Russian first secretary guest speaker at Rotary dinner meeting Mondgy

"Progress in the world would come to a halt if war broke out," said Vladimir Semenov Monday night. "Russia does not want war, but like the world, needs peace to live."

Mr Semenov, first secretary of the Russian Embassy for Canada at Ottawa, was speaking at the evening meeting of Chesterville Rotary Club. It was held last Monday evening in Legion Hall. Nearly 80 members and guests were present to hear the distinguished official.

Clarence and Mary Hagan, proprietors of McCloskey Hotel catered to the affair. They had prepared a buffet that featured two roasted whole suckling pigs, surrounded by so many things to eat the members and guests were at a loss to know when to stop.

President Jim Moonie was in charge of the meeting and his business session was brief. Eric Casselman, sponsor of Mr Semenov, introduced him to the audience.

The First Secretary felt that as neighbours Canada and Russia needed to cultivate a greater neighbourliness. He pointed to a map to demonstrate how close the borders of the two countries are to one another, both at the north and the north-west.

Russia is larger than all the North American continent. It has over 125 million people with over 100 different languages and some 15 republics of soviets within the union. Siberia alone is as large as Canada and, it was the speaker's opinion, just as rich in natural resources.

Mr Semenov explained at some length the growth of the socialist or communist system that developed after the 1917 revolution. He stressed the tremendous strides that have been made in the country since then, when private ownership gave way to public ownership.

Up to the second world war, the country was progressing at a good rate, after the Five Year Plans finally got on the rails. But with 25 million people left homeless through the devastation of war, progress was very difficult for a long time in the late Forties. But, said the speaker, the communist system has been able to rise and boast a continuing stability, in spite of untold hardship.

The Soviet Union is showing a steady progress in education, with illiteracy now a thing of the past, with free education available for all, with no employment, with subsidized housing and transportation, and with an acceptable form of state direction for all members of the community.

The efforts of the Chinese communists to foist their system on others was ridiculed by the First Secretary. He said the present thinking in Russia was not along these lines, but rather with a view to live in harmony and peace with other systems of government. He noted the stirring up of trouble among nations did not fit with the plans of a peaceful, busy Soviet Union.

An interesting question and answer period followed at which Mr Semenov showed a quickness of foot that was admirable.

Past president Mel Baker thanked the speaker.

Prokott - Van Kessell

Baskets of bronze and white mums, gold leaves and ferns adorned the altar of St. Mary's Catholic Church on October 19, for the wedding of Pieta Van Kessel, daughter of Mr and Mrs Martin Van Kessel of Chesterville, to Michael Joseph Prokott, son of Mr and Mrs Michael Prokott of Royalton, Minnesota.

Rev. J. J. Collins officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The nuptial mass was sung by the girls' choir of St. Mary's church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Corrie Van Kessel as maid of honour, and here niece, Peggy Centen as flower girl.

Mr Ignatives Prokott, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Ushers were Peter Van Kessel and Sylvester Prokott.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor-length gown of peau de soie, with fitted bodice, and lily-point sleeves. The skirt of the gown fell softly into a chapel train. A crown covered with sequins held in place her shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade of talisman roses and miniature white carnations.

The maid of honour wore a bell-shaped street-length dress of coral peau de soie with a matching headpiece. She carried a cascade of miniature white carnations.

The flower girl wore a white nylon and lace dress, a matching coral headpiece, and carried a small cascade of talisman roses and miniature white carnations.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs Van Kessel chose a black and red dress with black accessories and a corsage of candy carnations.

Prior to the wedding trip a reception was held at Williamsburg. For travelling the bride chose a three piece brown suit, with beige and black accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

Guests were present from Royalton, Minnesota, Whitby, Ottawa, Metcalfe, Winchester, Williamsburg Berwick Finch and Chesterville.

Mr and Mrs Prokott now reside at 2326 University Ave., N.E., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Direct Distance Dialing for Chesterville

December 15, 1963 marks a milestone in local telephone history. At exactly 2:01 a.m. all Chesterville customers will be connected to the Direct Distance Dialing network that now links 80 million telephones in Canada and the United States. As you know, this means that you can pick up your phone and dial a station-to-station long distance call almost anywhere on the continent and be talking to Smiths Falls, Toronto, Los Angeles or Albuquerque, New Mexico for that matter, in just seconds.

As you may know, all the automatic long distance equipment is housed in a new annex to the O'Connor St. building in Ottawa. To bring DDD to Chesterville, special carrier equipment was added to the dial switches in the local telephone office to increase the number of circuits between the town and the Ottawa annex.

Coincident with DDD, long distance charges will be eliminated on calls to Finch, Crysler and Winchester. Calls between Chesterville and these communities will then be local ones. You will not need to go through the operator but just dial the seven digit number as listed in the directory.

