Council Holds Meet, Will Pave Mary Street W. I. Makes Small Outcry

The regular meeting of Council took place last Monday night with all members present except Carl McMillan. Reeve Chas. McMillan in the chair, opened the business of the Hydro-Electric meeting with the reading of a letter received from Mr. Stanley Coughlar. Mr. Coughlar stated that he was of the opinion that he was unfairly put upon, in the matter of order to rewire the Baldry Block and in the matter of fire-escapes. Council discussed the matter to some length and the final conclusion was to have the clerk-treasurer write the Hydro inspector to authorize a new inspection of the premises of the block in question and see if some arrangement cannot be reached that will make the wiring adequate for the safety of the building at a minimum cost. A resolution to that effect was moved by Councillor Phillips and seconded by Councillor Hamilton.

In the way of Hydro business, also, the clerk-treasurer was authorized to get further particulars about the Pension Plan for Hydro employees.

Three members of the Women's Institute waited on the pleasure of Council to present some items that needed attention. The main point brought out was that there was not enough heat in the Library in spite of the new heating system.

The regret of council was expressed at hearing this and the ladies were aessured that something would be done to try and remedy the situation. The Institute members also called council's attention to the fact that the furniture and appointments of the Library room belong to them and they were being illused on many occasions. With a final plea to have the Library decorated, the ladies left.

After a short discussion of accounts, the members of council waded into By-Law 715, for the maintenance and repair of roads of the town and came up with a definite promise that Mary street be paved this year. Also to get a black top in that section of Queen street west from the race track to the town limits. The work is expected to be done by the United Counties for the usual cost plus 10%. The total appropriation for By-Law 715 will be set at $2500. subject to approval.

With the decision to hold the regular council meetings on the first Monday of each month, the meeting closed.

Winchester Council Defers Action On Hospital Debentures

Discussing the request of the finance committee of the Winchester District Memorial Hospital, for the raising of $20,000 by debentures, at the meeting of the council in the chambers, Winchester, Monday night, the majority of the members were opposed to issuing any debentures until the matter had been voted on by the ratepayers.

At a previous meeting a by-law for the authorization of the debenture plan had been read a first time and forwarded to Hon. George H. Challies for presentation to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

When the by-law was returned to Reeve John M. Fader, he was advised that it had the approval of the Municipal Board and the Provincial eDpartment of Health. The letter also stated that the council could issue debentures for the amount, to run for 20 years, without a vote.

Only one member concurred with the suggestion, and the others thought that the ratepayers had the right to approve of any proposed increase in taxes.

Harold S. Lannin, of the Lannin Lumber Co., and one of the largest ratepayers in the village, said that he was against long term debentures, with their interest charges which would amount to about $8,000.

He suggested that the council, which had taken office with a surplus, might, by practising the strictest economy, make straight yearly grants of $5,000 with a levy of six mills. In this manner the interest would be saved.

While the taxes would necessarily be higher for a short period, it was good business to raise the money in the shortest time possible, while times were good. He was definitely in favor of raising the money in Winchester necessary for the completion of the hospital, but absolutely opposed to the debenture plan.

The council deferred further action until the finance committee of the hospital board and the council can arrange for a joint meeting when a more detailed report of the financial situation will be considered.

Father Francis Foley Heard On "Communism"

Speaking on the subject of "Communism", Father Francis Foley, former Finch boy and now priest at St. Columban's in Cornwall, gave the members and guests a most inspiring address on the evils of Communism. Introduced by Matt Flynn, the speaker was thanked by George Leroux. Father Foley addressed the regular meeting of the Chesterville Rotary Club, on Monday evening. Present as guests to hear the speaker were Rev. Father LeSage of Chesterville who is assisting at St. Mary's church during the illness of the pastor, Father Keaney, and Bernard Foley, brother of the speaker.

Asking the question, "How many of us recognize Communism?" Father Foley took his listeners through the history of the Communism movement from the original concept of a classless materialist society of Karl Marx to that of the present USSR that is nothing more than an ablolute dictatorship with all the "horror" trimmings of a police state ranging from concentration camps to sudden oblivion behind the bars of a political prison.

