CANADA-CONFEDERATION

CENTENNIAL

1867

Winchester

Welcome

It won't be a re-run of the War of 1812, the Americans are not trying to take over the country, nor as far as the Centennial program committee knows are the Russians coming unless it is to celebrate the New Year 1967, Canada's Centennial.

To get the year off with a big noise and a display of brilliant light in the blackened 1967 sky, Winchester's Centennial Committee has scheduled a pyrotechnic display unequalled in local history. Coupled with the ringing of church bells and the holiday spirit that will prevail about the village the last hour of 1966 and the first hour of Centennial 1967 should be quite a loud and colourful affair.

The gigantic fireworks display to shower light for many miles around from hundreds of feet above the Public School grounds will begin shortly after 11.30 p.m. Saturday evening and climax as the clock strikes the magical midnight Centennial hour. In this interval the local churches will be welcoming the new year with the tolling of the bells.

The form of New Year's celebration and Centennial welcome will be a natural for the kids to anticipate, stay up and enjoy. The fuses will first be lit on the Public School grounds at about 11.30 p.m. Saturday night and from then on the skies will be coloured and sparkling with the fireworks. A clear view of the sky from a front or back window is all that will be necessary to enjoy the fireworks if the cold New Year air does not entice one's self into warm clothes to watch from outside.

It's a New Year's Eve party for the whole family.

Program Committee Meets Tuesday

Village's Centennial programming committee convenes for their first meeting of 1967 in the Council Chambers Tuesday night, January 3rd, at 8 p.m.

The meeting will move quickly to matters at hand. The finalization of plans for distribution of the Centennial pins now on hand. Reports from committee chairmen on their projects slated for the upcoming year will be received, discussed, and any necessary action taken. With the opening of Centennial year the committee has ready many commemorative activities.

Already completed are several items on the Centennial program: the fashion show, curling bonspiel, with the New Year's fireworks and bell ringing coming up this week-end.

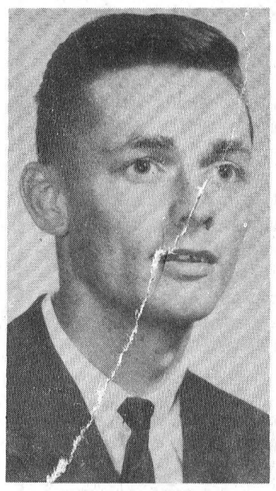
Doug Curtis Recovering In Civic

Winchester man Doug. Curtis remains in Ottawa Civic Hospital this week under sedation and suffering from serious injury in a December 21 car accident.

Rushed to hospital by ambulance last Wednesday evening, Mr. Curtis, age 20, was taken to surgery almost immediately for an operation related to a torn kidney. Other injuries include a possible concussion, and multiple lacerations and contusions.



In the employ of Ottawa Accounting firm Milne, Honeywell and Burpee, he was returning from Arnprior to Ottawa with two business associates when their car apparently went out of control on Highway 17, three miles west of Carp. The local man was thrown from the vehicle as it plunged down a 75-foot enbankment.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Curtis of Winchester, Doug. was transferred from the intensive care unit at the Civic on Saturday but still remains under close observation and is being fed intrevenously. He will be hospitalized for some time.

A student at Winchester High and North Dundas District High Schools, he was an outstanding athlete, winning many awards. It was an injury to the same kidney now affected that determined a premature retirement from athletics.

Soil And Crop Annual Meeting In Kemptville

1967 Soil and Crop Improvement Conference will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 3rd and 4th, at the Kemptville Agricultural School, Kemptville. This 19th Annual Meeting of the Eastern Associations will attract over 600 delegates and farmers from the 11 Eastern Counties of Ontario.

The theme of the Conference this year is "More Money from the Same Acres."

Forages will be in the spotlight on the first day of the Conference. Establishment, fertilizing for high yields, and management all are major topics on the afternoon program. Dr. D. H. Heinrichs, Head of the Forage Crops Section, Experimental Farm, Swift Current, Saskatchewan, will represent the Canada Department of Agriculture and will discuss Management of forage crops.

Evening banquet will take place at six p.m. the first day and will feature the announcement of the H. Harris McNish Award winner. This award is given to the farmer giving most outstanding leadership in Eastern Ontario Agriculture. Dr. Ernest Mercier, Special Advisor on Agricultural matters in the Quebec government, will be the guest speaker at the evening session.