Because more telephone traffic is anticipated on the lines connecting Winchester, Finch and Crysler to the Chesterville exchange when the charges came off, the network was strengthened and more lines added to handle the extra calling.

George Thompson, Bell Telephone manager for this region said that when this wider local and long distance telephone service is introduced, Chesterville will have one of the most up-to date telephone systems in the country.

300 honour Manley at testimonial dinner

"I'm going back to the farm that reared me, to the acres that I cultivate."

Peter Manley's voice then broke with emotion. "I'm going back to my wife and family who kept the home fires burning. To them I owe a great debt of gratitude."

The Berwick farmer who represented Stormont for 12 years in the Ontario Legislature was speaking to more than 300 friends at Knights of Columbus Hall last week.

They gathered to honor Mr Manley, who was defeated by Fern Guindon in Stormont in the Sept. 25 provincial election.

"Many people have heaped the causes of our defeat on members of our organization," said Mr Manley, "I accept all responsibility for this election I feel that personally I have failed you."

His friends cried. "No! No!"

He called on the Liberals to "prepare for future encounters" noting that Conservatives had been many years in control of the Ontario government.

He thanked his friends for two "very comfortable chairs" which they gave him.

" I want to assure you," said Mr Manley, "I'm not going to spend all of my days in those chairs."

He said he felt he had lost his "spot in the heart of the people of Stormont," but that at the "arrangements" the government had made with CPR at the Wolfe's Cove jetty and pilot station.

Mrs Graham and this writer had placed a radio telephone call to Chesterville that Thursday night. We wished to speak to our daughter. The air was more than busy, and the call, placed at 6 p.m. was finally connected shortly after 9. We had just looked out from the promenade into the lights of Quebec City, and had seen the Wolfe's Cove jetty lights come into view. Here at last we were to pick up a pilot and head for Montreal. We entered the booth to talk to Mary when the chief radio officer cut our call, apologized and said the captain of the Empress needed the air. And why?

Senior officials of the CPR and the river pilot were at the jetty as planned. The trouble was they were barricaded in the pilot house, surrounded by longshoremen, according to the company men, and the whole thing was again being disregarded by the harbour police. The pilot never did get aboard ship, and any arrangements made for the safety and convenience of over 400 passengers never did get past the publicity stage.

Items Three, Four and Five in the letter of Mr Palmer are normal oratorical questions asked with considerable heat, but as someone said, "signifying nothing." The only thing missing is an "each and everyone here tonight" and we could have a full scale political meeting.

We might add in closing that someone's arithmetic is a little faulty. We entered harbour late Monday night at Quebec City. We disembarked in Halifax just a bit more than two days later. It was the following Sunday morning.

The story is ended from this page. We need neither letters or pointing fingers to let the people know we think very little of the Liberals now gracing the halls of Parliament Hill. And the picture of the posturing Mr Banks bringing out squadons of Mounties to protect parliamentarians from any harm is interesting, to say the least. Eight hundred other Canadians were not worth even a single red coat in the stronghold of Quebec.

Chesterville voters will have a chance to listen to a few plans come nomination night. No final decision has been taken yet about a sewer system, partial or full, for the town. It looms large on next year's agenda. Any incoming council will have to take that little problem by the ear very soon. Roads and steets have taken a lot of money to maintain and repair and the end is not in sight. But the local lads have done a reasonable job, we think. One could be called a mite prejudiced, of course, but by next January 1st, we plan to be a bit more objective.

Letter to the Editor

Kemptville, Ont.,
October 21, 1963

The Editor,
Chesterville Record,
Chesterville, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

While I can but sympathize with your recent predicament during your return from Europe, I must confess that I found your editorial on the matter a little hysterical. I would suggest that if you consider, and answer honestly, the following questions, you will realize that things were not quite as bad as you suggested:

1. If there had been a full scale police intervention, what would you have said if there had been people injured or killed? Which is more important, you landing quickly or a few lives?
2. Why did Mr N. R. Crump, the president of the Canadian Pacific, choose to ignore the arrangements made to land the passengers, and, instead, write an extremely inflammatory letter? Why do you, in your editorial, choose to ignore entirely the arrangements which were made and were not acted upon by Mr Crump.
3. Do you agree that Unions have the right to a legal strike and the right to legal picketing?
4. Do you agree that it is preferable to settle dispute by peaceful means, even if it takes a little longer, than by using force?
5. Do you prefer our Governments methods or those of Communist Russia or Nazi Germany?

While the whole matter is not particularly pleasant one can only be thankful it was settled peacefully. After all, in ten years time which will be more important — a peaceful settlement or you being held up for two days?

Again, please accept my sympathy at being caught in the middle of a very uphappy situation.

Yours sincerely,
John Palmer

Your Federal Report

by Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P.

From whatever political party, a Canadian cannot but regret the confusion on Parliament Hill at Ottawa.

