Charlottenburgh says no to expansion at regional airport

by Joanne Stevenson

WILLIAMSTOWN — Charlottenburgh Township Council has voiced its opposition to expanding the runways at Cornwall Regional Airport to 5,000 feet.

At its Dec. 22 meeting, council received correspondence from the airport commission requesting input regarding the commission's decision to establish a planning committee to develop an airport with a 5,000 foot runway to accommodate an instrument landing system.

In discussing the issue, council members wondered how many flights a year are now either diverted or cancelled because of unsafe landing conditions due to poor weather.

Deputy-reeve Bob Roth, who serves on the airport commission, had voted against the establishment of a planning committee. He referred to a commitment made by the previous council to ensure the runway remain only 3,500 feet long.

At the time construction of the regional airport was under consideration, a sizable number of township residents had signed a petition opposing the idea.

At a special meeting held Oct. 20, 1983 council passed a resolution to proceed with the development of a regional municipal airport.

However, council insisted it retain ownership of the airstrip to guarantee it's not being expanded beyond 3,500 feet.

Mr. Roth who had served on that council, stated, "I fear any possibility of extending the airstrip to 5,000 feet would be a breach of faith. I don't believe council should take that action without public consultation."

Councillor Carol-Ann Ross asked whether an expanded runway would mean larger aircraft would be able to land at the Summerstown facility. It was suggested the commission prepare a report addressing such concerns.

Councillor Larry Gordon was reluctant to agree to the expansion, stating: "I am concerned about the increased maintenance costs. Electronic equipment quickly becomes obsolete. The commitment by the previous council places a commitment on us. Unless they can really justify it to me, which would be pretty difficult, I'm not prepared to

He didn't know he was a millionaire

MISSISSAUGA—The husband of a local woman raised on the Skye Road, west of McCrimmon, collected $2.2 million from the Ontario Lottery Corporation Dec. 23.

Douglas Stephen, a Scottish-born electrician, married Laurie MacLeod Nov. 15 in Toronto with Rev. Karen Hincke of Kirk Hill officiating. But at the wedding, he didn't know he was a millionaire.

He won the Loto 6/49 jackpot that was drawn Oct. 25 but didn't realize it until he checked his ticket Dec. 22.

Before verifying his ticket, he thought he had only won $10. Lottery officials quoted him as saying he would use the money to pay off his mortgage and invest the rest.

The couple spent Christmas in Glengarry with relatives and then headed back to Mississsauga on Monday. Mr. Stephen wasn't available for comment.

He has been in Canada for 30 years and until his windfall, he worked at Maple Leaf Mills.

Growing 'backlash' may harm Liberals, says Tory Villeneuve

MOOSE CREEK—A province-wide backlash over extended funding for Roman Catholic high schools, increased francophone control of French language schools and inclusion of homosexuals in anti-discrimination legislation may damage the Liberal government's chances for re-election in 1987, SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve said Monday.

In a year-end interview from his constituency office, Mr. Villeneuve said he hears from disgruntled people continually who remain adamantly opposed to the changes.

The decision by former Conservative Premier Bill Davis to extend equal funding for separate high schools through Grade 13, and remarks from the Anglican Archbishop of Toronto, Lewis Garnsworthy, comparing the decision to decrees under the Nazi government of Adolph Hitler, cost the party at least 20 seats in the 1985 election, said the MPP.

The NDP later joined the Liberals to defeat the Conservatives, removing them from power for the first time in 44 years.

"There is a backlash out there," said Mr. Villeneuve. "It comes to roost here (in his office) on an almost daily basis; at least weekly. We'd all rather not talk about it, and maybe I shouldn't, but it's there and it scares me."

Mr. Villeneuve, a Roman Catholic francophone himself, has supported equal funding for Catholic high schools and equality between English and French school systems, but he has been critical of the Liberal government's implementation of changes, some of which were initiated by previous Conservative administrations.

The MPP was one of the most outspoken critics of an NDP-sponsored amendment to the Ontario Human Rights Code that outlawed discrimination against homosexuals in housing, employment and social services. His position has not changed since the legislature's approval of the amendment.

The amendment effectively grants homosexuals "special rights," said Mr. Villeneuve, adding, "there are already rumblings about family benefits."

"The family unit is still sacred to Canadians," he said, referring to a recent survey by McLean's magazine. Ontario's gay rights legislation threatens the family unit and there is now "a strong possibility that homosexuality may be taught as an alternative lifestyle," he said. "We can't discriminate. We will have to recognize their (domestic) unions (like marriages). They will then be entitled to family benefits and death benefits. Homosexuality has now been legally accepted and recognized."

No hope for Alexandria OPP in '87

MOOSE CREEK—Glengarry's Conservative MPP, Noble Villeneuve, is expecting a number of positive changes locally in 1987, but an OPP takeover of policing in Alexandria is not one of them.

In a telephone interview Monday from his Moose Creek constituency office, Mr. Villeneuve said there was little hope the Ontario government would approve the town's longstanding request for free OPP policing, instead of continuing the existing municipal force.

Former Solicitor General Ken Keyes said in a local speech earlier this year that no more municipalities would be given free policing and those now receiving free service would have to start paying. In spite of the discouraging words, Alexandria Mayor J. P. Touchette has continued his campaign to get the free coverage.

In repeated trips to Toronto, the mayor has met with the solicitor general, the premier and Education Minister Sean Conway, the Liberals' political minister for Eastern Ontario.

"He's gone to Toronto on five different occasions now," said Mr.

Rebels win two Boxing Day tournaments back-to-back

by Peter Conway

KEMPTVILLE — It was supposed to have been a rebuilding year for the Char-Lan Rebels.

Although the Rebels continue to chase the Metcalfe Jets for the Alex English Division pennant, Dave Hanson's club tuned up for the second half of the season by winning its second consecutive Eastern Ontario Junior B Boxing Day tournament at Kemptville.

It marked the first time in the history of the annual affair that a club posted back-to-back titles. A year ago at the Barbara Ann Scott Arena at Ottawa, the Rebels defeated Navan to win the title.

Although the Rebels breezed past the Navan Grads in the final last year, winning this year's title wasn't easy. Dave Hanson's squad trailed 1-0 and 3-2 at the intermissions against the Richmond Royals before staging a comeback in the final stanza.

Veteran Mike Lapensee, named the overall most valuable player in the tournament, led the Rebels in the championship as they posted a dramatic 5-3 win. Roddy McKenzie, Herbie Seguin and Mike Jodoin all scored once and had one assist each.

In semi-final action, the Rebels knocked off the Perth Blue Wings 7-2. Kevin Poapst paced the attack with a hat trick, while Lapensee tallied once and added three assists. Completing the scoring were Dave St. John, Kevin Renwick and Daryl Menard. Rebels' goaler Kevin Buchan had a solid game between the pipes and was selected the most valuable player in the game.

