Snowstorm Disrupts Traffic and Power Here

School Buses Stalled Tuesday Night Power Failure Continues Till Wednesday

Snow started to fall here on Tuesday morning about nine o'clock and by the time it had finished Wednesday afternoon, the whole countryside was thoroughly snowbound. It is nearly seven years since the last tie-up occurred in the district.

By late Tuesday afternoon, the warnings were plain enough that we were in for a real old fashioned snow storm. Roads were filling faster than the plows could keep it back and the moderate temperatures prevailing did not help matters any. Traction was sadly lacking under spinning rubber because of the wet base under the white stuff.

Villagers went to bed here with power, but that did not last long. At 11.10 the system broke down and Chesterville was without hydro until Wednesday at 3 in the afternoon.

The main lines dropped near the CPR tracks and the crew could not get to town to help the local maintenance man do the needed repairs. Finally, the Winchester crews arrived by train and two hours work saw the repairs complete and the welcome lights back on.

Telephone service here was not interrupted except for a very short time on some phones. The booster engine was burbling for most of the power outage to supply the vital power for the substation.

By nightfall, Tuesday, cars were beginning to line the Ridge Road. The soft snow was claiming its victims early and there many of them sat until the roads were partially cleared Wednesday afternoon.

The Provincial plow working from Avonmore ended up in town Wednesday out of gasoline and the drivers very short of sleep. Fortunately Jack MacMillan had a few gallons of gas on one of his tank trucks and by canning it off into the big plow, the plow was able to start the slow struggle to Avonmore where relief drivers were waiting and chains could be mounted on the truck. That truck finally got through the Ridge, along with a township plow in the middle of the afternoon.

At the height of the storm, the early morning train, No. 22, was heading east for Montreal. At St. Clet, about 35 miles east of the city, she had to hold up to allow a freight to go into a siding. The second section of 22, following behind, ran into the stationary first section. The radio reported this morning 87 persons were injured in the smash, with at least one person killed. The roads were in an impassable condition by that time and great difficulty was experienced in obtaining medical help for the injured.

As a result of the traffic tie-up, trains have been averaging six hours or more behind schedule here. They have been rerouted past the site of the wreck to the south CNR line and coming back to CPR at Vaudreuil.

Chesterville village streets have been kept open through the whole of the storm. Mr. Sydney Morris, who has the plowing contract, ran continually and kept ahead of the worst of it. The banks of piled snow are well over five feet high on the sidewalks, though, so foot traffic will take to the road until the centre of the town, at least, can be cleared. This morning the tractors are busily working at the man-sized job of loading the snow and dumping it onto the river ice. To facilitate matters, several panels have been removed from the abutment railing and the trucks are backing out over and quickly getting rid of their loads. At present rate of progress, a couple of days will see doorways and walkways partially cleared.

Chesterville was not the only town to lose its power. Both Finch and Inkerman were in the same position. Township plows opened a path to both Finch and Inkerman for the repairmen, and service was restored late Wednesday afternoon.

The schools of Chesterville went out of business Tuesday night. The high school buses were stopped at the outskirts of town and will not be able to run again until the outlying districts are cleared. The students, Tuesday night, bedded down in town with friends, though some managed to reach home via horse and sleigh. The snow by Wednesday was bad enough on some of the side roads to even stop sleighs and teams.

The doctors and veterinarians of the town have been hard put to make any sort of schedule of their calls. One casualty, Mr. Graham Smith, who injured his foot in a fall, was unable to reach hospital yesterday, because of the heavy drifts in his laneway.

BORN

CRAIK—To Mr. and Mrs. Bud Craik, Morewood, on Thursday, February 4, 1954, in Winchester District Hospital, a daughter. Susan Mary. Both well.

NOW ITS GREEN EGGS!

Sure, an' its St. Patrick's Day comin' up and the little hen is doin' her bit!

Believe it or not, this particular hen is making an excellent job of laying green eggs!

Miss Marion Hornby from the Ninth brought a dozen eggs into the office at the last of the week and every one of them is a fine Irish green.

It would appear that the hybrids she purchased last year, a cross of White Leghorns and Barred Rocks had a couple of strangers in their midst. Two of the pullets turned out to be red and white and smaller than the others.

The one little hen lays neary every day, not with the others, but by hersef in another part of the henhouse.

The egg shels are green right through although the nomal complement of white and yolk is the same as any other egg. Miss Hornby is planning on setting a clutch of the eggs this spring to see what they will bring forth.

Who knows? They might turn out to be Birds of Paradise.

Three calves and under at one call will cost a farmer $1 per calf; over that number, the charge will be 75c each.

This agreement was approved by Winchester township council.

Bridge Gives Way Near Morewood Two Men Unhurt

Two men escaped unhurt when a steel bridge collapsed under the weight of a 15-ton snowplow truck four and a half miles north of Winchester Friday afternoon on the east-west road from Morewood to Highway 31. The 60-foot bridge across the South Castor River was wrecked with damage estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000.

Occupants of the truck, Blair Scott, 23, of Moose Creek, and Thomas J. Hamilton, 54, of Winchester, received a severe shaking up and a good soaking in the icy waters of the creek. Otherwise they suffered no ill effects.

Scott and Hamilton were employed by Winchester township and were engaged in plowing snow on the 12th concession road, two miles east of Ormond.

They had driven the truck, owned by Gordon Scott, Moose Creek, across the bridge incident. It was when they were recrossing the structure the spectacular accident occurred.

The south side ofthe bridge gave away suddenly as the truck reached the middle of the span. With a roar, the truck, steel girders and planking crashed through to the ice below, a drop of about 15 feet.

Hearing the noise, Roland Cayer, who operates a farm nearby, ran to the scene and assisted the men from the bridge and truck wreckage.

A preliminary examination showed the truck received little or no damage.

Township officials, Deputy-reeve Basil Dawley and Road Superintendent Vernon Fetterly, were called and reached the scene within a short time. Both reported the bridge had been checked for safety last summer and late in the fall. On each occasion it had appeared to be safe, although it is an old structure.

Officials said the bridge will be out of commission until spring at least.