Last Monday morning I arrived at work amidst threats of violence. Personally I felt nothing but anger at the audacity of a distasteful, undesirable from another country leading and instigating Canadians in revolt against their Parliament's legislation and complete disregard for the good of the Canadian economy.

All day our dramatic redcoated Mounties policed the Parliament Buildings in groups of two, walking briskly and alertly along their given beats. At the same time squad cars were ready in every nook and cranny for whatever eventuality might arise.

At noon the promised crowd began to arrive. It was an unpleasant shock to see one's own name on a huge banner, presumably soliciting sympathy from the Member for Grenville-Dundas. Having had some experience in the cost of banners, it was easy to count several thousand dollars worth milling around in the sunshine. One could not help wondering what possible influence such a wasteful display could have on any responsible Member of Parliament.

The previous week every possible democratic safeguard had been observed. The question of Marine Trusteeship had been thoroughly discussed in the House of Commons. Every Member who wished to speak had had ample opportunity to do so. If the democratic system means anything and rule of the majority is to be observed nothing more could have been done.

Probably the Government should have acted with more authority. It would smack of political bitterness to use the word "decisiveness" after years of criticism by the present Liberal Government of lack of decisiveness by the Conservatives. The democratic process, by which we mean the opportunity for all opinion, can always be considered slow, lugubrious, depending on compromise rather than sharp black and white decisiveness.

Politically shrewd it was proven, but I always disliked the Liberal concentration on indicisiveness against the Conservatives. Many of those using this criticism for political advantage must have known, or should have known, that most of what they were criticizing was the unavoidable mechanics of democracy. There is nothing original or new in this type of criticism. Well over a half century ago Sir John A. Macdonald was called "Old Man Tomorrow." However hackneyed the comment, we should not forget that no better system has ever been devised.

Those who undermine it irresponsibly, without offering constructive alternatives, are doing a serious disservice to their country.

Thus it can be said by anyone who wishes to observe it impartially, that the Liberals are caught in the web of their own making.

However, name calling will not help the situation. The Government is responsible for the law and order of the country, and for the economy. All three seemed to be in serious danger as a weak Prime Minister continued to do too little too late. In addition, his relations with his formerly admiring neighbours south of the border are in disharmony and the House of Commons which he leads is in disgraceful disarray.

DENMARK MAPS PROGRAM FOR ICY GREENLAND

Denmark has launched a development program aimed at turning its former Arctic colony, Greenland, into a self-supporting island with a living standard as high as that of Denmark itself.

In seeking an economic basis for the project, the Danish admiinstration pinned its main hope on fishing the rich waters between Greenland and Newfoundland, with tourism a possibility and yet-undiscovered mineral wealth a long-shot chance.

Kept as a closed colony for years, when the government's main objective was to spend as little as possible on it, the big Arctic island now is a part of Denmark itself. It was incorporated in the country by constitutional amendment in 1953.

Last year, Denmark invested nearly $25,000,000 in the world's biggest island. Most of the money went providing bases for industries and improving harbours and roads. New schools are being built or planned.

Danish administrators stressed that there were more than enough jobs to be done on the 1,000,000-square-mile island, where the longest stretch of tarred road at present is a six-mile airstrip at the Soendre Stroemfjord airfield.

Superficially, there was little to show for the amount of money Denmark put into Greenland since the new "development" policy was evolved by the government in 1953. Spokesmen for the administration explained that the high cost of working in the Arctic is largely responsible.

Greenland has no trees. Every piece of timber used for building, for making fish cases, or for any other purpose has to be imported.

While a few private businesses have opened in the larger Greenland towns, most business, from deep-freezing and canning fish and shrimps to selling toothpaste, is still handled by the Greenland trade department.

LOTS OF BUTTONS

The worst thing you could tell a members of the Trillium Club is that she had lost her buttons. It would just about break her heart.

The club, formed in 1959 by Mrs Pearl Lynch of Woodstock, is devoted to the collection of buttons.

Its members, from various Western Ontario communities, meet monthly to engage in button talk and learn more about their hobby.

"Some people think you have to be a bit odd to collect buttons," said one collector, "but actually it ranks second to stamps as a collecting hobby."

A number of the Trillium Club members—there are fewer than a dozen in all—have buttons dating back to the late 1700's and early 1800's. They're in a variety of materials and depict such things as animals, fairytales, nursery rhymes, nativity scenes, wildlife and children.

The women, who travel to button shows in nearby U.S. cities, make use of button reference books printed several years ago but no longer generally available.

Some have traced buttons back to what is believed to be the first button factory in Canada, a plant in what was then Berlin, Ont., now Kitchener.

Some of the most precious buttons have been found on old charm strings that still turn up in family chests. These strings were used by young girls in the 1880's. It was believed that each string could hold 999 buttons and if the 1,000th button got on the string by mistake the young girl was destined to become an old maid.

