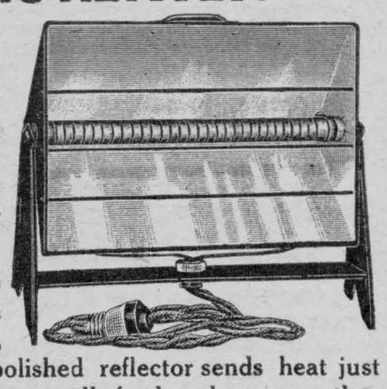
"Ready Heat"

"Ready Heat" is for cooking, heating, baking, boiling, making toast or heating rooms. It will do sure enough regular man-size work --- regular kitchen cooking --- and takes its current from any lamp socket.

"Ready Heat" will soon bring a room up to a comfortable warmth, and without any disagreeable smell or dirt. This is the hottest electric stove and heater on the market, size for size, and the amount of work it will do will surprise you. Size on top is 9 x 6 ins. Heating element guaranteed for one year.

Price $4.00 Each

THE NEW UP-TO-DATE ELECTRIC HEATER



"Reflecto" made for only one purpose — to heat rooms. It makes the cold spots warm in a jiffy and will keep roasting hot for twenty-four hours a day without smell, dirt, or trouble.

"Reflecto" gets busy the minute you connect it with any electric light socket, and the shining, highly polished reflector sends heat just where you want it. This heater sells for less than any other of equal capacity, and certainly will do the work. It stands 12 ins. high and is 13 ins. long. The heating element is guaranteed for one year from date of purchase.

"VIMY RIDGE" HERO ARRIVES HOME

Pt. J. R. Reddick, sonof Mrs. E. Reddick of Morrisburg, who enlisted with the 154th Bat talion and sailed in October, 1916, returned to town on Monday last.

To the many Morrisburgers who have been eagerly watching the careers of local boys at the front, nothing but a familiar, unassuming figure in Khaki suddenly appearing in our midst with an arm hung up in a sling, announces that one of the heroes who figured in the big drive which brought the World to "attention", has returned to us. No brass bands, nor gaily decorated automobiles; no guard of honor, nor public address to express the citizens' pleasure at his safe return and recognition of the heroic deeds of a "Canuck" whose name will be found in the Vimy Ridge Chapter of this great struggle—a chapter which sees the Huns to their knees, but simply a hearty glad hand from his many friends gives vent to their pleasure at his safe return.

That Pt. Reddick has had a marvelous escape from death may be presumed by the desperate character of the struggle in which the Canadians have so signally distinguished themselves. It was in the famous battle of April 6th., 1917 that Private Reddick received his wounds while in action with the second line of attack. The first line and the artillery, he said had cleaned out the first and second trenches which he crossed safely, but it was in attacking the enemy's third trench that he received his wound from a bullet which penetrated his arm and chest, disabling the former. When struck, he tumbled in a heap into a shell hole, but soon came to, and throwing off the "war harness" he sat up and saw hundreds of Germans march out of the trench in good order "two deep" with their hands thrown up, but this was only after the "Maple Leaf" had reached within 100 yards of their trench. A medical man engaged in dressing the wounds of a first line man, turned his attention to the local hero and after dressing his wounds, rushed him off with the stretcher bearers.

Pte. Reddick, who is of a reserved, unassuming disposition speaks very moderately about the deed and when asked about the general situation he replied "I know more about the battle of "Vimy Ridge than those at home do, but nothing more about the general situation." In his opinion "bread bullets" are going to play the most effective part in winning the war. He stated that the ration in the Field Hospital is scant in quantity and quality, but speaks highly of the courteous treatment extended to Canadians by the English people.

John S. Hickey

Mr. John S. Hickey, for a great many years a resident of Morrisburg, died suddenly at his home on Monday, Nov. 5th 1917.

Deceased, who was in his 81st year, was born at East Williamsburg and was very well and favorably known here and throughout the surrounding districts, and the news of his sudden death came as a distinct shock to his many friends.

He is survived by his wife and six children, five sons and one daughter, viz: J. Alexander of Galveston, Texas;, Malcolm A. and J. Stanton of Montreal; Arthur E., Bedford, Que., Frank G., St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Geo. Montgomery, Springfield, Mo.

The funeral which was largely attended by friends and relatives, took place from his late residence on Thursday, Nov. 8th the Rev. W. E. Reynolds officiating. Interment at the old homestead, "Ingleside", East Williamsburg.

DIED

The funeral took place from his late residence to Trinity Church on Monday, Nov. 5th. Rev. C. O. Carson officiated, assisted by Rev. G. S. Anderson, Ottawa.

Victory Loan Campaign Opens Monday Nov. 12th

The organization for selling the new Dominion of Canada Victory Loan in the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry has been completed, and everything is in readiness for the opening of the campaign at 9 a.m., Monday the 12th. inst.

It is the indisputable duty of every citizen of the Dominion of Canada who has $50 or more available to purchase Victory Bonds. BECAUSE

If the conflict which is now raging in the cause of Liberty and Democracy is to be carried to a successful conclusion every available Silver Bullet must be fired as well as those of steel.

BECAUSE Great Britain and her allies are looking to Canada for Provisions and munitions, and are prepared to buy to the extent of the credit we are prepared to advance to them.

BECAUSE the interest rate is 5½ p.c. per annum payable by coupon at any branch of any chartered bank in the Dominion of Canada.

BECAUSE the security behind these bonds is the total resources of the Dominion of Canada.

Every Citizen should have his mind made up as to the amount of Victory Bonds he or she is prepared to buy before the team member calls. This will save time.

Application can be given to team members or forwarded direct to Victory Loan Headquarters at Cornwall. They may also be turned in to any chartered bank.

The more applications turned in the first day of the campaign the more time there will be to cover the balance of the field.

A badge of honor in the shape of a Victory Loan button will be presented to each purchaser of a Victory Bond. Get your badge early.

ITALIANS STOP TEUTON DRIVE ALONG THE TAGLIAMENTO RIVER

Enemy Offensive in the Trentino Repulsed After a Desperate Battle.

Rome, Nov. 4.—Heavy attacks were launched on the Italian lines in the Giudicaria zone on the Trentino front yesterday after extended artillery preparation. The War Office announced to-day that these attacks, which were directed at advanced posts in the Daone and Giumell valleys, were repulsed after hard fighting.

The artillery duel along the Tagliamento is proceeding and the Italians are replying with vigorous measures to stronger Austro-German pressure on the Italian left wing.

The probability is that military operations will become of transcendent import. Northern Italy has attracted increased attention following the announcement in Britain that Lloyd George and Generals Smuts, Robertson, Chief of Staff; Maurice and Wilson and other general officers have gone to Italy. It is understood concentrations are being made in anticipation of an immense struggle either on the line of Tagliamento or in positions to the near. Both the allies and the Germans are hurrying forces and hope to deliver a blow which will possibly terminate the war, at least as far as Italy's part is concerned.

BEERSHEBA CITY TAKEN BY BRITISH

Troops Operating in Holy Land Captured Turkish Base.

A despatch from London says: The British force operating in the Holy Land has captured the City of Beersheba, on the Southern Palestine boundary 42 miles from Jerusalem. The Turks put up a desperate resistance, but the British losses were slight in comparison with the results obtained. Over 1,800 Ottomans were taken prisoner, and they lost nine guns. The official report read:

"General Allenby (commander of the British forces in Egypt) reports that after a night march our troops attacked Beersheba Wednesday morning. While our infantry attacked the defences covering the town from the west and south-west, mounted troops made a wide turning movement through the desert and approached it from the east.

"Beersheba was occupied in the evening in spite of determined resistance by the enemy."

An additional official statement issued Thursday evening says: "In the Beersheba operations we captured 1,800 prisoners and nine guns. Our losses were slight in comparison to the results obtained."