In the opening game of the eight-team tournament, goaler Kevin Cameron gave the Rebels outstanding goaltending early against a stubborn Westport team. Mike Lapensee fired a pair of goals to lead the Rebels to a 5-1 win. Darin Menard, Chris Villeneuve and Mike Jodoin added singles.

The Rebels got off to a sluggish start against Westport and Cameron was forced to make a number of key saves. Outshot 10-3 in the opening stanza, the Rebels still managed to escape with a 2-1 lead at the intermission.

Only the South Ottawa Canadians and Ottawa West Golden Knights have managed to win the tournament twice. Both were eliminated early this year. South Ottawa lost to the Metcalfe Jets, while Perth beat Ottawa West in opening round contests. In another opening-round game, Richmond ousted the host Kemptville 73's. Richmond advanced to the final when they knocked off favored Metcalfe in a semi-final contest.

The Rebels swing back into league action Saturday night on home ice when they face-off against rival Alexandria Glens.

Villeneuve. "If he wants to go again, I'm willing to go and try to help. But there's little hope. I know it's one of the mayor's pet projects and I wish him well."

Previously, the Liberals stalled a decision on Alexandria's request until a study of local policing throughout Ontario was completed. Mr. Villeneuve said that study and its report were finished long ago, but have been kept confidential.

The MPP said he was not convinced the people of Alexandria wanted OPP policing.

"The people seem to be lukewarm to the prospect of an OPP takeover, at best," he said. "The people I have talked to are not at all unhappy with the arrangement that is now in place."

Aside from the police issue, Mr. Villeneuve said he was pleased about a number of advances made in 1986 in the riding. He said meetings he arranged between cabinet ministers and municipal politicians in Toronto helped pave the way for approval of a number of major grants and special projects.

Among them were $500,000 for reconstruction of Boundary Road between Charlottenburgh Township and the City of Cornwall; $800,000 in supplementary grants for area municipalities; $332,000 in annual funding for Mount Carmel House, a treatment centre for alcoholics in St. Raphael's; construction or approval of about 100 new senior citizen apartment units in Avonmore, Finch and Winchester and approval of a major water and sewer project for the Purcell Subdivision.

Construction of Glen Robertson's new water system was completed and Maxville's new sewage system moved closer to reality. Mr. Villeneuve said he will be working hard to "tie up the loose ends" and make sure the Maxville project proceeds in 1987.

He predicted Lancaster Village will finally get approval for a senior citizen apartment complex in 1987, the community's centennial year. The project was rejected last year, but the MPP feels that was largely the result of poor communication. The area is not well served now, he said, and the complex is badly needed.

"I'm doing some homework on it now," he said. "I'll go to bat for it and I'm confident it will happen in Lancaster's centennial year."

Other highlights in 1987 included opening of new bridges in Kenyon and Lochiel townships, he added.

Growing 'backlash' . . .

The Liberals under Premier David Peterson can do no better than return to power as a minority government, "at best," said Mr. Villeneuve. The Conservatives under Larry Grossman still have an "excellent chance" of recapturing the government, he added, in spite of polls showing the Liberals far ahead, with the likelihood of forming a strong majority government if an election were held now.

The Conservatives under Premier Frank Miller were also well ahead in the polls when the 1984 election was called, he noted. "Anything can happen."

He said he was afraid small, rural ridings like SD&G might not receive their fair share of Wintario grants and other provincial funding in 1987, as the Liberals could use the money to improve their chances in swing ridings.

He said one of the most pressing issues facing Ontario is the weakness of the agricultural sector, which has been "literally devastated" by the effects of the U.S. Farm Bill. American food exports, effectively subsidized by Congress, have undercut commodity prices in Canada and around the world, making it difficult for the Canadian producer to compete.

Rather than impose more market controls, Mr. Villeneuve feels the government must sharply increase agriculture's share of government spending from its current level of two per cent and begin a major restructuring of the industry.

He said he did not favor increased market controls because they would have no real effect on the overall North American market.

Some form of short term support for struggling farmers is essential, support the extension."

Council then passed a resolution saying it was unable to support expansion of the runway to 5,000 feet at this time due to previous commitments made to residents as well as concerns about increased cost and noise factors.

"We'll hear from them," said Mrs. Ross, referring to the commission's reaction to this latest development.

PURCELL

Council has agreed to apply to the Ministry of the Environment (MOE) for approval for the extension of the Purcell water and sewer project to 26 properties in the Rae Road-Sabourin Drive area.

Either all 26 property owners agree to accept and pay for the service or the matter will be forwarded to an Ontario Municipal Board hearing. The first step is to attain technical and funding approval from MOE.

Village and townships had a great year say reeves

by Sybil Carello

MAXVILLE — Municipal Reeves, John McIntyre, Wilfred Vallance and George Currier, from Roxborough Township, Kenyon Township, and Maxville Village respectively, spoke to The Glengarry News recently about the past year's council endeavors.

All three maintained a positive note for the past year and the year ahead. This optimism, despite the fact it was a novice year for two Reeves (Mr. McIntyre and Mr. Vallance) and nine councillors.

Kenyon Township Reeve Mr. Vallance, says the past year has been a ''workable'' one.

''That, I think, has been the name of the game,'' he said, adding that while there have been ''some rough edges,'' it's been a ''good year'' and a ''good council'' one, he feels comfortable with.

Kenyon council began its year by asking Maxville council to waive a $10,418 annual fire protection fee. In return, Maxville was allowed the use of Kenyon Township's waste disposal site facilities on the Conc. 7 Road. Maxville's own disposal site was closed following confirmation of ground water contamination.

Both councils will renegotiate the terms of the fire agreement in a special meeting Jan. 5, a meeting Mr. Currier is hopeful will bring mutually beneficial results.

All three councils agreed to participate in an area joint waste management master plan study, subsidized in part by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment (MOE).

In September, the United Counties Council endorsed the concept of a regional disposal site at Moose Creek Bog in Roxborough Township. Moose Creek resident, André LaFleche, supported by Roxborough council, made the proposal in July.

Roxborough council's $70,000 purchase of a waste disposal site ''was a strain on the budget,'' said Mr. McIntyre. But council had no choice. Renting a site was seen as too precarious, more so following MOE's crackdown on waste site operations.

Council needed its own site so they could monitor these operations. It's expected that the sale of the house and part of the 67-acre property, will help recoup some of the costs, said Mr. McIntyre. Presently, council has accepted a $10,000 tender from an engineering firm to complete necessary site studies, with the provision that MOE approve.

''County councils have been impressed with Mr. LaFleche's presentation. The figures have been good. Now, it depends on how the government handles it.''