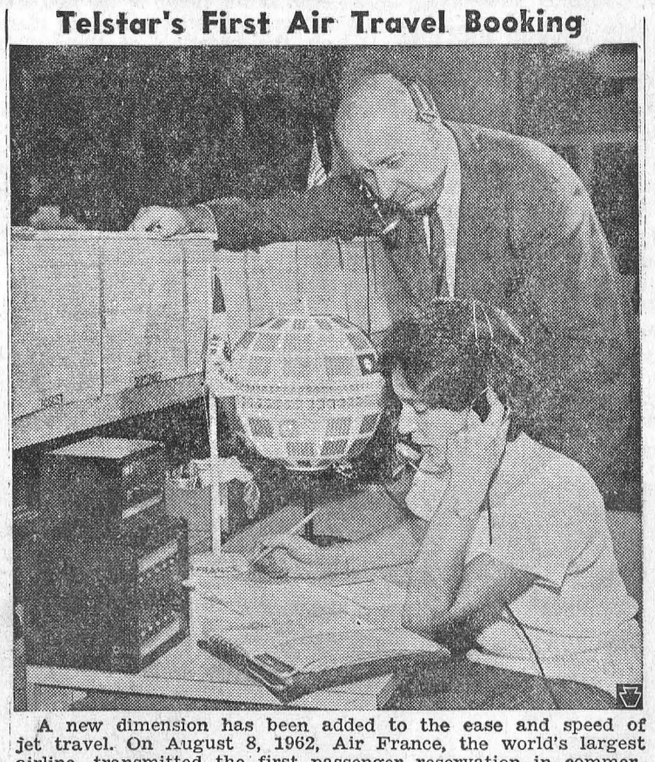
Telstar's First Air Travel Booking



A new dimension has been added to the ease and speed of jet travel. On August 8, 1962, Air France, the world's largest airline, transmitted the first passenger reservation in commercial aviation history over the Telstar satellite. The historic, "live" telephone call originated from the airline's Paris headquarters on the Boulevard Auguste Blanqui. It was placed at 8:15 p.m., Paris time, and confirmed a booking for a French businessman en route from Paris to Mexico City via New York.

Transmission was clear and uninterrupted. The call was received at the Air France reservations center, New York International Airport, at 3:15 p.m., EDT, by Mlle Edda Dreon, a general sales reservations agent.

How Call Was Relayed

The first trans-global reservation was transmitted on the regular continental telephone networks of France and the United States. From the point of origin in Paris, the call was channeled through the facilities of the French Poste Telephone et Telegraphe system. It was then relayed to the satellite ground station in Pleurmeur-Bodou on the Brittany peninsula. From there, the call was re-transmitted to the 34½-inch sphere which has been orbiting the earth every 158 minutes since its initial launching last July.

The telephone signal was bounced back to earth from Telstar and picked up at the Andover, Maine, ground station. It was then relayed by telephone again from Andover to the Air France offices at New York International Airport.

Sharing the momentous event with Mlle Dreon was Rene Costa de Beauregard, Assistant Commercial Services Manager of Air France, who commented: "Air France is proud to be the first airline to link the French and American business communities by Telstar. It is a great and efficient step forward, and certain to make jet age travel even easier than it is today."

As well as more effective Scripture distribution, the intention is to make evangelism the concern of the average church member. Evangelism in Ceylon, then, is not the sole task of the clergy, or professional church worker.

In two areas already reporting results, the scheme seems to be proving quite satisfactory. Teams of Scripture salesmen in these two locations are university students and members of local church youth groups.

"In twos and threes, we visited 0 Christian homes and were able to sell nearly as many packets, each containing 16 Gospel portions," the report states. "Those who bought a packet undertook to redistribute the contents among their non-Christian friends and neighbours in order that they might read the 'Good News' of our Lord Jesus."

RAIN DOCTORS CAUSE STORM IN NIGERIA

Residents of the tiny eastern Nigeria town of Ihialla are angry with the local rain doctors.

A letter to the town's clan head urged that rain doctors be registered and their activities checked.

The Daily Times newspaper says the group signing the letter blamed the medicine men for downpours whenever high government officials visited the area. They charged that the rain was caused deliberately so offiicials could not accomplish their work.

KIDD TREASURE LEGEND LINGERS

For years treasure-hunters in the West Point, P.E.I., area have dug in the red soil in hopes of finding loot said to have been buried by Captain Kidd 300 years ago.

Various old maps have been turned up but no treasure. Still, the legend lingers.

Now another kind of treasure —tourist dollars—is in prospect for the little fishing village and the surrounding area. And the money will be welcome because the government regards the West Point district as a depressed region.

Work has begun on construction of Cedar Dunes Park and it is expected to be ready in time for next year's tourist season.

The several hundred residents of the village are also hopeful that the tourist influx will lead to establishment of a ferry service between West Point and the south-eastern coast of New Brunswick across the Northumberland Strait.

They realize it would operate only during the summer months but even this would be an improvement.

