Alexandria Group Royally Entertained At Ile Bizard Twinning Ceremonies Sunday

Alexandria is now officially twinned with Ile Bizard, Que., and the party from this town which travelled to the Quebec island municipality on Sunday reports a very warm reception. Representatives of town council, Board of Trade, service clubs and other groups accompanied by their wives made the trip by bus, the party numbering 32.

After lunching en route the group reached Ile Bizard at 2 p.m. and was met at the bridge joining Ste. Genevieve and the island. A motor cavalcade then proceeded to Ile Bizard's centennial home, one of the island's old homes which was this year restored as a centennial project by the local Chamber of Commerce.

After an official welcome from Mayor Edouard Gaucher the group was taken on a guided motor tour of the island which boasts three golf courses and many fine summer homes. On the return to the municipal building a brief program of address was chaired by Octave Girard, president of the Ile Bizard Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Raymond Periard made the presentation of a plaque commemorating the twinning ceremony to Ile Bizard's Mayor Gaucher who in turn presented a set of cuff links. On the summer visit here, a plaque had been presented to Alexandria by the Ile Bizard group.

Members of the Alexandria group were then twinned off with their opposite numbers from Ile Bizard for a dinner served at the Royal Montreal Golf Club. A band concert concluded the day's entertainment.

The local Member of Parliament, Arthur Seguin spoke warmly on the benefits that could accrue from such twinning ceremonies which bring people together and demonstrate the common problems and objectives of communities in various sections of this great country. He expressed the hope these twinnings would help foster one country of un-hyphenated Canadians.

Most of the ladies in the Alexandria group donned their centennial costumes for the occasion as did Lyall Costello, chairman of the local centennial committee.

Representing Alexandria, with their ladies, were: Mayor Raymond Periard, Reeve Bruno Massie, Deputy-Reeve Paul E. Viau, Councillors Jean Clement and Lyall Costello, Clerk-Treasurer, D. O. Four Cornwall Youths Remanded On Charge Attempted Armed Robbery

Arrested in connection with an attempted armed robbery of a store at Grant's Corners last Friday, four Cornwall youths were remanded to Nov. 14th when they appeared in Magistrate's Court here, Tuesday.

Charged are David Eamon, 19, Samuel Hutt, 19, Michael Eamon, 18, all of 331 Seventh St. E., and Marcel Marion, 20, of 606 Pitt St.

They were arrested by Cornwall city police for Ontario Provincial Police who traced them to the Seventh Street address through the licence on what is alleged to have been the get-away car. It was registered in the name of Michael Eamon.

The car was abandoned after the men who attempted the robbery, were pursued by the store owner's daughter. The vehicle skidded into a ditch, police said.

Former residents of Alexandria, Mrs. Edgar Tourangeau and her daughter, Pauline, 24, were in their general store at Grant's Corners shortly after 7 p.m. Friday when three masked men burst in and demanded money at gun point.

"This is a hold-up!" the gunman said.

"Go on with you!" "Mrs. Tourangeau replied, "Hallowe'en is over".

One of the men levelled a rifle at her, she said.

"I knew then they were not joking," declared Mrs. Tourangeau.

She said one of the men made a move for the till, where there was $200.

"Give them the money!" Mrs. Tourangeau yelled to Pauline, who was standing in front of the till.

"They'll have to get me first," Pauline retorted, grabbing at the stocking-mask of the approaching intruder. As she struggled with him, Pauline managed to partially tear off the nylon mask.

Then the gunman fired two shots at Mrs. Tourangeau. They missed her by less than an inch, she said.

Pauline threatened to summon help from the back room and the robbers fled. Brandishing a butcher knife, Mrs. Tourangeau ran to the door after them.

The trio made their escape in a station wagon parked nearby, she said. Dashing out the door behind the intruders, Pauline jumped into her own car and gave chase. She reached speeds of 100 m.p.h., her mother said.

About two miles further along, the get-away car skidded off Boundary Road into a ditch. As Pauline drove by, one of the men pointed his gun at her, she said.

She stopped at the first house and called police, who had already been notified by her mother.

"It's not the first time we had a raid here," Mrs. Tourangeau said. "Only last month my husband disturbed thieves as they loaded sacks with cigarettes and chocolates."

IT'S OUR OPINION

No Really Bad Apples Here

There were only isolated instances of damage to private property in our town Hallowe'en night; but even one such evidence of irresponsibility is one too many. This is the traditional night for tricks and a lot of kids down through the years have had a lot of fun without going overboard to play the role of vandal.

The damage here was minor; a window broken, paint smeared on a school door. In other cities and towns across the country police had to cope with mob violence, arson and vandalism on a much more serious scale.

By comparison, local youngsters were angels, and yet even one instance of damage done to private property is a black mark against the whole community. All our youngsters, (and some old enough to surely know better) should be responsible enough to respect the property of others. There is plenty of scope for Hallowe'en fun that does not create a hazard for life and limb or involve pecuniary loss to any citizen.

We were all set to sermonize a bit on the golden rule and to suggest that today's parents may not be keeping a tight enough rein on a generation that seems inclined to rebellion. Surely we are failing in our duty to society if we have not instilled in our children their responsibility to do unto others as they would have others do unto them. Each Hallowe'en it seems increasingly clear that that lesson is not being learned as the reports of violence come in from all across our country.

