Friends, neighbors help save Holstein herd from blaze

BAINSVILLE — An early Sunday morning blaze destroyed most of a barn owned by Archie Malcolm (Mackie) and Susan Robertson of the Bainsville area.

The Lancaster Fire Department was called out to the Robertson farm at 8:15 a.m. Sunday, but Fire Chief Roger Menard said there was little his men could do to battle the fire.

"We suspect the fire was electrical in origin," he said. "The barn was so involved when we got there, we might never know what started it."

Mr. Menard said the fire appeared to have started in the barn's hay mow and quickly spread throughout the structure. That theory would explain why the west side of the barn, which doesn't have a hay mow over it, was saved while the east side, where the mow was located, went "like a wild fire."

Damage is estimated at approximately $200,000, although it probably would have been much greater had it not been for the help of neighbors and friends.

Only six animals out of the herd of 125 head of Holsteins were lost, thanks to the efforts of local residents, many of whom raced into the burning barn and dragged, pushed and sometimes carried the animals out.

"They were lucky they had all the neighbors there to carry the animals out," Mr. Menard said. "There were a bunch of people who helped out. It was almost like having another fire department there."

Mr. Menard praised the work of volunteers, some of whom pulled burning bales of hay out of the mow and threw them onto the ground. Neighbors quickly rounded up a backhoe and two bulldozers, which pushed the burning hay into the field, away from the barn.

"Without their help," the fire chief said, "the whole thing would have burned down."

Mr. Robertson and his wife were about to go upstairs to get ready for church when Mrs. Robertson noticed something was wrong with the barn.

"We had been having breakfast," Mr. Robertson said Monday evening. "I farm with my dad (Archie A. Robertson) and my house is about 600 feet away from the barn. My wife got up from the table and noticed smoke coming out of the roof vents. I ran over to the barn while my wife phoned the fire department."

Within 10 minutes, a crowd of 20 neighbors and friends had appeared and quickly went to work trying to save whatever equipment and livestock they could."

Mr. Robertson said he had last been in the barn doing morning chores between 7:30 and 7:40 a.m. and hadn't noticed anything out of the ordinary. A hired hand had even gone into the mow to throw down some hay and nothing was amiss.

"If the fire started in the walls we probably wouldn't have noticed anything," he said. "The electrical panels were on the walls, just below the hay mow."

In spite of his tragic loss, Mr. Robertson had high praise for the people who came to his aid when he needed it. The Robertson herd is temporarily housed at the farm of Gerald Jans in Moose Creek. Mr. Jans recently sold his herd and a fully equipped barn was put at Mr. Robertson's disposal.

"We must have had 150 people here on Sunday," he said. "There were dozens and dozens of cars lined up. The fire department was great too. They must have been here in 15 or 20 minutes. It was just, zap, they were here."

On Monday, another 30 people showed up to help Mr. Robertson and his father clean up the debris. Mr. Robertson said the family plans to rebuild, but at this point he's not sure just when that might be.

"I hope to do it as soon as possible," he said. "We were insured for a good part (of the loss)."

While discussing the loss of his barn, Mr. Robertson kept coming back to the help offered by neighbors and just ordinary people who were passing by.

"There were people in that barn who had been on their way to church and they had their suits on," he said. "I'd say the churches in Glengarry were underpopulated that day. Even Cst. Randy Millar of the Lancaster OPP was there. First I saw him, he was leading the fire trucks and then the next thing I know, he was picking up a cow and carrying it out. It's nice to know you have friends."

Local residents have organized a benefit dance for the Robertson family. It will be held April 11 at the Bonnie Glen. Music and refreshments will be provided and donations will be accepted at the door.

For those who want to donate, and won't be at the dance, a series of drop-off points have been set up throughout the county. A complete list of the locations can be found in the classified section of The Glengarry News.

TOWERING STRUCTURE—The new water tower in Alexandria's industrial park is almost finished. Several minor jobs, such as painting, remain to be done and officials say it should be ready to go by May. The water tower stands 112 feet tall, has a diameter of 40 feet and will provide 900,000 gallons of water.

APARTMENT GUTTED—An early morning fire on Sunday destroyed an upstairs apartment at the Rasin River Refinishing company in Martintown. Owner Wayne MacDonald was asleep in his bed when the fire was reported shortly after 2 a.m. He had to scramble out of a side window and climb down an electrical pole to safety. Damage is estimated at $40,000.

Fire guts apartment

MARTINTOWN — A Sunday morning fire in Martintown heavily damaged the Raisin River Refinishing company and forced the owner, Wayne MacDonald, to flee for his life.

The Martintown Fire Department was called out to the blaze at 2:10 a.m., after being alerted by passers-by. The fire appears to have started in the upstairs apartment and most of the damage was to the apartment, although the downstairs shop did suffer smoke, water and some fire damage. Total damages are estimated at $40,000.

While the fire is a great loss for Mr. MacDonald, the episode could have been much worse, as he was forced to flee out an upstairs window.

Speaking to The Glengarry News Monday night, Mr. MacDonald said he had been asleep in the apartment and woke up choking with the smoke. At the same time, a friend, Paul Deschamps, who had noticed the fire, was attempting to enter the smoke-filled building to alert Mr. MacDonald.

"I went out the side window and climbed down an electrical pole," he said. "I don't even remember smashing the window or climbing down the pole, it all happened so quickly."

Mr. MacDonald, who has been burned out twice, said he had no insurance on the business or his apartment. Four years ago another fire, started by a wood stove he said, destroyed the first location for his business. The firm employed two.

Now staying with his mother in Cornwall, Mr. MacDonald said the experience of waking up in a smoke-filled room was a living nightmare.

"I couldn't breathe," he said. "It was just an unbelievable experience. I never want to go through it again. I'm still choking today. I guess I'm fortunate that I got out. My mum keeps telling me I'm lucky to be alive."

Miraculously, the only injuries Mr. MacDonald suffered were to his feet. In his haste to get out of the apartment, he neglected to put shoes on.

Tickets are available from members of the Chamber executive.

Sports Palace Board loses second member

The Glengarry Sports Palace Board has lost yet another member as Euclid St. Denis announced his resignation last week.

Mr. St. Denis, a member at large who lives in Alexandria, announced his intention to quit March 18, following a board meeting held at the Sports Palace.

Mr. St. Denis was the second board member to quit in as many days last week and both resignations appeared to be connected.

Maurice Desautels, a former Lancaster Township councillor and tha municipality's representative on the board, resigned last week after he was accused of using his influence to get his daughter a secretary's job at the Sports Palace.

The charges surfaced when fellow board member Mr. St. Denis wrote a letter to Alexandria Town Council, claiming Mr. Desautels had a conflict of interest in the hiring. Mr. Desautel's daughter, Sylvie Chisholm, was hired as secretary in December last year. Her father was one of four men who served on a committee that selected a candidate for the job.

At the time of his resignation, Mr. Desautels accused Mr. St. Denis, and others, of being "troublemakers" and said he had done nothing wrong. He said he was resigning to keep the "troublemakers" happy and because he didn't need the aggravation.

On Wednesday Mr. St. Denis said the Desautels affair had been discussed at the March 18 board meeting and he was severely criticized by the other members for his actions.

"The board felt the problem had been resolved," he said. "But people were still coming up to me and asking me what was going to be done about the situation. I can't work under those conditions. I was trying to get the situation resolved and I was the one under fire. I'm not the one with the conflict of interest."

While nobody on the board asked for his resignation, Mr. St. Denis said he felt he was being criticized for doing his job of representing the public interest on the board.

"They told me what I had done would give the board a bad name and make the town look bad," he said. "This whole thing should never have happened in the first place."

Mr. St. Denis said there was nothing personal in his actions and he regretted that Mr. Desautels felt there had been.

"I have owned and operated a business here for 20 years and I have been involved with the municipality throughout the course of these years and I think I've earned a solid reputation as an honest and responsible citizen and not that of a troublemaker," he said. "When you represent the public on any board, you've got to speak up when there is something wrong. That is exactly what I did. If this is what makes one a troublemaker, then maybe this town could use a few more of them."

Mr. St. Denis, who has served two terms on the board, said he won't reconsider his resignation.

"This is final," he said. "If by doing your job you're going to make enemies, then it's not worth it."

Mayor J.P. Touchette, the chairman of the Sports Palace Board, said last week he hadn't heard of Mr. St. Denis' resignation, prior to being contacted by The Glengarry News.

RRCA agrees to grist mill renovation

MARTINTOWN — While there was some opposition to the plan, members of the Raisin Region Conservation Authority (RRCA) voted in favor Thursday night of proceeding with the restoration of the Martintown grist mill.

Members voted nine to two in favor of spending an estimated $130,000 over the next three years to stabilize and restore the 140-year-old structure. Voting against the motion were Roxborough's Ray Alguire and Cornwall Township representative John Cleary.

The RRCA will now apply to the provincial government for a 50 per cent grant to cover the work. Should everything go smoothly, work on the first part of the project, rebuilding the mill's foundation, could begin by as early as July.

The grist mill, which is owned by the RRCA, is one of the last of its kind to be found in the region. It has been in imminent danger of collapse for many years and since early last year the RRCA has been trying to determine if there is enough public and municipal government support to save the mill.

A public meeting held last summer in Martintown indicated the public was behind the process and a local fundraising group, Friends of the Martintown Mill, was formed soon after.

The last stumbling block, support from the local municipality, was overcome on Feb. 11 when Charlottenburgh Township Council agreed in principle with the project and also agreed to contribute more than $17,000 toward the cost.

At the same meeting, the township approved a funding scheme that would see the Friends of the Martintown Mill contribute $30,000, the province kick in with $65,000 and the RRCA provide just over $34,000.

Man killed in home

SUMMERSTOWN STATION — A 31-year-old Summerstown Station man was killed Wednesday morning when he was electrocuted in the basement of his home.

Arthur Geneau, Lot 14 Concession 3, Charlottenburgh Township, had been alone in the house at the time of the accident. He was discovered a short time later, lying on the basement floor, by his wife Nancy.

He was rushed to Cornwall's Hotel Dieu Hospital, but it was too late. A subsequent post mortem confirmed he had died of electrocution.

Cst. John Moore of the Lancaster OPP said he still isn't sure just how Mr. Geneau was killed. At the time of the accident, Mr. Geneau had been working on or near a sump pump and the basement had been flooded with almost a foot of water.

Ontario Hydro inspectors were on the scene soon after the accident and while police say they have some theories of what happened, more investigation will be needed before they can say for sure.

Mr. Geneau, who was on vacation when the accident occurred, had been a mechanic at Lancaster's V&H Equipment, a farm equipment dealership. Employees say he had worked there for the past few years and described him as a good worker.

"He was a fantastic fellow," Bob Periard, parts manager, said Monday. "He was helpful and he wasn't afraid of hard work."

Mr. Geneau was the son of Wilfred Geneau and Doris Picton. He is survived by wife Nancy Jean Warden, daughter Allison at home, brother Wilfrid Jr., and sisters Lucille Rochon and Lynn Gallant.

Visitation was at the McArthur Bros. and MacNeil Funeral Home in Cornwall, with the funeral on Saturday at 2 p.m. at St. Andrew's United Church in Williamstown.

Rev. Roger Evans officiated and interment followed in the church cemetery.

Water problems found in Avonmore wells

by Sybil Carello

AVONMORE — Results of a three year engineering study show most wells and tile bed septic systems in Avonmore to be below Ontario Ministry of Environment (MOE) standards.

But because none, according to the study, constitutes a serious health hazard, individual cleanups will be on a voluntary basis.

If all the recommendations in the study are complied with, it would cost approximately $500,000, assuming 85 per cent MOE funding.

MOE officials and representatives from the Eastern Ontario Health Unit, along with A. J. Graham Engineering Consultants, Ottawa, met with Roxborough council and some 40 ratepayers to discuss the report recently at the Avonmore Community Centre.

The focus of the public meeting centered on the contents of a two-volume study, begun in 1982 and compiled by Graham Engineers. The study was initiated by council on the basis of a 1980-1981 preliminary survey which indicated there were some levels of pollution present. On the strength of the survey, council asked the ministry to proceed with a full scale investigation, involving 137 lots.

MOE official Bob Hellier, told residents that with government funding, the average cost for a septic system would be $375. Sealing an old well, and drilling a new one, would cost $600. Without funding, it would carry a price tag of $2,500 and $4,000 respectively.

"If the choice is to upgrade," said consulting engineer, Brian Boyd, "two

Man will be back in court

A 20-year-old Lancaster Township man will be sentenced April 24 for sexually assaulting a four-year-old boy.

The man was charged by OPP Jan. 7 in Lochiel Township. The court ordered the man's name not be published in order to protect the identity of the young victim.

The court was told the man had been babysitting at the time of the incident, and at one point the accused and victim fondled each other's sexual organs.

Later that evening, the child told his father what had happened.

Police say the child doesn't appear to have suffered any physical injury from the assault and there are no indications the man used threats or violence against the victim.

Water problems found. . .

quotes from well or tile bed contractors is the general practice.''

Another factor to consider, he added, is the financial advantage of using one contractor for all the work.

He assured ratepayers the program would be flexible because some of the information given the time-lapse might now be outdated. He suggested that problems which have arisen, as well as work done since the study, should be properly documented and receipts, if any, kept for funding purposes.

Two alternatives to the voluntary individual upgrading program, a communal system and a holding tank, were ruled out.

''The communal system,'' said Mr. Boyd, ''would cost in excess of $1 million and a holding tank would mean high operating costs.''

Before the study is formally adopted by the ministry, it has to be accepted by council and residents. Once this is done, a resolution forwarded to the MOE regional director in Kingston will eventually channel its way to Toronto for final approval.

According to the study, poorly constructed wells are to be the cause of poor quality well water in some instances.

Of 137 lots checked, 19 wells were completely satisfactory; 106 were found to be substandard; 10 were not tested because of insufficient information; and two lots had no wells. The recommendations called for 45 new wells to be drilled and existing old ones to be sealed.

The tilebed systems included 36 that were seriously sub-standard.

''This,'' said Boyd, ''could mean a number of things, a too small or too old septic tank, no washwater facilities, too small a lot, or probable watercourse contamination.

Although 72 tilebed systems were classified satisfactory, this, according to Mr. Boyd, only meant they were operating adequately, not operating up to the required standard.

''Most tilebeds installed before 1974 are substandard'', he said.

Another 26 of the systems again, could not be categorized because of insufficient information. Three lots had no systems.