Dixon "Tendercuts" hold fifth meeting

The fifth meeting of the Dixon "Tendercuts" was held October 26th, at the home of Mrs LeBlanc. The president, Rita Alguire, opened the meeting with the 4-H pledge. Geraldine Waldroff read the minutes. The roll call was answered by eight members.

The leaders Mrs Rupert and Mrs LeBlanc demonstrated how to make beef stew.

Donna Duvall made the dumplings. The leaders reviewed the pork cuts.

OCTOBER THE MONTH TO HARVEST GLADIOLUS CORMS

It is time to start digging gladiolus corms now. The usual method is to dig the plants and then cut the tops off close to the corms. Horticulturist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture recommend that the corms should be dusted with 5% DDT immediately after digging. This will give an effective control of thrips and prevent a buildup of these insects during drying and curing.

Make sure the corms are thoroughly dried before storing. This is essential to prevent storage diseases. Drying may be accomplished by exposing the corms to sun and air or they may be dried indoors in a warm, well-ventilated atmosphere.

In about a month the old corms and roots can be removed and discarded. Leave the husks on the new corms for protection. Dust again with 5% DDT dust and store in 45 to 50° F temperature for the winter. The atmosphere should be dry and well-ventilated.

BRITISH RACE YANKS ON HOVERTRAIN PROJECT

A British inventor says he is racing the Americans in producing the world's first hovertrain capable of travelling 400 miles an hour.

The train, of which a prototype has already been built in England, travels in a cushion of air, hovering about an inch above a concrete track.

The inventor is Christopher Cockerell, 53, yho produced the first British hovercraft.

"I recently had a visit from a party of American designers who wanted to see what progress we were making," said the inventor.

"I was polite, but I showed them nothing."

Cockerell said OBritain's Minister of Transport will shortly watch a demonstration of the prototype.

"It will be faster than air travel," said the inventor, "because the hovertrain will go from city centre to city centre, eliminating that ride to and from airpirts and city."

His train will use concrete ways, built over existing rail tracks ir alingside concrete highways.

"The speed of our research to produce the world's first hovertrain system is entirely dependent on government backing," said Cockerell. "The scheme is too big for any private undertaking."

PICKS OWN DENTIST

When you're six and in the second grade, what is more logical than to want your favourite traffic policeman to handle outgoing traffic? Such as a loose tooth?

Vicki McKinney had it figured this way, but her brother, Thomas, 8, said she was too shy to ask Sgt. Johnny Green, a motorcycle patrolman who guides traffic at Chattanooga's Oak Grove Elementary School.

Thomas. a fourth grader, was not too shy.

Green, frankly, was overwhelmed. It seemed like a reasonable, if somewhat unprecedented request, but what about Vicki's mother?

Mrs Jack F. McKinney, waiting in a nearby car, gave her approval.

"She won't let anybody else pull it," she said.

Green tried—and failed. A string furnished by Thomas just wouldn't fit around the loose front tooth.

Next day, though, the tooth was a bit wobbly, and Sgt. Green took a few minutes from directing traffic—and yanked as passing motorists gaped.

Colquhoun 4-H Club holds meeting

On Tuesday, October 22, Colquhoun Co-ordinates held their fourth meeting at Colquhoun Church hall.

The 4-H pledge and motto opened the meeting, followed by roll call and minutes of the last meeting.

The girls were given instructions on how to place patterns on material, then they cut out blouses.

Kids are smarter than we think

Six years ago when the traditional Hallow'en frolic widened to include UNICEF collections some protests were voiced. "Don't rob, the youngsters of Hallowe'en fun. It's their night!"

Fun-loving youngsters were unmoved by this adult reaction. Hallowe'en is still their night — but they have made it also a night for children 'round the world. Over the years Canadian youngsters have learned and enjoyed the privilege of sharing with their friends. Through education in schools and libraries they know that their help with UNICEF Hallowe'en pennies is needed. Hence their pride in collecting for UNICEF equals the joyous acceptance of jelly beans and candy kisses.

Last Hallowe'en Canadian weather was as variable as today's political climate. Rain fell in the Atlantic Provinces, in Quebec and British Columbia; It was a clear lovely night on the Prairies and in Ontario. Regardless of weather, approximately 400,000 fantastically costumed youngsters sallied forth with paper bags for treats and UNICEF collection boxes. Neighbours were generous; in the bags youngsters brought home candy, cookies and apples. In the UNICEF collection boxes was almost $400,000 in pennies, nickels and dimes — this for the world - wide humanitarian work of UNICEF.

UNICEF is a crusade by children for children. Let's not dampen the ardour of younthful unselish giving. Today's world needs it.

An emergency treatment for minor burns is a quick dash of cold water followed by petroleum jelly to soothe the pain.