If comparison were needed between the two regimes, that of democracy and that of communism, one had only to name the four freedoms as they were named in the Atlantic Charter, namely freedom from want, freedom of religion, freedom of speech and freedom of the press. In our democratic way of life we have all these and more. The state does not control the man, but the man controls the state. In Russia there are none of these freedoms. "Freedom of Speech?" Utter one word of criticism against the regime of Stalin and the chances are that the next day you will be in prison, and out there by some member of your household who is a member of the secret police, said the speaker. "Freedom of the Press?" Lots of freedom, except that the papers are all stateowned and say what the Kremlin want's said. Marx said that religion was the opium of the people and Father Foley showed that materialism of the communist doctrine allowed for no religion to be tolerated because it was based on freedoms that a police state cannot allow.

In conclusion the young priest made it quite clear that it becomes the duty of every thinking man, regardless of colour or creed to learn to recognize the basic advances of the Comintern controlled puppets of the world. They are all about us, and the surest way of bringing their false doctrines to light is to live more like that true Democrat, our Savior the Lord Jesus. The fertile ground of communism, discontent, will disappear and the red banner of the Hammer and Sickle will retreat to Russia to die as it began in another revolution, this time for common good.

Narrowly Escapes Davy Jones' Locker

Found clinging desperately to his foundered boat, Keith Nash of Chesterville was rescued from the turbulent waters of Long Island Sound last Friday, suffering from exposure and exhaustion. Thus ended one man's dream of getting away from the cold weather of here for the warm breezes of Florida and points South.

Inspired with the idea of making the trip to Florida by small boat, Keith Nash, radio repairman of Main Street, began last summer to take the necessary steps that would make the dream possible. He went to Montreal and through a broker, bought the old but serviceable fishing schooner, the Rosalie Metis, forty-two feet long with a draught of three and a half feet when the ballast of three tons of railroad iron was in place. The Rosalie was anchored in the Pointe Claire Basin for the summer of 1947 and underwent a facelifting that saw the installation for a cabin fitted out for complete living quarters in the place of the holds for cargo and the replacing of the original engine with one of a little more modern aspect and greater horsepower.

The members of the crew that finally set sail for the south one day last November were Keith as owner and skipper, Stanley Sullivan of Chesterville and the boating editor of Rod and Gun in Canada, Guy Asbury of Nova Scotia. The Rosalie and her crew had planned to head down the St. Lawrence to Sorel, go up the Richelieu River to Lake Champlain, cross that lake, go by canal to the Hudson River in New York State, down to the ocean, along the coast to the beginning of the Inland Waterway to Florida. The only sea stretch would be from the Hudson River to Charlston, and the Rosalie had spent most of her long life on the sea so nothing was feared from that.

Shortly after leaving Montreal the gear that actuates the impulse starter cut off. That made starting a hundred horses a half day's work. Ask any farmer who starts a cold tractor what he would do without the impluse starter! Held up all along the line trying to get repairs for the engine time ran out for the passengers and on December 2nd at Yonkers, N.Y., Sullivan and Asbury had to leave the Rosalie and her determined owner and return home by prosaic railroad.

Keith went on alone but his luck ran out in the choppy waters of Long Island Sound. Alone and his engine dead, the Rosalie out of control, all that could be done was to hang on till help came. It came at long last in the form of the little 200 ton coal boat that found the drifting schooner, took off the semi-conscious owner and took him safely to port. In the hospital now, and recovering well, he is expected home soon little the worse from his adventure.

THE NEW FARM ACCOUNT BOOK

Canadian farmers will receive copies of one of the most remarkable publications ever devised by a Government. It is a blank farm account book to help Canadian farmers keep track of their business the whole year round, and it will be forwarded to them free of charge.

The new Farm Account Book is a securely-bound 44-page volume, nine by twelve inches in size. Following an introduction, there are 15 pages of information on farmer's income tax and 23 lined and headed blank pages on which he can list his transactions from week to week.

The last section begins with receipts from the sale of crops and seeds and covers most other items handled by farmers—livestock, poultry, honey, hides, manure and a dozen other sundry sales.

The next section deals with expenses for seeds, feeds, livestock, custom tools. There are blank columns for work, rent, supplies, wages and capital and revenue from stocks and bonds. The foreword explains how the farmer can calculate his "net worth" and determine what progress—or lack of progress—he has made during the year.