There were only scattered evidences of irresponsibility on a minor scale in this area. For which we give thanks.

And grateful we are that there were no bad apples handed out here, on Hallowe'en, to young ghosts and goblins. Almost incredible is the sadism evidenced in these stories of razor blade fragments, glass and pins imbedded in apples before they are given to the young fry. In recent years there have been isolated instances of such unsocial Hallowe'en hospitality but the ghoulish practise is growing and coming closer to home.

From Vankleek Hill last week came the warning that several Hallowe'en apples had been doctored with straight pins.

Twisted, tortured minds, it seems, have altered the traditional trick or treat to a far less funny treat and trick. The possible consequences for innocent kiddies are too cruel to contemplate. The fact that so sadistic a trick is becoming commonplace leaves one wondering whether our society is not sickening almost unto death.

Come another Hallowe'en let's go back to letting our little ghosts walk abroad to have fun. The bad apples in the pack would be better at home. Certainly they should not be doctored to bring pain to the young and innocent.

Paschendaele Was 50 Years Ago

Thinning ranks of the veterans of World War I will be marching to the Glengarry War Memorial on Saturday with their fellows who saw service in the second world war. Among those aging marchers no doubt there will be some who survived that sea of mud fifty years ago at Paschendaele.

That battle was won by the Canadian forces despite the terrible condition of the terrain, but at a heavy cost in casualities. Many of the Glengarry men whose names are inscribed on that World War I plaque at our cenotaph lost their lives in that advance through the Belgian mud in early November of 1917.

Another twelve months of war, were to follow before the Armistice that brought an end to four years of fighting across Flanders' fields. A year hence we will be marking the 50th anniversary of that Armistice.

We will remember them, we who knew that first Armistice pledged in the moving phrases of Colonel John McCrea's poem "In Flanders Fields". Little more than two decades later a younger generation marched off to another great war in Europe and now our day of remembrance encompasses relatives and friends who died in both wars.

Remembrance Day is something very special for those who served in those wars and for the next-of-kin of those who did not return. Surely it should have significance, too, for all of us who lived through those years of war. For one hour of one day each year it is not asking too much of us that we cast our minds back to those times of conflict when relatives and friends were in imminent danger of death or injury in the service of their country.

A half a century later most of those who survived that first world war and many of the next-of-kin of those who died no longer are in a position to remember. They have fallen prey to time and whether through death or disability are no longer able to honor our war dead with their presence at Remembrance Day ceremonies.

There are many who could and should be there but who have forgotten that pledge they once made to remember.

Legion branches across the country have a continuing interest in the Remembrance Day observance. At the Glengarry War Memorial here on Saturday a new approach to the laying of wreaths is being tried. It can be cold on the Armouries Hill on November 11th and the aim is to speed up proceedings while retaining or improving on, the solemnity of the ceremony.

Everyone should be wearing a poppy this weekend and a lot more of us should be out on Saturday for an hour of remembrance.

Chaos In The Cabinet

Cabinet solidarity is something Prime Minister Pearson does not have. Rather it would seem various members of the federal cabinet are intent on jockeying for a favored position in the Liberal leadership race despite Mr. Pearson's hints that he means to stay on.

Weekend news reports provided a picture of personality conflict and denunciatory charges that indicate the Prime Minister is finding it impossible to keep peace in his family or demonstrate even the semblance of a united front in cabinet.

Finance Minister Sharp and Walter Gordon, president of the privy council, have been feuding for years and it would seem Mr. Pearson's powers as a mediator between the minister of finance and the man he succeeded have been unavailing. Mr. Sharp recently embarked on a program designed to at least slow the inflationary spiral. He promised a halt to huge spending programs by all levels of government as a major step in keeping the economy healthy.

At Toronto, Walter Gordon indicated at least one member of the cabinet was not following the finance minister's line. Mr. Gordon warned in a public address that the Liberal government must honor its July 1, 1968 deadline for introduction of a comprehensive medical care plan. Medicare was a major plank in the Liberal election platform in 1965, Mr. Gordon reminded and the Liberal government may lose support of the ordinary people if it backs down on medicare.

Some government programs should be put off in the need to cut federal spending as a step to combatting inflation, Mr. Gordon allowed, but not the national health plan.

If Mr. Gordon's thinking still carries weight with his friend the Prime Minister, Mr. Sharp may find it difficult to reduce federal spending in a year when he must find half a billion dollars more to finance the health plan.

Parliament Hill was also buzzing last week following an unprecedented denunciation of the CBC by Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh. The CBC comes under jurisdiction of her department and the accusation that corporation management is doing "some absolutely appalling things" leaves with the public the conviction that the Secretary of State and her department are totally incapable of supervising Canadian broadcasting. Her charges also serve to confirm public doubts as to the entire CBC set-up and the ability of Parliament to keep a rein on its management and spending.

Mr. Pearson's pride has been in his abilities as a mediator, which won him a Nobel prize for his role as peacemaker among the nations. In Canada's top political post he has demonstrated a lack of leadership ability which probably stemmed from his propensity to reach a compromise in almost every situation.

And yet the Prime Minister seems unable to keep peace in his own cabinet caucus.