Mainly About People

Mr and Mrs Keith Bryce, Dianna, Lauri, Debbie and Sheri, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr and Mrs Stanley Dillabough and also visited Mr and Mrs Graham Price in the Melvin Settlement.

Mr Fawcett Eaton of Suton, Que., former minister of the Finch charge was calling on friends in the Grantley area on Monday.

Weekend guests at the home of Mrs George G. Merkley were Dr and Mrs C. Yates, Janet and Carol, of Montreal, and Mrs Geo. Montgomery and Lynne, Smiths Falls.

Sunday guests of Mr Johnston Ouderkirk and family were Mr and Mrs Walter Ouderkirk, of Ottawa, and Mr and Mrs Harold Ouderkirk, of Chesterville.

HUNTERS AWAY!

Come this weekend the Nimrods of the district will take to the woods. Deer seasons open Monday and from then on not a deer will be safe. There is often a question about the safety of the hunter too.

The exodus from the district starts early Saturday morning. By Sunday evening most camps are open and the hunters are primed. We wish them all the luck this year. The editor's annual safari appears to have been considerably curtailed.

C.W.I. bazaar winners

The following were winners of prizes drawn at the C.W.I. bazaar:

Push-button farming

The words to that durable ditty "Old MacDonald" will soon be getting some new choruses. The cows that moo and the ducks that quack will be accompanied by sounds of humming transistors and whirring electronic tapes. Currently under development is a self-guided tractor which is kept on course automatically by sensitive feelers that brush along the edges of crop rows. A turbine engine fueled by liquefied petroleum gas is being perfected to power tractors without transmission gears, shift, throttle or conventional brake or clutch.

Engineers are talking also about farm equipment that will be operated by electronically-taped instructions beamed to the vehicles by radio signals. The tractor of the future will be powered by high-octane LP-gas, have an automatic pilot that will permit Old MacDonald to do his bookkeeping, or just enjoy the ride. Like an airplane pilot, the farmer will take over the controls only when necessary.

A further advancement will permit the operation of one or more tractors by remote control radio signals. On bad days a farmer wuldn't even have to get out of bed. He could operate his vehicles from a control board and watch their progress on closed circuit television.

Tomorrow's farm equipment will be propelled by lightweight gas turbine engines that will deliver as much power as engines eight times their weight . . . and by fuel cells that create electrical energy through a chemical reaction of LP-gas and oxygen. The power from such engines can be easily regulated, thus doing away with conventional transmission systems. With fewer parts to break down and wear out, maintenance costs will be greatly reduced.

Dreams? Not at all. These are some of the actual research equipment being tested today to make tomorrow's farm marvels in automation. Every effort is being made by farm equipment manufacturers to design equipment that will get the job done in the least amount of time as easily as possible.

The Canadian farm of today is already highly mechanized and well on its way to automation. At one time horses did the heavy work on the farm. Today is accomplished by tractors.

A guide to farm mechanization trend is revealed in a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture survey of farm use of petroleum products. American farmers today are using more than six billion gallons of motor fuel, enough to fill a thirty-inch pipeline that would girdle the earth one-and-a-quarter times. Farm tractors alone used 3,370 million gallons of fuel in 1959 compared with 3,270 in 1963, Canadian farmers use a proportionate amount.

As examples of today's farm mechanilation, there's a hay wagon that clips along at speeds up to 25 m.p.h., picking up the bales in full flight and stacking them neatly on an adjoining truck. Another vehicle gathers hay as it moves across the field, bales it tightly and actually tosses it into a truck.

Giant corn picker-shellers move through a field like twin porpoises, harvesting two rows at a time. They not only remove the corn from the stalk but husk and shell it in one continuous operation.

There are also "flame cultivators" that shoot jets of flame at the base of the row crops. These peace-time flame-throwers destroy the weeds and kill insects and weed seeds without harming the useful crops or adding chemical poisons to the crops or soil.

In America giant self-propelled cotton pickers are replacing armies of field workers. These machines automatically strip the balls from the plant, remove the impurities and dump the clean cotton into wagons in a single operation.

Automated farming, no longer in the realm of science fiction, promises to turn food production into an operation as efficient as the manufacture of steel and automobiles. This is good news for a world where half of the population goes to bed hungry each night.

ONE IN EVERY SEVEN ONTARIO WORKERS SUFFERED ACCIDENT IN 1962

"One in every seven Ontario workers covered by the Compensation Act had an accident in 1962. There were 26,104 compensation cases reported from 28,769 firms in the membership of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations. Nearly 3,000 of the cases reported were women workers. A total of 56 fatal accidents occurred".

These were among statistics disclosed by R. G. D. Anderson, Toronto, General Manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. He was speaking in support of a province-wide safety campaign being conducted during October by manufacturers and Industrial firms in Ontario, in co-operation with the Industrial Accident Prevention Ossociations.