A despatch from London says: A British official communication issued Friday evening dealing with the operations near Jerusalem says: "General Allenby reports that he is now holding the position covering Beersheba on the north. We have successfully raided another portion of the Turkish front.

"A large number of Turks were killed and fifteen prisoners and a machine gun were brought back."

Considerable importance is attached here to the capture of Beersheba in Southern Palestine. It is assumed that General Allenby will now be able to outflank the Turkish positions at Gaza, which have held up the British forces since Sir Archibald Murray's recent reverse in Egypt.

Beersheeba is at the head of a valley which leads straight to Hebron and then to Jerusalem, through which the Beersheba-Jerusalem railway has been laid. It is obvious that this broad valley will afford a means of approach to Jerusalem, even though the Turks succeed in destroying the railway lines.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL RAID CARRIED OUT INTO GERMANY

A despatch from London says:—Another successful air raid carried out by twelve British machines has been made on German munitions factories in Bavaria, according to an official communication issued Thursday night. The communication says: "On Thursday another successful raid was carried out into Germany. Munitions factories at Kaiserlauten (Bavaria) were attacked by two groups of six machines each."

SEVEN CANADIANS ESCAPE FROM HUNS

Succeeded in Recovering Freedom and Will Return to Dominion.

A despatch from London says: Seven more Canadians escaped from Germany have reached England. They are: No. 5147 M. R. Stowe, an original member of the P.P.C.L.I., captured in May, 1915, and imprisoned at Stendal, Munster and Castroph; 1310 J. Watts, an original member of the Winnipeg "Black Devils," whose home is in Port Arthur, and who was captured in April, 1915, at Ypres; 400896 R. Howitt, Mounted Rifles, wounded and captured at Sanctuary Wood, June, 1916; 503454 A. Blacklock, tunneler, enlisted at Calgary, captured at Sanctuary Wood; 111047 F. Boyd, Mounted Rifles, belongs to Fredericton, captured at Sanctuary Wood (these three escaped together); 113295 J. Hockins, Mounted Rifles, captured in June, 1916, and was imprisoned on an island in the Baltic, where he worked on a farm, but later was transferred to a camp in Germany, whence he escaped alone; 10158 A. J. McMullen, Mounted Rifles, captured in Sanctuary Wood, served in several prison camps, and escaped alone.

All these have reached England. They all adopted pretty much the same methods to escape, traveling by night and sleeping by day. They look fit, despite their hardships. They expect to return to Canada almost immediately.

ENEMY RETIRES BEFORE FRENCH

Germans Retreat Along the Chemin-des-Dames.

A despatch from London says: The Germans have retreated from points along the Chemin-des-Dames, in the Aisne sector of the front in France, according to the German official communcation issued Friday evening. The communication gives no reason for the manoeuvre, but says that it was made during Thursday night systematically and without interference by the French troops. The text of the communication follows:

"Unnoticed and undisturbed by the enemy we systematically withdrew our lines from the hilly front of the Chemin-des-Dames Thursday night."

PATROL OF U.S. SOLDIERS CAPTURED BY THE GERMANS

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The capture of American soldiers by a German reconnoitring party is announced by the War Office.

The statement says that on the Rhine-Marne canal, as a result of a reconnoitring thrust, North American soldiers were brought in.

ITALIANS MAKE STAND ON NEW LINE; ALLIES ARRIVE IN ITALY

Gen. Cadorna's Army Ready to Check Foe—Allied Veterans Welcomed by Italians—Teutons Claim 180,000 Men and 1,500 Guns.

A despatch from London says: The greater portion of General Cadorna's third army apparently has crossed the Tagliamento River to the western bank, and will be in position on a new line of defence to give battle to the Teutonic allies.

The advance of the enemy, although it has been remarkably fast, was not quick enough to carry out the purpose of the military commanders of enveloping the Italians and putting them out of battle from the Carnic Alps to the head of the Adriatic Sea.

The Italians lost heavily in men and guns captured—the latest German official communication asserting that more than 180,000 men and 1,500 guns were taken by the Teutonic allies—and also suffered terribly from hardships due to bad weather and lack of food as they made their way across the country to Tagliamento, with their rearguards everywhere harassing the enemy. But General Cadorna declares that with the morale of his men still splendid the success of the invaders soon will be made nil. On the eastern side of the Tagliamento the Teutonic allies have captured along the waterway from Pizano to Latisana bridgehead, positions from which to operate against the Italians on the other side of the stream.

A despatch from Washington says: Anglo-French reinforcements have reached the Venetian front, where General Cadorna's second and third armies are declared to have retired in good order toward the new line—probably that of the Tagliamento—where the projected stand is to be made.

Official information reaching Washington from Rome on Thursday asserted that the Italians had welcomed the British and Federal veterans enthusiastically, and that the Anglo-French Commanders found the personnel and material of the Italian army to be stronger than it was thought they would be after having sustained so severe a shock as that which the Teutons delivered through the back-door of the Julian front. Secretary Lansing received a cablegram on Thursday from the American Ambassador at Rome confirming information received at the Italian Embassy that the Italian army is retiring in good order, that the pressure from the direction of the enemy had lessened, and that the Government had the unified support of the Italian people and all political parties.

FRENCH REACH THE AILLETTE

On the French Front in France, Nov. 4.—The French advance in pursuit of the Germans beyond the Chemin-des-Dames has attained an average of a mile and a half, the southern bank of the Aillette being reached everywhere. Altogether since yesterday about 18 square miles of territory have fallen into French hands, the progress being necessarily slow owing to the uncertainty as to where the Germans will make a stand.

Many points of the line were bombarded by the German big guns during the French advance, especially in the neighborhood of Ailles, where numerous mustard-gas shells somewhat delayed the progress of the French troops.

The Paris War Office announces that during the course of the battle of Malmaison, which ended in the withdrawal of the Germans across the Aillette, French aviators attacked the enemy troops with their machine guns, bombarded stations and points of concentration. They fought 611 aerial engagements. Sixteen German aeroplanes were brought down, and three captive balloons set on fire. In addition, 50 enemy aeroplanes fell inside their own lines, the greater part of them being completely destroyed.

BESSARABIAN WHEAT CROP TO BE DIVERTED TO RUMANIA

Petrograd, Nov. 4.—An arrangement has been perfected between the Rumanian and the Russian Governments for the diversion of the Bessarabian wheat crop to Rumania. Storage depots have been established, and 20,000 tons of the grain already assembled. The crop is abundant, and it is estimated it will more than meet the needs of the army.

CANADIANS IN FIERCE STRUGGLE

Canadian Headquarters in France, Nov. 4.—The struggle before Passchendaele has developed into one of the bitterest battles in the whole history of the Canadian forces. Driven from his positions at Bellevue farm and on Passchendaele Spur in the first Canadian attack, and smashed out of Meetcheele and Crest farm in the second Canadian advance, the enemy is fighting desperately to retrieve his losses, or, at least, maintain his position at Passchendaele itself. His faith in the protective value of the swamps and marsh which protected his advanced areas broken, and his best infantry routed in hand-to-hand fighting, the Bosche is throwing in fresh divisions, rushing up guns, and strengthening his defences in every possible manner.

BRITISH NAVY'S WAR ON SUBS

Chief of Admiralty Gives Interesting Figures.

A despatch from London says:—In defending the British navy in the House of Commons on Thursday night Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, reviewed its accomplishments in this war, declaring that, unlike the enemy forces, its role was an offensive one.

"During a recent month," he continued, "the mileage steamed by our battleships, cruisers, and destroyers alone amounted to one million ship's miles in home waters. In addition to this, the naval auxiliary forces patrolled more than six million miles in the same period and territory. The displacement of the navy is 71 per cent. greater than in 1914, when it was 2,400,000 tons. At the outbreak of the war we had eighteen mine-sweepers and auxiliary patrols, to-day there are 3,366. The personnel of the fleet before the war was 146,000, to-day it is 390,000."