We Get Letters

If winter has any allure for us it must be curling, or from the business angle the fact that more of our readers find time to write letters to the editor. After many weeks of drought through an exceptionally rainy summer we have three letters to publish this week. Overjoyed we are; and we hope there will be plenty more.

We welcome especially the thoughts on unions so well expressed by Ron Allison. What he has to say concerning union-management relations at Glengarry Transport is reassuring and we can hope labor relations in other local industries will attain the same degree of harmony if that is now lacking.

Perhaps our editorial thinking has not been clearly enough expressed, Ron. Unions are a very firmly established part of this industrial age and we have no thought of Labor being dis-organized. We do think the strike weapon has outlived its usefulness and we cannot see people in public service being permitted to misuse it.

Space calls a halt to this bit of rebuttal, Ron. Let's do more such debating.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

IN DEFENCE OF UNIONS

Alexandria, Ont.
Nov. 3, 1967

The editor,
The Glengarry News,

Every three or four months it seems you take great delight in opening up with both editorial barrels on the labor force in general, and the unions which represent it in particular.

Many of us who earn our living by the sweat of our brow are getting more than a little sick of being blamed for all the ills and woes of our country.

Why is it we have never heard you speak about the outrageous profits of some of the bigger corporations? Many of them are foreign owned so the profit goes out of the country altogether.

Why is it we have never heard you speak about the magnificent salaries that you will find at the executive level of practically any business large or small. Many of the men earning these salaries are deserving of every penny, but I would hazard a guess that there are an equal number of "boarders" who are not worth their salt, and who hold their jobs either through pull or the creation of some phony position that any intelligent grade-eighter could fill.

I also take exception Mr. Editor in being compared to a murderer. I think you owe the working man an apology for that one. I think we contribute slightly more to our country than say "Machine Gun Molly".

If we earn "X" number of dollars in a year then we pay "Y" number of dollars in income tax and that is that. We do not have access to the phony expense accounts, car allowance, entertainment allowance, depreciation, etc., etc., that is available to the business owner and executive.

Also what a ridiculous thing to compare labor in this country to labor in Russia. Are you suggesting Mr. Editor that perhaps communism is the answer after all?

Television-- A Rebuttal

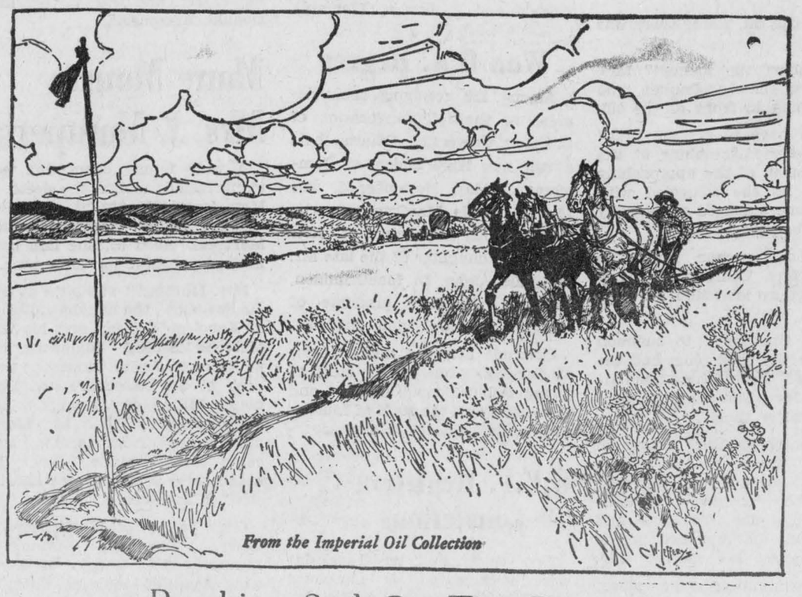
The low buzz of whispers was quickly silenced by the gavel. Calm was restored to the courtroom. Mustering all of his pomposity the plaintiff's counsel turned to address the jury, "And so, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, all the evidence has been presented and, based on the facts, there is but one choice. You must reach a verdict in favor of my client and furthermore institute sanctions against this purveyor of evil." Simultaneously he pointed at the square-eyed "cyclops" sitting silently on the defense lawyer's table.

While this account is somewhat facetious, it serves to draw attention to a condition which has long irked me, that is, the assertion on the part of so-called intellectuals, that television is geared to the mind of a twelve year old. Such statements only demonstrate the immaturity of the authors. It is obviously through ignorance or apathy that these remarks are uttered in the first place.

A casual glance at any day's offering will show a wide variety of programs with excellent content that can hardly be judged inane or trivial. At this juncture I will warn the reader that I am refraining from mentioning specific programs so as not to jade the latter's opinion of this dissertation. Returning from that brief digression I would like to present some examples of the bill of fare.

There are basically two types of programs: those which inform and those which entertain. Today's programming contains a liberal sprinkling of both. The documentaries and news broadcasts help keep the public informed of the daily changing world situation and make modern man the best informed in history. As for entertainment, drama, comedy and adventure provide an escape from the everyday problems and allow the viewer to unwind. In reference to the program content, the documentaries are products of careful research and provide information at a far faster and more comprehensible rate than any other media. The quality of the entertainment is also high with variety shows and other top-notch presentations.

This discourse is at an end, as I am going to watch television again.



