Merkley—Wallace.

A very quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace. Grantley, on Wednesday Jan. 27 1909, when their eldest daughter Bessie E., was united in marriage to Edsel R. Merkley of Dunbar. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. I. Crabbe.

The marriage took place at 5 p. m. and was only witnessed by the immediate friends of the contracting parties.

The bride entered the room leaning on the arm of her father and wore a blue skirt with waist of white point de sprit over taffeta.

The wedding march was played by Mr S. H. Merkley, cousin of the groom.

The bride and groom were unattended and stood under an arch of evergreens decorated with cut flowers and a large bell hanging from the centre of the arch. After the ceremony the company was served with a sumptuous dinner. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

The bride's travelling suit was of green ladies' cloth, with hat to match.

Chambers—Ault.

A very quiet but pleasant event took took place on Wednesday evening, Jan. 27, at the home of J. P. Bogart Ottawa East, when Annie M. Ault was united in holy wedlock to George C. Chambers both of Ottawa, by Rev. Dr. Hunter. The bride entered the drawing room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, place by her sister, Miss Harriet E. Ault. She looked very pretty attired in a gown of cream stripped marquisite made over cream liberty satin, and trimmed with cream fillet insertion as she carried a handsome boquet of cream roses and lillies of the valley. She was given away by her nephew Harold B. Bogart. Her two little nieces looking very pretty in white Messeline silk acted as flower girls. The guests then retired to the adjoining room, where a sumptuous repast was served. Only the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present. The presents were numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The bride's goingaway gown was of navy blue cheveron made in directoire style with hat to match. After their honeymoon they will reside at 125 Spruce Street, where a cozy home awaits them. The groom's present to the bride was a mink stole, to the flower girls a handsome set of beauty pins, and to Miss Ault a pin set in pearls.

The bride is well known here, having been born and lived here until a few years ago. Her many friends will be pleased to hear of this event.

He was curate at Prescott with the Right Rev. Mgr. Masterman. He was then removed to Kingston, being identified with the cathedral and was also appointed Roman Catholic chaplain of the Kingston penitentiary. Killed By Street Car.

Arriving in the city late in the afternoon, from Winnipeg, Harry R. Smith of Williamstown, Ont., was killed by a street car at King and Young streets at 5.45 o'clock Friday evening.

He had run to catch a College car, which was just going north on Yonge. He made a jump for the step and a grab for the hand rail, missed the hand rail and fell. The conductor frantically pulled at the bell rope. The man rolled with the car a foot or two, then the front wheel of the trailer caught him and crushed the abdomen.

He was carried to the sidewalk and then rushed to St. Michael's Hospital, dying as he left the ambulance.

In his pocket were found a letter addressed to Henry R. Smith, Williamstown, in December to himself. He also had a letter from his sister Ruth, posted at Williamstown in December to himself at the Manitoba Agricultural College, Winnipeg. Two baggage checke on the Canadian Northern Railway showed that he had left Winnipeg via Chicago on Tuesday, the 26th of this month, for Montreal.—Toronto World.

CHAPTER XIV.

Wisps of string slung around her shoulders, a pair of pruning shears in hand, and herself arrayed in a long gardening apron and print bonnet, Miss Manesty tripped lightly from bed to bed, and was engaged in snipping off a branch that had had its day when David crossed the lawn to her side.

"Hallo, David," she briskly cried, "that you; just in time to make yourself useful. Here, get hold of this branch while I tie it up. Then I'll talk to you.

"Odd, isn't it?" she rattled on, "that trees should be just as foolish as folks, and that's saying a lot. You'll not find many who'll grow right until they've got a bit of string round them, and when you seek to put them straight, they jab their spikes into you and make no end of fuss. Just like folks, just like folks.

"There now, I think that'll do. Why don't you let us know you were coming, then I'd have kept Margery at home. However, she'll not be long. I've sent her over to Peggy Bateson's with some eggs, not that the old curmudgeon deserves them, for I'll warrant she'll grumble when Margery's back's turned that I've not sent her a basket of butter as well.

"Why," after a second and keener glance at his face, "whatever's the matter with you? You look as though you'd walked from Gammersby with a ghost for company! Is it that ship you've lost?"

"Yes, partly."

"Ay, well, it will have been upsetting; just come inside, and while you're having a snack to put you on you can tell me all about it."

"That's exactly what I've come for, Miss Manesty," David replied, "and I'm glad Margery's not here, for I wanted to see you first. As for coming into the house, I'm not quite sure as to whether, when you've heard my tale, you'll want me on the other side of your door."

"Um," another searching glance from the sharp grey eyes, and then, "In that case you'd better let me have the story out here. Come along," and she led the way to a garden seat on the farther side of the lawn.

"Now, then, what is it?" she asked, making room for him by her side; "pocket picking or sheep stealing?"

"I've lost something," David replied, "something more than a ship, I've lost my name."

Betraying no surprise, Miss Manesty simply nodded her head, and David proceeded with his story of the Habakkuk and the base motive of which gossip had pronounced him guilty. There was no attempt at excuse, no sparing of the lash, no whimpering, no self pity, nothing but a steady, relentless advance in the process of self-exposure and of maceration. In a certain sense he resembled a prisoner, but the trial was a bundle of paradoxes, for the accused was also the accuser. With scrupulous care he framed the counts in his own indictment, and with merciless persistency pressed them home. Without a word of comment, Miss Manesty heard him to the end, and when he had finished, she demanded—

"Well what are you going to do?"

"Do? Nothing. I've looked at the matter up and down and all round, I've lived upon it by day and dreamed of it by night, and at the end I'm helpless. There's only one thing to be done at present, the thing I've come here today—I must give Margery her freedom."

Surely the grey eyes quivered 'neath the lids, and the mouth twitched and a little shade of the color faded from the cheeks.

"I can't give Margery a name—with a stain upon it. Allerdale is calling me a knave, but I'm not knave enough for that. What troubles me most is Margery herself; losing her is like tearing my life up by the roots—but that's not so bad as wounding her. I'd give all that remains to me of life itself if I could spare her this blow—but I can't. Maybe the cloud may lift, it may be that before so very long the whole hateful blunder may be explained, if there is any explanation, and I can claim her again, but if not—well."

As David ceased, Miss Manesty rose and slowly walked across the lawn, paused upon its edge, and then returned and stood looking down into his face.

"David Graham," she said, "you've told me what other folks are saying about you, but you've never had a word to say for yourself, and I've got a question to ask you. Your name seems to have got a bit of dirt on it, but—are your hands clean?"

"As clean as your own, Miss Manesty. I've had nothing to do with the loss of the Habakkuk."

"Then come inside and have something to eat."

Away towards the house the old lady flounced, David in her wake, but his steps faltered and he halted irresolutely. Should he accept her invitation—should his lips reveal all that his heart had knowledge of? Oh, a plague upon this honesty in other folk, why should it insist upon so much in return?