Sir Eric Geddes's declaration that between forty and fifty per cent. of the German submarines operating in the North Sea, the Atlantic and the Arctic Oceans had been sunk was not the least interesting of his announcements, and there was an indication of the unceasing war the British and American patrols are making on the submarine in his statement that during the last quarter the enemy had lost as many submarines as during the whole of 1916.

FURTHER GAINS ON THE TIGRIS

The British Advance — Take Positions 20 Miles North of Samara.

London, Nov. 4—The following official communication, dealing with the operations in Mesopotamia and showing that the British forces have made further progress up the Tgris River northwest of Bagdad, was made public by the War Office this evening:

"Early Friday morning one of our reconnoitring columns, moving up the Tigris, engaged the Turks holding a position on the right bank of the river opposite Due, about twenty miles north of Samara.

"The enemy hastily withdrew toward Tekrit, under the cover of a strong rear guard. Our troops drove the latter from successive lines of trenches and occupied the whole position. Meanwhile our cavalry harassed the retreating enemy throughout the day.

"Eighty-nine prisoners and a quantity of ammunition were captured. Our troops fought with much dash and showed great power of endurance."

Raid on London Defeated.

A despatch from London says: Thursday morning's air raid was apparently the most elaborate attempt to "lay London in ruins" ever made by the Germans. That it was a failure was due to the new air defences which, with the gunfire of the aeroplanes, harassed the enemy and broke up his squadrons so that at most three machines were able to cross the metropolis, where they dropped a few bombs.

CANADIANS MAKE FURTHER GAINS

The Capture of Meetcheele by Canada's Oldest Battalion Was Glorious Feat.

A despatch from Canadian Headquarters in France says: The Canadians have closed in further toward Passchendaele. Following the great battle on the left wing, when our troops on the extreme left proved their marked superiority over the enemy while our right outposts ventured into the outskirts of Passchendaele itself, the fighting has been intermittent all along the line. Opposite Meetcheele, where the front lines are near together, the Canadians and the Boches, under the Red Cross flag, evacuated their wounded on Wednesday afternoon. Stretcher-bearers of both forces passed and repassed one another in the mud and slime.

Meetcheele was protected with concrete strongholds, and was strong in machine guns. Seventy-five yards beyond was another point equally powerful. Canada's oldest battalion captured Meetcheele. That capture will live in Canadian history for the daring of the battalion which made it, just as the capture of Bellevue Spur, when the full story can be written, will live because of the gallantry of the men who took it, and the splendid individual record of one man, upon whose judgment, in a critical moment, much of the success of the whole attack depended.

BRITISH TOOK 9,125 GERMANS

"The hostile artillery has shown considerable activity during the day east and north of Ypres. Our own artillery has carried out a number of concentrated bombardments of enemy positions in the battle area.

"The number of German prisoners captured by the British armies in France during October is 9,125, including 242 officers. We also have taken during the same period fifteen guns, 431 machine guns and 42 trench mortars."

LOSSES OF BRITISH IN OCTOBER 82,377.

A despatch from London says: British casualties reported during the month of October totalled 82,377. The losses were divided as follows:

Officers killed or died of wounds, 1,445; men, 14,985.

Officers wounded or missing, 4,133; men, 61,841.

The October losses compare favorably for the British with those reported during September, which totalled 104,598. During October Field-Marshal Haig undertook several renewals of the big drive in Flanders, making notable progress in the process still under way of driving a wedge into the German lines, which is threatening a wide sector in Belgium and Northern France.

Hard to Drop Meat?

All depends on what you eat as a substitute. It is a good time to study "food value." You may be eating the wrong foods, the foods that cost most and give the least nutriment. Shredded Wheat Biscuit contains more real, body-building nutriment, pound for pound, than meat, eggs or potatoes and costs much less. Two of these Biscuits with milk and a little fruit make a nourishing meal at a cost of a few cents. Make Shredded Wheat your "meat." A satisfying breakfast on which to start the day's work. It is ready-cooked and ready-to-eat. Made in Canada.

CANADA AND THE WORLD'S SUPPLY OF WHEAT

It was with considerable satisfaction that readers in all Allied countries received the statement made a short time ago by the Institute of Agriculture at Rome, that 1917 had seen an increase in the wheat crop of the principal countries of the world, outside of the Central Powers, of 3.3 per cent. over 1916. These figures were based on returns from Spain, France, Scotland, Ireland, Switzerland, Canada, the United States, India, Japan and Algeria, which countries are this year estimated to show a total wheat production of 1,665,448,000 bushels. At the same time these same countries show an increase in their barley crop of 2.4 per cent; an increase in their rye crop of 10.7 per cent; an increase in their oat crop of 19.9 per cent. and an increase in their corn crop of 25.3 per cent. That such increases should be possible among nations, most of whom are engaged in war, is in itself a tribute to the productive energy of manhood.

The enormous total of 1,665, 448,000 bushels of wheat is so great that it refuses to be grasped by the human mind without some units of comparison. If this crop of wheat were loaded into freight cars, 1,000 bushels to the car, and each car occupied forty feet of the railway track, it would represent one solid loaded train 12,617 miles in length—more than enough to reach half way round the world at the equator. These loaded cars, without engines, would occupy seven-eighths of the entire trackage of the Canadian Pacific Railway, known as the world's greatest transportation company.

There is, however, another point of view, and a very appropriate one at this particular period, when the agricultural countries are called upon to produce the utmost pound of food. While the countries mentioned have done well their accomplishment shrinks into insignificance when compared with their possibilities. For instance, the three Canadian provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta could produce three times the total wheat crop above referred to! This statement may seem extravagant until submitted to the test of cold figures. Then we get data like this :

According to the Government of Canada there are in the provinces mentioned the following areas suitable for agricultural purposes :

Manitoba	74,216,000 acres
Saskatchewan ..	93,459,000 "
Alberta	105,217,000 "

The average wheat crop in these provinces for the last ten years has been : Manitoba, 18.20 bushels per acre; Saskatchewan, 18.44 bushels per acre; Alberta, 20.19 bushels per acre. The average for the three provinces is therefore practically 19 bushels per acre. If you multiply the available acreage, as given above, by 19, you will find that these provinces, if entirely cultivated, are capable of producing in an average year 6,184,948,000 bushels of wheat—considerably more than three times the total which is being produced this year, 1917, by Spain, France, Scotland, Ireland, Switzerland, Canada, United States, India, Japan and Algeria combined. The single province of Alberta can produce as much wheat as all of these countries anh have more left over than was grown in 1917 in all Canada.

Of course, it is impossible, as a practicable manner, to put every arable acre of land in any country in wheat, but if we say for the sake of illustration that one-third of the arable land in these provinces is summer-fallowed, one-third sown to coarse grains or pasture, and one-third to wheat, the proportion that is sown to wheat will produce a greeater crop than that already mentioned as being grown by all the countries before referred to.

These figures may be interesting generally for the great comparison which they afford, but they must also carry the conclusion that the world is a very long way from having exhausted its food producing possibilities. Any scarcity of food production which may now exist is traceable almost entirely to an improper distribution of population. In the older countries population is compelled to exist on such limited areas that production on a relatively large scale is impossible, whereas in the newer countries such as Western Canada the population is as yet totally insufficient to bring the country under cultivation. These are conditions which will doubtless right themselves; in fact, the process of correction is going on very rapidly, and, whatever difficulties may be experienced in feeding the world during the next few years, there can be no question that they will be solved as soon as sufficient population is found for the great open plains which are still awaiting the husbandman.