Initial ratepayer response to the study was guarded. A number of the residents came up to the stage to look at the volumes and see how they fit into the picture. Most seemed to welcome the news that the voluntary program is not dependent on group participation for funding approval.

One resident, however, questioned the effectiveness of the voluntary program. She said her well is 23-years-old and although it has been properly sealed and grouted and checked periodically, there is still a problem with her water. She blamed other defective systems for this.

''If only half of the people upgrade, what's the use of doing half a job,'' she asked.

She told officials that systems in the north-end of the village have problems.

Mr. Hellier said some wells in that area have been sealed to prevent contamination of the upper strata (aqua-fer) water level.

But the ratepayer was adamant. ''One well recommended for sealing, never was'' she argued. ''And it's polluting the rest.''

Mr. Hellier explained that some of the wells, although sealed, are not grouted. ''Grouting does seal properly,'' he added.

At the close of the meeting, Councillor Ray Alguire reminded residents: ''If you are aware of a problem with your systems, it should be taken care of now, when funding is available.''

Residents interested in the study, and how the recommendations affect their individual lots, will be able to look it over at the Roxborough municipal office.

Avonmore ratepayers will have two years from the date of ministry approval of the program, to take advantage of the available funding.

Gas war continues

Gas prices continue to drop as Alexandria's gas war wages on.

The competitors showed no signs of easing up as prices lowered for the eighth week.

The lowest price in town is still at Top Valu self-serve gas bar, which was charging 45.1 for regular and 47.5 for unleaded gasoline, Tuesday. The same station charged 50 and 50.8 early last month.

Alexandria's newest competitor, Suny's on Main Street, followed Top Valu's lead at 45.2 and 47.6. Manager Gilles Theoret plans to continue slashing prices as long as Top Valu does.

Other stations are also cutting prices to keep up. The most recent decrease occurred during the past weekend as J.E. Garage and Daniel's Gas Bar dropped to 45.6 and 48, 45.3 and 47.7 respectively.

Alexandria Service Centre cut prices Tuesday afternoon and plans to stay right behind the main competitors at 45.1 and 47.5 Gareau's Sunoco was charging 45.9 and 48.3, while Cuerrier's Garage was at 45.9 and 48.9. Both stations plan to stay in the race as long as their suppliers support them.

Brown House General Store was keeping up with the gas war at 45.9 and 48.9. Roger's Texaco was slightly lower at 45.3 and 48.3. North End Garage is standing at 45.9 and 48.3, while Fassifern General Store was holding at 45.2 and 47.6.

C&D Automotive was selling gas at 45.9 and 48.3. Owner Cliff Massie said they are selling the gas at cost price and not making any profit, but they plan to continue as long as they can.

told the meeting it was time to make a decision and that further action could not be delayed any longer.

''We have all the information we can gather,'' he said. ''The time has come to make a decision on the future of the mill.''

Mr. Alguire, who would later vote against the project, said there were ''a whole lot of ifs'' involved with the scheme and he worried that ''you don't know what anyone will pay if we don't get (provincial) funding.

''If you were a businessman, could you do business on an if basis,'' he asked. ''There's nothing committed and there's nothing assured. The $130,000 estimate is outdated. Roxborough council is against it because nobody knows what it's going to cost.''

The other opponent to the project, Mr. Cleary, reminded the meeting that an RRCA task force was unable to come up with a viable use for a restored mill and he wondered if it was worthwhile to spend $130,000 restoring a building that had no use.

''We're just going to repair a building so it won't fall down,'' he said. ''What are the plans for the building? Until we get these answers, I can't go for this.''

Garth Campbell, a spokesman for the Friends of the Martintown Mill, said his group had thought the building could be used for modern industrial displays. Various local firms would rent portions of floor space to display their wares and demonstrate modern industrial processes.

Mr. Campbell also said his organization had applied for foundation and charitable group status, under the name of the Martintown Mill Foundation, but government red tape had delayed the process.

It seems the application that was sent to Toronto was returned since there was no street address listed for Mr. Campbell and one other member. The two men did, however, list their lot and concession on the form.

''I guess the lot and concession isn't good enough for them,'' Mr. Campbell said. ''I guess people in Toronto think everyone across Ontario has a street address.''

Mr. Campbell went on to assure the meeting that his group would be able to meet the $30,000 commitment. He said they already had verbal promises for a large part of that and would be able to actively start soliciting once they received foundation status.

''I have been approached by a number of people with offers of aid,'' he said. ''I think we'll raise the $30,000 in the first year and we may even exceed it. We're looking in the longer run to provide a great deal more funding than was outlined in the proposal.''

Speaking in favor of saving the mill, Charlottenburgh's Bob Roth said the RRCA owes it to the public to proceed with the work.

''In the years I've served on the RRCA, I can't think of a project that has rallied as much public enthusiasm,'' he said. ''The people who have come forward have nothing to gain financially from the preservation of the mill.''

In response to some members' concerns over on-going maintenance costs once the mill is restored, Mr. Currier said there would probably be an average annual cost of between $5,000 and $6,000, just to maintain the structure.

''We might not spend that every year,'' he said. ''But five or six years from now there might be major touch-up work needed on the masonry. There are no grants to cover that sort of work, so it would have to be raised locally, either through the RRCA or the Friends of the Martintown Mill.''

Back for sentencing for being nude in public

An RR1 Cornwall man will be back for sentencing April 3 in Alexandria Provincial Court after pleading guilty Thursday to two charges of being nude in a public place.

Brian Robidoux was charged Oct. 10 and Dec. 10 in Charlottenburgh Township.

Court was told a woman drove by the home of the accused and saw Mr. Robidoux standing nude through the living room window.

The woman reported the incident to police and the officer was shown were the accused lived.

Police received a complaint two months later when another woman driving by with her five-year-old daughter noticed Mr. Robidoux standing nude in the window.

A pre-sentence report was ordered to assist Judge Reginald Levesque with the sentencing.

BARN FIRE – Little remains of the barn that once housed 125 head of Holsteins for Archie Malcolm (Mackie) and Susan Robertson of Bainsville. A fire Sunday morning destroyed most of the barn and claimed the lives of up to six animals. Mr. Robertson praised the efforts of volunteers, who rushed to the farm and helped get most of the animals out of the burning barn.

Easter message is freedom, life and peace

by Bishop Eugene LaRocque

"Yes it is true. The Lord has risen and has appeared to Simon." (Luke 24:35)

This truth, the physical resurrection of the dead body of Jesus, transformed and spiritualized, is "good news of great joy for all the peoples" (Luke 2:10). As the first-born from among the dead, Jesus becomes the new Adam—"Behold the man." (John 19:5), the first-fruit of a humanity renewed.

In Jesus and through his death-resurrection the domination of Satan, the prince of the world, the slavery to sin and death have been broken. This freedom of the children of God is available to all who freely and whole-heartedly believe in Jesus, the Lord and Savior of all peoples.

St. John the Evangelist, the first to believe in the resurrection of Jesus (as he saw the linen cloths "in their fold" in the tomb, he believed—Jn. 20:9) was a chosen witness who lived almost to the end of the 1st Century; he writes: "There were many other signs that Jesus worked and the disciples saw, but they are not recorded in this book. These are recorded so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the son of God, and that believing this you may have life through his name." (Jn. 20:30-31).

The message of Easter is freedom, life and preace—Shalom. As the blood of the Passover lamb once saved the Jewish people from the exterminating angel of death in Egypt, so the blood of the lamb of God (Jn. 1:36) saves all peoples who believe in him from eternal death. Sinners that we are, all are saved through faith in Jesus as he himself has willed to contact each succeeding generation, through his Body, the Church founded upon the apostles. In the new birth of Baptism sin is destroyed, eternal life is shared through the action of the Holy Spirit and the peace-shalom begins and will reach its perfection in the presence of our Father.

The Church of Alexandria-Cornwall welcomes some 20 adults who for many months have been preparing for Baptism or reception into full communion at the Easter Vigil; may the witness of their lives strengthen us all as we praise the Lord together in the Alleluia of Easter-tide.

May all of us who have renewed our baptismal covenant of death to sin to living in the newness of Christ's risen life encourage one another in a common witness of an Easter joy and peace. Amid the many fears of young and old, in a world gripped in the fear of a nuclear holocaust we dare to assert with certitude that evil, destruction and death will never have the last word.

The victory of the Risen Lord in his own human body will also be the victory of his Body, the Church, the community of believers, for we believe with all the strength of our faith "in the resurrection of the body and life everlasting."

A blessed and Joy-filled Easter season to all.

License suspended, 45 days in jail

A 50-year-old Cornwall man was sentenced to 45 days in jail and had his license suspended for three years Thursday in Alexandria Provincial Court after pleading guilty to two impaired driving charges.

Angus MacDonald was charged Dec. 25 and 26 in Lancaster Township.

Regarding Mr. MacDonald's first offence on Christmas Day, court was told he was eastbound on Hwy. 401 and forced a number of vehicles off the road because of his erratic driving.

The OPP was notified of Mr. MacDonald's driving. The accused was later seen by an OPP officer swaying back and forth while driving northbound on Hwy. 34.

Mr. MacDonald was taken to Lancaster OPP for a breathalyzer test and his readings were 270 and 260 mgs. of alcohol in 100 mls. of blood.

The next day, Mr. MacDonald was observed by an officer driving at a speed of 40 kilometres in a 100-kilometre zone on Hwy. 401.

The accused had trouble opening his door and then staggered a couple of times while talking to the officer.

Mr. MacDonald was taken to Lancaster OPP for a breathalyzer test and his readings were 265 and 257 mgs. of alcohol in 100 mls. of blood.

Court was told the accused has been an alcoholic for many years and has recently been undergoing treatment to cure his drinking problem.

Special music at service

The Church on the Hill in Alexandria, will hold a morning service on Easter Sunday, 9:15 a.m.

Rev. William Robinson will preach to the congregation.

Special music will feature four violinists from the Glengarry Strathspey and Reel Society and Margo Nightingale from Kanata.

Charged for possession

A Greenfield man will be back for sentencing April 17 in Alexandria Provincial Court after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana.

Ronald Lavigne was charged Feb. 7 in Kenyon Township. Judge Reginald Levesque postponed sentencing during the man's appearance Thursday to allow time for a pre-sentence report.

Police received information that the accused had a large quantity of marijuana in his home. The police entered the home with a search warrant and found three kilograms of marijuana in the basement.

The estimated value of the marijuana was $1,000.

A pre-sentence report was ordered to consider the possibility of community service work.

Montpetit a top student at ESRG

One name was inadvertently omitted from the list of honor students of Ecole Secondaire Regionale Glengarry published recently.

Lyn Montpetit, a Grade 13 student at ESRG, earned her spot high on the list with an average of 81 per cent.

Our apologies go out to Lyn and her family for the omission.

EDITORIALS/OPINION

This is peace?

It's hard to accept on faith Ronald Reagan's stated desire to promote and encourage world peace when he's approving nuclear tests in Nevada and blowing up ships and missile sites in the Mediterranean.

Last year the Soviet Union announced a self-imposed moratorium on further underground nuclear bomb tests. The moratorium has been extended twice since, the Soviets say, as a step towards putting a cap on the dangerous and wasteful nuclear arms race.

The Americans dismissed the Soviet move as a propaganda ploy and refused to go along, to the dismay of many world leaders. Instead, in a direct snub to the Kremlin, the Americans detonated another nuclear device deep below the Nevada desert Saturday morning, in spite of pleas from many U.S. congressmen and some allies.

It's impossible for us to understand the arms race. We know it's insane and we all live in the fear that the continued escalation may lead to the destruction of the human race, but we are powerless to stop it.

U.S. ships moved closer to Libya's Mediterranean coast on Monday in a direct challenge to that country's repeated warnings that it would fight. True to their word, the Libyans attacked with missiles, missing their targets. The Americans responded, blowing up two ships and destroying a missile base on shore. As of this writing, there was no estimate on how many people had been killed and injured.

Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy is a major threat to world peace in his own right. Strong evidence exists to link his regime with terrorism around the globe. In many eyes, he's a popular target.

But the Americans' actions in the region early this week risked escalation into full war. Reagan and his cohorts, no matter what they may say to the contrary, were obviously baiting Khadafy, hoping for a fight. It's like a child drawing a line in the dirt and daring another to cross it. In this case, however, the results are far from childish. No one knows where this kind of thinking will lead us. Most don't like to think about it.

There has to be something seriously wrong with a government that will, in quick succession, refuse a chance to reduce the nuclear arms race and, on the other hand, deliberately goad one of the world's most dangerous leaders into a missile battle.

Reagan says he wants peace. Can we believe him?

Stop it now

It's time friends and supporters convinced Senator Jacques Hébert to give up his hunger strike.

The 62-year-old senator is well into the third week of his hunger strike, trying to force the federal government to reinstate Katimavik, a youth employment program founded by Mr. Hébert 10 years ago. Katimavik, at a cost of $20 million per year, was the last youth work program funded by the Mulroney government. There's nothing left.

Mr. Hébert's goals are admirable. One of the faults of the previous Liberal government was that it did too little to promote training and employment for young Canadians. Perhaps the biggest fault of the current Conservative administration is that it is doing far less.

To be fair to Prime Minister Mulroney and his administration, the government has promised a major youth program will be announced later. In the meantime, however, there is nothing.

Mr. Hébert is a courageous and determined man. He has risked his health, potentially his life, to draw attention to the plight of jobless young Canadians.

In so doing, however, he has put the government in an impossible situation. If it refuses to meet his demands, a popular and courageous man may die. If it gives in, the government of Canada will be open for similar attacks again and again. Short of terrorism and open revolution, there can be no more powerful protest against a government than a hunger strike. It's the same weapon used by Ghandi to drive the British out of India.

Mr. Hébert should abandon his hunger strike now. He has made his point in the most forceful manner possible. He has drawn the country's attention to a major problem and the inaction of government. He has already accomplished much of what he set out to do. He can do no more.

If the protest is to continue, it should be left in the hands of the young people themselves. They have been conspicuously absent in recent weeks, while a grandfather risked everything for them, virtually alone.

Let young Canadians take over the protest, if they will. If they won't fight for themselves, they don't deserve to have anyone fighting for them.

Will France cotton to the American-type television?

RAMBLING REPORTER
Eugene Macdonald

La belle France has something new in the way of television fare, American-type programming on private channels. The reception has been mixed, according to a report in Time magazine.

In France as in most other European countries, state-owned TV has traditionally been stodgy and unimaginative, at least by U.S. standards, notes the newsmagazine. The three channels run by the French government offer a lineup of news, highbrow talk shows and inexpensively produced entertainment, along with occasional U.S. imports like Dallas and Dynasty.