Some arrangement will be made to reroute traffic at this point. Barricades have been erected at both approaches to the bridge which links a main county road to Morewood.

The truck smashed through the river ice and settled in about four feet of water. Its occupants were soaked up to the waist by the frigid water, as they made their way to safety.

The accident was investigated by Cst. Eric Zalman of Morrisburg detachment, Ontario Provincial Police.

FRANK HERBERT — A boyhood ambition was realized the first day Frank Herbert took his place befor a CBC microphone. At the age of seventeen, Frank had decided to become a radio announcer due to, as he put it, "the prospect of being paid for merely talking." In the years that followed, he found that there was more to announcing than he first presumed, and it was only after he had studied speaking in his spare time that he reached his goal. Since 1943 he has been featured regularly as a newscaster and commentator on CBC networks.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

CHESTERVILLE, ONTARIO, FEBRUARY 18th, 1954

Our View is Still the Same

We cleared our editorial throat last week in this space and the reaction was immediate. We have been hearing about it all week. If we were running a poll, we think the favourable reactions would show a large majority, but then perhaps we are thinking wishfully. Still, those that have made it a point to discuss the matters raised in our "Who Works for Nothing?" are taxpayers and they usually have the final say.

Several voices of authority have been raised to question our statements and conclusions. These columns carry a letter from one of the voices, that of Councillor Turner. Mr. Turner has written a long letter to us which we are pleased to print outlining his views on the matter under discussion.

We are horrified to think that we consider it a sin to save the taxpayer money. If our words gave that impression, here is where we had better run for the cellar. We were under the impression an attempt was being made to show that money could be saved, and that the particular method of saving it by council was not true economy.

The February meeting was not covered by the writer, in person. We really had a jaundiced air by that time and were unhappily confined to bed with what the doctor called "contagious hepatitis," or common garden veriety jaundice. But, and a most important 'but', the meeting was very thoroughly covered by one of our correspondents in whom we have the utmost confidence. That reporter did not report any approach to the problem of supervision other than Mr. Turner's gratis efforts. The minutes of the meeting and other meetings of 1954 make no reference to paid supervision; all reports published in the daily newspapers stressed the "no remuneration" clause but made no mention of a paid foreman. Therefore, we feel that if nothing official had been noted on the matter, the question of adequate supervision was an unanswered problem suitable for discussion.

We are pleased to see that Mr. Turner will supervise the paving of South Street for the town. It will mean the sacrifice of a well-earned holiday on his part and he is to be commended.

That street is only one part of the year's work to be done by the commission and council throughout the year. Mr. Turner, while he does not mention his fellow commissioner, Mrs. Marcellus, will certainly receive much help from her and possibly if the works foreman starts the workmen on a job she will be able to do the timing and visiting, as Mr. Turner says will be done.

1952 is mentioned as the key year when the paid supervision by a councillor started. Mr. Turner says that was the start of paid supervision in the village. We are not in agreement with that at all. In the years that we have been privileged to report the town's affairs, there has always been a paid supervisor receiving a rate in excess of that paid regular labour. Mr. Sydney Morris carried on that work for many years, in addition to his other duties. 1952 was the first year a councillor was paid foreman.

We feel that injustice is being done a good past councillor and willing worker for the municipality in the hindsight statement regarding the cost of street and bridge maintenance in 1953. In all conscience, how could labour costs be a third again as high as they should have been and not discussed at heated length by council members? Mr. Page was the paid supervisor then. The inference is unpleasant. Mr. Page received $243 for his work last year. He worked 243 hours of paid time for the municipality and used his own automobile, as did Mr. Morris, at no cost to the town, for transportation of men and tools. We have no quarrel with Councillor Turner's ability to build but we do question his estimates of an increase of one-third in costs when the town was hiring a councillor to act as works foreman.

Economy in not paying for supervision of day labour, if costs are nearly the same as last year should net the town some $240, if the hired labour works at the same rate. A lot of ifs. As for $243, approximately a quarter mill, "going a long way" towards laying a concrete sidewalk from the bridge to St. Mary's school on the east side of the highway — would the councillor let us know the address of that contractor? We have a couple of thousand yards of concrete we want placed and that is about the rate we can afford.

Want to Get More Out of Reading?

(From Newsweek Magazine, New York)

The average business man reads about 250 words a minute but with less than 75 per cent comprehension. The Foundation for Better Reading seeks to help businessmen double their reading efficiency with the help of training machines. But everyone can improve his reading by following these simple methods, as cutlined by the foundation.

Eliminate moving the lips or vocalizing while reading. If you don't you will only be able to read as fast as you can move your lips.

Read phrases, not single words or syllables. You will speed up if you take words in blocks; the association of the words will also make the meaning clearer. Take a book and divide a page into three equal segments by drawing vertical lines. Try stopping only when your eye hits a line as you read across. As you improve, use only one line down the centre of the page, and try to stop only once. Get a friend to quiz you on what you have read to see if you understood it.

Don't look back—believe your eyes. Recessions reduce speed and confuse you as you're really reading backwards. Read to the end of the paragraph and the meaning will be come clear.

Develop reading rhythm; you will have less fatigue and go faster. To help get your own rhythm, divide the written thoughts with dots or check marks.

Decide why you are reading—for pleasure, for content, for story line, for style, for words, or for figures. Then you can take a different speed or simply scan. A novel and a technical report shouldn't be read at the same speed; taken alternately, they help you increase your ability to read. As Bacon put it: "Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested."

The Queeen's Birthday

(The Ottawa Journal)

The sensible announcement is made by the Government that year in Canada the birthday of the Queen will have its formal celebration on Victoria Day, May 24.

Her Majesty's actual birthday is April 21. But it is the custom in this country in recent years, if the Sovereign's natal day falls in a season when the weather may be unkind, to set it by official proclamation for observance in a more favourable time.

Victoria Day is a national holiday by law, and celebrated on May 24 when that date falls on a Monday, and otherwise on the Monday immediately preceding that date. This year May 24 is Monday, Victoria Day, and the Queen's birthday and the combination is perfect.