NERVOUS AILMENTS

Few people realize that nervous ailments often arise from digestive troubles. The stomach fails, for some reason, to digest food properly. Then the system languishes and the nerves become exhausted in striving to continue their work. Impure blood also causes nerve troubles, but frequently it is in the stomach where the mischief starts. As the nourishment is carried to the nerves by the blood, it will be seen what an important connection exists between the stomach, the nerves and the blood, and how such troubles as nervous headaches, nervous dyspepsia and insomnia may begin.

In such cases relief is easily obtainable by means of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills replenish the blood with the food elements on which the nerves thrive; at the same time they exercise a tonic influence on the digestive organs, enabling the system to derive nourishment from the food taken. By this perfectly natural process nervous ills are steadily dispelled by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you are suffering from nerves, or require a blood-making tonic, give these pills a fair trial, and see how speedily the best of health will be yours.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A REMARKABLE RECOVERY.

Canadian Surgeon Says Men Shot Through the Brain Often Recover.

"It is surprising and pleasing to know that a large percentage of men shot through the brain recover," is a statement made by Colonel F. McKelvey Bell in his new book, "The First Canadians in France." The subtitle of Colonel Bell's book is "The Chronicle of a Military Hospital in the War Zone."

The author was attached to the first contingent of the Canadian Overseas as medical director and gives in simple, colloquial style the first, or at least one of the very first accounts of "from this side to the trenches." Colonel Bell writes:

"That morning I found a poor chap who had been shot through the brain with a rifle bullet. The missile had entered the temple and emerged at the back of the skull, fracturing the bone both at the point of entry and exit. His heavy breathing and stupor told us the case called for immediate relief. In the operating room pieces of the skull were removed, the depressed bone lifted, and in about an hour the patient was taken back to his ward. We had little hope of his recovery.

"The following day, when I entered the hospital, his bed was empty. I thought: 'Poor fellow! He has died in the night and no one has sent me word.' I turned to the man in the next bed and asked:

"'What has become of your neighbor?'

"'Oh,' he replied, 'he's just gone out to the washroom. He'll be back in a few minutes. He stole out of the ward while the nursing sister was in the other room.'

"While we were talking, he walked in, got quietly into bed and reached for a cigarette."

SATISFIED MOTHERS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she will use nothing else. The satisfaction she derives from their use is wonderful. They are easy to give the baby; their action is prompt and thorough and above all they are absolutely harmless. Concerning them Mrs. Jean Dechaine, Lacordaire, Sask., writes : —"I am well satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. I had no trouble in giving them to my baby and they have promptly cured her of constipation." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Toothbrush That is Clean.

What is claimed to be a sanitary toothbrush is made with a folding handle. The handle does more than fold over the bristles of the brush. It forms a receptacle for a disinfectant which will keep the brush perfectly sterilized and antiseptically clean until it is ready for use again.

A New Use For Wood.

The very latest wrinkle at soda fountains is the use of wooden dishes for serving ice cream and sundaes, replacing the cheap looking and flimsy paper cups that came into use a few years ago in response to the demand for a sanitary individual service. These wooden dishes are pressed out of very thin sheets of clear maple, shaped to slip readily into silver holders. They are tasteless, odorless and hygienic. The clean appearance of the cups seems to add an appetizing flavor to the frozen delicacy contained therein, and they are making a hit with the patrons of high grade soda dispensaries.

In the drama of life there are more thinking parts than there are actors to fill them.

The New Type of Destroyer.

The up-to-date type of destroyer is a very different craft from the destroyer of a dozen years ago. It is bigger, more heavily gunned, much speedier and altogether more formidable as a fighting machine. It is about 315 feet long and has a displacement of 1100 tons. Provided with engines of 16,000 horsepower, it can travel at a rate of thirty-eight land miles an hour—the speed of a fast express train. Its armament comprises four four-inch quick-fire rifles, supplemented by four twin (or triple) torpedo tubes. The cost of such a boat is $1,500,000. It carries ninety men and five officers. A destroyer is a thin shell of steel largely filled with machinery. It burns oil fuel, of course, and its engines are of necessity huge, in order to furnish such great horsepower. Everything in its construction is subordinated to speed. Slim, like the swift mackerel, its breadth is less than one-tenth of its length. The U.S. Government is now building 300 of these vessels to aid in the war against the submarine.

LEMON JUICE IS FRECKLE REMOVER

Girls! Make this cheap beauty lotion to clear and whiten your skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

Paint your garbage can the same color as the house. You not only prolong its usefulness, but if it must stand outside of the door it will be less conspicuous.

Why Dogs' Noses Are Cold.

When your faithful dog pokes his nose into your hand even your affection cannot prevent a little shiver, because the nose is so cold. Why is it? When the body of a dog is so warm, why should this one spot be different from all the rest of him? The coldness of a dog's nose is due to the fact that it must be kept moist all the time in order to sharpen his sense of smell. And, of course, as the moisture is evaporating all the time, it keeps his nose cold. A dog depends a great deal on his powers of smell, especially in the wild state, and it is because of his keenness of scent that he is valuable to man for hunting purposes. In addition to the olfactory or smelling nerves inside a dog's nostrils the whole black membrane around the nose is very sensitive, but this sensitiveness can only be retained by moisture. Thus it is that when a dog's nose is dry and warm he is ill and needs doctoring.

WOMEN! IT IS MAGIC! LIFT OUT ANY CORN

Apply a few drops then lift corns or calluses off with fingers—no pain.

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of freezone, like here shown, for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Hard, soft or corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. If your druggist hasn't freezone, tell him to order a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.

NOTICE TO SICK WOMEN

Bridgeton, N.J.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for inflammation and other weaknesses. I was very irregular and would have terrible pains so that I could hardly take a step. Sometimes I would be so miserable that I could not sweep a room. I doctored part of the time but felt no change. I later took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt a change for the better. I took it until I was in good healthy condition. I recommend the Pinkham remedies to all women as I have used them with such good results."—Mrs. MILFORD T. CUMMINGS, 322 Harmony St., Penn's Grove, N. J.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence of the excellence of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the distressing ills of women such as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, backache, painful periods, nervousness and kindred ailments.

Pains Over Left Kidney

Warned This Captain That the Kidneys Were Responsible for His Pains and Aches—Freed of Pain and Suffering by a Well-known Medicine.

Hereford, Que., November 8th, 1917—Captain Peabody is well known all through this section, and his cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has aroused great interest in this great medicine.

The Captain had been suffering for a long time, and could never get any treatment to afford lasting relief until he began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Captain A. Peabody, Hereford Que. writes;—"For years I suffered from indigestion, rheumatism and neuralgia. Lightninglike pains would shoot all through my body, and I also had severe pains over my left kidney and through the hips. I doctored for years and tried all kinds of remedies, but the only result was money spent without relief. At last, I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of his Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them One box made such a change that I sent for five more. Before I had finished them the pains in my kidneys and hips had disappeared, and I was clear of those sharp, shooting pains through the body. I still take these pills occasionaly to keep my bowels regular, and would not be without them. as I have them to thank for my cure.

"I can also speak highly of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder and Linseed and Turpentine. The former cured me of catarrh in the head, which caused frequent headaches. I am completely cured of this now, and breathe freely as when a boy. The Linseed and Turpentine proved of great benefit for a bad cough which bothered me continually for three winters. Last winter I took one bottle of the Linseed and Turpentine and have not been bothered with a cough since'.'

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Don't be talked into accepting anything said to be just as good. Imitations and substitutes only disappoint.