Morning program for Wednesday, January 4th will continue on the same theme when Dr. J. B. Stone, O.A.C., University of Guelph, will present the topic "Utilization of Forages." The afternoon session will include a look into the future by Ontario's Deputy Minister of Agriculture, E. M. Biggs. His presentation, "What's in the Next Ten Years?" will be a highlight of the Conference.

Meals will be provided at the Kemptville Agricultural School for a nominal fee and overnight accommodation can be arranged for those making reservations through their local Agricultural Representatives.

Ault Fire Double Costly

Each day of inoperation of a fire damaged drying chamber at Ault Milk Products Limited runs cost of a December 20th fire higher. A maximum effort is now in effect to make the unit ready for operation once again. With the chamber out of commission, Ault's cannot turn out a finished powdered product and the ingredients must be trucked to a Quebec plant for the final process. Hopefully, officials anticipate the dryer will be back in operation early next week.

Winchester Fire Department answered a call to the giant milk complex shortly after seven p.m. in zero temperatures. At the time volunteers moved immediately to the roof of the third floor section above the chamber. Flames were shooting out through a ventilation duct. Thousands of gallons of water were poured down on smouldering drying bags inside the chamber. Smoke prevented the volunteer firemen and Ault employees to get inside to the fire centre until the cascades of water pouring down from above began to quell the threat.

Majority of fire damage was confined to within the unit, which extends from the second floor to a lofty third floor position. Water damage was recorded and charred and chopped roof sections add to the damage total.

All village fire equipment was on the scene and was effective in operation under the direction of Chief Frank Gannon. Firemen tied in two hydrants and the large village tank truck for water supply that was more than ample to meet the demand of hoses.

Just The Family

Christmas is always a time for coming home. In some families that means the gathering of the parents, children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. For Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holmes on Christmas Monday it meant all of these people coming home to the farm. All 86: ten children, their children and their children's children came to Grandpa's and Grandma's for Christmas dinner. It's tradition at Christmas for the family to gather at home and all but two members of the family made 1966 a big Christmas.

With such a variety of appetites the serving tables were laden with holiday foods. What feeds a family of 86 for a Christmas dinner. One giant turkey, two geese, eight large chickens, enormous amounts of dressing, potatoes, gravy, salad, pickles and other assorted delicacies, and to top it all off a choice of desserts in giant quantity, tea, coffee or milk. Anything which might happen to escape country air appetites would soon be depleted at a supper for a small gathering of merely 24.

Harold Stinson Dies At 53

Harold Stinson, purchasing agent for the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information, died at age 53 in Morrisburg of a coronary attack.

Mr. Stinson had resided in Morrisburg for eleven years before accepting the Toronto position with the Tourism section last April. His death occurred at the home of Alexander Barclay, a brother-in-law. Previous to his position as purchasing agent with the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, he was employed by Ontario Hydro.

Born in Ottawa he is survived by his wife, the former Eileen Barclay of Winchester.

Funeral service at the Fairbairn Funeral Home will be held Thursday (to-day)

Several village stores adding extra impetus to shopping in Winchester sponsored shoppers' contests with many prizes of gift certificates or merchandise.

At Vice and Craig Ltd. Mrs. Agnes McLean of Winchester was the lucky winner of the $100 merchandise gift certificate. The name of the winner was drawn Christmas eve and Mrs. McLean, notified of her good fortune, gained an early and unexpected present.

Count'em Contest culminated at MacIntosh Furniture and Appliances with drawing of two names for gift certificate prizes. Mrs. Howard Biccum wins a $35 dollar gift certificate and Toni Moss of Chesterville the second prize of a $15 certificate.

A giant Christmas stocking jammed with goodies was given away at LaRose Pharmacy. Winner of the package of goodies was Harold Hodgson of Winchester.

Speaking, Caravan, Essay Public School '67 Program

Dundas County elementary school children have an extensive Centennial year program laid out before them.

R. Coleman, Chesterville Public School Principal, is chairman of a committee organizing a County Concert. The ambitious project will present original songs and scripts, stage settings and costumes.