Established government-owned—and frequently dull—networks are facing a feisty new array of commercial competitors, according to Time.

If that reference is to American-type programs shown on our parlor screen we're not so certain the viewers in France will find them all that fetching. The soaps, situation comedies and such can be rather dull, and unimaginative in their own right. And television viewers will be dismayed to find their programs so often interrupted by commercials.

We do most of our watching on the Public Broadcasting Service channels, so blessedly free of commercials and so often more entertaining than the networks. One recent Saturday night, Channel 18 from Watertown provided the music of Benny Goodman and the eye-catching Edinburgh Festival.

That same night we read the Time article on France's introduction to U.S.-type programming. We sorta pitied the French viewers.

The first day of spring was a chilly reminder of winter and last week's cold weather was hard to take. But most of the snow has melted away under a strengthening sun, the roads are bare and we are just about free of the iron grip of a winter that actually wasn't too severe.

Warmer weather will give us the urge to step out and strut our stuff that is part of the magic of Spring.

The lenten season gives way to Easter and the time of rebirth comes early this year.

The Easter message is synonymous with Spring in these latitudes. The resurrection comes at a time of year when plant life is multiplying, when humans are soaking in a stronger sun and shedding not only the heavy winter wear but the cloying, depressing thoughts that seem to go with sunless skies.

Spring's here. A hectic summer is in prospect. Let's shed every shred of pessimism and set out to make the most of the warm months ahead.

Have a Happy Easter.

Politics controls dollars, not greater needs of people

SECOND LOOK
Phil Rutherford

After the weather, there's probably no more popular topic for conversation among rural folk than roads. We don't waste much time talking about the good ones (there are a few). They've already been taken care of.

It's the bad roads we like to whine about. There's an endless supply of them. We talk about the bad curves, the blind hills and the narrow lanes, but mostly we talk about bumps and potholes. This is pothole season.

A few weeks back this column was devoted to a list of complaints about Hwy. 34, particularly the northern section from Alexandria to McCrimmon. The road is too narrow for large trucks that use it heavily. It dips in the centre, pulling cars into the opposite lane of traffic. And there are bumps galore. We could go on.

The ink was hardly dry on that week's issue before we heard from other motorists. They were quick to agree with the criticisms of Hwy. 34, but added they had to suffer with roads that were as bad or worse.

Our cartoonist, Bill Hamilton, recently underwent surgery for kidney problems. The healing process has been disturbed by his weekly trips to Alexandria, via Hwy. 417, however. On entering Glengarry on the busy four-lane route he is greeted by a sign warning of a bumpy road ahead. The warning is no exaggeration. The bumps and jars are enough to shake the hubcaps and mufflers off the best built cars. We'd hate to think what they could do to delicate kidneys.

The sharpest remarks came from a man describing the daily agony of driving between Lancaster and Williamstown on County Road 17. There's no room for argument. The problems with Hwy. 34 pale in comparison with this multi-patched trail.

People in the Lancaster-Williamstown area have been complaining about the road for years. There have been petitions. Delegations have attended council meetings. At one point they were told the road would be rebuilt in 1985. They're still waiting.

The bad news came last week with publication of the United Counties' five-year road program. County Road 17 barely made it onto the list for 1990. Motorists will have to bear with the road for at least another four years. And there's no guarantee the road will still be on the list when the time comes.

The county readily concedes Charlottenburgh Township has the worst county roads in Glengarry, in need of far more work than the other three townships combined. And the worst roads in Charlottenburgh all run out of Williamstown. The folks there must feel cursed.

Need is not the main factor when county council determines where its road dollars are going to be spent, however. It all comes down to politics, with the money divided among the three counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. Charlottenburgh is the largest municipality in the largest county of SD&G, but population figures can't overcome political concerns either, it seems.

There's something wrong with the system. It would seem to make sense to spend the county road money where it is most needed and where the greatest

Did you hear about?

NOTEBOOK
Bruce Hayes

I haven't really figured out just what it all means in the larger scheme of things, but I've come to the unshakeable conclusion that North Americans are nuts when it comes to gossip and getting and reading dirt about public figures.

Now I'll be the first to admit that I'll never turn a deaf ear to a good piece of gossip. In my line of work, gossip, rumor and little whispers sometimes form the basis for a good news story. Not that The Glengarry News is in the habit of simply publishing rumors, but I've often found that buried somewhere inside every juicy rumor is a kernel or a grain of truth.

Once you have the rumor, it's merely a case of trying to determine just how much of it, if any, is actually true. Sort of like separating the wheat from the chaff. Heck, some of my best stories have started over a simple cup of coffee with someone.

Like everything else in North American society, people have learned how to make a profit from gossip. One of the wonders of our free market society is that people seem to be able to make a profit out of just about everything.

Now there are many levels of gossip and dirt. The lowest, as far as I'm concerned, can be found at most supermarket check-out lines. Anyone who has stood in line with their cart, wondering what the woman ahead of you plans to do with 15 cartons of maple ripple ice cream, knows what I mean.

Before you realize what is going on, your eye begins to roam and it will usually settle on one of the many tabloids that compete for display space with chewing gum and breath mints.

By the time you're ready to move through the line, you're hooked. You've just got to find out all you can about the woman from New Jersey who gave birth to an alien baby or about Larry Hagman's dire secret—the one he'll take with him to his grave.

The middle level of this phenomenon is populated by all the glossy magazines, the kind that sport no article longer than 500 words and feature an abundance of snappy photos. In them you can learn who the latest trendy couple is and how your favorite movie star is coping with drug addiction.

Then we get into the big bucks, where we find current or former celebrities writing what are jokingly referred to as memoirs, but which usually turn out to be nothing more than an excuse to tell tales about former friends and associates.

When Elvis Presley died in his Graceland bathroom some years ago, a floodgate was opened and a flurry of books, all written by people who claimed to know Elvis best, hit the market. It seemed the only criteria for success was that each volume had to reveal even more dirt and personal details than its predecessor.

Of course, politicians aren't immune to this flurry of tattling in print. Following the Watergate scandal in the United States, it seems typewriters were in big demand as almost everyone who had anything to do with dirty tricks or the break-in at the Democratic headquarters rushed to get their books out first. Perhaps they were worried that everyone would include some good dirt about them in their books and they wanted to make sure their version came out first.

When I become famous, which should be any day now, I think I'll beat all my former associates to the punch. I'll publish my own exposé about myself. The Secret Life of a Small Town Reporter as told to Bruce Hayes by Bruce Hayes. I like it.

Other fellow's view

There has been much said in recent years about preserving the Canadian content of our television programming. The reference is usually directed to programs which are basically entertainment, but that distinction is seldom mentioned.

Those of you who have cable television service will note that you now receive several American channels—and perhaps you have discovered there is, after all, some real value in being able to hear the American viewpoint. The Public Broadcasting channel from Detroit provides some highly interesting discussions for Canadians. Several times each week PBS (as well as some of the other American stations) carry panel discussions which are frequently devoted to American political questions. The question of U.S. aid to the rebels in Nicaragua has been hotly debated by panel members from both American political parties and well-informed members of the public. Further manned shuttle flights have been argued, as well as many other subjects which are very interesting to Canadian as well as American audiences.

The notion that Canadians should be protected against the in-thrust of news from south of the border is not valid. Since our economy, our foreign policy and our very habits of living are inevitably tied to a considerable extent to what happens in the United States, Canadians must remain well informed about actions and ideas as they develop in the republic.

Charlottenburgh hopeful Boundary Road to be paved

by Joanne Stevenson

WILLIAMSTOWN — Charlottenburgh Township Council has expressed confidence its Boundary Road with the City of Cornwall will soon be paved.

At council's Monday night meeting, Councillor Carol Ann Ross reported on the results of a meeting held March 17 with Ed Fulton, Minister of Transportation and Communications, and representatives of the City of Cornwall.

"We met and discussed the Boundary Road situation," said Mrs. Ross. "I feel something will come out of it, even though he made no definite commitment."

Deputy-Reeve Bob Roth echoed this confidence. "This council has, for the first time ever, gone together with the city. We made a good presentation. I hope, before this term of office is over, the Boundary Road will be paved."

The sorry state of the Boundary Road has been the subject of much comment during and after the November 1985 election.

FOODLAND GUIDELINES

A proposed policy statement on Foodland Preservation has been prepared by the Ministry of Agriculture and Food. This policy will replace the current Foodland Guideline. Council forwarded the policy statement to its Planning Advisory Committee for review and comment.

However, council first offered opinions on some of the proposed changes. The new guidelines will not allow land severances for retirement purposes.

"This means a farmer won't even be allowed to retire on his own farm," said Deputy-Reeve Roth. "This is a bit excessive."

Other changes will include allowing two houses on one property, a situation Mr. Roth described as "a nightmare for mortgages."

McKINNON HOUSE

Hopes of preserving the McKinnon House, next to the township hall, as a heritage building, appear to be fading. Road Superintendent Howard Rose demonstrated, by means of a diagram, plans to expand the roads department on the site of the McKinnon House, now owned by the township.

Mr. Rose explained the extra property is needed for the construction of a sand shed and for later expansion of the township garage and parking lot.

Council appeared convinced the construction of the shed was vital to prevent further well contamination in the neighborhood.

Before making a final decision, council will invite representatives of the community who had hoped the McKinnon House could be preserved.

Reeve Morgan Major was adamant about keeping the property and using it for the roads department. "If council wishes, we will invite these representatives, but I'm not changing my mind," he said.

Councillor Paul Rozon agreed. "We need the land. We should not drag this on and on," he said.

Nevertheless, Mr. Roth wanted to give the petitioners an opportunity to hear the reasons behind council's decision.

ST. RAPHAEL'S

Council passed a resolution making formal application to the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture for a Community Facilities grant for repair and restoration work on the St. Raphael's Ruins.

The grant should cover 50 per cent of the expenses.

"When will we get the award? By the time we hear back, we will be into the Bicentennial," worried Mr. Roth.

Council therefore has asked local MPP Noble Villeneuve to expedite the matter.

MARTINTOWN MILL

The Raisin Region Conservation Authority has approved a stabilization program for the Martintown Mill. The three year program will cost the township more than over $17,000, conditional on grants being awarded.

MARTINTOWN FIRE

Following a fire in Martintown this week, concerns are being raised about the availability of an adequate water supply. A reservoir was taken away when the new bridge was constructed and it was never replaced.

Mr. Major promised to speak to County Engineer D.J. MacDonald about it. "If the counties took it out, they should pay for replacing it," he said.

Soap operas for the better

A FEW THOUGHTS

Joanne Stevenson

I just finished watching a particularly heartwarming episode of my daily soap opera. Only a soap opera fan can fully realize the satisfaction of finally seeing a happy ending to a story line that seemed to start with Adam and Eve.

Only politicians delay action longer than the soaps.

In fact, time takes on a magical quality in "daytime dramas". Mothers often look only six years older than their daughters. Pregnancies can last anywhere from three weeks to fifteen months.

Older people never age, go grey, bald or get heavier. Actually, no body ever spreads and everyone has maid service.

It is indeed a unique world where parenting means pecking the cute kiddies on the cheek, patting their little heads and sending them off to Nanny. Just like in the real world, right?

Nevertheless, there is nothing wrong with soap operas.

They provide an hour-long break in the middle of a hectic day. They give you something to look forward to when you're scrubbing toilets. They give you a chance to indulge in gossip without participating in it.

Lastly, the commercials keep you up to date and well-informed on the newest, latest, whitest and brightest.

It is true our society considers the intellectual sophistication of a soap equal to that of a coloring book. Therefore, some rules of etiquette regarding soaps and soap opera watching are in order.

(1.) Don't talk about soap opera plots in general conversation. Sure, if your friend missed an episode because of a family wedding or her own, go ahead and fill her in. However, it is not considered appropriate conversation around a panic table, a barbecue, Christmas dinner or during a poker game.

(2.) Never try to summarize anything that happened on a soap. You'll sound like a lunatic as you chronicle the tangled relationships, the tantalizing secrets, the blackmail, the treasure hunt and the scandal involved. It is easier to explain the theory of relativity than to explain a plot line to someone who has never seen the show.

(3.) Do something constructive during the commercials. There are fewer ads on the rink boards of the world figure skating championships than on an average soap opera.

You could have diarrhea and not miss a thing.

Therefore, find something to do during the detergent commercials. Personally, I like to label my daytime drama a "soap" because I do the laundry during it. Seems I can always find time to whip the clothes into the machine, pour in the softener, take out the clothes, put them in the dryer or even hang them on the clothesline!

The daytime drama revolves around love and romance in a way no other visual media now does. No one need be ashamed of enjoying a soap opera that glorifies romance.

After all, in a society where lotteries glorify money, movies glorify sex and violence, supermarket tabloids glorify trash, what is wrong with a little romance, anyhow?

Principal not looking forward to summer

ST. RAPHAEL'S—The next few months will be difficult ones for Iona Academy's Susan LaRosa.

Mrs. LaRosa, currently in her ninth year as principal at the St. Raphael's school, will be leaving in July for a new job as first vice-president of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association (OECTA).

Although she is "very pleased" about her new job, she admits it will be difficult to leave the school and the community.

"It will certainly be a challenge," she said of her new job. "It's a bigger challenge working with adults than with children."

Her job, which is one of only two full-time positions on the association, will be to act as liaison between the association's head office in Toronto and its 47 chapters spread out across the province. The job will involve a great deal of travelling and Mrs. LaRosa said she will be spending her time talking with teachers and handling their concerns.

Mrs. LaRosa has been an executive councillor on the association for the past four years. She surprised many in the organization when she took the first vice-president's position. Nobody was probably more surprised than the man she beat out, the former second vice-president.

"I believe in the federation," she said. "I enjoyed working as a councillor and I found it was rather time consuming to do it just on a part-time basis. So I decided to go for a full-time job. Now I'll be working in one area, rather than trying to do two jobs."

Though she is able to speak "rationally" about her new job now, she admits it will be increasingly difficult to do that at the end of the school year.

"This was my first job as principal and I was a little green when I came here," she said. "But the community was just terrific. That part I'll find difficult to leave. In nine years I've watched children grow up and I've made friends in the community.

"But I'm not disappearing from the face of the earth," she said. "I plan to keep in touch. My job will involve a great deal of travel and I expect to be in the area a few times a week."

Fined for fraud

An Alexandria man was fined $50 in Alexandria Provincial Court after pleading guilty to fraud.