In a few minutes the farmer can put down his day's or week's transactions with a minimum of trouble. The new Farm Account Book can save many farmers money in that it can take the place of an expert. In fact, to have a similar accounting system installed by an expert would be beyond the scope of most men on the land.

Income Tax Information

The 15 pages of farmer's income tax information—which has the advantage of being official—are in question-and-answer form. In general, the theme is that all Canadians who benefit from the nation's vast resources and facilities should contribute to their upkeep and that graduated income tax is the fairest method known to obtain this revenue. The keynote, as stated on page seven, is "fairness and decency".

In this spirit many of the questions show the farmer the best method of taking advantage of every exemption to which he is entitled. If he has difficulty, a District Income Tax Office will advise him; if he is dissatisfied finally with decisions of local or national authorities, he is shown how to reach the independent Appeal Board.

Business men in towns and cities seek taxation and legal advice from the most highly qualified sources, in order to assure exemptions due to them are claimed. This, of course, is perfectly proper because the Income War Tax Act, being economically sound, carefully states these exemptions to prevent the tax burden falling too oppressively at any one point on either individua's or business. Now farmers are given easily-understood official advice to enable them to take advantage of their tax rights.

The introduction of the Farm Account Book gives some of the many reasons for income tax—items like payment for victory in two world-wars, social services, family allowances and the beneficial works of several government departments. Other questions and answers deal with direct tax problems. These are sample questions:

Q—What about income tax anyway? What is its justification?

Q—What assurance have I that I will get fair play?

Q—Why may I claim $100 for some of my children and $300 for others?

Q—How much should I deduct for personal use of my automobile?

Features of the Booklet

The farmer's income tax return is a six-page form which at first glance looks fairly complicated. The new Farm Account Book helps in simplifying this by numbering its headings to agree with the numbers on the tax return itself. For instance, on one of the pages, devoted to expenses under which the farmer lists his payments of wages and board for hired help, he is referred directly to the exact spot where these items should be listed on his income tax return form. Similarly, each column of sales, expenses and other items is numbered to correspond with the items on the income tax return.

Another feature is the "Schedule of Depreciation Rates" on page 14 where some 75 different items on the farm are listed, with their correct maximum rate of depreciation. The barn is expected to last 40 years—rate 2½% per annum—but the farmer's truck is given a 20%, or a life of five years.

The "three year average", which commenced in 1946, is explained in detail. By this system the farmer gets a chance to match good and bad years.

CHILDHOOD'S SHORE

I AM gazing thru the twilight,
Of a day that's soon to close,
And the busy world around me
Seems to join me in repose:
I can see the golden sunshine
Of my youth now gone before,
And my playmates calling to me,
Over there on childhood's shore.

Now the twilight turns to darkness,
And my eyes begin to fill,
As I gaze upon a cabin.
Over yonder on the hill;
Where a loving voice is calling,
As it called in days of yore,
The voice of my dear Mother;
Over there on childhood's shore.

Yes; gazing thru the twilight and the sun has died away,
My lonely heart is aching and my hair
has turned to gray.

I am dreaming of my childhood,
That has gone forever more,
As I gaze across a lifetime
To the joys on childhood's shore.

A BIT OF LUCK

(Port of London Monthly.)

All sailors firmly believe in luck, a belief which seems to be borne out by a recent incident involving two "Beavers" of Canadian Pacific steamships in the lower St. Lawrence River.

The story begins with the Beaverburn, which, after clearing for the United Kingdom from Montreal, anchored for the night in poor visibility some 15 miles below Quebec. Shortly afterwards the master reported by wireless that his starboard anchor cable had parted and that the anchor and 77 fanthoms of chain cable, the whole valued at about £1,250, were lost.

When a ship loses an anchor and cable in the St. Lawrence they are usually lost for good. But another Canadian Pacific ship, the Beaverlake, sailed from Montreal two days after the Beaverburn. The same weather conditions prevailed below Quebec and the master also decided to anchor for the night.

As the Beaverlake swung downstream, her anchor fouled the lost anchor and cable of the Beaverburn. The Beaverlake's anchor was cleared and the lost anchor and cable were buoyed for subsequent recovery. And £1,250 being £1,250, afloat or ashore, the company's officials felt that the long arm of luck had given them a friendly pat on the back.