Breaking Sod On The Prairies

The first furrow—the western homesteader breaking ground. He reached the virgin prairie beyond the end of the railway line by a canvas-covered wagon or "prairie-schooner" which he slept in if the weather was bad or the ground swampy. At other times, he slept in a tent. His first chore on reaching his location was to break enough ground to plant a crop. This established his ownership. He set up a pole at the edge of his plot, tied a cloth to it, directed his plow to it, and drove a parallel furrow beside the first one, back to the starting point. Not until his plowing and seeding was finished did he begin to build a permanent shelter.

The prairie pioneer in some ways had an easier life than the first settlers in Eastern Canada. He did not have to carve his farm out of virgin forest, or carry his grain to the mill on his back over rugged, winding trails. He could haul it to the nearest elevator by wagon across open land. But his home was often many miles from his nearest neighbors. The loneliness was bad in summer and almost unendurable in winter; some of the early settlers gave up and pulled out. But by 1911, immigration to Canada had swelled nearly one third of a million per year, and most of them were settling on the prairies.

COUNTERFEIT COMMENT

Some funny money turned up in town a couple of weeks ago and it wasn't funny for the few who got stuck with those bogus twenties. Not much fun either, for the guy who felt himself fortunate to find a couple of those 20's on the street. When they proved phonies he musta been left feeling as if he'd lost 40 bucks.

In the wake of those counterfeits people began to get a bit worried and there was more than ordinary attention paid the larger bills being exchanged. And why not, when the mere possession of bad bills can be a criminal offence entitling one to a lengthy stay behind bars.

The law bears down heavily on those convicted of printing counterfeits or passing them and the penalties should be severe. If too many went in for easy money, public confidence in those pieces of paper we call currency would soon evaporate and business would slow to a standstill as we went back to the days of barter.

It doesn't seem fair that the guy who innocently accepts a bogus bill must turn it over to the police and take his loss. Some argue that the government should go good for it, but then a problem arises. How would the treasury distinguish between those who were innocent dupes and others who might be getting their supplies hot off the press? The law better stay as is if counterfeiting isn't going to be made easier to get away with.

Funny if you think of it though; our government zealously guards our currency against counterfeiters with one hand while with the other it reduces the worth of the dollar with its wasteful spending programs.

Who's to guard us against give-away government?

Some people have two ideas about a secret—either it's not worth keeping or it's too good to keep.

PRAYER FOR THE RETARDED

Children who are retarded seem destined to miss many of life's joys we so take for granted. A reader has forwarded us this Centennial Prayer for the Retarded with the request that we publish it:

Oh Lord, Who has protected always the faltering child;
Who has given the sightless, hands to feel the contours of life's beauty;
Who has given the deaf, vision to behold the colors and the shapes of the earth's glory;
Who has given the lame a free spirit to move in the world of men;
Who has given the mute, the language of common understanding —
What have You given to the least of your children, the retarded?
How shall You shield these broken beings who are also Your sons and daughters?
Oh Lord, put love in the hearts of men as a shield for them;
Stay the hand that would hurt them;
Stop the tongue that mocks them,
Bless the hand that would guide and teach them,
And give wisdom and power,
And the heaven-upon-earth of a peaceful heart,
To those who love and comfort them. Amen,

The only people with whom you should try to get even are those who have helped you.

SNOW'S AN ADDED HAZARD

That first snow squall struck Monday night and it had us practically squawling too as we thought of those dear little deer doomed to die on the morrow. We could visualize hundreds of hunters gloating over the snow and the game tracks they'd be able to follow through the blanket of white stuff.

That first snow didn't last and we were left hoping there'd be no more before the deer season closes. The woods are full of hunters this week and about the only defence the doe has is her ability to make tracks, but fast. She shouldn't have to make snow tracks to make it easier for the gun toters.

The open season on deer is the high point of the year for a lot of nimrods, we know; and we're not out to try and change their thinking. Some of them are fairly fine fellows who wouldn't dream of beating up their wives or children. They even like dogs, if they're any good at flushing out game.

What we can't fathom is their delight in looking on a dead deer. Alive and running, a buck or doe

The cenotaphs in practically every town and village in the country bear mute and grim evidence of the price we have paid for our freedom. I would hate to think that so many of your relatives and mine have died in vain.

I could make some comments on Expo 67 and the particular strike to which you are referring, but I do not want to take up too much valuable space in your good paper.

There are several unions representing the workers in Glengarry now, and so far we have been blessedly free of strikes. The union to which I belong has been in existence for three years and I think we are ample proof that labor and management CAN get along.

Those of us who are fortunate enough to be employed by Glengarry Transport are proud and grateful to be associated with a company that is so progressive and modern in its thinking. The rapid growth of the company and the standard of living enjoyed by it's employees are fitting testimonial to what can be achieved through mutual understanding.

But there are others in Glengarry County who are not nearly so fortunate. I say that one does not have to go back 60 years to find labor being exploited. One can find it right here in Glengarry County in 1967.

I think that unless some employers change their attitude, then it will not be too long before the Glengarry economy will feel the pinch of a strike or two. Wouldn't that be juicy material for an editorial.

In closing I must agree with you on a couple of points. Strikes do hurt a lot of people, and they should be avoided if humanly possible but sometimes, just sometimes the end does justify the means.