Roxborough Township's rezoning project, begun in 1985, is close to completion. One small area of improper zoning, is expected to be resolved at a January meeting early in the new year.

Kenyon Township, also implemented a rezoning project this year.

Both townships, with their miles of roadways, stressed ongoing maintenance as an annual priority. This year, an exceptionally wet summer, delayed some work, said Mr. McIntyre.

Both Maxville and Kenyon councils adopted market value assessment for their 1987 tax roll.

Construction played a big part for Roxborough Township in 1986. The building of a $1.3 million senior citizen housing complex began in October and council is ''pleased'' with the progress to date.

The township office building also received a $120,000 expansion. As well, construction plans for a $134,588 fire hall were approved this fall.

Kenyon council passed a resolution to purchase the property adjacent to their township building. The two-storey building, abandoned for some time, is an eyesore and a fire hazard said Mr. Vallance. The added property will allow for possible expansion of existing office facilities, should the need arise, he said.

Kenyon Township also completed construction of two bridges on the Athol and the Conc. 6 Roads this year.

Opposition from two Kenyon dog kennel operators resulted in the drafting of a tighter animal control bylaw for the township.

Bylaw opposition from a chip stand operator in Maxville, might lead to a similar end. Presently, solicitors for the operator and Maxville Village council, are working out the legalities of the bylaw.

October was the technical turn-on date for cablevision in Maxville. Part of the project included a house numbering system for the village.

While Roxborough Township is just beginning its sewage lagoon project for Moose Creek, Maxville is heading into its seventh year. This year, the only forward move was council's $100,000 purchase of a 40-acre tract of land north of St. Elmo in Kenyon Township, to house the proposed lagoon system.

Mr. Currier says he has ''high hopes'' the project will move along in 1987. Until such time, plans for a new fire hall and village office, will have to wait.

In October, citizens of Moose Creek and members of the volunteer fire department there, received Commissioner's Citations, for assisting area police locate a missing child.

In another citizen effort, about 22 Moose Creek residents quashed a proposed zoning change which might have seen the Canadian Explosives, Disposal and Technical Branch in Ottawa, set up a temporary testing range in their neighborhood on the Allaire Road, off Highway 138.

Although some Kenyon residents continue to oppose Maxville's proposed lagoon site, Mr. Vallance underlines his concern at ''the raw sewage (from Maxville village) coming out our way.''

''I know it's been said that I've turned my back on them (Kenyon ratepayers) but giving in doesn't mean turning away.''

LIONS' BASKETS—The Alexandria Lions Club distributed food baskets in Alexandria and area last Tuesday and Wednesday. Approximately 75 families received the baskets. Preparing the food baskets are, from left, Rudy Van Allmen, Peter Conway, Jerry Adams, John Cormier and chairman Andy Guthrie.

Industrial park growth was best

Alexandria's biggest accomplishment in 1986 was the completion of the industrial park expansion, Mayor J. P. Touchette said, Tuesday.

The $1.4 million project included installation of a water tower, hydro electric substation and a sewage-pumping station.

When the 57-acre park began 10 years ago, services such as sewer, water and electricity were available only to industries with frontage on Macdonald Boulevard. Once lots with services had been sold, it was necessary to extend services deeper into the industrial park.

To make the expansion possible, Alexandria annexed about 135 acres of Kenyon Township land. About 260 acres from Lochiel Township was annexed at the same time.

The expansion made it possible for a development firm owned by Gaetan Lacombe and Jacques Casavant to begin construction of an industrial building in the park. At least two more are planned. The owners will lease or sell the new structures. At least 50 and possibly as many as 100 jobs may be created early in 1987.

Mayor Touchette hopes the firm will continue to plan for new buildings in the new year.

Another accomplishment is the expansion of four businesses: Farley Windows, Tradition Windows, Lanthier's Bakery and 137215 Canada Inc., a furniture company located in the former Graham Creamery building on Kenyon Street.

In addition, Pro-Photo, Miron Electronique and His and Hers moved into larger premises in the former Canadian Tire property. A larger building on the site is being constructed for ASP. Other new stores opened downtown.

There has also been a housing boom and Mayor Touchette believes new homes are sorely needed, particularly for employees to be hired by the new industries.

In the new year, the mayor hopes the town can produce more housing for senior citizens. There is a great need, he says, as reflected in a recent needs study. Town clerk Leo Poirier says details will not be released until the results have been addressed by town council.

Revitalizing downtown Alexandria and attracting more stores is also within the mayor's aspirations for 1987.

And finally, he says, ''I hope council will work together in harmony and peace.''

Villeneuve asks CN Rail not to close Alexandria rail line

SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve has added his voice to the chorus condemning plans by CN Rail to close its Alexandria line by 1990.

In a letter to CN president R.E. Lawless dated Dec. 17, Mr. Villeneuve said he found the prospect of the line closing ''disturbing and unsatisfactory.''

''Of all the regions in Ontario, the North and East show the greatest need for greater economic growth. In Alexandria, the expansion of one company—Alexandria Moulding—holds out the prospect of 200 permanent new jobs.

''This firm, which in 1986 paid more than $2 million in freight charges for 302 rail cars of lumber, clearly depends on CN's rail services. It forcasts tripling this volumne in five years,'' Mr. Villeneuve wrote.

He was responding to a letter written by Mr. Lawless, dated Dec. 4, which stated the Alexandria Subdivision, 42.7 miles of track from mile 15 to 57.7, is marked for closure in 1990.

The letter was written to four CN executives but leaked to Glengarry-Prescott-Russell MP Don Boudria.

Drinking and driving not a problem this festive season

LANCASTER—OPP are pleased to announce drivers did not overindulge in Christmas spirits last week.

Between Dec. 22 and Dec. 27 OPP checked 59 vehicles as part of the RIDE (Reduce Impaired Drivers Everywhere) program and did not lay any charges of impaired driving. Only two 12-hour suspensions were issued to drivers with a blood-alcohol level of .05 to .08.

OPP have been participating in the program since Dec. 1 and Lancaster Const. Gilles Ruest feels the results are encouraging. Of about 560 vehicles checked, only seven drivers were found to be impaired, with a blood-alcohol level of over .08. Another eight drivers received 12-hour suspensions and six more were charged with liquor licence violations.

Under the RIDE program, about three times as many vehicles are being checked as in December of 1985 and fewer drivers are failing the ALERT test. OPP have been setting up small roadblocks and increasing spot checks. They can legally stop a vehicle to ascertain if a driver has been drinking.

Maxville OPP report that since RIDE began, they have only issued three 12-hour suspensions and have not laid any impaired driving charges. Const. Peter Fishwick says things are usually very quiet anyway because a lot of holiday festivities take place outside their jurisdiction.