AN APPEAL

To the People of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry:

On Monday, November 12th, a Dominion-wide Campaign will be inaugurated for a subscription from every person who can buy a bond of the value of $50, or over to the Great Canadian Victory War Loan issue of $150,000,000 or more. No Canadian needs to have explained to him the necessity for the tremendous amount of funds required by the Government of the day for the prosecution of the Great World War in which Canada has been engaged from its outbreak. It should, however, be pointed out that whereas for generations Canada has been financed not only as to her Government borrowings but also largely as to her transportation and industrial undertakings by Great Britain, conditions in 1917 are such that this Dominion now has an opportunity to repay part of this debt to the Mother Country not only by bearing its own share of war expenditure but also by providing credits to enable Great Britain to purchase her munitions and supplies particularly of food. This enables Canadians to show in a practical way their gratitude for British generosity in the past and at the same time to strengthen and support the native industries of the Country upon which its prosperity depends. There is no denying the fact that since August of 1914 this Country has prospered amazingly in almost every branch of business and that the people as a whole are well able to take care of the present Government issue of bonds is amply demonstrated by the ever increasing savings deposits in the chartered banks

As to the security offered one has only to say that the issue is an obligation of the Government of the Dominion of Canada in order to bring home to prospective buyers the fact that a War Bond is the premier security of this country. It has behind it the credit of the whole Dominion and its backing is the whole assets and revenue of the nation.

The issue will be in the form of five, ten and twenty year bonds upon which the rate of interest is higher on the shorter maturities.

At the request of the Minister of Finance I am acting as Chairman of the United Counties Organization, and I appeal most earnestly to every earner and savings depositor throughout these three Counties to extend to the canvassers who will call upon them during the period from the 12th to the 30th of November inst. a hearty welcome and not to send them away without subscribing for some amount at least of this issue. Those of us who cannot actually take our place in the fighting line can fight equally as well with the silver bullets of our dollars.

The effort of the Dominion Organization is to place these bonds in every home in the whole Country. I am confident that these three old settled Counties will uphold their traditions of loyalty and patriotism by replying in no uncertain manner to the appeal now made to them.

Yours very truly,
Geo. A. Stiles,
Chairman.

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Succeeded Where Operation Failed!

"JOLIETTE, Que.
"During August last I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder. He had decided on an operation and was assisted by another doctor. They said the calculus was larger than a bean and too hard to crush and they could not take it out. . . was recommended by a friend to try Gin Pills. I bought a box and found relief from the pain at once. . . I did not expect that they would relieve me of the stone, but to my great joy I passed the stone on October 3rd and am now a well man and very happy.

Paroid Roofs First Laid In 1898

NEPONSET Paroid ROOFING

Same Roofs Still In Service

PAROID is so good that the name has come to stand for the best kind of roofing. Complimentary, but dangerous! It means that for your own protection you must look for the name Paroid on every roll you buy. Then you are sure of the roofing that is approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

SAVE MONEY
Look for the Roll with the PAROID Label

Once laid, a Paroid roof is weather-proof and fire-resisting for years to come. The saving on repair bills alone ensures the economy of Paroid, to say nothing of the absolute protection to your stock and crops.

Replace Your Buggy With a Ford

MORE than 100,000 Fords are owned by people in Canada in preference to the old horse-drawn buggy and other makes of cars.

Your neighbors, and farmers in every section of the Dominion are abandoning their old buggies—selling their driving horses and buying Fords.

Ford cars are utility cars. They are built to endure the strain of constant daily use over rough roads.

These are the tests every farmer gives his car. The Ford meets them in a satisfactory manner. It is the farmer's car, so why not replace your horse and buggy with a Ford?

WILLIAMSBURG

Moving is the order of the day in our Burg.

Mr. Geo. K. Casselman and Miss Alice McIntosh of Ottawa spent the week-end at their parental homes here. Little Ruth Laushway returned home with them to spend a couple of weeks.

Miss Annie Casselman and Mrs. Lydia Merkley were guests of Mrs. Isaac J. McIntosh one day last week.

Mrs. Charlotte Empey who has lived in town for the past twenty or thirty years moved to Morrisburg last week to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Hamilton.

A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday evening, October 31, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Becker, when his daughter, Annette, was united in marriage to Claude, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Casselman of this place. The Rev. T. Meredith of Elma performed the ceremony in the presence of only a few friends. Their many friends here join in extending congratulations.

Special services will be held in the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches, Williamsburg, conducted by Rev. H. N. Konkel, Evangelist and pastors, beginning on Sunday evening, Nov 11th., in the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Geo. Barkley is in Ottawa for a few days this week.

A delightful reception was tendered to Rev. and Mrs. J. Maurer in the basement of the Lutheran Church on Tuesday evening of this week, on their return from their wedding journey. After refreshments had been served, the pastor and his wife were presented with a purse by the congregation. the address and presentation being made by Rev. L. M. McCreery. Rev. J. Maurer, on behalf of Mrs. Maurer and himself, very ably replied, expressing his thanks.

What Will Canada's Answer Be?

OVER in the sodden trenches amid the bursting shells and the roar of artillery where Canada's boys are fighting and dying.

—they are waiting for Canada's answer when the sale of Victory Bonds begins.

CANADA'S soldiers expect that we at home will put up the millions they need to keep on fighting, —the millions they must have to win Victory for freedom, home and Canada.

What answer will Canada make?

What answer will you make?

Shall it be said that Canada spares not her sons from the sacrifice of battle, yet withholds her dollars to give them victory?

Rather will it be said that Canada once more, for the fourth time in three years, cheerfully puts up her millions upon millions for the cause of freedom, righteousness and justice.

Canada's answer must be,

—that the Canadian hand to the plow of Victory holds steadfast and firm.

—that Canada is in deadly earnest when she says the "last man and the last dollar."

That is the answer Canada will give to our boys in the trenches, our kinsmen in Britian, and our Allies everywhere,

That is the answer we will give to the Huns who thought and said that Canada would desert the Empire before she would fight or pay.

Every bond you buy is an answer. Let the millions of answers from Canada's loyal men and women make a chorus of Victory to ring around the world.

sucking out the earth's blood—Fenella fervently hoped not to meet Duncan. The resolve to leave the hut before there was any danger of his return stood firm within her.

It was Adam who, unconsciously, put several spokes into her wheel, in the shape of wants and wishes which he was growing bolder to formulate, and of that garrulity which his misfortune had increased. At the end, as ill-luck would have, there came up a subject which, with Adam, was inexhaustible.

"Elsie Robson, you know her, don't you?" he blurted out, just as Fenella was drawing on her gloves.

"That dark girl? Yes; I think I know whom you mean."

"And would you say there was anything amiss with her? Anything to scare off a suitor, for example?"

"Amiss with her? No; if I remember right, she is rather good-looking. But Adam," and she rose resolutely, "you will tell me about her another time; it is getting late to-day."

"One moment, Miss Fenella!" and he groped blindly for her sleeve. "Only this one more question: What would you think now of a man who might have her for the asking—her and her croft and her cow—a man who'll require a wife some day, and who yet looks on the other side when he meets her on the road."

"I should say he was very foolish," pronounced Fenella, with all the authority of eighteen.

"Well, Duncan's that fool, Miss Fenella."

"Duncan? Oh? Is he going to marry her?"

"No, he isn't, worse luck—though I've urged him, times out of number. 'What do we need a housewife for?' he'll say, sort of joking in reply. 'Will any housewife keep the hut cleaner than I do? Or will any of them stir the porridge fairer?'—for he's as good a hand at the cooking as at the sweeping," put in Adam par parenthese—"and all the while knowing that I would die easier to see them come together. It's no the act of a dutiful son, in my judgment, though I'm bound to say, it's the only thing he's ever crossed me in," came the gloomy admission.

"Perhaps he doesn't care for her," ventured Fenella, far more uncertainly than she had spoken a minute ago, for this was a ground upon which she felt strange and unfamilar.

Adam threw up his maimed hands.

"Care for her, Miss Fenella! Unless he's got a piece of wood in place of a heart he can't help caring for a lass as bonnie and as well dowered as that! And so daft as she is upon him too! If he's got so small a bit of liking in him, it can't help growing beside her, just as fast as a potato grows when it's put into the ground."