Tree planting that has been part of the County program for the past three years, will continue. Suggestion has been made that each school have a commemorative tree planted on its property in Spring 1967.

As part of the provincial program all students will be receiving the bronze medallion. Athletic events and awards will probably be given a Centennial flavour.

The annual Hutchison history essay competition this year will relate to Confederation. M. N. Hutchison, former Dundas County Inspector, sponsors the competition.

Not only students but everyone should plan to take advantage of the visit of the Centennial Caravan to Winchester on Saturday, May 20. The Caravan visits Morrisburg the previous day.

The North Dundas District High School Student Council has proposed a joint essay competition for grade 5-12. Details of this are being worked out at present.

Dundas County School Inspector H. O. Knapper is enthused with the Centennial program as set aside so far and expects more additions frequently.

New Year Greetings

Best Wishes

With the final turning of the calendar leaf in 1966 once again Winchester will come prosperously and hopefully to another year in its history. This time with a new civic administration. At the call of the chair Council will convene for its inaugural meeting January 9th under the leadership of a new Reeve, George E. Elliott.

Mr. Elliott, an established and progressive businessman of this community, is to be congratulated on his election to the highest of municipal offices in this village. There is no doubt that he realizes his responsibility in local government as the reeve of a growing and prospering community. Nor of his determination and ability to serve this community with integrity and aptitude.

Members of the entire municipal council are to be congratulated and encouraged as they take office. Essentially only one new face appears around the long council table. With men of experience and his own decade of activity in municipal affairs Mr. Elliott should receive the full confidence of his fellow council members to mould and carry out a comprehensive and effective administrative policy.

In unison it will be his duty to lead and to follow. To take the forefront of municipal government, by suggestion, careful consideration, decision and action for the betterment of this community. Again it will be for him to encourage the thoughts, ideas and decision of his council, act upon their counsel, share his ideas and theirs.

The Reeve and Councillors have been charged by election to realize the vitalness of their position, and to serve all the people to the best of their recognized abilities.

In summation this newspaper would be remiss if the retiring Reeve of the village, Mr. Reynolds, was not accorded a commendation of excellence on his distinguished record of achievement while a member of municipal council, both as reeve and councillor. Certainly the Reeve-elect and all who have served or associated with Mr. Reynolds are well aware of his contributions to this village. His experience, ability and knowledge at council and extra councillary have been outstanding and his record admirable.

To Mr. Reynolds our thanks for his devotion and contribution to a better Winchester. To Mr. Elliott and his council we extend our support and our wish for many days of sound and imaginative government — a municipal government designed to give a growing community the leadership it deserves . . . and needs.

To all, a Happy New Year!

The Challenge Of Hunger

Recent demonstrations of Canadian housewives against raising food prices was an exercise in responsible citizenship. But a realistic perspective must be kept on such things. The sense or proportion must not be distorted by people's general affluence.

Public health authorities have said that in North America more people die of too much food than of too little. Malnutrition has not been eliminated in our society, but obsesity has become a greater health problem in North America than malnutrition. The medical people seriously discuss what is called "overnutrition for the child."

Sleek, affluent people of this continent need to be reminded that two-thirds of the people of the world are under-nourished. The World Health Organization, an agency of the United Nations, has estimated that malnutrition is a major factor in over four million deaths throughout the world each year.

For most people the great problem is not a cold war in danger of becoming hot, but a cold, empty feeling in the pit of the stomach which is not likely to become a warm, full one. It will be to the lasting shame of the richer parts of the world if they do not meet aggressively and constructively and compassionately the problem of world hunger.

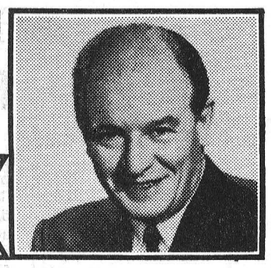
Centennial Report



1867 1967

by JOHN W. FISHER
CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

Canada's teachers have the opportunity in 1967 to help make a visit to the Confederation Train or Caravan exhibitions a memorable and valuable experience.

The Train, starting January 9 at Victoria on a cross-Canada tour of 63 cities, and the Confederation Caravans, visiting more than 700 communities are, in effect, travelling teaching aids. The story of Canada from primeval times will unfold before the eyes of children as they experience, by sight and sound, an adventure through history. Life-size models, sound effects, lighting, artifacts and photography will enable children to live through great events since the pre-ice-age era.