Serge Deguire, 20, of 20 Peel St., was charged Jan. 23 in Alexandria.

Court was told Mr. Deguire wrote a worthless cheque in the amount of $75 and cashed it at the Ottawa Hotel. The cheque was from a bank account which had been closed since 1982.

The accused has since made restitution.

Politics . . .

number of people may benefit. That's not the logic used by county council, however.

Until the system changes (an unlikely event), Charlottenburgh and Williamstown will just have to fall in line and wait for their turn. Frustrating, isn't it.

The Presbyterian Women of St. Andrew's Church, South Lancaster, held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, March 19, at the Manse, with the president, Elizabeth Geddes, in charge and 20 members in attendance.

The ladies will be sponsoring a congregational supper on Saturday, April 5, from 6 to 8 p.m., for members of the congregation of St. Andrew's, South Lancaster, and St. Andrew's, Martintown. Admission to the supper is by ticket only and these should be obtained as early as possible from the projects committee, Annabelle McNaughton, Hazel Dumoulin, Eleanor Waters and Maureen Liskey, South Lancaster, and Helen MacMillan, Martintown.

The St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women will be sponsoring one of three teenagers to attend the International Youth Trienium Conference in Indiana in July. The other teenagers will be sponsored by the board of managers and the teens group of St. Andrew's.

Guest speaker for the evening was Carolyn Pentinga from Cornwall, who gave a presentation on P. C. Bergeron House—a non-profit charitable registered Community Resource Centre in Cornwall. The House is operated by a local Board of Directors under contract with the Ontario Ministry of Correctional Services. The purpose of P. C. Bergeron House is to provide accommodation and counselling to those on conflict with various branches of the correctional system and those who wish help in re-integrating themselves back into normal society and also to assist those who require help to avoid the non-productive jail terms.

Miss Petinga was thanked by Elizabeth Geddes who presented a token of appreciation.

At the monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to Branch 544 Royal Canadian Legion, members were pleased to welcome Zone G4 Commander Winnifred Campeau who gave information regarding several new regulations and also some advice regarding the Zone Rally to be held April 23 with Lancaster as hostess.

Zone G4 Sports Officer, Celina McCormick advised members there will be a sports meeting at Gananoque, June 1.

Plans were made for the monthly euchre to be held Sunday, April 6 and cribbage on March 26.

Luella Montroy and Irene Lauzon were elected as a nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers to the next meeting April 16.

Former Canadian Bar president dies in west

A pioneer lawyer in Edmonton who had served as president of the Canadian Bar Association in 1949-50, Stanley Harwood McCuaig, CM, QC, LLD, (Hon.) died March 6 in Edmonton. He was aged 95.

A native of Bainsville, Mr. McCuaig had taken an active part in community affairs during his long career in Edmonton. He had been president of the Law Society of Alberta of which he was an Honorary Bencher and had been made an Honorary Member of the American Bar Association at St. Louis in 1949.

He was a member of the Order of Canada and was awarded the Benemereti Medal by the Pope in 1963 for his service to religious and charitable organizations. He was Edmonton's citizen of the year in 1955.

Stanly H. McCuaig was born at Bainsville February 11, 1891, a son of Duncan D. McCuaig and his wife, Catherine McIntosh. Following his education at Williamstown and Queen's University he moved west to Edmonton where he articled in Law to Hon. A. C. Rutherford, first Premier of Alberta and subsequently in 1919 his father-in-law. He had served overseas in World War I.

Called to the Alberta Bar in 1919 he became a member of the Rutherford law firm and later a partner in the firm of McCuaig Desrochers in Edmonton.

He married Hazel Elizabeth Rutherford September 17, 1919. A daughter, Ruth Elizabeth, Mrs. T. Edward Bate, predeceased him and he is survived by two sons: Eric Alexander D. McCuaig, QE, a member of the firm, Harwood Stanley McCuaig and one daughter Helen, Mrs. Frank J. McEvoy.

The funeral was held to First Presbyterian Church in Edmonton, of which he was an elder.

Two hurt in car accident

Two area people were sent to hospital for treatment of injuries they received in a two-car accident March 16 on the King's Road.

Lancaster OPP report that Edward Tremblay, 75, of Cornwall, was driving a 1986 Pontiac north on the Summerstown Road, approaching the intersection with the King's Road.

Police say Mr. Tremblay stopped at the stop sign and then pulled out into the intersection, directly in the path of a westbound 1973 Chevrolet, driven by Roger Bedard, 18, of Green Valley.

Both Mr. Bedard and a passenger in the Tremblay vehicle, Mary Tremblay, received minor injuries and were taken to Cornwall's Hotel Dieu Hospital for treatment.

Damage to the Bedard vehicle is estimated at $500, with $5,000 damage to the Tremblay vehicle. Cst. Chris McDonell investigated.

CWL continues to study Third World

by Anna Margaret MacDonald

"Extensive knowledge of conditions in Third World countries is important so we will continue and increase our support of the Canadian Catholic Organization of Development and Peace," Therese Whelan of Alexandria told members of the Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League at a recent meeting in Glen Walter.

The president of the French-speaking section of the CCODP in the diocese, Mrs. Whelan, accompanied by the secretary, Laurette Scharfe, showed slides, distributed literature and conducted a workshop.

The CWL have been supporting the foreign aid program since its inception in 1967.

Diocesan President Kathleen MacNaughton informed the ladies the council will be celebrating its diamond jubilee in May with St. Finnan's council as hostess. The four original councils were St. Columban's, Glen Nevis, Alexandria and Lancaster.

The importance of prayer was stressed by the spiritual convener, Carol Derouchie.

Written protests about police protection provided for Dr. Henry Morgentaler's abortion clinic have been delivered to Stormont-Dundas MP Norm Warner, said Margaret Laviolette, the family life convener. Members are going to Toronto once a month to lobby and volunteers are welcome, she said.

Mildred Cleary, convener of community life, conducted a brief program for members to evaluate how they had shared their time, talents and treasures with others in the past few months.

The two SD&G school boards are to be congratulated for their co-operation in sharing a joint delivery and central warehouse system, commented Gertrude McDonald, the education convener. St. Joseph's Secondary School will be extended to Grade 12 this year, she added.

Right now the federal government wants our views on child care, resolutions convener Gretta Maloney said, as she urged members to use their privilege of making views known to local members on various issues.

Each parish council is making a quilt-type block to be combined into a banner for the diocesan convention, Marian Haramis, the historian reminded. This will be displayed with pictures brought by members.

Moral support of local politicians in shouldering their many responsibilities was urged by public relations convener, Anna Margaret MacDonald.

It was announced that Mildred Cleary will chair the nominations committee for the upcoming elections.

The meeting was preceded by the celebration of the Eucharist in Precious Blood Church by Rev. Thomas Villeneuve and luncheon was served by the Precious Blood Council with President Louise Clark as hostess.

Tire theft

Police are investigating the theft of four wheels and tires from a car on Hamilton's Island.

Lancaster OPP report that Doug Webster of Cornwall had parked his 1978 Buick at his cottage on the island some time ago. When he returned recently, he discovered the four wheels and tires, valued at $900, had been removed.

Cpl. Gerry Lee is investigating.

Euchre winners to get cash

APPLE HILL
Aline Gormley
527-5692

We would like to advise all you euchre buffs in the area that a few changes will become effective at St. Anthony's Church hall in Apple Hill.

The forthcoming games held on Tuesdays, April 1, 15 and 29, beginning at 8 p.m., will revert to money prizes, as seems to be the fashion these days whenever euchre is played.

Winners for both men and women placing in first, second and third places will receive just that, plain good old dollar bills. The fifty-fifty draw will be split in so many $5 winners; the more the merrier.

As a door prize, the gift of a dinner for two at Mr. Poppins in Monkland, will be given away every time around.

Because the element of surprise is still favored, a draw will go on each night for a surprise gift without extra cost to the players.

We hope this will appeal to your sense of fair play and good taste. Remember, the light lunch is still part of the deal.

We expect at this rate that you will fill the hall to capacity. The ladies from Loch Garry will be sponsoring the next euchre party on April 1.

We have a list of winners for the game played on March 11 at the Activity Centre in Apple Hill.

In first place was Annie Parker, second was Nora McRae, third Gladys Barton, boobie—Verna Warner.

Also in first place was Clifford Losey, second George Essery, third Martin O'Brien and boobie, Fernand Brabant.

The 50/50 was split among Inez Sproule, Florence Harkin, George Jackson, winning twice; Adelard Sauvé, Wilhelmina Cleary, Mrs. Deschamps and Catherine MacRae. The door prize went to Florence Lussier.

The game played on March 18 at St. Anthony's hall went as such: lucky ladies were Gladys Barton, Leota de Repentigny, Helen Jackson. The consolation went to Gertrude Lapierre and skunk to Theresa MacDonald.

Lucky gents were Michel Lacelle, Fernand Theoret, Steven Robinson, consolation to Mark O'Byrne and the skunk winner was Finlay McDonell.

The door prize, a basket of groceries valued at $25, went to Marie O'Brien. The 50/50 draw went to Myrtle MacMillan.

The Apple Hill Bowling League is still going strong. The ladies' high single for January went to Melba Murray with a score of 367 and for February the top scorer was Diane Riley with a 290.

Restaurant to re-open in Williamstown

WILLIAMSTOWN
Sue Harrington
347-2279

Last week I promised to drop the crow talk and move on to something else, but a subsequent chat with a fellow villager convinced me to tell you one more thing.

According to Margaret Dean, who heard it many years ago from an old aunt of Bill's, crows don't migrate but go into the deep dark woods where they remain cloistered until a fine sunny day comes along. At this signal the crows step out and spend the day cavorting about in the open. Should the day be but a false harbinger of spring, the crows return to the woods until the weather warms again.

Thanks to all you red-winged blackbird spotters and hearers: Dominic Stones, Elizabeth Chatfield and Margaret Dean and to Barbara Stones and Doug Hargrave who were second and third in the I spy robin race.

Before I forget, I have a correction to make regarding the date of Rev. Allen Tysick's visit to St. Andrew's UCW. Rev. Tysick will speak about local poverty to the ladies of St. Andrew's and St. Mary's and to area UCW members at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 2. This will be following the St. Andrew's UCW business meeting.

I have also received some gentle chiding re my use of this misnomer, Char-Lan Recreation Centre.

It is, readers, correctly called the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre and I apologize to those of you whose feathers were ruffled by my error. It just goes to show you that there really is an answer to What's in a name?

VACATION

In my usual slow and ponderous way I have finally found out where the Greers went on their vacation. it was Jamaica. While there they may have bumped into Don and Nancy Hallberg but definitely not into Rollande and Lionel Pilon who have been back for three or four weeks. Shows how often I get my hair done.

TRAIN RIDE

Speaking of vacationers, I must mention that I was talking to Emilia Cardinal this week. She and husband Clement, who, in view of all their journeys world-wide, truly deserve the handle of globetrotters, apparently shared my opinion of the train-service from Alexandria. The Cardinals took a day trip to Montreal recently and were pleasantly surprised.

BRIDGE

Williamstown Duplicate Bridge Club scores for last week were: Ed O'Brien and Isobel Quail; Daphne MacDonald and Garnet MacDougall; Isobel Larocque and Alpheda Major. P.S. Maurice was at the hockey game that night!

With the exodus south during the March break, things were undoubtedly quiet here in Williamstown. At some houses, that is.

At Clark and Eileen McDonell's things were a little noisier than usual, as daughter Pam Boyle and children Susan and Allison came from Aurora for a visit. Overlapping with Pam's visit, was one from Isobel Story (nee McDonald), Eileen's sister, who was here for a week from Waverly, Nova Scotia.

BIRTHDAYS

Before I tell you about the Friendly Neighbors' March birthday party, I want to send special greetings to a special boy who was born 14 years ago in London, England. Happy Birthday Joshua.

And now Happy Birthday to Joan Abrams and Mary Rose Pilon who both celebrated at the above mentioned party.

This month's theme was, of course, an Irish one and Mary Rose Pilon, Dorothy Seguin, Daphne MacDonald and Ed O'Brien all won for the wearing of the green. Emily MacDonald won a special Irish Day prize, while door prizes went to Ileen Latreille and Kay McDonald.

Winners of the 50/50 draw were Ed O'Brien, Ileen Latreille, Delia Chretien and Edith Abrams.

Mary Rose Pilon won the ladies high, while Emily MacDonald claimed the low. For the men, it was Ed O'Brien, high and Angus McDonell low.

Alice Portant donated the delicious birthday cake.

At their open euchre held March 21, ladies prizes went to 1st—Anne Lalonde, 2nd—Ruby Major and 3rd—Beatrice Labelle. Vince Major took top honors for the men, followed by Alex McDermid and Martin Van Sleeuwen. Skunks were awarded to Delia Chretien and Clint Murray.

Isobel Larocque and Ed O'Brien claimed door prizes while Bertha Lalonde, Dorothy Roy, Angus McDonell and Maurice Chretien went home with the 50/50.

At the close of the euchre, Friendly Neighbors' President Ileen Latreille wished all members and friends a Happy Easter.

DINER RE-OPENS

One item of news which may make for a happy holiday weekend for some of us is that the Mill Diner is re-opening on Saturday, March 29 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Elaine and Taffy Pye have decided to give the restaurant business a whirl, so all of you Williamstowners who have been suffering hamburger withdrawal over the past few weeks, mark the countdown on your calendar.

The Diner will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Easter Sunday, and closed on Monday. On Tuesday, April 1, the restaurant will run its first specials—two hot dogs for $1.

Our congratulations to the Pyes on their new venture which, if personality spells success, it surely will be.

NEW TITLE

My door has just crashed open and by the sound of the eager footsteps on the stairs, I think I may be right in saying that the Williamstown Public School Boys' basketball team has just won the Glengarry championships.

Yes, I am right. Congratulations to Brian Loucks and his team of Lee Avery, Mark Poirier, Phil Poitras, Joshua Harrington, Shane McDonell, Kurtis Latreille, David Chaddock, Zachary Harrington and Mike Laframboise for adding yet another title to the school's list of achievements.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Nancy and Allison Geneau on the terrible loss they suffered this past week. Our thoughts are with them at this time.

Members of the community are asked to watch for an announcement concerning the benefit dance for Mac and Sue Robertson whose barn burned this weekend. Once again, we have no doubt, residents will rise to the occasion.

READING UNION

The Canadian Home Reading Union has resumed its meetings after a pause during the apt-to-be wicked-weather months. In actual fact, even this month's meeting had to be postponed, giving Margaret Dean a little reprieve in presenting her paper.