"As in past years the hands and fingers of workers comprised the part of the body most frequently involved in accidents", Mr Anderson said. "In 1962, such accidents accounted for 8,120 of the toal. Injuries to the back and spine were next in line totalling 4,147 compensation cases. The 1962 accident toll cost $20,253,573 to member firms of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations".

"This was an increase of more than $1,000,000 over accident costs in the previous year. The sad thing is that many of the accidents in 1962 could have been averted by the use of more care and caution and the use of prescribed safety equipment. That is why we are urging all workers, men and women alike, to be more safety conscious in October this year".

A study of 1962 industrial accidents reveal that the handling of materials caused nearly 29 per cent of all mishaps in industrial plants. Moviny machinery accounted for more than 13 per cent and slips and fall for another 12 per cent.

Slogan for the 1963 safety campaign is "Safety prevents sorrow".

The employers and employees of over 29,000 firms as well as of 15,000 retail outlets throughout Ontario are being urged to participate in the safety drive.

FIND CAUSE FOR BEAUTIFUL SUNSETS

Scientists say that a massive volcanic eruption in Indonesia last spring has apperently deposited layers of dust high in the atmosphere producing unusually beautiful sunrises and sunsets.

Not only do particles from the eruption diffuse the sunlight into a mosaic of colour, but at a high altitude they also mirror the light fo r a longer period from the unseen sun.

"It means you can see the refracted sunlight for a greater length of time after the sun has disappeared or before day," Dr Franklyn Branley, astronomer at Hayden Planetarium, New York City, says.

The volcano Agung on Indonesia's Bali Island erupted in March.

Dr A. B. Meinel, of the Stuard Observatory at the University of Arizona, told a recent seminar in Rochester, N.Y., that two layers of dust resulted from the Agung upheaval—one at about 50,000 feet, the other at 150,000 feet.

Nature seldom sets the scene for such twilight spectaculars. Meinel said there was a similar occurrence in 1883 after the volcano Krakatao, in the same area, erupted bringing about beautiful sunsets and sunrises for more than a year.

KARATE CAPERS

Things got dull at the junior high school dance in St. Petersburg, Fla., and Roy W. Klase, 14, thought he would enliven the party with a karate demonstration.

"I am going to break a wooden chair right before your eyes," he told his girl friend and others who gathered around to see the demonstration of the oriental self-defence.

Down came his right hand. The chair back flew into pieces.

Roy was taken to hospital with a broken hand.

CAN I HAVE A COOKIE, MOMMY?

FASHIONS CHANGE WITH FOODS as well as with clothing. If you doubt it just get out an old cookbook and see for yourself how many curious recipes there are. Methods change too, but that is partly due to changes in cooking equipment and in the food products you use. I venture to say you don't make as many rolled cookies as your grandmother did, you make icebox cookies, drop cookies or cookie bars. And why not, they are just as tasty and far less effort!

Cocoanut Walnut Slice

1 cup flour
½ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar

Mix this like pie crust and pat into a well-greased cake pan. Bake 10 minutes in a hot oven. While cooling mix together the following:

2 eggs
2 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. baking powder
⅛ tsp. salt
1 cup walnuts (broken)
½ cup cocoanut
½ tsp. vanilla

Pour the above mixture on top of cooled crust and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes. Cover with vanilla butter icing. Cut in squares.

Peanut or Almond Squares

½ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
1½ cups sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
1 egg yolk

Cream the butter, add the sugar and egg well beaten. Add flour and baking powder; add vanilla. Put in 10"x7" cake tin and cover with a meringue made as follows:

Beat 2 egg whites till frothy, then add 2 cups brown sugar and continue beating till stiff. Sprinkle top with nuts and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes.

Applesauce Bars

1 tsp. nutmeg,
Few grains cloves
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup seedless raisins
1 tsp. vanilla
2/3 cup crushed cornflakes
¼ cup sugar
2 tbsps. softened butter

Combine 1 cup sugar and applesauce. Add shortening and blend. Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Add to applesauce mixture and stir until smooth. Stir in raisins and vanilla. Spread in greased pan. Combine cornflakes, ¼ cup sugar and butter, sprinkle over top of batter. Bake in moderate oven 30 minutes. Cool; cut in bars.

Lemon Drops

¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tbsp. grated lemon peel
1 tsp. vanilla

¼ cup fresh lemon juice

Cream butter; add sugar and cream thoroughly with butter. Add eggs, lemon peel and vanilla; beat well. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the lemon juice. Drop by teaspoonsful onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in moderate oven about 10 minutes.

Stormont 401 section opened on Wednesday

At noon Wednesday, the curtain was lifted on the Cornwall-Ingleside section of Highway 401 a spanking 18-mile, four-lane section of superhighway constructed at a cost of more than $10,800,000.

The section is the first four-lane portion into use in the United Counties.

Opening of the link, which runs from the Aultsville side-road just west of Ingleside to a point just east of Cornwall, makes possible a through drive on Highway 401 from a point just north of Napanee to the Lancaster area, a distance of some 146 miles.