On the gravelled path Miss Manesty missed him, eyed him curiously for a while, and then came back to where he stood.

"David," she said, clasping her hands behind her back and looking up into his face, "you've not told me everything."

"I've told you all I can tell you," he replied doggedly.

"Um—and you've remembered something else since you landed?"

"One can't forget when they've you to deal with."

"What is it, David?"

"Oh, it's nothing, nothing at all, nothing to fuss about."

"What is it, David?"

"Only a business trifle, only an incident about that wretched ship."

"What is it, David?"

How merciless she was, and yet about her look there was a tenderness that even the flowers of her garden never provoked. His eyes roved from her's to the mountain heights and back, and again he found utterance.

"I'm afraid," he began, "that in a way I've only myself to blame. You see, I've altered my methods a little bit, and—and—and I'd put up the insurance on the Habakkuk and—and that's why folks say I've had her cast away."

"And you told me your hands were clean, David."

"They are, Miss Manesty, they are. I'll swear they are. I had nothing to do with the loss of the ship."

"But you're making money out of it?"

"It's only a trifle, and besides——"

"And you told me your hands were clean."

"Miss Manesty, haven't I come to you to-day to surrender Margery until I've proved my innocence, what more would you have me do?"

"It wouldn't be amiss if you dropped your insurance rates," she drily responded.

"And so you're going to sail your ships on a new course?" Miss Manesty resumed, after a pause filled with deep thought.

"Yes—no—that is, I'm trying to conduct the business on more up-to-date lines."

"Up-to-date lines," she repeated; and then, "Is that a new name for something mean and low? Are they the lines your father would have worked on?"

"My father was an old man, Miss Manesty and——"

"Ay, but he was an honest one, laddie, so honest that even when mud was thrown it didn't stick."

David winced and was silent. Words had no weight against this woman. Again Miss Manesty was speaking.

"What sort of wages do these new lines allow you to pay; the same as your father paid?"

"Yes."

"And will your sailors be as well fed'?"

"I believe so; indeed I know they will. The only difference is that I am buying on more advantageous terms."

"I see—cheap, but not nasty, eh? The fat of the land with discount for taking a quantity?"

"You're not dealing fairly with me, Miss Manesty."

"And maybe you'll not be spending so much on repairs as your father did?" she continued, ignoring his protest.

"There's no need for it. My father spent more than was required for safety."

"Ay, your father was a fool, wasn't he, David? He worked on his own old-fashioned lines when he should have chosen modern methods; he thought of other folks before himself, and—when his ships came home with contented men on board, he thanked God for the safety of the crew and gave little heed to the golden sovereigns he'd made. And now it's modern methods—with a name that isn't clean—and a conscience that worries all the day through. God help you, David Graham."

"I think I'll go down to the lakeside until Margery comes, Miss Manesty," he replied, "and then I'll go home."

Never had he felt so helpless. With anyone but Nanny Manesty and Cap'n Dan he might have argued his case, but now he recognized that speech was vain, that he would only be still further humiliated. Not yet, however, had the old lady done with him. Turning his back upon the house, he slowly paced through the garden, but swiftly she followed, and ere his feet had reached the Bassenthwaite strand she was beside him, her hand upon his arm, her face wistful, tender, without a trace of anger or scorn, again upturned to his own.

"David," she cried, "you'll give it up, won't you? Just take the loss of the Habakkuk as a lesson and go back to your father's ways. Say you will, laddie, for my Margery's sake."

"For Margery's sake," he huskily repeated; "it is for her sake I want a bigger, better fleet than I've got, that I may give her the place she ought to have. I want more money, but only that I may give it to her."

"Then go and tell that to Margery herself and see what answer she'll make you." The scorn in the old lady's voice cut deeper than any words she had yet spoken to him.

"You're breaking the promise you made to your father — tell Margery it's for her sake you're doing it.

"These underwriting tricks, they're a gamble with other men's money, a gamble with the lives of men as the stake—tell Margery that for her sake you're doing that.

"The men who earn your bread for you have given you all the faith and all the love that servant can bestow upon a master, and now they're to despise you and maybe hate you—tell Margery that it's for love of her you're making this sacrifice.

"Ever since I knew your house, David, it's been famed for the soundness of its craft, and now—go and tell Margery Manesty that for her honor and her comfort and her pleasure they're to be turned into coffin ships, go and tell her that, and then——"

"You shall not say these things of me. I thought you were my friend. I thought you would understand me, that you would see the reasonableness of what I'm about, and approve of my enterprise, and yet you are harder on me than any of those gossips in Allerdale."

"Pity they don't care still more for you, they'd be harder on you if they did," she interrupted.

"You know quite well that my ships are as sound as ever they were," he continued; but when Mis Manesty bade him think of their condition when his ambitions had been realized, he abandoned the struggle.

"You're determined to misunderstand me," he declared impatiently, "so I'll say no more. Perhaps when Margery returns, you'll tell her where I'm to be found."

Instead of the reply he anticipated, Miss Manesty inquired, somewhat inconsequently it seemed—

"Let me see, how old are you, David?"

"Twenty-three, eh? Ah, well, it's very young to be left without a father, so for the present I'll put this business down to your misfortune rather than your fault. Come in and have some tea."

"In spite of——?" he asked wearily.

She slipped her arm through his and led him towards the house.

"Yes, in spite of—and for Jacob's sake. It happens this way sometimes, laddie. that when a man's parted with his own good name, he finds his father's name and his mother's an asset of wonderful worth."

Already she was softening wards him, her severity ing into pity; the sin fo sinner only remembered later, when Margery fl the window, Miss Manesty hand upon his shoulder.

"You'll not go without good-bye," she said; and the added, "I was afraid when you me your story, the first part, t you'd come to ask my advice abo Margery, and I'm glad I was mis taken. Where a maid's concerned a man has no right to seek counsel, his own conscience is always enough. You've gone wrong, laddie, a long way wrong, but I'm glad that in this thing you've decided on the manly course."

Outside in the hall she spoke again, but this time her speech was transformed into a prayer: "God help him—and help my lassie, too." And then the woman whom men called hard raced off to her own room, and discovered on the way that her vision was blinded by tears.

Downstairs, rooted as it were to the spot whereon she had left him, David waited. Through the gable window he beheld the white-robed Bishop poised in stately solemnity on the shingled precipice of Barf, as it was easy to think, he had always been through all the ages; over there, on the other side of the vale, the Low Man dropped his shoulders to the plain, as he had ever done; upon a gently swaying bough beyond the drive a thrush filled the air with thanksgiving and it seemed that he had b singing for centuries, seeme if the world had ceased to that for time immeasurable self had stood there waiting ing, waiting.

"David!"

The spell was broken, the was moving again, the hour nunciation had dawned. He turned, and Margery was in his arms, her eyes pronouncing Love's benediction upon him, her voice tenderly thanking him for the sweet surprise of his coming. He bent to kiss her, all the resolution with which he had armed himself battered down; but as she raised her head for his caress, Margery saw the anguish stamped upon his face, all the joy in her own fled before the assault of fear, and, drawing herself back until she held him at arm's length, she cried—

"What is it, dear—are you ill—or has something gone wrong?"