Yours truly,
Ron Allison,
Secretary Treasurer,
Canadian Transportation Workers Union,
Local No. 186.

A PROMISE THIS YEAR:

A REALITY NEXT YEAR

November 4th, 1967

This year's Carnival in Alexandria was such a grand success that the Richelieu Club again is making plans for two full days of activities with more and better events.

Various committees have been formed and have already started organizing this winter carnival that is to take place on the 23rd and 24th of February.

Ronald Cholette will be chairman and coordinator of various committees and an invitation is extended to everyone who may have good suggestions to forward them to Mr. Cholette.

The Richelieu Club of Alexandria is taking the initiative in this joyful event but would like to see everyone pitch in and make this second Carnival even better than the first one.

Let's start off a new century with a bang.

Ron Bradette.

HUNTING WITH DOGS

RR2 Maxville, Ont.
Roxborough Township

The editor,
Glengarry News,

They have done it again? Not satisfied with permitting the four days annual legalized murder of each other, with the usual annual four days of subjugating the farm dwellers to the havoc wrought by having "turned on them" legally each year the moronic subhuman mass of the towns called "hunters" or "sportsmen", our administrators at the county level, made up of reeves and deputies, have decided to further increase our annual punishment, by allowing the hunter the ultimate of extreme pleasure of "sportsmanship", of hunting the deer with "dogs".

That such a juicy piece of legislation should be kept so quiet, I have no doubt was because of the shame and cowardice felt by those who voted it into existence—without public warning to permit the country dweller to howl over the flagrant disregard of his rights, as well as the safety to his life and limb, children and livelihood.

They have shown the usual disdain of the farmer, by catering to the townspeople's repressed oppressed, inhibited, inherent savage instincts to butcher and exterminate for pleasure, in an area that is predominently farmland. The farmer would rather deal himself, through the Dept. of Lands and Forests, with the wild animals, should they pose a threat to his crops or stock; than annually, for four days, damn near hide in his cellar for safety from the neurotic, gun happy, dog toting legulized mamal, the hunter.

I demand equal rights in a "civilized democratic country, therefore I want 4 days for the farmer to legally run amock in the town of his choice, with whatever weapons he chooses. Or to make it absolutely "sporting" I will accept a four-day legal permit to hunt the hunter. Failing such a sporting gesture on the part of my administrators, I call upon the country dweller to join with me, and patrol your farm lands with "zeal", posting your land as mine, No Hunting—Survivors will be Prosecuted".

First though, keep your children home from school. The bus makes a marvelous target for every stray bullet fired by these "hunters" as they go about the process of legally letting loose their pathetic years pent up neurotic emotions.

Congratulations County Council, you have shown me what "Despotism In Action", means, as well as proving where your allegiance lays.

Both young men are well known and justly popular and are in addition expert workmen. — Messrs. VCI And Maxville Won Last Games Prior To Friday's Play-Off At Hill

by Angus H. McDonell

Similar to the CFL east and west conference, the curtain was drawn across the schedule stage of our EOSSA "B" senior high school football league during the past weekend.

Vankleek Hill overpowered Char-Lan in the Hill to maintain their winning ways right to the last minute flag.

In the Indian Lands, Maxville handled GDHS with some authority to spare as they defeated the Alexandria students 14-7. The results did not alter the final league standing as Alexandria already had locked up second place and the right to meet VCI tomorrow (Friday) in Vankleek Hill for the championship in sudden death play.

In Friday's Maxville game the home attack platoon were first to hit the scoreboard. In the opening quarter skip Neil Benton called possibly coach Don Bond's favorite play when the ball was handed to Gabe Levac in the reverse pattern. Levac picked a hole due to solid take-outs and finally Bruce Pilon threw in a real key variety block that put Levac in the clear for an 85 yard run to the GDHS goal line.

Don Blaney belted the convert and Maxville led 7-0 at half time as the second quarter was scoreless.

Maxville added another TD in the third canto as Gabe Levac duplicated his initial dash from about centerfield but this time the last defenders of GDHS hauled down Levac on their nine-yard marker.

Quarterback Benton then called on Don Blaney to hit through the middle and Blaney bulldozed into pay dirt for Maxville's second major. Blaney was again accurate with the convert toe to make the score read Maxville 14, GDHS 0.

To be in the unaccustomed position of trailing by two TD's seemed to fire up GDHS and fullback Peter MacLeod cutting through an opening over right tackle then had all the daylight necessary to go the rest of the way for a six pointer.

Ivan McMillan was also true with the convert try and Alexandria were now only behind one converted touchdown going into the final quarter.

Both defence squads held their lines in the muddy-sluggish footing and there was no further scoring. The final count Maxville 14, Alexandria 7.

The Weeklies Say

UP TO PROVINCES

Water resources are a provincial responsibility and it is up to the province to take the initiative in finding a solution to the water problems of the Pembina Triangle. Unless this is done quickly, existing industries may be forced to close, many agricultural crops will no longer be grown and the whole economy of the area will suffer immeasurably. — Altona (Man.) Red River Valley Echo.

COULD EASE HUNGER

It was recently stated that Western Canada could produce a wheat that is virtually safe from failure and giving very high yields. Other qualities of the wheat are not sufficiently high, apparently, to give it government approval. However, some relaxation of the regulations concerning this particular variety might make it possible to help considerably in easing the world food shortage.