The meeting was held at the home of Thelma Rose, with Kay Arnott presiding. As mentioned in previous columns, the Reading Group's theme is protesters. Mrs. Dean gave an interesting talk on the Boston tea party, telling CHRU members the reason why there was mounting unrest in the colonies prior to the Revolution and in what ways the colonists made their protests known.

LOST HAT

I am not going to turn this column into a lost and found bureau, but just this once I must appeal to anyone who has found a black corduroy hat lurking about in hidden crevices at the arena or to anyone who has seen the said object being used as a frisbee, to please call 347-7392. Owner is apparently devastated by the loss.

Congratulations to Pat Baranowski on the lovely buffet she prepared for the Brigadoons' night at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre on Friday night.

Prize winners during the evening of dancing and listening in aid of the Char-Lan High School band, included Ralph Gordon, Oliver Torn-Ticket Blacker, Jack Kitchen and Blake McDonell.

As I'm sure you all know, April is Cancer Month, and once again canvassers will be visiting local residents. Anna MacDonald of Williamstown is campaign chairman for Charlottenburgh, while Isobel Larocque is Williamstown area captain.

Canvassers visiting homes in our area will be Euclid Poirier, Phyllis Major, Edith Major, Doreen Moore, Betty MacDonald, Sharon MacDonald, Susan McDonell, Penny Cavell, Linda McDonell, Betty MacLennan and Sheila Lafave.

Put aside a little something today so as not to be broke when you are visited.

Shackleton weds Maclaren

A lovely Christmas wedding took place at St. Finnan's Cathedral, December 27, when Miss Mary Elizabeth Maclaren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maclaren of Alexandria, became the bride of John Samuel Shackleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shackleton of Carp.

The marriage ceremony was celebrated by Monsignor D. B. McDougald. Altar server was Alex Maclaren, brother of the bride.

SHAKLETON—MACLAREN

Milton MacDonald and Brian McDonell, soloists, were accompanied by Mrs. Daniel MacDonald, the organist. The young couple were piped down the aisle by Stuart MacMillan.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her mother's wedding gown of white nylon net and lace over satin, having a lace bodice with stand-up Peter Pan collar and long sleeves forming a point at the wrist. The full skirt fell in points of lace over the net underskirt. Her headpiece had a veil laced with tiny pearls. She carried a spray of white roses and holly.

The bride was attended by her sister, Bonnie, as maid of honor. She wore a long kilt in the Maclaren tartan and a matching shawl. She also carried a spray of white roses and holly.

Stephen Weihrer of Ottawa, was the best man; the ushers were Sandy Maclaren of Banff, Alberta, and David Shackleton of Montreal.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Maclaren chose a sapphire blue two-piece dress, with long black lace gloves and a wrist corsage of white roses and holly. Mrs. Shackleton chose a dress in sea green and a corsage of white roses and holly.

The reception was held in the Curling Club Hall, Alexandria.

The young couple are residing in Kanata, Ontario. Out of town guests were present from Ottawa, Carp, Montreal, Banff and Cornwall.

Roxborough has cash surplus

by Sybil Carello

MOOSE CREEK—Despite tax arrears hovering around the 25 per cent mark, Roxborough's financial picture for 1986 began with a surplus of $78,785.

Township auditor, J. A. McKillican of McKillican and Associates, met with council March 4 for an overview of 1985.

He told council that Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) officials like to see outstanding taxes somewhere under the 10 per cent bracket.

But tile drainage loans thrown in with regular taxation distorts the final figure, explained Reeve John McIntyre.

Mr. McKillican suggested council shore up their reserve fund, now at $30,000 to at least $60,000 so they do not run the risk of excess borrowing to compensate for the arrears.

Last year's reserve fund of $200,000 was largely used for expansion of the municipal town hall. However, Mr. McIntyre reminded new councillors that the money had been set aside specifically for that purpose.

When tax arrears reach the 25 per cent figure, OMB usually intervenes with a visit. The last visit, according to Mr. McIntyre was in 1981.

LUNCH TIME—The Martintown 4-H Club prepared lunch at the Martintown Community Centre on Saturday. Club members had to prepare a lunch, with each dish including milk in its ingredients. The lunch was served to local WI members and mothers of the club members.

Twenty attend Martintown WI

MARTINTOWN — The roll call, "Compose a commercial for your favorite Canadian product or pay a fine," was well answered by 20 members who attended the March meeting of Martintown Women's Institute held in the Presbyterian Church. Members with their humorous replies have definitely missed their calling in life!

Mrs. Jo Van Loon presided and reminded the branch that April 17 the annual meeting will be held in the Presbyterian Church. Conveners should have their reports ready, in duplicate, and also bring articles for a "secret auction," the proceeds to be given to Pennies for Friendship project. A pot luck lunch is to precede this meeting.

Sylvia Thomson reported on the district directors' meeting. The district annual will be held on May 6 in Martintown at the Presbyterian Church, with the theme, "Year of the Family." A display of winter crafts would be appreciated. The Martintown executive is asked to meet prior to the annual meeting to discuss plans for this event.

Joan MacKenzie reported on the Home Decor Planning project. Those members interested are to meet in the Seniors' Room of the Martintown Community Centre on Thursday, April 3, and again on Thursday, April 10, 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Women's Institute Branches are continually being reminded, both in "Home and Country" as well as at officers' conferences, to make use of the talent within their branches. Convener for Canadian Industries, Mary Murray, gave an informative and amusing account of the art of making maple syrup. She had prepared, in miniature, all the necessary requirements, even down to a bundle of kindling, including in her presentation, display cards with proper temperatures, etc., not forgetting two main ingredients—weather and patience.

A contest, "How's your Supermarket Shopping IQ?" conducted by Elizabeth Peters, was won by Olive Bewick.

The meeting concluded with a social hour and a lovely lunch was served by hostesses Beverley Runions, Lorraine Ramsay, Linda Prichard and Peggi Birch.

Pratt lifts Jets into final

NAVAN — Mike Pratt scored three goals to pace the Metcalfe Jets to a 7-5 decision over the Navan Grads in the seventh and deciding game in the Alex English Division semi-final here last Wednesday night.

Robin Hughes chipped in with a pair for the Jets while Mike Upton and Ken Ward with the winner, completed the scoring.

Mark Barnett led Navan with a pair of goals while singles went to Mike Fournier, Dan Arcand and Dave Sabean. Bruce Hickson, the league's top scorer, had three assists.

The clubs were tied 1-1 after the first period and Metcalfe led 4-2 after two periods.

Car draw attracts strong support

by Aline Gormley

ST. RAPHAEL'S—Mount Carmel House Auxiliary is holding a draw on a 1986 Pontiac Sunbird, launched at the Valentine benefit dance on February 8. So far the public response has been tremendous in aid of the fund-raising project, which will go on until September 3 when the winner will be named.

Anyone interested in purchasing tickets in support of Mount Carmel House Treatment Centre can call upon E. H. Tourangeau, 347-2508; Ron Lajoie, 525-3481' or Roy's Garage, 525-2300/347-7312, if they wish to sell and distribute tickets.

For your convenience, you can also buy tickets at Mainville Flooring, Cornwall, 932-8462; Quinn's General Store, St. Andrews, 932-7335; Monkland Egg Grading Station, 346-2154 and the Mini-Market 346-2083; also in Alexandria with Doreen Johnston 525-3939.

On March 16 the Sunbird was driven to the Knights of Columbus Hall in Glen Walter where a number of people wagered a few dollars on it. On Saturday, May 10, members of the auxiliary will be on hand at the Cornwall Square to sell tickets.

The auxiliary will hold its next meeting at Shalom House, St. Raphael's, on Wednesday, April 2, at 8 p.m. Therese Quesnel, CSC, of Baldwin House will give a talk on the work done at this institution. The public is invited to attend. Light refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Plans are in the making for the benefit concert in St. Raphael's Ruins on Sunday, July 15. The Thanksgiving Tea projected for Saturday, October 4, will take place in St. Anthony's Church Hall, Apple Hill, this year.

Man placed on probation

A 37-year-old RR1 Alexandria man was placed on probation and ordered to perform 60 hours of community service work Thursday in Alexandria Provincial Court.

Gary Alteen pleaded guilty Feb. 27 to misleading a police officer. He had been charged Aug. 6 in Alexandria.

At the time of the incident, Alexandria police received a phone call from the accused, reporting his truck had been involved in an accident at the Mac's Milk parking lot in Alexandria. Damage to the truck was approximately $1,000.

The accused told the police he only noticed the damage to the truck when he got home.

During the investigation, police went to Mr. Alteen's home and noticed green paint on a fence post, the same color as the truck. The paint was analyzed and it matched the paint from the truck.

Give a student that first big break.

Give them a summer job.
Every summer, students provide a wealth of talent, knowledge and ingenuity that every employer can tap. As an employer, you will benefit from the energy and enthusiasm students bring to their summer jobs. The students in turn will gain the experience so valuable to entering the working world.
Of course students are willing to do just about any sort of work available, but ideally, they would like to find employment related to their field of study. This would help ease the transition from school to work, and help eliminate the "no experience/no job" bias that they may face when seeking full time employment. Hiring students makes good business sense. For every type of job you can offer, there's a student more than willing to work.

This is a great incentive to get young people interested in cooking and preparing good nutritious dishes.

TRIP TO GREAT BRITAIN

Twenty-four young men from Maxville and area recently enjoyed a self-styled excursion to Scotland and England. Landing first in Amsterdam, Holland, they had an opportunity to tour that city before going on to Edinburgh, Scotland.

There, George Munro, the brother of the late Mrs. J. T. MacKenzie, was their most congenial host and arranged their accommodations, tour of the city, meeting civic dignitaries and their bus and driver for the week.

The first game was played in Edinburgh, with the host team, Murrayfield Exports. This game was followed by one in Oxford, England with the Oxford City Stars and later in Gillingham, England with the Midway Bears.

While scores of these games were not of prime importance, the third game resulted in the best one, a tie.

When not on the trail of a hockey game, our ambassadors of goodwill enjoyed several side trips to points of interest, including London. The highlight of the trip was the hospitality enjoyed in Edinburgh and the host team there is planning a trip to Canada and to this area in 1988.

Volunteers desperately needed

GLEN NORMAN
Mary Lacelle
525-1372

The executive committee of the Alexandria and District Chapter of the Diabetes Association met last week to make plans for the season. This is an important and worthwhile cause. In order to keep it running successfully, it takes people who are interested and concerned. Right now volunteers are desperately needed on the committee. All it takes is sincerity and a few hours of your time each month.

On April 22, at Glengarry District High School, at 7:30 p.m., a meeting of the Diabetes Association will be open to the public; make a point of attending.

If there is someone in your home, a friend, neighbor or business associate, with diabetes, this will be of great value to you. Anyone can benefit from these meetings, there is no guarantee this disease will not one day affect your or someone in your family. Learn the facts beforehand and be prepared to meet the situation with unnecessary worry.

Linda Vickers, a dietician, from Glengarry Memorial Hospital, will be the guest speaker. Upon the recommendation of a doctor, Linda will be glad to offer you a proper diet and the necessary information you need, whether it concerns diabetes, a weight problem or whatever reason you may have for needing a special diet plan.

Kathy Farthing, a representative from Ames, will be demonstrating the glucometer and will answer any questions that are of concern on the matter.

If you wish to help on the committee or would like more information about the association please contact Morag Libbos, 525-3829, Sandra Ruttenburg, 525-1071 or Rita Carriere, 525-2816.

There will be a joint service at the Church on the Hill, Holy Saturday, at 10:30 a.m., and the Easter Sunday services will be held at the Round Church at the regular time, 11:15 a.m.

* * *

Welcome to three gentlemen who have taken up residence at Craig Miller Lodge: Alex Lauzon from Glen Norman, Mr. Patrick from Riviere Beaudette and William Steeply from Alexandria.

Two more Glen Normanites back from their warm and wonderful travels are George and Gail Moffat who vacationed in Barbados.

* * *

Happy birthday to Josée Bourgon and a Happy Easter to all.

Fiddlers elect officers

The Glengarry Old Time Fiddlers Association has a busy year planned.

A Spring Dance will be held May 10 at the Bonnie Glen featuring the City of Cornwall Police Force Band. On October 18, Helen and Her Selections will play at the Fall Dance, also at the Bonnie Glen. For Christmas, the annual dinner and dance at the Bonnie Glen will have Sylvester and the Clansmen for entertainment.

More recently, the association held its annual meeting at the Maxville Manor on March 12. The officers for the year 1986-1987 were announced: Rene Trottier president, Donald Besner, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, Jean MacLeod with Jean MacCuaig and Audrey McIntosh as directors.

Farmers to discuss free trade

Stormont, Glengarry and Dundas residents will have the opportunity to clear up any questions about free trade and agriculture at a free trade symposium at Tagwi High School on March 26.

Admission is free and all are welcomed. A panel of four experts will address and debate questions from the public on both free trade and agricultural issues:

The symposium, sponsored by SD&G Federation of Agriculture, starts at 8 p.m. at the high school, located on Highway 43.

The panel members include Charles Gracey, the executive vice-president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association; Grant Smith, vice-chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and past-president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada; and Don Boudria, MP for Glengarry-Prescott-Russell. The other panel member has not been determined yet.

The panel's mediator will be John Curtis, principal of the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology.

David Whetter, one of the organizers, said the federations have been organizing this evening since November.

He said many people in agriculture tend to be divided into either pro-free trade or anti-free trade. He added the evening will help to clear up misconceptions the public might have about the issues.

Mr. Whetter said the evening of debate is meant to be educational. "We're not trying to present a certain view," he said. "The purpose of this event is to simply inform people," he added.

Farmers do well at show

OTTAWA — Two Glengarry farmers did exceptionally well at the recent Ottawa Valley Farm Show held at Lansdowne Park in Ottawa.

Werner Bill of Maxville was presented with a trophy for taking the grand champion position in the haylage class and Martintown's William E. Johnson was named premier exhibitor for the show.

In addition, Mr. Johnson also came third in winter wheat, peas, timothy, birdsfoot trefoil, alfalfa and red clover.

Martintown's John Peters placed ninth in second cut alfalfa and third in the grain corn exhibit.

Donald McCrimmon of Alexandria came second in grain corn, William Keith McLeod of Skye placed sixth in oats and Ron Barton of Vankleek Hill came second in barley and third in white beans.

Rodney MacLeod of Kirk Hill placed fifth in the legume and grass hay mix class.