"No, I'm not ill, Little Chum, but—there is—something wrong."

"Why, whatever is it? you look as though you had lost all your ships, or, worse still, as though you had lost me. That would be the worst, wouldn't it? and"—this, of course, to cheer him—"you've not, you know."

A wan smile flashed upon his face and fled, and then, at the girl's bidding, he dropped into a chair, whilst Margery, nestling on the rug, clasped her hands across his knees and waited for his story.

CROWS ON A SPREE.

Sitting in an Indian garden one day, and irritated beyond measure by the petty larcencies and effrontery of a party of Iidian crows, the writer was tempted for once to put them to the proof in this matter, says the London Globe. They had taken the bananas from the table in front and the biscuits from the plate at his side with shameless persistency. So a few more biscuits were procured and surreptitiously soaked in rum. It was not long before half a dozen crows came down and cleared the plate as usual. The spirit worked very promptly upon them, and in ten minutes they were all in a state of semi-intoxication. While a few made futile efforts to reach branches overhead others essayed to perch on the roof ridge of the nearest bungalow and helplessly failing, rolled into the gutters.

A JAPANESE LOVE TRAGEDY.

A Japanese woman believes that there is marriage in heaven; so that, if she is compelled to marry one man while she loves another, or not to marry where her love goes out, she will be united to the man she loves in the world beyond. At Mimagori, a young girl named Michi has just been arrested for attempting to stab her lover, named Uzen, because she saw no chance of being united to him in earthly matrimony. It was her intention to kill him, and take her own life afterwards; thus, they would have travelled together to the great white heaven.

SHUT THE OPEN WINDOW

VIEWS OF A LEARNED AND WISE LONDON DOCTOR.

Cold From Sleeping in Frigid Bedrooms—Too Great Change From Hot Room.

"What is your opinion of cold-catching, doctor?" said I, reflecting that every other person in town and country seems afflicted with some species of cold, particularly throat complaints, writes Marcus Woodward in the London Express, and the wise and learned doctor in whom I trust made me this answer:—

"Extremes of temperature, in my opinion, are chiefly responsible for the prevalence of all manners of colds and bad throats to-day. Children are very heavy sufferers; sudden changes of temperature powerfully affect their throats, and we find respiratory diseases rampant; they form 80 per cent. of children's ailments.

COLD BEDROOMS.

"No one more ardently believes in the value of fresh air than myself. The crusade against foul air, especially in bedrooms at night, has had marked effects for good. The doctrine of the open window at night has been very largely accepted by the public; one hears it preached everywhere."

"Your next word," said I, "is 'but.'"

"But," said the doctor, "a very grave peril sits on the open window-top. The open window is a good idea badly applied. Fresh air we must have at night, but few of us are strong enough to stand the cold, raw, night air of winter. The open window is slaying its tens of thousands."

"And so," I said, "you would smash one of the most cherished of all our progressive ideas. You will say we are insane to sleep in gales of wind, and to allow the snow, if it will, to drift to a depth of a yard on the bedroom carpet. I believe you will even attack our joyous cold baths in the morning."

AS TO COLD BATHS.

"It is not natural," he said, "for a land animal to take a cold bath in the winter. My horse will run to water in the summer; in the winter he rolls to clean himself. A rub with a tepid, damp sponge or towel really cleans the human body sufficiently in cold weather. The cold bath is a dangerous fetish.

"I feel convinced that the most important factor in the cause of most throat illnesses is the matter of temperature, especially night temperature. If we could insure that the temperature of all bedrooms never fell below 60 degrees at night, we could diminish all epidemic forms of throat troubles by half.

"Almost all illnesses begin at night, when the nervous system is asleep, the circulation quiet, and all tissues are at rest. Then the harmful germs steal a march and begin [t]

Garden of Eden to sleep in a garden to-day. It is against Nature's laws. We might as well think of sleeping in a cold bath to keep the pores of the skin clean as open.

"Animals are adapted for sleeping in the open in a manner peculiar to themselves, and the air they breathe is heated by radiation from the body. The sparrow puts his head under his wing. No animal is intended to breathe extremely cold air when sleeping, except the whales and cold-blooded fish and invertebrates.

TOO HOT ROOMS.

"The man who sits too long in an over-heated room, causes the mucous membrane of the respiratory tracts to become tender; then at night he goes out or to bed, and breathes raw air at a temperature of 32 degrees. If he breathes through his nose, this may bring on nasal catarrh, or cold in the head, or influenza; if he breathes through his mouth, this may cause tonsilitis, quinsy, bronchitis, or laryngitis; if he breathes through nose and mouth, this may bring on any or a combination of the ailments.

"There is no weather so suitable to cold-catching, as weather continually changing suddenly in temperature. The human system," concluded the doctor, "is a marvellously perfect machine, but not one in a million is given a fai chance."

He described how a penny enclosed in a jar with an unsealed phial of radium became itself radioactive, and if the penny were removed and washed with nitric acid its radioactivity was transferred to the latter, while the penny was no longer radioactive.

As another instance of possible usefulness, the lecturer told how a solution of such radioactive deposit was injected into a mouse suffering from an artificially induced abdominal cancer. LONDON'S DEATH RATE

THE YEAR 1907 HAS THE LOWEST RECORD.

Gain of 905,505 Years of "Life-Capital" in 1907 in World's Biggest City.

There was a gain to London of 905,505 years of life-capital during the year 1907. This is the year covered by the latest report, issued recently, of the L. C. C.'s Medical Officer, Sir Shirley Murphy. It was the year of London's lowest death rate. The figures fell to 14.6 per 1,000, which was lower than that of any other big city in the kingdom or in any other part of the world.

What this remarkable drop in the death rate means to London is expressed by the medical officer in terms of what he calls "life capital." Comparing the average death rate during the decennium 1891-1900, the doctor represented during the year a saving of 22,146 lives, representing a gain to the community of 905,505 years of life capital.

NOT ACCIDENTAL.

It is well to know that the low death rate of 1907 is not an accidental one. It is one of three successive rates that have broken all previous records. In 1905 the figure was 15.—lower than it had ever been before. It remained the same in the year following. Then came the fall to 14.6 in 1907, which encourages the hope that when the next rate is recorded London will have again improved upon itself. If we consider the gain in life capital during these three years, 1905-7, as compared with the decennium, 1891-1900, we find it is represented by over two million years of life.

A comparison between London's death rate with that of other big cities at home and abroad works out thus:

London	14.6
Leeds	15.3
Birmingham	16.2
Sheffield	17.1
Manchester	18.1
Liverpool	19.0
Berlin	15.4
Rome	18.2
Paris	18.5
New York	18.5
Vienna	17.3
St. Petersburg	24.7

BY SEPARATE BOROUGHS.