COMMENT ON CAR STYLES

(Toronto Financial Post.)

A great many Canadians are making pretty sour remarks about the trend in North American car styles. Streets get more and more clogged with straffic, yet cars get longer and wider. The awful jams in traffic and in parking stations constantly takes a higher toll of scratched and bashed fenders, yet fenders and bodies constantly become more vulnerable and enormously more expensive to repair.

Most urban cars at least, most of the time, travel at very modest speeds, yet car design pretends that most of the time we travel more than a mile a minute on wide-open speedways.

Will Save Time

The new Farm Account Book will be 1948's biggest and best give-away. The most precious possession of the farmer is time. This book is laid out to save the farmer hours of time, temper and worry. It is simple and direct and at the end of the year the farmer should be able to tell at a glance whether or not he made maney—and whether or not his income is taxable in view of the mary exemptions explained to him in this Guide.

SEES WORLD DANGER UNLESS CHILDREN FED

Boys and girls in war-torn countries in Europe and Asia are today turning their eyes toward Canada as the opening day nears for the Canadian Appeal for Children, an appeal in which Canadians are being asked to contribute $10 million to assist children whose lives have been blighted by war. The Appeal will start on February 9 and on that day similar drives will get under way simultaneously in 26 other countries in the world as the "have" nations come to the assistance of the "have not's".

Backed by organized labor and industry in Canada and supported by charitable and service clubs—as well as women's organizations, church groups, farmers' co-operatives and cultural societies—the Canadian Appeal for Children seeks to breatne life and knowledge into the existence of the children who have survived man's most determined efforts to kill them.

C. F. Fraser, chairman of the campaign operating committee of the Canadian Appeal for Children, has described the appeal as the most challenging of any appeals ever organized in Canada.

"Canada will reap credit — or shame — depending on the success of the Appeal," Mr. Fraser said. "More than 400 million children in Europe and Asia are slowly dying from hunger and freezing from the cold. Their need is urgent. Canadians may have a role in reclaiming half of the children in the world who occupy one-third of the world's area."

Food is high on the list of products which will be purchased in Canada and shipped overseas to feed the hungry children. Next comes clothing; then medical supplies. Nor is the Appeal being limited to the needs of the bodies.

"It may be truly said that the peace of the world during the next generation depends in large measure on the success of the Canadian Appeal for Children," Mr. Fraser said. "Children who are hungry and cold and diseased do not make happy citizens. Their bodily needs must be met. But unless they are taught to think for themselves, the threat of war remains an ugly shadow. To avoid war, its causes must be destroyed. Happy, intelligent people who have been trained to live with and respect each other are poor candidates for a war machine. We might well be saving Canadian boys and girls of tomorrow by saving the boys and girls of Europe and Asia today".

Five-year-old Willie had been taught that Sunday is not a day for play. One Sunday morning his mother found him sailing his toy boat in the bathtub.

"Willie," she said, " don't you know it's wicked to sail boats on Sunday?"

"Don't get excited, Mother," he replied calmly. "This isn't a pleasure trip. This is a missionary boat going to Africa."

Are You Asking These Questions About Saving Electricity?

IS IT STILL NECESSARY TO SAVE ELECTRICITY?

Yes. Not nearly enough saving is yet being made, especially in the home. Result, for some time past several large industries have had their power supply cut off for lengthy periods in the 24 hours.

IS IT NECESSARY TO SAVE ONLY AT CERTAIN HOURS?

No, it is vital to save at ALL hours. While electricity cannot be stored, water that generates it can be stored. The water storage for the five Hydro plants in the Niagara area is provided by the Great Lakes. This assures a continuous flow of water sufficient to enable these plants to go all out 24 hours a day—still there is not enough power. In 48 other Hydro generating stations throughout Ontario the water supply must be very closely guarded—if too much electricity is demanded one day, the next day's power supply must suffer. This condition is aggravated by the abnormally low rain fall last Autumn.

MUST HOMES DO ALL THE SAVING?

Not by any means. ALL consumers must play their full part. Modified rationing has to some extent reduced the consumption of electricity in stores and by other commercial consumers, but still greater voluntary savings are urgently needed.

HOW CAN I SAVE MORE ELECTRICITY?