There should be no departure from this practice. With May 24 and July 1 both full-scale national holidays there is small need for a third to come in between, as often has happened with the Government setting for the Queen's birthday a date which varies from year to year.

NEW FAMILY-SIZE POWER TAKE-OFF BALER

This new machine announced by New Holland Machine Company was designed particularly for farmers growing small acreages of hay who want a machine with high capacity. Called the Model 66 Power Take-Off Baler. it is capable of making up to six bales a minute, or seven tons an hour. An over-running clutch and slip clutch on the p.t.o. unit enables farmers to shift gears up or down to meet changing windrow conditions without choking or stalling of the tractor. The clutch feature, plus the pre-compression system of baling used in the engine model "66," makes power-take-off baling practical, say New Holland engineers.

RCAF Heads for North Bay but Ends Up in St. Louis, Mo.

An RCAF jet plane on a routine training flight between two Canadian points breezed into St. Louis by mistake last Friday night.

FO N. L. Harrison of Toronto, who was "surprised to say the least," said all his navigational aid s had gone on the blink.

Harrison said he and FO G. G. MacLeod of Montreal left their base at Portage La Prairie, Man., late Friday afternoon for North Bay, Ont.

"I began to suspect something was wrong," Harrison said, "because we picked up none of the scheduled radio check points on tthe radio."

This was shortly before St. Louis Airport Control tower operator Jerry Moonier heard the Canadian plane report itself lost.

Moonier put the Lambert Naval Air Station's ground control approach unit on the alert and picked up the jet on a radio directional-finder near Springfield, in southwest Missouri.

The ground control unit, tracking the plane on its radarscope, brought pilot Harrison safely into St. Louis.

The distance between the two points in Canada was estimated at about 900 miles—roughly the same distance from Portage La Prairie to St. Louis.

Thanks, Old Chap

He was incredibly drunk, and the copper was finding it hard work to get him to the police station. It was actually only a few hendred yards, but to the arm of the law it seemed miles.

Several the inebriate fell flat, dragging his captor down with him. At last, breathless, and covered with mud, the policeman managed to drag his captive up the steps of the station.

As they lurched through the door, the drunk muttered: "Thanksh, old chap! Get me inshide quick before the copsh shee me!"

That'll Do For The Present

"And now, my little man, what would you like for a birthday present this year?" asked the uncle of his little nephew.

"A mouth-organ," said his nephew, promptly, "same as last year."

I'm glad I chose the right thing," he said. "What made you like it so much?"

"Mother gave me a dime a week not to play it," came the reply.

Letters to the Editor

Councillor Turner Writes a Letter to the Editor

Editor, The Chesterville Record,

Sir:

When a village councillor attempts to save the taxpayer money, it is a sin of the worst type, at least that was the impression I gathered from reading an editorial "Who Works For Nothing?" which appeared in your paper last week.

The paper appears to be highly critical of the village being without the services of a paid works foreman for the year 1954. The Record feels that such money as might be saved is a poor economy and cites the paving of South Street and the construction of a new right of way between Howard and Hummel Streets as examples when sevices of a paid official would be practical.

Before I answer the writer of the leading editorial, I would mention that he was not present at the February meeting of council. I suggest that had he been present to learn for himself, the editorial would either have not been printed or if it had, it would have been written in a different tone. At the meeting I mentioned that when the paving of South Street was started I would arrange to take my annual vacation. Also it is extremely doubtful if the connecting street will become a reality this year since one of the property owners feels that the village's offer is far too low a figure.

If Chesterville was growing as rapidly as some of the villages in the Niagara Falls area, or as evidenced in the district near Windsor, then I would feel that a paid works foreman was a must. However, until the day arrives when our population rises over the 2000 mark, I feel that we should continue as we have every year up until the late autumn of 1952, when council was faced with the construction of a $5000 job, namely, the College and Church Streets sewer. I wasn't a member of the board that year, and if I had been, I would have suggested that council should hire a paid working foreman who was not a council member. I mean by "working foreman", a paid works foreman who would be in charge of the job, as well as weilding the old shovel.

The council board in 1953, on which I was privileged to serve, did not appoint a works foreman. You won't find a word to this effect. in the entire year's minutes. We didn't need to appoint one, the 1952 appointee announced that he was "the works foreman." A s the year went along, I noticed that many of the jobs being carried out were costing the village often a third again what they normally should. The Record needn't agree with my ability to make estimates on the many local jobs, although I have had considerable experience in building. I will not pretend to know to the last shovel of earth that a workman can excavate in an hour's time, nor can I calculate the hour to the exact minute on the length of time required to open and clean a catch-basin, but from the five terms I have served as street commissioner, I have a good idea if any of the local labcurers are attempting to chisel the village. In fairness to the men I can but add that there have been few times indeed when I found it necessary to revise the men's figures to a more conservative length of time. Our men do not need a drill sergeant standing behind them, and they are not overly paid either. Surely the Record is not so naive as to think that men are not being timed or instructed and visited while the work is being carried through.

It may be poor economy as the Record suggests, but the saving we should effect this year would go a long way towards placing a cement sidewalk from the bridge as far south as the lawn of St. Mary's school. (This project is one of my own ideas and has not been discussed in council.-

Chesterville is not blest with too many willing workers; today it is more common than not to pay for everything. However, if the writer can save the taxpayer a quarter mill by doing something for free, then why give him a blast with number 12 type?

Hands will be continued to be stretched out for the almighty dollar, but this person isn't an Oliver Twist.

Yours truly,
John Turner,
Works Foreman.

A Note of Commendation

Editor, The Chesterville Record.

Sir:

We always seem to have difficulty getting this subscription in on time—so I am enclosing $5 to cover the next two years.

When I get home from the office, my father is usually ready to give a complete account of the news in the Record—so you'll know he enjoys it.

We have both noticed the changes made in the paper from time to time and heartily approve. We especially like the editor's own remarks in the editorial columns.

Best wishes,
Jean Houlehan.

Editor, The Chesterville Record.

Sir:

I am a WW I American Legion menber. I found your town on a Canadian road guide, and I thought I would write to you. I would like to hear from a WW I veteran from your community.