Taking London by separate boroughs, the half-dozen with the lowest death rates compare thus with the half-dozen with the highest:—

Hampstead	9.0
Stoke Newington	11.5
Lewisham	11.5
Wandsworth	12.3
Woolwich	12.5
Greenwich	12.7
Shoreditch	20.5
Finsbury	18.7
Bermondsey	18.3
Southwark	18.0
Beth. Green	17.5
Holborn	17.4

GRATUITOUS ADVICE.

A man had sat for some time in a restaurant, looking thoughtfully at his saucer of melting ice-cream. At last he left his chair and made his way to the proprietor.

"I see you advertise that you make your own ice-cream," he said, in a confidential tone.

"I do, sir," said the proprietor.

"Well," said the man, "would you permit me to give you a little pointer? I won't charge you a cent, and it'll be money in your pocket."

"Glad to hear it, I'm sure," said the proprietor.

"Get somebody else to make it," said the man, in a hoarse whisper.

PREVENT TUBERCULOSIS

DISCOVERY BY DR. RANDLE C. ROSENBERGER.

Philadelphian Finds Germs Invade Blood Before Affecting the Lungs.

By official announcement the greatest discovery in the war against consumption, since the finding of the tuberculosis bacillus by Koch, has been made public.

This is the discovery by Dr. Randle C. Rosenberger, famous biologist and holder of the chair of bacteriology at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, that the tuberculosis germ can now be found in the blood, before it reaches the lungs, that it is then in a condition which makes it readily amenable to destruction by simple treatment and fresh air, and that it will soon be possible to use a perfect antitoxin which will stamp the disease out entirely.

By Dr. Rosenberger's discovery, consumption, from being the greatest scourge of modern times, may yield to the most simple treatment.

TESTED 150 CASES.

Dr. Rosenberger has tested his discovery and his method upon 150 cases, in none of which was there a failure. He has made known the results of his experiments to the College of Physicians and to the faculty of Jefferson College, and his whole paper upon the subject will appear shortly in a medical publication. Before that Dr. Rosenberger, who is a purist in medical ethics, will not discuss or go into details of the matter.

From other sources, entirely familiar with Dr. Rosenberger's experiments and his diagnosis, it was learned that the bacteriologist had found that the tuberculosis bacilli make their first appearance in the blood of the infected person. They do not first appear in the lungs or glands, but invariably in the blood.

To varying degrees of time, depending upon the condition and susceptibility of the affected one, they course about in the circulation before settling in the part that gives them least resistance. While in the blood they may be found by a simple test which Dr. Rosenberger has discovered.

ANTI-TOXIN CAN BE INJECTED

By this discovery an anti-toxin or virus can be injected that will render the human organism immune to consumption. Work upon this virus based on the new phase of the matter is now in progress. The hope of its perfection is not a distant one, it was cautiously said.

"If this is all that is hoped," said Dr. Lawrence Flick, president of the Phipps Institute for Consumptives, "the fight against the great white plague is won."

The discovery is not confined to learning the presence of the germs in the blood, but marks their most incipient appearance in the lungs and in all forms of tuberculosis, such as the rarer forms of Pott's disease of the spine and tuberculosis of the hip.

The simplicity of the method is such that it will be available to every physician and to the simplest laboratory.

DOUBLE GAS BAG IN AIRSHIP.

Remarkable Flying Machine Invented by an Englishman.

W. Friese-Greene, a Brighton (England) photographer, has patented and is now building the most remarkable airship yet constructed.

The novel feature of the vessel is its "twin construction." It consists of two elongated gasbags, placed side by side. Should one bag collapse there will no fear of accident, and the airship has as its balancing instrument the wonderful gyroscope.

There are four motors, one driving the gyroscope, another the propeller fan and two others for emergency. The gyroscope is used for steering, its position being altered by means of steering gear attached to an ordinary ship's wheel.

The airship can be made to rise or fall by a movable weight, travelling on an endless band, from end to end of the machine. Two aeroplanes are also used to alter the angle of the airship.

The main petrol driving engine works a dynamo, which in turn drives electric motors as an extra precaution in case of a breakdown in the petrol engine.

In a light wind two basket cars can be hoisted up or down within 30 feet of the ground, to take up or land passengers, but in a heavy wind the airship will have to come to earth.

Mr. Friese-Greene is patenting the airship all over the world, and engineers who have seen it, have expressed surprise at the simplicity and practicability of the machine. The airship now being constructed at Southwick will carry one man only, but later on Mr. Greene will build one to carry 15 passengers.

When a man treats his wife kindly she imagines he is concealing a confession he ought to make.

WORKING DAY BROKEN UP

TOO MANY MEALS IN BUSINESS HOURS IN GERMANY.

Two Hours Allowed for Hot Dinner — Meals of Different Establishments.

Complaints are common in Berlin, Germany, that the hours of work are not better arranged and more generally observed. Berlin, it is declared, has no business day like other capitals, and consequently no one can fix any rendezvous where a considerable number of people are to be brought together.

The cause of the trouble is the long hours and the frequent meals, large or small, which break the business day up. Business in Germany begins early, at 8 o'clock, even in the banks and other big offices, but if so there is always a "pause" of from a quarter to half of an hour at 11 or 12 or 1 for the enjoyment of a thick sandwich and glass of beer or milk. Then comes a "table time" at 2 or 3 o'clock, which usually lasts for two full hours, during which thousands of employes go home by street car and get through a satisfying hot meal.

NOT CONDUCIVE TO WORK.

The result in the majority of cases is that this indulgence is followed by a drowsiness that is anything but good either for the employe or his work, even though work is continued until 7 or 8 o'clock. In addition to the "table time" many employes also snatch a hasty bite or cup of coffee about half-past 5.

If every business concern were exactly to observe the same "pause" and "table times" it would not be so bad, but as a matter of fact Berlin has not reached this stage of unanimity and each place of business arranges them to suit its own convenience or caprice. Hence the difficulty of getting business men together for any common object or even for an appointment between two men.

REMEDY PROPOSED.

The remedy proposed is that Berlin should follow the example of London, where work is not crowded into such narrow limits. Berlin would then have its business day and be done with the whole thing at, say, 5 o'clock. In that case, it is moreover urged with some force, Berlin could do without its so-called night life, which means that in the centre of the city saloons and cafes and restaurants are allowed to remain open the night through. Certain well known saloons and cafes have not interrupted business for several years, for when night work ends day work begins.

Berlin's night life is chiefly meant for provincials, for whom it seems to have a powerful attraction, but is also largely due to the needs of employes turned loose from business too late to go home for a comfortable meal or for the enjoyment of sports or other recreation.

CAN MAKE SMALL DIAMONDS.

Formula Submitted to the French Academy of Sciences.