Officers will continue to check vehicles through the New Year's holiday. They remind motorists, 50 per cent of all drivers killed in road accidents have been drinking.

If you drink, don't drive, say police.

The Glengarry News

EDITORIALS/OPINION

RIDE works

In Glengarry and throughout Ontario, drivers are taking heed of the constant warnings to not mix drinking and driving.

OPP officers stopped 59 drivers between Dec. 22 and 28 in Glengarry County and did not find a single driver who was legally impaired. Two drivers were given 12-hour driving suspensions after roadside breath tests indicated they were nearing, but still below, the legal limit of alcohol.

Roadside spot checks were held at various locations in the county every day except Dec. 27. Drivers did not know where or when they might be stopped.

It was all part of the RIDE (Reduce Impaired Drivers Everywhere) program started earlier this year. Combined with overwhelming publicity and sharply increased penalties, Ontario's effort to cut down on impaired driving and the human tragedy it causes has had an impact beyond anyone's greatest hope.

Heavy fines, the loss of driving privileges for a full year and the increased fear of being caught have made many drivers stop and think before getting into their cars after drinking. Equally strong, has been the change in social attitudes. Driving home drunk is no longer a welcome source of jokes. Getting home safely in spite of impairment is not something to boast about.

Drinking and driving is no longer socially acceptable. It's fully recognized as a criminal and potentially lethal act.

The OPP and municipal police forces intend to continue their increased enforcement and blitzes will be held at high risk times again.

If you're a drinking driver who hasn't changed his habits yet, take a look around you. The odds are pretty good that you will be caught, convicted and kicked off the roads for at least a year. With luck, you won't kill anyone first.

Polls and the NDP

Public opinion polls can be interesting political devices, prompting speculation about the future of governments and opposition political parties. More often than not, they are correct, at least at the time the surveys are taken.

Sometimes, they are dead wrong, however. Political leaders far behind in the polls still hark back to Harry Truman's 1948 presidential campaign when all the pollsters and major newspapers predicted a landslide victory for his opponent, Republican Tom Dewey.

One newspaper, rather than wait until all the results were in, went to press with a banner headline hailing a Dewey victory. The result the next day was one of the most famous newspaper pictures ever taken: a beaming President Truman holding high a copy of the embarrassed newspaper for the entire world to laugh at.

In 1984, similar polls gave Prime Minister John Turner and his Liberals a commanding lead over Brian Mulroney's Conservatives as they entered a federal election campaign. When the dust had settled, Mr. Mulroney emerged with the largest majority in Canadian history.

All this is to remind us that polls, no matter how accurate, can't always be accepted as harbingers of political success or failure. Issues of the day, political errors and an increasingly mercurial public can change poll results from one week to the next.

All this understood, it is still interesting to study repeated polls concerning the federal political parties. Each poll in turn shows the Liberals gaining ground, with a formidable lead over the governing Conservatives. This is not unusual for any governing party halfway through its mandate, and certainly not surprising following the scandals, gaffes and generally weak performance of the Mulroney government.

What is more interesting is the phenomenal rise of the NDP under Ed Broadbent. The traditionally third-place party is pushing the Conservatives for second place in the polls and, conceivably, could capture the official opposition or even the government itself in a minority Parliament, should the trend continue through the next election.

That's the point, of course. Few expect the trend will continue unchanged. The NDP is in its most promising position in its history, however, and will likely make substantial gains, at least, solidifying its strength in Ontario and the West, and taking new seats in Quebec and Atlantic Canada.

Canadians are disappointed in the Conservatives and have not forgotten their dissatisfaction with previous Liberal governments. More seem ready to give the NDP a chance than ever before. The result will be a true three-party system, with elections more unpredictable than ever and the prospect of successive minority governments.

1987 was a busy year for Glengarry south

A FEW THOUGHTS
Joanne Stevenson

Yolanda the Great will gaze into her crystal ball and amaze the audience with her astute predictions about issues of great concern to Glengarrians everywhere, but more specifically, in the county's south.

For the thriving village of Lancaster, Yolanda the Great envisions two main accomplishments. First, deep within the fogginess of the crystal ball, Yolanda can discern a new building rising above the village skyline.

It is a richly deserved seniors complex. Local MPP Noble Villeneuve's promises to battle for the complex, despite its rejection by the Ontario Housing Corporation this autumn, will result in the success of the municipality's application and by late 1987, construction will begin.

Meanwhile, a second scene is emerging from the crystal ball. Residents in period costume, a parade, a crafts show, flickerings of different celebrations dance within the crystal ball. The village's centennial events will be enthusiastically enjoyed and the homecoming will magnetically attract former villagers back to Lancaster.

Yolanda the Great now shifts her concentration from one Lancaster to another.

She sees the future, the deep future for Lancaster Township. She sees the council looking over official documents and maps. It is struggling to formulate a long term plan for commerical and industrial development while responding to the very different needs of ratepayers on the farms north of Hyw. 401 and the property owners in residential and tourist areas south of the highway.

Yolanda sighs with relief as she realizes the controversy about the Sports Palace will finally wind down. Now, representatives from Lancaster and Lochiel Townships, who have unwittingly been propelled into the eye of a storm they did not create, will be able to concentrate on improving recreational opportunities in the area and not on municipal battles.

Yolanda the Great gazes with great concern at Charlottenburgh Township.

Progress in the restoration of the Martintown Mill and St. Raphael's Ruins is predicted. A firm believer in private enterprise and opposed to increased government intervention, Yolanda the Great envisions a profitable use being found for the Martintown Mill. Thus, the Martintown Mill Preservation Society will be able to solicit more funds than expected for the project, thus decreasing the government's financial contributions to the Mill.

So, too, the parishioners of St. Raphael's, their successful bicentennial year over, will conclude the fate of their church is quite literally connected to the fate of the Ruins. Fundraising events, to which generous Glengarrians will gladly contribute, will reduce the financial burden created by the upkeep of the Ruins for the different levels of government.

Yolanda also foresees the actual construction of the Purcell Water and Sewer project which began even before Yolanda had ever set up a fortune-telling booth.

New year's resolutions we're all try-trying again

SECOND LOOK
Phil Rutherford

At thirty, a man suspects himself a fool;
Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan;
At fifty, chides his infamous delay,
Pushes his prudent purpose to resolve;
In all the magnanimity of thought
Resolves, and re-resolves; then dies the same.
—Edward Young, 1683-1765

Mr. Young summed it all up well more than 200 years ago. Every New Year's Eve many of us make resolutions to change; to get rid of bad habits or to take a new approach to our work or lives in general. For the minority with the required willpower, resolutions work.

How many smokers gave up cigarettes on New Year's Day? Most didn't last a week, but a few made it and a few more will succeed in kicking the weed out of their lives at the start of 1987.