Standing on the timbered deck of a Viking ship at sea or peering through the slit of a sandbagged trench in no-man's land amid the din of battle — such experiences produce a more lasting impression than would a film or television program.

Visitors to the exhibits will be in a three dimensional world which will affect all their senses. As a good stage presentation usually creates a more lasting impression than does the two dimensional cinema or television screen, so will the Confederation exhibits influence youngsters.

The exhibits also are likely to develop a curiosity among children, and adults too, about the historical background of our country. A journalist, commenting on a pre-tour visit to the exhibits, told us that they "make you want to head for the library to check the why's and when's" of certain developments in Canadian history.

What, for example, were the underlying reasons for the Riel rebellion in 1885? Were English laws enforced in Canada up to 1931 when the Statute of Westminster was passed? Were the west coast Indians descendants of early immigrants from Asia? Questions like those are prompted by a visit to the Train or Caravans.

A Quebec writer visiting the Train also said, "It's like another world to me — I've discovered so much about the history of the West I simply didn't know anything about."

The Train or Caravan exhibits do not constitute a complete history of Canada. In fact there are many gaps. But they do provide a broad impression. Teachers can ensure that a visit is a valuable experience by helping beforehand to fill in some gaps both in the exhibits story and in children's knowledge of history.

A guide to classroom discussions is to reach the desks of teachers, well before the Train and Caravans arrive in communities, in the form of an attractive Centennial Commission color folder. It indicates how the story of Canada is told by the exhibits. Classroom discussion based on the folder can help children grasp the significance of what they will see and hear on their visits.

The Centennial Commission has a great appreciation for the contribution teachers can make to the Train and Caravan projects.

SUGAR AND SPICE
by Bill Smiley

The ordeal is over

This is the time of year — between Christmas and New Year — when some people wish they were Moslems or Buddhists. Yes, that Christmas caper is getting rougher and rougher. Worse than the Feast of Ramadan.

The main bout, Christmas itself, went off smoothly enough. It's the preliminaries that almost murdered us.

One of the first, and the worst, of them, was Christmas Card Night. The kitchen table was a melange of cards, stamps, envelopes and lists.

About half the cards are no trouble at all. You merely sign your name. But you're working with some left-over cards from last year, some new ones. There's always the haunting fear that you sent exactly the same card, with the same message, to the same person last Christmas. This doesn't bother me, but my wife, knowing what women are like about these things, gets the trembles over it.

It's the remainder of the cards, however, that turns the whole thing into a bit of a nightmare. These are the cards to old friends. Each requires a cute, or sentimental, or witty note.

Try writing 50 such notes of an evening, and it takes more out of you than a day in the salt mines.

Such inanities. Such garbage. Such coyness. Such insincerity. You don't believe it? A sample:

To a couple you met on a trip six years ago, who live 1,200 miles away. "We still remember the wonderful times we had. Why can't we get together for a week end? Does Jim still do his famous trick? Our kids are certainly growing up. How about yours?"

You know perfectly well they were dull as porridge, that you would take off like the Canada goose if you even dreamed they were coming to visit, that Jim was stoned and made a mess of his trick. You know your kids have grown up, but you're not even sure they have any kids. And you have to look up their last name in your Christmas register.

It would be a lot more fun sending brief, pungent notes to political leaders and such, with messages like this: "Holiday greetings. Why don't you drop dead?"

Another of the preliminaries which grabs you where it hurts is Christmas Tree Night. This is the annual event which makes me destroy, with my family, the image which I have built up, so carefully, during the preceding 12 months.

This event drives me into a frenzy which neither psychology, science nor faith can explain. It's not exactly a religious frenzy, though I must admit the Lord's name comes up with awsome frequency.

I've tried them all. Iron stands, aluminum stands, wooden stands, buckets of coal. And the damn thing invariably winds up with the same list as a sailor on the sixth day of a seven-day leave.

The last, and not the least of the preliminaries is Gift-Wrapping Night. You wander around, having a drink and giving the Christmas tree the odd quiet kick, while your wife gets the paper and presents out.

Nothing fits. The expensive gold paper bought to wrap Aunt Flo's present isn't big enough, and you wind up wrapping it in that cheap junk from Woolworths. Oh, well, there goes a $5,000 legacy.