At one of the approaching seances of the French Academy of Sciences a communication will be read from a French chemist, referred to as M. H.—, containing a formula for the manufacture of artificial diamonds. The secret for the making of these stones has been committed to writing, and is now deposited in a small envelope which has ben confined to the secretary of the academy.

It appears that the chemist's interesting discovery was accidental. The diamonds manufactured by him were submitted to minute examination by Professor Lacroix and M. Leon Maquenne, a member of the French Institute, and were declared to be in every respect identical with veritable diamonds. M. Maquenne burned twenty-one of H.—s diamonds in order to ascertain whether they were composed of pure carbon, and Professor Lacroix had a dozen more placed at his disposal.

The diamonds were diminutive, but the smallest was larger than any obtained by the late Henri Moissau in his electric furnace.

M. Maquenne is of opinion that the method employed by the new diamond maker, which is entirely different from that of M. Moissan, is a costly one, and doubts whether it could be made to pay. The chemist, however, has been furnished by a group of financiers with sufficient capital to continue his experiments.

GOLDFISH FEEDS KITTEN.

"Dick" Swims to Surface of Aquarium With Cat's Breakfast.

Hiram Blackmar, a tinsmith of Winsted, Conn., has a large aquarium in which, until recently, were aa score of goldfish. About two weeks ago, all of the fish except one sickened and died. The sole survivor of the piscatorial pets is a very large Japanese goldfish, which Mr. Blackmar has owned for six years, and which has become so tame that it rises to the surface of the water when any of the family calls its name—"Dick."

About a week ago Mr. Blackmar noticed his pet kitten sitting on the edge of the aquarium, gazing steadily into the water. In a few minutes he was astonished to see "Dick," the goldfish, swim to the surface with a bit of milkweed in its mouth. The kitten reached down and with her tiny paw took the milkweed and ate it.

This performance was repeated a number of times, and now the kitten goes to the aquarium every morning for its breakfast.

DEATH TO VIVISECTORS.

Irish Woman Sends Circulars to Leading Doctors.

The leading surgeons and physiologists of Great Britain are receiving a printed circular containing an extraordinary threat to kill by prayer those who practise vivisection.

The sender, who is said to be an Irish anti-vivisectionist named Cowan, tells the person addressed how, knowing the efficacy of prayer, she has resolved to use it to remove vivisectors. She intended first to kill Dr. Starling, professor of physiology at the University College Hospital of London, but, she says:

"It seemed unfair to give such a stab in the dark without letting him know."

Therefore, she decided to beseech the Almighty to remove, if in accordance with His will, the man most likely to cause future suffering to innocents by experiments. About a fortnight later one of the best known vivisectors died.

This is taken to show the Almighty's approval, and the circular adjures its recipients to be warned, and assures them that their fate is in their own hands.

IMMENSE CONCRETE PIERS

Those of Clover Bar Bridge May bo Largest in the World.

The concrete piers of the Clover Bar Bridge on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway are said to be the largest all concrete piers in Canada, and perhaps in the world, says the Edmonton Bulletin. There are four of them, two of which are 140 feet high and the others seven feet less in height. The bridge from abutment to abutment is 1,660 feet below the surface of the water.

The concrete work was undertaken in midwinter. This was one of the difficulties with which the constructing company had to contend. To work with concrete during cold weather it is necessary to use heat.

Houses were constructed around the piers and these were heated with steam, which was conveyed by pipes from a plant on the river bank. After placing and packing the concrete in its molds, it was also necessary that it should be kept heated at least a day, and then allowed to be set gradually.

Mr. Denny said that the by-law was indefinite and left a loop hole. At his suggestion a slight change was made in the wording of the amendment.

INDIGESTION ENDS.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Women's Institute "At Home."

The second annual "At Home" of the Women's Institute, was held here Tuesday'evening in the town hall and fully justified its claim to be called the social event of the season.

The program was short but choice.

The president, Mrs. T. Houlehan, and the secretary, Mrs. W. A. Brown, in short addresses presented the objects and needs of the institute and made an appeal for funds.

Mr. W. H. Casselman's address on "The Influence of Home on National Life," showed careful thought and preparation, and was, by all, considered a masterpiece.

The president, in an admirable paper, presented the life of Queen Victoria as maiden, wife and mother, in a very interesting manner.

The musical portion of the program was supplied by Mrs. S. W. Munro, Miss Bernice Munro, Miss Cora Merkley, Miss Minnie Foster, Miss Amy Beattie, Miss Jennie Casselman and the Misses Saucier, and was thoroughly appreciated.

At the close of the program a dainty lunch was provided and the rest of the evening was spent in social intercourse. The success of the "At Home" was largely due to the work of the several committees, and was a demonstration of the ability of our women to conduct their affairs in a business-like and capable manner.

It was also an object lesson to some of our tongue-tied "lords of creation."—Com.

Quebec legislature will open on the 2nd of March.

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a tea spoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

STEAMER FLORIDA LIBELLED

Seized at New York for Sinking the Steamer Republic.

A despatch from New York says: Counsel for the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, owners of the White Star Line steamer Republic, on Friday filed a libel in the United States District Court against the steamer Florida of the Lloyd-Italiano Line, which ran down and sunk the Republic off Nantucket lightship. Damages amounting to $1,500,000 for the loss of the ship and $500,000 for the loss of cargo and effects of the passengers and crew were claimed. It is asserted in the libel that the collision was due to no fault on the part of Captain Sealby of the Republic, but wholly to the fault of the Florida, which, it is alleged, did not keep a proper course, had no sufficient lookout, did not give proper whistles nor pay heed to the whistles of the Republic. It is alleged further, that the Florida failed to indicate her changes of helm, that she was proceeding at an immoderate speed and did not stop or back her engines.

The Lloyd-Italiano Societa di Navigatione, owners of the steamship Florida, also filed in the United States District Court a libel and petition for a limitation of liability against the Florida, her freight and passage money. The papers state that the collision was caused solely by the fault and neglect on the part of the Republic. The petitioners say that the damage value of the Florida now does not exceed $224,000, and ask the court to fix the liability at not more than that amount.

After the filing of the papers in the proceedings United States Marshal Henkel seized the Italian vessel under a writ of attachment.

GANANOQUE'S HEAVY LOSS.

Turner's Block and the Opera House Burned.

A despatch from Gananopue says: At 3.30 on Sunday morning in the store of Jos. McCauley, Turner block, corner of King and Stone streets, flames were discovered coming out of the plate-glass window. The fire spread fast. A heavy north wind was blowing, which sent the sparks over the buildings. The fire department played five streams of water on the building. The fire spread to the Opera House block, owned by W. G. Rogers. It looked at this time as if all of King street would go. The Turner block, owned by W. Y. Boyd, is a three-story brick building, occupied by Clifford Sine, druggist, stock $15,000, insurance $8,000, complete loss; Corrigan & Coy, dry goods, complete loss, insurance not known; Jas. McCauley, restaurant and billiard-room, insured. In the second flat the Tiger hockey team had their club rooms; W. Y. Boyd, insurance office, and Professor Jackson, musical studio. On the third story was the Colonial Theatre. Nothing was saved in the building. Insurance not known. The Grand Opera House, a concrete block building, and one of the most up-to-date opera houses in the Province, was completely destroyed. W. G. Rogers states he has $8,000 insurance on the building. Mr. Rogers' loss will be fully $25,000 Peters Bros. had a restaurant in the building, which is also a total loss. The Workmen and Canadian Order of Foresters had their hall over the stores in this block, and it, too, is a complete loss. The total loss is estimated at $104,000.