We have a fine active town here at Mechanicsville, Iowa; population is 850 on Lincoln Highway 30; 25 miles to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the home of the Quaker Oats Company; also called the Hog Capital of the USA.

We have a large stock sales barn here in a rich farming section.

Our Legion Post is building a new $65,000 Legion Memorial building on Main Street. Lots of people invested the money and time for the job.

Edith B. Helmer of our Legion Post is a disabled WW I overseas nurse: She can't walk and likes to get letters from other folks.

Many of my Legion members are interested in letters from other veterans. If anyone wishes to write they can get in touch with me at this address.

Yours truly,
Louis Nickles,
Mechanicsville, Iowa, USA.

GIVE ME THE FLOWERS NOW

By Morgan Enell

I WOULD RATHER have one little rose from a garden of a friend
Than to have the choicest of flowers when my stay on earth must end.
I would father have a pleasant word in kindness said to me
Than flattery when my heart is stilled and life has ceased to be.
I would rather have a loving smile from a friend I know is true
Than tears shed around my casket when this world I have bid adieu.
Bring me allthe flowers today, whether pink, or white or red.
I would rather have one litttle blossom now, than a truck load when Im dead.

Today, when we call something a white elephant, we are referring to an object we could do nicely without and which, if we can, we get rid of. The term is borrowed from the real thing: the rare and, to the Siamise people sacred white elephant.

Long ago the king of Siam, when one of his courtiers displeased him, made him a present of such an animal. Because of its religous significance it could'nt be disposed of and the other unfortunate recipient usually faced economic disaster from maintaining the beast in suitable fashion. If his fortune was such that he could cope with the situation , the King could always make additional gifts until the burden was too great for the unfortunate to bear.

Private to Stand Trial On Killing Charge In Bilow Death

Walter Cierpisz, 17-year-old army private from Windosr was ocmmitted for trial on a charge of killing Pte. Robert Bilow of Winchester in a washroom at Currie Barracks, Calgary, on Jan. 5

Det.-Sgt. H. Higgett read a statement by Cierpisz which said:

"I shot him once and he fell . . . . I have realized I have done a great wrong to my parents and everyone involved . . .

On the day of Bilow's death, the statement continued, Cierpisz and Bilow met in tthe washroom where Bilow tthrew objects and water at him.

"He challenged me to fight again," the statement said, "and made me the laughingstock of tthe barracks. He gave me a sneer that sent me off . . . I went to my hut and loaded my rifle.'

Witnesses said that immediately following the shooting, Cierpisz said he was not sorry, that he knew "it would bring disgrace" upon his family. but "mad dogs should be shot."

This was the testimony of Pte. Edward Unger and Cpl. Rene Brazeau, both of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, to which Cierpisz and Bilow belonged.

Pte. Unger was in the washroom of a hut where the shooting took place. He and other soldiers of a company including Cierpisz and Bilow had just returned from rifle range practice.

Unger said he had finished cleaning his rifle and was looking into a mirror against the washroom wall. He said he saw the reflection of Cierpisz coming into the room.

"I heard a shot and spun around. Bilow fell to the floor and Cierpisz fired another shot. I immediately took off to get a medical officer."

During cross-examination by defence ccunsel Clarence Smith, Unger told of frictiion between Cierpisz and Bilow before the shooting.

A few nights prior to the shooting, Unger said, Bilow threw a rubber container filled with water at Cierpisz as he lay in bed.

Several other soldiers in the company, along with Bilow, on occasions became angry with Cierpisz because he refused to lend them money, Unger added.

Cpl. Brazeau who escorted Cierpisz to Provost Headquarters after the shooting, said the young soldier told him he "was not sorry ," because he was tired of being tormented by Bilow.

Brazeau said Cierpisz told him he hadn't slept for four days because he was constantly being "picked on" by Bilow.

"I know I will be hanged, but I don't care," Cpl. Brazeau quoted Cierpisz.

Jaywalker Given Surprise With Kick in Pants

A motorist was driving through the heart of town in West Palm Beach a few days ago and suddenly a careless jaywalker darted in front of him.

His car lurched to a stop inches from the careless one and tthe driver jumped out.

In full view of a policeman and hundreds of spectators, he planted his foot with considerable emphasis on the jaywalker's posterior.

The motorist re-entered his car. The policeman turned his head. Pedestrians gaped. The jaywalker rubbed a sore place and walked away, shaking his head.

Chutist Falls 1,000 Ft. And Lives

A young army private plunged 1,000 feet from a flying C-119 Boxcar last Thursday with a partly opened parachute at l'Anciennе-Lorette airport near Quebec and lives to tell about it.

Pte. Raymond Jacques of Thetford Mines, Que., a member of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Canadian Regiment, landed in two feet of snow bordering the airport and suffered several broken vertebrae in his back and shock.

He was taken to Quebec military hospital where his condition was reported as critical. However, hospital officials said later he was improving and they expected him to recover.

Meantime the army has set up a board of inquiry to investigate the mishap. An army spokesman said Pte. Jacques' parachute wes attached to a lifeline aboard the Boxcar when he jumped. The chute came out of its container but the silk failed to spread properly.

We're Rationed

His health wasn't any too good, so the Eastern city dweller went looking for a place to live. In one smalltown in Arizona, he approached an old timer sitting on the steps of the general store.

Easterner—Say, what's the death rate around here?

Old Man—Same as it is back East, one to a person.

Boiled Mouse Reindeer Moss Taste Good

The meals sometimes consist of concentrated meat bar and boiled mouse, flavoured with reindeer moss and pussy-willow freshly gathered from the stomach of a newly- killed caribou.

But if the food is hot, men enjoy it when they are 150 miles north of the arctic circle ond its 50 below zero outside the igloo. That's the blizard blown spot five miles from here—about 1200 miles north of Edmonton— where the RCAF Survival Training School holds its courses.

The camps lasting about a week for each group, teach airmen how to survive if they are forced down on a flight over the frozen wastes. The school finds the best way to do this is to "crash-land" a group into the snowy wilderness and let them get first hand experience.