Don't leave lights burning in unoccupied offices. Turn idling motors off. Use range elements as short a time as possible. Turn off verandah and all other lights when not needed. Use electrically heated water sparingly. Do not use electric heaters or grates.

Avoid All Waste — SAVE ELECTRICITY!

Publican

Two men went to church to pray. One was a leading citizen, and the other a poor school-teacher.

The prominent citizen stood and prayed thus: "O Lord, I thank thee that I am not like these professional men, even as this poor teacher. I pay half the teacher's salary; it is my money that built this church; I subscribe liberally to the foreign missions, and to all the work of the church. It is my money that advanceth Thy cause!"

The schoolteacher's was quite different. He bowed his head in humility and prayed: "Oh God, be very merciful unto me. I was that man's teacher."

Who can measure, accurately, the influence of one good man's life? We can count the apples on a tree, but cannot count the trees in an apple.

LASTS LONGER

Soap should not be left in the wash tub or dish pan but should be taken out as soon as sufficient suds have been worked up. Wiping the bar of soap may seem an unnecessary precaution but, it is one that will save a scarce commodity from needless waste in the soap dish.

Bits of soap too small to be used in tub or the sink may be melted and used as a soap jelly, thus using every tiny sliver.

IN MEMORIAM

HALL—In sad and loving memory of a dear husband and father and grandfather, David Hall, who passed away February 4, 1946.

Just thinking of you dear daddy,
And the days that used to be
I miss your loving kindness
And all you meant to me,
You often said I'd miss you
Those words have proved so true
I lost my best, my dearest Pal,
Dear daddy when I lost you.
For years we were together
Heart to heart and hand to hand,
But you were the first to journey
To that fair and better land.
Will you watch and wait my coming
When my lonely life is over,
Will you come and meet me daddy
When I reach that golden shore
Too dearly loved to ever be forgotten.

—By wife Alice, daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith, Gerald and Arnold.

Garden Chats

By Lillian Allison

Hello Neighbour:- Greetings. I've been away a long time. Perhaps it isn't too late yet to say "Happy New Year" to you, and may one of your 1948 objectives be to make your home more attractive outside than ever before.

No doubt you think it is a bit foolish to resume "Garden Chats" in February but this really is the time to begin. Spring IS coming, you know, and I can prove it. The bear didn't see his shadow to-day and that means something—or does it? Besides the seed catalogues are out. They are proof-positive of spring. You know, those things are worth money. (Please don't tell the seed merchants I said so, though.) What other booklet can turn your thoughts so quickly from snow storms and sub-zero weather to flowers and sunshine, birds and bees, and, incidentally, backaches? We just couldn't get along without seed catalogues. We'll discuss them at length sometime. Just now let us be satisfied with leafing through them and enjoying the lift those beautiful pictures give.

Are you among the people who manage to keep a forsythia alive? I just started mine last spring. They tell me they winter-kill very easily. If you have one, you might be interested in this suggestion which I read recently. Cut off some branches that have plenty of nice fat buds. Place them in a pail of water in a cool part of your cellar. After several days, bring them up to your living room. Keep them in water and wait. In due time the buds should open into the beautiful golden bells we're accustomed to waiting for until May.

Now I've never tried this, but it is supposed to work. I can't spare the branches off my tiny forsythia, but just for fun, I'd like to experiment with flowering almond. It is a "flower before leaf" shrub too.

My Christmas cactus got the dates mixed this year and didn't bloom until after the festive season was past. I put it outside under a spirrea bush for a rest in the summer. Apparently, I let it rest too long. It is blooming now, but not as profusely as I had expected. Several of the buds have dropped off. Now what would cause that?

Before you read any more of this will you turn to the "Coming Events" column of this Record? I'll mark your place here. That's right. Our Annual Meeting is coming up. You, dear Member, are expected to forget all hockey matches, etc., and buffet the coldest of storms to be at the Library on February 10th. You, friend, are urged to put forth every effort to attend. There will be the election of officers for the coming year. Come and make your choice. Then, besides the usual business of an Annual Meeting, we have planned some good entertainment for your enjoyment. I hear there will be a cup of tea and sandwiches too. You really should be there. This is your Society. There are so many things that could do with your help and support. So don't forget. The time is February 10th, at 8.00 p.m. The place is the Library. You have a date for an evening of business mixed with pleasure.