THE IMMIRGATION ACT.

Hon. Frank Oliver Proposes Several Amendments.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Some important amendments to the immigration act will be incorporated in a bill respecting immigration, to be introduced in the Commons early this session by the Minister of the Interior. The bill will provide for a consolidation and revision of the present laws, as passed from time to time, thus making the act clearer and more easy of enforcement. It will also provide for a stricter supervision of immigrants on arrival, both as regards medical inspection and to insure that all the regulations of the act are being observed. One of the most important changes now contemplated is the extension of the time limit for deportation from two to three years. At present an immigrant who becomes a public charge within two years of arrival may be deported. It is now proposed to increase the period of probation by one year.

TORONTO'S POPULATION.

East Toronto and Deer Park, which were annexed to the city on December 15 last, are included in this edition as part of it. The map of the city presented includes not only the recently annexed town of East Toronto and the suburbs of Deer Park, but also all the intervening and surrounding suburbs. The present volume contains, by actual count, 133,063 individual names, exclusive of firms, corporations, etc., an increase of 3,708 over the previous issue. The number of buildings of all kinds in the city, as shown by the street directory, is 61,914, an increase of 4,893 over last year. Of these 3,035 are shown vacant, as compared with 2,093 in the last edition. The above 3,035 vacant buildings include those in course of erection.

THIEVES BUSY ON TRAINS.

Operations Between Buffalo and Hamilton.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: The Lehigh Valley and Grand Trunk Railroad detectives have been busy for the past several weeks trying to run down a gang of thieves who have been operating on the passenger trains of these roads between Buffalo and Hamilton. So far, as has been learned by the detectives, or at least from what they are willing to tell, the gang is making its rendezvous in this city. The modus operandi of the gang is to board pass through the train, size up the valises, and then when they are left unguarded when the train nears a station, the thief steps off the train with it and checks it at the station. He may or may not reboard the train, and perhaps make a second haul while making the same trip. The detectives say that the two companies have received a number of complaints recently, but the gang has so cleverly carried on its operations that the detection has thus far been impossible.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH

Fire From Unknown Cause Destroys House and Its Contents.

A despatch from Brantford says: gedies ever recorded in this vicin-gedies ever recorded in this vi inity was enacted near the village of Lynden on Saturday morning, when the home of Philip Vansickle, a retired prosperous farmer, was destroyed by the devourig element. The disaster was complete, not only dealing destruction to the house, but claiming every one of the four inmates, including the father, son, daughter, and son-in-law. Nothing remains of the once substantial homestead and well-known family but ruined walls and charred bodies.

The Dead.—Philip Vansickle, aged eighty years, retired framer; Martin Vansickle, aged twenty-three years, his son; Harry Vansickle, aged thirty years, son-in-law; Melitta Vansickle, aged forty years, daughter.

The origin of the fire, which was at first a mystery, has been traced to the stove in the front hall. The supposition is that the glowing coals from it fell on the floor, setting fire to the oil cloth and kindling a blaze, which either suffocated the inmates in their sleep or cut off the means of exit when they endeavored to escape from the building when it became a mass of flames. Thus far, however, all theories are based on supposition.

But one fortunate circumstance stands out against the dark background. Mrs. Harry Vansickle, with her three children, all of whom resided at the destroyed homestead, were absent at the time of the disaster, being at Trinity, where Mrs. Vansickle was visiting her husband's father, Wesley Vansickle. They returned last night terribly affected.

LAIRD-SCOTT CASE DROPPED.

Litigating Parties Agree to End Their Dispute Over Charges.

Regina, Sask., Feb. 3.—Following the disagreement, after 12 hours' duration, of the jury in the Laird-Scott criminal libel case, an agreement was reached yesterday afternoon by which all the cases arising out of graft charges are dropped.

The case of Laird against The Regina Leader, Premier Scott's paper, for $25,000 damages, is dropped and Laird is to ask the Attorney-General to definitely discontinue criminal action against Scott.

The reason given for the arrangement is the prospective difficulty of arriving at a verdict and an agreement is made that the costs in each case will be paid by the parties incurring them.

The foreman of the jury told Judge Nelands they had reduced the charge to that of Laird having received $500 for his city campaign fund, and found him innocent of all but this.

The sticker was whether or not this $500 was used for his personal profit.

Prime picked lots, equal in quality to best exporters, sold at $4.80 to $5.10, with one lot of six, sold by Corbett & Hall, at $5.20, but they weighed 1200 lbs., and when space was plentiful would have been taken as exporters; loads of good, $4.50 to $4.65; medium, light cattle, $3.75 to $4.10; common, $3.50 to $3.75; cows, $3 to $4.25; canners, $1.50 to $2.

There is some enquiry for short-keeps, but the demand for exporters has put this class out of reach of the ordinary buyers.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair delivery of milkers and springers, for which high prices were paid, when quality is taken into consideration. Prices ranged from $50 to $60, but the latter price was seldom paid, as there were few cows good enough to bring it. The bulk of the best on sale sold at from $45 to $55 each.

WILL BE AN EXAMPLE.

St. Thomas Judge Gives 14 Years and 16 Lashes to Brute.

St. Thomas, Feb. 3.—Charles Fiveash was sentenced yesterday to fourteen years in Kingston Penitentiary and to receive 60 lashes, 20 in one month, 20 in a year, and 20 in two years.

This punishment was meted out to him by Judge Coulter, who found him guilty after a trial lasting only a few hours of a criminal charge, his accuser being his eighteen-year-old daughter, who admitted relations covering the past year. The prisoner's wife made the complaint.

Fiveash is a recent immigrant, and has not worked for the two years of his residence here. In court yesterday he said he was under the hypnotic influence of his wife.

The judge ordered an examination as to his sanity. Three doctors declared him sane, and in passing sentence the judge said the only use of Fiveash's whole life should now be the warning the sentence might be to others.

Fiveash did not wince when sentenced.

Charges Against Judge.

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Judge E. B. Fralick of Belleville was at Madoc on Jan. 28, when the license inspector at Madoc obtained the conviction of two hotelkeepers, Wm. Goulding and John Quinn of Marmora, for selling liquor to minors. R. R. Casement, J.P., imposed a fine of $20 each upon the offenders.

Judge Fralick's court sat the same day, but only for an hour, and the judge sojourned to the hotel afterwards.