More of us resolve to lose weight. That's the one that usually catches yours truly. I've tried different diets, including one that actually worked, for a while. I've promised myself that I would exercise—walk, run, lift weights—to help take off the extra pounds. I even joined a gym club once, but quit after the first visit. I couldn't tolerate being the only one trying to take off blubber in the company of young males attempting to put on bulk. I hated them all.

I've tried taking off pounds in competition with other heavyweights. There are plenty of us around. More than a year ago the contest was with John Cormier. We both claimed to be slimming down, but few believed us. Today, we're each casting as big a shadow as ever.

I could try the same again. There's Alexandria's short and chubby mayor, J. P. Touchette. (Don't worry about sensitive feelings. When you're fat, you are allowed to poke fun at other members of the chubby set. If you're skinny, keep your mouth shut. We're only tolerating you, as it is.)

Another candidate for the contest might be Noble Villeneuve, our local MPP. Noble and I differ in many ways, but we do resemble each other after a fashion.

Then there's Lochiel's caber-tossing reeve, Ron MacDonell. Ron insists he's not fat at all; that the extra girth is only a Scottish heavyweight competitor's extra margin of power. No one has swallowed that line in years.

Seeing MacDonell and Villeneuve side-by-side leaves me wondering about the truth behind the old "fat cat" image Conservative politicians have had for generations.

Conservative, Liberal or NDP, we all carry a lot of weight. With any two of our vests a good tailor could probably make a three-piece suit for Don Boudria.

The MP might be wise to gather up all the extra poundage the rest of us are going to lose if he wants to fill any suit. Voters often don't respond well to skinny politicians. Look at what happened to Bob Stanfield and Joe Clark. Don's only got two years left to fatten up. He'd better get at it.

We could all take side bets and invite sponsorship by the pound, just like a walkathon and donate the proceeds to charity. Mr. Boudria might make a good referee, conducting the start and finish weigh-ins. Fat people hate skinny people, just on principle. On the final day we'll need someone to take our frustrations out on.

Who knows? It just might work well for all of us and Mr. Boudria will be off to Pattyn's Gym to build himself into an equally magnificent physical specimen.

With one resolution out of the way, we could move on to others; like being included in next year's best dressed men list with the likes of Prince Charles, Don Johnson and Bruce Springsteen. They all made the People magazine list, which leaves me rather confused. Do I go for three-piece tartan suits, white suits with t-shirts and bare feet, or patched blue jeans with handkerchiefs and head bands?

My second resolution is to learn how to be a better cook. This may be in conflict with my first resolution, however. My cooking is bad enough that I'm already losing weight and I might risk spoiling a good (bad?) thing.

More resolutions could be added: no more lustful thoughts when a good looking body wanders by; no more vulgar language or dirty stories over cold beer; no more raising my voice or pointing a finger to emphasize a point; count to 10 and smile when I'm getting angry.

Maybe I would have been better off taking the advice of John Selden (1584-1654): "Never tell your resolutions beforehand."

Memory feast

LOOK OUT
Dann Rogers

Many people probably ate too much over the Christmas holidays, but I managed to feast on memories.

I went to a party to reminisce with my old friends and we dined on achievements, hopes and temporarily distorted dreams.

They're all in their mid-to-late twenties, so discussion generally revolves around how we will conquer the world and set things right.

It sure is amazing to see how people's views on how to achieve that goal have changed since leaving university.

One of my friends studied birds at McGill University and now works for a Japanese chemical firm and is moving to Japan in April.

Another comrade completed a degree in Computer Science and Commerce, yet he makes a living by selling his oil on canvass paintings.

A lady who wanted to raise 10 children is completing her studies to be a ship's pilot in the Great Lakes.

There was the lawyer friend who wanted to do legal aid, but is now handling divorce cases.

Experts say it is healthy to change careers every once in a while, but some of my friends obviously thought university education had absolutely nothing to do with reality.

There was one particular friend who clearly believed this and had me re-evaluating some of the choices I made.

This guy dropped out of high school and went to the one of hard knocks to polish his image.

He applied to a stock brokerage firm and told them he had a Masters of Business Administration. They pay him outrageous amounts of money to go long, short and everywhere in between.

In his spare time, he produced a book, plagiarized from other writers, and is in the process of negotiating the sale of it to a Hollywood studio.

He is charming, well-dressed, courteous, funny and eager to appear interested in other people's problems. Could this be a sure-fire recipe for success?

At first I thought this guy can't be happy if he is superficial enough to get through life on smiles and hype. But if you consider that he came from a broken home and didn't have the advantages of everyone else at the party, you could develop a grudging respect for him.

He improved his station in life, seems happier and makes more money than any of us who spent a few years in university.

And just to get that fuller perspective of life, I spent a few hours talking to another friend who was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, but now has to scrape just to eat regularly.

Everywhere you go there are people better off or worse. I guess the idea is to not waste time comparing lives, but rather to live your own fully.

Soul in flight

THAT'S LIFE
Lesley Cadham

Here's a new subject for you. Can you imagine lying in bed at night, prepared to float off to slumberland and instead finding yourself hovering over a sidewalk in downtown Montreal?

Sounds crazy, I know. But keep reading anyway. Not so long ago, I became aware of a fascinating mode of travel. It doesn't require Air Canada or Via reservations and you can leave the car at home. And you don't need a hot-air balloon or hang-glider, either.

Sound too good to be true? Ever heard of astral-travel? Have soul—will travel? I'm no expert, but I believe it can be done. Apparently, your soul can journey outside your body. All limitations imposed by your physical self do not apply. The traveller is said to be capable of defying time and space.

Have you ever awakened and sworn a lucid dream was not a dream, but reality? Have you ever dreamed you saw a car accident and wakened up the next morning to discover it actually happened?

Furthermore, if after dreaming you were somewhere you didn't want to be and found you had a splitting headache, maybe your soul took a solo journey.

In theory, astral travel is something you can teach and discipline yourself to do. Your soul takes flight to travel uninhibited through space. You can soar like a bird over the Ozark Mountains or revisit the days of Abraham Lincoln.

Recently, a benevolent woman was trying to teach astral-travel to a group of people confined to wheelchairs. They would have been able to without the confines of their wheels, attend baseball games and do other exciting things not practical because of the wheelchair. But someone forbade her to continue the lessons.

At first I was angry. Why couldn't she teach these people something to enrich their lives, after all it's a free world. I thought about if for weeks afterward and I've come to a conclusion.

The implications of a world of astral travellers are frightening.

If crippled people could visit baseball games out of body, then Peeping Toms could have a front row seat to the show of their choice and politicians could float to each others' offices taking note of state secrets. The Russians, heaven forbid, could invade our space and we'd never even know it. In short, privacy would be non-existent.