We'll be seeing you.

So long. ..

THEY MAKE MUSIC, LATIN STYLE

Alys Robi, Canadian vocalist noted for her lively interpretations of Caribbean songs, and Chicho Valle, singer and guitarist who specializes in tunes from his native Cuba, try out some odd-looking musical instruments from Central America before going on the air for a broadcast of "Latin America Serenade," in which they star each week. While Alys shakes the maracas, Chicho shows her how to "scrape" the guiro. (The rattle of the maracas and the grating sound of the guiro mark the rhythm which is characteristic of Cuban melodies.) "Latin American Serenade" is broadcast Sundays at 10.30 p.m. EST, and the CBC Dominion network. It is also heard in the United States on MBS stations.

Aged Britishers Are Grateful For Parcels of Food

Expressions of grateful thanks for parcels of tinned foods sent to aged pensioners of the Gardeners Royal Benevolent Assocation of Britain by the Ontario Horticultural Association have been pouring into the office of J. A. Carroll, secretary of the Ontario Horticultural Association during the last few days. Some months ago the directors of the Association, finding a surplus on hand from the "Seeds for Britain" fund, decided to use the money to send a shipment of food overseas to worthy recipients. Through the Royal Horticultural Society of Britain, arrangements were made to have the food distributed, and it was decided that it should be sent to aged people who had spent their lives in horticultural pursuits, but who are now pensioners of the Gardeners' Royal Benevolent Association. A varied assortment of canned meats, lamb stew, beef stew, beef spread, sausages and cheese was sent overseas, and through the Royal Horticultural Society was sent to some 230 pensioners, many of them widows of former gardeners.

Up to the present, Mr. Carroll has received some 125 letters of thanks from the recipients, nearly all of whom are over 80 years of age, and some of whom go up as high as 97 years. The letters are remarkable, not only for gratitude of the people who sent them, but also for their expressions of courage and faith in the future of Britain. Some extracts from them will give an idea of how these old people feel about the gifts received from the Ontario Horticultural Association, and about the position of their country.

One pensioner, aged 85, writes: "Life is very hard here for old people living alone, as their food points do not go very far, and they simply have not the strength to go and wait their turn with everyone else. So you will understand how welcome is such a gift as you have sent me."

From an 84 year old recipient comes the following: "Our food supply is getting very short, but thanks to your liberality and by our own endeavours we think that we shall eventually pull through."

A man aged 77 writes as follows: "England has been and is still pas- never mind, trials make one strong, and I am sure our old country will recover and take her place in front again, given time."

The following speaks for itself: "I am 88 years of age and nearly blind, but my sense of gratitude and appreciation has not declined. It is good to know—and brings a warm glow to our hearts in these troublous days—that we are in your thoughts in Canada."

A veteran gardener of 85 writes: "Though we are strictly rationed, and we get enough to eat. though not much variety, we are far from down and out, and if we could convert our pounds into dollars we should be all right, as wages are high and work plentiful."

From a widow comes this other thought: "What we would do without our overseas friends I don't know. The only consolation I find in the two wars is that they have knit us more closely together."

From an old gardener who was bombed out of his home in Yorkshire and later moved to Surrey to have another home destroyed by fly bombs, comes this cheerful note: "We in England are going through a fairly tough period, but I think and hope that better times are in store."

And an 80 year old writes as follows: "I am 80 next birthday and my wife is 79. We miss the milk and fats very much, and I sigh for the old Victorian days, times of abundance and good fellowship. However, we are not downhearted. We are cheerful and optimistic."

One more old man writes: "Thank you very much for the splendid gift your Association has sent us. As you know, we have come through some very hard and bitter times but when we are aware that our brothers and sisters across the Atlantic think of us, the burden seems so much lighter."

These are just a few quotations from over 125 letters received by Mr. Carroll, typical of the sentiments they express. As a result of the warmth of the response to the food shipment already sent, says Mr. Carroll, plans are being made to send further shipments to be distributed through the same agency.

Safeguarding telephone wires for trouble-free Service

THE WORK of burying telephone wires or placing them in overhead cable continues year after year. Today, over 4 million miles of telephone wires, 95% of our total, are in cable, safer from storms. Service interruptions caused by weather are fewer, and still our constant aim is to provide even better service.