The inspector reports to the Provincial Secretary's Department that the judge talked very loud about the cases. He reminded the inspector that if the cases were appealed, they would come before him as county judge, and if this were the case he would "soon upset the convictions."

The notices of appeal being now issued, the inspector reports the matter so as to make certain that Judge Fralick should not be permitted to adjudicate upon them.

The Department will lay the matter before the Minister of Justice.

Phoenix, B.C., Feb. 3.—Chief Bunbury and Constable Docksteader, assisted by the deputy sheriff of Okanagan County, Washington, rounded up three bandits at Oreville, Washington, 70 miles west of here. The deputy sheriff arrested Bill and Cleve Newman, lodging them in the county jail. Both carried revolvers. By a ruse a third bandit, Ben Hart, believing he had only American officers to deal with, headed across to the Canadian side, where he was captured after a little gun play.

Hart confessed to participating in the Bridesville hold-up, and has offered to turn King's evidence. The police believe they are the desperadoes who held up a hotel at Midway on Aug. 25, when one man was killed.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION

The Only Sensible Way to Cure Stomach Troubles and Give New Health.

When the stomach is feeble the food lies in it undigested, decays and throws off poisonous gases that distend the walls of the stomach, and causes serious interference with other organs, especially with the action of the heart and lungs. These poisonous gases have other ill effects. They are absorbed by the blood and so weaken and corrupt it as to cause aches in remote parts of the body and the formation of unhealthy tissue everywhere. General bodily weakness and loss of weight is the result. The nerves and the brain are disturbed, and discomforts such as dizziness, hot flashes, sleeplessness, irritability and despondency originate from this source. Experience shows that these troubles vanish just as soon as the stomach is made strong enough to digest the food. In other words it needs a tonic that will rouse it to do the work of changing the food into nourishment. The tonic ought to be one that will agree with the most delicate stomach, and this is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Here is a bit of strong proof:

Miss Lizzie Macdonald, Harbor-au-Bouche, N. S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me what no other medicine did or apparently could do. For almost three years I suffered untold agony from indigestion. I would have the most distressing pains in the stomach after eating. I could not sleep at night and I would rise in the morning feeling tired and worn out. I lost in weight and was almost reduced to a shadow. I was under doctor's treatment almost constantly, but with no benefit. One day I read the testimonial of a lady who had been cured of dyspepsia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. The first two or three boxes I took did not show any apparent relief and I began to fear the medicine would not help me, but as I had bought half dozen boxes I decided that I would use them up anyway. To my joy, before they were all used I began to improve and I got three boxes more. By the time I finished these I was again in the best of health, and had gained 12 pounds in weight. I have not since had a twinge of this terrible trouble, and am more grateful than words can say for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WOMEN BUTCHERS.

An Unusual Feminine Occupation Followed in Paraguay.

The butchers in all parts of Paraguay, South America, are women. In the public slaughterhouses the cattle are despatched by men. This is the only part of the work done by men. The animal is skinned and otherwise prepared by women who are dexterous in the use of the saw and knife. It is served out to the customers by women — not generally by weight, but by the piece—and the price is very low.

Women of all ages act the part of butchers. Some are young and pretty, others old and wrinkled. The women are great bargainers and keen to pull a new arrival almost to pieces in the hope of securing his custom. These women butchers earn good wages, and many of those in business on their own account acquire a modest fortune.

The cause of this state of things is the heroic war waged by Paraguay more than thirty years ago against the overwhelming forces of Brazil, the Argentine Republic and Uruguay combined. This war, which lasted five years, bore many similar points of resemblance to the recent Boer war. It ended in the almost total annihilation of the able-bodied male population of the country.

When the war was over the people had been reduced to the most abject poverty and were on the verge of starvation. Worse still, owing to the destruction of the male population, perfect anarchy prevailed, and all the work formerly performed by males fell on the fair sex. They rebuilt the houses which had been burned down, tilled the fields and wove for themselves rough homespun clothing from the cotton grown in their own fields.

RE-TRIAL ORDERED.

A soldier was recently tried by a court-martial for stealing money, the property of the canteen.

The case was fairly gone into, and eventually the court found him not guilty, and told him that he left the court without a stain on his character.

After a little while a sergeant came in and said to the president: "Please, sir, Private Murphy (the late prisoner) would like to speak to you."

Private Murphy was marched in, and, saluting the Bench, he said: "Beg pardon, sir; I wish to thank you for your kindness, and to ask you what I ought to do with the money?"

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is the result of expert chemical experiments, undertaken to discover a preventive of inflammation of the lungs and consumption, by destroying the germs that develop these diseases, and fill the world with pitiable subjects hopelessly stricken. The use of this Syrup will prevent the dire consequences of neglected Colds. A trial, which costs only 25 cents, will convince you that this is correct.

AFTER FIVE YEARS OF SUFFERING

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS EFFECT ANOTHER GRAND CURE IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Mrs. Margaret Brady Tells How They Relieved Her of Rheumatism and Made Her Stronger in Every Way.

Green's Brook, Pictou Co., N.S., Feb. 1st (Special).—That diseased Kidneys are the cause of the ills from which so many women suffer and that they are cured completely and permanently by Dodd's Kidney Pills, is once more proved in the case of Mrs. Margaret Brady of this place.

"For five years," says Mrs. Brady when interviewed regarding her sickness and cure, "I was ill with Kidney and Liver complaint, which caused Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Heart Flutterings. My nervous system was affected and my blood seemed to lack vitality.

"I tried medicines and was under the doctor's care, but received no benefit till I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Diamond Dinner Pills. They relieved me of Rheumatism and made me stronger and better in every way. These remedies and no other cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased Kidneys and all diseases that are caused by diseased Kidneys or impure blood.

SCIENTIFIC.

To say that love is a disease
Arouses thoughts ironic;
But every scientist agrees
That it is rarely chronic.

They Advertise Themselves.—Immediately they were offered to the public, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills became popular because of the good report they made for themselves. That reputation has grown and they now rank among the first medicines for use in attacks of dyspepsia and biliousness, complaints of the liver and kidneys, rheumatism, fever and ague and the innumerable complications to which these ailments give rise.

Mrs. Yale—"I am very sorry, doctor, you were not able to attend the church supper party last night; it would have done you good to be there." The Doctor—"It has already done me good, madam; I have just prescribed for three of the participants."

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

You may have observed that the man who boasts that he can drink or let it alone usually drinks.

Missionaries in All Lands are friends of Painkiller. Hundreds of letters testify to the fact. For accidents and sudden emergencies, such as sprains, cuts and bruises, they find it invaluable. Avoid substitutes, there is but one "Painkiller", —Perry Davis'—25c and 50c.

The more an egotist a man is the more difficult it is for him to see his faults.

They Cleanse the System Thoroughly. — Parmelee's Vegetable Pills clear the stomach and bowels of bilious matter, cause the excretory vessels to throw off impurities from the blood into the bowels and expel the deleterious mass from the body. They do this without pain or inconvenience to the patient, who speedily realizes their good offces as soon as they begin to take effect. They have strong recommendations from all kinds of people.