"Then she is very fond of him, is she?" asked Fenella, with that inevitable interest which every typical woman feels in the heart concerns of other women.

"How should she not be? The finest lad in the parish! There is no finer lad in the parish, is there, Miss Fenella?"

"Oh, yes, Duncan is very good-looking," she agreed reflectively: "and he would be better-looking still if he did not so often look cross. Good-night, Adam!" she added, in the same breath, for her own words had conjured up a picture of the scorn in Duncan's eyes which she was anxious to escape. "It is nearly dark. I have stayed too long."

"Just this still," quavered Adam, not yet relinquishing his hold upon her sleeve; "your father has tried his hand for nought, but maybe if you'd say a word, Miss Fenella. It's likely he'll put more on a woman's judgment of another woman than on anything a man may say, and be he the minister himself."

"But I've got no judgment about the girl," protested Fenella, now in a fever to be gone. "But all right, Adam," she hastily stemmed the flood of further entreaties. "I'll try and see her, and I'll do what I can to help you—I really will. But now, good-night!"

Outside she breathed only half freely, since the steep hill-side to the right and the precipitous bank to the left kept her tied to the one narrow road along which the quarryman was bound to regain his home. In the dusk gathering fast within the hollow the heights had melted into one featureless rampart, while the oaks and ashes upon the river-bank were no more than black silhouettes against a streak of pale yellow sky. There were patches upon the shadow, some of which were movable, and some stationary; the still greedily feeding sheep or else some unusually blossom-laden hawthorn bush—while each of the busy burns, swelling in her ear as she approached it and dying away as she left it behind, borrowed from the shadows a mystery which daylight had denied them. It was their voices which drowned the sound of the footsteps approaching, just as the thickening dusk so effectively veiled the figure of the returning quarryman, that not until it was imminent did Fenella know that the meeting she had dreaded had become inevitable.

Evidently her nerves had suffered a little from the suspense, for, with the surging up of the tall figure in such close vicinity, a slight shiver passed over her. Simultaneously she quickened her step, so as to discourage any attempt at conversation, which was all the easier to do as they were walking on different sides of the road. But apparently he was not thinking of any such attempt, for having looked across and hesitated, for just one moment, he lifted his hat, and with a simple "Good evening," would have passed on. If he did not do so Fenella had herself to thank for it; for it was she who in this very moment stood still, perhaps because it had rushed over her that, after all, she owed him an apology, or perhaps because the silent condemnation which she thought to read in his attitude proved more mortifying than could be any spoken word. It was the mixture of these feelings which made her voice a little uncertain as she said:

"Good evening, Duncan!" Then, with an attempt at lightness:: "In a hurry, I see, as usual."

"I'm not in any greater hurry than any other day," said Duncan, standing still at his side of the road, but with his face still half-turned towards his home.

"I am glad I have met you," resumed Fenella, speaking nervously and quite sincerely, despite her recent dread of this very meeting. "I wanted to—to say something to you, about the other day—on the bank, you know."

She paused expectantly, but he said nothing, standing there immovable, and in the dark inscrutable, a figure that might have been cut out of black paper with a queer hump on its back, produced by the bag of tools he was carrying. Peer across as she would to read upon his features the scorn she expected, she could discover nothing. As well try to decipher an expression upon the holes of one of the oak-trees of the background. There was nothing for it but to go on, having once begun, and since evidently he was not going to help her.

"It was very stupid of me—not to speak to you, I mean. But it all passed so quickly; there was no time to think, somehow."

"On the contrary, not stupid at all, but uncommonly clever, I'm thinking," came the voice from over the road, very measured, yet with an accent which helped her to guess at the expression of the face. "In such company as you were it would have been hard, would it not, to point to an ordinary quarryman—a quite ordinary quarryman," he repeated, with careful deliberation, "and to say: 'Ladies and gentlemen, this is my cousin'? Oh, no, I think you did it mighty well."

Fenella's head sunk guiltily. This was what she had expected, what, in her heart of hearts, she knew she had deserved. A few weeks ago the head, instead of sinking, would have been petulantly thrown up, but though still smarting occasionally under what struck her as Duncan's arrogance, she had lately, beside his father's sick-bed, learnt to know and to respect other qualities in him beside the arrogance. It was this rather unwilling respect which made it possible to bear his reproaches.

"I did not mean it that way," she said, now almost humbly. "I should not like you to think that—that—"

"That you're ashamed of us? I should not like to think so either; for in that case, Miss Fenella"—and there came a deeper note into his voice—"I should have no choice but to be ashamed of you."

This time the head did go up, and her lips opened angrily, yet the words which, after a moment's pause, came over them were not angry ones, for the consciousness of her fault had returned upon her.

"If I had had a moment to think—It was so awkkward, somehow"—she said, in a burst of childish sincerity.

"Mighty awkward," agreed Duncan, with ominous readiness. "What would your friends have said, and what sort of face would the fine gentleman beside you have made, if you had had the idea of introducing us to each other? Do you think he would have shaken hands with me? or would he have been too much afraid of getting the slate-dust on to his fingers?"

"You're unkind, Duncan!" murmured Fenella, while the tears of mortification stung her eyelids. "And when you see that I'm sorry—you must see that I'm sorry, surely?" she asked, with a mixture of irritation and deprecation.

Probably he did see, or rather hear, since under the present conditions of light there was only her voice to go by, for when, after a short silence, he said gravely:

"I am glad you are sorry, Miss Fenella, for I shouldn't like to think ill of you," the sting had gone out of his voice.

Before she had spoken again he added:

"It's late for you to be walking alone. Father has kept you beyond your time, I'm thinking."

"Oh, I'm not afraid; it's only a short bit to the village."

"It's too long a bit for you to be walking alone after daylight; just ask the minister if it isn't. I'd better be seeing you as far as the bridge."

"There is no need at all," assured Fenella, but he had already crossed the road.

"I'm more likely to know the need than you," he was muttering in his beard.

"But you're tired; you ought to be getting home."

Duncan had made one step in the direction of the village, but now stood abruptly still.

Rolls and tea biscuits make a delightful addition to the daily bill of fare. The regular bread dough may be used in making them.

Parker House Rolls

Use the recipe for white bread, the sponge method. When the bread is ready for the pan, roll on a slightly floured pastry board one-quarter inch thick. Cut with a four-inch cookie cutter, brush them with melted butter, then fold over in pocketbook style, pressing firmly. Set on a well-greased pan two inches apart. Set to rise for thirty minutes. Then brush with egg and milk wash. Bake for eighteen minutes in a hot oven. Quickly brush the tops of the rolls upon their arrival from the oven with melted butter.

Tea Biscuits

Prepare the dough as for the Parker House rolls. Roll it one-quarter inch thick, then brush with melted butter. Fold over the dough and beat with a rolling pin for three minutes. Cut with two-inch cookie cutter. Set in warm place to rise for eighteen minutes. Then brush with egg wash. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake in a hot oven for fifteen minutes.

Cinnamon Cake

Use the recipe calling for straight dough method in the bread recipes. When the dough is ready for the pans, roll it three-quarters of an inch thick. Cut the size of the pan. Place in a well-greased pan and set to rise for thirty minutes. Brush the top with egg wash and cover one-quarter of an inch deep with one-half cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of flour, two tablespoonfuls of cinnamon, five tablespoonfuls of lard. Mix the dry ingredients well, then rub in the lard until crumbly. Place on the dough in a moderate oven and bake for twenty minutes.