There would be no such thing as secrets and it would be like having a tap on your telephone only you wouldn't be able to hang up.

I remember one night, while sitting alone in my aunt's house, I distinctly felt someone watching me. The curtains were drawn, the door was closed and realistically, it wasn't possible. Still . . .

Next time you feel you're not alone in the room, consider this; maybe you're not.

Happy news year

WORD SKETCH
Sybil Carello

All week long, whenever I wasn't embroiled in some yuletide merriment, I would flash on serious topics for this column.

The year 1986 is slipping away into history. Something serious should be noted. But what?

I thought of the war zones. Experts count about 43, but think there may well be over 100 armed conflicts world wide, with at least 40 in Asia alone.

Yet with hope and optimism, the United Nations designated 1986 as the International Year of Peace.

Sometimes it's wise to get the most difficult designation out of the way. From here on in, the rest will be a cinch.

Earlier this year, I read an alarming account of Earth's vanishing wildlife. Biologists estimate 17,500 species of plants and animals become extinct each year because tropical rainforests are being cleared at an accelerating rate.

Shortly after, I read further reports of wild elephants rampaging through villages in Jakarta, Indonesia. Seems the elephants have developed a voracious appetite for rice, bananas and other cultivated crops.

The Farmer's Almanac predicts rotten weather for 1987 and chemical scientists say cow and termite droppings, creating natural methane gases, "are playing an increasing role in raising the Earth's temperature." There's speculation this could eventually cause some melting of the Polar Ice caps, higher sea levels and a few weather pattern shifts. Nothing too serious. Just a desert where there wasn't one before and so on.

There's a hole in the ozone layer and scientists say its getting bigger each year. The implications of this hole are not yet clear. An ungrounded thought that the Starship Enterprise might be beyond the hole has been ruled out.

Getting away from scientists for a moment and back to ordinary laypeople, don't worry about the two to four million Canadians who can't read or write. There's a much bigger problem.

The government just found out. This year.

Scientists (don't they ever stop?) also tell us we're such a well-preserved society, it's taking us longer to turn into dust when we're laid to rest. We've finally tapped into the mystery of mummifying, something the Egyptians have been keeping from us for centuries.

Now we know.

It's been quite a year, what with nuclear-wastes looking for a safe place to settle. Corner store shoot-outs. Illegal Sunday shopping sprees. Political prose. Rising cereal prices. And more. Much more.

The list of serious topics just seems to rush into 1987. Thank goodness then, for other news stories—stories with a lighter touch to them, a reassuring note. My favorite for 1986 is Avon's delicately perfumed bath oil—Skin-So-Soft. Users say a couple of swabs of the stuff and mosquitoes and flies run for the hills.

Inadvertently, the product packs a powerful punch as an insect repellent.

This is welcome news for gardeners, fishing enthusiasts and bug haters in general.

The rest is just too serious to take seriously.

Happy News Year!

Many visitors for holidays

WILLIAMSTOWN
Sue Harrington
347-2279

Thicker than Glengarry porridge, they came students, friends, relatives, ex-residents, home to Williamstown for the holidays. Young and old, from far and near, lured by irresistable memories of Christmas in the Country.

Perhaps the McWhinnie Christmas dinner was one of the first this year, held as it was on Dec. 21. Hosted by Lynn and Brent Lafave, who are living in the old McWhinnie place, it drew a crowd of some 31 relatives from Williamstown and beyond.

Lester and Bernice McWhinnie were down from Ottawa for the event, while Lorne and Vivian Walker attended from Pointe Claire. Lynn's mother, Doris, and husband Leonard Ferguson came over from Strathmore.

There were six children and their spouses, plus nine grandchildren at the dinner, which, knowing the culinary talents of the McWhinnie girls was no doubt, superb.

In the afternoon, Judge John Matheson and wife Edith, visited at the Lafaves.

Allan and Phoebe Payne had five of their six children home for the holidays, two of them coming from quite a distance. Son Chris, who attends Brigham Young University in Utah, was here, as was daughter Tara, from Ricks College in Idaho.

Tracey Payne was home from Champlain College in Lennoxville, while Jan returned from Pierrefonds. Lots of company for Sonny these days!

The only member of the family not home was son Shaun who attends the Hawaii Campus of Brigham Young. I suppose that if Christmas in Williamstown is an impossibility, then Hawaii's not too bad as a second choice!

Gary and Helen Mowat and their children Craig and Colleen from Calgary spent Christmas visiting with Gary's mother Ruth, and his brother and sister-in-law Bill and Ruth, in Williamstown, and with other friends and relatives in the area.

Anna Beryl Hunt (nee Mowat) who now lives in Cornwall, also visited nephew Bill and family in Williamstown.

Daphne MacDonald had another houseful for Christmas this year. Besides family members still residing around Williamstown, Daphne entertained Audrey, John, Danny and Andrea McCardle from Toronto. Also from Toronto were Lynne MacDonald, and Eleanor, Howard, and Sandra Wilkinson.

Shirley, Bill and Glen Abrams made the trip to Williamstown from Copley, Ohio, while Michael Abrams came all the way from Irvine, Texas.

Arthur Strong visited from Rhode Island, Douglas Wilkinson from Syracuse and Angus Russell from Massena.

Joan and Coleman's daughter, Greer, and husband Larry Thornbury and new son Shawn, were home from Woodville, Ontario.

Though I didn't get an official count, I'm sure Daphne's dinner was one of the largest in the area.

While some of us were eating our traditional Williamstown fare, a little touch of England was taking place at Moira and Oliver Blacker's. Among guests for Christmas dinner at Blacker's were Oliver's parents from Yorkshire, brother Paul and wife Sally and family and David and Barbara Stones and family.

Even the Harrington's had holiday visitors this year. Attending Boxing Day festivities at our house were my father, Fred MacMillan from Cornwall, brother Bain MacMillan and wife Marilyn from Newmarket, nephew Jim MacMillan from Toronto and nephew David MacMillan of London. My sister, Jane Foster and her husband George made the gargantuan journey up from Summerstown for the occasion. Their children, George from Cold Lake, Alta., Jill from Toronto, John from Kingston and Mary from Montreal, made the number 18, at our place for dinner.

Lots of students are lighting up the village these days. Edna and Garnet MacDougall have Mike home from Carleton and Robb from University of Guelph.

Janis Pasco is home from Queen's and so is Tommy, also from Guelph. They are, of course, visiting Audrey and George Pasco, their parents.

Also, from Queen's is Christine Cattanach who is a seasoned veteran at coming home to spend Christmas with parents Bill and Norma.