If there is any knocking to be done let opportunity do it.

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

Give some people their pick and they'll pick flaws every time.

"A Grave-yard Cough" is the cry of tortured lungs for mercy. Give them mercy in the form of Allen's Lung Balsam, which is used with such good effect even in consumption's early stages. Never neglect a cough.

He who thinks only of himself hasn't any too much to think about.

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

NOT IN THE MEDICAL BOOKS.

A visitor to an hotel was impressed with two boarders—one a pretty, delicate-appearing young lady, and the other a plain-faced maid. Meeting the maid in the hall one morning, he said, sympathetically:

GREAT MEN WHO HAVE PROVED ZAM-BUK.

Scientist, Analyst, and War Correspondent all Testify.

Men and women great in point of knowledge, position and experience, say that Zam-Buk stands superior to all other healing substances. Read the opinions of the following eminent men:—

Mr. Frank Scudamore, the famous war correspondent, who has gone through twenty-nine battles, and whose dispatches during the Boer War were so eagerly read from coast to coast in Canada, says:—"Owing to the poisonous dye from an undergarment penetrating a slight scratch, my legs broke out in ulcers. At one time I had seventeen deep holes in my left leg, into each of which I could put my thumb; and had fourteen similar ulcers on my right leg. Remedy after remedy failed to heal these, and I was well nigh worn out with pain and lack of sleep. Zam-Buk was introduced, and I am glad to say that it gave me speedy relief. A few weeks' treatment resulted in a perfect cure of all the ulcers."

Dr. Andrew Wilson, whose reputation as a scientist is world-wide, in a book recently published ("Homely Talks on First-Aid") says:—"Zam-Buk may be relied upon as an antiseptic dressing which requires no preparation, and has the particular advantage of possessing unique healing properties."

Mr. W. Lascelles-Scott, the famous analyst to the Royal Commission for Victoria, says:—"I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk. It is of great healing power for open wounds or injuries."

All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box; 3 for $1.25; or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. You are warned against harmful imitations.

NEARER STILL.

Phrenologist—"Um! Were your ancestors eccentric?"

Visitor—"No; but my wife is. Examine the small bumps, please."

A Woman's Sympathy

Are you discouraged? Is your doctor's bill a heavy financial load? Is your pain a heavy physical burden? I know what these mean to delicate women—I have been discouraged, too; but learned how to cure myself. I want to relieve your burdens. Why not end the pain and stop the doctor's bill? I can do this for you and will if you will assist me.

All you need do is to write for a free box of the remedy which has been placed in my hands to be given away. Perhaps this one box will cure you—it has done so for others. If so, I shall be happy and you will be cured for 2c (the cost of a postage stamp). Your letters held confidentially. Write to-day for my free treatment. MRS. F. E CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

Time flies, and no airship has been able to beat it.

The man who has no vocation doesn't need a vacation.

Much distress and sickness in children is caused by worms. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator gives relief by removing the cause. Give it a trial and be convinced.

Some men sit on others while trying to stand up for themselves.

Repeat it;—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

All the world's a stage upon which most of us make a show of ourselves sooner or later.

All Women Know what is is to have violent pain. Some take one thing and some another. Our advice is to place "The D & L" Menthol Plaster over the seat of the pain; it will do more to give you comfort than anything.

Maude—"I'm a little uneasy in my mind. Ned asked me to marry him, and I told him I might, some day. Now, would you call that a promise?" Marie—"No, I should call it a threat."

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

Jones—"Why did you leave your new lodgings? I thought the landlady promised to treat you like one of the family?" Smith—"Yes; that's why I left."

Holloway's Corn Cure destroys all kinds of corns and warts, root and branch. Who, then would endure them with such a cheap and effectual remedy within reach?

FACTS ABOUT THE BRAIN.

Hard Thinking is Done at the Back of the Head.

Common opinion has it that the thinking is done in the front part of the brain, so that a high forehead means a lofty intellect. Common opinion, it turn out, is precisely wrong, remarks a scientific man. More hard thinking is done at the back of the head than anywhere else.

Much of the rest is done in a region just above the ears. When the thinking involves action the sides and top of the head play their special part. In fact, about the only portion of the outer layers of the brain substance that have never been found to have the least connection with any sort of thinking is that lying above the eyes.

There is another curious fact about the thinking apparatus. Nine men out of ten at least do all their thinking on the left side of the brain, and might, so far as their purely mental operations are concerned, get on just as well if the entire right half were removed.

There have been men who have lost a cupful of brains out of the right side of their heads and retained all their mental faculties unimpaired. There have been other men in whom the loss of a half thimbleful from the left side has rendered them for the remainder of their lives unable to recognize by sight their own wives.

The phrenologists, of course, have the entire brain mapped out like building sites—combativeness here, order there. This part of one's brain operates when he puts away his shoes in the closet, and when he thrown them at the cat.

Now, as a matter of fact, we have "faculties," in the mind and "organs" in the brain about as much as we have a football-playing muscle and a wood-sawing muscle, and still another muscle for standing still. The brain acts as a whole, just as the body does. We use all our muscles to play football, and we use them all to saw wood.

And the average small boy dislikes to part his hair almost as much as a man dislikes to part with his.

Is Pe-ru-na Useful for Catarrh?

Should a list of the ingredients of Peruna be submitted to any medical expert, of whatever school or nationality, he would be obliged to admit without reserve that each one of them was of undoubted value in chronic catarrhal diseases, and had stood the test of many years' experience in the treatment of such diseases. THERE CAN BE NO DISPUTE ABOUT THIS WHATEVER. Peruna is composed of the most efficacious and universally used herbal remedies for catarrh. Every ingredient of Peruna has a reputation of its own in the cure of some phase of catarrh.

Peruna brings to the home the COMBINED KNOWLEDGE OF SEVERAL SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE in the treatment of catarrhal diseases; brings to the home the scientific skill and knowledge of the modern pharmacist; and last but not least, brings to the home the vast and varied experience of Dr. Hartman, in the use of catarrh remedies, and in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

The fact is, chronic catarrh is a disease which is very prevalent. Many thousand people know they have chronic catarrh. They have visited doctors over and over again, and been told that their case is one of chronic catarrh. It may be of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach or some other internal organ. There is no doubt as to the nature of the disease. The only trouble is the remedy. This doctor has tried to cure them. That doctor has tried to prescribe for them.

BUT THEY ALL FAILED TO BRING ANY RELIEF.

Dr. Hartman's idea is that a catarrh remedy can be made on a large scale, as he is making it; that it can be made honestly, of the purest drugs and of the strictest uniformity. His idea is that this remedy can be supplied directly to the people, and no more be charged for it than is necessary for the handling of it.

No other household remedy so universally advertised carries upon the label the principal active constituents, showing that Peruna invites the full inspection of the critics.