—Humbolt (Sask.) Journal

SHOULD MAKE BOOK

The name "ARDA" is quite common in agricultural and municipal circles in Canada. NATO and UNESCO are also well-known names. But what about the hundreds that are not well known. Perhaps a special dictionary or dictionary supplement is required if we are to keep on condensing such names for the sake of brevity.

—Rimbey (Alta.) Record

Ancient Greeks even predicted the discovery of America. They said, "Inhabited lands may be found westward from Spain on the way to India."

Seventy-one per cent of the persons who read a newspaper read it page by page; twenty-seven per cent read by scanning.

Will Make Home In Toronto

DE FREITAS—MacPHEE

On October 4, 1967, at St. Finnan's Cathedral, Alexandria, Catherine Olive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ed. MacPhee, became the bride of Roger Compton De Freitas of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Compton De Freitas of Georgetown, Guiana. Msgr. D. A. Kerr officiated at the double-ring ceremony which was witnessed by many friends and relatives. Rev. J. D. McPhail of Cornwall, was also present in the sanctuary. Mr. Howard Morris of Alexandria was soloist and his daughter Miss Grace Morris was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautiful in a full-length gown of white souffle crepe, fashioned on elegantly simple lines. The long sleeves and high neckline were encircled by a row of tiny pearls and brilliants. A back panel hung from her shoulders, ending in a train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of pearls and brilliants and for her bouquet she carried a spray of Cymbidium orchids combined with sprigs of wheat and clusters of grapes. Her attendants were her two sisters from Toronto. Miss Lucy MacPhee, as maid of honor and Miss Madeleine MacPhee as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of rust-colored shantung.

The best man was Mr. Bernard De Souza of Toronto, and the ushers were Mr. John James MacPhee of Ottawa, Mr. Michael De Freitas of Toronto and Mr. D. J. MacPhee of Montreal.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Alexander Hall. Joining relatives and friends from the immediate vicinity were guests from Detroit, Edmonton, Toronto, Uxbridge, Ottawa and Montreal as well as the groom's mother, who flew from Georgetown, Guiana, to be present for the ceremony.

For their honeymoon in Florida, the bride travelled in a green suede flannel suit, lighter green soft beret style hat, alligator shoes and purse. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

On their return from their honeymoon the couple will reside in Toronto.

Fall Rally Of Glengarry Presbyterial WMS Held At Maxville, Cornwall

Mrs. Charles Christie, Conference UCW Secretary for Christian stewardship and church vocations, was guest speaker at the Fall Rallies of Glengarry Presbyterial UCW held recently at Maxville and Knox United Church in Cornwall. Program in each region followed the same pattern. Mrs. Fred Shaw of Hawkesbury conducted Region 1 at Maxville with Mrs. Ivan Sproule acting as Secretary. Mrs. A. A. Morrison of Ingleside conducted Region 2 at Cornwall with Mrs. Russell Presley of Lancaster acting as secretary. Warm welcome was extended to all present by presidents of the respective local United Church Women.

Reciting of the purpose and a brief worship period opened the Rallies, followed by minutes being read and confirmed.

Mrs. John Merpaw of Cornwall, literature secretary, gave a detailed outline of literature available, laying particular emphasis on Japan, our church mission study for 1967-1968.

Due to illness, Mrs. Kenneth Barton, treasurer, was unable to be present, therefore her report will be contained in the Presbyterial Newsletter to be issued shortly. Slides of all the churches within the Presbytery were shown and a brief historical commentary read by the president of each UCW.

Luncheon closed the morning session with tea and coffee being served by the ladies at each Rally.

Leading up to her topic "The principle of self-determination of shares of the unified budget", Mrs. Christie carried out a humorous two-way conversation with Mrs. Fred Shaw and again with Mrs. A. A. Morrison, pointing out the great need for women's continued active interest in church affairs. For 1968, the goal for each UCW should be to give at least as much as in 1967 and to increase, or, if possible, exceed the 1967 level. Why the need for more money? The answer should be obvious as the church supports nine mission hospitals across Canada, gives aid to senior citizens' homes, mental health hospitals, assists countless projects for youth within communities, and also provides help to 260 missionaries serving in fourteen different countries. Mrs. Christie advised the UCW membership to be informed of their church's work and to make use of all the literature now being provided. Read the "Outreach", the "Observer", the "Christian Home" and purchase literature specially designed for young people, such as "Hi-Venture", "Discovery" and "World Friends". Concluding her remarks, Mrs. Christie quoted a sentence expressed by Rev. Anne Graham, President of London Conference, when she said "I am continually amazed at the amount of money given to missions when so little is known of their need. I wonder what they would give if they really knew the need".

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Morrison for her timely topic and the enthusiastic and understanding manner in which it was presented.

A short skit titled "Pity the Poor President", ably presented by UCW ladies, was highly entertaining and amusing.

Reports of summer school were given by Mrs. Ernest G. Barratt of Vankleek Hill and Mrs. Daryl Perrault of Ingleside.

Total registration for both rallies was 131.

Closing worship at Knox United was conducted by Mrs. H. W. Giffin of Ingleside and at Maxville by Mrs. D. Archie Campbell of Maxville.