GEARING UP—Alexandria's Michel Cholette is gearing up for the upcoming motorcycle road racing season. Cholette recently returned from Daytona Beach, Florida, where he competed against some of the top road racers in the world. His first race of the season is in early May at Shannonville Speedway.

Cholette expecting better racing season

by Peter Conway

Alexandria's Michel Cholette was the new kid on the block in motorcycle racing last year.

He was a rookie on the pro circuit and really didn't know what to expect in this highly competitive sport.

"I had a lot of problems at the beginning," says Cholette, preparing for the upcoming racing season. "There were a lot of experienced riders and the competition was stiff."

Despite his inexperience, Cholette was the top rookie in the R.A.C.E. Castrol Series a year ago, finishing fourth overall in the country in the Pro Formula II class on a 250 c.c. motorcycle.

While he was satisfied with his racing season a year ago, Cholette feels he'll be even more competitive this year when the racing season begins in May.

"I just purchased a 1985 Honda Rs 250 c.c. and I should be even more competitive this season," he says.

Cholette is gearing himself for a busy racing campaign. A National and Regional Series has been added to the already existing R.A.C.E. Castrol Series.

"In the National Series, there'll be two races in Shannonville, one at Sanair, St. Pie, Que. and Gimli, Manitoba. In the Regional Series, I'll race at Mosport, Shannonville and Sanair," says Cholette.

Cholette won't confine his racing territory to just Canada. He'll also be competing in the United States. He expects to race in New Hampshire and Ohio.

"These are probably the only two races I'll compete in because it's so expensive. But racing in the United States is a valuable experience because the top riders in road racing are in these races. If I could afford it, I'd do all of my racing in the United States," says Cholette.

Cholette recently spent the first week of March racing at the Daytona Beach International Speedway in Florida. The Florida trek was also a valuable learning experience for him.

"Racing at Daytona gave me a great opportunity to race against the top riders in the world," he said.

Some of the riders at Daytona Beach were West Germany's Tony Mang, the 1984 Formula II world champion and Don Green, a two-time American Motorcycle Association Formula II champion.

Cholette was the top Canadian rider at the event, even though he suffered mechanical problems which kept him from finishing higher.

"I qualified 22nd out of 70 riders in the starting position. It is very important to qualify high and to have a good lap time. I started in the 22nd position in the 28-lap race. On the 18th lap I was in 15th position and engine trouble put me out of the race. It was the second year in a row I had to quit the race because of engine trouble," says Cholette.

The opening race of the season is set for May 3 and 4 at Shannonville. He enters the season confident and hopes to have a successful road racing season.

"I'm a lot more confident this year. I have a better machine and a year's experience under my belt," says Cholette, starting his second season as a professional road racer.

He also had a mechanic to look after the mechanical problems this year, after doing the repairs himself a year ago.

"With my own mechanic, Pat Barnes, this year, it will be easier and I'll have less pressure. I'll have more time to think about racing this season and not worry about the mechanical end of racing. I have a much faster bike this year and will do my best to win my class this season," says Cholette.

Jets capture opening game, Rebels win to deadlock series

METCALFE — Charlottenburgh Rebels looked anything but the club which captured the Alex English Division pennant Saturday night, following the opening game in the best-of-seven division final with the Metcalfe Jets.

Metcalfe Jets, which had eliminated the Navan Grads a few days earlier in a seventh game during a gruelling semi-final series, surprised the Rebels 8-6 in their own rink to grab a 1-0 lead in the final.

Sunday afternoon, however, the Rebels came out flying at the Metcalfe Community Centre and looked like the club which had dominated the regular season.

The Rebels tied the series at 1-1 following a convincing 10-2 win over the Jets. The victory not only drew the clubs even in the final, but also restored home-ice advantage for the Rebels.

The third game is set for tonight Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Charlottenburgh Community Centre.

The Rebels led 3-0 after the opening stanza and blew the contest open with a five-goal burst in the middle stanza. The Rebels led 8-1 after two periods of play.

Tyler Sunday paced the Rebels' offence with a hat trick while Frank Sinfield, Kevin Poapst and Dwayne Spink tallied a pair each. Kevin Renwick rounded out the scoring while Spink also had three assists.

Metcalfe's scoring came off the sticks of Mike Pratt and Alain Robinson.

Daniel Brunet is making the best of getting an opportunity to skate for the pennant-winning Rebels. Brunet played part of the Junior C Hockey League season with Alexandria and played for the Junior B Glens in the playoffs.

The Rebels obtained the services of Brunet last week when goaler Kevin Cameron came down with mononucleosis. League rules stipulate that a club can acquire the services of a goaler from another club in the division in the playoffs if an injury occurs.

Brunet was between the pipes Sunday and faced 32 shots and is expected to share the goaltending with Dave Carmody.

In the opener last Wednesday night, the Jets led 5-4 ater two periods. The Rebels outshot Metcalfe 36-23, but came out on the short end of an 8-6 setback.

David Warren and Gary Poirier paced the Metcalfe attack with three goals each while Jeff Hope and Mike Pratt added singles. Mike Upton set up four goals.

Dwayne Spink led the Rebels with a pair of goals while Shawn Blanchard, Neil Sandilands and Kennedy MacDonald had one goal and assist each. Mike Lapensee also scored once.

The fourth game of the series is set for Metcalfe Friday night while the fifth contest is back at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre Saturday evening.

The winner of the series advances to a round-robin series against the Valley and St. Lawrence Division winners. Prescott leads Brockville 2-1 in the St. Lawrence final while South Ottawa Canadians lead Arnprior 2-0 in the Valley Division final.

The two teams with the best records following the round-robin series would then meet in a best-of-seven series to determine the champion of the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League.

Novice A champs

The Alexandria Novice Travelling team skated off with the A championship over the weekend at a tournament at Hawkesbury.

The local squad defeated Rockland 4-1 in the final game as Martin Boisvenue paced the offensive attack with a pair of goals.

Also scoring for Alexandria were Jean-Pierre Lefebvre and Roch Jeaurond.

In semi-final play, the A champions blanked Orleans 8-0. In their opening game, Alexandria shutout Hawkesbury 8-0.

Julien Van Den Oetelaar recorded both shutouts for the champions.

Skaters presented trophies

The Alexandria Figure Skating Club presented trophies and awards to its skaters last Monday night at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

Certificates were given to all Can-Skate skaters for achieving badge levels. The winner of the novice trophy was Michel Quesnel while Ann Roussin was the recipient of the junior trophy.

The intermediate trophy winner was Gabrielle Nadeau while Chantal Ravary walked off with the senior trophy. The committee's choice award went to Jocelyn Roman.

Two other awards were also presented. The hardest-working and most-improved award went to Chantal Ravary while the winner of the most congenial award went to Jocelyn Roman.

A high-test day for the Alexandria Figure Skating Club was held in Winchester on March 20.

Alexandria skaters who passed their tests were Jocelyn Roman, Quickstep, Hilary Wilson and Chantal Ravary, Rocker Foxtrot and Claudine Nadeau and Josée Landriault in the Tango.

Poirier hero for Atom squad

Steve Poirier was the hero as the Caisse Populaire Atoms captured the A title Sunday at the Hawkesbury hockey tournament.

Poirier tallied in the third overtime session to give Alexandria a thrilling 1-0 win over host Hawkesbury. Marc Leroux tended goal for Alexandria and earned the shutout.

In semi-final play last Thursday night, Alexandria doubled Westlake 4-2 to earn a berth in Sunday's final.

Friday night in Williamstown, Alexandria dropped an 8-1 decision in the opening game of the Lower St. Lawrence Hockey League four-point final.

Alexandria's lone goal came off the stick of Ricky Latreille.

Alexandria travels to Ottawa this weekend to participate in the Canterbury tournament. The club's first game is Friday afternoon.

Brunet quickly becoming hockey relief man

SPORTS

Peter Conway

There aren't many athletes who can say they've played on two championship clubs at different levels of junior hockey.

In the next few days, however, Alexandria's Daniel Brunet may hold that distinction. If it does happen, it isn't something he's planned, but he's been in the right place at the right time.

The 1985-1986 hockey season has had its ups and downs for Daniel Brunet. He started off at the Alexandria Glens training camp as a veteran returning to a young club. But, as the camp went on, the 19-year-old Brunet became the odd man out as the Glens decided to go with two younger goaltenders—Pierre Cholette and Claude Gallant.

The next stop for Daniel was with the Alexandria Junior C's. With the C's, he shared the goaltending duties with Pat Brunet. Both had played together the previous season with the Junior B Glens.

Brunet informed the Junior C management around Christmas he no longer wanted to play.

So, all of the goaltending chores fell on the shoulders of Pat Brunet. All this was fine until the final week in the regular season.

Brunet had played well for the Junior C's, but his season came to an abrupt halt following an accident at work.

The club entered the playoffs scrambling for a goaler. The C's had kept Daniel Brunet on their roster, but he declined to play for the team against St. Isidore in the playoffs, which left some bitter feelings on both sides involved.

Daniel was then asked to play for the Junior B Glens in a quarter-final series against rival Charlottenburgh Rebels.

After the Glens were swept by the Rebels, Daniel had assumed his hockey season was over. But, the SOS call came from the Charlottenburgh Rebels after goaler Kevin Cameron came down with a bout of mononucleosis.

The Rebels were permitted to pick up Brunet because of a league rule which says clubs can dress a goaler from another club within the same division which is out of the playoffs.

Brunet wasn't sure whether he would play, but was more than happy to get an opportunity just to dress.

After starter Dave Carmody had a shaky outing early in game one of the Alex English final against Metcalfe Saturday night, Brunet, assuming the role of a relief pitcher in baseball, came in to try and put out the fire.

Although the Rebels lost the opener 8-6, Brunet got the call Sunday afternoon and his new teammates responded with a 10-2 win to square the best-of-seven series.

There are a lot of junior hockey players who never get an opportunity to play on a championship team in their career. Brunet is happy just to be part of the Rebels in their quest for an Alex English Division championship, and perhaps down the road, an Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League title.

Daniel Brunet has nothing to prove when he steps on the ice with the Rebels. It has been a peculiar season for him. He was never looked upon as the No. 1 goaler with the Junior B Glens or Junior C's.

Brunet may not have the flashiest style, but he plays with an enthusiastic attitude, whether it was part of the campaign for the Junior C's or three post-season games with the Junior B Glens.

Brunet may, or may not, play a major role should the Rebels be successful against Metcalfe.

But, there are a number of other goaltenders who I'm sure would love to be in his skates right now.

Perhaps down the road after his junior hockey career is over, Daniel may learn how to throw a baseball. He's been an excellent relief man out of the bullpen up to now.

THE SCORE. WHAT SCORE?

Some hockey players from Alexandria and area travelled to Sherbrooke over the weekend for their annual shootout against an old timers team in the Eastern Townships.

The local squad lost for the third consecutive year against a Sherbrooke squad, captained by the brother of GTL employee Claude Girard.

While the boys from Alexandria had hopes of winning Saturday's game, the outcome wasn't really that important. The main purpose was to have a great time in Sherbrooke and that's exactly what happened.

Some of the gang, however, were a little under the weather Sunday morning (Jacques Leblanc, Gaetan Ravary) when it came time to leave.

Nonetheless, everyone had a great time and I'm sure are looking forward to returning next year.

Nobody was upset with the result of the game, even though the loss spoiled Gaetan Ravary's two-goal performance.

The final score? Call Jacques Leblanc.

BONNE ENTENTE TOURNEY

The Bonne Entente hockey tourney gets under way Thursday night and runs Good Friday and Saturday. The finals are set for late Saturday afternoon.

Area hockey fans should be treated to some good hockey games and there will be door prizes for fans in attendance.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON—The Alexandria Novice All-Star squad recently completed a successful season on the ice. The club played an exhibition schedule against other novice clubs in Eastern Ontario and Quebec. The local club won the A title at the Hawkesbury tournament last weekend. Front row, left, Martin Boisvenue, Roch Jeaurond, Eric Hagen, Julien Van Den Oetelaar, Jean-Pierre Lefebvre, Jeff Gebbie and Steven St. Denis. Middle row, left, Sean McCormick, Tom Terry, Joel Trottier, Darcy MacDonell, Mathieu Poulin, Michel Lortie and Paul Secours. Back row, left, Coach Willie Terry and Manager Bill Gebbie.

MacLennan wins

Eighteen teams participated in the Maple Syrup spiel held on the weekend, convened by Lorne and Sandra Lawson.

Winners of the spiel was Donald Angus MacLennan and his rink of Jeannette Crevier, Billy MacGillis and Melba Murray. The two game runner up was Lorne Lawson, Gerry Deguire, Denis Bray and Diane Riley.

The one-game high was captured by Larry Hay and his rink of Karen MacLeod, Vincent Barker and Denny Van Loon. The runner up was Kent MacSweyn, Keith MacDonald, Annette Smith and Lucille Lalonde.

Kitchen convenors wer Sandra Lawson and Janette Abbey and entertainment for the evening was supplied by the Lochiel Strings.

In other outside curling news the Alexandria team, skipped by Janice MacDonald placed second in the ELOCA competition for Junior Girls at the Hylands Club in Ottawa. Playing for Janice were Charlene Ryan, Lynn Jeaurond and Chantal Desjardins.

Alexandria was also represented at the Ladies Spiel held in Brownsburg on March 22. Phoebe Hay and her rink of Peggy Lafave, Margaret MacCuaig and Margie MacGillivray won their first game against Ottawa Cityview but lost their second to Vankleek Hill's Linda Burwash.

The team of Dunc Macdonell, Kaye Hay, Dougal MacGillivray and Gord Fincham (1st game) and Scott Hay (2nd game) were defeated in the men's double knock-out spiel in Ormstown on March 22.

Curlers are reminded of the annual Steak Bonspiel coming up on April 18 and 19 and also the general meeting for election of officers on April 17.

Bantams leading in final series

Lions Club Bantam Glens started their playoff finals last Wednesday in Williamstown against Char-Lan. Glens scored a goal in each period to edge their rivals 3-2 and win the first game.

Scoring for Alexandria were Jason Palmer with two and Trevor Marley with one, while Trevor Bowles and Marc Beaudette answered for Char-Lan.

Last Friday in Alexandria, the teams settled for a tie, 3-3, on a late goal by Ken Robinson when the goalie had been pulled to allow for an extra skater.

Char-Lan had taken the lead in the first period on a short-handed goal by Blake McDonell.

Second period action ended 2-2 on goals by Chris McBean for Char-Lan and two goals by Jason Palmer for the Glens.