University students home for the holidays include Mary McEwen from Waterloo, Patricia Baker from Queen's, Cathy Conners from Ryerson, David Conners and Sandra Campbell from Guelph, Bridget Kippen from Macdonald College and Kelli Campbell from McGill.

Three more species of winter birds have been reported at feeding stations, namely Cowbirds, Redpolls and Pine Siskins. The latter are about the size of Goldfinches with heavily streaked breasts and traces of yellow on the wings and tails.

Where do all the females go, female grosbeaks that is? In the large numbers of Evening grosbeaks that visit the feeders, only about 20 per cent are female.

Your correspondent found some time ago in an old book a program for the official opening of the Presbyterian Church in Hannibal, Wisconsin. The church was opened many years ago.

The program was mailed to the church recently and an appreciative acknowledgement received last week. Do any of our readers know of a connection between our community and Hannibal in north central Wisconsin?

Eileen and Gordon Scott had the three McEwen girls home for Christmas. Gwen and Stewart and Kevin Hamilton came from Amherstview, Joyce and Mike Montaigne and Paul from Pembroke and Karen and Denis Gagnon, Christie and John came from Meadow Lake, Sask.

Home with Lorna and Gordon Winter over the holidays were Beverly from Woodstock, Betty and Stewart from London and Colleen and Bill from Windsor.

In the Auld Lang Syne column of 60 years ago, it was indicated that the United Church had its official opening. Apparently it took over a year after union to remove the Congregational Church and build the new church on the same site.

It was also noted that the late Donald A. McKercher was a medical student at McGill University. His father was Dan, who had a butcher shop in the village. Dr. McKercher practised in Cobden for most of his active medical career. A sister Kathleen, Mrs. John MacRae lives in Toronto and a brother, Stanley in Lachute.

Twenty years ago Kathy MacEwen was voted Centennial Queen for the village. Kathy is the daughter of Vera and the late Bill MacEwen and is now Mrs. Jim McCosham and the mother of three children and living in Cornwall.

Community came a long way

APPLE HILL
Aline Gormley
527-5692

The past year has brought changes that augur well for 1987. Our community can be proud of what it achieved in the course of '86.

The official blessing ceremony of St. Anthony's Church last July 6 was a day of pomp and splendor that touched everyone in this community. The memory was brought to light this Christmas with songs of joy reverberating all over again.

There is every reason to rejoice over the recent grant in view of future recreational activities. The opening of the mini-mart was an eventful happening and Sarah Benton's little shop is yet another service to appreciate.

Speaking of service, our heartfelt thanks go to Dr. Shah for the care he gives at the health clinic. Sincere appreciation also to the fire brigade for always being on call and to the management at the King Edward Hotel and at S&B's.

To all our seniors, good health and success in all your endeavors.'

To parents, children, adults and young friends, good entente and happy encounters always.

To the membership of Zion United, St. Anthony's and St. Michael's, may God's blessings favor you all the year round.

To the staff at The Glengarry News and readers of this column, "Happy beginnings that will last the whole year long."

Last but not least, season's greetings to our village representatives and township councillors for their devoted year-long service. Best wishes to all of you for continued wellbeing in future ventures. In particular, for keeping our village neat and brightly dressed-up at this Yuletide season.

The old year is now at an end, and I would like to thank those, very few as they may be, who gave me something to write about in this column. I really enjoyed it most of the time, but was disappointed far too often for lack of co-operation. I will not say that I will not continue to write a column, only that its frequency will depend on you.

I wish all happiness, health and prosperity in the New Year.

CORNWALL — Pierre Lauzon tallied the winner as the Caisse Populaire Atoms nipped Cornwall Sunday in a Lower St. Lawrence Hockey League contest played at Cornwall.

Jamie Nelson scored earlier in the contest for the winners, while assists went to Eric Hamelin, Jean-Pierre Lefebvre and Andre Deguire.

Andrew Loucks was the lone marksman for Cornwall.

The local club competed in the North-Glen-Stor tournament Dec. 23 at Maxville. Massena, Char-Lan win titles at tourney

On Saturday, the Bantam Glens hosted seven other teams at its annual tournament. Massena walked away with the A championship, defeating the Glens 3-0.

In the opening game of the tournament, Alexandria blanked Char-Lan 3-0 as Christain Bellefeuille earned the shutout.

In their second game, the Glens faced South Stormont and they repeated another 3-0 shutout with Richard Chevrier between the pipes this time.

Eric MacSweyn, Jason Palmer and Andrew Sauvé scored the goals for the local squad. A house league Bantam team filling in for non-showing Vanier East Ottawa Voyageurs, did very well under the circumstances, losing 7-1 to Massena and holding St. Isidore to a 2-1 win, battling to the last minute of the game.

In the B final, Char-Lan skated to a 2-1 squeaker over St. Isidore. The B champions earned a berth in the final following a 6-2 win over Hawkesbury.

Railcar and Dan's Place played to a 3-all tie in Midget play. Railcar's goals were off the sticks of M. Gauthier, R. Billard, and G. Ingola. Bernie Dirven had two for Dan's Place, and Jay Emberg, one.

Dan's Place, with Jeff Kirkey getting the shutout, blasted Roy's Pontiac-Buick 10-0. Serge Picard and Bernie Dirven each had four goals, with Simon Leeds and Yves Matte getting one a piece. Roy's Pontiac coach excused his team for the Boxing Day wipe-out, saying "they ate too much turkey!"

Serge Picard scored an incredible five goals and had three assists as Dan's Place again wallopped the hapless Roy's Pontiac-Buick 9-2. Bernie Dirven had three goals and Yves Matte, one, while Daniel Calude replied for Roy's.

Trophy back at local club

GRANBY, QUE. — The Quebec Challenge trophy has returned to the Alexandria Curling Club.

The prestigious curling trophy, played since the late 1800's, was last won by an Alexandria rink in the early 1960's.

Two rinks travelled to Granby Sunday and the outcome wasn't decided until the last end in the two-team total-point match-up. One rink was skipped by Kaye Hay, while the other members were Lorne Lawson, third, Norm Campbell, second and Stanley Fraser as lead.

The other local rink was made up of Dunc Macdonell as skip, Hugh Allan MacDonald, third, Doug Baxter, second and Dougald MacGillivray as the lead. Jerry Adams also accompanied the two teams and acted as the manager.

Alexandria will now host the next rink on the challenge list, which is Ottawa Navy. Should Ottawa Navy decline the challenge from the local club, the next curling club on the Quebec Challenge trophy list would be asked.

Fiesty competitor

SPORTS

Peter Conway

As long as I've known Cameron McLeod, he's always been a fiesty competitor and a battler to the final whistle.

He hasn't changed much over the years. Whether it was on the gridiron in a Glengarry Gaels uniform, or roaming up and down the ice for Glen Nevis in the Border League, he's always had that competitive edge.

