was insured.

A total of 18 hours was spent in the courts with 40 convictions being registered.

The work of the society is a quiet thing. But it goes on continuously. The maintenance of these essential services are a direct result of the response to the annual campaign for funds. TEST NEW SEASUIT

Even equipped with a life preserver, a person dumped into a cold ocean such as the North Atlantic is unlikely to survive more than helf an hour.

The paralysing cold, not water in the lungs, is the killer.

A defence research board team headed by R. R. H. Sewell of Victoria has developed a sea survival suit which may keep alive for 24 hours seamen and others forced into ice waters from stricken ships.

The suit is designed to keep body heat inside it and freezing sea water out.

It looks like a roomy one-piece child's snow suit and around it at the chest is an inflatable doughnut for buoyancy.

IN MEMORIAM

LOBB—In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs John Lobb, who passed away April 28, 1965.

When one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
Within our hearts she liveth still.
Lovingly remembered by Husband and family.

Letter to the Editor

Berwick, Ont.,
April 22, 1968.

The Editor,
The Chesterville Record.
Dear Sir:

Thank you for printing our bowling news all season. It was greatly appreciated.

B. Sullivan, Secretary,
Berwick Wednesday Night.

IN MEMORIAM

McLEAN — In loving memory of a beloved wife and mother, Minnie McLean, who passed away April 21, 1960.
The heavenly gates were opened
Eight years ago today;
With good-byes left unspoken
You gently passed away.
You could not say good-bye to us,
Perhaps it was just as well,
We never could have said goodbye
To the one we loved so well.

POPPIES ARE GAYEST FLOWERS

One of the gayest flowers for any garden is the California poppy. There are both single and double forms and the older limitations of colour to yellow and orange have long since been outgrown.

Indeed, such a colour mixture as Mission Bells makes one wonder how such diverse colours can have been bred from just tw

Since most gardeners are familiar with the single-flowered form, the double is illustrated. It has the same dainty, fern-like foliage but the many petals make its appearance more imposing.

California poppies grow quickly and easily from seeds sown early in the growing season where they are to bloom. They are really perennials but are treated in gardens, as hardy annuals.

They will stand considerable cold, sometimes self-sow even in the North and plants are protected in autumn from freezing winter weather, they often will grow again the second spring.

Seeds are available in mixtures of single-flowered forms, like that called Sunset, in semi-double forms like Monarch or Mission Bells, already mentioned, and also in double form, though almost always a few semi-double flowers will be found in plants grown from a mixture labelled "double".

WHITE KNIGHTS?

Kenneth Knight, Calgary, asked his three daughters to paint the fence, so they enlisted the help of neighbour kids and produced a multi?colour mural of flowers, squiggles and stylized tic-tac-toe. Mrs Knight vetoed the job.

TODAY.. THE BIBLE

"God's Word for a New Age" has been well received in Chilean churches. The Protestant Churches of Chile, representing an 11% minority of the population, are making increasing use of the Scriptures in their outreach. This is apparent from the Bible Society's distribution figures for 1967, which showed a 130% increase over the previous year. 2¼ million Scriptures were distributed. Not only were small Portions and Selections of the Bible widely distributed in evangelistic efforts, but sales of complete Bibles and New Testaments have increased, suggesting that distribution of Portions in the past has led to greater demand for the complete book.

Scriptures are distributed through the Bible Society's Bible House and through numerous church bookshops. They sell largely to the Protestant population. But for the majority of Chile's eight million people, the books will only be bought if the churches take them to the people.

Under a nation-wide Baptist campaign entitled "Christ the Answer," Christians were trained in effective methods of Scripture distribution. The Bible Society was asked to provide one million copies of John's Gospel, 15,000 New Testaments and 10,000 Bibles. Many people came to faith in Christ through the campaign — for example, the girl from a politically influential home who attended a campaign service. As there was no Bible in her home, she was given a copy with suggestions on how to read it. She read the Bible all night, until 6 a.m. — she had never read anything like it before, she explained. Then there was the group of Christians who arranged a campaign at the International Trade Fair in Santiago in October. The public showed great interest in the Christian films shown every hour, and equal interest in the opportunity to buy Scriptures at an attractive kiosk nearby. Seven hundred Bibles and Testaments and 83,000 Gospels were sold, many of the buyers having had little previous contact with the Word of God.

DEMONSTRATION

Barry Williams called Hounslow, Eng., police when his bicycle was stolen from outside his house.

Constable Donald Mansey cycled over to take Williams' statement and left his machine in the same spot. When he came out 10 minutes later his bike was gone.

Springtime Warning

By Mrs Ella York, Chesterville

There's a little bird singing in the old apple tree,
He's singing to you and he's singing to me;
He has a mate on a nest in that tree
And they are as happy as happy can be.