A two-lane section of the highway between Cornwall and Lancaster was completed and opened last fall and this portion will be a complete four lanes by the middle of next summer.

Construction of this Stormont section of the trans-provincial highway was started in June 1961. Paving work was carried out this year.

The section includes four interchanges and eight other structures.

Contractors on this portion of the limited-access highway includes McNamara Construction, Dibblee Construction, Curran and Briggs, Peel Construction, and Highway Construction Ltd.

There will be no formal opening ceremonies. The only thing which will indicate that the stretch is ready for travel will be removal of road blocks at either end of the section.

MANLEY—

he hoped some day to regain it.

He told the Standard-Freeholder he had made no definite decisions about his future as a public servant.

" I don't think a single person in Stormont voted against Peter Manley," said Lucien Lamoureux, M.P. for Stormont. "He and his wife have always represented Christian virtues, good citizenship and courage."

Through devotion to duty, he said, Mr Manley has sacrificed health, money and family life. "Peter is a young man, I'm sure he hasn't said his last word."

Other speakers included Mayor Nick Kaneb, of Cornwall, Phil Gignac, president of Eastern Ontario Liberal Association and Paul Rouleau, Mr Manley's campaign chairman.

Mr Gignac presented Mr Manley a scroll from the Liberal Association. Mary Palombo gave Mrs Manley a gift on behalf of Ward Five Liberals.

George Assaly, president of Stormont Liberal Association, was chairman. He read congratulatory telegrams from Robert Nixon, MPP and president of the Ontario Liberal Association; Hon. John Wintermeyer, former Liberal leader, and Lionel Chevrier, Federal Minister of Justice and former MP for Stormont.

P. V. Rudden acted as master of ceremonies for entertainment which followed. The Brad Lewis Quartet provided dance music.

Weddings of interest

Froats–Mallory

Erma Patricia Mallory exchanged wedding vows with Dale Winterfield Froats at Brinston United Church. Rev Thomas Knowles, a former minister of the Brinston and Hulbert area officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Dodd Mallory, Winchester, and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Stanley Froats, Brinston.

The wedding music was played by Mrs Charles Coons.

The bride chose a hand clipped white Chantilly lace gown featuring sequin and pearl studded Sabrina neckline and full sweeping chapel train. A deep lace ruffle accented the hemline of the gown.

She carried a white Bible with attached Cymbidium orchids and pink rose buds.

Mrs Lorna Froats was matron of honour and Mrs Raymond Porteous was bridesmaid. They each wore identical pink peau de soie dresses with accent panels of deep rose on the skirts.

They carried nosegays of pink and white carnations.

Kathy Froats was flower girl and wore a blue lace dress with matching pill box headdress and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

A wedding dinner was served in the church hall.

Mrs Mallory, mother of the bride, wore a charcoal double knit suit with turquoise accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The groom's mother was wearing a brocaded beige ensemble with turquoise accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride wore a teal blue double knit dress with matching jacket and Cymbidium orchid en corsage.

Guests from Niagara Falls, Watertown, N.Y., Cornwall, Madrid, Chesterville, Winchester and Brinston attended the wedding.

Mr and Mrs Froats will reside in Winchester.

Moran–Russell

Miss Geraldine Russell, daughter of Mr and Mrs Gerald Russell, Northfield Station, exchanged marriage vows with Bernard Moran, son of Mr and Mrs Bernard Moran, of Berwick, at a ceremony in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church.

Rev James Wylie, of St. Andrew's West, officiated at the ceremony. The altars of the church were decorated with baskets of yellow dahlia and multi-coloured gladioli. The St. Andrew's choir presented selections.

For her marriage, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white satin brocade. The gown was styled with scoop neckline and three-quarter length sleeves and the back of the dome-shaped skirt featured pleats which extended into a chapel train.

A crown of crystals held a veil of tulle illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Carol Russell, sister of the bride, was wearing a street-length gown of gold brocade fashioned similarly to the bride's gown. She wore matching accessories and carried a nosegay of white and yellow chrysanthemums.

Donald Moran, of Montreal, was best man and ushering guests to the pews were Nicky Beehler, of Crysler, and Edward Russell, Northfield Station.

A teal blue woollen dress was chosen by the mother of the bride. She wore blue and black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The groom's mother was wearing a blue brocade ensemble, accented with white and black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Following a reception, held at St. Andrew's Hall, the couple left for a wedding trip to Western Ontario.

The bride travelled in a two-piece wool knit outfit in teal blue. She chose white and black accessories and white carnations en corsage.

They will reside at Finch.

Guests from Montreal, Ottawa, Apple Hill, Martintown, Morewood, Cornwall, Crysler, Chesterville, Arnprior and Granville, N.Y., attended the wedding.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was guest of honour at a miscellaneous shower held at St. Andrew's Hall.