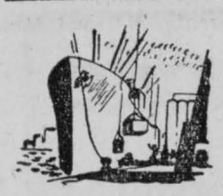

Not only is our service becoming more dependable, but it's growing, too. We are filling orders for telephones just as fast as new equipment is available. More telephones plus more dependable service — and always at the lowest possible cost—mean greater telephone value for every user.

"GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT"
By Laura Z. Hobson

Dear Readers:- Despite all the rumours of war, atomic bombs and general unrest which seem to pervade the world today, I think you will agree with me, there are also good signs in our times. It seems of such good portent that within recent months, at least two books have been published, campaigning against racial prejudice, viz: "Kingsblood Royal", and the book under review today: "Gentleman's Agreement." Mrs. Hobson's story is in defence of the Jewish race, and while you may find lack of logic, to a certain extent, you will agree that Philip and Katherine and Anne and Dave are quite decent sort of people. The scene is laid in the U.S.A. and the owner of a liberal magazine known as "Smiths", feels there is too much persecution of the Jewish person in his country. So we find him, John Minify, giving to Philip Schuyler Green, an assignment to write five or six articles on "anti-semitism."

With many misgivings Philip undertakes the task, he is a successful journalist, entirely free from prejudice, due, as is made plain to the reader, by the wholesome way in which he had been brought up.

Philip's wife had died and he and his widowed mother and little son Tom moved to New York so that Phil might gather at first hand, the material needed for the articles he had undertaken to write. Philip decides to become Jewish for the period required for the writing of the series. His mother suffers an attack of angina pectoris and Phil notices in the perfectly splendid physician who attended her a reluctance to comment too favourably upon a cardiac specialist Doctor Abrahams, because he is Jewish.

The plot thickens as the people in the Office at "Smiths" begin to infer that Phil Green is Jewish and you may imagine the shock he receives when the secretary assigned to type his notes tells him she too is Jewish, but had to change her name in order to be employed by "Smiths," because unknown to John Minify, Jordan, whose business it is, is to engage staff is a Jew hater.

Later, when Jordan's prejudices are brought to the attention of Minify, it seems strange to find the Jewish girl not too keen on others of her race being employed; because she feels she does not look Jewish. Phil has to stand by whilst the caretaker of the apartment house wherein he lives tears down a card on which he had written a Jewish name, and thus it is driven home to him that people of that race are forbidden to live there. Katherine Lacey, Minify's niece is in love with Philip and they plan to marry, she is in on the secret of his impersonating a Jew in order to fulfil his assignment. Phil has letters written and makes reservations in swank hotels, only to be refused accommodation when he conveys to the management that he is one of God's Chosen People.

David Goldman, Phil's friend from boyhood days returns from war service, and fears he will be unable to obtain a house or rooms for his wife and two children. Dave's name will convey to you his nationality.

Dave has suggested to Katherine that perhaps Dave could find a home in Darien where she and her sister have homes. She tells Phil there is a sort of "Gentleman's Agreement" in existence, that no one will permit a Jew to live there.

Kathy knows that Phil is just pretending to be Jewish, but when she begs him to drop this role while at her sister's party, as she would be embarrassed Phil is angry, feeling "You too!"

Tom has to take abuse from the children in the neighborhood, as they believe the boy is a Jew. You will clench your hands when you read of the boy who died in battle, hearing the last earthly words designating him as a "dirty sheeny".

The office gossip McAnny tells friend of Belle, Phil's arrogant sister, that she is Jewish and you can Imagine the high glee with which the other chap hears this and plans to spread the news.

Anne, who also works in the office, the efficient but unhappy type, looks for a home for Dave and finds a sort of a railroad flat.

The good stuff in Kathy overcomes her prejudice, and instead of the squalid flat Dave's family expected, she makes available to them (despite the "Gentleman's Agreement") her own house in Darien.

When Phil has all the material he requires to prove the person of Jewish origin is persecuted, he then lets the staff know that he has impersonated a Jew in order to achieve identification.

The book ends happily for Phil and Katherine.

They are decent people, and many of us, until we read a book such as this, do not realize that perhaps we have innate prejudice. Every nation has its own culture and knowledge and by keeping an open mind, taking the unprejudiced view, we can enrich our lives, by absorbing much they have to offer and thus grow spiritually and mentally.