Then there's the pre-Christmas party. We've had one for the past six years. Ask me why and I'll explain to you why I'm not in a mental home. But high on the list for admittance.

You'll notice I haven't even mentioned Christmas shopping, which is a form of self-destructive exercise, better than any yet invented. Nor Christmas "music," which is neither music nor Christmasy. Nor Christmas lights on the cruddy cedar on your front lawn.

Oh, well, the heck with it. It's all over now. But that doesn't prevent me from doing something pleasant, in the midst of all these pains in the posterior.

I'd rather shake hands, or kiss you, depending on your sex. But I can't. To all my readers, from Newfoundland to the Yukon, and down to B.C., and then across the prairies, and through the old provinces and down as far again as Shelburne, N.S., permit me to say, "God bless and good heart."

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

TOPPER TWO, TOO, OR ALSO

Greenhorn Farm has a new animal. A friend from the City brought up a purebred, short-haired German pointer pup, because he was too big and strong and eager to be kept on a leash in town.

Well, we've a rule about that. We don't tie up any of the animals if we can help it. So the moment my friend departed, I slipped the leash off Topper and we walked the farm together. I walked, while he leaped, bounded, ran circles around me, and proved his pointing ability. He pointed a rabbit, a robin, and one oil drum.

Yesterday, I saw Nora standing near our garden site, watching me and roaring with laughter. What tickled her was the difficulty I was having in trying to mow down a weed patch and move the weeds onto the compost heap, of which I am so proud. It's a scientifically built compost heap, strictly designed by the book, and I inspect it daily

My difficulty was caused by the fact that my every move was folloowed by our elephant-size pup, Topper, our pint-size Jersey bull, Wooly-Bully, and our normal size cat, Sam — who terrorizes the other animals with his inscrutable stare. They were all at my feet, tripping me occasionally, and making the scything job quite tough.

Toughest thing, though, is to find a name for Topper, because we already had a riding horse called Topper, when the pup arrived. I started calling him Topper II, which looks fancy and doggish in print. But the rest of the family thought I meant Topper Too, meaning Topper Also. It's all very confusing.

Anyone willing to contribute a good name can write to us at Greenhorn Farm, 16893-80th Ave., R. R. 4, Cloverdale, B.C. The other day a letter arrived, addressed to "mole-molested, weed-infected Greenhorn Farm" Please, keep your insults inside the envelope. Our Postie is already beginning to wonder what kind of nuts we are.

Peace in the New Year

by REV. CECIL W. TUININGA

Psalm 90:17—"Establish thou the works of our hands upon us."

It is trite to say that 1967 is for us a hidden year. We know that. The future is closed to us. It is full of hidden possibilities. Yet it is necessary, even mandatory, to reflect on this trite truth. What is common is often unreal, or at least, its reality often fails to impress itself on us. Such is the common fact of life's uncertainty. It is hard to live in a full awareness of this that we are always subject to change, and decay, and time, and death.

No doubt our modern mode of life has much to do with this. Appearances tend to deceive, and to appearances life is good and quite secure. Science has much to do with it. Here is a real friend and ally. We tend to rest in its technical all conquering know-how. Even death will some day hopefully be conquered. Why not? Experience shows us almost daily that science is on the march to conquer every conceivable field, to destroy all man's enemies.

There is still something frustrating in this too, however. Science is proving too much for mankind. Our scientific work is threatening to destroy us. Actually, it is not so much science as it is the heart of man governing scientific hands. If only we could tame man's hateful heart! Heroic efforts are being made to do so. It seems that it is succeeding. It seems that today men are becoming more aware that we need each other, that unless we live in brotherhood we are doomed.

This dream of modern man is vain. It will never be realized for it does not really get at the root of the matter. Man's heart is corrupt, full of hate, as Scripture says, "From whence come wars and fighting among you? come they not hence, even of your lust that war in And the origin of insecurity as Moses declares, "For we are consumed by thine anger, and by the wrath are we troubled. Thou hast set our iniquities before thee."—Ps. 90-7-8. According to this testimony of God's Word the whole of man's life is under His judgment, and change and decay and death are at work because of His wrath upon. How can we then look for anything enduring, for any security?