All equipment is kept to a minimum. Food supplies comprise scientifically designed hations, including concentrated meat bars about the size of a candy bar and vitim pills. Plenty of warmth-producing sugars and fats are supplied, together with a few other items. To enlarge their larder the men must hunt and fish.

A dainty morsel for a chilled apetite is boiled lemming, a tailless rodent resembling the field-mouse, which is hunted by hand. Parts of the ptarmigan bird go well too,

A caribou is a fine prize for it can provide the whole main course of a meal, both meat and "vegetables."

The caribou is a vegetarian and can sniff out patches of green edibles bared from their snowy mantle by the winds. All the men have to do is to cut open the animals abdomen, extract the contents, put them in a boiling pot and soon steaming delicacies of moss, lichens, pussy-willow and berries are served.

Fish will snap at anything bright on the end of a line. Only trouble is there's six feet or more of ice to chisel through before water level is reached. Nets can also be set under the ice.

The fliers' task at the camp, however, is not just to gather food. They build their own igloos and other types of shelter. Livnng in a crashed plane would be much colder than a snow shelter.

Digging trenches in the snow keeps trainees warm as well as teaching them the art of attracting a search plane. The trenches cast shadows across the white desert and with the shovelled snow shaped into a cross nearby, can be seen for many miles.

A heliograph—flashing mirror signal—is also used. Another way for crashed airmen to make their presence known is to tint their igloos with orange flares.

The men's outer garb is a nylon synthetic "caribou skin" developed by Sqdn. Ldr. Scott Alexander, the survival school's commanding officer. Warm woollen-clothing is worn underneath.

As a matter of routine, prevention and cure of frost-bite is taught. There have been occasional cases of frost bite but no serious mishaps.

Equipment includes a portable primus stove, a saw and an axe. Cooking is done outside, because inside it would freeze the igloos, "warm" snow walls to ice.

RCAF officials say chief purpose is to overcome fear of cold. First of the 16 weekly courses planned by the school this winter and spring started Feb. 1 with a planeload of 35 RCAF and fivet USAAF men as pupils.

Five instructors—including two Eskimos— are in charge. The school's motto is "survival or sudden death."

Just One Sealing Ship To Recall Adventures Of Deep-Sea Hunt

These days must be strange indeed to the old timers. Their world seems to have been swept aside before new ideas and new ways of doing things. The horse has practically gone. Ships with sails have all but disappeared. There is not quite so much excitement and advventure on the Grand Banks these days, and a whaler is a rare sight in the northern waters.

But nothing is quite so sad to old fishermen as the demise of the sealing fleet. Only one vessel will go out from the Newfoundland port of St. John's this year, and there will be no observance of the traditional opening of the seal hunt on March 15th.

The end of the sealing ships has been coming steadily. Oil and skin prices have dropped so low that returns do not warrant outfitting of ships. Besides that, hunting seals on the ice floes is dangerous.

Last year there were five ships in the hunt. In 1949 there were about 25 sealers including 3,000 men. And in the years before, the annual operation was both popular and lucrativve.

Beaver hats and seal coats were early symbols of the New World. Beaver pelts were used for money among pioneer settlers in Canada, and from the beginning of the 17th century sealing was a profitable sideline for whalers working in the North Atlantic Area.

When sealing was developed as a seperate cperation, the Greenland Seal, the Hooded Seal and the Bearded Seal were the popular species, and the "sea cow" was so lisentiously slaughtered that in 20 years after their discovery they were extinct. It is often realized that in those early days the seal provided meat.

U. S. Robin Seen in Britain

An American Robin has turned up in the British Isles, and what the National Geographic Society wants to know is: Did it fly there or thumb a ride?

The Robin was reported by a bird watcher on Lundy Isle off the West coast of England. Nowbody knows for sure how it got there. But the National Geographic thinks maybe the bird, like Wrong Way Corrigan, may have got mixed up in its navigation and hopped the Atlantic without really meaning to.

Of course, Robins have been known to steal long rides. The Geographic knows of one that nested in the tail of a Navy bomber and travelled 1,700 miles for free.

But the Lundy Robin could have spanned the ocean under its own power. Say it left from Newfoundland. It is 2,800 miles from there to Lundy by a downwind route.

By adding a wind speed of 35 miles an hour to the robin's speed of 35 mph, the Geographic figured the bird could have made the trip in about 40 hours.

Cigarette Firm To Probe Cancer Link

Cigarette makers announced last week formation of a tobacco industry research committee to do their own research on "the theory that cigarette smoking is in some way linked with lung cancer."

The committee's first move was a display advertisement for last weeks editions of major newspapers throughout the United States, with the heading "a frank statement to cigarette smokers."

The advertisement says the industry believes "the products we make are not injurious to health," but adds that medical research should not be lightly be dismissed "even though its results are inconclusive.

The announcement said the united industry members have pledged "aid and assistance to the research effort into all phases of tobacco use and health," including financial aid in addition to funds already being contributed by individual companies for medical research.

"For more than 300 years," the advertisement declared, "tobacco has given solace, relaxation and enjoyment to mnkind. At one time or an other during those years critics have held it responsible for practically every disease of the human body. One by one these charges have been abandoned for lack of evidence.

"Regardless of the record of the past, the fact that cigarette smoking today should even be suspected as a cause of serious disease is a matter of deep concern to us.'

Couldn't Leave Guy Out in Cold

The dog decided he couldn't leave a man out on a night like that.

So Peter Pan, a huge St. Bernard, shared his home with the hitch-hiking stranger overnight. Ordinarily he won't let anyone outside his masters family come near his king-size kennel.

But when the sranded stranger couldn't raise anyone at the home of George Robertson, he crawled in with Peter Pan. He kept warm by cuddling up to the 100-pound animal.

When Robertson looked out his window, he saw the man emerge from the doghouse. The stranger thanked the Robertsons—and the dog—and went on down the highway.

Farmer Joseph W. Jacobs, of Lebanon, Mo., brought cattle into St. Louis the other day and sold them for $1,250. Then, waiting at the bus station, he fell to tossing for "double-or-nothing" with a couple of genial strangers.