This book is not in the library but was lent to me by Mrs. Lawrence Doering who very kindly walked the equivalent of four city block, to bring me the book, that I may have it to review for this column. Would you like the Public Library Board to add "Gentleman's Agreement" to the shelves? ....

Mrs. Eric Casselman has donated "The Moneyman" by Costain, and Mrs. Doering "The Sun Is My Undoing" by Steen, to the Chesterville Public Library.

Battle to the Death Between Buck Elk

Snow was churned up by massive hooves and small trees lay uprooted in a great circle around the battleground of a fight to the death between two buck elk in a scene illustrative of the "survival of the fittest" motif. The primitive animal struggle was fought at the fish hatchery a few miles northeast of North Bay where the North Bay Chamber of Commerce maintains a herd of 70 elk.

Principals in the bloody fight were Barney, undisputed monarch of the herd, and a new-comer. Barney, a 900-pound giant, is nine years old.

A few weeks ago, Chamber officials brought some new members to the herd. Among them was a three-year-old, 400-pounder, who immediately became the target for abuse from the king of the herd. Most of the elk ranging the grounds of the fish hatchery are in prime condition, but the youngster was no match for Barney's sharp, swift-thrusting horns.

The big elk's jealousy burst into the open in a brutal attack on his adversary. George Williams, hatchery manager and used to fights among elk, said he had never seen such an attack.

Hearing the familiar sounds of a fight—the thud of hooves in the snow, the clash of horns and the angry snorts—Williams ran to the herd to find Barney standing triumphantly over his fallen foe and preparing to trample him.

The smaller buck was badley wounded and one of his horns had been ripped out. Williams was able to separate the two animals, but the bleeding victim was unable to withstand the attack the next day which ended in his death.

The following day there were no witnesses to the death struggle, but woods-wise observers reconstructed the scene. It was a short battle—lasting probably five minutes—but a violent one over a large circle.

Barney made several fast rushes at the young buck, raking the already weakened body with his long, 12-pronged horns. The smaller animal feebly parried with his one remaining horn to no avail and soon went down before the savage, slashing onslaught.

Some instinct of the wild—possibly jealousy of a younger male—made the winner pound his defeated opponent's body with huge hooves after the kill, for the youngster's body was buried in deep snow, with only the ears and tip of the remaining horn visible.

Williams said "this is the first time as far as I know that one elk has killed another".

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers and Classmates! We certainly appreciate the letters from Home Science students as we recall school days—as a matter of fact we really never have finished studying. They say, there is nothing new under the sun, but there is a lot to be gained from experience and research. Not so long ago, there were only 5 vitamins, now we have heard of about 18. You ask what useful purpose do vitamins serve? Vitamins are often referred to as protective foods, because their presence is indispensable to good health and normal growth. The maximum benefit cannot be derived from the building foods if vitamins are absent. Vitamins not only maintain a healthy and active condition of all parts of the body, but also directly assist in resisting disease. Each vitamin has a special function.

Vitamin A defends the body against infections, particularly the eye, ear and respiratory tract.

Vitamin B helps to maintain a strong, active digestive system and so prevents indigestion and constipation.

Vitamin C protects the skin, teeth and bones.

Vitamin B-2 helps to prevent nervous and digestive disturbances.

It is good to remember that the fresher the food, the more valuable is the vitamin content. The potency of the vitamins is reduced when the food in which they are present is cooked or stored. Exceptions to this are canned food and pressure cooked food, because in both instances, the method of preserving is air-tight and the cooking time is reduced to a minimum.

Miss T. B. asks: If a layer cake is not done in the time and at the exact temperature specified, would it be better next time to leave it in longer at the heat stated or should the cake be baked at a higher temperature for the specified time?

Answer: If following a reliable tested recipe, always use the temperature specified. The length of time for baking at that temperature may vary anywhere from 5 to 15 minutes. If the cake does not appear to be baked in the length of time given in the recipe, leave it in the oven a few minutes longer. When the cake shrinks away a little from the sides of the pan and is firm and springy on top, it is safe to take it out of the oven. Do not increase the temperature as this may cause uneven rising or cracking.