Shawn McRae scored a powerplay goal for Char-Lan in the third period before Ken Robinson tied it.

Glens are leading 3-1 in a best-of-six series.

Playing in Hawkesbury's tournament in the A division, Bantam Glens won their first game 5-1 over Dollard des Ormeaux Civics.

Mike Sauvé collected two goals, while his brother Andrew, Jason Palmer and Ken Robinson each scored singles.

Pierre Cuerrier and Serge Bellefeuille had two assists each. Mike Sauvé was the MVP of that first game.

In the second game, Mt. Laurier beat Alexandria 3-1.

Alex Maclaren, assisted by Ken Robinson and Trevor Marley was the lone scorer for the local squad.

Trevor Marley was named MVP of that game.

Three teams in News Cup

by Peter Conway

Glengarry News Cup officials are hoping quality, not quantity, will provide area hockey fans with an exciting brand of entertainment on the ice the next few weeks.

This year's Glengarry News Cup edition has attracted three clubs—St. Raphael's, Glen Nevis and Dalhousie. The three clubs will compete in a double round-robin format and the top two teams will then meet in a best-of-seven final to determine the Glengarry champion.

Charlottenburgh Rebels will not be back to defend last year's title. The club is currently locked into a best-of-seven Alex English Division final with the Metcalfe Jets.

The opening game in the schedule is set for next Wednesday night (April 2) as Glen Nevis tangles with Dalhousie at 8 p.m. Two nights later (April 14) St. Raphael's goes up against Glen Nevis.

Dalhousie faces St. Raphael's at 1 p.m. on April 6. On April 9, Dalhousie plays Glen Nevis at 8 p.m. while Glen Nevis and St. Raphael's tangle the next evening at 8 p.m. The final round-robin contest is April 11 when St. Raphael's faces-off against Dalhousie.

The best-of-seven final starts April 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Glengarry Sports Palace. Should the final go the limit, the seventh game would be played April 27 at 8 p.m.

Lafleur, Dionne played Glens

by Angus H. McDonell

Not long ago when Guy Lafleur officially announced his retirement from Montreal's Les Canadiens, we recalled how Lafleur, when he was a Thurso peewee, was a one-player wrecking crew against our novice Glens.

Last week the sports media headlined the NHL goal scoring triumph of Marcel Dionne of the L.A. Kings. Dionne had edged ahead of Phil Esposito into second place of the all-time leading scorers. He had tallied 1,591 points and counting. He has hopes of passing Gordie Howe's lofty mark of 1,850.

Again in pleasant retrospect we remembered the coincidence of how Marcel Dionne, like Guy Lafleur, was a one-player wrecking crew against the peewee Glens in the final game of a Montreal tournament.

We have to depend on a memory file but apart from a question of the year (1965 or '66) the sequence of happenings is accurate.

Following the Peewee Glens' second triumph in Lake Placid they were invited, along with young pipers and drummers, to represent Glengarry in the Silver Stick minor hockey tournament in Port Huron, Mich. During the organization process of the lengthy bus trip across Ontario to Sarnia-Port Huron, friction developed at the local minor hockey executive level.

Permission for the trip was refused, despite the green light from the Ottawa District Hockey Association along with Arnprior, much to the disappointment of the splinter travelling team group and the youngsters.

The Glens' manager was Omer Poirier, who as a cattle dealer was acquainted with several minor hockey officials along the route to Three Rivers. Poirier was invited to have his peewee champs compete in a prestigious Montreal tournament in the Maurice Sauvé Arena.

The entries were mostly teams who had filed application to play in the Quebec City Carnival but were sidetracked in the elimination numbers game. They all couldn't be accommodated.

We were among those who volunteered player transportation. The tournament provided the billeting. Manager Poirier, a strict disciplinarian, commanded that each player take his class homework with him and had to be completed Friday night. This was quite a contrast to Lake Placid when swimsuits were part of the gear for the Olympic pool privilege.

The Glens won their way into the Sunday final. They were to meet Drummondville who had in their lineup the tournament's most valuable player, Marcel Dionne. Coach Howard Morris spent some time drafting a game plan to hold Dionne in check. He was a stocky defenseman with jet speed and a rifle shot.

Dionne, like Lafleur against the sprites, outclassed the Glens as he scored eight of their nine goals, with the Glens counting four. However, the highlight of the game, in this writer's memory, was the presence of Les Canadiens' great (retired) defenseman Butch Bouchard sitting beside us in the press box.

As the game drew to a close we asked Bouchard for his analysis of the Glens. We will always cherish his comments.

"Of course Dionne is the outstanding player on the ice. But Alexandria has a fine young team. They would be winners if Drummondville didn't have Dionne. I like your defenseman (Mike Boisvenue) and that forward line must be rated about tops in the tournament, (Don Morris, Mike and Nick Haramis)."

As evidence of Bouchard's judgment, Mike Boisvenue was signed by Cornwall Royals in their first venture in major junior hockey. Don Morris and the Haramis brothers went on to play with and against the best in Canada's inter-collegiate hockey as students at Concordia University.

The St. Catharine's TeePees, as the Chicago Black Hawks farm team in the major OHA, moved the entire Dionne family to have Marcel play in the Garden City. The rest is hockey history and some of the recordings belong to Glengarry when chronicling the part played by those gallant young Glens of the 1960's.

BONSPIEL WINNERS – The Maxville rinks won this year's Glengarry Cup Bonspiel. The bonspiel, organized last year, pits various Glengarry rinks against each other, all vying for the coveted cup. Maxville team members are, left to right, Elizabeth Marjerrison, Bob Banks, Jean Campbell, Catherine Kippen, Jim Bancroft, Marvin Waldroff and organizer Joan MacDonald. Missing from the team are Laurie Symons and Rob Lefebvre.

Local novice squad has successful year

Alexandria's Novice All Stars have just completed a successful season. With no league to play in, they played exhibition games against Eastern Ontario teams, Dorion and Valleyfield, losing only five games all year.

On Saturday, March 1, at the Vankleek Hill Novice tournament, the locals won their first game against Ottawa Alta Vista 4-3. Their second game against Hawkesbury was a shutout 3-0. In the final game against Dorion, Alexandria won 3-1.

In the Hawkesbury tournament which ran from March 16 to 23, Alexandria once again came home with the A division trophy. On Sunday, March 16, they topped Hawkesbury 9-0. On Thursday, Orleans were the victims, losing 8-0. On Sunday, in the final, Alexandria fell behind 1-0 early in the first period to a strong Rockland squad, but came from behind to win with a 4-1 score.

The Novice All Stars were formed to give the older and better house league players more ice time and better competition.

Team members are as follows: goalie—Julien Van Den Oetelaar; defense—Michel Lortie, Matthew Poulin, Roch Jeaurond and Tommy Terry; forwards—Paul Secours, Martin Boisvenue, Jean-Pierre Lefebvre, Eric Hagen, Darcy MacDonell, Sean McCormick, Joel Trottier, Jeff Gebbie and Steven St. Denis; coach—Willie Terry; manager—Bill Gebbie.

Our new lawn tractors come with a small attachment you'll love. The price tag.

It's the icing on the cake. After being attracted by the smart styling, intrigued by the brand new features and impressed by all the dramatic improvements...you'll be delighted by the price.

This year, John Deere has introduced an entirely new line of 100 Series lawn tractors. All are priced substantially less than the 1985 models they replace. Not just a few dollars less, but hundreds! It's the most significant price reduction in John Deere history.

New overhead valve engines on most models provide increased horsepower and torque. Better efficiency and fuel economy too. And they're enclosed for quieter operation. You'll find more legroom. Easier refueling. And on our 130, a higher performance 30-inch mower deck.

See for yourself. John Deere's combination of high quality and performance, along with low price, gives you more tractor for a lot less money than ever before. Compare what others have to offer. You'll find there's never been a better time to own a John Deere.

Local video dealers turn thumbs down on stickering program

Alexandria's video dealers have mixed feelings about the provincial stickering program.

Last year, the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations implemented a video classification stickering program. The program gives dealers a booklet with approved provincial ratings on more than 5,000 movies.

Stickers are provided free of charge and must be placed on the cassette case, any advertising posters and the video cassette itself.

At this thime, labelling is voluntary pending the passage of a bill to make stickering mandatory, but the campaign has already caused a great deal of controversy.

The start date for this program has been stalled three times, with the last cancellation date of March 7, 1986. With plans to hire a consultant, no date has yet been chosen to implement this program.

Ministry Special Projects Officer Linda O'Leary said the reason for the delay was that the process to make the labels stick was not working. Production problems are just the leading edge of the problem.

Ron Theoret, owner of three Sky-Hi video stores and the Alexandria Drive In, said the program will not succeed. He said stickering his own small establishment would take a full-time staff of two or three, labelling continously over a three week period.

Although Mr. Theoret's Alexandria branch carries more than 2,500 videos, only one third were listed in the booklet provided by the ministry.

He thinks the ministry will never catch up with the industry because of the sheer volume of films issued every year.

Mr. Theoret is frustrated over what he sees as unfair competition with other sectors of the media.

At movie theatres including drive-ins, films which are rated R (restricted) permit youth under the age of 18 years old to enter.

Until the law is changed, he said, anyone can rent a restricted movie from a home video stores. If and when the law is changed banning young people from renting restricted movies, Mr. Theoret thinks they will either get a friend or a relative to rent the film for them.

If all else fails, young people will be able to wait and see the film on pay television, which is regulated by the federal government, not the province.

Different ratings on movies have also caused problems he said. Rambo, First Blood Part II was rated AA (Adult Accompaniment). On home videos, the movie was given a restricted rating.

To further complicate matters only English films are rated. French, Italian and other non-English films are not rated.

The issue of film rating is not a problem in itself. American ratings already exist on cassettes entering Canada. Unfortunately each of the 10 provinces want to rate each movie as they see fit.

Noble Villeneuve, SD&G MPP thinks the problem lies with different moral standards existing between different provinces and the United States.

Mr. Theoret believes Canada will just have to eventually accept the American rating because of all the problems involved with differing ratings.

To complicate the stickering matter further, home cassettes have release dates which allow the main distributor to release a film on the same date throughout North America.

If there is a problem with stickering, Mr. Theoret says Canada may get a movie three months later. Canada will lose out and some stores will go out of business, he said.

Bernie Lalonde agrees. Mr. Lalonde is the son of Bruno Lalonde who owns Lalonde General Store, which also rents videos through a distributor. He thinks sales will decrease with the mandatory stickering program.

Huguette Theoret of Theoret Video has gone ahead with the stickering but doesn't think it will make that much of a difference.

"This could be a good thing for some people," she said. "But people will watch anything. If they want to see something with violence or sex, they will watch it."

Enervision owner, Grace MacMillan thinks the ministry will go no further in its efforts to implement the program.

"They got their point across and got us thinking about it (ratings)," she said.

With more than 1,800 videocassettes available, Ms. MacMillan ensures all restricted movies are kept behind the counter away from youth and children.

Mr. Theoret has another solution. He thinks the answer lies with the parents.

"The control has to be at home," he said. "It must be the parents who decide what is suitable for their children."

Ford rink wins Moose spiel

Ed Ford's team of Dave Simpson, John Cairns, and Don McConnell won the 22nd annual Moose Bonspiel held at the Alexandria Curling Club on March 14 and 15.

Twenty four teams participated in the popular event which features a Moose meat dinner, provided by Dr. Roman. Dunc Macdonell and Kaye Hay were in charge of the bonspiel.

Runner-up was the Lancaster rink of Coleman MacDonald, Garry McArthur, Norman Leroux and Ralph Gordon.

The one game high was won by Cornwall's Kiyo Oka with Kelly Oka, Bob McAteer and Fred Sabourin. One game runner-up was Maxville's Gus Lalonde. Gus's team was Garry Smith, Bill Campbell and Al Douglas.

The All-Star Team was Coleman MacDonald of Lancaster as skip, Kelly Oka of Cornwall as third, Grant MacCulloch of Vankleek Hill as second and Al Kelso of Prescott as lead.

A 15-year survivor badge was given out to Coleman MacDonald and a 10-year badge to James Campbell of Maxville.

PLANNING AN AUCTION IN 1986?

An auction is reaping the benefits of your accumulated assets built up over a life's work be it furniture; machinery; livestock or other merchandise. Before making the decision of who to hire one should thoroughly investigate an auctioneer's experience, ability, client satisfaction with prices, advertising and buyers geographic range, dealer contacts, integrity and the crucial ability to auction in both languages.
We feel that with our experience at L'Encan St. Polycarpe, Montreal Auto Auction and with a wide scope of satisfied clients in the area plus in Illinois we can prove top marks in the above qualifications. Your goal is maximum dollars in your pocket and in checking with our past and present clients you will find a high degree of satisfaction. It does not mean we are necessarily cheaper but we do produce unbeatable results!
Due to our farming commitments we have in past years refused sales that were to be held in busy seasons ie. May and June. In view of this we have now gone into partnership with Mr. Clifford Hope, R.R. 1, Williamstown, a licenced auctioneer with excellent ability and knowledge in the auction business. We are honored that Mr. Hope has agreed to work with us and are now open for all types of sales whatever the date. Watch for our upcoming April sales; some dates still open.

Over 100,000 hours of work created by conservation authority projects

MARTINTOWN — Over the past three years, special employment projects sponsored by the Raisin Region Conservation Authority have created more than 100,000 man-hours of work and pumped close to $1 million into the local economy.

Miles of nature trails have been improved, shorelines have been stabilized and scores of municipal drains have been opened up.

And it's all been done at relatively little cost to local taxpayers.

The key to this success story has been the authority's adeptness in making use of the many federal and provincial job creation grants that came on stream during the eighties in response to high unemployment.

Since 1983, the RRCA has sponsored 11 different projects providing 154 temporary jobs for previously unemployed people.

The bulk of the $962,978 invested in the area came from the provincial and federal governments.

"All of the projects undertaken were done so with the co-operation of area municipalities," RRCA Chairman Charles Sangster said recently.

"Drain maintenance has proven to be one of the most popular activities, because so much of our farming community is dependent on a good drainage system."

The authority is currently involved in its second drain maintenance project funded by Employment and Immigration Canada.

A forest management training project is also under way, funded by the same federal government.

The 12-week drainage program, which ends March 28, is employing 16 workers at $300 to $315 per week, plus a foreman at $500.

Under Section 38 of the Unemployment Insurance Act, Employment and Immigration Canada is covering the lion's share of the $91,910 project.