The result: a trip to the bank by Jacobs to cash his check, and $1,250 in the pockets of the city slickers.

the mop end is first rinsed and then

Doctor: "My dear sir, nothing but an operation will save your life."

Patient: "What will it cost?"

Doctor: "About five hundred dollars."

Patient: "But I have only a hundred dollars."

Doctor: "Let's see what pills will do."

Nice Man

"I don't like the look of your husband," said the doctor gravely.

"Neither do I," the wife replied, "but he's good to the children."

Democracy would help every labouring mortal to cease being a "hand" and make him a man.

Agnes MacPhail, 63, Dies First Woman M.P.

Agnes Campbell Macphail, first woman member of Canada's Parliament and for many years the only one, died in a Toronto hospital on Saturday last.

She suffered a heart attack at her home in suburban Leaside on Thursday and was taken to Wellesley Hospital. Friday she suffered a relapse.

When she was stricken with a coronary thrombosis in 1945 a doctor told her to rest.

"So I don't live long," she told the doctor, "but I'll do what left to do as long as I live.

Politics is what she wanted to do and she did it well. Her political pioneering showed many hesitant but ernest women the possibilities of a career in government.

Except for three brief periods, the one-time country school teacher was never out of active participation in politics after 1921 when first elected to the Commons as the United Farmers of Ontario member for East Grey.

She sat for 19 years in the Federal House, always as a member of the opposition, until 1940 when she was defeated by Walter Harris, now Resources Minister.

One of her great crusades was for prison reform. Her efforts were partly responsible for the appointment of a royal commission on the subject in 1936. Its 1938 report became the basis for the penal reform program introduced in Canadian penitentiaries following World War II.

In 1943 she was elected to the Ontario Legislature as an independent candidate for a term that lasted until 1945. In 1948 she won the East York for thte CCF in the Ontario election. She was defeated in 1951.

She wanted to see more women in politics and encouraged and coaxed them to enter.

"Most women think politics are not ladylike" she said. "Well, I'm no lady. I'm a human being."

In recent years there has been a well-supported move by several women's organizations to have her appointed to the Senate.

Miss Macphail often half-humoursly censured the Senate. She once sand: "The Senate as at present constituted is to me a huge joke. I couldn't possibly sit in it and spend the time laughing at myself."

In 1949 she told a students' meeting: "I can't think that the Senate is any use at all except it is a ery nice club for a lot of nice people."

She was born in Picton township, Grey county, Ont., March 21, 1890. After attending collegiate at Owen Sound she moved to Stratford to complete her high school education and get a second-class teaching certificate. She began teaching in South east Grey and it was there she started in politics.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Meredith Reaney, Palmerston, Ont. and Mrs. Hugh Bailey, Toronto.

Three separate funeral services were held. One was at Don Mills United Church in Toronto Monday afternoon and one in Flesherton that evening. The third was in the Presbyterian Church in Priceville on Tuesday at 2 p.m. Burial took place at Priceville.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD . . . .

When 17 ure trucks from four cities raced to the Griffin Hospital in Derby, Conn., the other day, all they found was a woman visitor looking for a drink of water.

The woman explained she thought the fire alarm hook next to the drinkink fountain would release a paper cup.

All city department heads in Dearborn, Mich., have been ordered to use the first half hour on the job each morning for sitting and thinking. "If they think enough, they may have ideas," added Mayor Orville Hubbard as he issued the order. He had previously commanded the men to learn by heart "A Message to Garcia," know the history of Robert E. Lee, and go back to school for one night a week.

Bill Johnson, 30, under questioning as a prospective juror in a big Memphis damage suit, was asked for his ocupation.

"I'm a magician and a mind-reader." He was immediately excused.

Miss Grizel Thompson, 28, of Tamworth, England, changed her name to Grizel Inge this week and thereby inherited $3,640,000. The estate was left her by a cousin on the condition she take the family name. And now Grizel will have to persuade anyone she marries to become an Inge also—or lose the money.

Cattle around Nowata, Okla. are in for some sad disappointments. Instead of chasing the critters with horse and lariat, local ranchers have started installing cow-caller horns in their trucks. The horns give out mournful mooing sounds in imitation of a mating call and bring the cattle in on the run.

Mrs. EdithR. Phillips, an elderly Providence, R. I., widow, declared herself "furious" recently because Allegheny County, Pa., officials persist in trying to give her $27,647.50. The money is owed her on some county bonds which fell due eight years ago, but which Mrs. Phillips still hasn't cashed in.

"I don't have time to cash my bonds," Mrs. Phillips insisted, explaining she devotes all her time to trying to settle her late husband's multi-million dollar estate.

DON WRIGHT—Working on one of his famous arrangements for his popular chorus is Don Wright; his wife Lillian who produces the Thursday night program on the Trans-Canada network, looks on approvingly. The Don Wright Chorus of 7 women and 7 men is an "amateur" group—but only in the sense that none of them earn their living completely from singing. In the seven years they have been entertaining listeners from coast to coast with their imaginative renditions of popular tunes and light classics, they have set a level of entertainment that is well above "professional" standards.

DISCUSS GRADING AT FORUM OF BERWICK WEST

The Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kearns. After listening to the broadcast, members and visitors spent the evening discussing the topic. L. Swain was the leader. Topic: "What Grade, Madam;" dealt witth the question of having uniform grade names for all farm products and should all farm grades carry through to the consumer.

Answers to the questons were as follows: Cheddar cheese, pork, beef whey buttre, potatoes, apples, etc. while graded at the packing plants were not always carried through to the consumer.

The Forum decided that graded cheddar cheese could be carried through to the consumer without problems, thereby increasing domestic consumption by specially packed merchandise with the frade stamped on every parcel—old, medium, fresh.

Hogs are graded in the carcass but the grade is not carried to the consumer. Bacon is made up in the packing plants and could be graded before parcelling in 1 or one-half pound packages and labelled lean, medium or fat. In the country shops, it would be almost be impossible to sell by grade, but grading charts should be placed in such shops so that the consumer would have an idea of what they are paying for—just what grade would be and the difference in value of each grade.