Cinnamon Buns

Use the straight dough mixture. Take the dough one ready for the pans and roll it on a slightly floured pastry board one-quarter of an inch thick. Then spread it with brown sugar, cinnamon and currants and one ounce of butter to every pound of dough. Roll like jelly roll, but in slices one and one-half inches thick. Place so that the buns barely touch each other. Set to rise as directed for bread for forty minutes. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty-five minutes. Remove from oven and glaze with a syrup made of one cupful of molasses, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one tablespoonful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of butter. Place in a saucepan and boil to 220 degrees Fahrenheit, using a candy thermometer.

The yolks of two eggs may be added to these doughs when starting if a richer quality is desired.

Old Yorkshire Scones

Cook a sufficient number of potatoes to measure one cupful when mashed, and while hot add two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one cupful of scalded milk. Beat well to mix. Let the mixture cool to eighty degrees Fahrenheit, then crumble in one yeast cake and a sufficient quantity of flour to make a stiff dough, about three and a half cups. Turn on a pastry board and knead well for twenty minutes. Now break off pieces weighing one and a half ounces. Mold into balls. Cover a tray with a cloth: lay the molded balls on the cloth and allow them to rise for ten minutes. Now flatten them out with the palm of the hand. Cover and let rise again for thirty minutes. Lift with a spatula or cake turner and put them one inch apart upon the upturned bottom of a baking pan. Use a little sifted flour to cover the top of the scones. Bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

Do not grease the upturned surface of the baking pan, but cover it with a slight coating of sifted flour.

Egg Glaze for Rolls

Use one egg and four tablespoonfuls of syrup. Beat well to thoroughly mix, then apply to the rolls with a brush.

The housewife will find that, if she buys two medium-sized paint brushes of fair quality, she will save materially in greasing pans and in applying glaze, giving the food a better appearance. Treat the new brushes to a soda bath in scalding water. Wash well, then rinse in plenty of cold water. Now dry, and they are ready for use. Always wash the brushes after using.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

Music a Necessity in Wartime.

In time of war everyone expects to sacrifice a certain amount of luxury. By a simple process of taxation such sacrifices are automatically systematized for the entire community. But the question arises: What is a luxury, what a necessity?'

It has been proposed that musical instruments should be classed as luxuries. In other words, music is to be classed with liquor and tobacco as one of those utterly useless frivolities that every serious and patriotic citizen should be glad to give up.

What an anomaly! Music, always a necessity, becomes in time of war absolutely indispensable to a nation. When the nervous system of every individual is working under constant strain, the calming, sustaining influence of music should be given every opportunity to make its presence felt. When patriotic emotions demand expression and encouragement, it is music that will supply it. When thousands of people have to be brought together to one common purpose, music is the only universal language, the only oratory that reaches every heart. We want "O Canada," "The Maple Leaf" and the National Anthem to be sung in every home, in every public place. Yet some so-called economists limit the possibilities of music by placing an embargo on the instruments that should lead us in singing.

The musical sense is one of the highest and noblest possessed by man. It is also one of the most fundamental reaching down to the earliest stages of civilization and the lowest orders of intelligence. The savage goes to war with the beat of the tom-tom in his ears, and the greatest religious and political movements have equally owed their impulse to strains of music.

Time was when music, no matter how universal in its appeal, could be heard at its best only by the rich, but the last ten years have changed all this. The tremendous advance in the manufacture of all kinds of musical instruments, both of the old kind to be played by hand and of those that reproduce the work of great artists, has put the highest type of music into every home.

People are learning better every day the great truth that music is not a luxury but a necessity.

Here in Canada where we have a composite of classes, races and traditions, to be welded into a nation and into an army, we have only one language that all can understand, one means of expression that is common to all. Music to create and foster national spirit and consciousness, music to stimulate recruiting, music to brace and inspire those who march to war and rush to battle, and finally, music to sustain those who have to remain behind and wait—our need is for music, and music, and still more music.

Let u do nothing to discourage the one most powerful influence in the creation of a real and lasting nationalism.

Keep seed corn away from rats and mice.

Potatoes add succulence to the dairy ration. Where corn silage is not available and there are plenty of small potatoes, a peck a day will give a marked increase in milk flow. Introduce into the ration gradually and run through a root cutter to avoid the possibility of choking the animal.

Worth Protecting

A good article is worthy of a good package. A rich, strong, delicious tea like Red Rose is worth putting into a sealed package to keep it fresh and good.

A cheap, common tea is hardly worth taking care of and is usually sold in bulk.

For that which befalleth man befalleth also the beast.

THE CUP THAT CHEERS.

Tea and coffee are generally drunk for the pleasure and the sense of well-being they give; yet both these beverages are mostly stimulants, with practically no food value.

When a tired woman prefers to food cup after cup of strong tea she is cheered, perhaps exhilarated—yes, times actually inebriated; and this to the jeopardy of nerves and muscles. So that her constitution must sooner or later break down, if the tea tippling habit is persisted in. Then is there a case of hysteria for the doctor, possibly even a case of "incompatibility of temper" that has to be dealt with in the domestic relations court. In like manner, when a man under stress of business or who is going "the pace that kills" drinks daily anywhere up to a dozen cups of strong coffee in order to keep up under the unnatural strain, he is, as sure as fate and the tides, going to pay the penalty for his intoxication—for that is what it all amounts to. There are plenty of other intoxicants in nature besides alcohol.

The natural forces of the human body are able to do normally just so much work; and their ability to do this work is directly in proportion to the energy derived from the food supply taken into the body. A machine is kept going by the fuel in the engine; it may be made to go faster by means of bellows. Coal is the fuel; the bellows stimulate the flame. In the man machine, food (meat, vegetables, cereals) are the fuel; tea, coffee, alcohol and like stimulants are the bellows—they are not the fuel. No amount of such stimulants adds to the living tissues (the nerves, muscles, organs of the body); they merely goad the nerves, the muscles and the organs to undue, unnatural effort, however tired and unwilling those tissues may be. When the stimulant is stopped, or, if after a time in spite of the stimulant, the exhausted tissues refuse to do their work, then the weakened body rebels and refuses to work again until it has been fully restored—recreated—by rest, sleep, change, fresh air, abundance of nutritious food and by hygienic living in general. If these salutary means are not forthcoming, disease perhaps fatal, is inevitable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Feels Dizzy.

I am 54 years of age and am troubled with dizziness. In the morning on rising I have to hold on to something to steady myself; and on lying down I seem to lose control for a moment or so. What can be the cause of my trouble.

Answer—With such a symptom at your age one must consider hardening of the arteries, of which dizziness is a very frequent symptom. You should be under the care of a good family doctor.

Rabic Horse Bites Cow.

Sometime ago our cow was bitten on the neck and foreleg by a horse having hydrophobia. But where the cow was bitten there was no wound made in the flesh. We have waited 25 days before using her milk; do you think it is safe for us to use the milk now? Our veterinary told us to wait 21 days.

Answer—By all means use the milk after 25 days. You were wise to take precautions. And when the skin of animal or man has not been perforated by the bite of a rabic animal, the danger of hydrophobia is slight and certainly after 21 days negligible.

THE STORAGE OF POTATOES

By Louis D. Sweet.

It is of great importance that all the potatoes raised this year should be stored under proper conditions. Even when every precaution is taken the wastage of potatoes during the winter is considerable; under bad conditions of storage it is very great indeed.

In order that the best methods may be adopted by the small growers, those who have not had the experience in the storage of potatoes should know the chief causes of the wastage. These causes are:

1. Sweating, heating and consequent rot: often due to insufficient ventilation.
2. Rotting: due to potatoes getting wet at the time of putting them in storage.
3. Injury from frost.
4. Decay: owing to disease in the tubers at the time of storage.
5. Sprouting of tubers in the spring.

It is not possible to prevent altogether losses from these causes, but by using the best methods of storage, it is possible to reduce them very materially.