SCOTCH CONCERT ENJOYABLE

It was truly a "bonnie" night for Scots throughout the district who attended the annual Scotch Concert in the IOOF Hall last Wednesday night. The concert was sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Artists from a wide area combined their talents to give the large appreciative audience a program worthy of the best in Scottish music, song and dance.

Leading off were members of the McDonald family, of Glen Roy—the four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert McDonald—Helen Ann, on the piano; Carmel, on the accordion; Joan, the violin, and Jean, the Hawaiian guitar. Rounding out this musical aggregation was their cousin, Rev. John MacPhail on the violin and Sylvester MacDonald was favored with several of the traditional songs sung in Sylvester's inimitable way.

Always a highlight of the concert have been the numbers by the massed violinists. Violinists this year included Rev. John MacPhail, Duncan MacDonald and Lucien Ranger, all of Cornwall; Mrs. Hugh MacMillan, Grantley; Clifton Britton, Monkland; John Angus MacDonald, St. Andrews West; Miss Carol Kennedy, Avonmore; Martin Ferguson, Malcolm Dewar and Wilfred Gillis, all of Ottawa. Their accompanist on the piano was Mrs. Myrle Muma, of Monkland.

So popular were the violinists that they were brought back time and time again. Several of the violinists were heard playing solos.

Miss Donna MacMillan of Cornwall, pipe major of the Cornwall Optimist Junior Pipe Band, was present to add her fine contributions to the spirit of the evening. Miss Mary MacDonell, Williamstown, a winner in many Highland dancing competitions, did three of the beautiful dances of the Hebrides, Seann Triubhas, "Wilt Thou Come to Barracks, Johnny?" and "Flora MacDonald's Fancy".

Female soloists were Miss Mavis MacRae, Avonmore, and Misses Judy and Linda Ross, Newington. Their accompanists were Mrs. Neil Bush and Mrs. Gordon Ross.

Miss Darlene Alguire, of Avonmore champion step dancer, left no doubts in the minds of an appreciative audience of her abilities.

Following the program lunch was served to members of the cast and members of their families.

SPORTS in the GLENS

by ANGUS H. McDONELL

In the distant past when the Lower Ottawa Valley Hockey League was one of the major circuits in the Ottawa area, it was not unusual to find Alexandria and Vankleek Hill meeting in one of those crucial playoff games.

With fan interest at fever pitch a special train would be chartered to accommodate the crowd supporting such beloved stars as Joe Matte, Donald John "Little Archie" McMillan, Tommy Lowrey and Joe Marcoux.

A lot of water has run down the Glens since those far-off days, however sport history has also a habit of repeating and once again we find, at least at high school level a revival of that old rivalry between Vankleek Hill and Alexandria.

Tomorrow afternoon (Friday) the high school senior football teams representing Ourtown and the Hill meet in a sudden death game on the VCI grounds to decide the 1967 EOSSA "B" champions and holder for the coming year of the James A. MacArthur trophy.

This game should be the highlight of a successful season. The Hill students are undefeated and obviously are favorites. They will also have the advantage of home grounds.

The only comment from the GDHS coaching staff is, "We sure will have to be up for this one".

You will have to agree with such a prudent analysis almost on a par with one of Coach Frank Clair's gems of despair. GDHS have been inconsistent during the schedule. In one game displaying a power house offence and then the next only a major and in one game not even booting a single.

There will be no tomorrow after this game, until next year. GDHS holds a brilliant football record and with these two major factors firmly packed beneath their helmets a solid continuous reminder for 60 minutes that they, the team, owe their best, nothing less, to not only current teachers and students but in particular the football graduates who gave their best to win past honors, then in this frame of mind which spells d-e-s-i-r-e we will give GDHS the nod to retain the championship by one TD.

THE LATE ART CONTANT

The sport realm was shocked early this week to learn of Art Contant's sudden death at his home here.

In addition to the fact he was an accomplished hockey and lacrosse player we will always remember Art Contant as being among those well groomed athletes. Regardless of how turbulent a game might be Art always looked his best like "Odie" Cleghorn.

Among the many highlights of Art Contant's fine career, ironically, his pro lacrosse stint with Oshawa that led to the disqualification of Cornwall Colts juniors in OHA playdown, 1921, sparked more than one interesting discussion featuring Mickey McDougall and Dinny Dinsmore at our sportsmen's dinners.

At that time Mickey was attending St. Mikes and of course was on hand to greet Art Contant, John Denneny and the Colts as they played Toronto Aura Lee. Dinsmore was one of the Toronto junior stars. Cornwall eliminated Aura Lee with Art Contant among the leaders.

Then came the ruling of the Toronto hockey hierarchy and the Colts were turned out to pasture. Lawyer Mickey and Maroons' old hockey star Dinsmore will still argue that decision with Mickey, of course, prosecuting on behalf of Art Contant and his colleagues that they were dealt the ace of spades.

Sincere sympathy to the Contant families.

A GREAT GAME

We mentioned earlier in this stint of the Alexandria-Vankleek Hill special trains once scheduled for playoff hockey games.

Some years ago during one of those elbow bending sport discussion sessions the late Vincent "Jack" McDonald related one of those amusing anecdotes that, truth is stranger than fiction, occurred on a March train trip to the Hill.