Another suggestion would be to educate the young people in High School on grades of produce and the value of tthis to the community and public in general.

Lunch was served by the hostess. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Kearns. All present felt they had spent a very educational and enjoyable evening.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mr .and Mrs. Allan Kearns. Topic: "Farm policy in relation to production."

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! No one should have "poor luck" when they make marmalade for the first time. Since the citrus fruits jel readily the fragrant preserve will give you a wonderful of accomplishment, especially if the thin slices of fruit are evenly distributed in the jelly.

TAKE A TIP

1. Do not make a quantity containing more than 10 cups of gar at one time.
2. Scald the fruit in a sieve before peeling to prevent white membrane clinging to the pulp.
3. Let fruit pulp, rind and water soak overnight.
4. Boil marmalade mixture in a deep saucepan to prevent boil-over.
5. Stir constantly and keep testing for liquid to 'sheet' when dripped from spoon. Allow a boiling period of 20 to 30 minutes.

Citrus Marmalade

2 large oranges
2 large lemons
1 grapefruit
12 cups water
9 cups sugar

Scald each fruit before the rind is peeled off very thinly. Scrape off any white membrane then put two or three slices in a layer each time ring is cut into slivers. This speeds up mincing of rind. Peel or scrape off white membrane from the fruit—discard it — then slice the fruit, being very careful to discard any seeds. To the fruit and rind add 12 cups of water and let stand overnight. Add 9 cups of sugar in the morning. Boil until jelly test is observed then set aside and stir occasionally until there is io steam from pan. Pour into sterile jars. Seal with paraffin.

To Serve Marmalade

1. Marmalade thinned with a little hot water may be served as a sauce for steamed batter pudding or gingerbread — also pancakes and waffles.

2. As children we never tired of cottage cheese sandwich filling in which marmalade had been mixed.

3. Today children coax for chopped cooked prunes mixed with marmalade as a favourite filling for tea biscuits in the lunch box—or marmalade and grated carrot for sandwiches.

4. We also recall our favourite dessert at Granny's, it was a crusty bread pudding with a spoonful of marmalade on top.

5. Citrus marmalade has rich flavour that enhances bland puddings such as spanish cream, rennet or cornstarch puddings as well as hot rice or custard desserts.

6. Occasionally, use marmalade as a filling for layer cake or jelly roll.

7. If you make yeast, rolls substitute marmalade as a filling in place of cinnamon, sugar and raisins. Brush marmalade over the dough that has been rolled out about one-quarter inch thick. Roll up the dough like a jelly roll and cut the slices about one inch thick, and place one in each cup of a muffin tin. Cover, let rise, then bake.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. L. P. asks for a recipe for Marmalade Coffee Cake.

Answer:

Marmalade Coffee Cake

¾ cup sugar
¼ cup soft shortening
1 egg
½ cup milk
1½ cups sifted flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt

Mix together thoroughly the sugar, shortening and egg. Stir in milk. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and stir into above mixture. Spread batter in greased and floured 9" square pan. Spread top with the following mixture: ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup sifted flour, 2 tbsps. butter, 1 tbsp. cream, ½ cup orange marmalade. (Topping melts down through the cake during baking. Bake until wooden pick thrust into centre of cake comes out clean, in an electric oven (375 degs.) for 25 or 35 minutes. Serve warm, fresh from the oven.

Mrs. L. C. asks for recipe for Mardi Gras Cake.

Answer:

Mardi Gras Cake

2 sq. (2 oz.) melted chocolate
½ cup hot coffee
½ cups sifted flour
1¾ cups sifted flour
1½ cups sugar
¾ tsp. soda
¾ tsp. salt
¾ tsp. ground cloves
½ cup buttermilk
½ cup soft shortening
2 eggs

Grease and flour two 8' layer pans'. Stir the chocolate and coffee until smooth and let cool. Sift flour, sugar, soda, salt and ground cloves together and add ground cloves together and add buttermilk and shortening. Beat two minutes and add the eggs and chocolate mixture. Beat another two minutes and pour into prepared pans. Bake until cake tests done in an oven of 350 degs. for 30 to 35 minutes. Spread White Mountain Frosting between cooled layers and over top and sides. Decorate the icing by dipping the tip of a teaspoon into melted chocolate and making indentations in the shape of a circle here and there over the entire surface.

White Montain Frosting

½ cup sugar
2 tbsps. water
¼ cup light corn syrup
2 egg whites
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix thoroughly in saucepan, sugar, water and corn syrup and boil slowly without stirring until syrup spins a 6" to 8" thread (242 degs.). Keep saucepan covered the first three minutes to prevent crystals from forming onthe sides of the pan. While syrup is cooking, beat egg whites until stiff enough to hold a point. Pour hot syrup very slowly in a thin stream into stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Add vanilla. Beat until frosting holds its shape. Spread between layers and on top and sides of Mardi Gras Cake.

To Frank Or not to Frank

In Washington and Ottawa the legislators spoke of stamps last week. In the United States, the House of Representatives post office agreed to raise the cost of first class out-of-town letters from 3 to 4 cents. In Canada, the Government legislation to raise the similar rate from 4 to 5 cents, with one-cent gains in other categories, made progress in the face of Opposition criticizim.

The U. S. increase, applied only to out-cf-town mail, will yield an estimated $159,000,000 more a year. The Canadian acr-across-the-boarder increases will yield about $14,000,000, almost all which is needed to pay for the Post-Office five-day week, salary increases and improvements for rural mail carriers authorized by Parliament.

In Ottawa, Mr. Cote in the Com. mons has replied vigorously to the critice of his department. He was not at his best when dealing with the Opposition suggestoin that franking priveleges be extinguished.

The Postmaster General accused the Opposition of presenting only one side of the question and set forth that the principle of franking was to give free mail communication to those seeking, as well as supplying, administrativve information. Mr. Cote was sad that the opposition had neglected to show that if franking were abolished "the Canadian public will then have to pay for all mail communications sent to their elected representatives'.