This may be done by taking care to guard against losses from each of these causes:

1. Sweating and heating occur if the freshly dug potatoes are piled in too large piles, so that the air cannot circulate between the tubers. The risk of loss from this cause is greatest in the fall, immediately after the tubers have been dug, and it is, therefore, important that potatoes when dug should not be put in unnecessarily large piles, nor kept in an ill-ventilated room.

2. Rotting from getting the potatoes wet. If the potatoes at the digging time are allowed to get wet and to go into storage in that condition, rotting is sure to occur. Be careful to have your potatoes dry before storing.

3. Injury from frost. Potatoes are easily damaged by frost. If they become frozen, their market value is destroyed. Therefore, take every precaution to protect the tubers from frost before and after digging.

4. Disease. There are several diseases of the potato which destroy the tuber, and if diseased tubers are mixed with the sound ones, the disease spreads rapidly; therefore, it is necessary to sort the potatoes carefully, eliminating all of the disease, the cuts, culls, and dirt before placing them into permanent storage for the winter. All of the cuts, culls, misshapen and diseased tubers should be fed to the poultry and live stock, but should be steamed or boiled before being fed, as in this way you increase the food value, and also destroy the germs of the disease, so that it will not get into the manure and thence into the land.

5. By proper ventilation of the cellar or storage room, and by holding the temperature as near 35 degrees F. as possible, you can keep the potatoes from sprouting.

Selection of seed. Seed for next year's planting should be selected from hills that produce all nice, true to type potatoes. These should be selected at the digging time, and stored separately in crates or boxes, and by storing them in a well-lighted room where the temperature can be held at from 34 to 40 degrees, with a little ventilation and this seed planted next spring, the grower will make a start toward improving the quality of his potatoes, instead of as in the past, simply planting the culls or runouts.

L.F.:—1. Will frozen corn make good silage? 2. When is manure most valuable, when fresh or after standing some time? 3. What is a remedy for the zebra caterpillar? 4. Also for wire worms:

Answer:—1. Frozen corn, if handled sufficiently early will make a fair quality silage. When the corn is frozen it is best to cut it at once, or as soon as possible, before the leaves are entirely dried out. Corn cut under such conditions should be put together in large bunches or shocks, so that as little drying out as possible will take place before it is cut up and placed in the silo. If handled in the above way, very little loss will be occasioned. 2. From the standpoint of obtaining the most organic matter, manure is most valuable when it is fresh. From the standpoint of obtaining the most available plant-food, it is most valuable after it has stood for some time, provided that the manure is protected from rain and snow and sufficiently packed so that it will not burn or fire-fang. 3. I do not find any insect catalogued under the name of "zebra caterpillar." I assume from your description that you refer to the army worm. This worm collects in large numbers in meadows and pastures for about two weeks before it begins to migrate. The insects hide during the day, but begin feeding about sundown. There are several methods of combatting the ravages of this insect. One is by sowing broadcast a mixture of bran-mash, mixing about 25 lbs. of bran with 1 lb. of Paris green, and a pint of sorghum or molasses, with enough water to make sort of a loose paste. The insects eat this poisonous mash readily. If you can discover where the insects are working in the meadow or pasture, have the section of the field rolled or dragged with a log drag. This will kill a great number. In case the attack is under way and the army of insects is moving toward a corn or wheat field, have a furrow plowed with the vertical side of the furrow toward the crop. Spread dry straw along this furrow and sprinkle the straw with kerosene. As the insects fill in, light the straw and repeat the burning out of the furrow until the attacking host of insects has been halted. 4. Wire worms are very hard to control. A careful system of crop rotation should be established so that the field that is infested with wire worms may be plowed up and worked, at least once in three or four years. This will upset the dwelling place of the wire worms and should clear the soil of the pests. The addition of fertilizers has been found to control to some extent the attacks of wire worms.

L.R.:—1. I have a five-acre field in alfalfa but it looks very thin. It was sown last fall. How can I improve it? 2. Can you suggest a remedy for ox-eye daisy and wild mustard?

Answer:—1. It is late to do anything on your alfalfa field this fall other than covering it with a light dressing of strawy manure at the rate of possibly four or five loads to the acre. In the spring I would advise you to top-dress it with fertilizer at the rate of 200 to 300 lbs. per acre, the fertilizer analyzing at least 2 per cent. ammonia, and 10 to 12 per cent. available phosphoric acid. After you have broadcasted this fertilizer over the field, follow it with the harrow, harrowing with the rows of alfalfa, if the alfalfa has been drilled in. The teeth of the harrow should be set back so as not to drag the young alfalfa plants out of the ground. The cultivation will do them good as will the addition of the available plant-food. 2. I assume that the ox-eye daisies are growing in your alfalfa field. If such is the case, frequent cuttings of the alfalfa should prevent much seed dropping. It would be well also when fertilizing the field in the spring to scatter some fresh alfalfa seed over the areas where the alfalfa has not grown, or where the daisies have killed it out. If wild mustard appears in the grain field, the field should be thoroughly disked immediately after the grain is cut, so that the wild mustard seed will have an opportunity to sprout and the young plants can be killed by the plowing that follows. If the grain field is infested with mustard, it should be sprayed before the plants come to the blossoming stage, using the following solution: Add 75 to 100 lbs. of sulphate of iron to 52 gallons of water. When this is sprayed over the field it will turn the grain a slightly dark color and will kill to a very large extent the mustard plants growing. The grain will quickly recover, while the mustard will die out. If the mustard is among the alfalfa crop, I am afraid the spraying with iron sulphate will injure the alfalfa, so that all that can be done would be to have the mustard pulled by hand, under such conditions.

Keep a quantity of browned flour on hand for making gravy and you will be surprised at the time saved.

As far as known, only three conditions are necessary to produce spontaneous combustion in hay-mows or stacks. These are the presence of moisture in the hay, the presence of a great enough bulk of the hay to retain heat, and sufficient ventilation to supply the necessary oxygen.

The Dairy

Age to Breed Heifers.

I have had a number of years of experience in raising and developing dairy heifers, and have found it best not to have them freshen before they are two and a half years of age, says a successful farmer. I have had heifers freshen at from one and a half to three years old, but those calving while young have been hindered considerably in their growth and development and have not made as large cows as those freshening at an older age.

I have also seen heifers which dropped their first calf at a year and a half of age mature very satisfactorily and make splendid cows, but they took one to two years longer in maturing. These cases of course are rare. In freshening at two and a half to three years of age the heifer is more matured, and therefore in condition to milk much better than if younger.

Poultry

Sending chickens to market which have not been properly fattened is a wasteful practice. The weight of healthy, well-grown chickens can be increased from 25 to 50 per cent. in two weeks by proper feeding. Three hundred and fifty to 400 pounds of mash, moistened with skim-milk or butter-milk, and properly fed to good fowls will produce 100 pounds of poultry meat in from 12 to 14 days. Proper feeding of the chickens before marketing improves the quality of the flesh. "Crate-fed" and "milk-fed" are synonomous with "high quality."

Cottonseed meal is very rarely used in the rations fed hens. Like linseed meal it is a concentrated protein food and when fed in the ration is liable to give the hens too much vegetable fat and protein for their own good. A hen requires considerable protein in her diet to enable her to lay well, but under natural conditions she obtains this protein in the animal form from the worms and grubs she picks up, therefore it is advisable to make up this lack of protein in the winter ration by the use of beef scraps, green bone or milk.

Fowls will keep themselves free from vermin during the winter months if given a convenient place to dust. A box thirty inches square and twelve inches deep may be built in one corner of the pen, or such a box may be made with legs so as to raise it sixteen inches off the floor. Almost any fine dry powder will make good dusting material. The particles should be fine enough so that they will choke up the breathing pores of the parasites which live on the fowl's body. Equal parts of loam, sand and sifted coal ashes, to which has been added a little kerosene oil and the whole thoroughly mixed is often used for the dust bath.