"Don't meddle, don't touch," is what he seems to say;
"Don't bring sorrow to us, when we're happy and gay;
Some little birdies will soon be here
And we'd like to take care of them without fear.

"Please watch the little boy next door
And tell him the right thing to do, before
He takes our eggs and destroys them too,
For that is what some little boys do.

"When the little ones come, and are learning to fly,
Please watch the pussycat; she's pretty sly;
She crawls up so quick and the birdies destroys,
We have to be careful of cats and of boys."

If the birdies survive till they are full-grown
They'll have a little sweet song of their own;
The world would be a place that is sad
If we hadn't the birdies to make us feel glad.

Measuring the country from sea to sea

Spurred by the amazing growth of Canada's cities in years past and their increasing expansion in the soaring sixties, federal, provincial and municipal governments have collaborated to make sure that the future spread of urban areas will have the necessary mathematical control for orderly development. To accomplish this, it is first required that there is an adequate network of points whose geographic positions are known to within an inch of each other and are rigidly tied into the national geodetic framework of triangulation that stretches from coast to coast and from the south to the far Arctic.

Such positions, usually about fifteen miles apart, form corridors of interlocking triangles across the land and give relative positions between St. John's, Newfoundland, and Victoria, British Columbia, with an accuracy of plus or minus 100 feet. Within these triangles others are visually constructed with computed points marked about every mile. This is the work of federal agencies. From these accurate points local surveyors can run their own patterns of triangles from which they control the correct positioning of highways, buildings, power dams, services and the full variety of all things built by man upon the earth.

Today, with national growth at a very rapid pace and expected to continue, the geodesists and topographers of the Surveys and Mapping Branch of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources are well ahead in a vital task to provide greater control around many of the country's cities whose physical growth threatens to overrun existing networks. Using technological aids that speed up the survey work in the field enormously and the lightning-fast facilities of the computers in the Ottawa offices, their task has progressed at a rate that would have astounded their forerunners of two decades ago Modern, portable machines measure in a few minutes, with more accuracy, distances that would have taken weeks of measuring a few years back. And Canada's geodetic surveyors already started on a co-operative program of orbiting - satellite survey observations with the United States, will soon cut that plus or minus error of known distance from St. John's to Victoria down to less than ten hair-splitting feet.

An important message to farmers:
CROP INSURANCE
Protects you, your crop . . . and your credit . . . with low-cost, comprehensive coverage against the hazards of Hail, Wind, Drought, Frost, Flood, Plant Disease, Insect Infestation, Excessive Moisture and Excessive Rainfall. Apply for coverage now

To insure spring grains — apply by May 15
Crop insurance is a guarantee of production. Select the coverage you want — 60, 70 or 80% of your average yield of oats, barley, mixed grains — and if your yield is below the guaranteed level, the insurance makes up the difference.

To insure forage — apply by May 1
Designed to meet the needs of both dairy farmers and cattlemen, this coverage insures seeded pasture, hay, hay silage, corn silage — at $15, $20, or $25 per ton of hay or hay equivalent — with premiums as low as 83 cents per ton. Select your coverage on the basis of what you would have to pay for forage next winter if your crops failed.

To insure grain corn, soybeans — apply now
The recent introduction of two new insurance plans gives coverage for grain corn and soybeans. Corn is covered against the added hazard of wildlife damage. These crops can be insured for 70% of your average yield at the established prices of $1 per bushel for corn and $2.50 per bushel for soybeans. Final application dates for insurance on these crops vary — for the deadlines in your area, check with your local agent, or write us direct.

$15 down
A $15 deposit on your premium secures your crop insurance contract — with the balance payable when you report your seeded acreage.

NEW, 'NO-CLAIM' DISCOUNT
Federal and Ontario Government subsidies cover 30% of all premium costs — and a new discount scheme reduces premiums still further. A cumulative premium discount of 5% under each plan is allowed each year to contract holders who have not reported claims — up to a maximum discount of 25%.

The prudent farmer insures his crops for the same reason that he insures his buildings, machinery, equipment and livestock.

For more information or details on insuring your crops, see your local agent — or write direct to:

IN MEMORIAM

FYKE—In loving memory of Steven Fyke who passed away April 22, 1967.

He is gone but not forgotten
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Many think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies in the heart concealed.

Mom, Dad and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

McLEAN—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Loran McLean, who passed away April 23, 1949.

No one hears the door that opens
When they pass beyond the call;
Soft as the petals of a rose
One by one our loved ones fall.
But the memory of a loved one,
Like the fragrance of a rose,
God made to linger with us
Till our own life's door shall close.

Always remembered by Wife and Family. 32

IN MEMORIAM

SUTTON—In loving memory of Russell Sutton who passed away April 24, 1967.

None knew him but to love him;
None named him but in praise.

Ever remembered, Mrs Lloyd Servage and family.