Theis is a poor argu'ment. Many Canadians livve long and useful lives in blissful ignorance of their privilege of sending letters free to their member of parliamment when he is in Ottawa. We find it hard to believe that the volume of free inward mail from the Canadian people to Ottawa in any way compares with the volume of free mail going out to them.

But there is a case for permitting taxpayers to write their representative free. We can imagine a situation where prolonged correspondence would impose a hardship on taxpayers in search of information—or their rights; it is hard to see how an MP or minister could be hurt by the postage of bills of such correspondence.

Franking costs the Post Office about $4,000,000 annually in lost revenue. Any reducation in that adian taxpayer and it ill becomes the minister to sspeak of the proposal to eliminate or restrict franking as "another futile suggestion".

The taxpayer might well speculate that the volume of mail setnt out by members, ministers, and departments would be substantially reduce if postal rates always had to be paid, with a further reduction in printing costs.

The taxpayer might also assume with safety that the national welfare would suffer little because of such reductions.

The W. I. Helps Rural Women

In these days of popular interest in "adult education", we might well take a look at a piece of adult education that has been going on for fifty-seven years-the educational programme of the Women's Institutes. Every month of the year some 1500 groups of rural women in Ontario meet together in a home or a hall, and their programme is likely to relate to home economics or health or agriculture or education or citizenship. Along with this the Institutes have access to a government educational service that provides a pretty liberal education.

The extension services provided by the Women's Institute Branch of the Ontaric Department of Agriculture are not inttended for the Institute members alone. They are for all rural women. The local Institute is the agency that sponsors the service, provides the hall or other place where a course is to be given and invites in all the women of the community.

And what do the learn? In earlierdays extension courses were mostly in foods and cooking, sewing and home nursing. These subjects are still among the most popular. It seems, the better cook a women is the more she wants to learn about it, so both experienced come to hear how to feed their families to keep them well, how to get their money's worth in buying food, how to have a variety of food the year round by canning or freezing, to get some ideas for supper dishes or oven meals. There is a course especially for young mothers on food for young children; and a course that usually causes a good deal of amusement "Your Food and Your Figure".

Education in clothing is not limited to sewing. There are courses in dressmaking and making clothes for children-and a special service for young mothers; but the women also learn all about the new fabrics and how to buy clothes and the types of clothes most becoming to them, most suitable for the wear they have to give them.

Right along the lines of practical homemaking many women are adding to their own education by the leading Girls' Homemaking Clubs. Last year, under the Junior Evtension Service of the Women's Institute branch, 5,594 Ontario girls in homemaking clubs were trained in foods and clothing and gardening and being good host-supervised the work of the women of the community acted as local leaders.

A registered nurse teaches the women home nursing, general health education and how to safeguard a home abainst accidents. There are classes in home furnishing and all sorts of homecrafts from needlepoint and rug-making to leatherwork. A psychologist is in great demand for courses in family relationships, child guidance, understanding the teen ager and indeed to help women to understand themselves and why they sometimes act the way they do.

The homemaking woman in the Women's Institute is very much aware that she has responsibilities outside her home, so at Women's own requesttt the Government has provided courses in citenship, cultural interests, public speaking, how to conduct metings and in general how to be an efficient clubwoman.

When the Women's Institute exeension service included only that were considered "practical" subjects it gave the rural woman what the city woman could get in technical school. As the service was broadened through the years it now givves the rural woman something in the nature of a university education.

Stork Makes Safe Delivery

A stork not only out-sped a modern auto last night, but detiivered its precious cargo in safety while a frantic father smashed up his car in an effort to beat out the bird and the expected baby.

Wilfred Jodoin, who with his wife and two infant children lives in a trailer at the rear of 265 Cambridge Street,became alarmed when shortly after '0 o'clock he noticed signals of the emminent arrivel of the stork.

He rushed into the car to get a sitter who could look after their other children while he took his wife to hospital.

The trip was hectic. He reached the sitter but on their way back, the car was involved in a crash at the corner of Bronson and Gladstone Avenue.

He had no time to stop.

"Follow me. I'm expecting a baby. I've got to get to the hospital", Mr. Jodoin told the amazed driver of the second car as he motioned him onward.

The rush was of no avail. When Mr. Jodoin reached his home his newly-born daughter had beat him to it and was in the Ottawa Fire Department emergency car awaiting transportation to the Civic Hospital.

A neighbor who was with Mrs. Jodoin together with Firemen Fred Durocher and Leo Dollaire gave the stork an assist upon its arrival. The firemen were summoned tto the house when it was decided that "every second counted."

Constables John Tasse and Roy Gilchrist who had been called to investigate the accident loaned a hand in getting the mother and daughter off to the hospital.

"Both well", Civic Hospital authorities reported this morning a few hours after mother and child had been admitted.

Inctdentially, the second car in the accident was driven by forgotten man Edgar Anderson, 244 Aylmer Avenue. Total damage was about $100.

By the time police left, Mr. Anderson was too busy congratulating the father to worry about the slight damage to his auto.

If

"No", said the club wit, "I never said he was conceited. All I said was that if I could buy him at my price and sell him at his own, I'd make a darn good profit."

Accidental Shooting At Iroquois Takes Youth's Life

Carl M. Barkley, 19, of Dundela, seven miles north of Iroquois, was found dead in the kitchen of his parents' home last Friday afternoon.

A .22-calibre automatic rifle lay nearby. Police believe the gun accidentally discharged while the youth was cleaning it. He was alone in the house at the time.

Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan, QC, said Saturday there had been no decision regarding an inquest. A post mortem was performed by Dr. William Shannon, Cornwall General Hospital pathologist.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Milton Barkley, found the body in a pool of blood when she and Mr. Barkley returned from Iroquois shortly after noon. There was a bullet hole in the youth's forehead.

Dr. C. R. Marcellus, Iroquois coroner, agreed with the theory that the rifle accidentally discharged while the boy was cleaning it.

Further details were lacking.

Investigation is being carried out by officers of the Morrisburg Ontario Provincial Police detachment under the direction of Corporal James Aldred.

The boy is survived by his parents, three brothers and a sister. He had been employed at the CIL plant at Maitland.