"Rosie," as he's better known, has been playing hockey for a number of years. He's skated for Dalhousie in the Soulanges Hockey League the past two seasons. The league, talking in terms of calibre, is an intermediate loop.

The loop has six teams and games are played Friday and Sunday nights. It's $3 a crack for adults and you're treated to an entertaining brand of hockey.

St. Clet won the league championship last season, defeating MacLeod and the Dalhousie squad in six games of a seven-game series.

Sunday night, following Dalhousie's impressive win over St. Clet, the winner's dressing room resembled that of a club which had just won the Stanley Cup.

This Glen Nevis resident, the elder statesman on the club, was taking the victory in stride. When I walked into the dressing room, I knew Rosie was there, even though I hadn't looked to see where he was seated. Like I said earlier, he hasn't changed. I could hear his voice over everyone.

"I just love playing this type of hockey," he was saying. "I'm the old man on the team. It's these young guys that get the club going, not me."

Perhaps it is the young guys on the Dalhousie club that provide the spark. But that wasn't the case Sunday night. Rosie has never been a sniper around the net. But he opened the scoring with a picture goal on a breakaway. That set the tone for the evening.

It wasn't long after that partisan Dalhousie crowd saw the Rosie of old. There he was, bumping and grinding in the corners. On a couple of occasions, he created havoc in front of the St. Clet goaler. Now, that sounds more like the Rosie of old. Like some of us who participate in sports, Rosie loves to win and hates to lose.

I love watching hockey, whether it's a novice squad or an NHL game on the tube. I enjoy watching the grinders perform on the ice, the muckers or cornermen as they're known.

Rosie isn't the flashiest or most polished player on the ice. But there's no one who plays with as much heart or determination. He won't fill the net like some players, but he will create scoring opportunities because of tireless forechecking.

He is the type of guy you'd rather have on your team, instead of playing against you. I admire the way he plays because he gives you an honest shift each time out.

He doesn't agree with this reporter when reminded he's the leader on the ice. But he is. Rosie missed a game against Rigaud two weeks ago, a Dalhousie loss. Without him in the lineup, the spark wasn't there. Dalhousie was flat.

Although most of the players come from Dalhousie and the area, the cast of Glengarrians made up of Joey McRae, Alain Giroux, Kennedy MacDonald, Andre Seguin and Rosie have fit in nicely. They have become a close-knit group, particularly after Sunday's win over rival St. Clet.

Should everything fall into place, these two clubs should meet in the final. They are the top clubs in the league. It would be an ideal match-up should they both make it to the final.

HOLIDAY THOUGHTS?

Here are a few holiday thoughts while wondering how many people out there will be too hungover to watch the bowl games on New Year's Day.

It's the Alex English Division's turn to host the annual Boxing Day Junior B hockey tournament next year. It wouldn't be a bad idea for the Alexandria Glens to apply to host the one-day affair. There isn't a better facility than the Glengarry Sports Palace to host such an event.

I'd like to see parents, coaches, officials and everyone else in minor hockey have a Happy New Year. But that may be asking a little too much!

The Char-Lan Rebels are for real. Winning back-to-back Boxing Day tournaments should make believers out of some people.

Here's a vote of confidence for Roch Lajoie and Claude Roy of the Alexandria Junior B Glens. Both of them have put the time and effort in trying to ice a competitive squad. Now it's up to the players to get their act together in the second half of the campaign.

BOXING DAY CHAMPS—The Char-Lan Rebels won their second consecutive Eastern Ontario Junior B Boxing Day tournament last Friday at Kemptville. The Rebels beat Richmond Royals to win the championship contest. It marked the first time a club had won back-to-back titles. The Rebels also defeated Westport and Perth earlier in the tourney.

Royal Bank Midgets win tourney

On Sunday, Jacques Lajoie's Royal Bank Midgets travelled to Carleton Place with a full squad and won the A championship of the tournament.

In the first contest, Alexandria defeated Petawawa Patriots 3-1. Richard Daniels led the way with two goals. Luc Decoeur had the other marker. Assists went to Andrew Meth, Todd MacDonell and Alex Maclaren.

In the second contest, the Glens defeated Richmond Royals 6-2. Andy Meth led the way with two goals and one assist. Rodney Craig, Stephanne Lavigne, Alex Maclaren and Luc Decoeur had singles.

In the final, the Glens poured it on with a 7-2 victory over Almonte-Pakenham. Marc Sauvé, held scoreless in the first two games, came through with a hat trick. Chris Sauer, Stephanne Lavigne, Trevor Marley and Rodney Craig had singles.

Andy Meth had three assists, Luc Decoeur, Chris Sauer and Robbie Latreille had two assists each while Mike Sauvé had one helper.

Wins pair

Alexandria Knights of Columbus Novice squad ran its streak to an impressive 13-1 mark, following a pair of recent wins over Char-Lan.

On Dec. 20 at the Glengarry Sports Palace, Jean-Joel Trottier scored twice and added an assist in a 5-1 win. Singles went to Martin Boisvenue, Joel Menard and Karl Hehn. Martin Boisvenue and Joel Menard picked up two assists each. Single helpers went to Eric Hagen, Jamie Pelletier and Steven St. Denis.

The following day at Williamstown, Jean-Joel Trottier fired a pair of goals as Alexandria skated to a 5-2 win. Joel Menard, Karl Hehn and Eric Hagen added singles.

Peewees tie

CORNWALL — Normand Decoste fired a pair of goals to lift Lalonde's General Store Peewees to a 2-2 tie with Cornwall Sunday at the Water Street Arena.

It marked the second time this season the two clubs played to a draw in Lower St. Lawrence Hockey League action. Daniel Dumont was between the pipes for the shutout.

Alexandria plays host to its annual tournament Friday at the Glengarry Sports Palace. Alexandria opens the tourney against North-Glen-Stor at 8 a.m. St. Isidore tangles with Char-Lan an hour later.

Big win

Char-Lan Claude Nunney Legion Novice travelling team came up with a big 5-0 win over North-Glen-Stor in exhibition play recently.

Ryan Derry had the shutout for Char-Lan, while Joe Dupuis picked up a hat trick. Ken McDonell and Tim Corput were the other Char-Lan marksmen.

In Memoriam

THÉORET—In loving memory of my dear dad, Joe Théoret who passed away January 5, 1984.
In a quiet country graveyard
Where the gentle breezes blow,
Lies the daddy I loved so dearly,
Whom I lost three years ago.
Your resting place I visit, daddy
And put flowers there with care,
But no one knows the heartache
When I turn and have to leave you there.
They say time heals all sorrow
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has proved daddy,
How much I miss you yet.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by your daughter Antoinette and son-in-law Réne Lacombe. 53-1p