Here Scripture supplies the only answer. Moses spoke of it this, way "Let thy work appear glory unto their children."—Ps. 90:16. Which work? The great work of redemption in Christ Jesus, in which God's wrath is visited on Him, in our stead, and we in Him, through faith, have life everlasting. Then our work can again answer to God's purposes and it can again endure, as Scripture declares, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them."—Rev. 14:13. Only in faith can man pray that prayer, a prayer that our works may again in Christ Jesus have eternally abiding value. Here alone lies the answer to our modern ills and fears.

The Seventh Column

It was a most joyous Christmas around our place. And for the youngsters it was an extra special day with Old Man Winter coming through with a day-long snow fall to blanket everything in sight. But for many across the nation there was tragedy, mostly from fires and traffic accidents. Actually the Ottawa area headed the list with 15 deaths on the highways. Not a very pleasant outlook for the New Year's week-end coming right up. And remember, that last one for the road could be your LAST one indeed.

On the New Year holiday it looks as though Canada's 100th year will be ushered in with fireworks and ringing of church bells in Winchester according to the Centennial committee. So, if you are around make it an extra special New Year's Eve this year. There really is something to shout about. Listen for the church bells. Watch the pyrotechnics and, if you wish, cheer it up outside. And don't forget to leave your lights on.

The Christmas snow may have caught the town crews with their plows down. At least there were one or two minor bits of criticism about the town this week about snow removal. Nothing serious, mind you, because we are privileged, as a rule, in this town to have a fast and efficient snow removal system in operation. Maybe it was Christmas and the general holiday spirit, but it seemed to a lot of people that the crews did not accomplish too much until Monday, the day after Christmas. And even then side streets were touch and go to say the least. This was a sudden, heavy snow fall . . . the first of the year. And when you get this much snow at one time it does take a little while to clear it away. With the growing number of streets in the village it may not be a bad idea for council to consider hiring "more" snow removal equipment particularly when streets, all streets, have as much snow on them as they did earlier this week. Certainly the one big plow which does most of the streets cannot keep up with a snow fall as heavy as this one unless it starts early and works 'round the clock. We think the new council could well afford to spend some time on snow removal . . . all phases of it.

Another week and we can take a crack at our 1967 predictions. Our batting average, strangely enough, isn't that bad. So next week we'll have a go at it again, Harry. In our 1966 predictions we said: No federal or provincial elections this year, more on provincial redistribution, continued economic prosperity (nationally), Bobby Hull to break all time scoring record, building boom for Winchester district, a long, hot summer. Well, you have to admit that list isn't so bad. Of course, we also predicted the Leafs to win the Stanley Cup and the Riders to win the Grey Cup. They didn't!

Readers of this column, both of them, have said nice things about The Press over the past year and more particularly about our 22-page special last week. Matter of fact, we've had quite a few compliments and words of encouragement about the paper and the many changes which have been made here the last little while. So to you and you and you our thanks. The business world at best is often a life of frustration. And when people take the time to throw you a bouquet once in awhile it makes living just a wee bit more comfortable.

And while we're on the bouquet bit there are a a few people we would like to mention who work while a lot of us play over the holidays. For instance: hospital personnel, restaurant workers, industrial employees where the industry must continue to operate (Ault's a good example), the farmer who still hasn't got a computer for milking a cow, the entertainers on radio and TV, municipal crews, like our own, who keep streets cleared of snow, conscientious doctors, firemen, policemen, telephone and hydro crews and, oh, so many others. Of course, their jobs are different and demanding, but they have to be done. Thanks!

And as we sit here and glance back the street the picture is one that's hard to beat. White, white snow, bright sun, blue skies and a real crispness. Even the worst old cynic cannot deny the beauty of the season. And if he still persists in saying "humbug" to this kind of weather then a trip to Vancouver is in order where until a day or so ago they had slopped through 45 consecutive days of rain. We'll take this climate any day.

And so we come to that time again when the aging year 1966 is almost a statistic in history and where the infant 1967 is about to be born into a world of war and peace, prosperity and poverty, happiness and sadness. The challenges are still here, and the conditions are not unlike others. It is what we decide to do about it that makes the new year a success or a failure. But more important this year it is Canada's Centennial, the greatest year of all for Canadians. So to everyone a Very Happy New Year!