To qualify for the program, all employees must be eligible to collect unemployment insurance. The government then supplements their UIC benefits to bring them up to the wage rate listed above.

Technically, the employees are still on UIC and must be given time off, if requested, to look for permanent work.

Working closely with local municipal officials, the RRCA team inspects rural drainage systems, identifies problems and removes obstructions such as fallen trees, brush and beaver dams.

The Ministry of Natural Resources is co-operating by notifying trappers of areas where a beaver problem is discovered.

"With so many farms now tile drained, it is becoming an increasingly important task to keep the major watercourses open," RRCA Resources Development Co-ordinator Andrew Code explained.

By the time the project is completed, 4500 man-hours will have been spent inspecting and cleaning out 40 different drainage systems within the Authority's jurisdiction.

In addition, the crew will establish many elevation bench marks to assist in future drain improvement work, and will cut 100 cedar posts and 1,000 feet of pine rail for the construction of a fence at Charlottenburgh Marsh Conservation Area.

Repairs will also be made on the authority's storage building.

Experience gained from these special employment projects, combined with the psychological boost of getting out of the house and working, has propelled many of these employees into full-time jobs, Mr. Code says.

"We've had a lot of people go on to work with other conservation authorities as well as with private companies."

"Most of the people who come here use it as a stepping stone towards a permanent job."

The projects also provide interim work for seasonally employed people. Albert McDonald is one example.

Mr. McDonald works in construction and finds himself laid off during the winter.

"It's a real good fill-in," the Harrison's Corners resident said.

"Mr. McDonald is one of the most experienced members of the crew. In addition to working with Cornwall Gravel during the construction season, he is drainage superintendent for Cornwall Township.

He has also worked for Ontario's Ministry of Transportation and Kostuch Engineering.

Mr. McDonald has participated in other special employment projects and has praise for the skills that are taught.

"I took a CPR course and St. John's Ambulance course two years ago," he pointed out.

This year he took part in a chainsaw safety course sponsored by the RRCA and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Although an experienced chainsaw operatior himself, Mr. McDonald said the course was extremely valuable to the less-experienced members of the crew.

The chainsaw course was also cited as a high point by members working under the Authority's forest management training project.

That $57,355 project, funded 93 per cent by Employment and Immigration Canada, is geared towards teaching job skills.

All employees must be long term unemployed, although it is not necessary for them to be on unemployment insurance.

Under this program, the RRCA is employing five people for 24 weeks, a project manager at $500 per week and four labourers at $280.

In addition to chainsaw use, the employees have been taught valuable skills in forest management while thinning and pruning trees in the area's public forests.

"I didn't know one tree from another tree," 21-year-old Lise Piche said. "Now I know what trees you should cut down and why."

Miss Piche, along with two other members of the crew, has applied to enroll in the forest technician course at Sir Sandford Fleming College in Lindsay, Ontario.

The Summerstown native, currently residing in Cornwall, says much of what is taught in the first year of the college course is similar to what she has learned working with the authority.

In addition to tree identification, the employees have learned formulas for evaluating the volume of wood in a stand and been taught how to handle snow and water sampling equipment.

Daniel Gauthier, 21, of Lancaster Township, is planning to head to British Columbia with his new skills.

"There are a lot more forestry companies out there and this experience has given me a head start," he said.

Giving people a head start while carrying out necessary work in the community is what the special employment projects are all about, Authority General Manager Jay Currier says.

"Under our regular program, neither the authority nor the municipal councils could afford to do this work without raising local taxes, but it's all work that has to be done," Mr. Currier said. "Our local provincial MPPs and federal MPs have been instrumental in the approval of the conservation authority's numerous applications."

"If the senior levels of government continue to make special funding available, we will be happy to continue our role of co-ordinating those projects on behalf of our member municipalities."

TREE TRIMMING—The Raisin Region Conservation Authority has hired many local residents over the years thanks to special employment programs. Daniel Gauthier, one of those hired under the program, is seen here trimming the branches off trees.

Doctors claim patients' support in extra-billing battle

Local doctors say patients are starting to support them in their fight with the provincial government over extra-billing.

On Thursday, 60 doctors from Cornwall and Glengarry closed their offices and met at the Cornwall General Hosptal for a study session. The purpose of the day was to make the public aware of the issue and doctors think it succeeded.

Doctors across the province are protesting Liberal government plans that would see extra-billing outlawed. The proposed legislation contains heavy penalties for any doctor who extra billed a patient and while doctors would be permitted to opt out of OHIP, they would not be entitled to charge patients more than the provincial rate.

Dr. Ajay Varma of Alexandria said the day was a success and it managed to bring the entire issue to the public's attention. Dr. Varma, past president of the Cornwall Academy of Medicine, said patients must understand that the doctors are fighting for their welfare as well.

"If the law goes through we'll be answerable to the government," he said. "All along we've answered to the patient first and everyone else came second, but that will all change."

He said there are a great number of patients who support the doctor's fight. Some have expressed their concerns to him and many have signed protest cards that will be sent to Premier David Peterson.

Dr. Varma said he doesn't know what local doctors will do next, adding the study session and its success would be discussed at an academy meeting tonight.

"Some of the doctors are militant and they say we should shut down everything," he said. "Not all of us are in favor of that. We don't want to hurt the patients, we just want them to grasp the implications of the act."

Dr. Jean-Claude Nadeau of Alexandria was on vacation on Thursday and didn't take part in the study session. While he didn't take part in the action, Dr. Nadeau said he stands behind the doctor's efforts.

"This bill won't change anything," he said. "People are getting the best of care now. I can't see what benefit it will give the patients. I think it comes down to a question of democracy, running your life the way you want to."

Dr. Nadeau, the medical chief of staff at Glengarry Memorial Hospital, said it has been his experience that when the government becomes involved in running something, the results aren't always the best.

The one-day action didn't cause any problems at the hospital. In fact, officials there said it was a normal day.

Nicole Trudel, director of nursing, said the doctor who would normally have been on-call, Dr. John Edgar, did his usual job and there was no disruption.

"There was no disruption here at the hospital as a result of the study session," Mrs. Trudel said. "Things ran as usual. The emergency department was covered."

Dr. Edgar is perhaps in the best position to know what medicine would be like under the new legislation. A native of Britain, where they've had a similar system in place since the late 1940's, he returned to that country and worked as a doctor from 1976 to 1981.

"Many people don't understand the issue," he said. "It is very obscure. There is no immediate crisis, but the bill would enable the government to take complete control of the medical system, as it has done in Britian."

Dr. Edgar said the situation in Britain is so bad that some senior citizens can't get proper medical care and waiting lists for such things as kidney transplants are very long.

"The purpose of the legislation is to create the same situation here," he said. "In Britain, doctors have a comfortable life. You have a good contract, a good pension, but you're a slave to the whiners. The people who complain get all the attention, because it's free.

"We should decide what's best for the people," he said. "The government wants to tell us what to do and how to do it."

Dr. Edgar said he can see a day when the bill will be abused, saying "While Mr. Peterson may be a nice guy, his successors may not be."

Lancaster's Dr. Donal Conway said the legislation was "vindictive" and said the government should have consulted with doctors before it drafted the bill.

"It was brought in as a result of a common-law marriage between the NDP and the Liberals," he said. "It certainly has nothing to do with doctors in the area at all."

Lochiel Street residents receive grant money for water project

Some Lochiel Street East homeowners received an unexpected present from the provincial government recently.

The homeowners, who live in the Township of Lochiel just outside the Alexandria limits, received cheques this week which covered 60 per cent of the money they had to spend in August to correct a serious water problem.

Township officials, who had been told there would be no provincial money coming for the project, said Tuesday they were happy with the recent good news and the homeowners are probably just as pleased.

In August, homeowners on the street suddenly found themselves with very little, or no, water coming out of their taps. The problem was a one-inch water pipe that was being used to supply the homes from the Alexandria PUC. It was too small to carry enough pressure and the resident's water supply just gave out.

The municipality was faced with a dilemma: it could fix the problem through regular channels, but that would mean a series of hearings, which could take up to a year. The other solution would be to have all the homeowners agree to pay the cost of part of the project and have municipal employees perform the work.

The residents eventually contributed the money and a larger pipe was installed in late August.

The project would have been eligible for 75 per cent provincial funding if it had taken the longer route. As it was, the job was done quickly, but neither the township or homeowners expected to receive any help.

However, Reeve Ron MacDonell and other municipal officials appealed to Prescott-Russell MPP and Environment Minister assistant Jean Poirier and their pleas were answered last week when the township received a $9,000 cheque, to be divided among the township and the residents.

Mr. MacDonell said he first spoke with Mr. Poirier in the late fall, when the MPP was in Glen Robertson for the official opening of a pumping station in that community. On the way back to a reception in Alexandria, the group stopped at the Lochiel Street East site and Mr. Poirier was shown the work.

"I give him all the credit," Mr. MacDonell said. "Through him, we were able to get this and I appreciate it. The municipality has sent him a thank-you letter."

Glengarry Cancer Society prepares for April campaign

The Glengarry Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society held a meeting February 25 at the Glengarry Memorial Hospital.

Congratulations were extended to all in Eastern District for receiving the 1985 Gold Medal, for the second year in a row, for having the highest percentage increase in campaign funds over 1984. $388,456 was raised in Eastern Ontario in 1985.

It was announced by President Peggi Calder that a new cookbook, published by Ontario Division called Smart Cooking will soon be available.

This soft-cover, four-color cookbook will cost $14.95 and includes recipes that comply with the society's nutrition guidelines. This cookbook will be available through the Glengarry Unit, Charlottenburgh Branch and the Maxville Branch of the Cancer Society.

A substantial donation from the estate of the late Keith Stewart of Williamstown to the Glengarry Unit for its use was recognized and will be put to good use.

It was reported by Dianh Perdson, secretary of the Cornwall Unit, that there will be a cancer booth for public information on April 29 and 30 at the Seaway District High School in Iroquois, sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit.

Sheila Lafave of Williamstown, reporting for Charlottenburgh branch, said that patient service, transportation and public information is being provided on a continual basis.

Marion Loewen, president of Maxville branch, reported that these services are available in her area, also.

Marion MacNaughton, campaign chairman for Glengarry, reported the material for the 1986 April campaign is now being distributed to the area campaign chairmen and Glengarry will be ready to kick off its fundraising campaign for April 1.

The objective for Glengarry is $25,000.

Directory is now available

The first, bilingual edition of the SD&G directory of community services and resources is now available.

It is a handy reference guide for anyone who wants to know where to turn for information on daycare, types of French schooling, adult education, druge and alcohol addiction, services for the mentally retarded, nursing homes, crime prevention programs, legal and victims services, senior citizens' clubs, women's organizations, ethnic groups and many other services and resources in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

The directory lists approximately 400 community organizations and/or programs in the fields of education, employment, health, housing, law, social services, welfare services, sports, recreation, special interest organizations and information.

Each listing includes address, phone number, person to contact and a brief description of the services and/or objectives of each organization/program. As well as a table of contents, the directory includes both alphabetical and subject indexes.

Copies of the directory are available for $10 ($12 mailed). They may be picked up, or ordered from the Cornwall Information Centre, 132 Second Street, P.O. Box 338, Cornwall, K6H 5T1 (938-0293).

For SD&G residents outside the City of Cornwall, copies of the directory may be seen, and order forms are available at SD&G County libraries in Alexandria, Avonmore, Dalkeith, Lancaster, Maxville, Moose Creek, St. Andrews, and Williamstown.

The directory is a project of the Stormont Inter-Agency Association, which is a non-profit organization. It has been produced voluntarily and without funding, and proceeds from its sale will be used to cover printing costs.

Charlottenburgh man hurt in accident

A South Branch Road man was treated in hospital for minor injuries he received Sunday afternoon in a two-vehicle accident on the King's Road.

Lancaster OPP report that Douglas Hargrove, 67, of the South Branch Road, was driving a 1985 Ford station-wagon on the King's Road, when he slowed down to make a left-hand turn.

At the same time, a tractor-trailer, driven by Leo Charlebois, 45, of St. Donat, Quebec, attempted to pass the car and a collision occurred.

Mr. Hargrove was taken to Cornwall General Hospital for treatment of his injuries.

Damage to the Hargrove vehicle is estimated at $3,000, with $2,000 damage to the Charlebois truck. Cpl. Andy Vanderwoude investigated.

Summer job market in Alexandria looks promising

Students anxious for summer employment can relax. Alexandria's summer employment prospects look good.

"There is always work around," said Michael Kelly, a counsellor at the Glengarry Human Resources on Main Street.

He said since most of the work available in the area tends to be manual, young people between 16 and 18 generally have no problem finding work.

Farms, small businesses and the expansion of the Glengarry Golf and Country Club provide golden opportunities, he said.

Most of the jobs come from word of mouth with many students finding work with friends or relatives.

Those who can't find work in Alexandria can also try Cornwall. But Mr. Kelly said most students, because of transportation problems, prefer to stay in town.

Eugene Legault, director of the agency, said the word of mouth employment comes from the fact that "everybody knows each other. It's not what you know, but who you know."

This small-town attitude helps the majority of Alexandria students to be self-reliant in their job search.

Mr. Kelly estimated about one-third of the town's youth used the agency's facilities to obtain employment.

He said between 150 to 200 students registered at the employment centre last year. Around 30 to 50 students were placed in jobs.

Despite the student's self-reliance, many can benefit from visiting the Glengarry Human Resources. Information about provincial and federal summer employment programs are available.

Youths pondering their future can take advantage of Futures—a career-directed program aimed at 15 to 24-year-olds.

Challenge 86 or Summer Experience 86 will give students experience in their fields of study.

Also, a young person can obtain a $2,000 interest-free loan to start their own business, merely by filling out a Student Venture Capital Application.

Young people looking for farm jobs can also use the Farm Labor Pool in Vankleek Hill to supplement their income.

Mr. Kelly said it is not necessary to start summer job hunting now. He said since much of the work in Alexandria is seasonal, many companies rehire their own staff before looking for additional workers.

He also added that many university or college students don't hit the job market until the beginning of May.

"They usually take a week off for holidays before job hunting," he said.

The influx of high school students is expected to take place at the end of June or early July.

If prospects in Alexandria are not good enough, a student can always look towards the Cornwall area.

Hugh McAlear, supervisor of the Cornwall Employment Centre said someone from the centre usually visits GDHS-ESRG in Alexandria to register students with the Cornwall Employment Centre and the Glengarry Human Resources. Brochures on various provincial summer programs are placed in the schools guidance offices.