The big question, as the train left Alexandria, was ice conditions. It was spring and natural ice was fast turning to slush.

Otherwise spirits of more than one brand were high and among the fans was one local character who had started too early in the afternoon to prepare for the trip.

As the train wended its way through Glen Sandfield and Dalkeith this particular fan curled up on the leather bench in the "smoker" and fell soundly asleep.

His pals before getting off at Vankleek Hill tucked him in with a spare blanket in motherly fashion and left him undisturbed while the train proceeded to Hawkesbury and turned around for the trip back to Alexandria.

The fans trooped back to the train after the game and the "lone rooter" was still sleeping like a bear in January.

As the train chugged through the bridge at Duncie Donald Angus MacPhees, it was time to awaken this fan from his slumbers.

Slowly he came to, stretched a bit and then mumbled, "It should be a hell of a good game if the ice is hard."

"Coochy—Coochy—Coo!"

GLENGARRY HISTORICAL NOTES

by HUGH MacMILLAN

Henry MacKenzie, Publicist

The name McKenzie is synonomous with the fur trade and the North West Co. in particular. When we think of the name and the fur trade, Sir Alexander McKenzie comes to mind. He was justly famous for his exploration work, but there were many more McKenzies, members of the North West Co., who did outstanding work.

Henry McKenzie was such a man, his fame did not come from spending long years in the fur trade and exploration. Rather it came from his skillful use of the pen. He came to Canada about 1800 when he was twenty years of age, along with his brother Donald. Their brothers Roderick and James were already partners in the North West Co. The brothers came from the Lochbroom area of Scotland and were first cousins of Sir Alexander McKenzie. It was he who brought his cousins into the firm. This was common practice as the Nor'Westers combed the glens of their native Scotland for new clerks.

This was nepotism at its best. The young highlander was given his chance in the firm, before any outsider, if he made the grade he was assured the chance to make a fortune, if he didn't measure up he was out. Most made it, including Henry McKenzie. They were of the right breed, inured to hardship, and ready for adventure.

A fifth brother John settled in Glengarry county taking up a large land grant near Glen Sandfield. He has descendants living in the area today. John took no active part in the firm, but likely had money in the concern, and would keep an eye out for clerks. By this time the "Nor'Westers" were actively recruiting engages or clerks in the nearest Highland settlement, Glengarry.

Henry served his apprenticeship at Kam inistiquia, now the city of Fort William. This was the great inland headquarters of the firm. The brigades of 36' Montreal canoes arrived here each summer from Montreal with their five ton cargoes of trade goods. They were met by the 26' north country canoes that had come from posts in the far west, and in the neighboring area which is now northern Ontario. After several weeks spent exchanging cargoes the Montreal canoes would return east to Montreal, and the north country canoes proceeded back to the inland posts, which were strung across 3000 miles of wilderness.

We can imagine that Henry learned the trade well here, and judging by his later writings, could have left a vivid account of life at Fort William. By 1804 he was back in Montreal, following the death of Simon McTavish, first head of the "Nor'Westers". He was appointed to manage McTavish's Seigniory and mills at Terrebonne. When Sir Alexander McKenzie returned to Scotland in 1808 he assumed the additional duty of managing his affairs in Canada. This included extensive holdings of land in Glengarry.

It was during the controversy between Lord Selkirk and the Nor'Westers that Henry became best known. This battle carried on from 1814-1818. Selkirk a somewhat misguided philantropist moved hundreds of displaced Highlanders to land he had purchased from the Hudson's Bay Co., around Red River. He attempted to cut off the pemmican trade of the "Nor'Westers", and in other ways interfere with their trade. This they would not tolerate, as pemmican (pounded buffalo meat, fat and berries) was the staple diet of the western fur brigades.

Today the role of a publicist, presenting issues in the most effective way, is well known. In 1818 the term was not in use. However this is precisely what he was doing, and most effectively, if we were to read some of his writings. In 1825 he published, "A letter to Simon McGillivray." This reviewed his relations with the "Nor'Westers."

The famous Montreal Beaver Club elected him a member in 1815, and in the same year he married Anne Bethune, daughter of the Rev. John Bethune, and sister of Angus Bethune, a fellow "Nor'Wester." Two children were still living near the turn of the century, Mrs. Stow of Toronto, and Simon McTavish McKenzie of Montreal. It was from a descendant of the former, D. B. Shutt of Guelph, that the picture of Henry was obtained. It is a well done minature on ivory. Hopefully someone will come forward with more writings of the man who might be called: "Canada's first publicist."

Two-Way Vision — Swimming along in fresh water without spectacles. the anableps, a tropical fish, is truly a four-eyed specimen. This live-bearer, which sometimes grows a foot long, has unusual divided vision. Its eye resembles that of a frog, except that the upper portion is adapted for sight in the air, while the lower is for vision in the water.

under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Maldwyn Watkins, rendered two anthems at the morning service. In the evening special guests were the Martintown quartette, accompanied by Mr. Munroe, of Maxville.

As a part of the anniversary celebration and in recognition of Centennial Year the ladies of the local church had prepared an interesting historical display, based on the early days of the local church.

Prior to the evening church members of the congregation enjoyed a fellowship "pot luck" supper in the church hall.
